Government Cost Report Given Congress by Hoover

Former President Herbert Hoover sent to Congress Wednesday a prospectus of the Hoover Commission proposals for shrinking the size and cost of government while improving its efficiency.

The report will be given in 17 installments. The first is due the end of January.

Thereafter the recommendations of the 12-member commission, some of them certain to be loaded with controversy, will begin reaching the Capitol at the rate of nearly one a week until May 31.

By then, Mr. Hoover hopes to have laid down a blueprint for action by Congress and the White House to reduce by a third or a half the number of independent Federal agencies, and for eliminating many of the estimated 1,500 activities in which government competes with private enterprise.

The report will continue the work of the first Hoover Commission, which since 1949 has resulted in 58 public laws, 39 presidential reorganization plans, hundreds of executive orders, and prospective savings estimated by some at four billion dollars a year.

The first report is an outline of the plans and progress of the commission and its studies of the 14 task forces in nearly federal activity.

A later report may fan the private-vs.-public power controversy which sparked some of the angriest debate in the last session.

New Plan to Enforce Laws by District Attorney

A new plan has been announced by the District Attorney's Office to aid in the more efficient enforcement of our criminal laws.

During the past year instruction booklets have been given to all Justices of the Peace to aid them in preparing information.

Often messages have been received by the office and particularly by the State Police of the apprehension of a county man under suspicious circumstances in other communities and other states. When such a call comes to hand, there is no present way to find out, except to contact every Justice of the Peace in the County, of which there are 30, to find if a warrant has been issued by their office. This is not only unfair to the accused by making him wait until the information is gathered, but also inconvenient to everyone concerned.

Cards have therefore been prepared for distribution to the various officials, to provide for notice of the issuance of a warrant or its cancellation to the district attorney's office, so that it can in the future act as a clearing house for all such requests.

This will be especially helpful in matters of desertion and non-support, which account for about half of the cases and which are re-current so long as the continuing support orders are unpaid. It is also an attempt to assist in the use of the Uniform Support Act now available inter-county and between 47 of the 48 states.

Dr. Gisela Ruckle, scientist at the University of Pittsburgh Virus Research Laboratory, has issued an appeal for "laboratory material" to folks sick with "genuine" measles—which excludes so-called German measles and other diseases which resemble measles.

Dr. Ruckle is interested in obtaining throat swabbings and acute and convalescent serum samples from such persons.

The measles he's working with can be tagged easily by a physician because they are associated with "Koplik spots."

If you have measles and want to help, ask your family doctor if the spots are "Koplik."

If your doctor says "yes" and both you and he are willing to cooperate so that the necessary specimens may be taken, get in touch with Dr. Ruckle—by phone as soon as possible.

The Whiteley Township Farm Women's Society was organized in 1918, and Mrs. Shriver has been active in the society since that time.

Mrs. Shriver has been a state director and has served as vice president three years.

The State Society has more than 3,000 members with about 100 township groups.

Kefauver Plans Fight on Crime

Senator Kefauver, Democrat of Tennessee, says he will ask the new Congress to create a special agency to help state and local governments fight organized crime.

In effect, he said, such an administrative agency would take up where the old Senate Crime Committee, which he headed, left off in 1951 "in the fight against the drug traffic, gambling and other organized crime, particularly among the younger generation."

Kefauver said he plans to seek advice and support from Attorney General Brownell and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in drafting a bill for early introduction in the Senate. It would create a national advisory agency on crime.

The agency, he said, would help the states to coordinate their efforts, provide legal assistance to state and local prosecuting officials at their request, maintain a file of source material to help them investigate underworld activities, and help out in other ways.

Attorney Sayers Undergoes Operation

An Editorial

'...and One for the Road'

A little seven-year-old girl, very close to us, is lying in Greene County Memorial Hospital with a broken leg—victim of a street-crossing accident. While no particular blame is attached to the driver—it had to happen during the holidays when every little tyke wants to be home with her parents, her sisters, her dolls, her dogs, and her everything that means love, devotion, care, and the just down-right joy of living.

Her little leg is cast to her hip—and during the ordeal, she never even whimpered. Know why? She still trusts people!

Automobile drivers are supposed to be of an age of majority. They are supposed to study the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; are supposed to pass a test as to their ability, not only to steer an automobile, but to have the necessary reflexes to avoid accidents.

A seven-year-old child has never been subjected to pedestrian law tests. A seven-year-old child will do just the things her parents do—jay-walk.

Fay Headlee, Burgess of Waynesburg, is doing the best he can with the material at hand. He has four policemen for a potential 10,000 population, while our neighboring city of Washington has 33 policemen with a population of 27,000, and is augmented by three policemen in East Washington.

Doesn't make sense! He feels as we do that Waynesburg should have "walk" signals throughout the Borough. But, it takes policemen to educate the jay-walking citizenry.

However, we feel that the Borough has, to a great extent, sacrificed public protection for the sake of showing a balance in the treasury through parking violations revenue.

A car parked overtime is not a menace to the life and limb of our citizens. But a driver, who feels the verve and the zest of the steering wheel, should be much more carefully watched. A surplus in our Borough treasury will never compensate for the loss of a life, or the possible maiming of a little child for life.

Our highway accidents over the New Year were appalling. Of the nine fatal accidents reported for the Western Pennsylvania area during the past weekend three were hit-run deaths.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has contributed little if any toward reducing these accidents. Either for economy, or solicitude for the felons who have to make license plates, the Commonwealth has continued the War Years' economy of but one plate. One used to be able to see the danger coming and get the license number. Now, a dead man can't look aft!

Waynesburg, but two short years ago, was the outstanding borough of the Commonwealth in that it had on its police force none but college graduates: Tom Boyd, Chief; "Rusty" Mundell, William Tennant,

"Lou" Hunnell, present Chief, and a number of other "learned" men.

While our present force is made up of very competent men, the turnover is too great.

We cannot maintain a permanent law-enforcement agency on about 97c per hour!

Let's, during the New Year, think more in terms of efficiency, safety and perpetuity of our people.

7-Year-Old Girl Struck by Car

Gretchen Ann Bergman, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bergman of East Wayne street, suffered a fracture of the left leg above the knee, Friday noon, when she was struck by an automobile operated by Rex T. McCracken, 42 years, of Cameron R. D. 1.

The accident occurred at the corner of High and Washington streets, as the child was crossing from the Army-Navy Store to the First National Bank Building, and Mr. McCracken was making a left turn from High street to Washington street.

Population Leaps By 12 1/2 Millions

—Washington—
The U. S. population grew last year by some 2,700,000 persons and now stands at an estimated 163,900,000, including those overseas in the armed services.

In reporting this the Census Bureau said the nation's population had grown by more than 12 1/2 million persons since the 1950 general nose count.

Governor John S. Fine went before the General Assembly for the last time Tuesday to proclaim that his administration has been clearly good and that the troubles of his four years in office have been caused by Republicans.

Fine spoke before a joint meeting of the House and Senate as the 1955 Legislature came into a session that is bound to be remembered for a fight over $350,000,000 in new taxes.

The Republican-controlled Senate trooped in a body over to the Democratic-controlled House to hear the final remarks of the outgoing governor. Then both bodies adjourned until January 17.

George M. Leader of York, and Roy E. Furman of Waynesburg, will be sworn into office Tuesday, January 18, when the Democratic administration will go into power.

Without suggesting a solution, Governor Fine said the current financial dilemma stemmed from tax revenue falling below estimates and increased education and relief costs above budget allocations.

It all adds up, the Governor said, to a prospective deficit of 60 million dollars, without going into an automatic increase of 100 millions more for other state services.

"Of course, fiscal problems become increasingly grave by the proposed lapse of the sales tax," Fine said, referring to Leader's pledge to drop that one per cent levy on August 31. It will produce about 100 millions in the two-year period.

In his review of accomplishments, the governor said that the Pennsylvania Turnpike, the express toll road across the state, was extended east and west, giving the state 360 miles of super-highway from the Ohio border to the Delaware River. The north-east extension to near the New York state line was started. Fine said he hoped before he leaves office to lay down a line for an addition to the proposed north-west extension from the New York state border to the Ohio state line.

Booster Shots Of Salk Serum Given 9,000

—Pittsburgh—
Dr. Jonas E. Salk has reported that about 9,000 children in 36 schools have received booster shots of polio vaccine.

Dr. Salk said the youngsters were first inoculated last Winter and Spring and the boosters, given during the past two months, complete another phase of the polio studies.

The injections are designed chiefly to determine how many shots a child needs to gain protection against the disease, how often they have to be given, and in what dosage.

Blood samples were drawn from the youngsters before the boosters were administered and Dr. Salk is checking the samples in his laboratory in Municipal Hospital to determine the effect of the vaccine.

The researcher hopes that the vaccine permits harmless infection because then every time a child would come in contact with a polio bug it would automatically "boost" his immunity and he would need no more shots.

Indications are that this occurs, but it is still too early to say for sure.

In all, Dr. Salk has inoculated about 15,000 persons in the Pittsburgh district since he launched his vaccine studies more than two years ago. None has contracted polio.

Books Donated To Philippines

Five hundred books donated by Methodist pastors of Western Pennsylvania area, will be shipped to the Philippines for use by Methodist ministers in training there.

Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke of the Pittsburgh Methodist area, said the shipment would include books on theology, church administration, Bible commentaries and on other subject pertaining to the Christian missionary program.

The books will be housed at the Methodist Mission at San Mateo, Isabella, the Philippines, and from there will be circulated throughout the Northern and Northwest Conferences of the Methodist Church.

March of Dimes Receives $154.50 From Borough

A total of $21,472.20 was collected by Waynesburg Borough through parking meters for 1954.

During the Christmas week parking was free, but many persons paid their parking fee nevertheless, and this amount, $154.50, has been donated to the March of Dimes which is just beginning the annual campaign for funds to fight polio.

During the year officers made 239 arrests. Of this number 53 were driving too fast for conditions; 13 were driving recklessly; nine were violating traffic regulations and two were driving without licenses. A total of 4,407 traffic tickets were given out.

Outbreaks of Flu Expected in U. S.

—Chicago—
A United States Public Health Service official said influenza outbreaks from one type of virus may occur in the United States this winter or next winter.

Dr. Dorland J. Davis, an expert on infectious diseases, said the flu appears to be recurring in two-year or three-year cycles.

If there is an outbreak this year, he said, it probably would be Type "A" influenza, and vaccine is available for that.

He wrote his views in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

United States Army Headquarters in Europe has announced that 1,800 enlisted men would be flown home each month instead of traveling by ship.

Flights of 60 enlisted men each will leave Frankfurt daily for Westover Air Base (Mass.) beginning this month.

The Pioneer History of Greene County, Penna.

By L. K. EVANS

His sons, Michael and Jacob, now old men, still inherit portions of the original Jacob Crow lands. Michael owns the home farm upon which the old fort stood, and upon which the mill now stands. Jacob owns an adjoining tract, and lives about a mile and a half below the mill. Michael married Sarah Jane Lucas, and is the father of nine children, among whom is our worthy and accomplished young friend, John M. Crow, Professor of Languages in Waynesburg College, and through whose kind offices I have gathered much of the information detailed in these sketches.

Greene County had few, if any earlier settlers, than the Crows, and I know of no other family who experienced as much hardship and actual suffering from the fury of the malignant savages. There are few families who have been more prolific of posterity, and none, perhaps, who have transmitted a purer record as to honesty, industry and hospitality.

Greensboro and Albert Gallatin

The ancient village of Greensboro is situated on the west bank of the Monongahela about three miles below the mouth of Dunkard Creek. Being the point on the river that was the most central and accessible to the early settlements along the Dunkard and the Big Whiteley valleys, it long enjoyed unrivaled celebrity as a trading post and boating port. It was the starting point for all western bound parties. Canoes and rafts and flat boats were constantly fitting out and leaving freighted with emigrants and adventurers into the inviting regions of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. In this way it had gained wide-spread notoriety as a place of business long before it was laid out and plotted as a town.

The tract of land which it occupies was called "Delight," and was patented to Elias Stone and Elizabeth, his wife, in 1787. On the 31st day of May, 1791, he had the site of the town surveyed and plotted into eighty lots, each containing sixty perches, with streets forty feet wide. Lot No. 60 was appropriated for public use at the discretion of the inhabitants and is on the corner of Third and County streets. The names of the streets, beginning at the river are Water, Front, Second, Third and Fourth. The cross streets are Diamond, Stone, Clear, Walnut, Minor and County.

Among the earliest settlers of Greensboro was an enterprising but eccentric Frenchman, John Badolet, and who was appointed, through the recommendation of the Honorable John Minor, one of the first Associate Judges upon the organization of the county in 1796. Judge Badolet migrated west shortly after and left no line of posterity in the county.

In the year 1807 a glass factory was established three-fourths of a mile below the town, which added much business and reputation to the place, the history of which involves a biographical sketch of Albert Gallatin, one of the worthiest and most distinguished public men of that, or any other age.

Mr. Gallatin was born at Geneva, Switzerland, on the 29th day of January, 1761. He was left an orphan in his infancy, but through the kind offices of a female relative of his mother received a thorough education, graduating at the University of Geneva in 1779. His family friends were very wealthy and deeply imbued with the ancient aristocratic prejudices. On the contrary, young Albert ardently espoused Republicanism, and at the age of 19, without the consent of his relatives, set out with a companion of like sentiments, to seek freedom and fortune in the infant American Republic. He landed in Boston in July 1780, and proceeded thence to Maine, where he purchased some land, and as a volunteer under Colonel John Allen, contributing from his private purse for the support of the garrison. In the spring of 1782, he was appointed instructor in the French language at Harvard University, where he remained about a year. In the fall of 1783, he went to Richmond, Virginia, to attend to some business for a European House, which had given its credit to that state, where he became intimately acquainted with Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, and other prominent men of the State and Nation. This intimacy ripened into an appreciation of his talents and sterling integrity which steadily lifted him out of his comparative obscurity and placed him on the highway to fame.

During his sojourn in Richmond, not only the groundwork for his social and political distinction was being laid, but the way to future domestic felicity was also made manifest. The private boarding establishment in which he had sought and procured suitable lodging was presided over by a clever widow and her most beautiful and accomplished daughter. In the course of time he became captivated by this young lady, sought her hand, and notwithstanding his homely physique, (for he was reported to be supremely ugly), he was accepted. But the mother interposed such violent objections to the match on account of his disagreeable features, his being a stranger, etc., that the young couple found it necessary to plan an elopement, which was duly executed. Acting upon the frequent and urgent suggestions of his confidential friend, Patrick Henry, he soon after removed west and purchased a considerable tract of land in the State of Virginia. Pertinent to this bit of vivid romance in the life of the illustrious statesman, the late Honorable John L. Dawson, whose heirs now own the Gallatin property, was known to relate that he was told by Thomas Ritchie, the distinguished editor of the Richmond Enquirer, that the disconsolate mother-in-law once hailed him as he was passing along the street to say, whilst ringing her hands with grief, "that it was too much for poor human nature to bear—the idea of my daughter eloping with that stoop-shouldered, long-nosed baboon of a Frenchman." She little dreamed of the distinction to which her despised son-in-law was to attain.

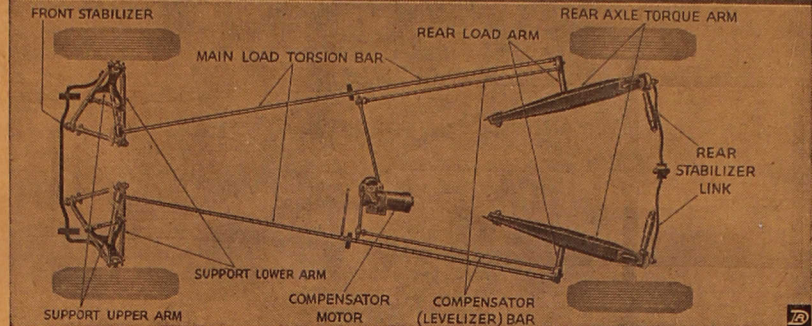

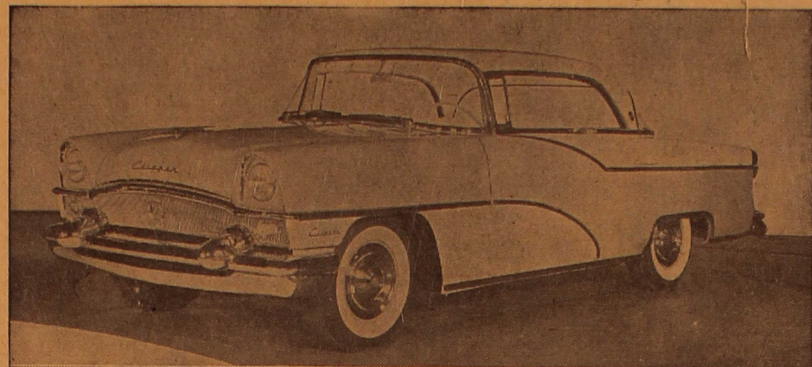

In December, 1785, he purchased his plantation near New Geneva. He lived for a number of years in a log cabin near the river, but some time between the years 1803 and 1813 he caused a splendid mansion to be built on "Friendship Hill," a beautiful, wild, and picturesque pink-clad eminence, overlooking the placid Monongahela, about two miles south of Greensboro, in Fayette County. It was a unique stone palace elaborated with all the apartments and ornamentations that an oriental genius could then design. The architecture was so supremely odd to this region as to create the greatest curiosity. The work was very enduring, and much of it still stands, though very much modified in arrangement and appearance by recent repairs and improvements. The lands in rear of the dwelling are exceedingly level and dry, and were covered with a natural grove, which he ornamented and beautified by the appliances of art till the place wore the appearance of some fairy land. Here he lived and enjoyed all that the world can give of happiness and renown till about the year 1820, when he removed to New York.

