Four Democrat Senators Balk at Leader's Tax

Harrisburg—Governor George M. Leader's proposed $411,000,000 classified income tax was jolted this week by four Democratic members of the Senate.

They told the governor face-to-face, in a closed Democratic caucus, that public opinion in their home districts would not permit them to vote for the income tax if it were put before them today.

The four said they will reconsider their positions later if the governor persists in the income levy, but agreed that a lot more "selling" must be accomplished.

Senator John J. Haluska, Patton Democrat, who is chairman of the Democratic caucus, said that he was one of the four. It was learned from reliable sources that the others were Senators Eustace H. Bane of Uniontown; William J. Lane of West Brownsville; and John Carl Miller of Aliquippa.

"You can make that four-plus," Senator Haluska said, because some of the others were uncertain.

"Several of the rank and file members said they would vote for it but that it is one of the most vicious tax programs ever presented," Haluska continued.

Senator Haluska, as caucus chairman, conducted the meeting, at which the governor was present.

Haluska said that he called upon each of the 23 members present (one absent because of illness), in turn, and asked them to state their attitudes and report upon the reaction of the voters back home.

"The governor's thought was that each senator present should go out and take a great part in selling the budget first and thus show why and how the tax is needed," Haluska said.

Meanwhile in the House, where the income tax bill is in Representative George J. Sarraf's Ways and Means Committee, there was no argument on the tax program although Representative Maurice H. Goldstein, Republican of Pittsburgh, pointed out wide variations between the state bill and the Federal act.

Doctors' Draft Extension Due

Washington—A Senate House committee has agreed on legislation extending the doctors draft act for two years. It would make doctors and dentists up to age 46 liable to the draft. The age limit now is 50.

The conference committee bill also would extend the regular draft of young men 18 to 26 years old for the armed services. Both draft laws will expire June 30 unless extended.

Since both the Senate and House had voted for extension of regular Selective Service, its approval by the conference committee was a foregone conclusion.

There has been controversy, however, on the question of continuing the doctors draft—opposed by organizations of physicians and dentists. The Senate voted for it but the House has never had a vote.

New Water System For Jacktown Fair

Installation of a new water system at the Jacktown Fairground was begun Monday and will be completed for the 90th annual fair in August.

A dam and pond will be constructed in a hollow on the Richhill Agricultural Society's property and the pond will be supplied from a spring. Water will be pumped to an overhead tank near the starter's stand.

Principal outlets will be at the football field, the performance stand, the midway and the livestock barns, which in previous years used such large amounts that tank trucks were busy all during the fair keeping full a sizeable cistern.

The overhead tank will be equipped in such a manner as to allow fire trucks or sprinkling wagons to obtain refills.

The new project will also increase the fire-fighting potentialities of the Graysville Volunteer Fire Company which is always on call during the four-day fair.

This supply will also be available for fire protection in the Wind Ridge community.

Miss McMillen Named Assistant Home Economist

Miss Mary Arlene McMillen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMillen of Masontown, W. Va., R. D. 1, has been named assistant extension home economist in Greene and Fayette Counties.

Her appointment was effective June 16, Dr. H. R. Albrecht, director of the Pennsylvania State University extension service, has announced.

In Greene County she will work with Mrs. Lois Headlee Johnson, assistant extension home economist, in directing 4-H and adult homemake programs. In Fayette County she will assist Mary Anderson, extension home economist.

Miss McMillen, a native of West Virginia, graduated from Masontown, W. Va., high school and from West Virginia University with a bachelor of science degree in home economics. While in college she was a member of the Home Economics Club, Girl's Athletic Association, Future Homemakers of America, mixed chorus and all-state chorus.

She will come to Greene County next week.

Reorganization Bill Amended By Senate

Harrisburg—The Senate has passed an amended bill setting up a 12-member commission to recommend to Governor Leader, a reorganization program for state government.

Senate amendments would place the authority for appointing the entire commission in the Governor's hands.

Strategy back of the riders appears to be a Republican wish that Leader assume the total responsibility for the commission and the reorganization proposal.

Under the original bill the commissions would have been made up of four House, four Senate and four members appointed by Leader.

The measure went to the House for concurrence in the proposed change.

1935 Class to Hold Reunion

The class of 1935 of Waynesburg High School will hold a reunion Saturday night at 6 o'clock in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Home on East Lincoln street.

Movies taken during school days will be shown and Mrs. Bettie Sennett of Uniontown, will read a history.

Officers of the class are Donald Howie, president; Frank Wallace, vice president; Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Huffman, secretary and treasurer.

Harry Anderson will act as toastmaster.

The reservation committee is Arden Turner, Mrs. Stanley Smith, Mrs. Michaels Baker, Mrs. Ruth Davis and Leon Jabour.

The committee for decorations and prizes is James Hennen, Mrs. Frank Bryan, James Matheison, Mrs. Virginia Patton and Raymond Snodgrass.

Frick Co. Closes Ronco Coal Mine

Uniontown—The Uniontown office of Frick Coal Division of United States Steel on Monday closed the Ronco mine, which means the idling of approximately 400 workers.

The steel firm had warned at the end of March this mine would soon be "worked out" and that the closing would occur when the coal supply became exhausted.

No steps have been taken to provide employment for the men. Other mines of the Frick Division will be in operation five days this week, Saturday being the only off day.

Korean POW's Failing to File

Harrisburg—More than 800 former American prisoners of war in Korea have failed to file for the $250-a-day allowance. If you know a Korean veteran who hasn't filed, tell him the deadline is August 21.

To Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Dr. and Mrs. William Mestraz Hudson of Carlinville, Illinois, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary on June 27. Dr. Hudson, a native of Greene County, who was named Pennsylvania Ambassador for 1950, was president of Waynesburg College from 1908 to 1911.

In 1912 the Hudsons moved to Carlinville where he assumed the presidency of Blackburn College. The college was almost prostrate and within a year Dr. Hudson had introduced the self-help plan which has attracted national attention.

