State G. O. P. Opposes Proposed Income Tax

Hoover Urges Group 'Stronger' Than Active U. N.

WEST BRANCH, Iowa. — Former President Herbert Hoover said Friday that if the free nations were to survive they must have a new world-wide organization "stronger" than the United Nations.

"The United Nations has failed to give us a remote hope of lasting peace," he said. "Instead, it adds to the dangers of wars, which now surround us."

He blamed the disintegrating influence of the Communist member nations and proposed formation of a "Council of Free Nations" with headquarters in Geneva to insure the preservation of peace.

The foundations for such an organization already exist, he said, in five regional mutual defense alliances, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He did not suggest that the council replace the United Nations, but that it "step in" when the U. N. "fails to act to preserve peace" or "is prevented from taking action."

Hoover, 88 years old Friday, addressed a crowd of 45,000 assembled in bright sunshine on the sloping green lawn of the new Herbert Hoover Library a few yards from the tiny two-room pine clapboard cottage where he was born.

The occasion was the dedication of the library, situated in the middle of his rural home of 1,050 persons. The $500,000 one-story native limestone structure will house the Hoover presidential papers and mementos.

At his side on the outdoor speaker's platform was another former President 78-year-old Harry S. Truman, overseer of the Truman Library in his own home town of Independence in neighboring Missouri.

Mr. Truman noted that his fellow member of the exclusive Presidents club had been on hand to help dedicate the Truman Library in 1957. He spoke of their mutual interest in American history and praised Hoover for turning his papers over to the government for the use of scholars.

Mr. Hoover, thin of hair and slightly stooped, half sat on a high-cushioned stool and read his speech from a large-print teleprompter installed in the lectern directly in front of him.

Firm of voice despite his age, he said the new organization he proposed should be composed of the 40 nations that have pledged to support each other against aggression in the regional pacts and "others."

He was applauded by the respectful and attentive crowd when he said the organization should include "only those who are willing to stand up and fight for their freedom."

The nation's 31st President, in West Branch for the first time in eight years, said freedom was more secure in the U. S. than anywhere else and that it remained a land of opportunity for the young.

State President of Register of Wills

Harold Dulaney of Waynesburg, Greene County Register and Recorder, was elected president of the Pennsylvania Register of Wills Association at the annual convention this week in Lancaster.

This past year he has served as first vice president. Mr. Dulaney is a member of the executive committee and for a number of years has served on the legislative committee.

Coneybeer Resigns Boro Council Post

Thomas Coneybeer of Jefferson, has resigned his position as a member and president of the Jefferson Borough Council.

Albert Harvey, secretary of the council, said the two vacancies will be filled at the next meeting to be held September 5.

The Pennsylvania Republican Platform Committee meeting in Philadelphia on Wednesday, announced its opposition to a state income tax as a means of meeting the rising cost of government in this state.

Instead it proposed "economy in government to effectuate expanded facilities" and "greater efficiencies" through diligent use of state funds. It maintained new taxes are unnecessary.

In a declaration against new taxes, it was noted that Richardson Dilworth, Democratic nominee for governor, had stated that "new taxes are a probability in the near future," and that he had refused to make a commitment toward "economies in government to spread existing dollars into expanding fields of endeavor."

"We do not think that new taxes are needed," the statement continued.

"We pledge economy in government to effectuate expanded facilities. We categorically oppose a state income tax."

Two attempts have been made to impose a state income tax in Pennsylvania, one by former Republican Governor John S. Fine, and another by former Democratic Governor George M. Leader. Both were blocked by the Legislature.

Other planks under consideration for the platform are:

Expanded facilities for the care of the physically and mentally ill and the aged.

Regulation of the manufacture and distribution of drugs.

Formation of a permanent executive advisory board of business, industrial, banking, commerce and labor leaders to map ways and means of attracting new industry to Pennsylvania.

Requirement that political committees to account for all funds received and expended on an annual basis.

Legislation to speed up court litigation.

Six platform committee meetings are being held throughout the state this week.

Democrats Open Registration Drive

Tom Boyd, chairman of the Greene County Democrat Committee, has appointed the registration committee, for the fall campaign, which will end on September 17.

Members are Charles I. Donley, Democrat State committeeman, of Carmichaels, chairman; Mrs. Donna Vavrek of Nemaquin, co-chairman; James Helphelstine, of Wind Ridge, co-chairman.

The Democratic registration campaign is under way, and a series of field registrations are being set up, and will be announced within the next few days.

Albert Darney of Carmichaels, and Ralph Matz of Waynesburg, have been appointed Democratic county.

Mr. Boyd states that there are 2,101 men and 3,130 women eligible to vote in Greene County, but are not registered.

