Mrs. Williams Chairman Of Vaccine Inoculation

Mrs. Jack E. Williams of Waynesburg, will act as chairman of the program to inoculate first and second grade school children in Greene County with Salk polio vaccine this spring, Attorney Ewing B. Pollock, president of the Greene County Chapter, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, announces.

Mrs. Williams has been active in the annual cancer campaigns, and is a member of Waynesburg School Board.

The children will be "polio messengers" and will deliver to their parents a brochure explaining the status of investigations into the Salk polio vaccine, plans for mass inoculations involving first and second graders, and the eventual availability of the vaccine through commercial channels.

Children in these two age groups throughout Pennsylvania will receive the vaccine. This is part of "Operation Alert," a project which finds health departments across the nation getting ready for mass inoculations once the vaccine is okayed about April first. The evaluation report on the Salk polio vaccine will be issued by the Poliomyelitis Vaccine Evaluation Center at the University of Michigan.

The evaluation work is directed by Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr., University of Michigan. It involves the careful checking of 1,830,000 records of school children who participated in the nation-wide field trial of the vaccine last year.

The children, according to the brochure, which has not yet been received here, will receive the vaccine only upon parental request only. All children participating will get three shots to receive the greatest protection.

The second shot is given one week after the first; the third four weeks after the second. The shots will be given in a muscle of the arm.

The brochure explains that if the vaccine is licensed, manufacturers will make it available for purchase. The "purchased" shots will be given by physicians.

A meeting of chairmen of the district will be held soon in Pittsburgh.

Hereford Sale Here April 25

Pennsylvania Hereford Breeders' Association will hold their annual show and sale Monday, April 25, at the Greene County Fairground near Waynesburg.

Cattle consigned will be on exhibition the morning of the sale and in the afternoon 54 bred heifers and 10 bulls will be sold.

County Agent John D. Gopen, who is aiding the association sale committee, said only top registered breeding animals have been accepted from 16 consignors in a dozen Pennsylvania counties and West Virginia.

Hermann R. Purdy of Pennsylvania State University, will judge the animals in the morning. Dorlin Hay of Pine Grove Mills, Hereford Association secretary-fieldman, is sales manager, and A. W. Hamilton of Lewisburg, Va., will be the auctioneer.

Consignors are:
Greene—George W. Allison and Sons, Waynesburg.

Washington—J. Elmer Andrew and Sons, Dunns Station, and Dorsey Woodruff, Canonsburg.

Clearfield—Fred J. Brown and W. A. E. Letzinger, both of Clearfield.

Montgomery—West Chelton Corporation, Bryn Athyn.

Bucks—Joseph E. Duval, Newtown.

Cumberland—Leon Leighton, Jr., Mechanicsburg.

Westmoreland—Howard McCullough, Salina, and Rugh Brothers of Bolivar.

Fayette—Walter E. Rhodes, Point Marion, and G. Emerson Work and Son, Smock.

McKean—John VanTine, Bradford.

Jefferson—Sprague Wingard, Richardsville.

Bedford—Leon Falk, Jr., of Schellsburg.

West Virginia—Thorne F. Kobleger, Weston.

Harlan Committee For High Court

The U. S. Senate judiciary investigation committee Wednesday voted overwhelmingly to recommend John Marshall Harlan of New York, as a justice of the Supreme Court.

President Eisenhower had sent his name to the Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice William O. Douglas.

His name will now be sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Streets to be Repaired on North Side

Waynesburg Borough Council Monday night, adopted a program of street repair as recommended by the borough engineer.

Following is the list:
Bowlby alley to be graded.

Purman Run road from Franklin to Braden street, grading.

Liberty street from High to Greene, grade and limestone.

Third avenue from Richhill to Morris, curb and gutter.

Fourth avenue from Morris to West street, curb and gutter and limestone.

Ross street, First to Fourth avenue, curb and gutter and limestone.

Both Fourth avenue and Ross street jobs were included on petitions of property owners. In addition there is a contract job slated for $1,400 for resurfacing of Second avenue. There is also a patching project for all paved streets to cost an estimated $3,700.

Only $6,000 is available for this work, most of which is on the North Side. Two projects on the South Side, Elm street from Morris to Washington, and First from Richhill to Morris, would require use of the full amount for repairs.

On the North Side there are 22 unimproved sections of streets; on the south side, three, and six in the East End.

Council also heard a report of the Pennsylvania Economy League, Greene County Chapter, relative to a method of keeping triplicate records of all borough receipts as an aid in formulating a monthly financial statement to check actual receipts and expenditures against budget estimates.

This report will get additional study at a committee meeting March 16.

Burgess Fay Headlee made the following report:

Income from parking meters, $1,455.00; previous income, $1,411.50; income to date this year, $2,866.50; tickets issued, 300; parking fines, $170.75; meter fines, $70.00; other fines and costs, $107.00; traffic light fines, $15.00; tin cans sold at dump, $7.50.

Eli G. Baily Marks 90th Anniversary

Eli G. Baily, prominent Carmichaels resident, celebrated his 90th birthday anniversary at a family dinner Thursday, March 3, in his home.

Those present were Mrs. Baily, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Huston and Miss Margaret Baily of Carmichaels; Dr. and Mrs. Walter L. Baily, Mrs. Lloyd Baily, and Mrs. Frank Hill of Waynesburg.

Mr. Baily enjoys good health, is very active, attends church regularly and drives an automobile.

Mr. Baily received a letter from Rev. R. L. Biddle of Candler, Florida, who celebrated his 90th birthday anniversary in November. They were boyhood friends. Rev. Biddle is pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Candler.

Mental Hospital Survey Slated

—Harrisburg—

State Welfare Secretary Harry Shapiro has retained the American Psychiatric Association to make a survey of Pennsylvania's mental institutions operated by his department.

The investigation is expected to take a year and will cost the commonwealth $17,000.

