National Newspaper Week In Countrywide Observance

This is Newspaper Week. The importance of your newspaper is being stressed throughout the nation.

Here are some of the things your newspaper stands for today:

- It is a record of history.
- It is an open forum.
- It is a market place.
- It is a voice.
- It is a guardian of the people.
- It is devoted to the best interests of its community.

And its goal—unlike other institutions we could name—the public be served.

Tomorrow the local lodge of the Elks entertains the newspaper fraternity of Waynesburg at a luncheon in its newly-refurbished club rooms. Paul Wade, the maestro of the dining room, has promised a good lunch and plenty of repartee.

We'll be there!

Senator Edward Martin says:

"So long as we safeguard the freedom of the press it will stand as the bulwark of our liberty. In every country of the world where the free flow of information has been obstructed freedom has been destroyed. Unless the American Press remains free we will not long retain all the sacred rights we enjoy as Americans."

"I am proud of the newspapers of Pennsylvania and extend to them my warmest thanks and congratulations."

Governor John S. Fine said:

"In no nation have the people lost their liberties so long as their press remain free, fair and fearless. It is just as true that where newspapers have failed to remain free, so too, have nations and individuals have lost their freedoms."

"I am proud to salute the press of Pennsylvania on this occasion of National Newspaper Week."

Being a weekly newspaper, The Republican would like to digress for a moment and editorialize:

The growing interest in television and other modern inventions on people's leisure time, have undoubtedly cut down the number of hours that can be devoted to reading newspapers.

For that reason, news magazines, weekly news summaries and other capsule forms of keeping informed have become very popular.

And for the same reason, the weekly newspapers have a decided advantage over their daily competitors in bringing the home town news to the reader just once each week.

At one time, the weekly press was in a constant fight for its life. The situation is now reversed. The American Press recently sampled opinions of Congress on the usefulness of the weekly. We reprint a few of the statements:

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee: "The weekly is close to the people. It fills a need which the metropolitan press cannot fill."

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio: "For anyone trying to reach the people, weeklies are the indispensable medium."

Senator Henry C. Dworshak of Idaho: "I truly believe in the importance of weekly newspapers in our country is tremendous."

Words of support for the weekly come from all interviewed.

This commendation from the men who are responsible for our national government brings understandable pride to the weeklies of the nation. They are an example of the small organization competing with the large and holding its own. The weekly press is a free press and from our observation editors are not influenced by praise or threats. They have a job to do for the community, they are an important part of the community and they belong to the community.

State's November Draft Quota Hiked

Selective Service headquarters Monday increased Pennsylvania's November induction quota from 1,730 to 2,002 men.

The increase was attributed to a similar boost in the national quota for that month.

500,000 More Face Draft, Childless Married Men, Too

President Truman last week signed new draft regulations making half a million childless married men eligible for military service.

The new regulations are designed to put into effect the draft law enacted by Congress last June.

It narrows military exemptions by making eligible for service married men with only a wife as a dependent, except in cases of extreme hardship.

Brigadier General Louis Renfrow, acting director of Selective Service, told news men the new regulations make some 500,000 men heretofore deferred, eligible for duty.

Renfrow added that Selective Service hopes to get 200,000 men out of that total. This estimate may be high because the Army's rejection rate heretofore has been about 53 per cent, and various other causes affect eligibility.

The new regulations for the first time also:

1. Make aliens with permanent residence in the United States liable for the draft. They are exempt only if diplomatic personnel, or if they are citizens

Kiner's Biggest Hit

In his six seasons as a Pirate, Ralph Kiner has hit 256 home runs. But his biggest hit yet, as we see it, came on Tuesday evening when he responded to "shower night" by donating to Children's Hospital the retail value of the gifts from fans. That warm-hearted gesture should, like those towering shots over the clock, live long in the memory of Pittsburghers. It showed that Ralph Kiner is a man of fine sensibilities and good judgment as well as a truly great athlete. That's a combination of virtues rarely found in a ball park or anywhere else.

Kiner and Nancy Chaffee, indoor tennis champion, will be married October 13, in California.

The third annual National Affairs Conference of Chambers of Commerce of Southwestern Pennsylvania will be held Tuesday, October 23.

More than 200 persons representing Chambers of Commerce or Boards of Trade in this area are expected to attend the meeting which will open with a dinner with a nationally known speaker.

Purpose of the conference will be to discuss and gain a better understanding of important issues facing the nation. Leaders pointed out it will be held soon after the adjournment of the present session of Congress, giving an opportunity to discuss important new laws and also to consider issues facing Congress at its next session in January.

Truman D. Weller, national chamber program advisor for the northwestern area attended the meeting Tuesday and said such conferences normally are held in large cities. This is a real tribute to Waynesburg, he declared.

Miss Kellems Still Fighting Income Tax

—Minneapolis—

Vivien Kellems announced last week formation of a national women's crusade against high taxes, communism and "corruption in American life."

Specifically, the woman industrialist of Stonington, Conn., demanded repeal of the income tax amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

Miss Kellems, who has been waging a single-handed battle against the government's income tax withholding program, said the new organization will be known as the "Liberty Belles" and have a men's auxiliary called the "Liberty Boys."

