Reorganization Bill Wins Approval by State House

—Harrisburg—
Governor George M. Leader's unprecedented request for broad power to streamline state government sailed through the House Tuesday, 107 to 84, amid clouds of constitutional doubts and objections amassed by Republicans.

It was a straight party vote and the first test of strength for the new administration on major bills in the Democratic-controlled House. Administration forces corralled one vote more than the required 106 constitutional majority and found four absentees in the ranks. Republican gaps proved the absence of 15 members.

The bill goes to the Senate where the Republican majority has already prepared embalming fluid, ready for injection unless the administration agrees to compromise.

House Republicans and Democrats swapped arguments for two and one-half hours in the most uninspired debate to mark a House session since the "bi-partisan" war years.

Republicans are "sure" the bill is unconstitutional. Democrats are sure that it is constitutional. And to "prove" it, Majority Leader Albert S. Readinger, Berks, who introduced the measure, quoted yards of an affirming opinion from Attorney General Herbert B. Cohen.

The measure would give Governor Leader authority to consolidate, abolish, co-ordinate and transfer functions of state agencies below department level—subject to House or Senate veto.

The Governor could initiate and put into effect within 30 days any plan of reorganization if both houses give their consent or fail to act on it. A veto by either branch would block the plan.

It would not apply, however, to ten independent agencies—boards and commissions—which were created by the Legislature and hence deemed to be legislative arms. These independents include the State Liquor Control Board, Milk Control Board, Public Utility Commission and the Tax Equalization Board.

The administration plan would enable the Governor to initiate reorganization specifics executive order which would be submitted to the House and Senate for approval or rejection.

Democrats Plan '56 Convention

Democrats have started talking with cities interested in playing most to their 1956 national convention.

A subcommittee of the Democratic national committee assembled at party headquarters to listen to bids.

Chicago and Philadelphia are the leading if not only serious contenders, as they were in bidding for the Republican conclave recently. The GOP national committee will meet here February 17 to select a date and city for their 1956 meeting to nominate a presidential ticket.

Since both parties are now talking of August conventions, Atlantic City appears to be out of the running. The resort is packed with vacationers then. The tentative Democratic date is August 13.

Ike Reorganizing Extension Voted

The Senate has voted to extend for two years the President's authority to reorganize the Government.

The measure now goes back to the House, which had approved a three-year extension.

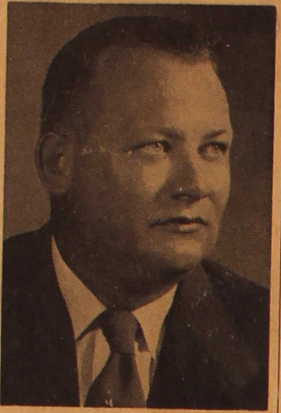

A presidential reorganization plan automatically becomes law unless either the House or Senate rejects it.

Pennsylvania GOP Sounds Off; Seeking Share of U. S. Jobs

—Washington—
Bitter dissatisfaction with Pennsylvania's lack of Federal patronage has erupted with appointment of a five-member committee of the state GOP congressional delegation to investigate the reasons why the state is not getting its share of Federal jobs.

Shouted criticism of the Administration's treatment of the state's patronage dispensers broke a routine meeting of the Republican delegation wide open. Ivor Fenton, chairman of the delegation, said he was prompted to select a committee to probe the reasons behind the "poor cousin" treatment of Pennsylvania

Charles R. Clark Again Fair Secretary

Charles R. Clark, well known Waynesburg business man, will again act as secretary of the Greene County Free Fair. The fair will be held in August.

Hoover Gets Award, Urges More Expense Cuts

—Washington—
Former President Herbert Hoover expressed the hope Saturday that the Commission on Government Reorganization which he heads can bring about greater efficiency in Federal operations with further savings to taxpayers.

Hoover surveyed the problems presented by top-heavy government in a brief address before the annual "State of the Nation" dinner of National Business Publications.

He was presented the organization's annual "Silver Quill Award," a handsome 300-ounce silver trophy depicting an open magazine with a silver quill across it. The presentation was made by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The award was given Hoover in recognition of his service as head of the Government Reorganization Commission. Nixon was the recipient last year.

The 80-year-old former president said he hoped that, as a result of the commission's work, "we can set up further courageous common-sense standards, methods and policies by which the service of the government can be more efficient and savings made to the taxpayer."

He declared in the 22 years since he was in the White House the Federal establishment "has expanded with a greater speed than any government since Cheops built his sun boat."

He declared the Government circulates about 25 billion pieces of paper each year at a cost of about four billion dollars annually "to prepare them, send them out and file them." Hoover added:

"Some 18 billions of these are forms—mostly questionnaires by which the Federal Government discovers your inner life."

Home Economics Meeting Held

Leaders of 15 home economics clubs in Greene County attended a training meeting last week in the Kikta Furniture Store.

Miss Marjorie Wormeck, nutrition specialist from Pennsylvania State University, gave a number of demonstrations on salad making. Miss Mary Rissinger, home economics supervisor for the Southwest District, told of plans for Extension Homemakers Week to be observed this spring.

nia by the heated discussion which featured the meeting.

He named Representatives Ben James, Samuel McConnell, Alvin Bush, James Van Zandt and John P. Saylor to the committee. Fenton said he will act in an ex-officio position.

Fenton said a meeting will be called in the near future when the committee will sit down with State GOP Chairman Miles Horst and Senators Edward Martin and James H. Duff to discuss the situation. Fenton said:

"We intend to find out why Pennsylvania is not getting its just share in the matter of Federal patronage."

An Editorial

Army Manpower Cuts

General Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, declined to testify publicly whether the Joint Chiefs of Staff approved manpower cuts ordered by President Eisenhower for the armed services, and declared that more men, rather than less, might be needed on any future atomic battlefield.

The clear implication of the Ridgway testimony before the House Armed Services Committee was that the current cuts had not been approved by the Chiefs of Staff, at any rate unanimously.

Democratic and Republican members of the committee alike expressed strong concern over the manpower cuts.

The administration seemed to have an incipient revolt on its hands, in the midst of the Formosa crisis.

