Washington Maladministration

Welfare Abuses Shock Probers

Disclosures of wide-scale public welfare abuses and maladministration in the nation's capital has touched off a country-wide survey of public-assistance programs.

The federal government pours nearly $3,000,000,000 into these programs yearly.

Here in the District of Columbia, investigation indicates that more than $18,000,000 in tax funds have gone to welfare ineligibles over the past five years.

Maladministration of the program has accounted for another $18,165 in overpayments to welfare recipients over the past year, say Senate investigators.

More than half of the families drawing aid for dependent children are reported ineligible for such relief.

At least four out of every five recipients of general relief, under the district's $1,300,000 program, were disqualified in a recent survey.

Investigators have been astonished and shocked at these facts brought out in a probe into welfare-program spending.

Between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 in tax money could have been saved in the past five years, in the dependent children program alone, if welfare rolls had been cleaned up, according to Senator Robert C. Byrd, Democrat of West Virginia, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee for the district.

In many cases welfare workers, in closing a case, simply failed to issue stop orders on relief checks.

This resulted in "windfall" payments involving thousands of dollars. The biggest "windfall" uncovered during 1962 was an $8,029 overpayment to a man who had been employed at a salary in excess of his $209 monthly relief grant for three years.

Errors of this kind totaled $24,726 during the last fiscal year. Under previous policy, overpayments may not be recovered if the mistake was made by the Welfare Department. This policy has been reversed since the start of the investigation.

It was found that many families on relief are not so destitute but what they have television sets, color telephones, and extensions.

A count of television sets added up to 167 in 155 homes visited, with two in 12 homes.

Not that television sets or telephones necessarily render a family ineligible for aid. It all depends on who is paying for the sets.

Discovery of a $500 television set in one home led to the discovery that the relief recipient there was working full time.

One of the most absurd programs is that which provides aid for dependent children. Because the mother is not eligible for such aid if there is an employable man in the house, the program has led to widespread deception.

Unemployed fathers have sometimes left home so the wife may draw aid for the children. It has also led to widespread illegitimacy. The more children she has, the more money the mother receives in welfare aid under that program.

These facts have been borne out by a report from the comptroller general of the United States, who charged district mothers on relief with "gross misrepresentation" to the Welfare Department.

The department itself he accused of "administrative weakness."

Congress is itself seen as not entirely blameless in this situation, since the district is dependent upon it for an operating budget. That budget has not been sufficient for the employment of enough social workers to handle the heavy load of cases.

Moreover, the District of Columbia, as a gateway between North and South, has a large influx of Negro population. Many of these land not a job but on relief.

This is not the first time that welfare abuses have come to public attention. While the drastic clean-up measures proposed in Newburgh, N. Y., were frowned upon, former Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff took the hint and not long thereafter took steps to ward overhauling federal public-welfare programs.

He had long felt that too much attention was devoted to relief and not enough to rehabilitation—that is, helping families to get off relief and into jobs.

The new welfare program, signed into law by the President not long ago, has that objective.

For one thing, mothers will be encouraged to work and child day-care centers provided to make this absence from home possible. More attention will be given to re-training the unemployed, and more money made available for the employment of trained social workers.

The nationwide survey of public-welfare programs will begin with aid to dependent children, a program which has risen yearly in cost from $22,853,000 in 1936 when it began, to $1,118,991,000 in 1961.

"The great values of the welfare programs to the thousands of people in genuine need must not be undermined and jeopardized by permitting people who are ineligible and not in need to drain public funds away from the truly needy or from other important public purposes," declared Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Anthony G. Celebrezze.—CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

Dr. Albert Heustis, state health commissioner, urged last week that all polio inoculation programs in Michigan be conducted with the Salk vaccine, which is injected.

Girl, 13 Years, Killed in Crash Near Paisley

Faith Elaine Callahan, 13 years, of Moundsville, W. Va., was killed, and four members of the Callahan family were injured Sunday afternoon about 1:45 o'clock, in an automobile collision at the Paisley intersection of Routes 21 and 18, two miles south of Carmichaels.

David Callahan, 36 years, uncle of the dead girl, was operating the car. He told police he had never driven the road before and did not see the stop sign which halts traffic from Mason-town on Route 21.

The Callahan car was hit broadside by an automobile driven by Ernest Groe, 37 years, of Brownsville. Both cars were demolished.

The five members of the Callahan family were thrown from their car. They were enroute home from Mt. Pleasant.

The father, Paul Callahan, 42 years, who is employed by the Moundsville Echo, suffered a fractured ankle, broken ribs and multiple contusions of the face and scalp.

Mrs. Jessie C. Callahan, 43, mother of the girl, suffered multiple cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries.

Mrs. Lena C. Callahan, 72 years, grandmother, was badly cut on the face and hands.