Charles I. Donley has urged every one to take advantage of this registration period. Registrations may be made daily at the County Registration Office, in the County Office Building, from 8:30 a. m., to 4:00 p. m., and from 8:30 a. m., to 12:00 noon on Saturdays.

County Men's Bible Class Meets Sunday

The 25th meeting of the Greene County Men's Bible Class Association, will be held in the First Christian Church, Waynesburg, Sunday morning, August 19, at nine o'clock.

This year's speaker will be C. W. Frankhouser of Christ Methodist Church, Uniontown.

The Men's Chorus of the Eastern zone of the Greene County Bible School Association, will be featured.

The sponsoring class feels that it has arranged an outstanding program, and invites all men of Greene County to attend.

The President's Message Notwithstanding!

Big Government--Our Peril

The big central-government approach as a solution to all problems is wasteful and arbitrary. And in such a large and widely varied country as ours, with greatly divergent situations and conditions in different sections, it is inefficient. Few laws can be so tailored and adjusted so they will be equally beneficial to Massachusetts, let us say, as they are to Arizona; to Idaho as they are to Pennsylvania. Furthermore, there are two sides to the argument for centralized government. The power and authority to do good is also the power and authority to do harm. This is something the authoritarians overlook. What seems good to you may seem harmful to your neighbor. Those who wield the power and authority today may be replaced by scoundrels tomorrow.

The great tragedy of the headlong drive to concentrate the power of government is that, by and large, it is led by men of good will who, in their eagerness to do good, overlook the potential for evil they are seeking to create. Because they are idealistic themselves, they cannot imagine the government falling into the hands of scoundrels. This is a continuing pattern in the history of government. The idealists create the machinery. The machinery is seized by vicious men. And the idealists are the first to be destroyed by the machinery they have themselves created.

Super-bigness carries with it the power to coerce. This is true in business and industry. To curb this power we have antitrust laws and other legislation of similar intent. It is equally as true of government. Super-big government has the power to coerce directly or indirectly. It also has the power to stifle criticism and subdue expressions of dissatisfaction. As the biggest buyer, seller, hirer and money-lender in the country, it has enormous effect on all those who do business with it. After all, nobody wants to bite the hand that feeds him.

Many large companies and industries today have the government as their most important customer. The government's power to enrich or ruin their business is so absolute that the leaders of such companies and industries are literally tongue-tied when asked to comment on public affairs. It is a rule of business not to offend your most important customer.

The government doesn't have to do or say anything to enforce this kind of coercion. Put yourself in the place of the chairman of the board of a huge enterprise. The government is your biggest customer. You have thousands of employees who depend for their livelihood on government contracts. You have a million stockholders who share in the prosperity created by government contracts. Would you feel free to criticize the actions of that government? Most persons in such a position would feel it expedient to support the powers from which the contracts flow.

Today, the Federal Government is the biggest in almost any area you can mention.

It is the biggest employer. It is the biggest landlord; the biggest landowner, the biggest forest owner, the biggest proprietor of grazing land.

It is also the biggest tenant. It is the biggest lender and by far the biggest debtor.

It is the biggest warehouse, auto-fleet operator and owner, the biggest publisher and the biggest writer of insurance.

The government is the biggest grain owner and storer. It is the biggest power producer. It is the biggest buyer.

It is also the biggest producer and controller of statistics, which form the basis of our economic intelligence. It is the biggest mass opinion-maker.

And, of course, it is the biggest depositor in our banks, the biggest issuer of securities and the biggest deficit operator in the land. The list is absolutely endless.

Beyond all that, government is also our fastest growing industry.

Unless informed opinion calls a halt to this elephantiasis of government, we shall see Washington eventually dominating (and perhaps dictating) every facet of our lives. We are becoming so progressively dependent on government that we someday shall not dare to oppose it. This is the situation as it stands today. No one could possibly call this vast concentration of power healthy. No one could reasonably argue that there is not a threat to individual liberty in the super-bigness we have allowed to occur in our federal government. The President's message Monday evening, notwithstanding!

History of Fairs in Greene County Shows Present 'Free Fair' an Outcome

Carmichaels Plans For Coal Show September 5-8

The annual Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal Festival at Carmichaels, will open Wednesday night, September 5, when exhibits will be put on display.

Kenneth Forsyth, mayor, and the coal queen will cut ribbons at the halls.

Sigmund Roth and Charles I. Donley, co-chairman of exhibits, have announced the following have to date requested space: Fayette Chemical Company; First Aid and Mine Rescue Truck; State Game Commission; U. S. Army Recruiting Service; Rendini Machine Repair; Atlantic Refining Company; two amphibious "ducks" displayed by the Rices Landing Fire Department; Dale's Boats; Angelini's Appliance, with a saw demonstration; Ralph's Appliance.

The parade will be held Saturday, September 8. Ellis Burdette is parade chairman. Antique cars will be a feature again this year.

