Greene County Fair Invites Crocheters to Enter Contest

How would you react to the news that you were first prize winner in a Nationwide Contest? When you caught your breath, you would probably gasp. "You're kidding—you can't mean me." But it will be you. And this opportunity, wearing a crocheted glove, is once again knocking at needworkers' doors and is advising all crocheters to "come to the Fair" with their entries for the 1955 Nationwide Crochet Contest. Over $3,000, in cash prizes, and free trips to New York City are the national awards offered in this exciting contest.

Anyone but anyone can be a winner in the 1955 Nationwide Crochet Contest. As in the past, this year's competition is open to all men, women and teen-age girls who are handy with the hook. Before you eagerly pick up your hook and cotton to start on your entry for the 1955 Nationwide Crochet Contest, be sure that you will be using mercerized crocheted cotton in a thread size of 100 or less, as the contest rules indicate. Mercerized crocheted cotton with a metallic strand is also eligible. Your entry must be completed, of course, since January 1, 1955. The judges at the Fair will award Nationwide Crochet Contest blue ribbons to the best piece in each of sixteen classifications and a gold loving cup to the entry chosen "Best of Fair." These preliminary awards render the entries for the final judging in New York City. No entry will be acceptable in the finals without this special blue ribbon.

You may enter articles in any of the following classifications: tablecloths, bedspreads, luncheon cloths, centerpieces (14 inches and over), buffet and vanity sets, chair sets, dollies (under 14 inches), scarves and wall panels, pot holders and hot plate mats, place mats, other household accessories, edgings and insertions, fashion accessories, ladies over 65, men only, teen-age girls.

The country's leading needworker authorities will make the final decision which will be based on workmanship, beauty of design and general appearance. From among the hundreds of winning entries, three championship pieces will be selected, the crocheters of which will be named Grand National Champion, Men's Champion and Teen-Age Girl Champion. The Grand National Champion is entitled to a $500 cash award, the other two, $100 each. All three will receive free trips to New York City where they will be escorted to glamorous night spots, theaters and restaurants, and will be guests on television and radio programs. Large engraved trophies will also be given to each as lasting mementos of their victories. Balance of the national prize money will be awarded to the first, second, third, fourth, and honorable mentions in each of the sixteen classifications.

For those crocheters who are adept at originating their own designs, Smart Crochet Magazine is offering $600 in special awards. These awards will be presented to the crocheters of the best pieces of original design in the 1955 Nationwide Crochet Contest. Take advantage of this golden opportunity to prove your crocheting prowess. You may discover that your good fortune is just around the corner. But be sure to start your entry now so that it will be ready in time for the opening of the Fair. For further information on entering your piece in the Greene County Free Fair, contact the Women's Department Superintendent of the Fair, Mrs. Irving Rumble.

Young Offender Bill in Senate

Bills slightly reducing the age limits of offenders coming directly under the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court have been introduced by Senators Joseph M. Barr and Frank Koprivier, Jr., of Allegheny County.

Under the bills, children under 16 would come directly under the authority of the Juvenile Court, those under 18 could be transferred from the Criminal Court to the Juvenile Court at the discretion of judges. The new regulation would also apply to the Municipal Court of Philadelphia.

Unsung Hero Accepts Plaque For Dr. Salk

Jimmy Sarkett, 15, of Daisytown, Pa., was probably the happiest boy in New York Saturday as he accepted a plaque for Dr. Jonas E. Salk. Later Jimmy and 19-year-old Joan Long of Pittsburgh, rode in the Loyalty Day parade sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The Veterans of Foreign Wars presented the plaque to Dr. Salk, University of Pittsburgh scientist who developed the polio vaccine which bears his name. Dr. Salk calls Jimmy the "unsung hero" in the anti-polio vaccine discovery. The Pennsylvania youth presented the plaque to the discoverer and supplied a virus sample that led to the classification of Type III polio virus strain. Salk named the strain "Sarkett" in the boy's honor but through a clerical error it now has become known as the "Salk" strain. Miss Long also assisted in Salk's experiments. She was named a "queen" of the parade.

Named 'Third Young Farmer In State' by Jaycees

John Pevarnik, 30-year-old World War II veteran, who has a dairy and poultry farm near Carmichaels, has placed third as the "Outstanding Young Farmer of 1954," in the contest sponsored by Pennsylvania Junior Chamber of Commerce. In 1954, Mr. Pevarnik and William Garrison of Waynesburg, were chosen "Men of the Year" by Waynesburg Jaycees. The state competition had 170 entries.

The award will be made in Reading, at the annual state convention, but Greene County's winner will be unable to attend. President George Sloneker of the local Jaycees will receive the award for him. Mr. Pevarnik has made an outstanding success of farming although he is handicapped by the loss of his lower right arm which he suffered while fighting in the Army's 27th Division on Saipan.

Norfolk All For Navy Pay Hike

Norfolk business houses have more than a passing interest in proposed revised pay scales for the Navy. They figure if the increases go through more than $8,000,000 in pay and allowances may come into this area annually. The Navy estimates its shore-based activities here had a payroll of just under $65,000,000 in 1954. Fleet activities based here were paid about $92,000,000 more and family allowances ran to $36,000,000.

Rose Bushes Slated to Replace Guard Rails on State Highways

Multiflora Japonica — doesn't mean much to the average automobile driver now, but in a few years Pennsylvania drivers may learn a lot about the rose bush with the interesting name.

Secretary of Highways Joseph J. Lawler has authorized the planting of a row of these rose bushes along Route 11, about three miles north of Bloomsburg, which in three years or less will develop a strong interlaced barrier five or six feet high guaranteed to stop a car which leaves the highway traveling at normal speeds.