Shapiro said the A-P-A will compile a separate report on each institution, outlining proposed recommendations on building, program and personnel changes for accreditation of each institution by the association.

The department operates 17 mental hospitals, four institutions for mentally deficient persons and one correctional institution for juveniles.

Noted Conductor To Direct College Symphony Here

DR. C. HUGO GRIMM

Music lovers of southwestern Pennsylvania will have an opportunity to hear an all college symphony orchestra Saturday evening at Waynesburg. The concert will climax the three day Pennsylvania Inter-Collegiate Music Festival which opens Thursday at Waynesburg College. It will include the best instrumentalists from leading colleges and universities of the state.

One of the nation's noted instructors and composers, Dr. C. Hugo Grimm, will conduct. For many years Dr. Grimm was head of the department of composition at the famed Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and also conductor of the Conservatory Symphony Orchestra.

His own orchestral works, one of which will be played here Saturday night, have been performed by symphony orchestras in Chicago, Detroit, Indianapolis, Sacramento, Columbus and other large cities. He is a past winner of the $1,000 prize for orchestral work, National Federation of Music Clubs and the $1,000 choral and orchestral prize of the MacDowell Club of New York.

Dr. Grimm will direct rehearsals of the group of 70 visiting student musicians throughout Thursday and Friday in preparation for Saturday night's concert in Waynesburg High School auditorium.

A fine advance sale of tickets is reported for the concert, with many music lovers from Washington, Fayette and Allegheny Counties planning to attend along with a host of others from Waynesburg and Greene County.

The festival is one of the highlights of Music Year which is being observed at the college.

Some rooms are still needed for visiting students on Thursday and Friday nights. Families wishing to have students as guests may call the college office.

Other officers elected are Woodrow Seaman, vice president; Mrs. Joseph Hodges, secretary, and Mrs. William Funk, treasurer.

William Taylor and Jean Darrah were appointed to a committee to purchase new juvenile books for the library, and it was announced that Mrs. Ben Crago, librarian at Cumberland Township High School, has been asked to set up a cross index card filing system for the association books.

Dr. Nader Heads Carmichaels Library

Dr. George J. Nader of Carmichaels, was elected president of the Carmichaels Library Association at its annual re-organization meeting Tuesday night. He succeeds Mrs. Jean Gwynne.

Other officers elected are Woodrow Seaman, vice president; Mrs. Joseph Hodges, secretary, and Mrs. William Funk, treasurer.

Albert P. Smith Dies After Short Illness

Albert P. Smith, 79 years, a native of Jefferson and a former U. S. Bank examiner, died Saturday, March 5, 1955, at his home, 515 South Alken avenue, Pittsburgh, after a brief illness.

Mr. Smith was a brother of Attorney S. M. Smith of Waynesburg, and of Mrs. Louie Gregg of Lippencott. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American War, having served in the Philippines with Company K, Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry.

His death followed an illness of only a few days.

For the past several years, Mr. Smith was deeply interested in the early history of Greene County, particularly that of the Jefferson community and of the former Monongahela College.

Recently, with the assistance of his nephew, Albert E. Moredock of Waynesburg, he had compiled an extensive file of early photographs of school classes, family groups and other historical illustrations.

Mr. Smith was born April 12, 1875, in Jefferson, a son of Dr. Sylvanus Smith and Louisa Crayne Smith. He married Naomi Alexander, also a native of Jefferson.

Mr. Smith was among the few surviving former students of the old Monongahela College at Jefferson, attending there prior to the turn of the century.

He left Jefferson in 1910, moving to Pittsburgh, where he was employed from 1912 to about 1925, as a bank examiner by the United States Treasury Department.

In later years he was an auditor for the Orphans Court of Allegheny County.

Mr. Smith was a member of the Baptist Church, having initially affiliated with the Jefferson Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Miss LuCinda Smith, at home; a brother and sister. Also surviving are a number of nieces and nephews, including Albert E. Moredock and Miss Louisa C. Smith, both of Waynesburg; Mrs. Bess M. Lindsay and Frank B. Smith, both of Pittsburgh, and Harry S. Smith of Sharon.

Funeral services were held Monday in the Sampson Funeral Home. Interment in Jefferson Memorial Park, Allegheny County.

Twelve Promoted By K Company

The promotion of 12 members of K Company, 110th Infantry, has been announced by Captain Joseph W. Carroll, as follows:

Private to Private First Class, William L. Bartolovich of Graysville; Thomas J. Dulaney and Leroy J. Ingram, both of Kirby; Richard E. Patterson and Edward E. Stroppe, both of Waynesburg.

Those desiring to enlist in the company may contact a representative in the Army from 2 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Parents of youths who have military obligations are asked to contact the Army.

Jacktown Fair August 10-13

Richhill Agricultural Association announces the 90th annual Jacktown Fair at Wind Ridge for August 10, 11, 12 and 13.

The Jacktown Fair is the oldest in the country to have exhibited consecutively.

John N. Penn, III To Judge Cooking

John N. Penn, III, general manager of the Carlton House, Pittsburgh, has agreed to be the only man to serve as a judge in the history of the Mrs. America contest in Pittsburgh.

The Mrs. America contest is one where the women of the area compete for wonderful prizes offered by natural gas companies. They are judged on cooking, looks and civic mindedness at a cookoff April 16.

Mr. Penn is the grandson of the late J. N. Penn of Waynesburg, and is the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Thomas of Waynesburg. His father, John John N. Penn, Jr., resides in Forest Hills, N. Y. He is secretary of the board of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

Ewing Pollock Honored as 'Man of the Year' by JCs

EWING B. POLLOCK

Ewing B. Pollock, 34-year-old Waynesburg attorney, was cited as "Man of the Year for Greene County," by Waynesburg Junior Chamber of Commerce at a banquet Thursday night in the Fort Jackson Hotel.

Eighty-five persons were in attendance.

Roy E. Hartley, president of the Jaycees, presented the certificate to Mr. Pollock and told of his various civic activities.