He crossed and re-crossed the state, telling of his plans for a revitalized institution of learning. Students began to come to the college in ever larger numbers. Nor did Dr. Hudson neglect that indispensable item, financial resources. He interested men and women of substance in Blackburn, and funds began to arrive to support the new and promising programs. The inconsequential endowment began its growth, so that now, forty-three years after Dr. Hudson's first arrival in Carlinville, the endowment stands at more than $2,000,000. He continued as president for 33 years, until 1945, and in all that time, with the loyal and imaginative help of Mrs. Hudson, he expanded and strengthened Blackburn.

The college now has a group of new fireproof buildings.

A brother, Judge Thomas H. Hudson of Uniontown, will be present for the wedding anniversary. The three daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Hudson and several of the nine grandchildren will join in the celebration. Leslie, the oldest daughter, and her husband, Dr. A. W. Meyer, director of research for the Diamond Alkali Company of Cleveland, Ohio; Florence, wife of Dr. J. B. Callaway, sales promotion manager of DuPont, South Pasadena, California, and Harriet, Academic Dean of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, Virginia, will all be present.

House GOP Group Raps Social Security Proposal

Dr. Lewis to Speak at Syrian Conference

Washington—Republicans on the House Ways and Means Committee charged bitterly Monday a Democratic move to boost Social Security benefits for women and disabled persons may be a "political raid" on the Social Security trust fund.

Chairman Copper, Democrat of Tennessee, has announced the committee will start closed-door action on his proposals to provide immediate monthly benefits for disabled workers and to lower from 65 to 62 the age at which women become eligible for benefits.

The Republicans, in an unusual open letter to Cooper, said "the ultimate social and economic implications of these proposals are tremendous. It is unthinkable that public hearings not be held."

GOP committee members said the new benefits would cost between 1 1/2 and two billion dollars a year, but Democrats have been silent on any plans for financing their proposals.

"This vast sum of money can only come out of the Social Security fund built up by the payroll contributions of our workers, the letter declared.

"It will be a sorry day for America should the time ever come when our workers retire after years of contributing to the fund only to find that the money to which they have looked for in their old age security has long since been spent."

The Republicans charged the closed-door procedure was decided at a "secret caucus" of the 15-man Democratic majority and said they still would insist on open hearings.

Faddis to Join Thiel Faculty

George Faddis, New Castle artist, and son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles J. Faddis of Waynesburg, will join the faculty of Thiel College this fall as lecturer on art.

He has been instructor at the Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown, Ohio, and is assisting the organization of the 20th annual show at the institute which will open July first.

In 1952, Mr. Faddis took first prize at an area show at the institute and two pieces of his enameling are in the permanent collection there. Recently four of his enamels were shown in the American Jewelry and Related Objects Show in Huntington, W. Va. The show is now being circulated throughout the nation under the sponsorship of the Smithsonian Institution. He also took first prize in enameling at the Craftsman's Guild in Pittsburgh recently.

Mr. Faddis for five years was art instructor at Westminster College, and joined Butler Institute a year ago.

L. D. Albacker Is Chief Assessor

Lee D. Albacker of Rices Landing, has been appointed chief assessor by the Greene County Commissioners.

Ralph Lightner was named assistant.

Both men will be in charge of the new tax assessment program to be used initially in Greene County for the year 1956. Since September 22, 1953, Mr. Albacker has been in charge of the installation of the new assessment system and is familiar with all details.

Dr. Throckmorton, Verona Dentist, Dies Saturday

Dr. William Lewis Throckmorton, 80 years, a dentist in Verona for 54 years, died Saturday, June 18, 1955, at his home 526 Fourth street Oakmont, after a prolonged illness.

He was a son of Dr. William Throckmorton and Carrie Hill Throckmorton, and was born September 11, 1874, at Nineveh, Greene County.

Dr. Throckmorton attended Ohio Wesleyan University and graduated from the dental school of the Western University of Pennsylvania, now the University of Pittsburgh, in 1899.

He was a member of the Oakmont Methodist Church, the Odontological Society of Western Pennsylvania, Comedent Society, Supreme Lodge of the Knights of Pythias, Oakmont Rotary Club, Verona Lodge of the Free and Accepted Masons, and a former member of the Alcoma Country Club.

He is survived by his wife, Edna Ludwick Throckmorton, a daughter, Mrs. Jane Arensburg; a brother, Dr. Morford Throckmorton of Beaver, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, with interment in Oakmont Cemetery.

Delinquent Taxes To be Collected By Borough

Waynesburg borough and the school district have joined to hire Donald Wilkinson of the Pennsylvania Tax Collectors Association as a special collector to collect delinquent per capita taxes for the school district and occupation taxes for the borough.

The County Tax Claim Bureau collects only delinquent real estate taxes and political subdivisions must collect all other types of delinquent taxes.

Mrs. Rona T. Wiley, borough tax collector, stated that the school district has per capita taxes back to 1952, and the borough has occupation taxes back to 1950.

All delinquent tax payers will be notified.

Burgess Fay Headlee reported departmental collections of $1,134 from May 31, through June 15. They include, building permits, $22; fines and forfeits, $113; parking meter receipts, $680.50; sewer taps, $75, and parking ticket fines, $115.50.

Council approved right of way for the new toll gate sewer now under construction.

No action was taken on the request that the borough pay half of the $541.20 for uniforms for borough civil defense personnel.

Ad Bait Bill Before Senate

Harrisburg—A plan to outlaw bait advertising—publicizing an item without intending to sell it under the stated conditions—was ready for Senate action Wednesday after winning unanimous House approval.

People who advertise or offer for sale any commodity, merchandise or service without intending to sell it at the advertised sale could be found guilty of a misdemeanor under the proposal. The penalties would be a fine of $500 to $1,000 or imprisonment for six months to one year.

Cases of "innocent mistake or typographical error" would be excluded from the proposal.

False and misleading advertising "over any radio or television state or other medium of wireless communication" also would be declared illegal.

Churchill Declines Invitation to UN

London—Sir Winston Churchill has declined an invitation to attend the ceremonies at San Francisco commemorating the 10th anniversary of the United Nations, his private secretary disclosed.

"Sir Winston's plans are very unsettled," said the secretary, "but he does not plan to go to San Francisco or to any other place in America this year."