The spot where the rose bushes will be planted is presently protected by a standard guard rail. Off the highway are three quarry holes usually filled with water eight to 80 feet deep. In addition to being an unsafe stretch of road, the quarries do not contribute anything to roadside scenery. In deciding to try the rose bush barrier, Secretary Lawler is adopting a successful experiment carried on by Motor Vehicle Research, Inc., at South Lee, N. H. In this experiment, a light sedan traveling at 26 miles per hour rammed into a clump of bushes. The car was caught and held without a scratch. Later another car running at 49 miles per hour was used. It was like running into a snow

Moose Lodge To Sponsor Eye Clinic

Richard Neubauer, governor of local Moose Lodge 461, announces that the organization will sponsor an eye clinic for school children of Greene County. Ivan Custer, chairman of the Clinic Committee for the local lodge, said that members of the Moose Auxiliary, under the direction of Dr. W. F. Heft, will be trained as technicians prior to the inauguration of the eye examinations.

Under the proposed setup school children will be examined by the clinic, and recommendations of the findings will be solely in the interest of the public, no compulsion is involved. Tentative date of the opening of the clinic has not been set, due to technical instruments needed will have to be installed, according to Dr. Heft.

Father Garahan Honored by Church

Father James R. Garahan, pastor of St. Ann's Catholic Church, who has been ill since November, returned to his duties Sunday, and his convalescence was celebrated by parishioners at a dinner in the parish hall Sunday afternoon.

Father Garahan was presented with a check, as was also Father Raphael Landser of Loretto, who had served during Father Garahan's illness.

Father Garahan described the parish as the finest in the diocese. The Holy Name Society and the Altar Society of St. Ann's were in charge of the celebration. Attorney Thomas R. Balaban is president of the Holy Name Society, and Mrs. Margaret Rinehart is president of the Altar Society.

Harry L. Penn was master of ceremonies. Larry Puglia and Harry Snyder were committeemen.

Natural Gas Sales In March Up 7%

Natural gas sales by Western Pennsylvania gas utilities in March totaled 29,851,441,000 cubic feet, the Pennsylvania Natural Gas Men's Association has announced. The 1955 figure was seven per cent above sales of 27,888,381,000 cubic feet reported for March 1954. All categories of sales shared in the increased consumption over a year ago. Biggest gain was in residential sales, but sales to both commercial and industrial consumers also were substantially higher as well. Residential sales increased from 15,721,460,000 in 1954 to 16,366,315,000 in March of 1955, commercial sales from 3,464,408,000 to 3,680,771,000, and industrial sales from 8,702,513,000 to 9,804,355,000.

GOP Senators Back Ike Talks With Red China

Twelve Republican senators have expressed solid support for President Eisenhower's "efforts for negotiation of a cease-fire" with Red China.

They affirmed their stand in a joint statement shortly after Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland bluntly knocked down rumors that he plans to quit in protest against the administration's Far East policy.

The Californian told newsmen: "I have no present intention of resigning as Republican leader of the Senate."

The 12 senators who announced their backing of Eisenhower were: Clifford P. Case, New Jersey; Gordon Allott, Colorado; J. Glenn Beall, Maryland; Prescott Bush, Connecticut; Frank Carlson, Kansas; Norris Cotton, New Hampshire; James H. Duff, Pennsylvania; Irving Ives, New York; Thomas H. Muehl, California; Frederick G. Payne, Maine; Leverett Saltonstall, Massachusetts; and Alexander Smith, New Jersey.

Their statement said: "The President of the United States has a right and obligation to wage peace as well as to wage war. Waging peace is what he is trying to do."

The GOP Senators added: "As we support the Formosan resolution, we now support the President's efforts for negotiations of a cease-fire with Communist China. We know he will carry them forward with candor and without the sacrifice of this nation's most solemn obligations."

Pike Boards Meet in June

The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission has postponed its proposed meeting with members of the West Virginia Turnpike Commission until "sometime in June."

The meeting, scheduled for Wednesday, was to discuss a point of juncture on proposed extensions linking the toll roads of the two states somewhere along the Pennsylvania-West Virginia border.

A Senate-passed bill authorizing an extension from a point along the western section of the Pennsylvania Turnpike to the West Virginia border won House committee approval Tuesday. A commission spokesman said that officials of the two commissions feel that discussion of a connecting point should await passage of the Pennsylvania legislation.

Admiral Tower Dies at 70 Years

Admiral John H. Towers, 70, retired Pacific fleet commander and pioneer naval flier, died Saturday of cancer at the St. Albans Naval Hospital at Jamaica, L. I.

Duchess Claims Women of Spain Afraid To Attain Real Equality With Men

The Duchess of Valencia, whose courage has gotten her into more than her share of trouble, believes "if women weren't so cowardly, they would attain real equality with men."

She explained: "Women are too humble. They are frightened of pushing themselves forward. They fear they'll make an exhibition of themselves if they try to accomplish something in life." The blonde Duchess herself has never shown the faults she criticizes. In a country where women are supposed to stay home and be quiet, she became a national figure by her unconventional behavior, her quarrels with Generalissimo Francisco Franco, and her passionate support of the Monarchist cause.

A petite but spirited woman who holds one of Spain's most distinguished titles, the Duchess said in an interview that the

40 et 8 to Back Training Program For Nurses

Greene County Voiture No. 1020, 40 et 8, at a meeting last week, instituted plans to back a nurses' training program in cooperation with the south-west district, T. R. Fredley, local correspondent, announces.

Nurses' Training Program originally was started by Voiture 510 of Madison County, Indiana, in 1937, and was projected throughout the many Voitures until World War II, when the government took over nurses' training by organizing the Nurses' Cadet Corps.