She announced the crusade at a meeting of Rotarians and their wives at the Nicolett Hotel in Minneapolis.

Miss Kellems predicted ten million women will enroll in the next year and in the 1952 elections vote out of office "all traitors, parlor-pinks, socialists, communists and pender-graftists."

French Officials See Operations of Texas Eastern

Jean G. Echard, chief engineer of the gas division of the French Ministry of Industry and Commerce, and J. L. Penaud, inspection engineer of the French Natural Gas Company in Bordeaux, were in Greene County Friday to observe Texas Eastern Corporation's gas transmission.

They were accompanied by Paul L. Hugen of New Eagle, manager of division 3 of Texas Eastern, and E. W. Ross of Waynesburg, assistant chief dispatcher.

They arrived in this country September 6, for a six weeks observation tour sponsored by the Department of State. The object is to see the use of coal and by-products, the production of gas and gasoline and the transmission. They have visited in New York, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Buffalo.

Both were amazed at the accuracy of measuring devices and automatic controls which Texas Eastern uses to supply its customer distributing companies with billions of cubic feet of gas. In France less than 50 million cubic feet of gas is produced daily.

(Boquet Mss. 21644 Fol. 476 pp. 182, A. D. S.) Captain Evan Shelby, Jr., son of the immigrant of the same name was born in Tregaron, Wales, where he was baptized October 23, 1719. He settled in Maryland, where he was a planter, store-keeper, and Indian Trader until about 1773, when he removed to Sullivan County, Tennessee, where he died December 4, 1794. He served as a captain in the French and Indian War and in Dunmore's War. During the Revolution he was a major and colonel of the Washington County, Virginia, Militia, and in 1787, he was a brigadier general of North Carolina Militia. His first wife was Letitia Cox, whom he married about 1744. She died in 1777, and he married (2) about 1787, Isabella Elliott. The most of these men in his company were inhabitants of the Conococheague and nearby counties of Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania, a number of whom were among the first settlers of the Tenmile Country. They served from July 15, 1759, to November 1, 1759.

For the first fifty years of the County's history, Jefferson and its surroundings practically ruled Greene County politics. Old timers claimed that any person born or raised beyond the High Rocks, was practically ineligible for office. Of course some deals were made which left outsiders in, but they were, in many cases, former Jefferson families, who had moved to other parts of the county. These vigorous politicians were also vigorous fighters, and I have heard many a story told of a fight in which the losing adherent claimed his rear hit the ground so fast that he couldn't count three. It was of such stuff that many of the men, who left to join the Army of the Potomac, were made of and accounts for the fact that so many of them fell on the battlefield, never to rise again.

It was the same kind of vigor that sent many of the Jefferson youth to the "Gold Rush" in 1849. One such account is given in a little book put out by George W. Reed, one of the "Forty-niners." In 1849, a group of Jefferson men calling themselves "The California Company" was formed and started for the gold fields. They went by boat to St. Louis and then on to Independence, Missouri, by Steamer. At St. Louis they had laid in provisions for the overland trip, which they report, included 1,920 pounds of Sea Bread, 200 pounds of hams, 500 pounds of parched corn meal, 300 pounds of dried beef, 300 pounds of rice, and 300 pounds of middlings, the latter for the animals. Instead of packing through they bought wagons at 98 dollars each, and six mules and one pony per wagon, in all the cost being more than $500 per team. They organized at Independence into 7 teams and were composed as follows:

Baron Stiegel Lost Fortune To His Friend In Card Games

—Harrisburg—

Henry W. Shoemaker, President of the Pennsylvania Folf Lore Society, State Museum, Harrisburg, said there was no more colorful figure in the early industrial history of Pennsylvania than Robert Coleman, noted ironmaster of Lancaster County.

"At first a close associate of Baron Harry W. Stiegel (Coleman's wife was a sister to Stiegel's son-in-law, James Olds), both at the outbreak of the Revolution enlisted in Captain Volck's Company of Colonel James Huber's regiment, Lancaster County militia, Colonel Huber being Stiegel's father-in-law.

"The intimacy of their association may have had much to do with Coleman's rise to eminence and Stiegel's deflation after the Revolutionary War," Shoemaker said.

"Captain Volck's company was known as the ironmaster's company as it was made up largely of ironmasters and ironworkers and the drummers were former water boys in the iron mines.

"Though one tradition says that Robert Coleman came of Finnish stock from Delaware, it is generally understood that he was born in County Donegal, Ireland.

"He went to work at Windsor Forges, Churchtown, Lancaster County, owned by the Jenkins family. Handsome, and with a good English education, he married a friend of the three Jenkins girls, Ann Old.

