Land on Which Waynesburg Now Stands

The following bit of history in regard to the original purchase of the land on which the town of Waynesburg now stands I got from my mother, between the time I was about forty years of age and her decease. I asked her where she was born. She said, "in Maryland, near Fredericktown, and came across the mountain when I was about three years of age." To the question, "where did your father first settle?" she replied, "when we came to where Waynesburg now is we found a man that had made a tomahawk improvement, which was a good right, for four hundred acres of land." But he had built no house on it. Mother said the Indians were here and the man said he would sell his right, and her father bought it for a rifle gun and a two year old heifer. Then she said, her father cut house logs and he and four others raised the house and they lived in it till the war began. The Indians then painted themselves red and would come in the house and act very ugly. Then, she said the settlers concluded to build a fort, and laid out a square acre of ground between Hook's mill and Hookstown, as it is now called. They built round it, with doors and windows on the inside, and left a narrow place in the stockade to go in and out at. She said they would go out in companies and take their guns with them and put them where they could see the furthest around, and leave a man to watch for the Indians, and at night go to the fort. They had a conch shell in the fort that was never to be blown till Indian news was brought to the fort. Then she said grandfather White would get on a big stump and blow it, and all that heard the sound would know what it meant and come to the fort.

She said they fortified eight years, and she was married in the fort. My mother said the house grandfather built was near the gully that runs down from Cotterrell's tan yard. Mother was eight years of age when the fort was built, and died in 1855, aged 94 years, making one hundred and fifteen years since the first house was built in Waynesburg by my grandfather, Thomas Slater.

This from David White, residing at Oak Forest, Greene County, Pennsylvania, in the 88th year of his age.

Rolls of the Companies of Captains Crawford and Seals

We have been handed a couple of old papers found among the documents of Benjamin Campbell, deceased, which are vested with much local interest. They are the original drafts of the rolls of the Companies of Captains William Crawford and James Seals, organized for the defense of the south side of Washington County, now Greene County, in the years of 1793 and 1794.

Captain William Crawford was a resident of Cumberland Township near Carmichaels, and was a very prominent man in all the public affairs pertaining to the early settlement of Greene County. He is known to have conducted several local campaigns against the savages and Tories. The roll of this Company is well preserved, is well written and is as follows:

Name	Date of Enlistment
Captain William Crawford	April 3, 1793
Lieutenant Eleazer Williamson	May 25, 1793
Sergeant John Brown	May 7, 1793
Sergeant Isaac Israel	May 7, 1793
Sergeant David C. Evans	May 7, 1793
Sergeant James Morris	May 7, 1793

Privates enlisted May 7, 1793: Jacob Johnson, Henry Jackson, Thomas Morris, Simon Archer, George Archer, Andrew Steen, James Dalley, John McCann, William Herron, Enoch Enochs, Henry Enochs, Jr., Elisha Enochs, Jesse Davis, Bernard Grandon, Frederick Crow, Thomas Courtwright, John Holden, Shem Woollam, Henry Conkle, James Archer; May 9: Thomas McGrow, James White; May 12: William Hunter; May 13: David Trammel, Joshua Bailey, Oliver Pollock, William Legg, Alex VanPelt; May 15: Jesse Been, Hugh Williams, Jonathan Williams; May 16: Lewis Dunham; May 18: Archibald Guthrie, William Elliott, William Guthrie, John Phillips, John Guthrie, Elijah Steen, Leonard Metz, Solomon Hobbs, Solomon Chaffin; May 19: Moses Lorcey; May 20: Elijah Wiley; June 3: Ellis Been, Ellis Been, Jr., Mordeca Been, Edward Grandon, Abner Huntington, Silas Huntington. In all, 56 names.

At the end of the roll call is this memorandum: "William Betts took Woollam's place, Saturday, 16th November 1793."

On the outer fold is the following endorsement: "I promise pay or cause to be paid, John Lynn or his order."

Captain Seals' Company

The manuscript containing the roll of this company, though not so old by one year, is not nearly so well preserved as that of Captain Crawford's company. Nor is the penmanship anything like as legible. It is endorsed on the back, "Guns & accoutrement," with a memorandum separate, "State property given to the Invoice." The roll does not give the date of enlistment but specifies the equipments each man possessed:

Rifle, powder horn, powder, bullet bags, bullet moulds, wipers, tomahawk, canteens." The company is also charged with five "camp kettles" and "166 flints." Besides these there is also a record of "three private kettles."

The roll is headed: "Now at Washington, this 12th April, 1794."