Representative Leon H. Gavin, Republican, of Pennsylvania, cried, at one point, "I want to say I regard it as a very serious mistake to cut back our ground forces at this time." Chairman Carl Vinson, Democrat, of Georgia, expressed similar feelings.

As congressional uneasiness over the armed services cuts got its first chance of expression, these events occurred:

Walter S. Robertson, Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, bluntly warned Chinese Communists in a TV program that they risk war with the United States if they go ahead in their announced intention to "liberate" Formosa.

The White House disclosed that President Eisenhower met with top military and diplomatic advisers on the Far Eastern situation. Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, attended the 45-minute session.—A dispatch from Washington, D. C.

We, the electorate, the people of these United States of America, are becoming tired—very tired—of the diplomatic bickerings of the United Nations, the Asiatic Countries, and the United States.

The entire continent of Asia is not worth one life of a good American boy!

Let's cut out the diplomatic pussy-footing and get tough.

Either drop a few H-bombs on China, if the Reds get tough, or admit we are a decadent, drug-store-cowboy nation.

We're not! You know that! Why, then, vacillitate?

Double Funeral For Mother and Son

Mrs. Ethel Williammee Deever, 67 years, widow of Fred Deever, died suddenly early Wednesday night, in her home on North Huffman street. She had been in failing health for some time, but was caring for her son, Howard, whose death occurred 15 hours later.

Mrs. Deever was a daughter of John and Mary Carnahan Williammee, and was born in Washington County.

Her husband, who was employed by the Equitable Gas Company, died in 1941.

Mrs. Deever was a member of Washington Street Methodist Church, and of the W. C. T. U.

Howard Deever, 42 years, died Wednesday afternoon, January 26, 1955, in Greene County Memorial Hospital, to which he was removed following his mother's sudden death.

He was born September 18, 1912, at Bakersfield, California.

Mr. Deever graduated from Waynesburg High School, and attended the University of Alabama. He served in the Navy during World War II and separated as a lieutenant.

He was employed in the oil and gas industry.

Mrs. Deever was a member of Washington Street Methodist Church, Waynesburg Lodge No. 575, B. P. O. Elks, and Waynesburg Post No. 4793, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Air, Sea Clashes Flare Close to Tachen Islands

—Taipei, Formosa—
Air and sea clashes flared Tuesday around the tense Tachen Islands, near where the United States Seventh Fleet awaits orders to help bring off the garrison.

More civilians, but only a dribble, left the endangered islands 200 miles north of Formosa. They arrived Wednesday on two small Chinese ships.

The signal still had not been given for the withdrawal of the 15,000-man garrison, an operation fraught with the peril of a possible clash between the United States and Communist China.

It was reported President Chiang Kai-shek was holding out for at least private assurance the United States would help to defend Quemoy and Matsu Islands, his most important offshore strongholds.

Karl Rankin talked at length with Shen Chang-huan, acting foreign minister. Soon afterward a United States source said the finishing touches were being put to an announcement in Washington clarifying the United States position on the offshore islands.

(In Washington, however, both officials in the State Department and James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said they knew nothing about a statement.)

While Communist China may not risk interference in a withdrawal operation, it showed no sign of letting up the pressure on the Tachens.

At 5:50 a. m. Tuesday, a Nationalist warship fought a 76-minute engagement with a number of Red warcraft 29 miles northeast of the Tachens.

The Defense Ministry said the Red ships were "routed." But less than four hours later, four Red warships began shelling the Yu Shan Islands, a Nationalist lookout post in the same area.

March Draft Calls 773 in Pennsylvania

The State Selective Service headquarters reports that the Pennsylvania draft call for March is 773.

Colonel Henry M. Gross, State Selective Service director, said that previous calls this year were for 790 in February and 1,691 in January. The March 1954, call was for 1,004.

Pennsylvania Legislature urged Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation Tuesday to support a share-the-work program for 800 furloughed miners at the Shannopin mine at Bobtown and Vesta 4 and 5 mines at California.

Lieutenant Governor Roy E. Furman and Assemblyman Stephen McCann of Greene County, urged the program.

Senator William J. Lane, Washington County Democrat, introduced a bi-partisan resolution which was adopted 49 to one and sent to the House which later concurred. The plan may run afoul of United Mine Workers policy.

The resolution urges the steel corporation's directors and UMW officials to "coöperate" on a plan that would affect "presently employed as well as furloughed" miners.

The United Mine Workers have opposed any share-the-work plan except as it involves exclusively a panel of unemployed selected on seniority status.

Further mechanization of J. & L's three mines brought this reduction in the dwindling ranks of Western Pennsylvania coal miners. A spokesman said:

"Mechanization is necessary to mine coal competitively and keep our costs in line with the industry."

With its mining activities directly in proportion to its steel production rate, J. & L. employed 4,600 men in its three big Pennsylvania mines in 1949, a peak year.

Last year, employment averaged 3,400. In 1947, a peak year, Western Pennsylvania's nine coal-rich counties counted 535 mines employing 54,000 miners.

Last year, 265 mines provided jobs for only 27,000.

This is the job outlook for those displaced of the 1,160 miners who produced 1,916,512 tons last year at Vesta No. 4 Mine; the 1,250 miners who produced 2,084,877 tons last year at Vesta No. 5, and the 379 miners who produced 522,180 tons at the Shannopin Mine.

J. & L's total production last year, including two West Virginia mines, totaled 4,892,317 of clean coal. The West Virginia mines, one of which has been closed, employed only 400 miners and accounted for 368,698 tons.

J. & L. mines passed through the first stage of mechanization in the 1945-47 period with mechanical loading, drilling and cutting machines.

The current second phase of the mechanization involves the introduction of continuous mining machinery.

The steel-fanged monster, which costs more than $65,000, eliminates the need for drilling at the coal face, filling the holes with powder and blasting down the coal.

The mechanical miner not only claws away the coal, but it loads the coal into a rubber-tired shuttle buggy, which carries it to mine cars.

Physician Talks On County Health

Dr. W. B. Clendenning discussed a recent survey of public health in the county at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Greene County Tuberculosis and Health Society Friday night in the offices of the society in the First National Bank building. The society is one of those sponsoring the survey.