Due to the critical shortage of nurses today and the termination of the Nurses' Cadet Corps, the 40 et 8 is again taking up the program.

Promenade Nationale placed the program under the direction of the National Directeur of Child Welfare.

Since then practically every Grande Voiture in the United States has taken an active part in this program, which has sent approximately 2,500 young women into training.

Martin Urges U. S. Toll Road

A transcontinental toll road connecting the East and West coasts has been proposed by Senator Martin, Republican of Pennsylvania.

He has introduced a bill to permit negotiation of an interstate compact providing for the highway. Participating would be Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California, and any other states interested.

Martin's bill provides that the highway connect with the Pennsylvania Turnpike east of Pittsburgh, and extend to San Francisco, along the general courses of present U. S. 40.

Any compact negotiated would have to be ratified by legislatures of all participating states and by Congress.

Ike Honored As Churchman

President Eisenhower was honored Saturday as the "lay churchman of the year" named by the Washington Pilgrimage.

Howard L. Pyle, former governor of Arizona, and now administrative assistant to the President, accepted the award at a dinner on behalf of Eisenhower, who expressed regret he could not attend. He sent a letter saying he would "highly prize" the honor.

The President was honored "in recognition of his outstanding service to the nation in his leadership for peace, spiritual devotion and inspiring example of steadfast attention to religious values as President of the United States."

8.8 Per Cent Pay Increase For Postal Workers Set

—Washington— Half a million postmen and other Post Office workers would get an 8.8 per cent pay increase under a compromise reached by a Senate-House conference committee.

The figure compares with a 10 per cent raise voted by the Senate, the 8.3 per cent voted by the House, and the top of 7.6 per cent supported by President Eisenhower.

Senator Olin Johnston, Democrat of South Carolina, chairman of the conference committee, said the Senate members accepted "less than the amount they considered justified . . . because of their desire to give these employees an increase without further delay."

Action on a pay raise for one million other Government workers is awaiting a settlement of the postal pay dispute. The Senate has approved a 10 per cent raise for these people, but it has not gotten out of committee in the House. The House may act Friday on the postal pay compromise; the Senate next week.

Princess Beats Queen Elizabeth In Private Race

—London— Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret had a private "ding-dong battle" of a horse race last week at the Royal Ascot Race Track and the vivacious princess won by three lengths.

The royal race was an impromptu affair over 660 yards, according to the London Sunday Dispatch, which said the race was "so interesting" that 40 workers painting the royal stand stopped to watch.

One of the workers said the race was "one of the finest examples of riding I've ever seen." The royal sisters were dressed in riding clothes and mounted on jet black horses.

A worker described the race as follows: "Just as they got to the three-furlong mark, I saw Margaret turn towards the Queen."

"The next second they were off at full gallop. . . They galloped neck and neck down the stretch. "It was a ding-dong battle but 30 yards from the finish line, Margaret's horse went in front and won by three lengths. "They were laughing as they pulled up after the race."

Miss Blatt took over the office from William S. Livengood who has held the post sixteen years. Democrats gave a $100 per plate dinner Tuesday night in Zumbo Mosque.

Jobless Pay Hike Now in Effect

—Harrisburg— Maximum jobless benefit rates went up from $30 a week to $35 Monday.

But John R. Torquato, secretary of labor and industry, said only a few idled workers have held off filing claims to take advantage of the higher rate. He added: "It's probably a case where a worker just didn't want to take the chance of losing perhaps $30 or $60 in benefits by holding off a week or two on filing for the higher benefits."

Persons thrown out of work who filed for benefits on Monday are entitled to up to $35 a week for 30 weeks. The old limit was $30 a week for 26 weeks.

Harriman Vetoes Dewey as Pike Name

—Albany, N. Y.— Governor Averell Harriman has vetoed a bill to name the State Thruway after Thomas E. Dewey. The Democratic governor said he sympathized with the legislature's desire to honor his Republican predecessor, but he added, "it seems to me that this is not an appropriate way to do it."

May 8 Proclaimed As Mothers Day

—Harrisburg— Governor George M. Leader has proclaimed Sunday, May 8, as Mothers Day in Pennsylvania. Nothing that the first official Mothers Day was celebrated in Philadelphia in 1908, the Governor called on all Pennsylvanians to take part in fitting observances of the day this year.

U. S. Planning Formosa Air, Marine Base

—Washington— The United States is considering establishing an American base on Formosa under its treaty guarantee to defend the Chinese Nationalist island against any Communist attack.

The base plan is part of a series of arrangements being developed by the State Department, Defense Department, and White House which would be factors in negotiating a cease-fire and possibly an eventual settlement of the whole Formosa problem. Further decisions on the actual steps to be taken are due to be made following the return this week end of Assistant Secretary of State Walter Robertson and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They have conferred at Taipei in the last few days with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and other Chinese Nationalist officials.

Establishing an American base of jet fighter planes and Marine units, as it is presently contemplated, would have importance in several respects, officials said. First, it would be a symbol of American determination to prevent the island's falling to the Communists. This, it is believed, would have the effect of offsetting Chinese Communist propaganda to the effect that the United States is a "paper tiger" afraid to fight in a showdown.

The Pioneer History of Greene County, Penna.

By L. K. EVANS

Some time after the thrilling episode related at the close of my last sketch, Lewis Wetzel resolved to visit the fardown South. Accordingly he engaged on a flat-boat fitting out for New Orleans. He was not again heard from by his friends for many months. And when news did come, it reported him in close confinement from some unexplained cause. It was only known that he was imprisoned and treated as a felon. It came out afterward that he was first charged with passing counterfeit money; but this being disproved, it was alleged that he had been guilty of gross indiscretions with the wife of a certain Spaniard.