Sometime in the intervening years his wife died, and left him childless. She was buried in the woods in a beautiful spot on top of the river hill just opposite Dunkard Ripple. But the grave was never marked by any monument, or tombstone, or epitaph, "sacred to her memory." And this fact has occasioned much comment and conjecture and suspicion in reference to the domestic relations of Mr. Gallatin, and out of which the scandal monger manufactured and transmitted some traditions of no very complimentary character to the affections of the great statesman for his bosom companion. But I am happy to be able to controvert this idea by the following authentic statement. Mr. William Boughner, of Greensboro, for whom I obtain much of the information in this sketch, informs me that the late Edward Bramley of Brownsville, related to him the following facts: "When I was a boy I went with Mr. Gallatin a hunting, or rather I went along to turn the squirrels for him, and carry them after he had shot them. On our way home we passed Mrs. Gallatin's grave. We sat down on a log close by to rest. He remained musing for a long time without speaking a word. Turning to me he said: 'There lies one of the best and purest women God ever made. I would have erected a monument to her memory, only she requested me not to do so, preferring that her grave should not be so marked. She said that I would know where she was laid, and to the rest of the world, it was of little importance.'" In this connection I digress to remark that Mr. Gallatin, later in life, married a daughter of Commodore Nicholson of New Geneva.

The culture, talent, wealth and position of Mr. Gallatin endowed him with an influence almost supreme in the community. When he first arrived at the mouth of George's Creek, the thriving village located there was called Wilson's Port, a very graceful name, and that of its founder, a man in fine repute. But Mr. Gallatin wishing to show his affectionate attachment for the city of his nativity, insisted on calling the town of his adoption New Geneva; and his whim was gratified.

1955 Packards and Clippers Offer New Ride — Highest Power

INTRODUCE TORSION BAR SUSPENSION

DETROIT—A revolutionary new suspension system which eliminates coil and leaf springs and new V-8 engines with the highest horsepower for automobiles are the outstanding advances of the 1955 Packards and Clippers in dealer showrooms January 17. Heading the Clipper line of five models for the medium priced field is the Constellation hardtop (above).

Termed the most important development in riding comfort and safety since the introduction of front coil springs in 1934, torsion bar suspension appears for the first time on a production car. The engineering term "torsion" means twisting. As shown in the diagram, two long steel bars running the length of the car take the shock of road bumps and dips by twisting. This means these road shocks do not reach the car frame and car passengers. A separate load compensator keeps the rear end of the car level with the front end regardless of passenger or luggage weight. Packard's new "Torsion-Level Ride" provides a flat, constant, level ride at all times. Rear end drop on acceleration is eliminated; wheels have better traction; front end plunge is reduced when brakes are applied; and the car has greatly increased stability.

Packard's new V-8 engines range from 225 horsepower, 245 in the Constellation, up to 275 in the Packard line. Teamed with this new family of engines is a Twin-Ultramatic transmission, which gives either smooth start or rapid breakaway acceleration.

A new safety feature is a windshield wiper specifically designed for a sweep-around windshield, because it cleans the curved areas.

There are more than 100 other engineering advancements in addition to distinctive new styling for both the Clippers and the luxury line of Packards.

The cars are the end result of the Packard program launched two years ago by James J. Nance, Studebaker-Packard president, which has brought the company a new young management team, the most modern production plants in the industry, and leadership service in 4,000 cities and towns.

Lung Cancer Develops Rapidly in Aged Physicians Warned by 'Bulletin' Editor

—Pittsburgh—

Because primary lung cancer can and often does develop "rapidly," physicians here have been urged to be on the lookout for it "continually"—especially among older men.

The plea for "early, thorough, and persistent investigation" of chest and respiratory symptoms has been issued by the Allegheny County Medical Society.

Commenting on the speed with which deadly lung cancer can creep up, Dr. George E. Spencer, editor of the "Bulletin," warned in the current issue:

"A report of a 'negative' chest film can often lull the patient (and sometimes the physician) into a false sense of security concerning malignancy."

His comment was tacked onto a review in the current "Bulletin" of a case report of a 75-year-old man who participated in the mass chest X-ray survey held here in 1953.

Within five months from the time of a "negative" chest X-ray report, a lung tumor clinically regarded as "inoperable," Dr. Spencer said, had developed.

This case—and six others like it—among the 831,000 "negative" chest films taken during the survey—"points out the value of frequent chest X-rays in the older population group, particularly men," Dr. Spencer emphasized.

Milstein Plays With Symphony

NATHAN MILSTEIN

Nathan Milstein, recognized throughout three continents as one of the world's greatest violinists, will be the soloist next Friday night and Sunday afternoon at Syria Mosque, January 7 and 9, with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, playing the Beethoven Violin Concerto in D Major. Milstein has collaborated with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra on several occasions during the past two years for Capitol records, creating some "best-sellers" in the classical record field. This coming concert will be a happy reunion for both parties.

Milstein is Russian by birth and American by adoption. He first began the study of the violin in his native city of Odessa with Stollarsky and later went to Petrograd to study with the famous Leopold Auer. He was 19 when he made his first concert tour of Russia, appearing in recitals and as guest soloist with the leading orchestras. Frequently he toured in joint recital with a close friend, who was destined to become one of the great pianists of his generation, Vladimir Horowitz.

Now, at the age of 47, Milstein has an impressive record of triumphs. He has made 23 tours of the United States and Canada, and innumerable tours of Europe.

Treated Thinnings from Woodlots Provide Farms with Fence Posts

Two-to four-inch growth thinned from farm woodlots, some empty oil drums, and copper naphthenate preservatives mixed with stove oil, give any farm a supply of enduring fence posts. Defense against virtually everything destructive, the preservatives also protect wooden construction in all farm structures and equipment.

Technicians and forestry ex- perts are working out a scheme to ease the $70-a-day drudgery of replacing farm fence posts. The plan includes farm woodlot control by cutting less desirable young growth for fencing and treating the posts with the inex- pensive naphthenate preservatives to give them longer service life. Naphthenate Preservatives, Institute technicians are developing formulas whereby naphthenate preservatives obtainable at local paint stores can be mixed with fuel oil and other cheap carriers to treat posts right on the farm. Forest and agricultural experi- ment stations are ascertaining the woods which, by absorbing more preservative, make the most enduring fence posts.

Road Firms Ready for 10-Year Plan

The highway industry, including engineers, contractors, equipment manufacturers and material suppliers, is "fully capable" of executing a 10-year, $101,000,000 highway program, a report to the Clay committee stated a few days ago.

The report was made by the American Road Builders' Association to General Lucius D. Clay, chairman of the President's highway program advisory committee, at the general's request. It is a preliminary report, since the full report will not be ready until January 10.

The $101,000,000 figure is that declared by the Clay committee as needed for improving all streets and roads in the United States during the next 10 years.

When President Eisenhower's program was announced there immediately arose the question as to whether the program was practical, not only from a financial standpoint, but from the standpoint of men and materials.

Those questions were answered affirmatively.

The final problem is one for President Eisenhower and not the Clay committee—to receive the approval of Congress.

Ruse Fails to Oust Omaha's Sparrows

The city fathers had a recorded cry of a startling in distress placed in the municipal stadium with the idea it would rid the place of sparrows. It didn't do the job.

But Mrs. Robert Sisteck of the mayor's office, said it did: Frighten the animals in the city zoo a few blocks away.

Aroused the fears of and gave the jitters to the caged feathered pets of numerous residents of the vicinity.

Brought a flood of angry calls from said residents.

The record is still at the park but it's cry is stilled.

Pupils Can't Find Time to Read

Hartford, Conn.—
Edwin E. Smith, Springfield, Mass., English teacher, told the New England Association of Teachers of English that most high school students don't read outside the classroom because:

"During November, December and January there are football games. Then the students paint scenery, play the piano, stand up on the stage and shimmy and shake and sing Ricochet Romance; and it's all wonderful. Then they must watch television and they tell me they have jobs in the afternoon and evenings. It's no wonder they don't read."

Output, Jobless Gain Seen in 1955

—Washington— Population gains and the rising output per worker may cause an increase in unemployment next year despite an expected higher production, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce reported.

Basing its figures on a survey of 13 affiliated industry associations, the chamber said in a week end report that production next year should run two to five per cent over that of 1954. A five per cent gain would set a new record, surpassing the 365 billion dollar value of all goods and services in 1953.

Cocoa, Cake and Company

Folks who brave the wintry chill to pay you a friendly call deserve a warm welcome... so, while they are toasting before a cheery fire, take time to make hot cocoa, the old-fashioned way.

There's a new cocoa on the market now that has been Dutch-processed to give a more full-bodied, chocolate-y flavor. You'll like the new cocoa for baking, too, because it's triple-milled, which makes it lighter and fluffier and helps it combine more readily with other ingredients. For a superb example of cocoa cookery, try La Belle Cocoa Cake—the recipe's on the can.

Incidentally, you won't need a recipe to make the Snowballs in the picture. Break homemade or "boughten" angel food cake apart in balls with 2 forks, dip in Seven Minute Frosting and then roll lightly in shredded coconut. This makes a festive accompaniment for fragrant hot cocoa dressed up in fine china cups.

Old-Fashioned Hot Cocoa
1/2 cup cocoa
1/4 to 1/2 cup sugar
Dash of salt
1/2 cup water
1 quart milk

Mix cocoa, sugar, salt and water in saucepan. Bring slowly to a boil and boil gently 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add milk and heat. (Do not boil.) If desired, beat before serving. Serve hot. Makes 6 or 7 servings.