Some of the "goals" are organization of a health department at the county level, additional medical service for rural areas, formation of educational health clinics on the school and adult levels, improved handling of the mentally ill and those with communicable diseases, and greater social and recreational facilities for young people.

Dr. Clendenning discussed the study made of the extent of work which can be done by the various health and social agencies in the county, and of recommendations to prevent overlapping by dovetailing the work to increase efficiency.

Clyde Thomas, president of the board, presided.

Miss Mary Ethel Shoup, school nurse for Jefferson-Morgan district, and Donald G. Williamson, who teaches in Franklin Township, told of the course in public health to which they were sent by the society. Miss Shoup attended the course in Temple University, Philadelphia, and Mr. Williamson, the one at Pennsylvania State University. The society will sponsor two attendants again this summer.

The Pioneer History of Greene County, Penna.

By L. K. EVANS

Lot Leonard lived here the remainder of his days and died at the advanced age of 100 years, lacking just one month. He reared a family of seven children—William, John, Lot, Isaac, and George, who is still living in Ohio, and Nancy, who married her cousin, Joseph Leonard, and Lea, who is still living at the age of 94 years, the widow of Joseph Randolph, deceased, and mother-in-law of ex-Treasurer Samuel Bayard.

Lot Leonard married a second wife—Frances Willis, by whom he had one daughter, who is the wife of David Bowser, residing in Washington County, not far from Clarksville.

Mr. Leonard was, as we shall see, a very eccentric individual, but he was none the less enterprising and thrifty for all that. For he took up by tomahawk improvement a large scope of country west of Waynesburg including the John Hunter Vanclève farm, the George Fry farm, the Samuel Crouse farm, a part of Stephen Adamson's farm, the James Throckmorton farm, and the farm belonging to the Rush heirs. He built a mill on the George Fry tract a half mile below where Crouse's mill now stands—relics of which and traces of the old mill dam and mill race are still visible. And there is a tradition that the old man was riding down the creek one day with a sack of meal under him, when the Indians fired upon him, causing him to drop his meal in the stream and "light out" for the fort below.

On these lands and near this mill he settled his eldest son, William, who married Frances, the eldest daughter of William Whitlatch, a neighbor of the old man's.

Old Lot Leonard was a genius in his odd way. He was a great talker and was gifted with a faculty of making rhyme, and composed many eccentric snatches of doggerel verse of which quite a number found their way into print and had some features of genuine merit. He was radical in all his notions, and carried his idea of republican freedom to such an excess as to deny the right of either church or state to restrict by rules of government the individual's liberty to do just as he pleased. He became a preacher and preached this peculiar doctrine, was not attached of course to any sect, but harranged the people upon his own responsibility. It is related of him that when frequently requested to sing a song, he would compose his rhymes and sing them right along to some popular air, and oftentimes administer too, the most scathing rebukes through the satire of his rude verses.

His son, William, was the father of four children and died comparatively young and so suddenly as to create some suspicions that he had been poisoned—of these, Lot died young, Nancy married Archibald Fordyce, John became a Methodist preacher, had seven children, among whom is William C. Leonard, one of the present county auditors; William became a popular Disciple preacher, and is remembered by many citizens of Greene County. He removed with his family to the state of Michigan in 1865, and died there but recently. There are yet many descendants of old Lot Leonard in Greene County—a frugal, industrious and respectable people.

On the Samuel Crouse farm alluded to above, still exist some relics of an interesting character. The place was known by the early settlers as the "old Indian town."

There are evidences that the Indians or some prior race of intelligences, once had a permanent encampment there. On a plateau or table land a short distance from the creek is a large circle, the outlines of which are very distinctly marked by wood ashes and charcoal which constitute the soil. Years ago, within the recollection of Mr. Crouse's sons, this feature of the soil was so unmistakable as to arrest the attention of the most casual observer. The theory is that the camp fires were lighted all round this enclosure on occasions of jubilee, etc.

In various parts of that locality large flag stones have been found which bear evidence of having been shaped by human hands. Beneath one of these an infant skeleton was discovered, which led to the conjecture that Indian children were thus entombed.

The most remarkable feature of these antiquities, however, are the relics of an ancient pottery. On the bottom between the encampment and the creek are indications unmistakable that a species of earthenware was once manufactured there. The large amount of burnt clay and the numerous pieces of vessels found there are most substantial and convincing proof of this fact. The material used in the formation of this ware appeared to be a mixture of ground or pounded muscle shells and common clay. Scales of the shell are plainly discernible in the fragments of ware that have been examined. Besides these very interesting relics, many of the more common traces of the aborigines have been picked up in that neighborhood. Flint arrow heads are numerous, and stone axes and other curiosities have been found.

These are the facts, and they would scarcely bear any other interpretation than that some tribe of ancient people had sojourned there for some considerable length of time.—L. K. EVANS.

The following note explains itself:
Mr. L. K. Evans:—You are in error in stating in your last sketch that General Lafayette, during his visit to Albert Gallatin in 1825, stopped at the house now owned by Mr. G. Yeager. I belonged to a volunteer company called the Lafayette Guards, officered as follows: Captain, Joseph Wood; First Lieutenant, James Nicholson; Second Lieutenant, Frederick Kaler; Orderly Sergeant, Washington Custis. Lafayette and his son came to Geneva in a carriage. The Guards escorted them to Mr. Gallatin's, on Friendship Hill, and took dinner there. On his return next day the General stopped awhile with Mr. Gallatin's brother-in-law, Mr. J. W. Nicholson, who occupied the stone house now owned and occupied by Dr. W. Greene.

It may be interesting further to relate that Captain Wood's wife mustered all the young ladies in the neighborhood and swept the streets of Geneva, and stood in file on the pavement and received the congratulations of the General as he passed along, hat in hand, bowing and smiling in a most benignant manner.

S. R. Dilliner, P. M.
New Geneva, July 13, 1876

Rev. John Corbly

On the 25th of February, in the year 1733, in old England, was born John Corbly. He was, I presume, of humble parentage for at 14 years of age we find him pledging four years' service for transportation across the sea to America. And it is recorded of him that he faithfully served out his time somewhere in Pennsylvania. After this he went to Winchester, Virginia, where he made the acquaintance of Miss Abigail Bull, and hastened to marry her. Notwithstanding it is somewhere recorded of her that she was an ardent papist and proved a thorn in his side, his descendants deny it very positively and aver that she belonged to the society of Friends or Quakers, and that no serious difficulty was ever known to exist between them.