Of the nature of these charges but little is known; but by some governmental interference he was released and sent home by way of Philadelphia. He remained at his childhood's home on Wheeling Creek, but it is said that his personal appearance had much changed. He then spent a few days at Wheeling, and departed again for the South, vowing vengeance against the author of his late imprisonment. Mrs. Cookis of Wheeling, a relative, rallied him while at her home on the subject of matrimony, and asked if he ever intended to marry. He replied, "No, there is no woman in this world for me, but I expect there is one in Heaven."

In the lapse of time he again returned to Wheeling, he was reticent as to his affair with the hated Spaniard, and it is not known whether he wreaked his coveted vengeance or not. Fond as ever of his old vocation of rambling and hunting through the woods, he continued to gratify that propensity. Returning from an extended hunt in the forests north of the Ohio, fatigued and careless of his movements, he was startled by suddenly espying an Indian in the very act of raising his gun to shoot him. He tread as quick as thought, as did also the Indian. There they stood for an hour or more, neither daring to venture out lest he should receive his death warrant from his antagonist. Not relishing the idea of remaining there all day, Wetzel set his genius to work to invent some decoy to lure his enemy out. Presently a happy thought came to the dauntless hunter. He adjusted his coon skin cap to the end of his ramrod, and then dubiously and cautiously protruded it round the tree. The trick succeeded, for an instant later the cap fell pierced with the unerring bullet of the savage. Leaping from his cover, Wetzel confronted his astonished antagonist, and before the tomahawk could be brought into requisition the luckless brave leaped into the air and fell on his face in the agonies of death. The contents of Wetzel's gun had done its fatal work.

The most practical woodsman of his day, his services were much sought after by pioneers and persons desiring to locate land. John Madison dealt largely in Western lands. He secured the services of Wetzel in locating his lands on the Kanawha. One day they came upon a deserted Indian camp and each appropriated to himself a blanket which they found concealed there. Afterwards whilst crossing the Little Kanawha they were fired upon by Indians and Madison was killed.

General Clark, who accompanied Lewis Rockey in his celebrated exploring tour across the Rocky Mountains, had heard much of the fame of Lewis Wetzel in Kentucky, and resolved to secure his services in the perilous expedition. A special message was sent to him, and he reluctantly consented to go. He accompanied the party for the first three months when he declined to go any farther, and returned home. Soon thereafter he departed again on a flat-boat down the river. He visited a relative named Phillip Sycks about twenty miles inland from Natchez, and made his home there till the year 1808, when he died. The late venerable David McIntyre of Belmont County, Ohio, one of the most reliable and respectable men in the state, said that he met Lewis Wetzel at Natchez in April 1808, and remained with him three days; and that Wetzel told him he would visit his friends during the then approaching summer. But that was a project he failed to effect. Death, the mighty conqueror, had done the work that the combined efforts of the Six Nations could not accomplish.

Thus, I have attempted, in a very concise manner, to delineate whatever of recorded history and of unwritten tradition which had the semblance of authenticity, that I could gather concerning the life of this wonderful adventurer. To one who has carefully perused these sketches, further comment as to his character is unnecessary. Each can draw his own opinion as to his usefulness as a citizen. He did a kind service which was indispensable to a frontier life. But Mr. McKnight wisely remarked: "Happily, all the old frontiersmen were not such dare-devils as were the Wetzels. If they had been the country could never have been settled. They and their kith were out guards. The men who built the forts and houses and cultivated the soil were the true settlers."

And yet, after all I have written, and with a credence closely akin to full belief, as a faithful chronicle of what gives evidence of authentic tradition, I could not terminate this sketch without relating what, in the light of the foregoing, seems to be the most wonderful of all: Michael Crow, against whose reputation for honesty the breath of suspicion was never taken, and who was contemporaneous with Wetzel, who was his neighbor and must have been a somewhat intimate companion—this same Michael Crow up to his latest breath is known to stoutly deny all these fabulous stories concerning the Wetzels, and to repel with spirit any insinuations of the desperado, dare-devil character attributed to them. I cannot so reconcile these apparent contradictions upon any other principle than that Michael Crow had such high regard for his comrade and friend, that he refused utterly to believe any aspersion upon his character. With him confidence amounted to knowledge, and he, therefore knew that Lewis Wetzel was not guilty of such desperate deeds.

In my next I shall note some incidents in the experience of Lewis Wetzel's brothers.—L. K. EVANS.

Ryerson Station

Ryerson Station is a post of some historic notoriety. It is located near the western border of the county and at the junction of North Wheeling Creek with its south branch. The location is picturesquely attractive, and is the natural center of much exceedingly fertile bottom land. So striking is its natural beauty and so susceptible of being improved and beautified by art, that its original owner, Thomas Ryerson, who was regarded as a shrewd and unscrupulous speculator, at an early day conceived the idea of drafting on paper a representation of what it might be made, and palmed it off on an unsuspecting old sea captain by name of Connell, father of the late Senator George Connell of Philadelphia, as an accomplished fact, as a good, round fat speculation. We can well judge of Mr. Connell's chagrin upon arriving at his supposed paradise, when he beheld instead but a few rude huts at the confluence of two wild streams, amid dense tangled thickets and surrounded by rugged hills covered by an unbroken forest.

County Oil Industry Chairman Declares Gasoline is Family's Best Bargain

Competition, research, and the price-conscious buying habits of the American public are the basic reasons why "gasoline continues to be the average family's best shopping bargain," according to E. Bryan Jacobs, chairman of the Greene County Oil Industry Information Committee.

Speaking as a representative of the oil industry nation-wide as well as an independent Greene County businessman, Mr. Jacobs said these facts were substantiated by the U. S. Consumer Price Index.