"As a clerk at Elizabeth Furnace, Brickerville, he worked

They started from Colonel Grant's, 9 miles south of Independence, on May 1, 1850, where Charles Meighen took sick with cholera. He eventually had to be left behind. They headed for the River Platte, which they reached in 19 days. On May 24, they were 400 miles from the starting place. The next day they were host to a Mr. Van Vorhees of Washington County, Pennsylvania, who was packing through. On May 28, they had antelope for supper and on June 1, the menu was buffalo steak. On June 4, they crossed the Laramie River to Port of the same name, and here bought more bread and stayed until the 8th, writing letters and resting up. To cross the River on June 12, they had to pay the ferryman $4 per wagon and 50 cents per mule, and report that one to two hundred wagons are passing over every day. They also report 33 companies ahead of them. June 5, they reached the headwaters of the Columbia, and on June 20, one of the wagons gave out and was abandoned by Clark, Hollingsworth, (Houlsworth) Riley, and Brown who decided to pack it out. A week later Roseberry, Black, Morris, and Gray threw their wagon away. They were then crossing the desert, which took them from July 26, to August 10, when they came to a place where they could get flour, but had to pay $1 per pound for it. On August 18, they drove into Hangtown, California, after a twelve mile drive before breakfast. They were five months on the trip, and had covered 2200 miles after leaving the Missouri River. The experiences, illnesses, thrills, etc., are given in a little book published by Little, Brown and Company, and are a daily diary of the journey.

All these men, with the exception of Brown, were from the Jefferson Section and have relatives living here yet today. It is also to be noted that some of them returned the same year and made another such journey in 1851, this time by the southern route. On this second trip, they encountered Indians and James Burson was killed in Arizona.

I also have an interesting diary of Hiram Heaton on which he tells of a trip from Jefferson in 1819, to Baton Rouge, Louisiana, to wind up some business in his father's estate. He traveled by horse, by canoe, and by River boat, on the trip down, then came back by horse, traveling for days at a time, through Kentucky and Tennessee, without seeing a single habitation. Hiram Heaton, in company with a man named Slater, and one named Jackson, left Waynesburg on April 4, 1819, and did not get back until the last part of August. It is an interesting account of Inns and handicaps of travel at that time.

won it. On other nights Stiegel's interests in the iron works at Elizabeth Furnace, Charming Forge and Boiling Springs, were said to have made up the pots and Coleman always won.

"The noble mansions at Elizabeth Furnace, Charming Forge, Schaefferstown and Manheim went the same way as did the Manheim warehouses and glass-works and thousands of acres of undeveloped water powers and timber, ore and glass sand properties, including the never located tin mine of Lancaster County.

"Henry Stiegel was a gentleman sportsman. He played fairly and he trusted his competitor, likewise a gentleman, as he would a brother. Stiegel took his vast losses philosophically, saying, 'I can't take it with me, can I?' He would have deeply resented the stories started after his death that he lost his properties from working capital not arriving from Europe during the war or from over-extension.

"He had no foreign backers; he started from scratch in Pennsylvania with a good education as his chief asset. He was proud of the conservative industrial and artistic successes he achieved. When, after Yorktown, Privates Coleman and Stiegel received their honorable discharges and Stiegel, trying to 'come back' landed in a debtor's prison, not being able to work on a 'shoe-string,' as he said. He remarked 'he would rather face the world alive, middle-aged and impoverished than a young casualty, his bones rotting on some lonely battlefield.' When Robert Coleman found him teaching school at Brickerville, and for the first time realized the extent of his buddy's misfortunes, he promptly took him into his employ and he became chief bookkeeper and accountant for Coleman's far flung enterprises.

"All was not clear sailing for Coleman, either, as three of his beautiful daughters died tragically before their desired marriages to the Reverend W. A. Muhlenberg, James Buchanan, and a son of General Edward Hand, respectively, though financially he always prospered. The story of Coleman and Stiegel and the real causes of the temperamental Baron's financial downfall, will always form a curious chapter in Pennsylvania's folklore and history."

Accident Facts

The safest person in the United States has an itchy foot again.

That little girl—the National Safety Council's perennial nominee for the mythical safety title—has moved back to New Jersey after a year's residence in Connecticut.

New Jersey recorded the lowest accident fatality rate in 1950, according to the 1951 edition of "Accident Facts," the National Safety Council's statistical year-book.

A little girl must be the safest person, the Council thinks, because the safest age group was the 5-14 bracket, and for some reason little girls have fewer accidents than boys.

Republicans Rip Truman's '52' Cast

—Washington—

Republicans blasted at President Truman's 1952 victory predictions Friday while Southern Democrats took grim note of his intent to help draft his own party's platform.

Almost to a man Republicans disputed hotly the President's assertion at a news conference Thursday that his opposition has no issues and is resorting to misrepresentation and smears.

Senator Knowland (Republican, California), put the sentiment of many of his colleagues into words with the declaration that "the people will have a good chance to decide whether there are any issues in 1952 and they will express themselves on efficiency and integrity in Government by electing a Republican President."

Republican National Committee Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson said in a statement:

"The people know the issues. Under the Truman administration they have corruption, inflation, high taxes, and war. If Mr. Truman wants to shut his eyes and pretend they don't exist, let him enjoy the dream while it lasts."

The President's observation that he intends to have a hand in drafting the 1952 Democratic program seemingly indicated that Southerners who hope for softening of the 1948 civil rights plank at next year's convention will have a fight on their hands.