For richer cocoa, increase cocoa and sugar to 1/2 cup each.

Gas Consumption Increase Met by Storage Facilities

Western Pennsylvania gas utilities delivered 330 billion cubic feet of natural gas to consumers in 1954, Pennsylvania Natural Gas Men's Association has reported. This was a slight increase, despite reduced industrial demands throughout the year, over deliveries of 325 billion cubic feet in 1953.

Actual cumulative figures for gas deliveries in the 52 weekly periods ending December 26, as compiled by PNGMA were 329,970,999,000 cubic feet. For the comparable 52 weekly periods in 1953, the total was 325,184,026,000 cubic feet.

More than two-thirds of 1954 gas deliveries were imported from outside Pennsylvania, most of it from the vast reserves of the Southwest. Exact 1954 production figures for the Commonwealth have not been compiled, but probably will not materially exceed the 100-to-200 billion cubic feet range of recent years.

Underground gas storage in produced-out Pennsylvania gas fields played an increasingly essential part in fulfilling 1954 natural gas demands. On a weekly basis, net withdrawals from storage reserves occurred in 23 of the 52 weeks, and totaled 32,259,840,000 cubic feet or nearly 10 per cent of total annual deliveries. In the coldest week, January 17, storage supplied 25 per cent of total deliveries. Cumulative additions to storage in the 29 weeks when production and contracted pipeline deliveries exceeded demand totaled 36,726,930,000 cubic feet.

Actually, of course, weekly net storage operating figures greatly understate the role of underground gas reserves in making possible the meeting of cold weather gas heating requirements. In winter, storage pools are frequently withdrawn from, to meet the morning peak load, and at least partially replenished, during a warm afternoon or at night, each day.

Not too widely realized is the fact that underground gas storage, since the war, has developed into a sizeable new industry for Western Pennsylvania. One-third of the total known recoverable natural gas reserves in Pennsylvania today are stored gas, imported and paid for by the gas utilities and pumped back into the gas-sand formation from which the gas nature originally put there has been exhausted. Utility investment in stored gas in Pennsylvania today exceeds $60 million.

Altogether, underground gas storage has grown into a $125-million enterprise in Western Pennsylvania with the bulk of this investment having occurred over the past decade. Capital expenditures for additions to underground storage plant in Pennsylvania in 1954 were an estimated $8 million.

In addition to the gas reserves, the State's underground storage business has a physical plant of more than $5 million in land, another $6 million in buildings, over $20 million in wells, $16 million in pipelines, and nearly $25 million in equipment.

Also, storage provides a cash income for at least 2,700 families, mostly rural and farm folk, from storage well and land rentals paid by the gas utilities for the right to utilize this otherwise worthless and exhausted underground strata beneath the surface. Latest available figures show that payments for the right to maintain storage wells at the surface total $230,500 each year, while payments on leaseholds involving solely the right to store gas beneath the surface in once rich gas-sand strata total $130,000 annually.

Senate Probers Blast Comic Book Industry

The Senate subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency is preparing a report which will blast the comic book industry for "glorifying crime, horror and sadism."

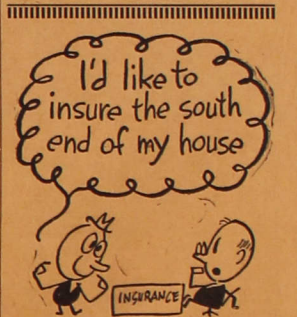

At the same time, however, the probers will praise the industry's recent decision to regulate itself as a step "in the right direction."

The report is being prepared by the subcommittee staff. It has not received final approval yet but a proposed draft says:

"The subcommittee believes that the American people have a right to expect that the comic book industry should shoulder the major responsibility for seeing to it that the comic books placed so temptingly before our nation's children at every corner newsstand are clean, decent, and fit to be read by children."

While declaring that "this grave responsibility rests squarely on every segment of the comic book industry," the subcommittee also places much of the burden for "continuing vigilance" on parents and citizens' associations.

The report says the Senate investigators believe that "parents have a full measure of responsibility" for the reading material reaching their children.

Is he kidding?

No, nobody ever asks us to insure only one end of his house against fire, windstorm, etc.

But, in effect, many people DO carry insurance on only a fraction of their property.

We mean, they carry only a percentage — perhaps 40% or 50% or 60% — of as much insurance as they should.

They insured their property when property was worth much less. Insurance should be carried not on original cost, but on present replacement costs, less depreciation. (This depreciation is normally very little for well maintained property.)

Jobless Cash Sets New Mark

Washington—Unemployment insurance payments to jobless workers totalled about two billion dollars in 1954, the U. S. Labor Department reports.

This was a new record, topping the previous high set in 1949 by about 264 million dollars.

The record was set, the department said, despite the fact that unemployment among covered workers was lower in 1954 than in 1949.

Unemployment compensation financed by taxes of employers' payrolls, is administered by the states, with some help from the Federal government.

400,000 GI Loans in 1954

Washington—Veterans received more than 400,000 GI home loans during 1954, an increase of 25 per cent over 1953, the Veterans Administration reports.

It was estimated that the loans totalled more than four billion dollars.

Such loans are made by private lenders and a portion of them are guaranteed or insured by the government.

Fifty-Year History of Greene County Sports

By GEORGE N. THOMAS

GREENE COUNTY TRACK CHAMPIONSHIPS

Whether it was because they were performing before a home crowd on home grounds, or because of superior athletic ability chosen from a larger student body, or both, Waynesburg High ruled the track and field roost in Greene County again in 1926.

It was the third consecutive county meet and it had almost become a tradition at this early age.

Morris Township (Nineveh), Jefferson, Mt. Morris, Center (Rogersville), Richhill, Carmichaels, Monongahela (Mapletown) and Aleppo accumulated points in that order.

Waynesburg College Athletic Director Roy "Katy" Easterday saw to it that the boys didn't run and jump for nothing. He encouraged merchants to contribute silver cups and gold and silver medals.

Three new records were set in 1926: Roy Willis of Jefferson, who ran the half mile (880) in 2:13.4; McClure of Mt. Morris, who high jumped five feet, 5 1/2 inches; and Floyd Long of Waynesburg, who broad jumped 20 feet, one inch. Actually he tied his mark of a previous year.

But the high man was Jake Porter of Nineveh, who had 17 points.

Perhaps Waynesburg was considered too strong for the other smaller county school, so in the spring of 1927 the "rural" high schools staged their own track meet without inviting the Waynesburg "giants."

Apparently the former champions' absence didn't keep fans away, and a large crowd watched Jefferson win the first of many titles the Orange and Black was to collect.

Scores were close and it was far more interesting than previous ones, as Carmichaels, Nineveh, Mt. Morris, Center, Aleppo, Mapletown and Richhill finished in that order.

As a matter of fact, the Jeffs had the weaker sex to thank for that victory. The girls' points gave them the winning margin.

On that date, a girl athlete, Miss Anna Belle Crago of Carmichaels High, made sports headlines 'round the world by equaling the time for the 50 yard dash—:06.6.

And this might easily have been called Ladies Day, because Miss Rush of Nineveh, hurled a baseball 195 feet, a new distance in the county.

Among the men, Baily of Carmichaels, and Barger of Mt. Morris, pole vaulted 10 feet, 6 1/2 inches, a new high; Ben Donley of Carmichaels threw the shot put a new length of 39 feet, 11 1/2 inches, and George Willis of Jefferson, ran the half mile in 2:12.4, breaking his brother Roy's old record.

Jefferson's reign as county champs was only temporary. In 1928, Carmichaels, with the aid of Miss Crago's points, copped the toga in another tight meet.

It was a surprise. So were the performances of a little fellow named Al Cree who ran like a demon to capture the 100, 220 and 440 and stifle the county which had hardly heard of him.

Cree's 440 time of :55 was a new mark. So were George Willis' time of 2:11 in the 880 and Ruth Fox, of Mt. Morris, baseball throw of 200 feet, six inches.

Carmichaels, too, didn't stay on top, despite their strong girls' team. Richhill raced the championship in 1929, the first year Frank Wolf helped coordinate the county meet. And how he loved to work with young athletes.

This gathering turned out an individual star, too. He was Rogersville's Floyd Phillips, whose triple-crown included victories in the 100, 220 and broad jump.

But he was the whole team, and Rogersville finished only fourth, behind Jefferson and Aleppo, and ahead of Carmichaels, Mt. Morris, Mapletown and Nineveh.

The track was slow that day and no county marks fell.

But to demonstrate the crop of athletes that spring was top-notch, this rural school group challenged and trimmed the ears off Waynesburg High a week later.

Phillips again was the star with 13 points. This caused county officials to wonder. Had they over-rated Waynesburg? Could the smaller schools compete with them on an individual basis after all?

They took their time—and a couple more county meets—to ponder allowing the "big" school back into the league.

U. S. Olympic Team Best Dressed

The United States will enter the 1956 games with not only the best team it has ever entered in the world arena, but certainly the best-dressed team. For the first time in Olympic history, the team will be outfitted at no cost to the Olympic Committee.