Mr. Pollock expressed his appreciation of the honor, and stated that his work had been made possible mainly through the gracious sacrifices of his wife, Betty Fox Pollock, who was a guest. Mr. and Mrs. Pollock have four children.

Lieutenant Governor Roy E. Furman discussed the unemployment compensation bill which is being drafted and which would provide a sliding scale and avoid heavier financial strain on industry which the state is trying to attract.

Under the proposed bill the state government will support with all its resources a plan to borrow money for the purpose of erecting factory buildings with rent payments by the manufacturers to be used in paying off the mortgages, Mr. Furman said.

The plan would create a State Industrial Development Authority, which would function along the lines of the State Public School Building Authority. It is designed to benefit small communities which could attract industries by building plants. They could collect their payments from the manufacturers over a long lease period, and make repayment to the State in the same manner, Mr. Furman explained.

Miss Rita Willis, Cumberland Township High School senior, read her essay, "I Speak for Democracy," which won first place in the JayCee sponsored "Voice of Democracy" oration contest in Greene County.

Among those introduced were John Pavarnik of Carmichaels R. D. 1, and William W. Garrison of Waynesburg, co-winners of the county "Man of the Year" award in 1954.

The invocation and benediction were by Rev. Earl B. King, pastor of the First Christian Church.

March Grand Jury Returns Two Bills

The March grand jury completed its work Tuesday returning two true bills and ignoring three cases. Ben H. Crago of Carmichaels, was foreman.

George Parker of Waynesburg R. D., was bound to court on a paternity charge. Jean Mahle is prosecutrix.

Charges of burglary and larceny against Thomas Walters and Jack Lowery, both of Bobtown, were ignored. It was charged they had broken into the Louis Prete service station in Dunkard Township.

Dennis Hopkins, 25 years, of Sycamore, was cleared of blame in the death of Raymond Morris, 22, of Kutztown, following a fight outside the Koratich Tavern in Morrisville, early Christmas morning. Witnesses testified that Hopkins fought only after being struck several times. Coroner Frank F. Bryan testified Morris died of respiratory failure and that he had a tendency to epilepsy.

A larceny charge against Frank Yursick of Masontown, charged with stealing junk, was ignored.

A true bill was returned in the case in which Scott Montgomery of Waynesburg R. D. 2, is charged with being an accessory after the fact of larceny, binding him over for court trial. Montgomery is charged with being involved in the theft of $225 from the home of William Fordyce of Waynesburg.

The Pioneer History of Greene County, Penna.

By L. K. EVANS

Garards Fort

Garards Fort has a wider historic reputation than any other locality in Greene County. The incident of the massacre of the family of Rev. John Corby has been recorded in all the historic collections in any way relating to Western Pennsylvania, and hence the name of the fort has become familiar in all parts of the state and nation. It was probably the very first to be erected within the county limits, and was built upon one of the loveliest sites anywhere to be found. It was located in a thriving and highly respectable settlement and seemed to be a central point, around which, on all sides, existed smaller settlements and secondary forts.

Could we but resurrect half of the traditions of the interesting reminiscences and thrilling episodes that transpired within the precincts of that ancient place of refuge, it would, no doubt, form a volume of no ordinary size, and would be a work of deep and passionate interest to thousands. But unfortunately little else than the Corby massacre has been preserved. It was a deed so desperate and horrible in character that all the subordinate transactions became absorbed in it. In the vivid recollections of one crowning act, the remembrance of all else was neglected. And I have striven in vain to resuscitate even the most vague perceptions of any of the traditions of that lost volume. And as all unrecorded history is evanescent and subject to pass irretrievably into oblivion, it has been my purpose to collect and preserve to future generations the small remnant that still exists.

It was probably before the butchery of the Corby family that the following occurrence took place in that neighborhood, and which created, no doubt, the most intense excitement at the time. It would appear that an alarm of Indians had been set afloat. Colonel John Minor, who was commander-in-chief of all the military operations in this district, sent out a party of practiced scouts each successive morning to make observation of the surrounding country and report upon the situation. Upon one occasion Amos Morris, Dick Hall, and a man by the name of Mahanna, were sent up the creek. Then the hillsides were overgrown with dense forests and those broad rich bottoms were dense thickets of willows, alders, etc. Through this wilderness was a narrow path. The three scouts had proceeded on their way to a point now in the famous meadow of John Lantz, recently deceased, not far from the site of the brick residence now there, when they were fired on by a murderous gang of concealed Indians. Mahanna was killed on the spot; Morris was wounded in the arm, but being on horseback rode off and made his escape; Hall, who was a noted Indian fighter, discharged the contents of his gun into the heart of a savage, and then slipped into the thicket and escaped by climbing the northside hill.

When Morris and Hall returned to the fort and made known the result of their expedition Colonel Minor made a grand requisition for militia and volunteers in order to pursue and punish the enemy. Against the next morning, it is said that a very large party had been organized—tradition says about five hundred men, which I presume is an extravagant exaggeration. This army set out early for the conflict. When they arrived at the place where the scouts had been fired on they found Mahanna stripped of all his clothing and so mutilated and cut to pieces that his remains had to be rolled in a sheet for burial. Nearby was a tree that had been blown up by the roots. Into the cavity thus made they placed the corpse of this unfortunate man, covered it with earth and called it a burial.

It is said that the army was then formed into the shape of a drag-net and marched up the bottom in order to search out the Indians. An advanced guard of picked men preceded the main army. Among these was Henry Sycks. He was on the south bank of the creek and had not proceeded far when he struck an Indian trail. He followed it very cautiously and was finally led to some shelving rocks, under which he observed some loose stones which had evidently been placed there very recently. Quietly removing them he discovered a dead Indian, the one Hall had shot the previous day. Seizing him by the "top-knot," he dragged him to the light, scalped him and gave the "war whoop," and it is said that in less than five minutes he was surrounded by the whole of Minor's army.