Ted Pecon and Paul Lesako are chairmen for the banquet at 6:30 Thursday night, September 6, in the Greene County Country Club.

Frankie's Rides will provide entertainment for the week. Advance sale of ticket books is now in progress.

The first fair held by the Waynesburg Fair and Agricultural Association on the present ground was on Thursday and Friday, October 12 and 13, 1911. A third day had been scheduled, but hard rain prevented the exhibition and the track was not in good condition. The directors were somewhat disheartened.

Previously the fair had been held on ground at East Elm and Morgan streets extending to Tenmile Creek.

However, the first fair in Waynesburg was held at Hookstown, now East Waynesburg, and the first ballon ascension in the county was held there. The dates of this fair are somewhat obscured but it is known to have existed in the late 1870s.

The present site was purchased from Robert A. Sayers of Waynesburg. The grandstand and a hall were built under the supervision of Adam Mapel, and used although the deed for the property was not executed until the first day of the fair. It was not recorded until the following February.

The second year, 1912, the fair ran four days, August 27 through 30.

From the Republican file we read "the fair was a big success and attendance exceeded 5,000. Hundreds were transported to and from the fair by automobile and fortunately there were no accidents."

"Racing was fine, the stock exhibits were good, and everyone enjoyed being there."

Lincoln's Slogan Was 'Every Whig To the Polls'

WASHINGTON — The Democratic and the Republican National Committees have fired up the election campaign boilers with quite an assortment of ways to win the voters over.

Both committees are out with campaign manuals which tell how to cultivate all types— young, old, laborer, professional, farmer — and, once you have them on your side, how to get them to the polls in November.

The G. O. P. precinct manual contains a little piece of hopeful advice from Abraham Lincoln. "I do not deny the possibility that the people may err in an election; but if they do, the true remedy is in the next election."

That is the essence of what the national committees are trying to get over to every precinct worker in the nation. As Lincoln put it on another occasion:

"The whole State must be so well organized that every Whig can be brought to the polls. So divide the county into small districts and appoint in each a committee."

"Make a perfect list of the voters and ascertain for certainty for whom they will vote. Keep a constant watch on the doubtful voters and have them talked to by those in whom they have confidence. On election day see that every Whig is brought to the polls."

Republicans Slate Judge Roberts For High Court

HARRISBURG — The Republican organization completed its November election slate last week end with the nomination of Judge Samuel J. Roberts of Erie, for the State Supreme Court.

Judge Roberts was slated by the 113-member G. O. P. State Committee without another name being submitted in opposition.

Judge Roberts, who at 55, is judge of Erie County Orphans Court, will seek to fill a high court vacancy created by the death of the late Justice Curtis Bok of Philadelphia. Should Judge Roberts win, he will serve for 21 years at a salary of $32,000 per year.

Judge Roberts has served on the Erie County bench for 11 years. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., but was reared in Erie. He is married to the former Helene Blumberg of Wyomissing, Berks County. They have one daughter.

The Democratic State Committee will meet here this week to choose that party's candidate to oppose Judge Roberts. The prevailing sentiment appears now to favor the nomination of Judge Earl S. Keim of Westmoreland County.

It is expected that Governor David L. Lawrence will appoint the Democratic nominee, whoever he may be, to an interim term of the Supreme Court pending the November 6 elections and the subsequent installation of the elected jurist.

Statistics Show 9,800,000 Man-Days Lost in Strikes

WASHINGTON — Strikes cost American industry and workers 9,800,000 man-days during the first half of 1962—a 60 per cent jump over last year's January-to-June figure—the Bureau of Labor Statistics has disclosed.

Strike time losses this June hit a two-year high of 2,880,000 man-days, the bureau said, adding that there were 1,920 work stoppages involving 800,000 workers during the first six months of 1962. Both totals were well above the year-ago figures.

Strike idleness during the corresponding 1961 period was estimated at 6,100,000 man-days, a postwar low.

This year, the bureau said, the ratio—17 strike-idled hours to every 10,000 hours worked—was below the level for corresponding periods of all but four post-war years.

The bureau said 410 strikes involving 155,000 workers began during June, about two-thirds of them in manufacturing industries. Both those figures were down from the levels reported for May. Another 240 work stoppages that started in May continued into June.

The bureau laid about half the work-time losses in June to nine major walkouts, each involving more than 5,000 workers.

Among them, the bureau said, were strikes at Republic Aviation Corporation, Farmingdale, N. Y.; construction strikes along the West Coast and in Idaho and Detroit; and walkouts against Eastern Air Lines and the New York Telephone Company.

GOP Names Head to Spur Voter Turnout

HARRISBURG — Samuel K. McConnell, Jr., of Wynnewood, was named to direct a special division of the State Republican Committee to increase voter turnout in the major suburban townships of Pennsylvania.