The complete outfit from hats to shoes will be donated by the Men's and Women's Apparel and Textile Industries.

The outfitting of the athletes for the Pan-American games is a forerunner of the cooperation planned for the Olympiad in Melbourne, Australia.

Not only will the competing athletes receive the parade and utility apparel, but coaches, managers, administrative people and everyone representing the United States at the Mexico City games (March 12th-26th), will benefit as well.

Mort S. Berk, pres. of Berkray Corporation, signs agreement as Max J. Lovell of the U. S. Olympic Committee shows design sketch of the sport coat.

Of particular interest are these Olympic sport coats, smartly styled with the Olympic symbol on the upper left-hand pocket. The basic color theme of both men's and women's outfits is light and charcoal grey, offset by accents of red, white and blue. The men's coats are contributed by Berkray Corporation, America's largest maker of men's and boys' jackets.

The Pan-American games were set up in 1940 to knit more closely the ties between nations of the Western Hemisphere. Like the Olympics, they are held every four years.

Schoolboy Mat Season Opens This Week

Paced by a month of warmup competition the commonwealth's high school wrestlers open full scale competition this week for district, regional and state titles.

Early season prospects for the 18th consecutive PIAA wrestling campaign indicate there will be "a very fine wrestling season," said Mark N. Funk, executive director of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association.

At stake in the winter mat tournaments are 11 state titles, not to mention as many crowns for each of the PIAA's 12 districts which have wrestling teams.

"The season comes to its climax March 19 at State College, when the state championships will be decided," Funk said. District championship tournaments will be held March 5, while regional titles are to be decided March 12.

There is no official starting date for the wrestling season, but it generally parallels the basketball season.

Meanwhile, Funk said a record 131 schools will send wrestlers into PIAA mat competition during the current campaign. That figure is six more than in 1954.

"At the present time wrestling ranks fifth among high school sports in Pennsylvania school participation," Funk noted. The leaders are basketball, football, baseball and track, in that order.

Olympics Get Helping Hand

The United States Olympic Committee Sunday received a check for close to $100,000 from LIFE Magazine representing money collected from the public in a special drive last fall backing U. S. participation in the Olympic and Pan American Games.

In presenting the check to Colonel Edward P. F. "Eddie" Eagan, National Olympic Finance Committee Chairman, LIFE General Manager Arthur Murphy said that the amount resulted from the hard work of many organizations cooperating in the special 1954 fall drive, which commenced October 16, with President Eisenhower's proclamation of the first National Olympic Day.

"This amount will in itself go far toward covering the cost of sending U. S. athletes and officials to the Pan American games in Mexico City this March," Eagan said in accepting the check.

"We are delighted with this early evidence of strong public support for U. S. representation in the Olympic sports program. This check represents a unique degree of public interest in the Olympic cause this far in advance of the Games themselves."

The U. S. Olympic Committee announced earlier in 1954 that it needed $1,000,000 to cover American participation in the Pan American and 1956 Olympic Winter and Summer Games.

Detailed plans for the 1955 repeat effort by these organizations will be announced later in the year, Murphy said. He emphasized, however, that public contributions may be sent at any time to the Olympic Team Fund, 540 North Michigan avenue, Chicago, 11, Illinois, or direct to the U. S. Olympic Committee, Hotel Biltmore, New York, N. Y.

An 11-match wrestling card has been announced for Coach Roy Yanosh and his Mapletown High School grapplers who have six veterans returning around which to build this year's squad.

Returning again this season are Ben Cree (154) and Sam Minor (112). Both boys were undefeated over the regular season last year, with Cree posting eight falls and two decisions, while Minor scored seven falls and two decisions.

Other 1953 veterans back include Mike Chory (103) who had five wins and five losses last year; Tom Gregan (120) who scored seven wins against one defeat; Hugh Black (165), winner of seven bouts last season while dropping three clashes.

Coach Yanosh's squad, which posted an 8-2 record last season, also won the Section One mat title at Shaler High in February, but failed to place a wrestler in the WPIAL championship finals at Washington early in March.

Kenneth Shultz Heads Rifle League

At the annual reorganization meeting of the Greene County Rifle League held Sunday in the Waynesburg Sportsmen's Club, Kenneth Shultz of Mt. Morris Star Route, Waynesburg, was re-elected president.

George Summersgill of Sycamore, was named vice president, and Ralph Boden of Bobtown, secretary-treasurer.

Captains of teams which will participate in league competition this year were named as follows: Waynesburg, Albert Lahew; Bobtown, John Boden; Waynesburg VFW, George Summersgill, and Dunkard Valley, Gail Kent.

First match of the 1955 league season will be held January 16, and the complete schedule will be announced then.

Any other sportsmen's association or organizations in Greene County wishing to enter teams are asked to contact Mr. Shultz.

Sugar Ray Returns To Ring Tonight

Sugar Ray Robinson, former middleweight champion of the world, begins his comeback campaign tonight in the Motor City when he faces Joey Rindone of Boston, in a 10-round bout at the Olympia.

The 34-year-old Robinson toyed with Gene Burton in a six round exhibition in Hamilton, Ontario, November 29.

It will be Robinson's first fight since he was stopped by Joey Maxim in the 14th round on June 25, 1952. Robinson's record is 131-3-2.

Johnny Lattner Signs Steeler Grid Contract

Johnny Lattner, rookie half-back who made the jump from college to pro football in fine fashion, has returned his signed 1955 contract to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Lattner, former Notre Dame star, led the Steelers in kickoff and punt returns last season and was second in scoring with 42 points.

Large Crowds Witness Bowl Games; Navy Defeats Mississippi in Only Upset

Form proved better than tradition as a guide to picking the winners in this year's Bowl games.

The Sugar Bowl, where Navy completely outclassed Mississippi 21-0, provided the only result that might be called an upset. Navy had been favored there until a wave of injuries made "Ole Miss" the choice to win. But the odds-makers had reckoned without the furious will to win that led Coach Eddie Erdelatz to label the Middies a "team named desire."

Every other game came out as predicted, and two games were called perfectly. The 13-point edge accorded Ohio State in pre-Rose Bowl forecasts was borne out in the Buckeyes' 20-7 victory. In San Francisco's Shrine game, a point after touchdown by Penn State's Jim Garrity provided the predicted one point difference as East edged West 13-12.

Tradition provided no clue in the Orange Bowl for neither team had won a Bowl game before Duke crushed Nebraska 34-7, but tradition did come through for Georgia Tech as the Rambling Wrecks clipped Arkansas 14-6 in the Cotton Bowl. The victory was Tech's eighth in 10 post-season engagements and gave Coach Bobby Dodd his sixth in a row without defeat.

The Rose Bowl result did little to settle arguments as to the respective abilities of Ohio State and UCLA, which finished a close second to Ohio State in the final poll for national honors. UCLA had whipped Southern California 34-0, but that was on a dry field, and the Rose Bowl was anything but dry Saturday. Rains turned the field into a mud bath before the contest and rain of varying intensity fell through most of the game.

Nearly half a million fans saw the various games, with a total of 497,347 at the even dozen contests from Miami to Tokyo. The four major games and the East-West game were televised nationally, but the Sugar, Orange and Cotton Bowls started at the same time, and the Rose Bowl and East-West games ran concurrently. So it's anybody's guess how many TV fans saw the games.

Quarterback Jesse Whittenton of Texas Western had a great day for himself as the Miners whipped Florida State 47-20 for their second straight Sun Bowl victory.

There was little argument over the selection of Omaha's Bill Engelhardt as the most valuable player in Saturday night's Tangerine Bowl game. He passed to Rudy Rotella for a first period touchdown, then added the conversion that gave the Nebraska team a 7-6 victory over Eastern Kentucky.

PIAA Considers Law Revisions

A five-man committee of the board of control of the PIAA is studying possible constitutional revisions of sections dealing with school suspensions.

The committee, headed by H. D. Leberman of Erie, PIAA president, made a preliminary report to the 1954 annual board of control meeting held last week.

Mark N. Funk, executive director of the PIAA, controlling body of Pennsylvania school sports outside Philadelphia, said the report was "lengthy and involved." He added that in preliminary form it attempts "to clarify some parts of the constitution that are rather ambiguous."

During the year the PIAA, through recommendation of its District 2 and 11 committees, suspended Cass Township High School, Schuylkill County, and DuPont High School, Luzerne County, for infractions of football regulations. Both schools were reinstated after short intervals.

Funk said the committee would make its final report to the board in March. Committee members beside Leberman and Funk are William E. Dolde, Connellsville; Richard C. Ream, Springfield; and P. O. Van Ness, Harrisburg, the board representative of the State School Directors Association.

All 12 PIAA districts were represented at the session during which Leberman was re-elected president for 1955, and D. L. Learn of Palmerton, was re-elected vice president.

The board accepted 13 schools into membership but Funk said all were consolidations of member-schools. PIAA rules require a new membership application upon jointure of any schools.

Results of district voting on two proposed amendments to the PIAA constitution announced to the board showed that both were approved. Funk did not disclose the total vote. They became effective Saturday.

One amendment reads, "The board of control will not sanction any post season interstate contest which would involve a round trip exceeding 600 miles."