Remodeling? Make It Fire-Safe

PUT FURNACE IN FIRESAFE ENCLOSURE

Cover ceiling joists with plaster, asbestos or gypsum. Keep the pipe between furnace and chimney short and straight. Clean heating plant yearly.

WIRE HOME TO MEET FUTURE NEEDS

Don't overload circuits. Have separate circuits for deep freeze, refrigerator, stove, etc. Provide plenty of outlets. Don't use a penny for a fuse.

BUILD CHIMNEY ON SOLID GROUND

Don't let it lend or get structural support from house. Have solid masonry units or reinforced concrete at least four inches thick, lined with fire brick or clay. Clean yearly.

PREVENT ROOF FIRES

Fire resistant roofing like asphalt shingles protects homes against sparks from chimneys, and other sources.

ADDED TIP

Fire stops placed in walls slows spread of fire from floor to floor.

Four fire hazards actually are "built in" American homes, says the National Fire Prevention Association, and these structural hazards account for about 50 percent of all residential fires. With emphasis being given to home modernization today, the NFPA sees this as an ideal time to eliminate these four structural hazards. Also, the NFPA points out that it is far easier to correct the mechanical causes of fire than the human tendency towards carelessness.

Population Center Moves West Again

—Washington—
The Census Bureau announced that the center of population in the U. S. has moved another 42 miles westward, marking the tremendous growth of the Pacific coast states.

Tabulation of the 1950 census reports shows that this country's 154 million people are equally distributed around a point eight miles north-north-west of Olney, Illinois.

For the past decade a site near Carlisle, Indiana, marked the center of population.

The change marks the 17th time the decennial national census has shown a western migration. Slowly, decade by decade, the stone memorial has moved 644 miles from a point 23 miles east of Baltimore in 1790.

The movement has always been westward along the 39th Parallel, varying only 30 miles north and south.

To mark the change the Census Bureau is scheduling ceremonies in October 17 at Bloomington, Ind., and on October 18 at the site near Olney. Both programs will be broadcast over radio and television chain hookups.

The longest jump the center of population ever made was nearly a 100 miles from a site about 23 miles southeast of Parkersburg, W. Va., to another point 20 miles south by east of Chillicothe, Ohio. This reflected the rush of fortune hunters to the gold fields of California in the 1850's.

Weather or Not—88 Percent Right

—Washington—
The weatherman claims that his predictions are slightly more than 88 per cent accurate, on the basis of nearly 1,000 eyewitness reports by volunteer observers.

The United States Weather Bureau said it asked 342 volunteer weather watchers in 18 states to check on the weatherman's forecasts during specific periods over a four-year stretch.

The volunteers were asked to mail a postal card saying "right" if the forecast came true, and "wrong" if it did not.

Tallying up 9,927 replies, the bureau found 8,773 marked "right" and the rest "wrong." This gave the weatherman an average accuracy of more than 88 per cent, it said.

The highest degree of accuracy was found in Florida, where the Jacksonville weather stationer discovered its predictions were on the beam 94 per cent of the time during a 52-day test period.

How 'Pure' Can We Get?

An abject case of misguided zealots is brought to national attention by legislators of the State of Nebraska.

The law in question (and we, too, question it) requires teachers to sign an oath that they will "inculcate" into their student body a feeling for the "finest traditions of America."

Philip Allen (a good American name), a World War II veteran, an announcer over an Omaha radio station, and a teacher at the University of Omaha, has written the Governor of Nebraska and the members of the state legislature; even the F. B. I.

"I will sign the oath," he said, "because I am delighted to assure anyone I am not a traitor to the United States and do not intend to become one. However, I resent . . . being singled out for such an insult."

We read considerable in the papers in these troublous times that savors of Pilgrim Fathers' witch-hunting days but never suspected any group of legislators could be so provincial as to exact such an oath from infinitely better patriots than themselves.

Thomas Jefferson, the father of democracy, in his preamble to the Virginia Statute for Religious Freedom, in 1779, states:

"That Almighty God hath created the mind free, and manifested His supreme will that free it shall remain, by making it altogether insusceptible to restraint;

"That all attempts to influence it by temporal punishments, or burdens, or by civil incapacitations, tend only to beget habits of hypocrisy and meanness, and are a departure from the plan of the holy author of our religion, who, being lord of both body and mind, yet chose not to propagate it by coercion on either, as was His almighty power to do, but to exalt it by the influence of reason alone . . ."

"That it is time enough for the rightful purpose of civil government for its officers to interfere when principles break out into overt acts against peace and good order; and, finally, that Truth is great and will prevail if left to herself."

We're against every "ism" but "Americanism." And we challenge the Nabobs of Nebraska.

In their narrow-minded zealotry they have challenged the REAL AMERICAN—the man whose forefathers threw off the yoke of oppression; whose forefathers refused to have words of obeisance put into their mouths; whose forefathers fought and bled and died for this a then wilderness.

It was our forefathers who brought order and understanding out of this chaotic oasis. AND THEY DIDN'T LEGISLATE IT, EITHER!

Sterilizing Unit Presented to Hospital

A new steam pressure type sterilizing unit has been presented to Greene County Memorial Hospital by the Junior Auxiliary of the Hospital.