Mr. McConnell represented his district in Congress for seven terms. He was ranking Republican and chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

Fine weather and the famous Pennsylvania State Police Rodeo attracted a large crowd to the Greene County Free Fair, which opened Tuesday. The fair will continue through Saturday night.

The State Police will again perform at one o'clock Thursday. More than 170 members of the State Police and their dogs take part in a show of great skill and daring.

The lightweight horse pulling contest will be held Thursday night and on Friday night the heavyweight contest will be held.

Walter Procanyn and his Crystal Tone recording orchestra, will play on Friday and the Harvest Moon Polka Champions will present a musical comedy routine.

The Pennsylvania Mine Safety Meet, sponsored by the Southwestern Safety Association, will be held on Saturday afternoon.

In the evening a professional wrestling show will be staged featuring the Crusher and others seen on television. A huge display of fireworks will close the fair.

In the exhibit contest, Carmichaels won first for large Granges, and Hoover's Run first in the smaller Grange exhibit.

Carmichaels used the theme, "The Harvest," and was awarded $75 and a blue ribbon.

Hoover's Run Grange used the theme, "For Everything, There Is a Season."

Harvey's Grange, Graysville, showed the way in which the Grange guards established values. They won second prize money of $55 and a red ribbon. Third place and $35 went to East Franklin Grange for a display showing areas of the world benefited by American farm surpluses.

The theme, "It Takes Tools to Build a Grange," was employed by the Dunkard Township Grange, in its small booth, which placed second. Third place went to Alleppo Grange for its display showing the way in which Grange principles are applicable in the age of missiles.

Competition in the exhibits was strong and judges praised all.

Dunkard Township Juvenile Grange had no competition for top honors in the juvenile competition, winning the blue ribbon for a neat display showing that "Youth is Adventurous."

A complete list of livestock and floral hall winners will be published in next week's Republican.

Exhibits by the Rices Landing Sewing Club, Ruff Creek Foods Club and East Franklin Sew-N-Sew Club took top prizes in the 4-H home economics club competition.

Rices Landing won $15 with their display, "Be a 4-H'er Not a Dreamer."

Jollytown won $10 for their exhibit, "Patterns for 4-H Living."

Mt. Morris took third place and won $5.

East Franklin won $15 in a new 4-H class which was not primarily for food and clothing. Their theme was "Keeping Up With the Times."

Second place and $10 in this division went to the Sugar Grove Clothing Club for an exhibit defining the 4-H Pledge, while third went to the Ruff Creek Sewing Club for its display on 4-H Citizenship.

Others exhibiting are the Green Grove, East View, Carmichaels, Khedive, Rustan, Nineveh, Nemaquin, Monongahela Township and Nebo Clothing clubs.

Other exhibits have been prepared by the Mt. Morris entomology club and Nineveh photography club.

Directors to Attend Bankers' School

Russell McKee of Waynesburg, and John Lucas of Rices Landing, both directors in Rices Landing National Bank, will attend the school of banking and the directors' seminar August 19-24 at Bucknell University, Lewisburg.

Ancient Rose is a Modern Phenomenon

PASADENA, Calif. — Few flowers can boast the ancient lineage of the rose, which historians say has been around for some 32 million years. Yet the rose is still a modern phenomenon—both for the home gardener—and the nurseryman who produces millions of rose bushes each year.

The rose enthusiast today eagerly awaits news of new varieties and the commercial growers are hard at work at the costly, time consuming task of creating them.

Like refrigerators, cars and television sets, the rose must continuously meet new standards. And no industry is more new-product conscious than the rose industry, even though nature puts a tremendous handicap on the professional hybridizer who is trying to come up with a new product.

Retooling for new products in most industries may take one or two years, but the rose hybridizer needs eight years to produce a new variety.

Then large quantities of the new varieties must be grown to produce the bud wood from which mass propagations can be made. Finally, it takes two more years to grow the plants to market size.

The rose has been the undisputed "Queen of Flowers" though the years. Commercially it has been an important item of trade since Roman times. Nero is reputed to have spent more than $85,000 on roses for one imperial banquet.

Today it is estimated that more than 50 million American families grow roses. Annual sales come to close to 55 million bushes, at a cost of approximately $150 million. This adds up to more than 15 percent of total nursery sales, which in 1961 were estimated at over one billion dollars.

In addition to this, roses have another commercial aspect, such as attar for perfume and soap. Attar of roses is a costly commodity, taking roughly 100,000 blossoms to produce one ounce.

Factors that have placed production into the realm of big business include the growth of home construction since the Second World War, with a whole new generation of gardeners showing a preference for the rose. Where grandparents usually cherished a few roses in their gardens, their offspring use them generously.

