Economy League Reports On Tax Rates, Valuations

The 1955 Greene County real estate assessed valuations are $321,225 less than 1954. The loss of valuation in the townships amounted to $356,980 which represents 98.82 per cent of the total loss.

The greatest amount of real estate valuation loss occurred in the eastern townships. This loss occurs annually due to the depletion of coal. Cumberland Township had the greatest amount of loss, $95,782; Greene second with $83,226, and Dunkard third with $69,149. The smallest real estate valuation loss occurred in Jackson Township where the loss was $63.

Two townships showed an increase, Freeport of $595, and Whiteley of $2,595.

The boroughs remained relatively unchanged. The total real estate valuation loss in all of the boroughs was $4,245 or 1.18 per cent of the total county loss. Jefferson Borough had the highest loss of $2,295; Waynesburg, $1,450, and Carmichaels, $600. Rices Landing Borough increased $100. Clarksville, Greensboro and Mt. Morris Independent School District remained unchanged.

Ten municipalities increased their tax rates for 1955. Three of the increased rates occurred in the boroughs and seven in the townships.

Greensboro Borough increased five mills and the Greensboro School District lowered their tax rate two mills.

Carmichaels School District increased two mills, and Waynesburg Borough one mill.

Three township school districts increased their rates: Franklin, three mills; Greene, four mills, and Washington, 17 mills.

Four township supervisor boards increased tax rates: Center, two mills; Gray, one mill; Perry, one mill, and Springhill, two mills.

The number of taxables in the county (persons over 21) increased by 212.

The largest loss of taxables occurred in Waynesburg Borough where 182 persons were dropped from the tax rolls.

During 1954, the county assessors made a complete new list of persons over 21. This accounts for the large amount of changes in the various municipalities. A great number of persons who were being carried on the tax rolls and no longer lived in the municipality were dropped and new names added. In making a new tax roll there are always persons who are missed. Since the tax rolls have been prepared and sent out to the various tax collectors, a large number of names have been added to the original list. The number of additions are not available at this time.

The per capita tax rates for school purposes remain unchanged from 1954 with but one exception. Washington Township School District increased its per capita tax from $4.00 to $5.00.

A substantial increase in occupation valuations occurred for 1955. The Chief Assessor's office revalued the entire county occupation list during 1954, which resulted in an increased valuation of $346,000.

The boroughs increased $69,425, which represents an increase of 20 per cent over the 1954 valuations.

The townships increased $276,575 or 24.84 per cent more than 1954.

The greatest amount of valuation increase occurred in Cumberland Township. The amount of increase was $71,725 or 27.50 per cent.

The largest percentage increase was in Whiteley Township where the increase was $7,775 or 43.74 per cent.

The smallest increase was in Gray Township, the amount being $900. However, this represented an increase of almost 11 per cent.

The smallest percentage of increase occurred in Greene Township. The amount of increase was $1,600 or 9.19 per cent.

Three township supervisor boards levied a per capita tax under Act 481. Aleppo and Gilmore each levied a $2.00 per capita tax and Washington levied a $1.00 per capita tax.

In 1954, there were two townships which levied a per capita tax. Freeport, $2.50 and Washington, $1.00.

'Fighting Tenth' To Reune Here

The "Fighting Tenth" Pennsylvania Regiment of Spanish-American War fame, held its 56th annual reunion Saturday in Greensburg.

Next summer the reunion will be in Waynesburg, and thereafter will be held the first Saturday of August in Memorial Hall, Pittsburgh. The Pittsburgh location was chosen as being most central.

Of the original complement of 921 officers and men, 174 are living and 12 are listed as AWOL on regimental books.

Waynesburg's K Company has the most survivors. Ten of the company's veterans still live in Greene County while 18 reside throughout the county.

At the time of the Spanish Insurrection the Tenth's Companies were stationed as follows:

A Company, Monongahela; B Company, New Brighton; C Company, Uniontown; D Company, Connellsville; E Company, Mt. Pleasant; H Company, Washington; I Company, Greensburg, and K Company, Waynesburg.