Costing $1,225, it was purchased with funds raised by operation of the gift shop at the hospital by the Auxiliary. The sterilizer will not only take care of present needs of the hospital but will be large enough to care for needs when the hospital is enlarged.

It will be custom built and adapted especially for needs of the local institution. Delivery of the unit will require about six months.

Previously the Junior Auxiliary members have made other gifts of equipment and supplies to the hospital. Chief of these was an anaesthesia machine which was given some time ago.

Announcement of the gift was made at an Auxiliary meeting in the Fort Jackson Friday evening at which time gifts were presented to Mrs. Samuel P. Weaver, who has served as buyer for the gift shop since it was started; to Miss Mary Hunnell, president of the Auxiliary, and to Miss Wenna Auld, treasurer.

Besides operation of the gift shop members of the Junior Auxiliary have sponsored other efforts for the hospital. The co-chairmen of the auxiliary are Mrs. J. Russell Milliken and Mrs. Weaver.

Alfarata Legend Brought Fame to Juniata Valley

—Harrisburg—
Henry W. Shoemaker, President of the Pennsylvania Folklore Society, State Museum, Harrisburg, told the legend of "Alfarata" The Fair Maid of Juniata.

"Alfarata was the fairest Indian princess of the Valley, but she failed to follow her ancestral teachings, and fell in love with a young Ulster Scot, Sandy MacPherson," he said. "They spent many moonlight nights on the river in a birch bark canoe and during the days she brought him game and trout and cooked them for him at his surveyor's camp, where he worked for the Rev. Dick Peters, Colonel George Croghan and Colonel Conrad Weiser, on running lines for the Penn Purchase of 1754.

"When the cold winds blew, and yellow leaves were covering the water, and it was too cold for boating, MacPherson met Alfarata for their nightly rendezvous under the cliff above where John Doyle, long after, built his landing.

"My work is closing down, my beloved," he said, "and I must report to my employers and take up my family life with my wife and three children in the Cumberland Valley."

"You are not going to marry me," sobbed the indignant maiden, "after all the love I have given you?"

"My dear, how can I? MacPherson protested, 'my wife is a Craighthead and belongs to a rich and influential clan, and though I love her no more, how can I desert my family? The word of a Highland Scot is seldom given and never broken,' he affirmed.

"I did not ask you to desert, yet how did I know you were married when I gave you all my love?"

"I am sorry," said MacPherson, "I did not tell you all, but I must leave you now."

"So must I," said Alfarata, planting a warm kiss on the handsome youth's bronzed cheek. She sprang past him before he could detain her, leaped from the cliff and lay a shapeless, broken mass on the rocks below.

"On calm, moonlight summer nights, the spirit of Alfarata is said to be heard, but seldom seen, following the track of a moonbeam, in her white birch canoe, called by Coleridge, in his researches, 'The Lady of the Woods,' her paddle on the still waters, the sound of her tear-choked voice, singing the love songs which had so aroused her faithless white lover.

"The well known poem 'Alfarata' was written by Marie Dix Sullivan, the sister of General John A. Dix, former governor of New York, the legend having been told to her by a railroad conductor as she was traveling up the Juniata Valley to Altoona.

"She was immediately inspired, and wrote the verses in a little notebook she was carrying, never changing a word. When published, it immediately became a classic and was the 'best seller' of its day.

"Several appropriate replies, which became almost as popular, appeared and the fame of the lovely Juniata River Maid became national, even international.

"Dan Elliott, a travelling songster, achieved great popularity with 'Lulliana, the maid of Susquehanna,' especially in the lumber camps at the head waters of the great crooked river.

"Many legends similar to that of Juniata are found in other parts of Pennsylvania."

Steno Handbag Habits Polled

—New York—
How important is a lady's handbag?

An informal survey reveals it depends entirely on the lady. To get an idea of how many times a day a working girl opens her purse, researchers polled secretaries in a typical New York office building.

The number of handbag sorties ran from eight to 42, with heavy smokers being bracketed in the higher figures.

This would indicate that the average working girl gropes for lipstick, mirror, comb, handkerchief, money, keys, and other miscellaneous items something like 20 times a day.

Boy, 6, Tries Out Emergency Plans

—Santa Ana, Calif.—
A Santa Ana six-year-old listened to his teacher's instructions carefully. Then he put them into practice. Dialing carefully, he telephoned the police and fire departments. He told the first his home had been robbed. He told the second his home was on fire. When officers and fire equipment roared up, he explained he was testing the "what to do in an emergency" lesson he learned at school.

Dulles Reveals U. S. Defiance

—Gatlinburg, Tenn.—
Ambassador John Foster Dulles told the nation's governors Monday night that President Truman and his advisers weighed the risk of war with Russia and Red China in pressing for the Japanese peace treaty which was signed in San Francisco last month.

Dulles said "those best qualified to judge" had felt that the Soviet Union and Red China might use the treaty as "a pretext for reviving open war."

He added: "That was the risk which the President and his responsible advisers weighed. To have given in to the (Communist) threats would have been to invite immeasurable disaster . . . that was the solemn and necessary decision which required courage."