Famous Artists With Symphony

One of the most outstanding attractions of the current Pittsburgh Symphony season will be presented at Syria Mosque this Friday night and Sunday afternoon.

Isaac Stern and Gregor Piatigorsky, two of the world's most honored artists, will appear separately and then together on this brilliant program. Mr. Stern will be heard first in the Bach Concerto No. 1, in a minor, for violin and string orchestra.

Mr. Piatigorsky will then play Darius Milhaud's Concerto No. 1 for cello and orchestra.

To close the program, these two famous artists will combine their talent with William Steinberg and the orchestra in what is sure to be a memorable performance of Brahms' double concerto, in a minor, for violin, cello and orchestra. To open both halves of the program, Mr. Steinberg will conduct the orchestra in Gabrieli's sonata, Piano Forte, for two instrumental choirs and Ravel's Alborada del Gracioso.

Isaac Stern began his thirteenth consecutive U. S.-Canadian concert tour in November on his return from his second around-the-world tour in sixteen months. Last month, the violinist flew to Iceland for four concerts in six days at the invitation of the U. S. envoy there and the U. S. State Department.

Born in Russia, Mr. Stern was brought by his parents to San Francisco when he was less than a year old, began studying piano at the age of six, violin two years later and at 17 made his New York debut. For the past decade he has been internationally recognized as the only American-trained violinist among the world's top-flight concert artists.

Mr. Piatigorsky, world-famous cellist, is currently on his twenty-fourth tour of the United States, and his appearance in Pittsburgh will be one of 30 he will make on this tour.

The cellist, whose career as a recitalist, dates back to 1918, recalls the years when the cello was not recognized everywhere as a solo instrument. As late as 1929, when he made his American debut, many large U. S. cities had never heard a cello recital. In the two and a half decades since, he has performed more than 1,000 times in the United States and Canada, including some 300 appearances as soloist with every major orchestra. Piatigorsky, said Newsweek magazine recently, "has brought about a cello renaissance."

Tickets for this week end's concerts are available at Kaufmann's, Gimbels and Horne's. Mail orders are accepted at the Symphony office, 1307 Farmers Bank building.

Hydrafracting Brings in Well

—DuBois, Pa.—

A new gimmick has turned a $100,000 investment in an apparently dry well into a profitable gas venture, it was developed here recently.

The Rockton Drilling Corporation sunk the well on the property of Mrs. Eva B. Moore in Union Township. The well was a joint venture of the landowners in the township because they pooled their land and leased it to the drilling firm.

All landowners in the venture would profit if gas was struck on Mrs. Moore's land. The dry well shattered many of the hopes of the landowners including the Pence heirs, largest of the group. However, the group heading the Rockton corporation refused to accept defeat. They felt sure there was gas.

The Halleburton Oil Well Cementing Company, was consulted about hydrafracting the well. The company agreed to spend several more thousand dollars in what looked like a worthless venture.

The company moved heavy trucks into the area, loaded with pumps capable of developing 10,000 pounds pressure a square inch.

They mixed 2,000 gallons of kerosene and 1,200 pounds of sand grains. This mixture was pumped under pressure to the bottom of the well.

When the pressure reached 4,000 pounds a square inch, the formation at the bottom of the well was fractured, allowing the mixture to seep into the cracks.

After the mixture was permitted to seep into the area around the bottom of the well, the pressure was reduced. The kerosene flowed back into the hole, leaving the sand grains in the crevices, acting as props.

With this second gamble, the company struck "pay dirt." The well is now producing approximately one million cubic feet of gas a day.

The field covers 3,000 acres in Union Township, approximately 20 miles away from the already productive Driftwood-Benezette field.

In drilling the well, the company sunk the hole to 7,250 feet by rotary drilling and finished off the hole to 7,326 feet by cable tool. The company said there wasn't even a show of gas before the hydrafracting was attempted.

Veronica Dunne Soloist With Irish Singers

The Irish Festival Singers on their first American tour, will give a concert in Syria Mosque, Pittsburgh, at 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, February 9. The concert is sponsored by Mount Mercy College which is in its 25th anniversary celebration. Featured with the Irish Festival Singers is Veronica Dunne, soprano soloist, and a native of Dublin. Possessor of a magnificent lyrical voice, she is one of Ireland's foremost opera soloists and has sung principal roles at LaScala in Milan, Italy, at Covent Garden in London, as well as the Dublin Opera.

Col. McAllister, of Fort Hunter Fame, Great Early Nimrod and Sportsman

—Harrisburg—
Henry W. Shoemaker, chief Pennsylvania Folklorist, said Colonel Archibald McAllister was the great hunter and sportsman of his time.

"He is said to have killed upwards of 100 bison and the same number of elk," Shoemaker said, "but when he exceeded those totals he said he would not count them anymore."

"A native of McAllisterville, Juniata County, of Scottish Highlander parentage, he was the third and last commander of that important Susquehanna frontier post, Fort Hunter, in Dauphin County north of Harrisburg, named for its first commander Colonel Samuel Hunter, who was succeeded by his relative Colonel Samuel Buyers.

"Colonel McAllister, is said to have served on General Washington's staff during the Revolution, and was appointed to the command of Fort Hunter by the great leader, himself. In 1786, the newly organized American government decided to sell its surplus forts, and the property was purchased by Colonel McAllister.

He was among the first to receive title to government lands and that same year erected the handsome stone residence, where he resided, hunting big game, and entertained lavishly until his death in 1814.

"Then came the Pennsylvania German hegira, George Boas, who bought the fort, and his descendants Dick, Myers, Schell, Wister and the latter Hunter George Rely, who have occupied the patriotic site until the present time. Colonel McAllister was a slave holder, and the family burial ground inside a white paling fence across from the mansion on the east side of the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, was surrounded by the graves of the slaves, resting under smaller sized marble slabs.