The regiment was mustered into federal service May 12, 1898, at Mt. Gretna and embarked June 14, on the S. S. Zealand from San Francisco. They returned to the States July 1, 1899.

The Tenth took part in the Battle of Malate, and other actions.

More than 50 of the regiment served in World War I. Major General Edward Martin, who was a sergeant in K Company; Lieutenant General Daniel Van Voorhis, a corporal in H Company, and Brigadier General Richard Coulter, a second lieutenant in I Company, all received the Distinguished Service Cross.

General Martin also served in World War II.

K Company Privates Victor H. Holmes and Winfield S. Scott, also served in World War I.

In addition to Senator Martin, Company K men present included Corporals Samuel John and Benjamin F. Hamilton, Warren, Ohio; Robert A. Cook, Tallahassee, Florida; Larry Keys, Mesa, Arizona, and Winfield Scott, Enid, Oklahoma.

Smaller Atomic Sub Planned

—Washington—

The government has let a contract for the design and development of an atomic power plant suitable for a small submarine.

The Atomic Energy Commission's announcement gave no hint of the size, but it apparently would be much closer to that of the conventional sub than either the 2,900-ton Nautilus or the 3,200-ton Seawolf. The average fleet-type submarine has about a 1,700-ton displacement.

The contract went to Combustion Engineering Inc., of New York, which thus becomes the third firm designated to plan and design a submarine reactor. The power plant for the Nautilus was built by the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, and that for the Seawolf by the General Electric Company.

The value of industrial products in Greene County in 1954 was less than in 1953 but greater than in 1952, Miss Genevieve Blatt, Secretary of Internal Affairs, announced Wednesday.

The 1954 value was $59,795,000, which is $13,503,200 or 18.42 per cent below the preceding year's figure, but outstripped the 1952 production value of $58,371,500 by $1,424,100.

As was the case in many other counties, Greene County's 1954 industrial achievements failed to reach the 1953 records in other categories also. Last year's 47 industrial establishments employed 7,701 persons and paid them $30,133,800 in salaries and wages. In 1953, reports had been received from 55 establishments which distributed $38,478,400 in payrolls to 8,358 employees.

Reports compiled by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Internal Affairs, however, show that the invested capital of the 47 industrial establishments last year came within one-half of one per cent of equaling the capital investment of the 55 industries in 1953. The total invested in reporting industries dropped from $104,580,900 in 1953 to $104,128,000 last year.

Greene County's decreased industrial activity last year was due almost entirely to a drop in coal production, the industrial reports show. Manufacturing activity, by contrast, increased slightly as shown by the value added by manufacture, a factor which applies to manufactured goods but not to mined coal. Value added by manufacture last year was $1,957,700, a gain of $256,400 or 16.07% over the $1,701,300 value added in 1953.

Fine weather brought out a large crowd to the Greene County Fair which opened Wednesday and will continue through Saturday.

Livestock exhibits are unusually large and halls are jammed with farm produce, flowers and 4-H Club exhibits.

The exhibits of Greene County's seven Granges also attracted much attention. Exhibits centered on the theme "Good All Round Farms."

Racing started Wednesday and there will be five running races and one pony race Thursday and Friday also.

More than 70 horses from Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia are stabled on the grounds. At least 20 are locally owned and trained, which gives much added interest to the racing card.

"The Kaleidoscope of Stars" furnishes excellent entertainment at 2 o'clock between the second and third races, and also in the evening following the horse pulling contests which start at 6:30.

On Saturday afternoon 25 teams from the district will compete in the annual Southwestern Pennsylvania Mine Safety contest. This is the third year this event has been held

The Pioneer History of Greene County, Penna.

Waynesburg College

(The following historical sketch of the founding and growth of Waynesburg College was written by the late Dr. A. B. Miller, who was president of the college for many years, and published in the issue of the Republican bearing the date of June 29, 1899.)