David Callahan, the uncle and operator of the automobile, suffered multiple cuts and bruises.

All were taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital. The grandmother and the uncle have been discharged, but Mr. and Mrs. Callahan are still patients. The driver of the other car was discharged Monday after being kept overnight. He suffered severe cuts.

Uniontown Center Courses Announced

Sixteen courses will be offered in the evening school of the Uniontown Center of Waynesburg College this fall, according to Donald E. Shamble, Director of Special Educational Services. Recitations will begin at 5:30 p. m. on September 11. Registration of persons interested in taking non-credit work can be done prior to the opening class at the Uniontown Center office.

Waynesburg Borough Council is considering hiring a manager to transact the borough business.

At the meeting Monday night, several members favored this idea. Council holds semi-monthly meetings at which business decisions are made. However, the borough's yearly business is estimated at between $40 and $60 thousand dollars and it is considered advisable to have a manager to direct affairs at all times.

Six applications for the position of borough secretary were received by council, but they were tabled pending action on employing a city manager.

Council asked the street committee to confer with school officials as to the necessity for prohibiting parking beyond high school property on Lincoln street for loading and unloading school buses. Residents of the area are objecting to council action in prohibiting parking, contending there is sufficient space beside the high school without using the area in front of their homes.

Final plans for the new bridge across Purman Run were presented by Frank Church, borough engineer. Plans for sidewalks on both sides of the bridge and steps leading from the bridge to the athletic field were approved. The county is to pay $33,971 and the borough $13,087 for construction of the bridge and approaches.

Four lights not now in use at the borough parking lot, may be moved to the playground to provide more lighting for junior league football games.

No action was taken on a request by insurance representatives that the borough's insurance business be advertised and awarded to the lowest bidder, rather than given out to a number of agencies as is now the case.

Repairing blacktop streets which are wearing out was discussed at length.

Telstar Tells Correct Time

WASHINGTON—Telstar is being used to synchronize the master time clocks in England and the United States, the Defense Department reports.

The first demonstration was made Saturday, when transmitting and receiving stations at Goonhilly Downs, England, and Andover, Maine, flashed time-check signals simultaneously via the communications satellite.

An accuracy of 10 microseconds—one microsecond equals 1/1,000,000 of a second—was obtained.

Using conventional radio communications, the accuracy of these measurements has been about one or two 1/1,000 of a second.

Experts of the naval observatory here said the use of Telstar was far faster and better than conventional radio communications in which the pulse of signal is too variable for accuracy approaching that of the Telstar system.

The master clocks are located in the Royal Greenwich Observatory at Herstmonceux, England, and the Naval Observatory in Washington.

Better Barbecuing Hints

Joy of barbecuing began several million years ago, after an ancestor accidentally dropped a raw brontosaurus steak into a fire. Later cooking moved indoors, and outdoor fires were thought uncivilized. However, today more than 20 million American families cook out, at home or at picnics.

Here are a few tips for better barbecuing: Keep the fire small—it's safer and more efficient. Don't be impatient—that wonderful charcoal flavor does not come from leaping flames, but from the steady heat of a rosy bed of coals, that look ash-grey in daylight.

A too-hot fire will sear food, leave it raw inside. To test heat, you should be able to hold your hand above coals for three seconds. Use aluminum foil as grill liner to reflect heat. Your "barbecue basket" should also include extra charcoal or briquets; tongs for hot coals; a small bellows; asbestos mitt; a sprinkler bottle to control wayward flames.

Your Health

Pennsylvania Medical Society

The average human scalp contains 100,000 hair follicles. Out of each of these tiny cavities a hair grows about a quarter to a half inch a month.

In growing a hair, each follicle has its own way of doing, a phase that lasts for years and then is interrupted for a short rest period of several months, after which the old hair is shed and a new cycle begins.

Because of the long period for growth and the short period for rest, approximately 90 per cent of the hairs are in the growing, with only 10 per cent of the follicles in the rest stage, at any one time.

Normally 25 to 100 hairs are shed daily from follicles that are at rest.

Hairs being less firmly secured during the rest period, the hair loss is increased during the act of combing, brushing, and shampooing.

Cutting, burning, shaving, and other hair removal procedures have no effect on subsequent hair growth.

However, diseases of the scalp, physical injuries and bodily illnesses that produce wasting or scarring of the scalp, may result in damage to the follicles, and baldness.

Scalp infections may be due to fungus, bacteria or virus, with resultant baldness, temporary or permanent.

Male baldness is by far the most common type of natural hair loss, and heredity undoubtedly plays a part in the tendency.

Baldness can be classed under three headings. Mainly, the kind that is irreversible and unamenable to treatment.