Having scoured the hills and valleys for miles around and assuring themselves that the Indians had escaped beyond all hope of overtaking them, these infuriated men returned and fastening the dead savage by the neck to one end of a grape vine, they dragged him to the fort, and in order to gratify the morbid appetite for vengeance which rankled in their breasts, it is said that they would from day to day hitch a horse to the carcass and drag it about the yard of the fort. When it finally became too putrid to endure, they dragged it out to a place in front of Judge Garard's present residence, and covered it over with earth; and it is further related that the hogs rooted it out and utterly devoured it. Alas this transaction is but another sad commentary upon the virtue of poor civilized humanity when in a fit of exasperation over the wrongs and cruelties perpetrated by a savage and uncivilized foe.

There is a faint tradition in somebody's mind that this same Dick Hall was one of the party who pursued the fleeing savages at the time of the Corby massacre, and that he took a solemn oath not to return without a scalp to grace his belt. And the tradition, though of doubtful authenticity, further deposes that he kept his vow, having caused the "big Indian chief" to bite the dust. And this is the substance of all that I can learn in reference to Garards Fort history. I have felt a deep and earnest interest in that locality. It is the place of my childhood and the home of all my maternal relatives. Hence I have zealously endeavored to gather all the facts I could, hoping to the last to be able to give a tolerably correct outline of all the more important events transpiring there. But I have utterly failed. I know there is a history connected with the Garard family well worthy of preservation. I know the Morris family had an experience and a reputation which its descendants would be proud to perpetuate. And there are doubtless other families in that neighborhood whose record would be as adventurous.

Somewhat later in the history of the settlement Stacy Stephens came there. He was born in the State of New Jersey in 1779. During the years of 1794, 1795, and 1796, he and his four brothers, John, Apollo, Edward and James, migrated to this county. Stacy Stephens was a blacksmith, having learned his trade in Trenton, and started the first regular shop ever situated in the vicinity of Garards Fort. It stood on the forks of the road that leads to the place known as the Benson Fordyce farm, and near where William Gass now works. He shod the pack horses that transported the salt and other essentials from Winchester to supply the demands of the settlement. In 1799, he married Elizabeth Heatfield, also of New Jersey. In 1800, he bought the farm where his son, Azariah Stephens, now lives, a short distance above the village of Garards Fort, of which only one acre was then cleared. In 1813, he built the stone house, which I believe, forms a part of the improved and commodious dwelling now on the premises. He died in 1851, in the eighty-fifth year of his age.

John Stephens owned the farm now owned by the heirs of Nicholas Livengood. Edward owned the land where Jasper Morris now lives. James owned the farm where Eli Rose now lives. Some years later Apollo and John removed to the state of Ohio. The Stephens family have been an industrious and thrifty people, and their descendants are "legion."

More Help Ahead for Farmers . . . Engineers Try Electricity on Silos

Experimental electric elevator fills 36-foot silo successfully.

By IRA MILLER
Farm Electrification Bureau

Farm electrification's progress is tied directly to the "never say die" spirit of the nation's agricultural engineers. Take silo filling, for example. Silo filling had been considered a "big power" chore—too big for electric motors. Apparently, this is not the case, although it will be some time yet before the first successful experimental electric ensilage elevator "graduates from college" to the farm. Until that time comes, tractors and stationary gasoline engines can be expected to take care of silo filling operations. Also, they'll probably handle the ensilage cutting jobs—when they're done at the silo. This latter way of cutting ensilage is changing, however. An increasing amount of grass and corn silage now is being cut in the field with new mobile harvesters, rather than by stationary equipment on the farmstead. Ensilage, in many cases, now arrives at the silo ready for storage.

And, power is required only to elevate it into silos quickly, efficiently and economically. This is being done at Penn State College with a 36-foot vertical elevator operated by a 5 horsepower portable motor.

The college-designed elevator is made almost entirely of plywood and white pine boards. It has a 16-gauge sheet metal bottom on which the endless chain, flights and forage "rides." Tests record that it can elevate grass silage at a rate of 8 to 10 tons per hour—about the same speed as that obtained with a blower powered by a 2-hp size tractor. It elevates corn silage at a rate of 25 to 30 tons per hour. This is considerably better than that of the suction blower powered by a 35 horsepower gasoline engine.

The experimental elevator delivers ensilage into the center of the silo. If electricity can handle silo filling chores successfully, tractors can be used more productively elsewhere on the farm. It costs about 85 cents per hour less to fill a silo electrically than with a tractor-operated blower.

Fred Booth recently underwent an operation at the hospital at Phillips, W. Va. His daughter, Mrs. Fred Mitchell recently visited him.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lahew were Sunday visitors in Brownsville.

Mrs. Romaine Scott of this place, and Mrs. H. B. Wood of Wind Ridge, have returned after visiting the former's daughter, Mrs. James Coleman and family of Schenectady, N. Y. They accompanied Mrs. Scott's daughter, Elaine, to New York, where she sailed for Germany last week.

Lawrence Stockdale, who had been a patient in South Side Hospital, Pittsburgh, for some time, due to injuries received when struck by an automobile while crossing a street in Pittsburgh, has been removed to the home of his mother, Mrs. Ailene Stockdale and is making improvement. His wife and son are also with him. They reside at Apollo.

Atty. Blatchford Ordained As Minister

Many people, through good fortune, get a second chance in life, but few deliberately reject two extremely successful careers to choose a third.
Sunday Walter Larned Blatchford, 45, was ordained into the ministry at Calvary Episcopal Church by Bishop Austin Pardue.

He put behind him a distinguished career as a naval officer and a promising career as an attorney to give full time to the work of God.
"Put behind" is not the correct expression, because Blatchford has no regrets about his previous careers. He said:
"I've had a gold mine of experience. Nothing people do is lost if they find a way to use it.
My experiences will be helpful in understanding the problems of many people."