"The eyes of the peoples that are still free and of the unfortunate victims of Communist despotism are fixed on this country."

Industrial Fire Loss Climbs

91 FIRES DAILY
Cause—Carelessness
Cure—Vigilance and good plant housekeeping

OBEDIENCE SAFETY RULES NO SMOKING
Be sure it's out when you throw it out. Don't take chances with defective equipment. Beware of static electricity.

AVOID SPONTANEOUS IGNITION
Keep oily rags in cans. Use care with flammable liquids. Provide ventilation.

ENCLOSE VERTICAL SHAFTS
Don't pile stock against doors. Keep fire doors closed. Mark and keep exits clear.

MAINTAIN SPRINKLERS
Keep water valves open. Too high stack piles cut off water spray. Keep extinguishers ready.

TRAIN PLANT FIRE BRIGADE
Inspect hose and fire equipment monthly. Cooperate with local Fire Department.

For every estimated $100 of industrial plant expansion in 1950, $6 went up in smoke, the National Fire Protection Association reports. This was the loss at a time when every effort was being made to expand sorely needed production facilities for the defense program.

The NFPA, sponsor of Fire Prevention Week, October 7-13, says that an estimated $3,000,000,000, an all time high, was spent in industrial plant expansion last year, and that $175,000,000 worth of industrial property was destroyed by fire.

Next Week is National Fire Prevention Week!

Fifty-Year History of Greene County Sports

By GEORGE N. THOMAS

BRIT PATTERSON Part One

Coach Red Roberts had not delivered the goods during the 1923 grid campaign. Before Christmas he was back in the land of Old Black Joe.

The college still was not running its own show. Local businessmen were determined, despite the Roberts fiasco, to put Waynesburg on the sports map.

They remembered Brit Patterson, one of the greatest tacklers ever produced at Washington and Jefferson College.

Dick Toline

Brit started on 1912-13 and 14 teams and was acclaimed an All-American by many sportsmen. After graduation, he returned to his hometown, to coach at Detroit University. Not only did he compile a terrific record with the collegians, but he also coached the Herald's, a semi-pro team, to the section championship.

It's often been said he returned to the district to get a crack at his alma mater. He had but one chance to conquer them, and failed.

"Dad" Engle, who had watched the regime on College Heights change three times in three years, remained as assistant.

And Wendell Scott, early Waynesburg player, signed to help coach and act as scout.

Brit Patterson had all the makings of a big-time coach.

He claimed that allowed to choose 40 football players, and with a little cooperation from alumni (money) and the faculty (passing grades), he could beat anyone, anytime.

In many ways, Brit resembled the college post-World War II basketball coach, Ray Welsh. They were resolute men of action. They didn't just talk about big-time, they went out after it.

At first, Patterson was given the green light. He immediately packed his promise bag and toured the countryside for football talent.

By August 1924, Brit was back on the campus and he was loaded with talent. Newspapers said Patterson had better material than Jock Sutherland.

One day six huskies from the mid-west arrived at the Heights and made other students look like kindergarten pupils. They were Raymond Scheib, Kenneth Heider, Marvin Schmidt, Ray Gillis, John Stewart and Maynard K. Wood.

But Brit was never satisfied. He looked over a couple of backs on Illinois' Freshman team and talked one of the halfbacks, a young boy named Cook, into coming to Waynesburg.

The other halfback didn't look as good so Brit left him alone. His name was Red Grange.

The truth of the matter is that Cook outshone Grange in their Frosh year at Illinois.

In his tour, Brit ran across Dick Toline, Stewart Simms and Ray Williams, most colorful of all Jacket gridders.

At Michigan a football player, Benny Oosterbaan, disappeared from the campus shortly after enrolling. No one suspected where he had gone. But Brit Patterson knew. He had shoved some cash into Benny's hand and instructed him to show up at Waynesburg.

Benny, not having a pencil at hand, took a mental note and let it go at that. Sure enough, he got off the train at Waynesboro, and not finding a college in town, promptly hopped a train right back to Michigan.

Fate had taken a hand in guiding him back and he became an all-time All-American at Michigan and today is head grid coach there.

Patterson burned when he heard the news.

But Brit had his share of talent. For instance, Dick Toline from Moline, Ill. "Toline from Moline" was named on nearly every all-time all-star team at Waynesburg.

When Chet Smith, Pittsburgh Press sportswriter, saw Toline, he wrote, "That boy is positively a ringer. He couldn't be that good and only be a college player."

Toline arrived after the team had left the opener at Westminster.

He grabbed a uniform and hopped off for New Wilmington. Getting a quick resume of the plays, he ran wild for two touchdowns from the fullback slot.

Getting a once-over of Patterson's plays was quite a feat in itself. He tried to teach his boys 200 grid plays.

Eventually, Brit turned Toline into an end and he and Charley Susano have become all-time Jacket ends.

Jock Sutherland told Brit that at Pitt or any large school Toline would have been a cinch for All-American. He ran with his knees high.

Susano was a rough, raw-boned youngster from this district. An ace student as well, he almost single-handedly built the school's tennis courts and was editor of the Yellow Jacket newspaper.

Today he is an atomic scientist. Old timers still recall the 7-6 Jacket win over Geneva that year.