Santee Fails to Lower Mile Mark

Wes Santee, winner of the Sugar Bowl mile run at New Orleans in 4:14 Sunday, pointed toward a January 16, Los Angeles meet to crack the four-minute mile.

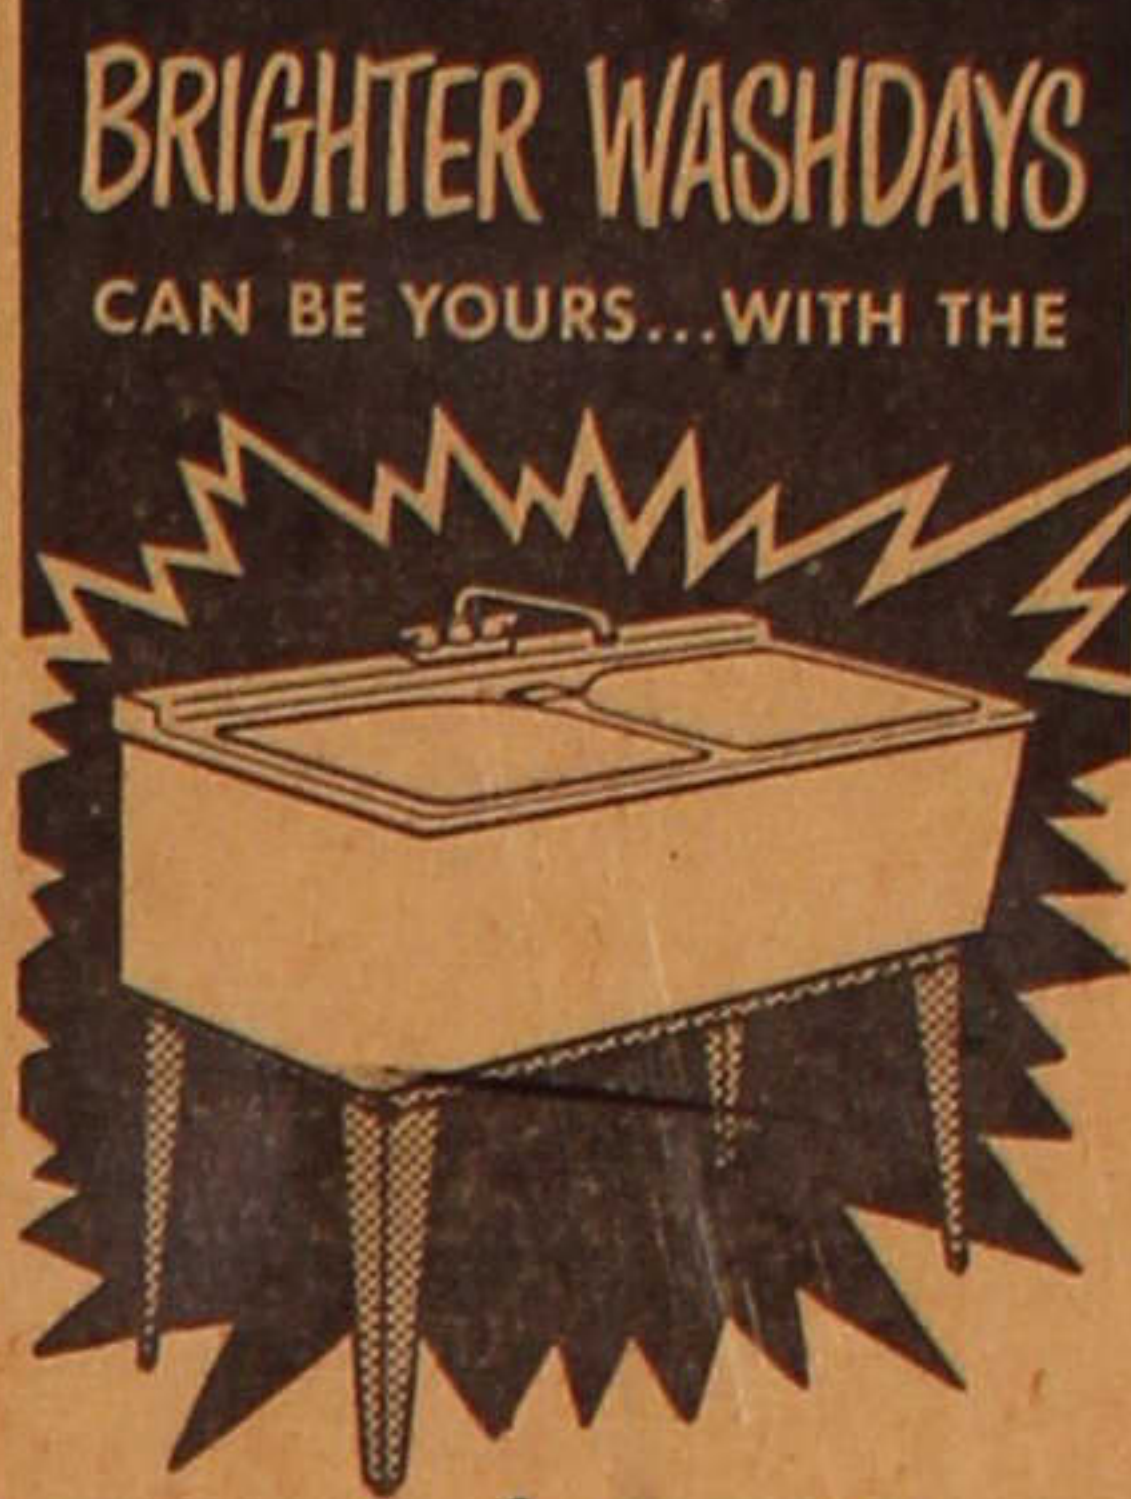

The former Kansas track star apologized for his 4:14 run Sunday and blamed a two-day postponement of the track meet which had been rained out Friday.

Santee, who has run an unofficial 4:00.6 mile, declared: "I couldn't get myself up for the all-out effort. The waiting and the muddy track didn't help either."

New Service Facilities at Cumberland Township Bowlby Shaft

New service facilities at U. S. Steel's Frick District's Bowlby Shaft, located in Cumberland Township, was placed in operation in 1954. The 558-foot shaft is used daily by about 870 miners.

In addition to the ventilation fan, the Bowlby Shaft is equipped with new modern facilities such as a lamp house, bath house, elevator head house, and a new electric power sub-station.

U. S. Steel Coal Mines Improved During the Year

Frick District mines of U. S. Steel's Coal Division produced 9 1/2 million tons of high-grade metallurgical coal in 1954, William R. Stedman, general superintendent, has reported.

The preponderant bulk of this output was transported down the Monongahela River by tonboat to Clairton Works for conversion into coke for the blast furnaces, coal chemicals and coke-oven gas for the re-heating furnaces of U. S. Steel's basic steel plants in the Pittsburgh District.

The past year marked a sharp decline of beehive activity in the district. Frick Beehives, operated only in the early part of 1954, consumed 202,000 tons of coal.

Employment in all Frick District operations averaged 8,235 men and women throughout the year.

Construction projects completed in 1954 were headed by the ten story additions to Robena's coal cleaning plant in Greene County. Robena's preparation plant, augmented by the new addition, is now washing the entire 23,700 ton daily output of Robena Mine.

Completion of new service facilities at the Bowlby Shaft put into operation the 558-foot man entry shaft used daily by about 870 miners. In addition to the ventilating fan, the Bowlby Shaft installation is equipped with new, modern facilities such as a lamp house, bath house, elevator head house, office and service building and a new electric power sub-station.

Mr. Stedman pointed out that major construction at the Long Shaft located in Cumberland Township has been completed. The shaft is expected to be used for ventilating purposes in 1955. The ventilating fan at the Baily Shaft in Greene Township was also put into operation this year. Contracts have been let for another entry, Frosty Run, situated in the advance reserves of the Robena Mine in Greene Township.

The Collier Mine which was idled by the shut down of the district's beehive coke ovens was reopened in May. About 501 employees were rehired to supply 2,800 tons of high quality coal daily.

For their fourth consecutive year Frick miners established an all-time safety record. Through November the men who gave "safety first" to the nation as its original clarion call to safer working conditions averaged 9.24 accidents per million man-hours worked. This new record constitutes an approximate 21 per cent reduction in the frequency rate as compared with the same period of last year.

Contributing to their outstanding performance was Frick's traditional first aid training. This program of four safety training sessions, each three hours in duration, was attended by 2,956 Frick employees.

Another major contribution to 1954's safety record was the Accident Prevention Course taught by the Bureau of Mines representatives. Made available to Collier, Karen, Leisenring No. 1 and 2, Palmer, Ronco, Maxwell, and Bridgeport employees, the course consisted of ten two-hour long classes over a two-week period. Plans are now being made to offer this Accident Prevention Course to Robena Mine personnel.