Place Markers for Revolutionary War Soldiers

Bronze markers for two Revolutionary War soldiers, Lawrence Van Buskirk and William Cree, were placed Saturday during ceremonies conducted by John Corbly Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The markers were the gift of Mrs. R. W. Shoemaker of Anderson, Indiana, a descendant of the soldiers. Mrs. Anderson read brief sketches of both men.

Lawrence Van Buskirk's grave is in the Smith Cemetery near the Children's Home. He was born in Bucks County, April 17, 1747, and served in Captain Gregory's Company. No records are available of battles in which his company engaged.

The grave of William Cree is on the farm of Miss Eva Cree on Route 21. He was born in 1752, and died April 6, 1935. Serving in the 7th Battalion, Cumberland County Militia, he took part in the battles of Cowpens and Stone Creek under the command of Captain Edward Grimes.

Mrs. Harold A. Russell, regent of the local chapter, was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Alexander Tustin. Miss Grace Morris, past regent, unveiled the markers.

Members of Ida Cummins Chapter, Children of the American Revolution, assisted in the services. Sue Ellen Cummins placed flags and Linda Helphelstine read a poem, "Spirit of the Pioneers."

Other descendants from out-of-town, besides Mrs. Shoemaker, who attended, were Mrs. Robert G. Stewart and Miss Anne Stewart, both of Chester, W. Va., and Mrs. C. B. McDonald of Cleveland, Ohio.

Thomas Balaban To be Honored

Attorney Thomas R. Balaban of Waynesburg, who is assistant to the Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner, will be honored at a testimonial dinner Saturday night in the William Penn Hotel, by the Croatian Fraternal Union. Until his recent appointment Mr. Balaban had been general counsel for the Union.

More than 300 will attend including Mayor David L. Lawrence and other county and state officials.

Builds Fellowship Hall for Church

Rev. Jack Becker, pastor of the Modesto, California, Presbyterian Church, recently dedicated a Fellowship Hall. Rev. Becker, a graduate of Waynesburg College, became pastor of the church when the congregation was small and has been able to build up the congregation so that an addition to the church was necessary.

Automobile Thrill Show 'Stunt Capades' At County Fairgrounds Friday Night

Newest of all automobile stunt shows, "Stunt Capades," featuring Buddy Wagner's Champion Hell Drivers will appear at the Greene County Fairground on Friday night, June 24, at 8:00. The show is sponsored by Waynesburg Post 4793, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Equipped with a fleet of brand new 1955 Ford stock sedans, the Hell Drivers will go through a wild exhibition of precision driving over elevated rampways, drop their speeding machines on one side and barely scrape the turf before bringing them back on four wheels, as they prepare the spectators for greater thrills to come on the raceway.

Producer Buddy Wagner has corralled the nation's leading stuntmen under one banner in the "Stunt Capades" thrill production, harvesting a crop of "big name" stars who have been familiar faces with other shows in the business for many years.

A former associate with the late "Lucky" Teter and the Jole Chitwood organizations, Wagner is rated the nation's number one stunt show announcer and producer, being responsible for many of today's new stunts and has developed and schooled many of the top stunt talent in the profession today.

Bobby LaBay of Montreal, Canada, two-time world's champion, and Buddy Brooks, colorful and dynamic 21-year-old stunt

United States Senator Edward Martin, speaking at Robesonia in Berks County, Tuesday night, stated this nation is faced by three great dangers—big government, an ever-expanding debt, and public apathy.

Senator Martin was the principal speaker at the 100th anniversary of Robesonia.

"First," he said, "the vast expansion in the cost and size of government at all levels is leading us away from the ideals of the founding fathers. The people are constantly demanding more and more services. Under that pressure, government has become involved in too many functions in which it does not properly belong. The result has always been excessive taxation and the steady flow of power from the hands of the people into centralized bureaucratic authority and government control."

The second danger facing the nation, Senator Martin said, is "too much private and public debt."

"Too many of our people do not seem to be concerned with the ever-increasing burden of debt which is growing bigger and bigger at a sickening rate. Never before in the history of the world have any people owed so much as we owe today."

"Twenty years ago," Senator Martin said, "when we were fighting the worst depression we ever had," the Federal debt was less than 20 billion dollars. "Today," he added, "the figure is 278 billion."

"We must bear in mind, he declared, "that more nations have been destroyed by debt and taxes than by invading armies."

On the subject of public apathy Senator Martin had this to say: "It is unfortunate that so many people have forgotten that taking part in government is a patriotic duty. We can not expect clean and economical government unless we take a real part in it."

To cope with these three dangers, Senator Martin suggested: "We must develop a stronger and more willing spirit of public service, civic-mindedness and moral leadership."

"We must strengthen the moral and spiritual vitality of our people."

"We must safeguard the national economy against abuses by big business, big labor and big government."

"We must emphasize that freedom of the individual, as ordained by God, is the firm foundation of our national strength."

Democrat Women To Picnic June 25

Saturday, June 25, is the date set for the family picnic of the Greene County Democratic Women's Club at the Greene County Fairgrounds.

Supper will be served between 5 and 6 p. m. Those attending are asked to bring meat, sandwiches, covered dishes, service and game suggestions.

All Democrats in the county are invited.

Automobile Thrill Show 'Stunt Capades' At County Fairgrounds Friday Night

star from Detroit, Michigan, will head the Wagner troupe of motor maniacs into action. LaBay is recognized by rival stuntmen and other show producers as the "top banana" in the thrill show world today.

Buck Cowling, Hollywood's number one motion picture stuntman from Santa Monica, Calif., is certain to hold the audience virtually speechless, when he goes through a series of intricate acrobatic and gymnastic thrills on top of his car down in front of the grandstand as the automobile moves along at 40 miles per hour.

Cowling will attempt a handstand on the roof of a '55 Ford, hang by one leg over the side of the car from the rooftop, and ride the cars while standing up along with Dale O'Brien of Kansas City, and Larry Shaw of Detroit, over elevated rampways.

Other events scheduled include the national championship rolling-over contest series, precision driving events, the terrifying "dive bomber" crash, cycle leaps over the bodies of out-stretched stuntmen on the raceway, flaming ram-and the "human battering ram" thriller, among others.