Buying trends also have changed dramatically since the start of the All-America selections system in 1938. The quality and performance assured by the Nation-wide testing under All-America selections has enhanced the interest in the rose and multiplied the purchases made on impulse alone.

There are more than 8,000 known rose varieties, and while the majority of these are not important in the commercial market, each has contributed to the growing popularity of the rose.

The continuing growth in popularity of the rose—proposed as the national flower by many members of Congress—can be attributed to its beauty, the fact it is easy to grow, its utilitarian use in the garden and the striking displays of cut flowers it provides.

While roses can be grown in every State, the Southwestern United States, particularly Southern California, is considered the rose blanket of the world because this is where the most roses are grown for commerce. It is estimated some 40 million plants are produced there annually.

State Issues Two Leaflets On Pennsylvania

Pennsylvania's famed violinist Ole Bull, and master of finance Albert Gallatin are subjects of two new Historic Pennsylvania Leaflets published by the state's Historical and Museum Commission.

Requests for copies should be addressed to the Bureau of Research and Publications, State Museum, Harrisburg, accompanied by five cents each to cover printing and postage costs.

The leaflet on Ole Bull details the tragic birth and failure of a Norwegian colonization attempt in the upper Susquehanna River region during the years 1852-53. Title to the land the violinist purchased for his utopia proved to be based on fraudulent ownership, and this was one of the chief reasons the colony dissolved. Part of the lands have since become the Ole Bull Park administered by the Department of Forests and Waters.

The founder raised much of the money for his colony by concert tours throughout America. The leaflet records that, as a violinist, he was noted by critics for a "pyrotechnical style and dramatic manner" that captivated mass audiences.

Gallatin, subject of the second leaflet, is known as one of the founders of the American Republic, and was prominent in early financial and political affairs before and after creation of the United States, national and international scenes. His career included service in Congress, and service as Secretary of the Treasury from 1801 until 1814, longer than any other holder of this office, as a minister to France, and as the American ambassador to the Court of St. James.

The leaflet defines his often "misunderstood" role in the Whiskey Rebellion, claiming that Gallatin actually was a peacemaker and not the instigator of the rebellion as charged by his political enemies.

The Gallatin text was written by staff historian Irwin Richman, who also condensed the Ole Bull text from an earlier account written by Norman B. Wilkinson, a former staff member who is now at Hagley Museum, Wilmington.

Rickie and Copper at Greene County Fair

History of Greene County Fair

Rain again prevented harness racing on the last day.

The sum of $10, in premiums and racing purses was posted.

The large racing purses drew fine harness horses, and a number of county residents interested in fine horses drove their entries.

John J. Koebert, later a Greene County sheriff, was in charge of speed. Corby P. Orndorff (father of Charles B. Orndorff of Waynesburg R. D. 3) was in charge of horses; Tarvey Burge, cattle; J. C. Cole, sheep; Harry Barnes (father of William T. Barnes of Waynesburg R. D. 3) swine; Daniel Six, poultry; M. M. Montgomery (father of Attorney Walter C. Montgomery) grounds; J. B. Orndorff, gates; R. W. Munnell, privileges; Samuel Cleaver, police; J. Wesley Closser, chief marshal.

Two airplane flights were scheduled daily with Joe Stephenson of Long Island, N. Y., as the pilot.

On Wednesday, the first flight met with a mishap when a piece of wood flew off a propeller blade as the plane was about to take off. Fortunately, the pilot had a spare propeller with him, but the flight did not take place until seven o'clock that evening. The next day all went well, and those who witnessed the event termed it "a pretty flight."

M. M. Montgomery was the first secretary. The next year P. J. Bradley took over, followed by Harry F. Bally of Waynesburg, who served for a number of years. He was followed by Attorney Ambrose Bradley.

Ten years ago when the Greene County Commissioners began sponsorship of the fair, Charles R. Clark of Waynesburg became secretary and has served since.

In 1912, six fairs were going in Greene County — Jacktown, Waynesburg, Sandy Plains, Mt. Morris and Carmichaels. Carmichaels was advertised as the 60th annual fair and it was then called the Greene County Fair of Carmichaels. Mt. Morris advertised balloon ascensions by "the famous Belmont Sisters," and "parachute jumping."

Only Jacktown, which just finished its 97th annual exhibition, and Waynesburg, now the Greene County Fair, have survived. When the Waynesburg Fair Association was organized it was a stock proposition purchased by individuals. For a time before the fair and ground was purchased by the county commissioners, the fair had ceased to function.

It's Spoon Lickin' Good

Small boys may not understand about the laws of sanitation, but they know a good thing when they taste it.

Few things taste better to children than peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. Jam is as good, maybe a trifle better, than jelly with peanut butter. It is also cheaper and more quickly made and easier to spread than jelly.