Educationally, Waynesburg College may be regarded the outgrowth of Greene Academy, the latter being the first higher educational effort in Greene County. This academy, located at Carmichaels, was projected by the Episcopal Church. In 1810, Hugh Barclay, Greene County's member in the legislature, secured a charter, and an appropriation of two thousand dollars, to which gift of the State voluntary contributions made some addition. The part of the building first erected is that in stone, to which the brick building was added some years afterwards, the two making a very creditable academic building for the section of the country and at that early date. The charter names, as the first trustees, were Hugh Barclay, Charles Swan, George Evans, James Flenniken, Robert Lewis, Robert Whitehill, who met and organized in 1810; but the work of instruction began several years later, when Professor Ely was made principal and opened "Greene Academy"—an institution widely known in the western part of the state, at least in the later years of its history. The principals in the order of their appointment, were Messrs. Ely, Wakefield, Whipple, Loughran, Miller (G. W.), Long, Ross, Martin, Blaker.

Dr. Whipple, who came from Ohio in 1836, called to his assistance Joshua Loughran, who displayed ability as a scholar and a teacher and in a short time succeeded Whipple in the principalship. So far as my knowledge goes, Loughran's administration was the most prosperous in the history of the academy, and an intelligent resident of Carmichaels says that "during Loughran's stay the institution flourished greatly." It was, so to speak, the culminating period in the history of a school which did a great work. Before and during his stay there was growth; after it there was decline. Subsequent to his withdrawal, the academy doubtless suffered in consequence of Loughran's transfer of his influence and work and many of his students to Waynesburg.

It is not too much to say that this first attempt in Greene County, at higher education was eminently successful. Of its principals perhaps Dr. Albert Long of Constantinople, has attained greatest distinction, being vice president and, as I am reliably informed, practically president of Roberts College, in the Turkish city named—an institution of learning so famous that sons of royalty have been among its students.

Among its early students was Honorable R. P. Flenniken, minister to Denmark in Polk's administration. Here the distinguished A. J. Baird, D. D., whom I regarded as the greatest pulpit orator in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, was long a student and tutor. Of other ministers there educated may be mentioned Messrs. J. C. Waganan, James McFarland, Luther Axtell, James Murdock, E. F. Baird, J. S. Gibson. In the summer sessions of 1847-8-9, I was myself a student, finding in Professor Loughran and Mr. Baird excellent instructors, and among the pupils of the academy a number of excellent young men from the best families in Greene, Fayette, and Washington Counties, with some from counties more remote, and a few from other States—such young men as would give character to an institution of any rank, of whom many have distinguished themselves as educators, jurists, ministers, legislators, etc.

The influence of the academy made Carmichaels and vicinity, an intelligent, thrifty and morally strong community. Though it might not have been possible to sustain it much longer in the shadow, as it had come to be, of a chartered college, it is not surprising that an intelligent member of the community should speak of the closing of the academy as "an event ever to be regretted." It was, however, but the old story of bearing Troy into Italy, for the spirit which founded and fostered Greene Academy, and the impulse it gave toward higher education led to the founding of Waynesburg College. Had Greene Academy not been, Waynesburg College would not be—such seems a reasonable judgment in the premises. And we may now trace more at length the history of the college.

To refer movements to their causes, it may be stated that some dissatisfaction had arisen in regard to Professor Loughran's administration of the academy, and this fact led Honorable Jesse Lazear, whose son had been a student at Carmichaels, and Mr. John A. Gordon, who himself had been a student, to invite Loughran to open a school in Waynesburg with a view to the establishing of a college; and in the autumn of 1849 the school was opened and conducted for a time on the second floor of the Hayes building, on the site of the present Messenger building, northeast corner of Main and Washington streets. At the beginning of the second year or sooner the school was transferred to the brick church on the hill north of town, and Professor Loughran had as assistants Rev. P. Axtell and James Ryal. Also, at the beginning of the year or at farthest by the spring of '51, Miss Margaret K. Bell was associated with the faculty and began a career of teaching that greatly aided in establishing the institution. Meantime application had been made to the legislature for a charter, and on March 25, 1850, Governor William F. Johnson signed a bill entitled "An Act to incorporate the Waynesburg College in Greene County, Pennsylvania." The charter of the college is a very broad and liberal one, establishing at Waynesburg "a college for the education of the youth in the English and other languages, literature, and sciences, by the name and style of 'The Waynesburg College,' the said college to be under the direction, management, and government of seven trustees; and empowering the president and professors to confer all degrees conferred by the colleges and universities of the United States." The preamble to the charter rehearses that the petitioners had, "in process of erection a large building designed for educational purposes," and that they desired "to place the same under the control of the Pennsylvania Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church on condition that a college shall be started in which at least three professorships shall be sustained by the said Presbytery;" and hence the charter provides that of the seven trustees the Presbytery would be entitled to elect four annually, and the stockholders of the property to elect three. In the autumn of 1853 the privileges and rights of the Presbytery guarded by the charter were tendered to the Pennsylvania Synod, a larger ecclesiastical body, and it accepted the same. The charter was amended to adapt it to the change of control, and the number of trustees increased to 21.