"Along the sewing house under the eaves on the west side, hung a row of buffalo heads, killed by the Colonel, of which but two remain. There are some iron spikes beside this wild pair where the others hung, and possibly blown down as there are said to be a half a dozen or more bison heads in the old blacksmith shop piled up in a dark corner. These are probably the only skulls of the Pennsylvania buffaloes in existence, the last of a noble race in Dauphin County.

"Brooks' Annals of Harrisburg tells of a bison killed in River Alley to the rear of the present Governor's Mansion, in 1794, driven off the Blue Mountain by dogs where the bison wandered east to Buffalo Springs in Lebanon County where the last in eastern Pennsylvania were destroyed about 1800.

Almost as rare are 12 sets of antlers of the Pennsylvania elk, one, hanging in the sewing room, was measured, each antler being 46 inches in length, horns of huge and heavy formation. A smaller set, the horns measuring 44 and 41 inches, respectively, hangs in the old kitchen of the fort. The other 10 elk heads and a large number of massive deer horns are also piled up in the smithy; formerly they hung along the west walls of the fort. Several have horns over five feet in length.

"In cleaning out the attic the hides of wolves were uncovered, but where they are now, those in charge of Fort Hunter do not know. They probably were the only Pennsylvania wolf skins in existence."

DEADLY DAYDREAMING

She is attractive.
And she will be... but he won't... nor will the other driver.
Two grown men—who can't follow the most elementary safety rules given to small children... "Be careful—look both ways—watch what you're doing."
Inattention kills. It is responsible for more traffic deaths than any other human failing. No matter how many years' driving experience you have... no matter how skillful your driving technique—there are no substitutes for thought and vigilance behind the wheel.

Save your daydreaming for the comfort and safety of your favorite living room chair.

Drive To stay alive in '55!

Landowners Urged to Plant Pine Trees

According to Assistant District Forester, Loren R. Brown of Ligonier, the two best deeds that conservation minded citizens can perform are the prevention of forest fires and the planting of forest tree seedlings.

The Forbes Forest District embraces the counties, Allegheny, Fayette, Greene, Somerset, Washington and Westmoreland. Many thousands of acres in this expansive district are covered with weeds, brush and so-called poverty grass. These acres can be transformed into thriving young forests by the planting of tree seedlings.

Trees are available from the State Forestry Department at the production cost of $6.00 per thousand and a thousand trees will plant an acre which scales approximately 200 by 200 feet. Fourteen kinds of tree seedlings are now available with most planters favoring white pine, norway spruce, hemlock and sugar maple.

Trees are shipped in April from the five state nurseries only if the purchaser orders on the forms furnished by the office in Ligonier. Send a postal request to the District Forester's office for a free booklet about tree planting, a list of trees available and the proper order form to obtain the trees.

General Benner's Graveyard Restored and Marked by State

—Harrisburg— Henry W. Shoemaker, Pennsylvania Folklorist, said Centre County historians are rejoicing at the restoration and marking of the General Benner graveyard, near his huge stone mansion 'Rock Furnace' now on the grounds of the Rockview Penitentiary.

"Through the years the imposing mansion of the first man to transport iron to Pittsburgh has been going down, and the crumbling graveyard hidden in a cornfield," Shoemaker said. "Even the stone marking the grave of the famed Pennsylvania German ironmaster was broken in two, and cast aside, but officials of the Penitentiary recovered it, and set it right."

"Recently the restored graveyard was rededicated in the presence of three hundred history minded Centre Countians. During the years of its neglect, campers burned most of the Hepwhite carved staircases and woodwork, and house builders carted off the elaborate black marble fireplace wrought by the Remington's in Mosquito Valley, Lycoming County. Boys broke the window lights and wrecked the doors, giving the honored place a disreputable appearance. The roof collapsed, and the staircases became unsafe."

"Nearby was a lovely fishermen's retreat, where General Benner, one of the first amateur anglers in his neighborhood, had German brown trout stocked in the stream, and spent his leisure hours fishing for trout, shooting quail and riding his horses."

"Recently his picture was purchased at the Linn sale in Bellefonte, by a young Harrisburg business executive, showing him to have been of a powerful type, golden brown hair, eagle's nose, and fine hazel eyes, and a kindly, captivating expression. Of old family, he was a nephew of General 'Mad' Anthony Wayne. He had, himself, served as a boy in the Revolutionary War, showing intrepid bravery at Brandywine and Germantown. He was a Major General in the State Militia."

"He was about the only man approached, by David Lewis the robber, who did not run, but was able to put the desperate outlaw to rout. Rock Furnace is a picturesque locality."

"The old people, who recall tales of General Benner and his family, tell many tales of the grand days of industrial prosperity of Rock, also amusing anecdotes of his young friend, Militia Commander, Major General 'Urie' Wolfe, of Wolf's Store, who rode his walking horse to the top story of the mansion and it had to be let down with a rope and derrick. Tales of General Benner and Rock, and its people, are standard anecdotes in the annals of Pennsylvania Folklore and history."

108-Year-Old Church Moved in Detroit

Movers have begun the herculean task of inching historic Old Mariner's Church from its Detroit riverfront site to a new location in the city's planned civic center. It will take about three weeks at the rate of 50 feet a day to move the 103-year-old landmark.

Is he kidding?

No, nobody ever asks us to insure only one end of his house against fire, windstorm, etc.

But, in effect, many people DO carry insurance on only a fraction of their property.

We mean, they carry only a percentage — perhaps 40% or 50% or 60% — of as much insurance as they should.

They insured their property when property was worth much less. Insurance should be carried not on original cost, but on present replacement costs, less depreciation. (This depreciation is normally very little for well maintained property.)

Here's Way to Keep Water Flowing in Pressure Systems During Cold Months

By IRA MILLER
Farm Electrification Bureau

Water—plenty of it, winter and summer—is a prime necessity for profitable farming. But that's only half of the story. The other half has to do with running water or, rather, the lack of it when winter comes visiting up north.

An automatic water system, ac-ording to tests conducted by Iowa State College, saved one farmer 3 1/2 miles of walking as well as the carrying of 3 tons of water per month for his 275-bird flock. These same tests also showed that having water available at all times produced faster gains on livestock.