All berries, slipskin grapes, apricots, peaches and plums can be turned into delicious jam. Reliable recipes come with the better known brands of fruit pectins. The cooking is quicker and the yield larger when pectin is used. However, if your plums are tart and you don't want to use pectin, here is a good way to make the jam. Better make several batches if you want the children to leave any for the breakfast toast.

Plum Jam
Use any tart variety of plums
8 cups chopped plums 1/2 teaspoon salt
6 cups sugar 2 cups water

Wash, drain, pit, chop and measure plums. Add sugar, salt and water. Boil rapidly until mixture thickens. This will be about 8° F. above the boiling point of water in your locality. Pour boiling hot jam into pint or half-pint fruit jars. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight.

NOTE: Jam may stick and scorch if not stirred constantly while cooking.

fore coming to visit Mrs. Deakin's parents in Charleroi. They left Sunday for New York, and flew home on Monday.

Little League Hurlers Risk Injury To Elbow, Report of Doctors Claims

Appalachian Marks 25 Years As Marked Trail

The Appalachian Trail is marking its 25th year as the longest marked trail in the world.

The trail, 2,050 miles of footpaths and runs from Maine to Georgia, was completed in 1937 by volunteer hikers and naturalists after being suggested as a footpath in 1921 by Benton MacKaye, a New Englander.

The path known as the perfect "refuge" from urban life" meanders through mountains of the eastern part of the United States. It winds through 14 states, eight national forests, and two national parks. It begins at 5,268-foot high Mt. Katahdin in Maine and ends at 3,290-foot Mt. Oglethorpe in Georgia.

Harwick Mentioned In Sports Column

National recognition has been granted Waynesburg athlete John Harwick by Sports Illustrated, a popular sports magazine.

A photo and sketch of Harwick's winning effort in the recent A. A. U. walking championships held at Waynesburg were included in the magazine's "Faces in the Crowd" section.

Harwick, publicity director at Waynesburg College and founder of the Greene County Track Club, has participated in several A. A. U. events across the country.

He recently was appointed Junior Olympic chairman in the western region.

NEW YORK—Dizzy Dean, who said recently that some youngsters in Little League baseball are doing too much too soon, can find support among doctors.

Some medical men say that while proud papa—a frustrated big leaguer himself—cheers him on, many a boy is pitching his heart out—and may be ruining his elbow at the same time.

These doctors have uncovered a condition they call "little league elbow." Scientific papers have been presented on it.

"One youngster even suffered a complete fracture of the arm while pitching," said Dr. Byron G. Brogdon, radiologist from the University of Florida. "He was a Don Drysdale fan and he was whipping the ball in sidarm."

"The boy's father informs me that the arm healed properly and the boy is pitching again, but he's throwing overhand this year."

Dr. Brogdon was among the first medical men to report on "little league elbow."

He first ran across the condition when he was an Air Force major stationed in Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

He noticed that of 137 cases of elbow injuries at the base hospital, 99 involved youngsters nine to 14 years old. Nearly all were Little (9-12) or Pony (13-14) Leaguers.

Since Dr. Brogdon reported on the injury, other doctors have found similar cases.

The elbow is dislocated, and in some cases actually broken. Complete rest is a good cure, Dr. Brogdon said, but in cases of persistent soreness hospital treatment is required.

"The elbow is not fully formed in a boy of that age," the doctor said. "Also in many cases there is not proper warmup."

The doctor said many youngsters are placed on the pitcher's mound, "and inspired to maximum efforts by the adulation of their contemporaries and the exhortations of their often vicariously ambitious parents, at the worst possible time in their lives—as far as the elbow is concerned."

Dr. Brogdon added: "I think the Little League does a world of good. But I don't think these boys should be pushed too hard, especially when the ones doing the pushing are often fathers who are thwarted baseball players."

"The purpose is to teach boys to win or lose, not wreck them."

Erie Walleyes 'Encouraging'

The U. S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries calls reports of successful reproduction of walleyes in Lake Erie in 1962 "especially encouraging."

More than 200 fingerlings were captured in trawl tows; a much higher number than were taken in the corresponding period in 1959 (the year of the last successful hatch). The young walleyes were widely distributed.

Nightmare in The Mud

Once known as the Midsummer Derby, Saratoga's Travers Stakes is the oldest race for 3-year-olds in the United States. One of the more memorable of the 92 runnings of the Travers was that of 1930, which turned out to be something of a mid-afternoon nightmare in the mud. Only three horses were entered against Belair Stud's Gallant Fox, the "best since Man o' War", and the second horse in history to win the Triple Crown. Only one, C. V. Whitney's Whichone, was given any chance to beat the "Fox of Belair". Of the other two, few remember the name of one, Sun Falcon, and none can forget the other, Jim Dandy. As expected, Gallant Fox and Whichone went to the front, and rounding the final turn, were running head and head, when Whichone broke down. Favoring his lame leg, the Whitney colt went wide taking Gallant Fox with him and Jockey Frank Baker shot Jim Dandy through on the rail. Gallant Fox was unable to catch him. Jim Dandy's odds were listed as 100 to 1 but that was in the days before pari-mutuel betting and it was said that some books would have let a player "write his own ticket". This was the only race Jim Dandy won that year and the last of his career; he had won but twice previously as a 2-year-old and one of these had also been at Saratoga, in the Grand Union Hotel Stakes, also on a muddy track and also at long odds, 50 to 1.