The high-light of the entire show, however, is the "Atomic Rocket Car" leap, in which LaBay or Brooks will send a '55 Ford soaring 85 feet through space from one ramp to another.

Reminiscences of Olden Times Surprise of the Scouts

By JENNINGS CRAWFORD

In the fall of the year 1791 a report was by some means put into circulation in the frontier settlements of western Pennsylvania and Virginia, that the hostile Indians who had been very troublesome to those settlements for some years, were about to leave the Sandusky towns and retire to the Wabash country for winter quarters.

It was a matter of great importance to the settlements to ascertain whether or not this report was true. If true, they would be relieved, at least for a time, from the necessity of a sleepless vigilance in order to guard against their bloody inroads. If false they would understand and be prepared for the necessities of the hour.

The officers in command at Fort Wheeling detailed eight men from the class of soldiers then in the U. S. service called spies or scouts to perform this service. It was a mission of great danger, but these young men were presumed to be fitted for just such work.

The names of these men, so far as I am able to call them to mind were Jacob Wetzel (brother of Lewis); George Brown of Whiteley, Greene County, Pa.; John Lynn of Redstone, Fayette County, Pa.; John Crawford (my father), Muddy Creek, Greene County, Pa.; Biggs—McCulloch. The names of the other two I can not recall. The party started from Fort Wheeling in the month of December, in the direction of the Sandusky towns. The trail through the unbroken forest crossed the Muskingum River at, or below, where Coshocton now stands, then through the Tomica region on the waters of Owl Creek, passing near the spot where now stands the city of Mt. Vernon.

After proceeding cautiously on this route to a point somewhere in the Owl Creek valley, they became satisfied that the Indians were in the country; that the report that they had gone off to the Wabash was false.

Moreover some of the party (my father of the number) believed that they (the scouts) had been discovered by the Indians, and that the greatest caution would be necessary to prevent a surprise.

The object of the mission having been attained, the party now turned their faces homeward, and, as it afterward turned out, were stealthily followed by a party of Indians.

When night came on they had reached a point in the hilly region of Tomica, about ten miles west of the Muskingum River. The weather was very cold but no snow on the ground.

They selected a secluded spot in a deep ravine for their camping ground. There was a division among the men as to whether they should have fire. Those who believed that the Indians had discovered them opposed it, but were overruled by the majority. A fire was made.

The regulations for watching and being relieved in order were duly attended to.

My father's watch came in the first part of the night. He described the night as being very still, the moon shining bright, the weather so cold that the trees were cracking with the frost, and the ground frozen hard.

He thought it would be impossible for an Indian to get within a hundred yards of the camp without being discovered.

The men, excepting the one on guard for the time being, surrounded the camp fire with their guns in their arms, lying with their feet to the fire and their heads most remote from it.

About three o'clock in the morning the man on guard, (as he afterward stated) after waiting for some time turned around to the light of the fire to take something from his knapsack, when the Indians, having with astonishing adroitness crept up on every side, within some fifteen or twenty yards, fired into the camp of sleeping men.

Two men were killed on the spot and a third one wounded.

Those who escaped this deadly volley sprang up and ran for their lives. My father, after running along the ravine some distance and then up a side hill, ventured to look back, and saw, by the light of the moon, at the foot of the hill, a few yards below, a squad of men. In a few moments there was a slight report of a gun, and he ran on. It seems that the wounded man, after running as far as this spot, was overtaken by some of the Indians and turned to defend himself with his tomahawk. The Indians, not caring to engage in a hand to hand fight, and their guns having all been discharged at the first fire, had stopped long enough to load a gun to shoot the poor man down.

Five of the men were unhurt and escaped from the Indians, but some had lost their moccasins and all their blankets and knapsacks. Ninety miles through a howling wilderness were to be traveled before they could reach Wheeling Fort. There seemed reason to fear that the Indians might still be following up their trail, so that to shoot game was unsafe and they had no other means of procuring food.

Their hunger was added to the other difficulties and perils still surrounding them. After three days of toil and suffering the five men reached the Fort, in two parties, one of two and the other of three, neither of them having any knowledge of the other until they came in. Those of them who had lost their moccasins at the surprise, got their feet badly frozen.

After a few days rest, and doctoring up their frozen feet, the boys determined to make a trip out to the Wakitomica country, as it was then called, in search of their three lost comrades, of whose fate they were not yet certain, though they believed they were killed.

Procuring some horses to ride, they made their way to the spot where the party had been surprised, and found the bodies of the three men, two at the camp where they had slept, and the other at the place where my father looking down the hill saw the squad of men at its foot. His wounds indicated that he had been shot a second time.

They buried their companions in the best manner they could near the spot where they fell.

I am not able, at this late day, to state the names of two of the men who were killed. But as to the third one, there is a little bit of romance connected with it, (romance in real life, by the way), which I trust will cause it to be remembered by all the Crawford connection for at least a generation or two yet to come.

John Lynn, (one of the men killed) and John Crawford, (my father), were bosom friends. They entered the U. S. service, as scouts at the same time, each being about eighteen years old. They made an agreement at the outset, that in case either one should fall during the war, and the other survive, and have a son, that son should bear the name of the fallen comrade.

John Lynn was shot through the heart while lying under the same blanket with John Crawford in that awful night surprise which I have been trying to describe.

The defeat of the Indians by General Wayne on the Maumee, in August 1794, put an end to the war. There was no further need for the scouts, and they returned to the pursuits of peaceful life.

John Crawford and Salome Jennings were married April 2, 1801. A son was born to them May 31, 1892. That son was named John Lynn Crawford, in accordance with the sacred pledge made twelve years before.

This scrap of history as to the origin of the name, with its hallowed associations, will, I think, be accepted by all relatives as a precious memorial. To some of the younger portion of them it will perhaps be new.

I have met in past years several stories or narratives evidently founded upon the real historic events which I have narrated above, but connected with so much of mere fiction as to render them incredible and worthless.

All the statements I have made above may be relied upon as substantially true. They come from the lips of one of the principal actors, whose veracity was never called in question.