Of course that's when the system's working. Then along comes cold weather and some of us have difficulty with exposed pipes and plumbing connections. When a freeze-up arrives there's not much you can do except to "haw away" the trouble. You're stuck, and so is your running water.

The thing to do, naturally, is to prevent freeze-ups from happening. And you can do it inexpensively with

Vienna to Regain Dancing Horses

Austria's famous dancing horses—those of the Spanish Riding School of the Hapsburg emperors—will return to Vienna soon after long exile in the West.

Soviet authorities in Austria have guaranteed they will not seize the stately white Lipizzaner stallions if they come back to their magnificent stables in the ancient Imperial Palace in Vienna.

The riding school, the only one in the world which maintains the centuries-old classic tradition of horsemanship, was saved for Austria from the Soviet Army in 1945 by United States General George S. Patton.

A keen horseman himself, General Patton sent tanks to the forest in Czechoslovakia to which the horses had been removed to avoid the war and brought them to Wels in Upper Austria.

Since 1945, the "Dance of the White Stallions" has delighted equestrians of many nations.

Interesting Social Notes

Mrs. Albert A. Sayers entertained the Waynesburg Woman's Club Friday afternoon in her home on North Morris street. Mrs. C. W. Waychoff, president, conducted the meeting. Mrs. Robert Thompson, program chairman, introduced the speaker, Dr. Julius M. Hill, professor of psychology in Waynesburg College. His subject was "The Effect of Social Experiences upon Our Personality." He stated that "interest is the core of personality," and quoted John Ruskin: "Tell me what you love, and I'll tell you what you are." In discussing attitudes, traits, responses, and character, he recommended books by Dr. Harry Overstreet and Dr. Karl Menninger as reading. Recently Dr. Overstreet's book, "Mind Alive," a best seller of 1954, was placed in Waynesburg College Library as a memorial to a member of the Woman's Club. Mrs. Roy W. Clovis, librarian of Waynesburg College, thanked the club for its 1954-55 gift. Since 1903 the club has contributed generously toward the library's reference collection. This year's selections are: the annual bulletin of "The Public Affairs Information Service," the 10th volume of "The Papers of Thomas Jefferson," and the fifth edition of "Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians," in nine volumes. In 1920, the club purchased for the library the five-volume set of Grove's Dictionary. By coincidence its first complete revision in 75 years of existence as the basic music encyclopedia is published this year, designed as music year at Waynesburg College. Tea was served with Mrs. W. J. Kyle and Mrs. W. C. Montgomery at the tea table.

Greene Academy Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, met Thursday evening at the Hartley Inn, with 21 members and four guests present. Devotions were conducted by the chaplain, Mrs. Margaret Barclay, and the meeting was in charge of the regent, Mrs. Lewis Vance. The president general's message was read by the regent and the message stressed that the theme for the coming year is to foster true patriotism, and that it is not enough to know what is right but it is essential to do what is right and patriotic. The letter also quoted Emerson: "What you are speaks so loudly I can not hear what you say." Special music arranged by the hostesses consisted of accordion solos by Joseph Yurick. The program chairman, Mrs. Leslie Sharpnack, introduced the speaker, County Agent John D. Gopen, and in keeping with the theme, "Fostering Patriotism Through Conservation," Mr. Gopen stressed how fast natural resources are being consumed. He said that many can be replaced if people will only cooperate. He also said the water problem is becoming serious and especially so in this community. Mr. Gopen said that more citizens should take advantage of the State's offer to sell evergreens at a nominal cost for planting on lands for conservation use. Mrs. Wilbur Brown, chairman of the good citizenship committee, announced that the chapter was awarding good citizenship pins and certificates to three senior high school students. They are Beverly Ann Decker of Cumberland Township High School; Nancy Barnes, Jefferson-Morgan High, and Jacqueline Sedorko of Mapletown High School. The chairman also announced that 3,908 good citizenship medals were awarded by the DAR last year. Three alternates were appointed to attend the Continental Congress in Washington, D. C., April 18-22. They are Mrs. William Goodwin, Mrs. Wilbur Brown and Mrs. William Fox. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Ivan Wilson, Miss Lena Dowlin and Miss Inez Long. Greene County Democrat Women's Club will meet Saturday at 2:30 in the headquarters on High street. Miss Sarah M. Dinsmore, president, will preside.

Mrs. Lee W. Henderson, Jr., of North Richhill street, will entertain the Pleasant Hour Club Friday afternoon at 2:30 in her home. Mrs. W. J. Kyle is program leader.

The Auxiliary of James Farrell Post No. 330, American Legion, last week endorsed Mrs. C. Austin Dille for a second term as executive secretary-treasurer of the Legion Auxiliary of the Department of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Floyd H. Miller gave a welfare report on donations of food and clothing given to families of several veterans. Miss Sarah Ann Dille reported 420 paid members. A $25 donation was voted for use of veterans' hospitals. Mrs. Thomas Matthews, president, was in charge of the meeting. The legislative committee, with Mrs. Helen Dittman as chairman, served refreshments.

The Christopher Gist Chapter, Daughters of American Colonists, held its sixth anniversary luncheon Saturday in the Fort Jackson Hotel, Waynesburg. Officers elected for three years were, regent, Mrs. Donald R. Jacobs; first vice regent, Mrs. Louis M. Waddell; second vice regent, Miss Josephine Denny; third vice regent, Miss Dorothea Rinehart; chaplain, Mrs. J. Russell Milliken; recording secretary, Mrs. Furman Rinehart; corresponding secretary, Miss Grace Morris; registrar, Mrs. Worthy R. Scott; treasurer, Mrs. J. Austin Watson; historian, Mrs. Ross M. Smith. Mrs. Waddell and Miss Denny were elected delegates for the General Assembly to be held April 12 and 13 at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C. Mrs. Thomas S. Crago and Mrs. Frank R. Olmstead were named alternate delegates to the general assembly.

The Woman's Society of the First Baptist Church will meet Thursday at 2 o'clock in the church. Miss Sarah M. Dinsmore will lead the devotions. Mrs. Clarence Dille will review the study book, "Jeep Tracks." Mrs. Ollie Fox will be in charge of the social hour.

Where's the smart place to put your savings?

Today millions of Americans will tell you that the smart place to save your money is an insured Savings and Loan Association. They'll give you three good reasons why this is so...