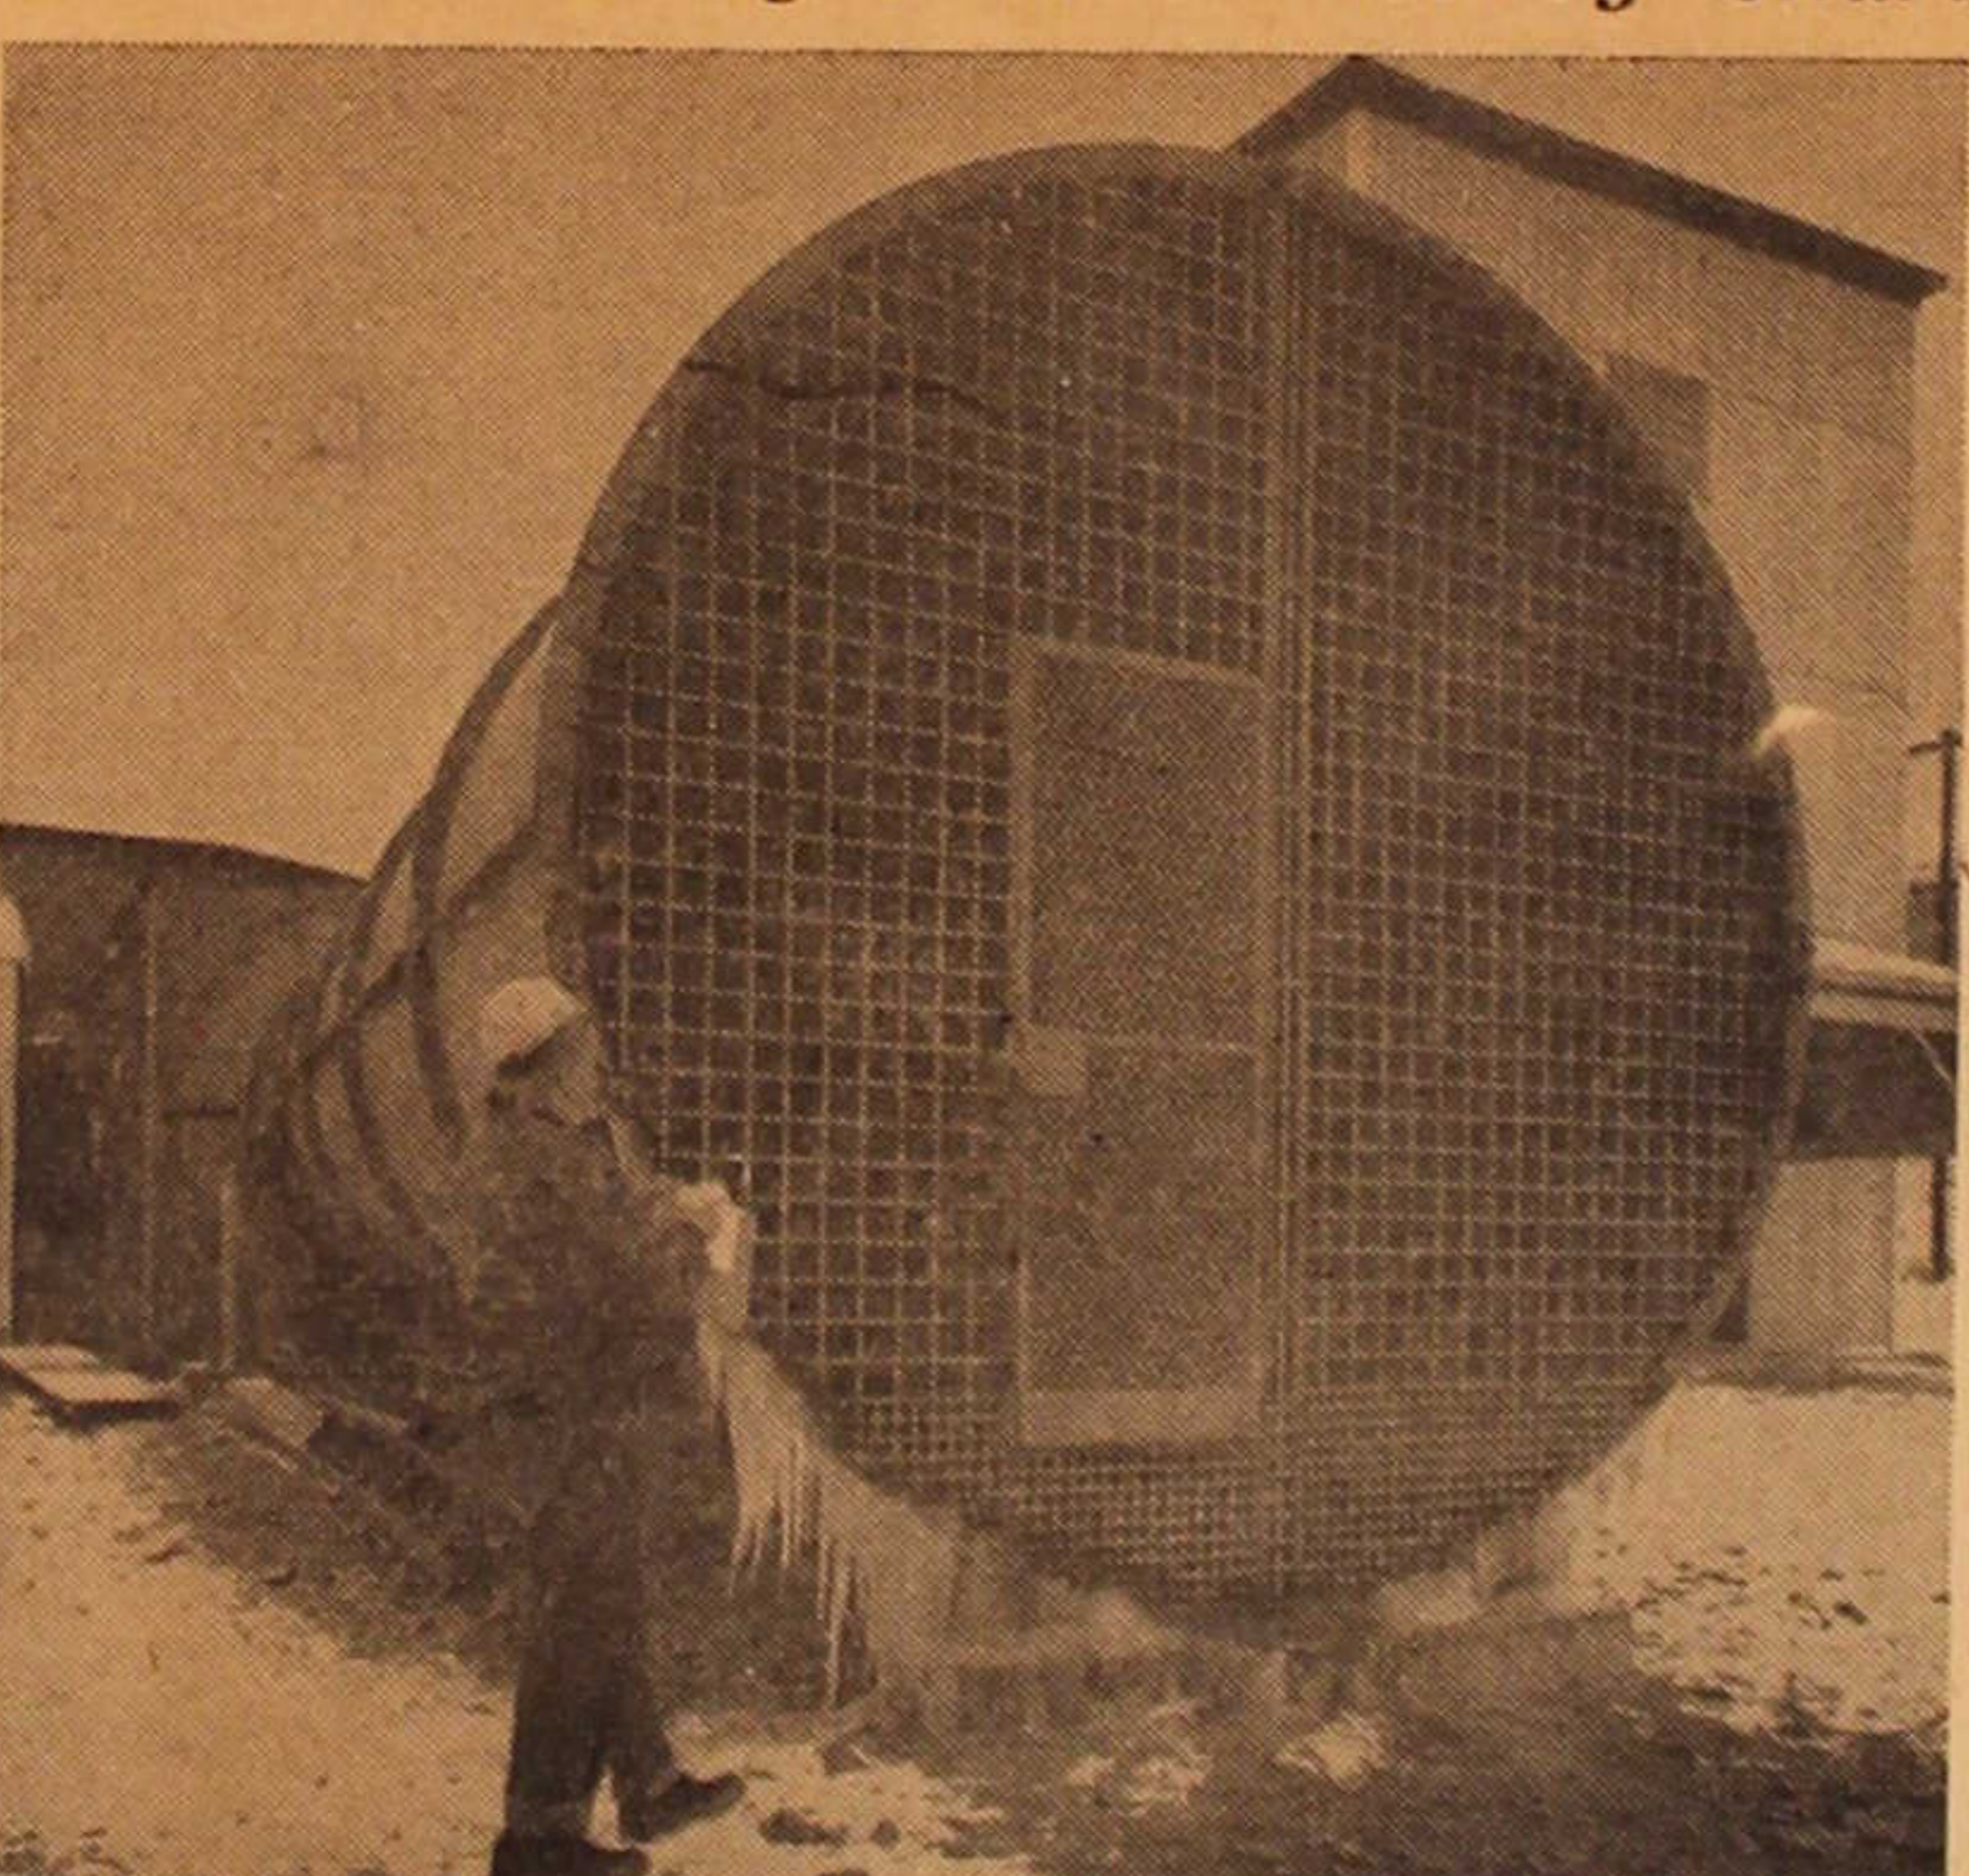

Two hundred thirty-one Frick District employees received gold and stainless steel watches in recognition of long-time service during 1953. Gold watches were awarded to nine employees for 50-year service. The remaining awards, stainless steel watches, went to 40-year veterans.

New Addition to Robena Mine

This ten-story addition to U. S. Steel's Frick District's Robena coal preparation plant was placed in operation the early part of 1954. The plant is now washing 23,700 tons of coal, the entire daily output of the Robena Mine. In the foreground are Thomas McKeeny, left, and Rudolf "Red" Ingram, fine coal second helper operators at the plant.

New Ventilating Fan at Bowlby Shaft

This ventilating fan is part of the new equipment that was placed in operation in 1954 at U. S. Steel's Frick District's Bowlby Shaft. Located in Cumberland Township, the 558-foot man entry shaft is used daily by about 870 miners. The Bowlby Shaft installations also included a lamp house, bath house, elevator head house, office and service building and a new electric power sub-station. Shown above is John Simon, sub-station attendant.

Rare Copper Artifact Found By Egyptian Archaeologists

—Cairo—

Archaeologists excavating the Cheops "solar boat" from its stone crypt disclosed the discovery of what they believe is the oldest copper coupling joint from ancient Egypt.

The small point in the old timber forms is regarded as one of the most important discoveries made in the boat chamber beside Cheops' great pyramid. It represents a hitherto unknown use of copper in this fashion in Egypt's Fourth Dynasty—roughly between 2680 and 2560 B. C.

By late December few of the stones in the roof of the chamber had been removed. Some of the stones weigh more than 20 tons, and their removal without any mishap to the ancient relic being is proceeding slowly. The boat now is visible almost to its center, and viewers can look directly at the big pointed ear near the middle.

As the work progresses, the excavators are convinced that most parts of the boat are detached. This was what led some archaeologists to believe the crypt contains only parts of a boat that conceivably could be fitted to form a solar boat.

But Kamel el-Mallah, who discovered the boat, said the parts were unjoined because ropes that originally lashed them together had rotted. He pointed to slots and holes in opposing timbers and said they indicated the parts once were joined.

Mr. El-Mallah also said rotted bits of textiles on the topmost timbers led him to believe the entire boat once was covered with cloth.

200,000 East Germans Flee to West in 1954

More than 200,000 East Germans fled from the Soviet Zone to the West in 1954, refugee headquarters disclosed, 104,000 of them to West Berlin.

West Penn Prepares For Three-Fold Increase

Neglect

By DEAN N. R. HIGH MOOR

It is possible to lose that which is very precious. We tend in thoughtless moments to deny this but that does not cancel its truth.

Frequently a heritage is in grave danger of being swept away, not by violent attack but through sheer neglect.

On Saturday, the 15th of May, the beloved Queen of England

Dean Moor was welcomed home after an official tour of the Empire. The occasion called for the ringing of the bells in the nearly 16,000 parish churches.

The pealing of the bells is the sound that from time immemorial has greeted every great occasion of rejoicing in the history of England. On this occasion it expressed a feeling transcending party, class and profession.

More than half of these 16,000 parish churches were built before 1537; some are older than any other building in the land. Some three hundred have features that were already ancient at the time of the Norman Conquest.

In them is a hallowed beauty that is available without charge to the entire nation—it is irreplaceable. But most of these buildings require structural repair. Buildings require constant attention and without it, minor defects soon become major. Water from defective guttering or a leak can erode a wall or rot the timbers of the roof; industrial smog erode the masonry of spire, parapet and buttress; untreated wood-infection cause, in a few years, the collapse of an entire building.