Confused Deer Has Stag Party

WICHITA, Kan.—A newspaper carrier, Stanley W. Brown, 17, and his dog, Midnight, were startled by a crash and tinkling glass as they made their rounds early one morning.

Brown stared at the broken window of the office of Charles F. Cuddy & Company, and could see a young deer bounding around inside, jumping upon and over desks and chairs.

Stanley ran to call police. Midnight ran home.

Several attempts to capture the deer were unsuccessful. Finally it leaped out the window and hasn't been seen since.

Thief Carts Off 'Free' Table

GASTONIA, N. C.—"Free Picnic Table," read the road sign beside U. S. 29 near here.

Somebody took it literally. Gaston County Rural Police reported, and hauled off the table during the night.

Giant Ear Scoops Up Signals

A satellite-tracking antenna in New Jersey is so sensitive that it can hear a signal as weak as a billionth of a millionth of a watt, the National Geographic Magazine says.

Two sophomore trackmen became the first Negro athletes to win varsity letters at West Virginia University last spring.

Duck Population Reported Down; Four Flyways Showing Declines

Maple Leafs Name New Coaches

Mapletown High School has revamped its athletic coaching staff due to the resignation of Edward J. Barry of Garards Fort R. D. 1.

Fred D. Bonvenuto of Point Marion, will continue as head football coach.

He will be assisted by Charles Wydo of Point Marion, who has been hired by the Southeastern Greene County Joint School District, as guidance counselor. Mr. Wydo recently resigned as counselor in Albert Gallatin High School, Fayette County.

Robert A. Korcheck of Nema-colin, will act as head basketball and baseball coach in Mr. Barry's place. He teaches English in the school, and will also be assistant junior high football coach.

John J. Lessner, who teaches history and mathematics, will be assistant basketball coach.

Mr. Barry had also taught English for six years. Rev. William Davis, pastor of Sugar Grove and Taylortown Baptist churches, will fill this vacancy.

Also hired was Michael J. Hritz of Waynesburg, to fill a vacancy created by the granting of a one-year sabbatical leave to James D. South, problems of democracy instructor, and head of the visual aids department.

Mr. Hritz, a recent graduate of Waynesburg College, will also be junior high basketball coach.

Eddie Arcaro Day At Waterford

Thursday, August 30 has been designated as Eddie Arcaro Day at Waterford Park at which time the Master Reinsman, now retired, will be on hand throughout the day's program to greet patrons and make a presentation to the owner of the winning horse in the Eddie Arcaro Purse, named in his honor.

Eddie is scheduled to arrive at Pittsburgh's Allegheny County Airport on Wednesday, August 29 and will check into the Pittsburgh Hilton Hotel where he will make his headquarters until Friday, August 31, before departing for his home where he expects to spend the Labor Day holiday.

America's all-time great jockey will be guest of honor at a dinner given by James F. Edwards, president of Waterford Park, in Pittsburgh on Wednesday night. Eddie will then make his appearance at Waterford on Thursday, August 30 where another celebration is being planned for him by the management and officials following the day's racing card.

Golden Eagle Is Threatened

New evidence that the golden eagle is being systematically hunted for the curio market and feather trade and that the bald eagle, our national emblem, is being slaughtered in the process, has been reported by the National Audubon Society.

Conservation groups are backing a bill in Congress that would make it illegal to kill or trap golden eagles except as permitted by the Secretary of the Interior. The bill has passed the House, but has not yet been voted on by the Senate.

The Fish and Wildlife Service reports there will be fewer ducks in all four flyways this year than last.

This is the forecast for this fall's duck-hunting season despite optimistic reports that a drought of several years duration in the continent's primary "duck factory" on the northern prairies might be breaking.

The reduced nesting population, down 17 per cent from last year, decreased production, and spottiness of the improvement in water conditions indicate a reduced fall flight.

Duck populations and subsequent duck hunting have been declining irregularly since 1956. The continental nesting population this year is about 43 per cent below the 1956 level.

The fall forecast was based on a survey by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife in Central and Northern Canada and on information collected in duck nesting areas in the U. S. and other parts of Canada.

The survey report was presented to the Waterfowl Advisory Committee as it began deliberations about this year's regulations. The committee is composed of delegates of the four flyway councils—Pacific, Central, Mississippi and Atlantic.