(The following is one of a series of papers pertaining to the early history of Greene County published in the American Volunteer, a paper that had a few months' run in Pittsburgh, fifty years ago).

My uncle, John Crawford, came out west and improved land. After he laid aside his commission, he hired Cook (his servant) to William Shephard, who had with him his wife.

Plans Laid for Fish Contest

Sponsors and county officials met in Commissioner Kane's office for the 1955 Family Fishing Contest, to be held July 16 and 17, at North Park Lake. The contest is co-sponsored by the Allegheny County Sportsmen's League and the participating Insured Savings and Loan Association. Pictured from left to right are Lewis L. Herrington, Chairman of the Insured Savings and Loan Committee; Commissioner Harry W. Fowler, James Stepp, President of the Sportsmen's League, and Commissioner John J. Kane. The contest is open to anglers of all ages, both licensed and under-age. Registrations have now begun at First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Greene County. Participation in the contest is free and thousands of dollars in prizes are being offered, headed by a 1955 Plymouth Station Wagon. Top prize for women is a Norge Deep-Freezer, and children's prizes include Roll-fast bicycles. Awards will go to those who land the biggest fish.

TEXAS EASTERN SERVES THE COMPANIES THAT SERVE YOU

Glassware tempered in Owens-Illinois' natural gas-fired furnaces is tested with mechanical mallets for strength and durability. Gas is supplied the Ohio manufacturer by The Ohio Fuel Gas Company, a customer of Texas Eastern.

Texas Eastern transports natural gas via pipeline from the Southwest for use at the Owens-Illinois Libbey plant at Toledo to help produce beautiful and practical glassware. Not so long ago fine table glassware was rare and expensive. Today, it is abundant and reasonable in price, because modern equipment and fuels have made mass production methods possible. Natural gas-fired furnaces, in which critical temperatures are maintained, are used to "baby" the molded glass along during the cooling stage and give it its final temper. As a result, the glassware you buy is beautiful, strong and economical.

State Mine Safety Meet to be Held At Carmichaels

The State Mine Safety First Aid contest finals will be held Saturday, September 10, at Carmichaels on the last day of the second annual Coal Festival. The event attracts teams from mines throughout the state.

It has been held for the past 12 years at Ebensburg.

The meet will begin at 10 a. m. on the final day of the festival and will be held on the Cumberland Township High School Athletic Field.

One of the principal reasons for moving the contest to Carmichaels, they said, is that some 85 per cent of coal mines which participate in the annual contest are located in this area.

The state finals bring together mine first aid teams which placed high in regional meets held throughout the state during the summer months.

One such regional meet is the first aid contest held for the last two years by the Southwestern Pennsylvania Safety Association at the Waynesburg Fairgrounds, on the final day of the annual Greene County Fair. It is for teams from Greene, Washington, Fayette and Allegheny counties.

Charles R. Clark of Waynesburg, fair director, said that arrangements have been made to hold the regional contest at the fairgrounds again this year, on Saturday, August 20, the closing day of the fair.

Both the state and regional contests are sponsored jointly by the Pennsylvania Department of Mines, U. S. Bureau of Mines, United Mine Workers of America and the Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

Arlington Graves

Arlington National Cemetery, unless it is expanded, will exhaust its gravesites by 1970. There are approximately 60,000 graves remaining from the 145,000 originally set aside. About 75 burials are made each week.

Acrobatic Sailing

OFTEN carrying 1,000 square feet of sail, as much as a large ocean yacht, Bermuda-fitted dinghies like this one sailing in the Great Sound are only 14 feet one inch long, and have no decking. Keeping these craft afloat requires the skill of an acrobat. The dinghies carry a crew of seven, most of them acting as ballers. If there is a lack of wind, the ballers jump overboard to lighten the load, being sure to dive from the stern thus giving the dinghy added momentum. Bermuda-fitted dinghy races are held in this mid-Atlantic resort during the summer.

Pennsylvania Can Offer Vacationist Anything the Family May Suggest

Travel folders are the favorite literature of the average American family these days. The main topic of a family pow-wow is bound to be that long-awaited vacation.

Where to go this year will undoubtedly bring as many different suggestions as there are members in the family.

Mother may be interested in a historical pilgrimage. Father wants to go fishing. The younger set's suggestions will range from camping to a visit to a dude ranch.

Do you want to make your entire family happy? Sounds impossible? The answer is nearby—vacation in Pennsylvania. There are diversions to suit every desire in the family.

Travelers who want to combine a historical pilgrimage with their vacations can visit Independence Hall in Philadelphia, where the Liberty Bell is a silent reminder of our democratic heritage.

Twenty-four miles up Delaware Valley from Philadelphia is another historic landmark, dear to the hearts of Pennsylvanians and equally delightful to out-of-state visitors, Pennsbury Manor, the summer home of William Penn, founder of the Commonwealth.

A visit to the authentically restored Pennsbury Manor is a visit to 17th century America, and the architecture, furnishings and landscaping combine to offer a most rewarding experience in American history.

Another chapter in the history of our country that is brought to vivid life in Pennsylvania is the Battle of Gettysburg, and no trip through the south-central part of the Commonwealth is complete without a visit to Gettysburg's famous battlefield and museum, with its relics of the turmoil that united our country. See the Eternal Peace Light.

The Valley Forge and Fort Necessity of George Washington's day, the latter on U. S. 40, southeast of Uniontown; the birthplace of Daniel Boone near Reading, where the famed frontiersman learned hunting and shooting; Lake Erie and its memories of Commodore Perry and the War of 1812; the grave of a Revolutionary War Unknown Soldier, at Bethlehem—these are but a few of the Pennsylvania locales steeped in American tradition.

If to you "vacation" is synonymous with the "fishing," we'd like to give you an angler's eye-view of the Commonwealth.

More than 5,000 miles of approved streams have been stocked by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission with tons of game fish. Included in the fish awaiting the Waltonian's skill are millions of brook, rainbow and brown trout, and hundreds of thousands of black bass.

Enthusiasts of all types of summer sports can find a perfect location to pursue their particular sporting interest in versatile Pennsylvania. Surf bathing and sailing at Presque Isle State Park on Lake Erie, Conneaut and Pymatuning Lakes, golfing on championship courses, and hiking on the beautiful Appalachian Trail, head the long list of diversions.