The following item sets forth the prerogatives with which the charter invests the faculty of the college:

"Section 4. The president and professors of the said college for the time being, shall have power to grant and confirm such degrees in the arts and sciences, to such students of the college and others, when by their proficiency in learning, professional eminence, or other meritorious distinction, they shall be entitled thereto, as they may see fit, or as are granted in other colleges and universities in the United States, and to grant to graduates and others on whom such degrees may be conferred, diplomas or certificates, as is usual in colleges and universities."

Though the language of this section is open to criticism in a point or two, its meaning is very perspicuous. The chartered powers of the trustees are broad and judicious, embracing every right needful for the government of the college and the enlargement of its facilities. The friends of the college may consider themselves exceedingly fortunate in securing a charter which would now be conditioned, by recent legislation, on the sum of $500,000, as a basis for the establishment of a college authorized to confer degrees.

The charter names as trustees, for the first year: Jesse Lazear, Jesse Hook, W. T. E. Webb, Bradley Mahannah, John Rogers, Judge Mark Gordon, R. W. Downey, William Braden, A. G. Allison, William W. Sayers, Doctor A. Shaw, John T. Hook, John Phelan. Of the 13, who were then prominent citizens, not one survives.

It was doubtless proposed to erect the building by subscriptions, and the records of the trustees speak of steps taken for the collection of subscriptions, but either the subscriptions were inadequate or were, at least in part, not collected; for reliable testimony has it that the contractor, Elijah Adams, afterwards known as "Sheriff Adams," was largely paid from money borrowed of the Farmers and Drovers Bank, certain friends of the new enterprise giving obligations for the money; which obligations, amounting, with interest, to $6,000 or more, were released by the bank; and for this liberal donation by the bank, as it practically was, the college is most largely indebted to Honorable Jesse Lazear who, as I am reliably informed, then owned more than half the stock of the bank; and mention of this transaction is here made, that credit may be rendered to whom credit is due, and honor to whom honor. As I understand the matter, it is to Mr. Lazear, more than to any one person, that the public is indebted for the beneficial support that made the college possible.

the Snapshot Guild

Rainy day pictures such as this make an interesting addition to any family's snapshot record.

Shooting in the Rain

A little while ago we found ourselves whistling the tune of "Singing in the Rain"—and that gave us an idea. Why not talk about "shooting in the rain"? To be sure, a summer shower can be inconvenient, but have you ever thought of taking a picture of one? Not only the rain itself but many other subjects can be photographed to good effect on a rainy day.

If possible, choose a fairly bright rainy day for your picture taking. Then load your simple camera with some extra fast film and you can take bad weather in your stride. (There's a new one on the market this year. Your photo dealer will be glad to advise you on using it.) But be sure to do your shooting from a sheltered spot—a doorway or window will do nicely.

Just remember to keep your camera dry—because raindrops on the lens interfere with its vision as much as they do with yours when they land in your eyes or on your glasses. Naturally, your rainy-day picture won't be a sharply contrasted black-and-white—it'll have a grayish tone with a great deal of atmospheric quality. However, it will be a snapshot that you'll be glad to have in your album—one whose tone and mood give the imagination something to work on!

Curtis-Wright Locates Near Penn State U.

—University Park, Pa.— Pennsylvania State University and the culture it has to offer played a major role in the decision of the Curtis-Wright Corporation to locate in the commonwealth.