Statistical proof that Blatchford has been around can be seen in the fact that he has lived in 22 houses in 17 cities in 13 states in 21 years.

He was born in Winnetka, Ill., and attended Harvard and was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy.

When he felt compelled to study law, he resigned after 16 years as a naval officer and entered George Washington University Law School. After graduation from law school he moved to Houston, Texas, an up-and-coming city in which he saw tremendous opportunity.

He became so involved in church work that he finally decided to apply for acceptance as a ministerial candidate.

Ironically, on the same day he was accepted as a candidate by the Diocese of Pittsburgh, he received an appointment as assistant U. S. Attorney for the Southern District of Texas.

A culmination of "vital experiences" in his own life and a gradual intensification of his Christian faith made the choice easy.

He came to Pittsburgh to study
under Dr. Samuel Shoemaker.

Blatchford has been spending week ends at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Uniontown since October as a lay reader. His excellent speaking voice, the straight carriage of a naval officer and the logical mind of a lawyer have combined to promise him a successful career in his new work.

His wife, Gretchen, and children, David, 15, and Faith, 7, have accepted Blatchford's latest career change as a "family project."

Woodpeckers Tap Church Steeples

—London—
A strange war of attrition against the church spires of southeastern England by flocks of green woodpeckers has come to light here.

Caretakers of more than 30
churches in Essex, Hertfordshire and Kent reported their steeples have each been riddled with 500 to 1,000 holes an inch in diameter.
They appealed to the National Federation of Master Steeplejacks for help, but its investigator, Sidney Larkins, failed to see in action the birds which drilled 600 holes in the spire of the parish church at Great Hallingbury.

"Every time I pass that spire
I climb up and try to spot the woodpeckers in action," he told a reporter. "I've made the trip 24 times so far, in every hour of daylight, and have yet to see my first bird hammering on the shingles."

But bird watchers at other churches have definitely identified the vandals as Picus Viridis Pluvius, the scientific label for the green woodpecker.

Bird experts advanced a tentative explanation for the behavior of the woodpeckers.

Stravinsky to Lead Symphony

A double-barrelled treat is in store for district music lovers this Friday night and Sunday afternoon at Syria Mosque. Igor Stravinsky, world-renowned composer, will guest-conduct the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in two of his own compositions, "Scenes de Ballet" and "Petrouchka," and two string serenades by Mozart and Tchaikovsky.

Stravinsky has long been a leader in the development of new musical ideas to be identified with 20th century music. Born in Russia, his early compositions attracted the attention of Sergei Diaghilev, who was then organizing his Ballet Russe in Paris. Diaghilev commissioned Stravinsky to write a ballet on the subject of the Russian fairy tale, "The Firebird," which was produced in Paris in 1910. This was followed by his other two most famous ballets, "Petrouchka," which he will conduct this week end, and "Le Sacre du Printemps," recently recorded by the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and William Steinberg for Capitol records.

Since these early ballets, Stravinsky has given the world his fresh approach to music in almost every conceivable form, from intimate chamber sonatas to operas.

Shortly after his initial association with Diaghilev, Stravinsky left Russia to live in Switzerland and later France. He came to America in 1939 to assume the Elliott Norton Lectureship at Harvard University for one year, and has been a resident of California since 1940.

In 1952, his pioneering spirit was paid great tribute at the "Works of the 20th Century" Festival in Paris. He was on hand to receive the enthusiastic cheers of the Paris audiences as Pierre Monteux conducted the Boston Symphony in his "Le Sacre du Printemps," which Monteux had conducted in its premiere performance at the same Paris theater some 39 years before, precipitating a riot of disapproval.

Stravinsky will be returning to Pittsburgh after an absence of 15 years.

Norma Lee Griffith Weds David Umphrey In Bentley, Michigan, Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Norma Lee Griffith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Griffith of Bentley, Michigan, formerly of Pine Bank, Greene County, and David Umphrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Umphrey of Bentley, was solemnized New Year's Day, 1955, in the R. L. D. S. Church in Bentley. The groom's father, Elder Bentley, performed the ceremony in the presence of 150 guests.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white tulle and lace gown over satin. Her veil fell from a tiara of pearls, and she carried white carnations.

Miss Patricia Griffith, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Carolyn Umphrey, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Miss Griffith wore a blue net gown and Miss Umphrey's gown was shrimp pink. Both carried pink carnations.

Nancy Griffith, sister of the bride, and Carlotta Taylor, cousin, were flower girls. They wore floor length net gowns over taffeta and carried pink carnations.

William Brown was best man and Robert Wilson was usher.

A reception was held in Gibson Township Hall.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Umphrey are graduates of Sterling High School. Mrs. Umphrey has been employed by the Dow Chemical Company at Midland. Mr. Umphrey served two years in the Army and was in Korea several months. He is employed by the Buick Company at Flint.

They will reside at Flushing, Michigan.

The bride is a granddaughter of Mrs. Sarah Taylor of Jollytown, and Mrs. Rheta Griffith of Waynesburg.

Mrs. Hewitt has been ill several weeks. The bride wore a powder blue gabardine suit with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses. A small reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Erow graduated from Monongahela Township High School in the class of 1954, and is employed as a nurse's aide in the hospital. The groom attended Howard High School in Mt. Vernon, and entered the Army Air Force in October 1952. He is stationed in Tucson, Arizona. The bride will reside with her parents for the present.

Senators Cold To Pipe Shelters, Urge Highways

—Washington—

Senators have cold-shouldered the idea of building "open trenches" or concrete pipe H-bomb shelters along roads for civil defense and urged instead an immediate start on construction of evacuation highways.

Members of the Senate Armed Services subcommittee proposed also that the administration increase the funds it is asking this year so that protection from radioactive hydrogen bomb "fall-out" can be started.

Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson has disclosed that his 59 million dollar appropriations request does not cover fall-out problems. Senator Stuart Symington, Democrat of Missouri, said the request "for the protection of our entire civilian population" is only about one-tenth of one per cent of that of the military.