If you're intrigued by the casual, informal atmosphere of a dude ranch, change that old suggestion, "Go West, Young Man," to "Go to Pennsylvania, Young Man," for, paradoxically, Pennsylvania has a number of dude ranches.

If you like to get back to nature on your vacation, Pennsylvania's mountains will be your mecca. The Commonwealth's 15,125,000 acres of forest land feature 3,000 miles of roads through cool, fragrant forests and 4,000 miles of trails for the adventurous soul to explore.

If you want to combine your mountaineering with comfort, one of Pennsylvania's most popular resort regions, the Pocono Mountains, offers accommodations in the midst of majestic mountains in luxurious resort hotels complete with golf courses and tennis courts, or in sequestered inns and cabins where informality is the order of the day.

The more rugged individualist may prefer tent camping in one of the Commonwealth's 39 state parks, or in the state forests proper.

The problems of parents of members of the "Davy Crockett set" can easily be solved by the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce booklet, "Summer Camps in Pennsylvania," which lists nearly 300 supervised camps designed to entertain and instruct the youngsters in the summer months. Children from six to 16 will have a summer to remember after a Pennsylvania vacation at the camp of their choice. The majority of the camps are located on the shores of lakes in the mountains where sailing, canoeing, swimming and fishing vie for popularity with handicrafts, mountain climbing and hiking.

Pennsylvania each summer offers the best of the legitimate theater to vacationists who through the Commonwealth's summer stock theaters on the "Straw Hat Circuit." Theaters on the circuit increase each year, and it is expected that this year will bring the opening of even more

Death for Dope To Minors Asked

—Washington— A bill providing the death penalty for persons convicted of selling narcotics to minors was introduced Monday by Representative Latham, Republican, New York.

"We know what the Lindbergh Law did to kidnaping," Latham said in a statement. "Let us do the same thing to these human vermin who are selling narcotics to minors."

The Lindbergh Law makes it a capital offense for persons transporting kidnaped victims across state lines.

Former County Physician Dies

Dr. Robert Donald Yoder, 49 years, who was a practicing physician at Nemaacolin from 1929 through 1943, died suddenly early Thursday morning, June 16, 1955, in Pittsburgh. Dr. Yoder was chief of professional services at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Pittsburgh. He died at his home on the grounds of the Oakland Veterans Administration Hospital.

He also was assistant clinical professor of medicine and a member of the dean's committee of the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine.

He was born in Connellsville and graduated in 1928 from the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine. After interning at the Presbyterian Hospital, Pittsburgh, he entered private practice in Nemaacolin, and served in private and industrial practice there for almost 15 years.

Dr. Yoder was appointed to the Pittsburgh VA regional office as medical officer in 1944 and in the same year entered the Army. Discharged as a captain in November, 1946, he returned to duty with the VA.

In 1947, he transferred to the VA hospital at Aspinwall as assistant chief of medical service and served in that post until assuming his last position in 1953.

He was past president of Carmichaels Rotary Club; was a member of Waynesburg Lodge No. 153, F. & A. M.; Pennsylvania Consistory; Syria Temple, and the United Church of Aspinwall—Presbyterian.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Thelma Jean Yoder; a daughter, Nancy G., and a son, Donald Yoder.

summer theaters, housed in everything from the traditional haylofts and barns to modern concrete theaters.

One of the best is at Bushkill Manor, Bushkill.

"Pennsylvania Has Everything," one of the State's official slogans, will have new meaning for you, after a summer visit or tour of the State. Information about Pennsylvania can be obtained from the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce.

Did you know that— You can tour underground in Pennsylvania as well as on mountain tops, for there are 11 caves and caverns in the State that are commercially operated for visitors.

Bushkill Falls, in Pike County, are higher than Niagara Falls. At Bushkill, there are the Winona Five Falls.

Pennsylvania holds the distinction of having one of the world's most modern highways, the Pennsylvania Turnpike, which reminds us that America's first paved road was built in the Keystone State in 1792, from Philadelphia to Lancaster.

The world's only sanctuary for bald eagles is on Mt. Johnson Island, in the Susquehanna River south of Lancaster.

The State Farm Show Building in the capital city of Harrisburg, is the largest building of its kind in the world, and the sports arena in the "chocolate town" of Hershey is the largest monolithic concrete structure in the world.

Pennsylvania claims the largest glacial pothole in the world, at Archbald, just off U. S. 6, a few miles northeast of Scranton.

State Folklore President Relates History of Washington County Jumpers

—Harrisburg— Henry W. Shoemaker, Pennsylvania Folklorist, State Museum, told the tale of the origin of the Washington County Jumpers, or Pennsylvania Skis.

"The Washington County Jumper is a small wooden ski, about two feet long, with a 12 inch high block of wood nailed to it just back of the middle, and a 1/2 of an inch by eight inches by 18 inch board seat laid across the top of the block post, centered and nailed fast," Shoemaker said.

"It was developed a hundred years ago, sporting authorities say, in a natural way and the story goes like this:

"A pretty mountain girl of Washington County seated herself in a butter bowl, her boy friend sat on a barrel stave and they began sliding down the snowy banks.

"Since the primitive form of ski played hob with the boy's britches and the girl's stockings, and caused hard words from stern parents at home, the ingenious youngsters placed a block of wood on the stave to keep their clothing from contact with the snow.

"The block proved not to be a complete seat, so a board was added across the top of the block, because fingers got scraped and pinched, when so close to the ground. A taller block of about 12 inches, more or less, became 'standard size'. Two very good ski-like runners were made from the top ribs of an ancient buggy. These were very good because when trimmed properly, they gave two nice, straight, flat runners, each with a 'turn-up' at one end.

"Later a steel strap sole was added, which put real spring into the device, and while not quite as fast as the old-time sled, was easier to steer out of trouble, or stop suddenly, if need be. The Jumper was used mostly in town, or city streets, or vacant lots and sometimes over terraces and between mansions.