The names are as follows: "Captain James Seals, Lieutenant Robert Miller, Ensign Charles Chairroft, William Jackson, Simon Buhar, Abraham Kess, Thomas Daine, David Owens, William Jones, William Allender, Levy Shaddock, William Teagard, Thomas Stone, Thomas Carpenter, William Jones, James Atkinson, Joseph Morris, James Hays, Richard Parker, Robert Hays, Abraham Teagard, William Teagard, John West, John Brown, Sam Fordyce, Jacob Allen, Andrew Collins."

Captain James Seals will be recognized as at that time a resident of the Waynesburg settlement and afterwards one of the commissioners appointed by the Governor to select the ground and lay out the county seat.

The Hupps

I have seen in your valuable paper an extract from the Noble County Republican, which refers to the shooting of the infamous renegade, Simon Girty, by Philip Hupp. During the years 1781-82, Philip Hupp (doubtless the same one spoken of in the Republican) had his hunting grounds in the then nearly unbroken wilderness between the Ohio and Monongahela Rivers.

Frequently performing, as he did, the dangerous duty of a spy, many a redskin fell perforated by a bullet from his unerring rifle. When hordes of savages made their incursions into the settlement, which occurred frequently, he, together with the other settlers, betook themselves to either Rice's Fort or Miller's Blockhouse, on the Dutch Fork of Buffalo, whither they were wont to flee in times of peril.

Philip had four brothers. These five stalwart pioneers crossed the Alleghenies from what is now Shenandoah County, Virginia, and settled on the waters of Buffalo, in what is now Washington County, Penna., about the year 1770.

One of the brothers, whose name I am not able to give, soon became dissatisfied with the hardships and dangers incident to pioneer life, and returned to the Shenandoah Valley, where many of his descendants are still living.

Frank was shot by an Indian at Jonathan Link's cabin, about 12 miles east of Wheeling, on Middle Wheeling Creek, September, 1771. A like fate overtook John at the siege of Miller's blockhouse on Easter Sunday, 1782. Palsar, another brother, permanently settled on the bank of the Monongahela River near where is now located the village of Millsboro. Philip distinguished himself at the siege of Miller's blockhouse in 1782. Subsequently he turned his steps westward to the then unbroken wilderness beyond the Ohio, and as the Noble County Republican gave it, became, at length, "a resident of the Duck Creek Valley."

These hasty lines have been written in the hope of eliciting more information as to the daring deeds achieved by, and incidents in the life of this pioneer hero.

President Urges Local Conferences on Education

With the engaging Eisenhower smile of pleasure, the President of the United States is shown accepting a Better Schools Conference Kit from Roy E. Larsen, chairman of the National Citizens Commission for the Public Schools. The kit is a packet of information on community conferences on education which Mr.

Eisenhower urged to be held in every community in the land. Looking on are Neil H. McElroy (far left), chairman of the Eisenhower-appointed Committee for the White House Conference on Education, and Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The President said that conferences on education will "make a vital contribution to the welfare of all of our people" and expressed the hope that all communities will hold them. "The community, state and White House conferences—taken together—will strengthen," he said, "the continuing interest in education which is the cornerstone of our free society." Mr. McElroy commented that his organization welcomes the aid of the National Citizens Commission and the National School Boards Association which are backing community conferences, greeting these two groups as allies—not rivals—in the common effort. Further information on community conferences is free from Better Schools, 2 W. 45th street, New York, N. Y.

Pennsylvania Dutch Names Found In Various Spots Around the World

—Harrisburg—

Henry W. Shoemaker, Pennsylvania Folklore Chief, said there is an ancient saying that "The Pennsylvania Dutchman goes around the world."

In every foreign capital where this writer has been, he has met a Pennsylvania Dutchman, his name somewhat changed by spelling," Shoemaker said.

"One recalls three distinguished Colonial Officers of the 60th Rifles, who after the capture of Fort Duquesne renamed it 'Pittsburgh' for William Pitt, the 60th Rifles, 'composed' as says the Scottish History Magazine of April 15, 1759, 'mostly of Pennsylvania Germans, Swiss, Huguenots, Hollanders, and Waldensians'.

"These officers occupied adjoining farms in Crooked Creek Valley, south of Huntingdon, and were Henri Bouquet who commanded the 60th or 'Royal Americans' which they were called, a French Huguenot, born at Lyons, France in 1714; Frederick Haldeman, (Haldimand) the Switzer, and Rudolph Bentnick, the German.

"With plenty of leave and back pay, Captain Bentnick paid a visit to England and became an intimate of King George, III. He moved in the highest society and it occurred to him to invite his companions, Bouquet and Haldeman, to join him in London and enjoy some rich English life. Haldeman (Haldimand), responded and became Sir Frederick Haldimand, K. C. B., Governor General of Ontario, for whom Haldimand County, Canada, is named. Bentnick had become a Baronet. Only Bouquet remained in America. Bouquet, made a General by King George, died ignominiously of yellow fever at his now command in Florida.