Peterson said more money might be sought in a supplementary appropriations bill. Senator Leverett Saltonstall, Republican of Massachusetts, said he would prefer a budget bureau review of the entire evacuation program.

The idea of building ditches or concrete pipe shelters was advanced by Peterson, but Saltonstall protested: "I don't see how ditches or a concrete pipe would be feasible. I can't see myself getting into a concrete pipe without getting claustrophobia. . . . I would be going one way in the pipe and somebody would be coming in the other direction."

Senator Henry M. Jackson, Democrat of Washington, said of the trench-pipe idea: "That is tommyrot."

Jackson declared that evacuation highways should be a major part of the road construction bill now before the Senate Public Works Committee.

Peterson said he turned the problem of evacuation highways over the Public Works Bureau September 18, but has heard nothing in reply. Committeemen said he should insist on immediate recommendations from the bureau. They also asked Peterson to wire local civil defense officials for a report on what they are doing and what they need.

Peterson, who is to return for further critical questioning, admitted that in event of an H-bomb attack, "the home front would be badly damaged and we'd find it extremely difficult to get on our feet and start moving again."

Large Gas Well Hit Near Erie

—Erie, Pa.—

Hopes are rising that a large natural gas field may be developed near here after the highest-producing well reported in years was brought in.

A. W. Underwood of Oil City, a shareholder in the well, reported the strike and said its flow was measured at 3,462,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

Underwood said the well was brought in at 2,399 feet in the Oriskany sand, about six miles south of here.

Winston Churchill chose the Army at the outset of his career.

Andy Griffith on U. S. Steel Hour

ANDY GRIFFITH

Andy Griffith, young song satirist and recording personality, gets the TV acting "break" of his career when he stars on the United States Steel Hour in an adaptation of the hilarious best-selling novel, "No Time for Sergeants," on Tuesday, March 15, at 9:30 p. m. on KDKA-TV.

A former North Carolina school teacher, Griffith will play hill-billy draftee Will Stockdale who successfully "snafus" his way through Army basic training.

'Brer Rabbit' Is Anesthetic

—Meridan, Miss.—

When it comes to pulling "baby teeth" Mrs. Margie Aust, a teacher for 25 years, believes there's no better anesthetic than the story of "Brer Rabbit." And Mrs. Aust should know. She recently pulled her 1600th tooth and, as usual, had the tooth dangling on a string while the tiny patient sat enraptured with the tale of the resourceful rabbit. In fact, says Mrs. Aust, the little student was disappointed that the tooth was out before the story ended.

Fifty-Year History of Greene County Sports

By GEORGE N. THOMAS

COUNTY GOLF

The origin of golf is lost in antiquity, but historians are inclined to credit the Scotch with traits of the game as it is played today.

They began golfing about the middle of the fifteenth century, and three hundred years later the game was transplanted in the United States.

A few Greene Countians had golfed in various places and many yearned for "home grounds" right after World War I when the world was somewhat settled and popularity of the game spread.

This group pursued serious plans throughout 1921 and in late October, they had the names of 200 interested persons, so they called an organization meeting in the Courthouse one Tuesday evening.

W. J. Kyle, J. A. Garrison, H. L. Abell, J. I. Hook, T. J. Huffman, W. C. Montgomery, W. E. Baily, C. W. Waychoff all of Waynesburg, and W. H. Gates of Nemaquin, were elected directors of "The Greene County Country Club." W. H. Kyle was to serve as first president and Wayne A. Scott as secretary and treasurer.

They purchased 80 acres of ground from Charles Harry in Morgan Township on which they planned a nine-hole golf course under the direction of Mr. McGlynn of Pittsburgh.

And they expressed hope that by spring they hoped to remodel the Harry residence on this plot into a fine club house.

While they were dead serious about this new sporting adventure, there were those—silent and outspoken—who were not.

One sports fan, thoroughly engulfed in love for football and basketball, described golf as "that procedure whereby one propels an insignificant pellet over an immeasurable distance, aiming to place it in an obscure hole with entirely inadequate weapons."

And The Shield playfully jibed the game thusly: "Golf is a form of work made expensive enough for a rich man to enjoy. It is physical and mental exertion made attractive by the fact that you dress for it in a $200,000 clubhouse."

"Golf is what letter-carrying, ditch-digging and carpet-beating would be if those three tasks had to be performed on the same hot afternoon in short pants and colored socks by gouty-looking gentlemen who require a different kind of implement for every mood."

"Golf is the simplest looking game in the world when you decide to take it up and the toughest looking after you have been at it ten or twelve years. It is probably the only game a man can play as long as a quarter of a century and then discover it was too deep for him in the first place."

"The game is played on carefully selected grass with little white balls and as many clubs as a player can afford. These balls cost from 75 cents to $25 and it is possible to support a family of ten people (all adults) for five months on the money represented by the balls lost by some golfers in a single afternoon.

"A golf course has eighteen holes, seventeen of which are unnecessary and put in to make the game harder. A 'hole' is a tin cup in the center of a 'green.' A 'green' is a small parcel of grass costing about $1.98 a blade and usually located between a brook and a couple of apple trees or a lot of 'unfinished excavations.'

"The idea is to get the golf ball from a given point into each of the eighteen cups in the fewest strokes and the greatest number of words."

"The ball must not be thrown, pushed or carried. It must be propelled by about $200 worth of curious looking implements, especially designed to provoke the owner."

"Each implement has a specific purpose and ultimately some golfers get to know what the purpose is. They are the exceptions."

"After each hole has been completed, the golfer counts his strokes. Then he subtracts six and says, 'Made that in five.' That's one above par. Shall we play for fifty cents on the next hole, too?"

"After the final, or 18th hole, the golfer adds up his score and stops when he has reached 87. He then has a swim, a pint of ginger ale, sings 'Sweet Adeline' with six or eight other liars and calls it the end of a perfect day."

And there you are.