1. You're smart to put your money where it brings you excellent returns. Insured Savings and Loan Associations can invest most of their funds in sound, steady-paying home mortgages. They really make your money work hard for you.
2. You're smart to put your money where you know it's safe. In these Associations, it's protected by good management and substantial reserves. And the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation—an agency of the U. S. Government—insures your savings up to $10,000.
3. You're smart to deal with friendly, experienced people. People who really know their communities. People who are right on the spot when you need them.

So it's hardly surprising that Americans are now putting more of their hard-earned savings account dollars into insured Savings and Loan Associations than they put anywhere else.

And here's another important point: When you're thinking of buying a home, remember that these Associations are the nation's largest single source of home mortgage loans! They make liberal loans. They see to it that you get the money quickly—and at moderate rates.

Shouldn't you get to know an insured Savings and Loan Association in your community? You'll find it's a mighty good place to do business!

More Beef Eaten But Cattlemen Make Less

—Mobile, Alabama—

You probably ate more beef last year than ever before, but the man who raised the cows didn't make as much money as he should have, one of them said.

Jay Taylor of Amarillo, Texas, said Americans set a new record in 1954 by eating an average of 80 pounds of beef. He is president of the American National Cattleman's Association.

He told about 1,000 Alabama cattlemen, however, that "the returns on our investments, management, labor and risk are still too low or nonexistent."

Mr. Taylor, speaking at the opening session of the 12th annual Alabama Cattlemen's Association convention, said that for cattlemen to realize more profits they must increase their efficiency while maintaining and increasing the demand for beef.

Tom W. Glaze, Chicago, head of the Swift and Company, agricultural research department, said that an expected 20 to 25 per cent population rise in the next 20 years will increase production demands on the cattle industry.

Forage production on a large portion of permanent grasslands can be doubled or even tripled, he said, indicating that the cattle business will be able to produce enough in the future.

'The Women' on 'Showcase' Feb. 7

"The Women," a play in three acts by Clare Boothe Luce, a biting satire and an illuminatingly revealing comedy of female foibles, will be seen on "Producers' Showcase" Monday, February 7, over WTRF-TV, from 8:00 to 9:30 p. m.

The story concerns Mary Haines, a happily married society matron who is prodded by the gossip of her "best friends" to divorce her husband. How she faces up to the situation and is finally obligated to indulge in "jungle warfare" of her own makes for a bright, peppery and laugh-laden expose of a particular distasteful set.

Producer Fred Coe has signed another cast of noted stars for the fifth production in the series. Shelley Winters, Paulette Goddard, Ruth Hussey, Mary Astor, Nancy Olson, Mary Boland, Valerie Bettis and Cathleen Nesbitt will be starred in the compatible color cast, which will also be seen in black and white.

Fifty-Year History of Greene County Sports

By GEORGE N. THOMAS

GREENE COUNTY TENNIS

The gift of a tennis court to Waynesburg College in 1923 by its good neighbor, Miss Mary Sayers, took the institution out of the proverbial woods so far as tennis was concerned.

For a half dozen years students enjoyed the play thereon on an informal and intra-campus basis.

But when time came for serious consideration for collegiate competition, college officials realized more courts were necessary.

Unfortunately, Miss Sayers could give no more acreage, that is, not unless she would have removed the roof over her head.

So, the school built, with extraordinary help of Charley Susano (who has become an atomic scientist), additional courts north of Walton Hall on some of the finest clay foundation in the tri-state district.

By the spring of 1929, all was ready and Waynesburg first—and inexperienced—team entered intercollegiate play.

Ed Swanson defeated all classmates for the campus singles championship, so he promptly was named Number One man. Team mates were Dick Hatfield, Oscar Enstrom, Harry Sichi, Bert Waychoff, Dick Toline and Polan.

Well, the boys didn't shatter anything resembling records. In fact they took some pretty miserable beatings at hands of such teams as Broadus and Geneva.

They were so unimpressive that when other sports named their captains for the coming year for a publicity release, the tennis group simply wasn't asked. No one cared.

Having started from the bottom, there was only one direction in which to go—up. So, in 1930, the Yellow Jacket tennis squad, in its second season, celebrated with two victories, both of them over the Junior College of Pittsburgh.

But all Alex Ufema, Swanson, Elmer Patsch, Don Titus, O'Connell and Bill Sayers could do did not overcome experienced squads from Duquesne, California and Broadus, although the scores were close in most of the matches.

It was almost the same crowd in 1931 with the addition of Andy and Bertram Waychoff (not brothers).

Coach Leslie V. Brock, a learned professor who liked tennis and made coaching his hobby, worked long with Ufema, Patsch, John Bally, Swanson, George Mc-

Laughlin, Bill Kerr, Fred Hill, Young and Andy Waychoff during the mid-1930s in an effort not so much to bring tennis glory to the Waynesburg campus, but to satisfy his patient teaching and restore players' confidence.

Besides, they all had a barrel of fun.

Occasionally, they'd beat some team in their class such as Bethany and gangly Professor Brock would smile upon his flock.

In 1934, two bright students of the court turned up on the professor's flock. They were Merle Labin and Bill Kerr, the latter from Nemaacolin.

They led the boys in a mediocre season, brightened considerably by an overwhelming victory over Duquesne. They won three that year, the most ever.

And it was a good thing, too. Because the girls almost stole the headlines from them.

M. Ruth Stewart assumed coaching duties for her sex and piloted a team consisting of Helen Brock, Louise G. Scott, Peggy Jane Scott, Faye Levine, Adelaide Ormond and "Joker" Grimm.

They went into the big-time college play, too, competing with Geneva, Grove City and other colleges for amusement more than any serious competitive play.

About this time, there were some new faces in Coach Brock's ranks—Bill McKay, Russ Markovina, Andy Stark, Grover Powell, Roy Waychoff and Henry Dembo. Labin still was one of the best.

This group finally put Geneva in its place after the Covies had for years made shambles of the Yellow Jackets.

The 1937 squad probably was the best in Waynesburg history, led by Bill McKay, a home town boy, as the number one player, they compiled the first really winning season of the Yellow Jackets ever had, beat W. & J. and stopped California Teachers' 22-match home win streak.