"Clothing prices, for example, have gone up 63.0 per cent since 1925," he said. "House furnishings have increased 65.8 per cent and food costs have risen 71.1 per cent."

Boy's Memory Traps 'Explorer'

—Greenwich, Conn.—

A self-styled explorer and safari hunter was arrested recently on charges of impersonation—all because of a high school student's memory of an Indian face.

Walker Sherman was taken into custody and labeled a "phony" by the FBI and Connecticut state police after 17-year-old Salvatore Perruccio of East Hampton (Conn.) High School identified slides used in Sherman's lectures as coming from an old copy of the National Geographic magazine.

Sherman, who admitted that his real name is George Kelley, has been getting up to $200 for hair-raising lectures about the jungles of Africa and the Amazon. He was charged with impersonation and obtaining money under false pretense.

Perruccio said he was engaged in Sherman's lecture at his high school until Sherman started showing slides, saying that they were pictures he had taken in the jungle. The youth thought many of the scenes were familiar.

Then, Sherman put on a slide of "my favorite Indian aide." He explained that the Indian was a North American but took him through the South American jungle and saved his life on many occasions.

The youth found the magazine and took it to his teacher. The school superintendent notified the FBI and agents said an investigation showed that the slide-lectures were a hoax.

Old-Age Insurance Retirement Help

"Old-age insurance under social security is playing an ever-increasing role in lessening the fear of economic insecurity in old age," Ivar E. Strand, acting manager of the Washington, Pa., social security office, said this week.

To illustrate his point, Mr. Strand cited the case of an elderly woman who came to a social security office recently to make out a claim for retirement benefits. She was a domestic employee in her late sixties.

"For years," she said, "I feared the coming of the time when I'd have to stop working. Then when household workers were given social security I began to feel easier in my mind." As Mr. Strand points out, regular employees in private households were not brought under the old-age and survivors provisions of the social security law until January 1951.

The claimant explained to the social security office claims representative that she did not want to stop working, but she felt that, as a daughter, she was now needed at home. He looked at her in amazement—amazement which did not lessen when she said: "You see, my mother is getting a bit feeble, and can't do much around the house anymore." The age of the mother was 101!

"Monthly old-age benefit payments to the daughter, plus her modest income from savings will make it possible for this mother and daughter to face the future without fear," Mr. Strand declared.

Washington Report Up for Auction Sale

—New York—

One of the rare documents of early America, George Washington's report of his youthful mission into the wilds of the country's interior, is to be sold at auction here.

Washington, who later was to become the nation's first President, was only 21 when assigned by the British Colonial Governor of Virginia, to survey French outposts in the Ohio Valley—land claimed by the British.

The report of Washington's adventures and findings was published in Williamsburg, Va., in 1754. Parke-Bernet Galleries said a first edition, one of only eight known to exist, is being offered for sale May 10, by a London dealer.

CAN You PASS INSPECTION ?

Twice a year your car gets a thorough safety check-up . . . required by Pennsylvania law.

But how about you?

Could you pass a safe-driver's inspection? You ask the questions . . . you answer them . . . you're the judge.

Do you always obey signs and signals? Are you patient and courteous in traffic, respecting the rights of others? Do you adjust your speed to conditions of the moment?

Or do you take chances when the coast seems clear? . . . forget the rules of the road when you're in a hurry? . . . change into an inconsiderate human being when you're behind the wheel of your car?

Ask yourself these things when you have your car inspected this time. See if you'd get the stamp of approval. Mandatory inspection last year helped keep mechanical failures causing traffic accidents down to 2.4% of all vehicles involved. Human failure was largely responsible for the other 97.6%.

Mayflower to Sail

A direct descendant of one of the passengers on the Mayflower, which took the Pilgrim Fathers from England to America in 1620, may cross the Atlantic in a replica of the 180-ton craft in the summer of 1956.

He is John Winslow, naval cadet and son of a retired Royal Navy officer.

The senior Winslow has written to Project Mayflower, Ltd., a nonprofit organization in Britain which is having the replica built, asking if his son can sail with the new Mayflower.

A deputation from Britain went to the United States recently as guests of the people of Plymouth, Mass., who are rebuilding the Pilgrims' first settlement at Plymouth Rock.

The Mayflower will arrive in the United States in September 1956. The original sailing date has been brought forward three months because, it is hoped, the weather will be more favorable.

The new Mayflower will stick strictly to the original vessel's route and will have a crew of 21 and about 50 passengers.

What's the best place to save for Cowboys, Indians and Space Cadets?

Of all the reasons for saving money—and there are hundreds—certainly none is bigger or more important than building up a nest-egg to take care of your children's future.

And where's the best place to build up your nest-egg? Right now, 14 million Americans think the best place is an insured Savings and Loan Association! Here's why!

ONE—You get excellent returns. That's because insured Savings and Loan Associations invest most of their funds in sound, steady-paying home mortgages.

TWO—Your savings are safe—protected by good management and substantial reserves. They are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation—an agency of the U. S. Government.

THREE—These Associations are local organizations. They offer friendly, helpful and convenient service.

And here's another point: When you're thinking of buying a home, remember that insured Savings and Loan Associations make liberal loans. They see to it that you get the money quickly—and at moderate rates.

Why not come in and open savings accounts for yourself and for your children today. And if you need a home mortgage loan, let's talk about that, too!

By W. ROBERT THOMPSON

"The Judgeship Is Non-Political"

That the office of Judge of the Courts of Greene County is definitely a non-partisan, non-political position. There should be no gain or favor expected by any political party by reason of the fact that a Judge is a member of that party. If there is such gain or favor expected, such idea would immediately disqualify the office holder.