"We have to have scientists to conduct our aircraft research and development center in North Central Pennsylvania, and one way to get them is by offering them a site near a culture center."

"The scientific mind is one constantly thirsting for learning and cultural surroundings."

"Unless you can offer a scientist a place where he can obtain these things without too much traveling, you sometimes have a hard time getting them to work for you."

Penn State lies about 25 or 30 miles from the edge of an 84-square mile tract of land the corporation recently purchased and leased from the state to set up its plant. Hill said:

"Many scientists left remote desert locations where they were working on nuclear research because they didn't have access to cultural centers and that is one problem we don't expect to have at our center because of the proximity of Penn State."

The aircraft firm expects to begin actual work on research and development projects before the "snow falls this winter."

Actual construction of buildings began last week on a section of the tract in Clearfield County. The property also includes parts of Elk and Cameron Counties.

Hill noted that two other factors about Penn State were considered favorable for setting up a plant in north-central Pennsylvania. He said:

"We will be able to call upon the many scientific minds at the school to aid in certain projects and we hope to make some use of the nuclear reactor on the campus."

September Draft Call in State 705

The state's quota represents a slight increase over the August call for 684 men.

KEEP ACTIVITY
You can expect a young child to concentrate on an activity for one minute longer than he is years old, Marguerite L. Duvall, Penn State extension family life specialist, says.

William Steinberg, musical director and conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, has announced the complete program schedule for the orchestra's 29th season, which opens at Syria Mosque on October 14. Now available at Pittsburgh Symphony Society offices are handsome brochures listing all dates of concerts, guest artists and conductors, and complete programs for the entire season.

Dr. Steinberg, who will be returning for his fourth season with the orchestra, has invited as guest conductors Virgil Thomson, composer and former music critic of the New York Herald Tribune; Fernando Previtali, dynamic conductor of Rome's St. Cecilia Orchestra, who is making his first American tour this year, and Eduard Van Beinum, conductor of Amsterdam's Concertgebouw. Associate conductor Karl Krutz will conduct three concerts during Steinberg's mid-season leave of absence.

Heading the star-studded list of guest soloists are five who will be making their first appearances with the Pittsburgh Symphony. They are Marian Anderson, world-famous contralto who made her dramatic debut at the Metropolitan Opera last season; Grant Johannesen, brilliant young pianist; Zara Nelsova, Canadian-born cellist; Nicamor Zabaleta, regarded by many as the world's greatest harpist, and Julian Olevsky, young American violinist and one of the most promising of our day.

Among the famous and great artists making return appearances with the Symphony are Robert Casadesu, Szymon Goldberg, Yehudi Menuhin, Rudolf Serkin, Isaac Stern and the incomparable guitarist, Andres Segovia. All have scored brilliantly here in the past.

Scheduled for world premieres during the season are "Prelude and Fugue for Orchestra," by Pittsburgh's Roland Leich; the Symphony No. 3, by Ernest Toch; and Roger Goeb's Symphony No. 4. Eric Korngold's "Symphonic Serenade for Strings" will also receive its premiere at these concerts.

A major change in the subscription series schedule involves a reduction in the Sunday series from twenty to twelve concerts, necessitated by a demand for more concerts in neighboring communities. There will be 20 concerts in the Friday evening series at Syria Mosque as heretofore. Twelve of these concerts will be repeated on Sunday afternoon, and Sunday subscribers will receive coupons which will permit them to purchase tickets for the Friday concerts which are not repeated on Sundays, at the reduced season ticket rate.

Several special events to be sponsored by the Pittsburgh Symphony Society during the 29th season include the sixth annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" with the Mendelssohn Choir on December 6; a presentation of Honneger's classic, "Joan of Arc at the Stake," with Vera Zorina and the Duquesne University Chorus on December 16 and 18; a pair of all-Gershwin concerts to be conducted by Paul Whiteman on December 27 and 28; the fourth annual joint concert with the Pittsburgh Symphony, Jr.; and a Mozart Festival planned for the last two weeks of the season in April.