Secondly, baldness due to chemical drugs, intoxicants, infections, and injuries, often reversible or arrestable through proper treatment.

The third type is a baldness that spontaneously reverses itself.

Masculine baldness is usually of unknown cause, and there are no miracle cures for it.

School-Agers In State Near Three Millions

WASHINGTON—The school-age population in Pennsylvania will increase to 2,865,000 by 1965, according to an estimate by the U. S. Office of Education.

This would be an increase of about 238,000, or nine per cent, over the 1960 total. These figures cover children aged five through 17.

Their numbers nationally will increase to 50,136,000 in 1965, the report said, a rise of 14 per cent from 1960.

Enrollment in public elementary and high schools totaled 1,998,347 in Pennsylvania in the fall of 1961, the report said.

This is less than the number of school-age children, but Pennsylvania has more parochial and private school pupils than most states and this report does not include statistics for them.

Pennsylvania colleges had 204,401 students last fall, about 150,000 of them full time, the report said. Only New York, California and Illinois had more.

'Easy' Ways To Keep Trim

BOSTON—Okay, so you want to keep trim, but admit you're too lazy to exercise.

Vic Obeck, 44-year-old former professional football player and now professor of education and athletic director at New York University, has a few suggestions for you.

His system—termed "isometric exercises"—takes only 10 seconds and some exercises can be done sitting down.

For example, you may strengthen stomach muscles by pulling in your stomach (for a slow 10 seconds) until it feels as though it's touching your spine. Obeck says you can take an inch off your waist in a week.

To strengthen your arms you may brace them against a wall and try to push the wall down (10 seconds again).

To strengthen neck muscles, lie on your back and try to press your head through the floor (10 slow seconds).

... to dry clothes Sunshine Fresh with a FLAMELESS ELECTRIC DRYER

Just sniff that laundry when it comes out of a flameless electric clothes dryer—no daisy ever smelled fresher! Know why? Electric dryers operate without burning fuel. Only pure, clean electrically heated air flows through your clothes.

It's a breeze! to buy a flameless electric dryer because it sells for less—simpler construction—fewer moving parts.

It's a breeze! to install—in many cases, a flameless electric dryer can just be plugged in. If additional wiring is needed, your dealer can arrange for it at very low cost.

It's a breeze! to place a flameless electric dryer anywhere you want it—no flues are needed to vent fumes. Terms are a BREEZE, too. Ask your dealer. He's the man with the answers.

Bedtime FOR YOUNG AMERICA...

*Now I lay me down to sleep
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
'And if I die before I wake
I pray the Lord my soul to take.*

That our sons may be as plants grown up in their youth; that our daughters be as corner stones . . . Psalms 144:12

Every night when darkness falls over the land, hundreds of thousands of young Americans conduct their own vesper services with this little prayer. Does this happen in your home? "Oh," you might say, "There will be plenty of time for church when they grow up. Why should they bother with evening prayers now?" Perhaps . . . But why bother with school, either? Knowledge comes easier later on. Why not send them to school then? The plain fact of the matter is—you can't! To live a full, useful life in America today requires thorough preparation. If a child is ever to fulfill the dreams of his parents, his schooling must begin early. If he is to have the spiritual assurance upon which he must build his life, he must build the foundation early. That foundation is laid with prayer—in his home, and in his Sunday School. Ruskin said that when you give just a little love to a child, a great deal more comes back. That holds good for prayers. Give your children the chance to pray . . . God's love always comes back . . .

Indians Supply 'Paleface' Army

HAYWARD, Wis. — When a couple of Hayward businessmen wearing ancestral deerskin business suits and feathered head dresses showed up at Chicago recently to sign a $351,000 Army contract, they created something of a stir.

A generation ago, it might have been even more so.

The last member of the Lac Court d'Oreilles Band of the Chippewa Nation who considered himself technically still at war with the palefaces is of comparatively recent memory.

But no peace pipe was required at the contract signing. The deerskins and feathers were just a way representatives of the Shelton Basket Company have of dramatizing their firm on the Court d'Oreilles reservation and largely owned and operated by Indians.

And tribal crafts won't be much involved in fulfilling the Government's order for 162,000 wooden ammunition boxes. Spokesmen for the firm say they could underbid competitors on the contract because the raw material can be cut from the band's woodlands in this northwestern Wisconsin forest area.

The Indians got into this business when casting about for an industry to improve the reservation's economy. The Shelton Company was languishing in Shelton, Conn., when scouts carried back the message and a corporation was formed to purchase it for the band.

Indians own 62 per cent of the company stock, and three members of the band are on the board of directors, including vice president Steve Taylor. President of the company is Thomas Duffy, a Hayward attorney.

The move into the competitive contract field came when plant manager Carl Mooney felt that his firm would have capacity and hands to spare after 1962 orders for 70,000 baskets were completed.