When a Judge takes his office, if he is going to discharge his oath properly, he is bound to decide every issue and treat every litigant that comes before him with absolute impartiality and without political bias. Nor can it be said that the Judgeship may be considered as a reward for party faithfulness. In such a case, that candidate is bound to have a feeling of obligation towards those who have so rewarded him.

The best candidate for a Judge is the one who is furthest removed from the field of politics and political organizations.

Whenever our Judges feel obligated for their election to certain political parties or political bosses, we have a situation that exists in several of our Sister Counties.

Cooking Economical On Electric Range

Can you think of a cleaner heat than the heat from your electric iron? You safely trust your finest linens to it.

The cooking units of an electric range make heat in the same quick, flameless, dirt-free way. Since there is no flame, the range produces no soot. And that means that kitchen walls and curtains stay fresh and clean—they retain that just-laundered look. Pots and pans stay bright, too. You never need to scour the bottoms of cooking utensils. That's why women are saying, "Electric cooking is 'white glove' clean."

Just as an electric iron gives you the right heat for each fabric, an electric range gives you the exact heat for each cooking job. There's no guesswork when you put a saucepan on an electric range unit. You get the same heat from the same setting every time. And there are many heats to take care of different cooking processes.

You'll like the accuracy of the electric range oven because it measures the heat as accurately as you measure the ingredients for a cake. With the controlled heat, exact temperatures and timing of the electric oven, you're sure to succeed—and you get the same results today, tomorrow, or next year.

No other type of cooking can bring you the advantages of electric cooking. Women like it because it's clean, automatic, cool, and truly modern. It's economical, too. You can enjoy the best, easiest cooking you ever imagined for only about $1.90 a month in this area.

New State Police Head To Improve Top Outfit

Harrisburg

Earl J. Henry, new state police commissioner, does not like to see an able-bodied policeman acting as an office receptionist.

He also wonders if it is not a waste of police manpower to detail men to patrol the Delaware River inspecting barges so that no untaxed gasoline can come into Pennsylvania.

Henry, a veteran of 31 years on the state police force and the old highway patrol, plans to do something about it.

The commissioner, who was promoted from major by Governor Leader March 25, said:

"My plan, provided it's approved by the governor, is to obtain an outstanding authority to conduct a survey of our organizational setup and tell me whether some of the work now being done by state police could not be done just as efficiently by civilian employees."

The survey will also look into the practice of using 54 state police to supervise official automobile inspection stations and over 100 men to examine drivers.

This is just one of the steps in Henry's overall plan to improve the state police force of 1,900 men.

The 58-year-old commissioner, the force's only graduate of the FBI's national police academy, plans to assign men to take the FBI course and courses at other national training schools for police.

In addition, six weeks' refresher courses will be established for every member of the force, Henry said.

But do not get the idea that Henry thinks the state police force has become a second-rate outfit that needs shaking up.

He sums up his opinion of the men in his command with this comment:

"It always has been considered one of the outstanding state police forces in the world. My purpose is to continue that reputation."

Why did he join the state police?

He explains: "I came out of the Army, I was restless and liked the military life so I joined the state police. After I got in, I liked it and decided to make it my life's work. There's always something new;

it never becomes monotonous." What sort of a man is he? The answer you get most often from his associates and newspapermen who know him is:

"He's a nice guy."

One doubting Thomas on the force commented:

"He's too nice a guy. They'll walk all over him."

An officer, who worked with the new commissioner for years, commented:

"Henry's like a chameleon. He can change his nature when he has to. He can be tough when the occasion demands it."

For the past 11 years Henry has been traffic officer at headquarters here. For eight years he was a squadron commander in Harrisburg and Philadelphia. He was acting superintendent of the state highway patrol when it was merged with the state police in 1937. Some people on Capitol Hill feel that a Democrat, Henry was bypassed in a succession of Republican administrations.

A dark-complected man, a shade under six feet, Henry weighs 226 pounds and still has the powerful build of an athlete. In three years at Millersville State Teachers College he won varsity letters in football, basketball and track, and captained the 1920 football team.

As a courteous man himself, he believes state police all along the line should extend the same courtesy to the public.

Henry, a native of Conestoga, Lancaster County, lives with his wife, the former Catherine Burgwald of Titusville, in an apartment here.

Fifty-Year History of Greene County Sports

By GEORGE N. THOMAS

RIFLE TEAMS

Until the spring of 1935, the Waynesburg Gun Club was out-shooting clubs not only from the immediate district, but from all corners of the tri-state area.

They humiliated teams such as Washington by more than a hundred points—and points meant bulls-eyes.

Greene Countians jibed their northern neighbors who called them "hillbillies."

"Maybe you could shoot better," retorted the men from Greene, "if you weren't so overly-civilized!"

What many had foreseen and worked for finally came to pass in September of that year.

The Greene County Sportsmen and Conservation League, which encompassed gun clubs, fishing societies and the like, was organized at a Waynesburg meeting.

They elected Frank L. Hoover, president; George Beglin, vice president; Glenn Brewer, secretary, and Leslie Sharpnack, treasurer.

One of their first moves was to take the shooting range from the basement of the Blair Hotel, where shooters had been allowed to meet on and off, depending on tenants' nerves.

For safety reasons, too, the league chose an abandoned schoolhouse on the Waynesburg-Carmichaels road in Franklin Township.

In that backwoods setting, accuracy of the rifleman improved.

So far as Harlan H. Chedister of Rogersville, was concerned, the league was a milestone reached after a long struggle to achieve better recognition of riflemen.

Chedister was a marksman from his youth when he could not satisfy his thirst for perfect scores.