The complete program schedule and announcement brochure may be obtained by writing the Pittsburgh Symphony Society, 1305 Farmers Bank Building, Pittsburgh, 22, or by calling AT-lantic 1-4752.

Ex-Carpenter Weaves Rugs

—Dakota, Ill.—
Frank Bolender, 87, a retired carpenter, says he has found the secret of growing old gracefully.

"If you're going to sit in the corner and twiddle your thumbs, you'll either drive yourself crazy or six feet under," he says.

Bolender retired five years ago. For the first three years, time hung so heavy on his hands, he says, that at times he hardly felt he was "even existing."

Then he started to keep scrapbooks of newspaper clippings on things which interested him and he began to make hooked rugs.

When he feels ambitious Bolender works on a rug from six to seven hours a day. At this rate it takes him four days to finish one.

Eisenhower Signs $1-Hour Pay Measure

—Washington—

President Eisenhower has signed a bill establishing a new $1-an-hour minimum wage for 24 million workers covered by the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

The new floor becomes effective March 1.

The President approved the bill although he had asked Congress to increase the present 75-cent minimum only to 90 cents. Union labor leaders urged $1.25.

The new law is expected to mean wage increases for about 2,100,000 employees, mostly in the South. Some textile and sawmill workers are among those earning less than $1 an hour now.

Just about half of the nation's 48 million wage and salary earners are covered by the minimum wage provisions of the Federal law.

The principal groups excluded are in retail trade, service industries, agriculture and construction.

The bill signed by the President does not increase coverage, although many lawmakers had urged that such provisions be included in it.

42 Million Aid For Highways

Pennsylvania has been allocated $42,069,979 in Federal-aid highway funds from the $875,000,000 voted by Congress in the 1954 Highway Act to continue the matching program among the various states.

Only New York, California and Texas received more.

Largest part of the allotment will be used for matching state funds on construction and improvement of the urban highway system. This totals $13,129,903.

For secondary or feeder roads, the state was allocated $7,378,453 and for the Inter-state Highway System $9,151,129. The primary highway system will receive Federal funds totaling $12,401,495.

At the same time it was announced that the state will be allotted $59,956 from another appropriation for work on highways in the national forest areas during the fiscal year 1957.

It was explained that the Federal highway fund apportionment is being made five months ahead of the time limit fixed by Congress so that highway work can continue on an accelerated basis.

The $875,000,000 is the balance of the $1,932,000,000 authorized for grants to the states over a two-year period under the 1954 act.

Turnpike Plans Discussed

Members of the West Virginia Turnpike Association at a meeting last week were most favorable to the link to the Pennsylvania Turnpike which would start in Clarksburg, run through northern West Virginia, through Greene and Washington Counties and the Beaver Valley in Pennsylvania.

Judge J. I. Hook, president Judge of Greene County Court, who was spokesman for the Pennsylvania delegation outlined the desirability of bringing the turnpike connecting link from West Virginia through Clarksburg, Fairmont and Morgantown up through Greene and Washington Counties, and continuing up the Beaver Valley to Erie.

Judge Hook stated that the three cities mentioned would be served by such a route and that the extension would be close enough to serve Wheeling with its important feeder routes.

He also stated that Clarksburg and Fairmont need the pike because of industrial expansion. The state has also appropriated a large sum to expand the University of West Virginia Medical School in Morgantown, and additional transportation facilities are needed.

This route would be the most economical since it would be located west of the mountains.

James S. Lyon of the Washington Chamber of Commerce Committee, stated the link will hit Route 31, thus connecting with the East-West pike at New Stanton.

I. S. Sahali, president of the Western Pennsylvania Regional Planning Association, reported that the western route would, "without question, service the greatest amount of people and tonnage." He stressed the fact that this route would be cheaper in construction and would connect with every main artery in the western part of the state, whereas the so-called Allegheny route is longer and the terrain more rugged.

William A. Spaphers, a member of the West Virginia Turnpike Association said that he was extremely pleased with the previous presentation and that "in light of the data and facts presented it would be desirable if the two Turnpike Commissions, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, could have a non-partisan committee appointed to study the most desirable point of connection between West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania delegation stated they would meet with that of West Virginia at the earliest convenience.