The Californians hadn't lost a home match in two years, and had, in fact, lost only twice on their courts in a decade.

The strongest players of this era were McKay, Waychoff, Labin, Dembo, Powell and Markovina.

Toward the end of the 1930s, when Waynesburg was winning just about as many as they were losing, Bud Randolph, Tony Balsamello, Dembo, Frank Jamison, Jacquin Patterson, Joseph Jefferson, Jim Waller and Art Patterson, Jr., provided net hopes for the Orange and Black.

Many of Coach Brock's netmen came unexpectedly from the student body. When he didn't have enough men, he'd conduct undergrad tournaments and come up with surprising ability.

By this time, West Virginia University, Pitt, Duquesne, Westminster, W. & J., California, Geneva and others were on the Jackets' card.

But after 1939, something happened, or rather something didn't happen to tennis on the campus and it was backhanded right out of sight until after the war.

Maple Leaf Five Defeated Twice

Mapletown High School cage quintet was defeated twice during the past week bowing to East Beth High 80-44 in a Section 18 contest and to Masontown High 51-49 in an exhibition game.

East Beth's well-balanced attack proved too much for the Maple Leafs as the winners enjoyed a particularly good second quarter when they outscored the Leafs 27-4.

Marty Gregan took down scoring honors for the night as he collected 19 points to pace Mapletown. Finley had 15 points to lead the winners.

Jefferson High School's cage crew racked up two victories during the past week downing the West Beth High five 75-39 in a Section 18 tilt and then topping All-Saints High of Masontown, 84-38 in an exhibition contest.

Jefferson moved into fourth place in Section 18 with its easy conquest of winless West Beth. Only Bernie Berocsky, with 15 points, gave the Rockets, paced by Tekavec's 28 markers, much trouble.

The Jeffs got off to an early lead against All-Saints and led by a score of 50-17 at half time and then coasted the rest of the game.

Don Tekavec and Butch Palone each racked up 24 points to pace Jefferson with Bertovich collecting 14 points to lead All-Saints.

Romney to Head NCAA TV Group

E. L. Dick Romney, Mountain State Conference commissioner, has been named chairman of the 1955 NCAA Television Committee and promptly declared he was "confident that a suitable program" for football TV next season can be worked out.

"Members of the committee have a fine approach to the problem of formulating a 1955 television plan and I am confident we will settle on a suitable program," said the veteran Rocky Mountain official. Romney for 31 years was football coach and athletic director at Utah State before becoming conference commissioner.

There was little other news to come out of the organizational session of the committee, faced with the task of mapping a TV plan that will be acceptable to all.

A timetable was adopted listing the next committee meeting for New York February 10-11, at which time hearings will be held.

"The hearings will be to solicit any suggestions or recommendations that might have to do with a 1955 plan for anyone with a valid reason for advancing them," said Walter Byers, committee secretary and executive director of the NCAA.

Byers said plans being considered are: one similar to the 1954 national "game of the week" program, slightly revised to permit local appearances; national regional, permitting telecasting of nine regional and four national contests; "one-rule" plan where teams appear, once at home and once away, with one of the games on a network only; regionally only.

Rocket Grapplers Split Dual Meets

Coach Ernie Benedict's Jefferson High School mat squad dropped a 39-11 decision to the grapplers of Washington High, and then defeated the Charleroi High mat crew 28-19 in dual meets last week.

The Little Presidents copped seven of the 12 bouts to earn the win over the Rockets. Thompson, 127; Milliken, 133; Interval, 145, and Dickerson, 185, rang up falls for the winners.

Jefferson proved to be strong in the lower weights, taking the first and third events and earning a draw in the second bout of the night.

Jefferson won the first six bouts in their match with Charleroi to build up a lead that could not be overcome even though the Cougars won the final four contests.

Waynesburg High School's wrestling squad scored two impressive victories the past week edging Chartiers High 22-20 and swamping the mat crew of German Township 49-9.

Every dog should own a child

Our dog here has just acquired a boy—owns him lock, stock and barrel right now, as you can see.

Soon, the dog can begin the boy's training.

If this boy is a bright boy, the dog will teach him several very good things. He will teach him about loyalty and patience and how to trust. And—most important—he will teach him about the obligation he owes to those who love him and depend on him.

As a grownup, you already know about that obligation and are doing your level best to live up to it. And we have a suggestion that may help. The easiest, surest, safest way to guard your family's future and provide security against emergencies is to join the Payroll Savings Plan.

SECURITY—AND ALL THE DREAMS YOU HAVE— CAN COME TRUE THROUGH THE PAYROLL SAVINGS PLAN

Here's the sure way, the easy way, the automatic way to save. Just go to your company's pay office and sign up to save whatever amount you want put away for you each payday. It can be anything you choose to make it—a few dollars or a larger sum. That's up to you. Every payday that amount will be saved for you—before you draw your pay. That way you are never tempted to spend it because you won't have it in hand.

Then, as the dollars add up (and you'll be surprised how fast they do) they will be invested for you in a Series E U. S. Savings Bond, in your name. Each Bond will be delivered to you to hold. And as time goes by they become more and more valuable because they earn an average of 3% per year, compounded semiannually, when held to maturity. Do you want to know just how much that can be? Just look at the chart here for some examples.

Choose your own savings goal	If you want approximately
	$5,000	$10,000	$25,000
Each week for 9 years and 8 months, save.....	$8.80	$18.75	$45.00
Each week for 19 years and 8 months, save.....	$7.75	$7.50	$18.75

This chart shows only a few typical examples of savings goals and how to reach them through Payroll Savings. Remember, you can save any sum you wish, from a couple of dollars a payday up to as much as you want. The important thing is, start your Plan today!

You can do it — 8 million others are doing it!

Steady saving through the Payroll Savings Plan is making dreams come true for eight million working folks. What about you? Why not get started right now and give yourself and your family a break? Sign up for steady, systematic savings with the Payroll Savings Plan. If you are self-employed, join the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank. But pick your plan and join TODAY — you'll be glad all the rest of your life that you did!

If you want your interest as current income, ask your bank about 3% Series H Bonds which pay interest semiannually by Treasury check.