"After nearly two hundred years, Mrs. Autumn Leonard, a statistician of the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission has discovered his grave under the Seaborn Airline Railroad Tracks at Pensacola.

"George Cowie, a Newfoundland, who was a bark peeler in Sugar Valley, Clinton County, is authority for the statement that there is a great similarity between the names of early settlers in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland and those of residents of Central Pennsylvania indicating an early settlement of Pennsylvania Dutch in Canada's maritime provinces."

U. S. Aid Proposed To Modernize Ports

—New Orleans—

Federal aid program for modernizing the nation's ports was suggested by Senator Warren G. Magnuson, Democrat of Washington.

Senator Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said in an address prepared for a maritime industry group that the program could be similar to existing federal aid programs for highways and airports.

If the maritime industry can agree on such a program, he said, he is willing to sponsor it and have it considered by his committee.

Senator Magnuson also urged a new program of federal building and operating subsidies for the American Merchant Marine to prevent "block obsolescence" of merchant ships built during World War II. He said this probably would cost a billion dollars or more, but added it would be worthwhile defense expenditure.

The Hawaiian Islands were formerly the Sandwich Islands.

Driving too fast for conditions . . .

34,655 known violations last year!

Changing road and weather conditions should be automatic warning signals meaning CAREFUL . . . SLOW DOWN . . . BE ALERT.

When a sudden thunderstorm cuts visibility in a matter of seconds, the safe driver slows down. He knows roads can become dangerously slippery . . . that windshield wipers sometimes can't work fast enough . . . that puddles and mud are steering hazards . . . that other traffic may splash water and spray over his windshield so he can't see.

So . . . be a safe driver . . . adjust your speed to the conditions of the moment.

Group OKs Natural Gas Bill By Single Vote

Washington— Legislation to free natural gas producers from direct Federal price controls squeaked through the House Commerce Committee last week by a one-vote margin. The committee voted 16-15 to report favorably to the House a bill by Representative Harris, Democrat of Arkansas, Federal Power Commission (FPC) regulation of producers' prices to interstate pipelines would be abolished by the measure. However, the FPC could influence wellhead prices indirectly through a provision directing the commission not to allow pipelines to charge off as an operating expense more than a "reasonable market price" for the gas they buy. Backers contend that consumers thus would be protected against runaway gas prices. Opponents say the measure offers no consumer protection and would inevitably result in higher gas bills. Although House Speaker Rayburn, Democrat of Texas, and the committee chairman, Representative Priest, Democrat of Tennessee, favor the legislation, only six Democrats voted for it. Eleven Democrats opposed it. Ten Republicans voted for the measure and four against it.

Boys Attend Forestry Camp

Wood-using industries of Pennsylvania are helping to provide basic forestry training for a group of boys who plan to make a vocation of working in the woods. A week-long training camp for 31 boys is being held this week at the Stone Valley Forestry Camp near State College. With paper and lumber companies serving as sponsors of the individual boys, the camp is being conducted by the Agricultural Extension Service of Penn State University. The Penn-York Lumbermen's Club gave funds for operating expenses. The boys are getting instruction in tree felling, log marking, tallying and grading, timber estimating, forest management, dendrology and woods safety, according to E. O. Ehrhart, chairman of the Pennsylvania Forest Industries Committee. Visits were planned to the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company Mill at Tyrone, the Greenwood Furnace state nursery and the Tussey Mountain fire tower. The camp was arranged by W. W. Simonds, extension forester, and E. P. Farrand, assistant. C. P. Shull, Armstrong Forest Company, Johnsonburg, was in charge of finances. Giving instructions were Penn State Forestry School professors, district foresters of the Department of Forests and Waters, and Mr. Farrand. Among the boys attending was Dale Cree, Garards Fort, sponsored by the Headlee Lumber Company.

White House Budget To be Maintained

President Eisenhower believes he can run the White House next year with 34 domestics—including eight maids and four butlers—and hold the light bill down to $30,890. If he does, the White House maintenance and operation budget for the coming fiscal year will be the same as it was this year, $366,220. The sum will leave nothing for the White House "piggy bank" when the year ends on June 30, 1956. No balance is expected on June 30, 1955, either, although the year before, when the budget was $356,184, there was $41 left over. Statistics on White House costs were presented to the House Appropriations Committee—which made them public—by Howell G. Grim chief usher. Salaries of the 38 mechanical and maintenance employees, he estimated, will total $147,235, while the domestics will receive $104,420. These employees include nine engineering workers, six carpenters, five electricians, six gardeners, five plumbers, one painter, two storekeepers, one clerk, one maitre d'hotel, two housekeepers, four butlers, six cooks, one valet, five doormen, five housemen, one laundress, one pantrywoman and eight maids. They are full-time employees and frequently get overtime, their average salary being $3,874.