Officials of the West Virginia Turnpike Association participating were Robert Hanna of Fairmont, president; E. B. McCue of West Virginia University, Morgantown; Walter Schrader and Clinton F. Israel, managing director and vice president of the Clarksburg Chamber of Commerce.

Western Pennsylvania area representatives were James S. Lyon, highway chairman for the Washington Chamber of Commerce; I. S. Sahali and Arthur Bray, president and publicity director of the Western Pennsylvania Regional Planning Association, both of Beaver Falls; Judge J. I. Hook, president judge of the Greene County Courts, and Calvin Heasley and James H. Ely, president and secretary of the Waynesburg Chamber of Commerce.

Fifty-Year History of Greene County Sports

By GEORGE N. THOMAS

HORSE RACING

From the earliest days of horse racing in the county, horsemen divided into two camps—those favoring harness racing, and those preferring running races. There were those who would compromise—that is, tolerate some of each. Others clung stubbornly to only one type. Both kinds had rather humble beginnings in Greene County. Horsemen, who sensed they owned pretty rapid stallions and geldings, met on Saturdays and raced their best on straight stretches or lanes. In the early days, Stogdale Lane, near Dry, Tavern on the Jefferson road, was the most popular. Eventually, they laid out tracks, the first being the one at Waynesburg's old fairgrounds at the foot of Morgan street, and later at Jefferson, Mt. Morris, Carmichaels, Sandy Plains and Jacktown. Betting—or "wagering" if one cares to be more polite—was a natural offspring of these horse matches. "We didn't come all these miles for nothing," they'd explain. The champions of harness racing were in business from the start. They argued a horse was an animal that was created to pull something. So they'd hitch buggies to their speedy merchants and race to town. The community of Jefferson apparently was more aware of speedy travelers in those days than in modern times. The gendarmes were on hand the day Ollie Sibert rode his fast horse Red H. into Jefferson at high speed. Overhauled, he protested loudly but was ordered, nevertheless, to pay $5 fine. Indignantly, he handed the police a $10 bill and told them to keep it. "But why?" he was asked by the surprised officers. "Because my horses ran off and I'm hunting them, and I'll be galloping through here like lightning again real soon," he replied. As we said, the followers of harness racing were diehards who could remember the early struggle to make horses race by pulling some type of load. In winter, when ice made pulling buggies precarious, horsemen brought out sleighs. Richhill street was roped off to Second avenue at times for horses to try their speed. Blue Ribbon and Frank Fisher were the first stallions listed in the county. That was in 1906. Through the first two decades of the century, the best race horses in the area were owned by Frank Hickman, J. B. Zimmerman, John Blaker (of Mt. Morris), Albert and Marion Shriver, John and Jim Stephens (the auctioneer) and E. L. Denny. Mrs. Denny also had fine riding and driving horses. Billy Hickman undoubtedly was the most desired rider of the times. A little later the Nichols family—Bert, Jim, Nels, Howard and Frank—all rode well. After 1915, the circle of fine horse owners was enhanced by the entry of Floyd Bircher of Jefferson. In the last 25 years before the half century ended, George L. Zimmerman, Tucker Armstrong, Bill Sharpnack (of Carmichaels), the Stephenson and the Higginsons owned probably the best race horses in the county. Among Armstrong's horses was Whiskery, which, in 1927, was the best half-thoroughbred in the county. It was named for the 1927 Kentucky Derby winner. Whiskery almost had to be a good runner. It was sired by Gloaming, a thoroughbred by Upset, the horse that beat Man O' War in the Sanford Memorial Handicap in New York. That was the only time Man O' War was beaten. Armstrong also prized his good winner Crossed Wires, from which came Laurel Run, Easter Comet and Jesse Lu. Zimmerman owned about 500 horses over the years and he had 20 head running in 1949. Most of them were after Gloaming, Johnny Callahan and Gino Beau. Johnny Callahan was a good winner and produced some of the finest race and show horses in