But sarcasms were not to stop Greene County from having its own golf course.

The course, as promised, was ready in 1922 and interest was keen.

By 1923 they were prepared for the first amateur tournament.

Thirty-two golf players qualified for the initial rounds in Class A and Class B of the country club's first annual championships, and the list read like a "Who's Who" in Greene County:

J. A. Garrison was paired against Wayne A. Scott; J. A. Coen and Allen Harrison; W. J. Kyle, Jr., and Ray Waychoff; W. J. Kyle and C. L. Mestrezat; C. B. Stryker and Challen W. Waychoff; George D. Jenkins and G. Conrad Huffman; Earl Baily and Quay Debolt and Dr. S. H. Iams and J. I. Hook in Class A pairings.

And in Class B were Bert Bauard and W. T. Moore; Benjamin Stagers and Raymond Orill; Charles Summersgill and H. B. Lewis; O. P. Bower and Jesse F. Ullom; H. J. Murdock and John S. Carter; J. W. Clark and J. R. Scott; Harry Babbitt and Richard Kyle and John H. McCracken and J. B. F. Rinehart, Jr.

William Kyle, Jr., defeated J. I. Hook in the finals of the "A" division and became the club's first champ after 19 exciting playoff holes.

Pan American To Set Records

—New York—

Pan American track and field records will fall in wholesale lots with U. S. athletes doing most of the record-busting in Mexico City, Dan Ferris has predicted.

"At least 16 of the performances, which automatically became records in the first games in Buenos Aires in 1951, figure to be bettered," said the long time executive secretary of the AAU.

Although most of the marks hung up four years ago were not too sensational many experts have said that Mexico City's high altitude of 7,400 feet would handicap record attempts.

"It's hard to tell how the altitude will affect people," said Ferris. "It may bother some and not affect others one bit. I don't think it will bother the field men."

Competition or not, Ferris predicted the possibility of 18 U. S. victories in the 21 men's track and field events, the premier activity of the games, March 12 to 26. The track and field events are scheduled March 13 to 19.

Record Number Attend Races

—New York—

Horse racing set an all-time attendance record, topping the 50 million mark for the first time, in 1954 according to a survey just completed by the publishers of the Morning Telegraph and Daily Racing Form.

With a total attendance of 50,408,584, at running and harness races, the horses outdrew professional baseball, the number two sport in the survey by nearly 15 million. The totals were 31,355,798 attendance for 3,280 days of thoroughbred racing in 25 states and 19,052,786 for harness racing.

Major league baseball drew 15,935,881 fans and the minor leagues 19,663,776. No figures were available for college and scholastic basketball, generally considered among the top spectator sports.

The survey showed college and pro football third among the spectator sports with a total attendance of 15,940,238 and bowling the number one participant sport with approximately 17,000,000 active bowlers.

Washington Senators Sign Mike Kraich

Mike Kraich, one of Waynesburg's most outstanding sandlot baseball players, has been signed by the Washington Senators, and will report on March 10 to Wintergarden, Florida, for spring training.

Last season, Kraich started his professional career with Corning, New York, as a member of the Boston Red Sox chain. After winning five and losing two, he was given his release in mid-season and finished the year playing with the Waynesburg Federals in the Pigeon Creek loop.

Joe "Hooker" Phillips, a former big-leaguer and a native of Waynesburg, contacted the Senators on behalf of Mike and once again the speedy righthander was back in pro ball.

At the conclusion of spring training, Kraich expects to be assigned to either Erie or Charleston, S. C., farm clubs of the Senators.

KDKA-TV to Follow Duquesne 'Dukes'

Ray Scott, sports director of KDKA-TV, will follow the Duquesne Dukes, play-by-play, to the National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden next week and will televise all games in which the Hilltop squad plays.

The Dukes drew a bye in the opening round to be played Saturday, but will meet the winner of the Manhattan-Louisville game Monday night at 7:45.

If they win Monday's game they move into the semi-finals on Thursday and a victory there puts them into the big events on Saturday.

Trinity High Wins Section II Wrestling Tournament

Trinity High School's wrestling team, coached by Henry Rheimer, former Waynesburg College matman, scored a total of 39 points to easily win the WPIAL Section II Wrestling Tournament held here last Friday and Saturday.

In taking their second consecutive team title, the Hillers won five individual championships and two runnerup honors.

Trailing the winners were Canonsburg with 18 points; Uniontown, 15; Waynesburg, 13; Jefferson, 12; Washington, 11; Mapletown, 10; Burgettstown, 10; Chartiers, 10; Claysville, three; German Township, three; Charleroi, two, and Carmichaels, one.

Winning top spots for Trinity were Bill Bane, 103; Ronald Taggart, 112; Ralph Littleberry, 120; Donald Wilson, 127, and Bill Gallo, 145.

Canonsburg was the only other team that produced more than one winner as John Karp, 88, and Nick Dano, 185, emerged on top.

Other winners were Bob Price, Chartiers, 96; Bill Milligan, Washington, 133; John Lapping, Waynesburg, 138; Ben Cree, Mapletown, 154, and Charles Myden, Uniontown, 165.

The annual affair was one of the most successful ever staged in Waynesburg with all arrangements being handled by the local high school although the event was staged in the College-Community gym because of better facilities.

Excellent wrestling prevailed throughout the four sessions with the first two producing a total of 46 falls.

A number of seeded men fell by the wayside as usual among them John Wermecke of Waynesburg who dropped a referee's decision to Cudzilo in the opening round. Another seeded grappler who fell by the wayside due to a referee's decision was Hazlett of Washington who lost to Littleberry of Trinity on Saturday afternoon.

Featuring the final session Saturday night was the battle between John Lapping of Waynesburg and Veryl Long of Trinity in the 138-pound class. Both boys went all out for the full distance as the fans roared their approval.

At the end of the regulation period the score was tied and it took a referee's decision to declare Lapping the winner.