"Being adaptable to small space and short runs, children could coast in back lots when streets were dangerous from horse drawn sledges loaded with saw logs. Soon streets were closed to horse and sleighs, in certain areas and reserved for 'skiing'. The word Jumper seems to have come from the fact that small jumps, like ski jumps were made over steep slopes.

"To ride a Jumper, the rider sits down at the top of an embankment or hill, planted squarely on the seat, pushes himself with his feet until he begins to coast, then by leaning backwards and holding his feet up, balances himself, rides smoothly to the bottom, side balance is controlled by waving the legs in the air such as arms are used in tight-rope walking. Jumpers were made of all sizes from pocket size up to two feet high. The 'pocket size' was for little folks, who can do impossible things in safety, some were made for tiny boys and girls to ride down sidewalks to school, not entirely practical but fun giving to the tots. A Jumper rider could always turn out of danger, or stop more quickly than any sledder. As for jumping, jumps 12 to 15 feet were fun but made one get quite a jolt on landing.

"Keeping one's balance was the real trick involved.

"Now as to the history of the Jumper in Pennsylvania Winter Sports, people who lived in Washington County recall the Jumper's popularity as early as 1850. If the Indian children were its inventors as some claimed, then its beginning antedated General Braddock's defeat, and the device could date back to 1745 or '55 and perhaps French Pioneers gave the idea to the Indians.

"Washington County is firm in its belief that skiing originated with its Jumpers a century ago. "Three of these Jumpers have been donated to the State Museum where they will soon be displayed."

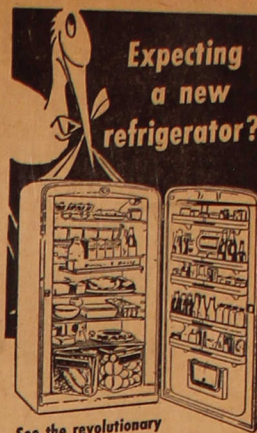

Chirp!

—Columbus, Ohio—

Richard D. Alexander, a graduate student of entomology at Ohio State University, is trying to find out what the cricket is chirping about.

The sounds are graphed by means of an audiospectrograph, a device which puts the songs down on paper.

The student says his research might help explain, among other things, why economic pests are active at certain times.

Earl L. Tustin, 57 years, of Waynesburg R. D. 5, died at 10 p. m. Wednesday, June 15, 1955, in his home on Hargus Creek, after an illness of about one year. Mr. Tustin was one of the oldest employes in point of service of the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company in the local district. He started work for the company October 1, 1919, and spent most of his service in the Rogersville section. For 32 years he was a well tender and was regarded as one of the company's most reliable employes. He became ill in July 1954, but was able to return to work briefly last winter after hospital treatment. Mr. Tustin was a son of Jacob H. Tustin of Waynesburg, and the late Nancy Rush Tustin, and was born February 9, 1898, in Wayne Township. On September 29, 1923, he was united in marriage with Marie Grove. He was a member of Rogersville Christian Church. Mr. Tustin was a charter member of the Quarter Century Club of the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company in the Pittsburgh district and was immediate past president of that organization. Surviving are his wife and father and a daughter, Lydia, wife of Richard Hamilton of Waynesburg R. D. 5; a grandson, Richard Earl Hamilton, and a sister, Mrs. George Kerr of Waynesburg R. D. 5. One sister, Sylvia, is deceased. Funeral services were held Saturday in the Scott Funeral Home, conducted by Rev. Earl B. King and Rev. Franklin Hallman. Interment in Rosemont Cemetery.

CLARENCE BICE

Clarence Bice, 64 years, of Waynesburg R. D. 5, died Monday morning, June 20, 1955, in the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker. He had been ill a long time. Mr. Bice was a son of George and Ella Luellen Bice, and was born February 22, 1891, in East St. Louis, Illinois. His wife, Mabel Gray Bice, died several years ago. Mr. Bice had engaged in farming. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Juanita Walker and Miss Bernice Bice, both of Waynesburg R. D. 5; also two grandchildren. Funeral services were held Wednesday in the Church Funeral Home, conducted by Rev. R. B. Acheson. Interment in Bethlehem Cemetery, Ruff Creek.

Where do 14 million Americans go to save?

Americans save in lots of places. But a definite and very important trend is now taking place: Every day, more and more people are opening savings accounts in insured Savings and Loan Associations.

In fact, Americans are now putting more of their savings account dollars in these Associations than anywhere else!

There are several very simple reasons why this is so:

ONE—Your savings earn excellent returns. You make money because the Associations invest most of their funds in sound, steady-paying home mortgages.

TWO—You enjoy complete safety. Your savings are protected by good management and substantial reserves. They are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation—an agency of the U. S. Government.

THREE—These Associations are local organizations, managed by responsible, experienced people of your own community. They give friendly, prompt and convenient service.

And here's another way insured Savings and Loan Associations can be a big help to you: When you're thinking of buying a home, remember that they make liberal mortgage loans. What's more, they see to it that you get your money quickly and at moderate rates.

It's a good idea to get to know your nearby insured Savings and Loan Association. You'll find it's an important place—and a mighty good place to do business.

Recent Marriages

MAULFAIR-SCHENLEY
Miss Katherine Stewart Schenley, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Stewart Schenley of Waynesburg, and Daniel Raymond Maulfair, son of Mrs. Charles Brenisholtz of Wormleysburg, were united in marriage Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in the First Presbyterian Church. Rev. J. E. Victor Carlson performed the ceremony before the altar which was banked with ferns and flanked with standards of white lilies. The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Dr. Paul R. Stewart, president of Waynesburg College, wore a white satin gown with a yoke of alencon lace trimmed with seed pearls. Her fingertip veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls and she carried white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Marlene Smith of Indian Head, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Jean Madlock of Waynesburg, and Alma Chloe Shives of Fredericktown. The maid of honor wore a lavender taffeta and net gown and the bridesmaids' gowns were blue taffeta and net. They carried bouquets of mixed flowers. Dr. A. M. Minter of Waynesburg, was best man. Ushers were Edison Keener of Brave, Joseph Edwards of California, Daniel DeGrave and Daniel Little of Waynesburg. Preceding the ceremony Thelma Scott, organist, gave a recital, and accompanied James Randolph, who sang "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," and "The Lord's Prayer." A reception was held in the church social rooms. Mrs. Maulfair graduated June 12 from Waynesburg College and has accepted a teaching position in Wiloughby, Ohio. Mr. Maulfair is a pre-ministerial student in Waynesburg College. Among out-of-town guests were Professor and Mrs. Harold Shaeffer of Grove City; Mr. and Mrs. John Staggers of Cambridge, Ohio; Mrs. J. Barnes Woodside of Wiloughby, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cychler of Mentor, Ohio; Mrs. Elizabeth Harding and Miss Louise Maulfair of Wormleysburg, and Mr. and Mrs. George Harding of Scottsdale.