Toline, a 185-pounder, played opposite giant Geneva end Cal Hubbard. Hubbard, an all-time great with the Covies, was a key offensive man.

Geneva ran many of its plays around Hubbard's end because they knew Cal could knock almost anyone out of the way.

That is, almost anyone except Toline. They pounded Toline's side unmercifully until he groaned to Hubbard:

"Don't you have any plays going around the other end?"

And Hubbard had a heart as big as his frame. Toward the end of the contest, he kept lifting Toline to his feet after each play and asked:

"Are you all right, boy?"

After the game, Cal hugged limping Dick Toline and said:

"You played me the hardest game I ever played."

And they helped each other off the field.

Hitting the High Spots

By JACK HAMMERS

Pittsburgh didn't win the pennant this year but what more dramatic finish could any team have than a grand slam homer to win the season's final?

We see the New York Yankees winning the world series in five games. The rest they got during the National League playoff sure helped a lot.

Last week we had the best week so far this year in picking the football results as we hit eight right and had two wrong. That gives us a total of 17 right, 11 wrong and two ties. This week we see the following results:

South Union over Waynesburg
Trinity over German
Uniontown over Monongahela
Washington over Mt. Lebanon
Carmichaels over Mapletown
Georges over North Union
Central over Canonsburg
Mt. Morris over Center Twp.

Three Licenses, Yes; But Only One Deer

Although there will be three deer seasons in Pennsylvania this year—bow and arrow, buck and antlerless—no hunter may bag more than one deer.

The season for archers is from October 15 to 27, inclusive, except Sunday. In order to hunt with bow and arrow the hunter must have a special $2 archery license in addition to a current Pennsylvania hunting license.

The second season is for buck and runs from December 3, to 13, when only a regular hunting license is required. Only bucks with two or more points may be taken during the archery and buck seasons.

The antlerless deer season is the third season. To hunt a deer without visible antlers a $1.10 antlerless deer license is required in addition to the current Pennsylvania hunting license.

The game commission emphasizes that a hunter may take only one deer no matter how many licenses he holds.

Licenses for the antlerless deer season went on sale Monday at all County Treasurers' offices and at other issuing agencies.

Licenses for non-residents to hunt antlerless deer will not be available before November 14.

Jefferson Rockets Topple Chartiers High Bucs, 26-6

Coach Ben Parker and his Jefferson High Rockets continued to roll on undefeated as they added Chartiers High School to their list of victims, 26-6, at Chartiers Friday night.

Once again it was Bill Komlo who led the Rockets to their fourth victory as he scored three touchdowns.

Score by periods:
Jefferson 6 6 7 7-26
Chartiers 0 0 0 6-6

A determined Geneva College eleven forced the Waynesburg College Yellow Jackets to come from behind to score a close 7-6 victory at Beaver Falls Saturday night. It was the first victory of the year for the boys from Greene County.

Geneva scored early in the first quarter on a pass from Pat Cortazzo to Buddy Ceminio which covered ten yards. Cortazzo had passed to Bob Steffen for 44 yards to set up the payoff play. The whole Jacket line rose en masse to smother the extra point attempt.

Waynesburg then proceeded to walk all over the Covies until they hit inside the Geneva 25. Seven times the Beaver Falls boys threw back the Jacket attack. Then with only two minutes remaining, Coach Jack Wiley's team pulled the game out of the bag.

Geneva was forced to punt and the Jackets took over on their own 42. Two plays moved the ball to the Geneva 46. Federici rounded his right end for 21 yards to the Geneva 25. Kenny Beadling then faked back and threw a perfect strike to Halfback Stan Hunsucker on the 10 and he scored standing up. With the score tied at 6-6, Bill Scott calmly booted the extra point to give Waynesburg a 7-6 lead and the victory.

Waynesburg completely outplayed the Covies as they racked up a 12-0 edge in first downs and made 333 yards by rushing as against 84 for Geneva.

Coach Wiley will take his team deep into the hills of West Virginia Saturday for a game with West Virginia Tech.

Score by periods:
Waynesburg 0 0 0 7-7
Geneva 6 0 0 6-6

West Beth Too Much For Richhill Township

West Bethlehem High School's Class C football combination proved to be too much for the Richhill Township High eleven to solve and they handed the Greene County team a 26-0 defeat at Marianna on Friday.

Halfback Kamenski ran 45 yards for one score and 20 yards for another. Other West Beth scores were made by Skena and Vargo.

First downs were 8-7 in favor of the winners.

Score by periods:
West Beth 6 13 0 7-26

Carmichaels High Tops Rostraver High, 38-13

Carmichaels High School scored in every period but the fourth Friday night at Carmichaels as they sent a visiting Rostraver High eleven home with a 38-13 defeat.

Krutko scored three times for the Creemen, Cielensky twice and Cutler once. Carmichaels lead 32-0 at the half and most of the second half was played by reserves.

The Mikes led in first downs 15-6.

Score by periods:
Carmichaels 19 13 6 0-38
Rostraver 0 0 6 7-13

Maples 19-0 Victims Of Masontown High Gunners

A highly-favored Masontown High eleven had to fight all the way at Mapletown Friday to score a 19-0 victory over Mapletown High.