What apparently is not realized by many is that the soul of man without constant attention is also in danger of collapse. One of our greatest modern historians claims that civilizations do not fall from external pressures but from internal rot; they are not murdered, they commit suicide.

How is the building of your life progressing or have you, through neglect, allowed it to rot away? Has your loyalty become tight-lipped duty; your love bound only by courtesy; your hopes, hanging on too long without any attempt at realization, deteriorating into dull regrets? Think it over, but above all, do something about it. Life grows from the inside out; it also rots from the inside out.

Thief's Quick Change Leads to Capture

—New York—

Pablo E. Quiles, 18, made it easy for police to track him down and arrest him on charges of stealing $700 worth of clothing.

He liked one of the stolen suits so well, police said, that he put it on while still in the victim's apartment and left his old suit behind.

In the old suit police found a wallet, containing his name, address and photograph. Less than an hour later they picked up Quiles.

With their 1954 milestones and accomplishments behind them, West Penn Power Company and the electric industry are planning for ten years from now when the electric power demand is expected to be double that of today.

That's the forecast for the future of the electric industry, which celebrated the 75th anniversary of the invention of the incandescent lamp in 1954. An extensive survey and forecast went further yet, anticipating that by 1975, a three- or even four-fold increase in the use of electric energy by the homes, farms, stores, and factories of our nation is expected.

West Penn, as a result of its tremendous 10-year postwar expansion program, embarks in 1955 in good position to supply future demands.

During the past 10 years, the local utility has spent $158 million for new power generating facilities, for expanding and improving its transmission and distribution lines and substations, and for improved service facilities.

During Light's Diamond Jubilee year of 1954, the utility added 138,000 kilowatts of generating capacity. This was the $19 million Number Eight Unit at Springdale Power Station, which was placed in service June 30. This brought West Penn's net plant (generating) capability up to 933,000 kilowatts.

In addition, during the past 12 months, a number of new substations were placed in service and new lines, or lines of increased capacity, were constructed at points throughout the West Penn service area.

Transformers of increased capacity replaced smaller ones at many other substations. In almost every community, the increased use of electric service resulted in improved or expanded facilities constructed in 1954.

The past year's gains were in residential and commercial use, while industrial consumption declined slightly from its 1953 high due to the lower level of industrial activity. An upswing in the last two months of 1954 provided basis for more optimistic viewpoints for industry in 1955.

West Penn's residential customers increased their average use of electric service from 2,543 kilowatt-hours in 1953, to 2,740 kilowatt-hours in 1954. This represented a gain of 197 kilowatt-hours, the second largest average annual increase on record.

This kept West Penn well ahead of the national average use which rose 194 kilowatt-hours to 2,540 kilowatt-hours during the past year.

Use of electricity by residential customers accounts for a much larger percentage of total sales than formerly. This contributed to a further decline in the average cost per residential kilowatt-hour in the West Penn area.

Another significant development in the home field during the year—perhaps a major field for future development—was the connection of the first home electric heat pump in West Penn territory.

The electric heat pump, which provides complete weather control indoors the year around, also ventilates, dehumidifies, and cleans the air. In winter, this new equipment extracts heat from the outside air and delivers it inside the house. In summer, it removes heat from indoors by a reverse cycle.

The industry's 50,000,000th customer was added early in the year, while West Penn's 350,000th customer joined the utility near the end of '54.

The month of December 1954, broke all West Penn Power output records.