The water fowl situation and fall flight forecasts for the Atlantic and Mississippi flyways are:

Ducks—Average duck population still below peak levels of 1943-56. There will be a small reduction in this fall's flight as compared with last year.

Geese and brant—The fall flights will be about the same as last year.

Attendance Mark At Cooperstown

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y.—An attendance record for the month of July was established at the Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum when 46,758 visited the historic baseball shrine last month. This total surpassed the previous high of 43,555 in 1957.

Parliament Gives Congress Lesson On Economy

LONDON — Living standards for legislators on Parliament Square and Capitol Hill are as far apart as the ocean that separates them.

A fifth office building is now going up on Capitol Hill because the 537 members of the United States Congress just could not get their work done, they said, in the four they already had. Two of the five buildings are required to house the 100 members of the Senate.

The visitor fresh from Washington searches in vain for anything like this in the British Parliament, which has wound up its session and turned Parliament Square over to the tourists.

There are 630 members of the House of Commons and more than 800 in the House of Lords. But only the Prime Minister and his Cabinet, along with a handful of Parliamentary officials, are provided with office space. The rank and file members of Parliament have no offices at all.

This, however, is only one of the lessons in government economy that the Mother of Parliaments could teach the U. S. Congress.

Take the matter of salary. A member of Congress gets $22,500 a year plus several times that amount for office staff, travel and other extras. An MP gets $4,900 a year for salary and all expenses.

Congressmen flood the mails with self-serving news letters and copies of their speeches. The franking privilege they enjoy takes care of the postage. MPs pay their own postage. As a small concession, they can deduct postage, secretarial help and traveling costs from their income tax.

How can an MP make ends meet on this? He does not. Most MPs are moonlighters. The second jobs they hold vary from journalism to law to business.

With the combined income from the second job and their MP salary, they are able to hire a secretary, provide their own building, and support a family.

But what caliber of MP does Britain get for this pittance?

American theorists still are carrying on the old argument that it is necessary to pay lots of money to attract talented people to politics. But the caliber of legislator here is at least as high if not higher on the average than in Washington.

So say American observers here who are familiar with both capitals. "An Englishman does not become an MP to make money," they explain, "but because of the prestige and importance of the job."

"There is a strong tradition of public service in England," they add, "and politics by and large is a more reputable calling here than in America."

Some MPs save money by having their offices in their homes. Others make use of the Conservative or Labor Party's office in their home constituency. These get quite a workout with "week end clinics."

Finally, the benches around the public lobby in the House of Commons are pressed into service for conferences when a local constituent comes into town to call on his MP.

There's a big contrast between Parliament Square and Capitol Hill in the time of meeting. In Washington, Congress usually goes into session at noon and tries to finish in time for dinner. In London, however, night sessions are the rule for four out of the five days Parliament meets each week. This is to give the MPs a chance to get their moonlighting done before they take up affairs of state.

The British climate being the cool dream that it is in summer, they don't require air conditioning to survive and don't fret because they are unable to get out of town by the Fourth of July.

WORLD PHONE CAPITAL

Figures from "The World's Telephone" show that the United States leads the world in number of phones per 100 persons—35.9. Brazil and the U. S. S. R. are at the scarcity end of the telephone line; Brazil with 1.48 and the Soviet Union with 1.9 per person respectively.

Oil Imports Climb as Coal Use Drops

FOREIGN OIL DAMAGES COAL.—The increased use of imported residual oil in the United States, which has caused a major reduction in the production of coal, is dramatically illustrated in this chart.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The bituminous coal industry of the United States is faced with a situation which could literally wipe out its entire Eastern seaboard and its markets in the Midwest, according to Joseph E. Moody, President of the National Coal Policy Conference, Inc.

Under policies permitted and fostered by the Federal Government, foreign residual fuel oil, a waste product of the refining process, is entering the country in vast volume and under predatory pricing practices which no domestic fuel can compete, he said.

"During the 1962-63 quota year, 185.1 million barrels of foreign residual oil will be permitted to enter the United States for use, in direct competition with domestic coal, by electric utilities and medium sized and large industrial plants," he said. "Imports of 185.1 million barrels of oil are the equivalent of approximately 44 million tons of annual coal production, or almost one-third of the present production for use on the East Coast. Loss of this much tonnage means the loss of 3,170,000 man-days of work for coal miners of West Virginia, Kentucky, Virginia and other major coal producing states.

"This lost work is equal to 16,000 full time miners' jobs, and what the loss of these jobs means to communities in the coal producing areas is almost incalculable.

"Under present government policies, coal has no hope of competing with foreign residual oil in the domestic markets.

"Unless the government gives the coal industry adequate protection from the predatory pricing practices of foreign residual oil, there will be no coal industry."