MACKINAC BRIDGE WIRE AND ROPE IN THE MAKING

It's going to take fifteen thousand leagues of wire to bridge the Straits of Mackinac. Highly specialized techniques and experiences are being drawn from a century of wire-making know-how by American Steel & Wire Division in fabricating the 46,000 miles of wire products for the suspension bridge being built for the Mackinac Bridge Authority there. Above are scenes from that U. S. Steel unit's Trenton, N. J., plant, where the steel wire for the two 3,622 foot long main cables as well as for the 368 vertical hanging suspender ropes are being made. Upper left: On this wire drawing equipment, almost 1,300 feet of special high carbon rods are reduced 70% in diameter and elongated over three times original length in just 5 1/2 minutes. Upper center: Here are actual size cross sections of rod and wire showing diameter reductions after each drafting operation. Twelve thousand, nine hundred twenty wires of finished size on right, will make up each main cable. Upper right: Protective armor of silver bright zinc has been applied to wires to protect them from weather and rust. Lower left: Taking the stretch out of a suspender rope with 235,000 pounds of pull. This compacts the rope and removes structural elasticity so the rope will not stretch when installed on the bridge. Lower center: A closeup of a rope under tension in the plant's "prestressing" beds. Lower right: Break-testing suspender ropes. Specifications call for each rope to have a catalog strength of 235 tons—the tester adds over 100 additional tons to see how much more the rope will take. (At 350 tons it broke—note that two of the six strands still remain intact.)

VFW Post 4793 Rifle Team Wins National Title

For the second consecutive year the rifle team of Waynesburg Post 4793, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has annexed the national VFW rifle championship. Official confirmation received by team captain George Summersgill of Sycamore, placed the Waynesburg squad 29 points above their nearest rival in the National Rifle Association sponsored contest. The local team competed against 267 rifle teams from all parts of the nation. Members of the winning team, in addition to Summersgill, are Bob Wilson of New Freeport; Bud Wood of Waynesburg, and Bill Dulaney of Carmichaels. Roy Taylor of Waynesburg, was coach of the champions. A member of the winning team last year he stepped aside this year to make room for Bill Dulaney. Dulaney received a medal for firing fifth in his individual classification. All four members of the team are former Army Sergeants. Summersgill served in the Second Amphibious Brigade in the Southwest Pacific during World War II; Wilson was in the Army Air Force in China during World War II, and Wood and Dulaney were members of Company K, 28th Division, in the post-war occupation of Germany.

Parker Resigns Grid Post At Jefferson; Steve Yourchick Named Successor

Ben Parker, veteran football coach at Jefferson High School for 16 years is relinquishing his post and will be succeeded by Steve Yourchick former Jefferson star and a recent graduate of Waynesburg College. Increased duties as principal of the new Jefferson-Morgan District high school, which includes a senior and junior division, have made it impossible for the veteran mentor to continue his dual duties. Parker, who starred as an end under Frank Wolf at Waynesburg College, directed Jefferson high teams to a record of 71 victories, 13 defeats and 12 ties in his tenure as head coach. His teams scored a total of 6,750 points while holding their opponents to 1,106 tallies. The 1951 Jefferson squad was co-champion of the WPIAL Class B division with Wilmerding. The 1941 team won the former mid-Monongahela Valley conference title, beating Scottsdale, and repeated as champs in 1943 and 1944 by beating Masontown. They tied with Masontown for the conference title in 1942. Parker started coaching in 1936. He did not coach during the '45, '46 or '47 season, having been replaced by Wettle Mancuso. He took over again in 1948 and has held the post until the present time. He was one of the few remaining single wing mentors in the area and developed many individual stars. Yourchick, who is 27 years old, returned to high school after serving in the Navy and graduated in 1947. He played both guard and tackle at Jefferson and at Waynesburg College under the late Stan Keck and John Wiley. In his last year at Waynesburg College he assisted Wiley as a line coach. He taught at the Pitt Gas Grade School the past two years and has been assigned to the new

He will, however, continue as a teacher and as faculty manager of athletics. Albert Mucci, a teacher in the high school who played scholastic football at Derry Township High before he graduated from Waynesburg College, has been named to serve as assistant football coach this year. No successor has been named to fill the wrestling and baseball posts as yet.