MAIZE-STEPHENSON
The marriage of Miss Mildred Ruth Stephenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cooke Stephenson of Waynesburg R. D. 2, and James William Maize, son of Mrs. J. W. Maize of East Wayne street, took place Friday evening, June 10, 1955, in the Washington Street Methodist Church. Rev. W. H. Miller performed the ceremony. The bride wore a champagne crepe street length dress with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Eloise Fuller, the bride's cousin, was her attendant, and wore a pale blue dress. Ralph Fuller was best man. Mrs. Maize is a graduate of Waynesburg High School in the class of 1948, and later from Washington Hospital School of Nursing. She is employed at Greene County Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Maize was the first Pennsylvania Wool Festival Queen. Mr. Maize graduated from Waynesburg High School in 1946, and served in the Army in the Pacific area. He is attending Waynesburg College, and is employed at the Crucible Mine. For the present they will reside with the groom's mother.

Esther Luse Bell of Clarksville, Marries John William Tuckish in Church

MRS. JOHN WILLIAM TUCKISH

The marriage of Miss Esther Luse Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold K. Bell of Clarksville R. D. 1, to John William Tuckish, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Tuckish of Carmichaels R. D. 1, was solemnized Wednesday afternoon, June 22, 1955, in the Jefferson Presbyterian Church.

Rev. William D. Auld performed the ceremony before the altar which was banked with ferns and flanked by standards of white chrysanthemums and gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white charmingly lace gown over ivory satin. The fitted bodice had a sheer yoke and long pointed sleeves outlined with lace to give an off-shoulder effect. The full skirt ended in a short train. Her veil fell from a half hat of lace over satin, and her flowers were white roses and stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Joan Bell, niece of the bride, was the only attendant. Her floor length gown was a yellow lace redingote over satin and she wore a matching hat. Her flowers were yellow daisies.

Donald Jackson was best man. Ushers were John W. Tuckish, II, Ralph K. Bell and William Taylor.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Bell, wore a rose colored dress.

Mrs. Benjamin Parker played the Lohengren and Mendelssohn wedding marches, and accompanied Mrs. William Auld who sang Grieg's, "I Love Thee," Mendelssohn's, "On Wings of Song," and Guerny's, "O Perfect Love."

Paper Giving Gifts of Stock To Employees

Washington— Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of the Washington Post Company, announced Monday that he and his wife, Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, are giving almost half a million dollars of stock in the company to 711 employees and circulation contractors. The 711 to whom the gifts were made are employees and circulation contractors of the Washington Post and Times Herald, and employees of the company's broadcasting stations— WTOP radio and television in Washington and WMBR radio and TV in Jacksonville, Fla. The gifts were made on the 22nd anniversary of Meyer's purchase of the Post. The new stockholders are those with five or more years of continuous service. They received amounts ranging from four to 20 shares, apportioned on a basis of length of service and responsibilities with the company. Each share has a current book value of $60. Meyer, still active in company affairs although he will be 80 on October 31, made the initial announcement of the gift of stock at an anniversary luncheon, attended by employees of the Washington Post and Times Herald and employees of WTOP radio station.

United Nation's First Decade

By WILLIAM R. FRYE United Nations Correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor This is a month of memories for the United Nations—a month of memories, and of careful, searching self-analysis. The memories are kaleidoscopic. They include bright moments... as when Selwyn Lloyd, the witty and urbane British Minister of State, now Defense Minister, took the floor in the General Assembly after interminable repetition of the same interminable speeches by Soviet, Polish, Czech, Ukrainian and Byelorussian delegates. In perfect Oxford English he remarked: "If I may lapse into the idiom of bebop, dig that broken record!" And there was Stuart Garson of Canada, who observed: "It must be difficult even for Mr. Vishinsky to talk with his tongue in both cheeks at the same time." There are more urgent and serious memories, like the scene in the converted gyroscope factory at Lake Success one Sunday in June, 1950—just five years after the Charter was signed at San Francisco, and five years ago this month—when the Security Council called for "every assistance" in getting the North Koreans back across the 38th parallel. It was a tense and difficult moment. There are triumphant memories, like peace in Palestine... bitter ones, of so-called "Reds in the Secretariat"... and quiet ones, of hundreds of ordinary people streaming into the prayer room to assist in the search for peace. But these are not the sole ingredients of the past ten years. The whole is greater than the sum of the parts. The United Nations is an idea. It is not the same idea which impelled the San Francisco Conference in 1945, but it is just as potent, in its way, and perhaps more practical. The men at San Francisco thought they were building an organization to enforce the peace, but they were 25, maybe 50 years ahead of their time. The new organization was not—and under the circumstances, could not have been—a world policeman. The difficulty was not the veto. A way was found around the veto in 1950, but it made no fundamental difference. The difficulty was and is that you can't "police" a great power like the Soviet Union, you either negotiate with it, or you fight it; and to fight it is world war. Eight years of cold war have put the United States in a positive position to negotiate. Now in 1955, the UN, at its tenth anniversary in San Francisco, is to provide the scene of incipient negotiations. That is what the UN really is—a convenient meeting ground, where antagonists are brought together and given an opportunity to solve their problems, where moral pressure is generated to impel solutions, where mediators and fact-finding bodies and "watchdog commissions" are provided to assist the peacemaking process. The world is not yet ready for a world government. It does need multilateral diplomacy. It needs the conviction—and the proof—that problems are solvable by methods other than war. The UN's principal memories this week are of this peacemaking process, its difficulties and its triumphs.