He was one of the very few riflemen in the nation holding almost every type of shooting medal in existence.

More than 42 medals lay in his trophy case as proof of his prowess which began at the old fashioned turkey shoots.

In 1924, he went to Camp Perry, Ohio, not as a participant, but only as observer of the National Rifle Association national finals.

He saw enough so that the next year he advanced to the NRA finals and won the Wimbledon medal for ranking among the top 10 riflemen in the nation.

The same year he coached the Eastern all-star team which beat the Western team for the U. S. championship.

For this Chedister was presented the gold Marksman Trophy Medal—one of his most treasured awards.

Throughout his record-breaking competition, Harlan depended upon his "old faithful" .22 Winchester rifle, and he claimed he fired more than a million rounds through it.

Among his collection he had two silver Distinguished Rifle Medals for winning, on three separate occasions at the NRA matches, the top-ranking Expert Medal.

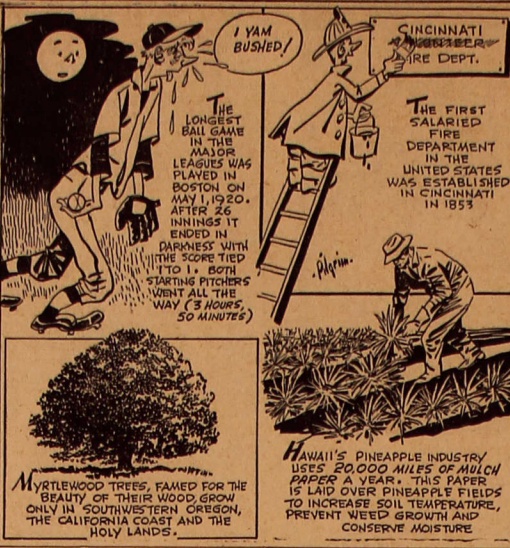

And if that wasn't enough for more than 25 years of active shooting, Chedister added the 30 calibre and small-bore medals and the NRA "skidoo" medals.

At the half century, Chedister could be found still aiming at the little "x" in the center of the target—and still hitting it.

It was because of gentlemen such as Harlan that brought about recognition and better understanding of rifle shooters in the county.

During the late 1930s, the Waynesburg Riflemen, a division of the sportsmen association, was undefeated in match competition. Among their victims was the West Virginia state championship team from Mannington.

This was the era before shooting leagues were set up. Matches were arranged by appointment when a community advertised it had a team and would like to be challenged.

Usually, a series of three matches was scheduled. If a team won the first two, it automatically became host for the third.

Until the sportsmen's headquarters was ready, the club met in the volunteer firehouse.

Then came a period when matches were held to a minimum while members contributed time and effort in building the new ranges and quarters.

However, individuals kept up their sharpshooting by entering "money shoots" which also netted them monetary satisfaction.

There was time, too, for sharp challenges such as bracing a playing card and cutting it in half with one shot—the card stood sideways, too.

Or, for testing the old 20-20 vision, they'd suspend a can on a piece of string and fire away.

Class C Track Meet Set for May 13

The fourth annual Washington-Greene Class C Conference track meet will be held Friday, May 13, at Washington and Jefferson College field in Washington.

Members of the conference acted on staging the event at a meeting last week which was attended by representatives of five schools. Ed Hepe of McDonald, was appointed general chairman of the meet by conference president Bill Hardisty of Claysville.

Entrants will be limited to three from each school in each event. An entrant is permitted to enter four events but no more than three events in either track or field.

Schools expected to participate are Avella, Claysville, East Washington, Hickory, McDonald, Midway, Mt. Morris, Peters Township, West Bethlehem, and West Greene high schools.

A championship trophy will be presented to the winning team. Individual medals will be awarded to the first three places in each event.

Olympic Head Hits American Fans

—New York— Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said last week, Americans had become "a race of grandstand and bleacher sitters" and were in grave danger of losing their athletic supremacy to Russia.

"We think it is sport to find a good vantage point in the stands and watch professional baseball, football, boxing and horse racing," he added in an article in this week's Saturday Evening Post.

"This is not sport. These events shouldn't even be carried on the sports pages. They should be described in the amusement sections of newspapers, along with the theater, circus and vaudeville."

Brundage, who spent three weeks looking over the Soviet sports program last summer as guest of the Russian Olympic Committee, said everywhere "even in remote little villages I saw evidence of tremendous athletic development."

Carmichaels scored firsts in three events, while West Greene grabbed one top spot.

The event was a warm-up for the Greene County track meet which will be held at Carmichael Friday. The same teams will be competing along with Jefferson, defending champion, and Maple-town.

Reds Plan Big Sports Program

—London— The Russians have announced they plan a giant program of rural sports meetings in an effort to comb their vast countryside for potential record breakers.

Moscow Radio said in a broadcast heard here that "hundreds of thousands" of country athletes would take part in the first USSR rural games, opening in May with competitions on collective farms, state farms and machine tractor stations.

These sporting events will be followed by regional meetings in all of the nation's 16 republics. The athletes who survive these eliminations will be sent to Odessa for the grand finals in October.

Such a thorough hunt for talent means that very few, if any, potential athletes among the Soviet Union's 200,000,000 population will escape the searching eyes of the nation's sports officials.

The program includes track and field events, athletics, swimming, cycling, volleyball and soccer.

The announcement said the winners will receive "special prizes," but it did not specify what these awards would be. Shortly after the war the Russians gave cash to athletes who set national and world records.

When they joined the Olympic Games Organization and other international sporting groups they announced that this practice had been abandoned.