Joe Glagola scored twice for the Gunners from Fayette County with Jim Smith racking up the other score.

The victory was the third in four starts for Masontown and the third defeat in four starts for the Maples.

Score by periods:
Masontown 0 7 0 12-19
Mapletown 0 0 0 0-0

Bonifield Resigns as Raiders Suffer Fourth Straight Defeat

Waynesburg High School's Red Raiders not only lost their fourth straight game last Friday night, but also lost their coach, as Frank Bonifield asked the School Board to relieve him of his duties. He will remain as a teacher and baseball coach.

Dunbar High's Mules set the Raiders back 32-6, which marked the fourth start for the local High and the fourth unsuccessful attempt to finish in the win column.

Washington, speedy quarterback, was the sparkplug of the Mules' attack. His scores came on Runs of 95, 13, and 3 yards. Altman and Frankhauser scored the other TDs for Dunbar with George and Harshman adding the extra points.

The only bright spot of the evening, as far as Raider fans were concerned, came in the fourth quarter when Lew Johnston broke loose on his own 28 and rambled 72 yards for the Raiders only touchdown.

Score by periods:
Dunbar 0 13 0 19-32
Waynesburg 0 0 0 6-6

"...our lives, our Fortunes, and our Sacred Honour"

175 years ago, at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, fifty-six men signed the Declaration of Independence.

Nine of those men were Pennsylvanians ... more signers than any other colony.

Ever since, Pennsylvanians have been putting their hands to the things that make a state—and a nation—great. Now the job is defense—defense of all the things we've worked for in the past and all the things we hope for in the future.

Pennsylvania has much to defend . . . and much to defend with. Democracy's arsenal is here. Concentrated in our great state are raw materials in abundance unequalled by many nations. Pennsylvania's productive plant is the greatest in the world—and expanding faster than that of any other state.

And that's another reason why no other state will do a better job for defense than Pennsylvania.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

By Dr. Kenneth J. Foreman

Wanted: Pioneers

Lesson for October 7, 1951

IT IS on record that a Virginian in the 18th century wrote to his family that he was moving "to the far west," meaning the neighborhood of what is now Bull Run, Va., not far from Washington, D. C. Well, the "far west" moved and moved, till it reached the Pacific. Beyond that ocean is the Orient, crowded past belief. Where now can the pioneer go? For pioneering is always in the blood of man. Not in every one's, but to be sure; there always are contented stay-behinds; but also there always are the restless souls, not content with what has been or is. How shall pioneering instincts help their way when all frontiers are closed?

Un-Traveling Pioneers
The traveling pioneer has about had his day; what we now need is the un-traveling pioneer. Such explorers are of various sorts. One is the mental pioneer, moving to new frontiers of the mind. These can be found breaking out new trails in various directions. In science there are the men whose minds produced X-rays and plastics, the men and women who did the brainwork that lay behind the splitting of the atom; in government the men on the judge's bench, in lawyer's offices or in professors' chairs, who have been and are still thinking out the undiscovered meanings of democracy; in education the men and women who have pioneered in new ways of teaching, such as Dr. Laubach, great scholar and missionary, who has led the way in teaching the "silent billion" to read and write; these are all pioneers of the mind. God send us more!

Moral Pioneers
We need also pioneers of the moral life. "Time," says a line in a poem by J. R. Lowell which has made its way into most hymnbooks, "makes ancient good uncouth." For instance; once upon a time, practically all Christian people supposed that slavery was not only a good thing, but that God had commanded it for all time. Whitfield, a famous evangelist, said that what America needed for its development was more slaves imported from Africa, and more home-brewing of liquor. Today this sounds so ridiculous that it is hard to believe that a Christian could have said it.

Time has made ancient good uncouth. But time alone will not do this. There must always be some moral pioneer, some one who will run the risk of being called "bad" by going out in front of popular opinion.

Between Whitfield's time and ours there have been moral pioneers, notably a Quaker named John Woolman on whose mind and heart God laid the message: Slavery is a wrong.

We need also spiritual pioneers, persons who will move forward to new discoveries of God. For most persons, God is still an "undiscovered country"; and no man can discover God for another though he may testify to his own discoveries. So in the realm of the spirit each must be his own pioneer; and some men and women, even from sickbeds, unable to walk as far as the door, have made great discoveries of God.

The man who is honored as a saint by three religions—Christianity, Judaism and Mohammedanism—Abraham, is sometimes known for the wrong thing. He may be thought of as a traveling pioneer because he moved several hundred miles during his lifetime. But he was not a pioneer in the "old American" meaning of that word, for the Canaan to which he went was no unsettled wilderness, but a well-populated civilized country, and he never owned the land he lived on.

Abraham's pioneering was in the realm of the spirit. We know from Joshua 24:2 that even Abraham's father was an idolater; Abraham moved out from the pagan religion of his father and his people, to the discovery of the One True God. No more important journey was ever taken.

The traveling of Abraham's feet was of little importance by comparison. It was the traveling of Abraham's spirit that has most blessed us all.