Only fall in the finals was scored by Bill Milligan, of Washington, who pinned Dick Miles of Trinity in 0:54 of the first period in the 133-pound bout.

Winners and runnersup of Saturday's finals will compete this Saturday in the WPIAL (Southwestern Regional) Tournament in Washington against winners and runnersup of the Section I tourney which was held at Shaler Township High School.

Following is a complete list of results for the tourney here:

Ben Franklin gives you some expert advice about Payroll Savings

"What though you have found no Treasure, Diligence is the Mother of Good Luck."

Ever wished you had $1,000, $5,000 or more? Today, it is actually easy to save such large sums—through the Payroll Savings Plan. Here's how: you just name a sum to your company's pay office. Each payday, that amount will be withdrawn from your pay, and invested for you in one of the world's finest investments, U. S. Series E Savings Bonds!

"Little Strokes fell great Oaks."

See how quickly your savings grow, because Savings Bonds earn good interest—3% when held to maturity. Sign for as little as $5.00 a week and in 9 years, 8 months, you'll have $2,850 cash.

"Have you somewhat to do To-morrow, do it To-day."

Start making your dreams come true right now. Sign up for Payroll Savings today. Or, if you're self-employed, invest in Savings Bonds regularly when you bank. If you want your interest as current income, ask your banker about 3% Series H Bonds which pay interest semiannually by Treasury check.

"Remember what Poor Richard says: Many a Little makes a Mickle."

Caves Found In Michigan

Geologists believe that gigantic caverns approaching the size of Kentucky's Mammoth Cave may be found in this area. Numerous sink holes as large as 150 feet in diameter and 100 feet deep point to the existence of caves, they say.

Scientists, descending into the pits by rope, have found an exotic world of centuries-old logs, thick growths of vegetation and ferns usually found only in much cooler regions.

Walter P. Nickell of the Cranbrook Institute of Science, is puzzled by the fact that rain water disappears at the bottoms of the pits. Scientists plan to dunk colored water into the holes and spot where it comes out by flying above the area. This may lead to the caverns which have so far eluded them.

Passports 'Matriarch' Quitting Job at 70; Spent 47 Years in Government Service

Mrs. Ruth B. Shipley has chosen April 30 as the day she will retire after 27 years as "matriarch" of passports in the State Department.

Her retirement, at age 70, will wind up 47 years of Government service. And she says that, after a quarter of a century of ruling on travel applications, one of the first things she plans to do in retirement is take a trip to Europe.

Mrs. Shipley, a grandmotherly widow began her Government career in 1903. She was then 18 years old and fresh out of business college.

She left the Government in 1909 for marriage and life in the Panama Canal Zone. She returned in 1914 and has remained since.

When news came out that she had set the date for her retirement, Mrs. Shipley expressed embarrassment. The chief cause of her concern was that she had not yet formally notified her close friend and boss, Secretary of State Dulles, who is attending a conference at Bangkok, Thailand.

Two years ago, Representative Bow, Republican of Ohio, a member of a House appropriations subcommittee, told her at a hearing: "I would like to say for the record that of all the agencies and departments I deal with, or my office, we feel this is the most efficient, cooperative, and courteous." Other congressmen agreed.

Born Ruth Bielaski less than 20 miles from Washington in Montgomery County, Maryland, her father was a Methodist minister. Her husband, Frederick William Van Dorn Shipley, died in 1919. They had one son, Frederick.

Medical Society Gets Mellon Grant Of $80,000

An $80,000 grant from the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust is the first grant received by the "educational and scientific trust" of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania.

It is earmarked to finance a three-year project in post-graduate professional education in the field of public health with special references to the participation of members of the medical profession in their local health programs.

The newly formed medical society unit on educational and scientific projects is the first of its kind in the history of organized medicine in the United States.

Speaking about the first project, that relating to participation of doctors in local health programs, Dr. Pascal F. Luchese of Philadelphia, chairman of the committee on preventive medicine and public health of the society, said:

"The development of constructive, informed relationship between the practicing physician and the public health program of his community is a pressing need."

Bishop Wicke Honored

Methodist Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke of Pittsburgh, is saluted in the March issue of The Church School magazine for his leadership in the field of Christian education.

A pen and ink portrait of Bishop Wicke appears on the cover of the magazine and page one is devoted to Bishop Wicke's achievements and devotion to the work of the church.

The Church School magazine is published monthly in Nashville, Tenn., by The Methodist Church for pastors, Sunday School officers and other church workers.

Resident bishop of the Pittsburgh episcopal area, Bishop Wicke was elected to the episcopacy in 1948, while serving as pastor of Mount Lebanon Methodist Church, Pittsburgh. As bishop, he has supervision of the Erie, West Virginia, and Pittsburgh Conferences. This area includes 2,454 churches with 460,073 members in West Virginia, western Pennsylvania, southwestern New York, and Garrett County, Maryland.

Bishop Wicke is a member of the editorial board of The Methodist Church and is chairman of the Curriculum Committee.

The concluding paragraph of the magazine reads as follows: "As an interpreter of the Christian gospel, Bishop Wicke brings to his hearers challenge, inspiration, and faith. To his fellow workers in the field of Christian education, he brings friendly understanding, encouragement, and guidance of a vigorous mind."

Aesop, author of the book of fables, was a slave.

WHAT'S YOUR STAMP?

Too often it's too late when you spot the discourteous driver on the highway. The damage has been done . . . or is about to be done . . . or the danger has passed—at least until you meet again.

Every year, more than three quarters of all traffic fatalities involve traffic violations. Lack of driver courtesy contributes heavily to those deaths.

Laws demand safe-driving—but the courtesy which helps assure it must come from you—the driver. Obedience to traffic regulations, common sense and considerate behavior stamp you as a safe, courteous driver.

As you drive . . . be courteous—it's contagious . . . and safe.

Drive to stay alive in '55!

This message in the interest of highway safety is one of a series prepared and disseminated by the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association and the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue.