PORK CHOPS WITH RICE-APRICOT DRESSING

Everybody likes pork chops—and here's a brand new way to fix them. Try serving pork chops with rice-apricot dressing. The fruit-vegetable-meat combination makes a delicious dinner dish that's extra high in nutritive value.

6 pork chops, 1-inch thick
1 tablespoon shortening
1/2 cup minced onions
1/4 cup uncooked rice
1 cup chopped dried apricots
1 tablespoon minced parsley
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 cups water

Brown pork chops in heated shortening. Drain off excess fat, reserving one tablespoonful. Cook onions in the one tablespoon of drippings until soft but not browned. Remove from heat. Combine with remaining ingredients and pour into 2-quart casserole. Arrange pork chops on top. Cover.

Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 45 minutes, or until rice and pork chops are tender. Yields six servings.

American Bible Society Notes Historic Milestone

—Washington—
Distribution of the forty millionth copy of the nation's best seller, the Bible, to the armed services has been commemorated in an impressive ceremony at the Pentagon, with presentation of a distinctively bound King James version of the New Testament to Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, by the American Bible Society.

Ever since 1818 the society has supplied the men and women of the armed forces, their allies, and civilians in liberated areas with copies of the Holy Scriptures.

Whether the request be for a braile Bible, a waterproof edition for life rafts, a pictorial style edition, or the popular pocket New Testament, the American Bible Society stands ready to fulfill the request the Rev. Richard H. Ellingson, secretary of the society, assured Admiral Radford.

"The churches, through the American Bible Society, are determined to provide such scriptures as may be needed by the armed forces," he said.

Admiral Radford, in accepting the commemorative edition, saw special significance in the occasion, stating: "Today the Christian world is menaced by a force which denies and seeks to destroy all that we hold important. I refer, of course, to militant communism with its basic philosophy of materialism. Communism is a direct denial of Christianity. More than that, it seeks domination of the free world."

He feels "that the cooperation of 55 church denominations, as expressed over a period of 138 years by 40 million volumes of the scripture, more than demonstrates the vital link between servicemen and church in our common fight against communism."

The society, established in 1816 to publish, translate, and distribute the Bible without note, comment, or profit, made its first presentation of Bibles to the military in 1818. This grant consisted of 50 Bibles to the officers and crew of the sloop-of-war, the USS Hornet.

In 1820, the Secretary of the Navy requested that the society supply Bible for all petty officers and seamen on ships of war and the request was granted with a gift of 3,500 Bibles.

During the Civil War, the society made its first major contributions of scriptures for military men. It supplied men of both the Federal and Confederate armies. Federal sentries winked at wagonloads of Bibles crossing the lines in violation of the "trading with the enemy" ban. Contemporary reports of that era indicate that both generals and privates permitted the Bible to move across the lines under a "truce of God."

During the Spanish-American War, approximately 75,000 volumes of scripture were supplied to our troops. General Jose Torral, defender of Santiago, is said to have expressed amazement when he discovered that almost every American soldier was found to be carrying a copy of the gospel. He is said to have been even more startled to learn that Spanish language editions of the holy book were being distributed to his own men by a circuitous route which involved the society's shipment of the volumes to Spain and, from there to Cuba.

Changes in Eligibility Requirements Now Effective in Unemployment Law

State Secretary of Labor and Industry John R. Torquato has announced that several eligibility requirements for unemployment compensation have been liberalized under amendments to the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law, according to Joseph L. Headlee, manager of the local office of the Bureau of Employment Security in Waynesburg.

Mr. Headlee also quoted Secretary Torquato to the effect that other amendments removed clauses in the law which on April 1, would have caused a reduction of $10 in the maximum weekly benefit amount. These clauses also would have caused the dropping of thousands of unemployed workers from the benefit lists who had already received 20 full weekly payments or $400 or more in their benefit year, whichever was the smaller amount. Timely removal of the so-called "peril-point" clauses also prevented all employer contribution rates from being set at a uniform 2.7 per cent on April 1.

Secretary Torquato said provisions increasing the maximum weekly amount of benefits and also increasing the duration of benefits would be effective for eligible unemployed workers who file new claims after May 1.

Workers who are unemployed during a plant vacation shutdown may be eligible for benefits if he does not receive vacation pay, even though he or his collective bargaining agents agreed to the vacation," Mr. Headlee quoted Torquato as saying. Such employees will not be eligible if they received direct or indirect payments from the employer as vacation allowances.

Secretary Torquato also pointed out a change now in effect providing that pregnant women employees who have been laid off may be eligible for compensation for weeks up to seven and one-half months of pregnancy if they are able and available for suitable work. Before amendment this eligibility, under the same circumstances, extended only until the end of the sixth month of pregnancy.

Workers who voluntarily leave work due to causes of a necessity and compelling nature are eligible for compensation under another amendment," the Secretary added. Secretary Torquato said that this amendment restored personal reasons as recognized causes for leaving work which would not cause ineligibility for benefits.

The amendments effective May 1, provide for an increase of the maximum weekly amount from the present $30 to $35. Also, all claimants who establish eligibility for benefits, will be eligible for a uniform period of 30 weeks in a benefit year. The law now in effect still covers claims for benefit years beginning before May 1, and provides for duration periods ranging from 13 to 26 weeks, with weekly amounts from a minimum of $10 to a maximum of $30, Torquato explained. "I want to make it clear," he continued, "that only persons filing new claims after

May 1 may be eligible for benefits under the new table in the law, which provides for weekly rates from $10 to $35—according to earnings—and a uniform duration for all eligible claimants of 30 weeks. Those already receiving benefits or who file claims before May 1, will be governed by the lower amount and duration for the full term of their eligibility."

Also effective for benefit years beginning May 1 and later is a provision that the full-time weekly wage may be used in determining the weekly benefit rate.