MADISON, Wisconsin — Lumber company executive William H. Miller, on his 104th birthday anniversary, complained: "They won't renew my driver's license." Miller drove his own car until he was 100. A one-time steamboat engineer, he founded a lumber company in Madison 76 years ago.

GERMAN LABOR PINCH

Instead of being nagged by an unemployment problem, West Germany is concerned about the possibilities of an acute labor shortage.

Next First Family?

Congressman William W. Scranton, Republican nominee for Governor, has as much concern for the future of his native state as any parent. Here he looks fondly at his wife, Mary, and their four children perched on the rear of the family station wagon at their home in Lackawanna County. The two boys seated on the wagon top are Joseph, 12, and Peter, eight. On the tailgate are son William, 15, and daughter Susan, 16.

Lone Ranger Creator Dies

BUFFALO, New York — Fran Striker, originator of the fictional western hero, the Lone Ranger, was killed Tuesday in a two-car collision on Route 16, about 12 miles southeast of here.

Striker, 58, created the Lone Ranger for a Buffalo radio station in 1943, and the same year sold the show to Station WXYZ in Detroit. The Detroit station signed Striker to a five-year contract as program director.

The character has been the source of widely re-run television series, 18 books, two motion picture serials, two full length movies, numerous comic books and newspaper strips. He wrote the editorial matter for the comic sections until the time of his death. However, he had sold the rights for the material several years ago.

Dulles' Estate Worth $1,137,674

NEW YORK — The late State Secretary John Foster Dulles left a gross estate of $1,137,674 and a net estate of $862,579, it was revealed Tuesday in a surrogate's court inventory. Dulles died May 24, 1959, at 71.

Federal taxes on the estate were $242,412. The estate tax will be assessed by the court.

Principal beneficiary was Dulles' widow, Janet, of Washington.

Hoover Case Was Cancer

NEW YORK — Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center announced Tuesday that an intestinal tumor removed from former President Herbert Hoover a week ago was cancerous. The statement said "no recurrence is anticipated."

The statement that no recurrence was expected was taken to mean that surgeons are satisfied they removed all the cancerous tissue during a three-hour operation August 28.

Mr. Hoover, 88-year-old Republican elder statesman, went through the operation in good shape and has been reported making a satisfactory recovery. He smoked his favorite pipe, took regular nourishment and walked about his room, and resumed reading newspapers and messages.

Flu Vaccinations Urged This Month

The Public Health Service has recommended that Americans begin vaccinations this month to avoid "serious consequences" of widespread influenza outbreaks this winter.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry urged that the vaccination series be completed by mid-December, before the onset of the flu season.

"Recent and past patterns of incidence indicate that many outbreaks of (The Asian Flu) will occur during the 1962-63 winter season," Mr. Terry said.

He said persons who have previously been vaccinated for the disease will need only a single booster shot but that two doses, two months apart, are recommended for those who have not been inoculated previously.

School Bells in U. S. Will Summon Fifty-one Millions

WASHINGTON — The Government said a record number of students will troop to U. S. classrooms this fall.

But it expressed concern about those who refuse to return to school.

An estimated 51,300,000 students will enroll in the nation's public and private schools for the 1962-63 school year, a two million increase over last year.

This will be the 18th consecutive year that enrollment, from kindergarten through college, has risen, the Office of Education said.

However, at least 800,000 of the 2,400,000 children entering the first grade will have dropped out before their classes graduate in 1975, the agency predicted.

The department expressed its concern over the dropout trend in releasing a pamphlet entitled "School . . . Or What Else?"

The publication will be distributed through schools, youth organizations and employment offices.

It advises youths that in addition to the personal satisfactions of a better education, they will find jobs easier to get and will make more money both at the beginning of their work careers and when they reach middle age.

The pamphlet said that during the 1959-60 school year, 22 out of every 100 dropouts were unemployed compared with 13 out of every 100 high school graduates.

Despite the dropout rate, now running at 30 per cent, high school enrollment is expected to hit 11,700,000 this fall, an increase of 900,000 over last year, the Education Office said.

Enrollment for kindergarten through twelfth grade is expected to hit 46,700,000 this September, an increase of 1,700,000.

College enrollment is expected to increase 300,000 to 4,600,000 this fall.

Government officials said the "first really sharp" increase in college enrollments will come in 1965 when high school graduates born in 1946 move on to college.

Wheeling Downs Opens Meet Friday; Many Improvements Made for Patrons

County Sportsmen Organize to Battle Pollution

Sixty-five sportsmen met Friday night at Clarksville to discuss means of alleviating the pollution of Ten Mile Creek.

Joseph Yuhas of Clarksville, was elected temporary chairman of a group which will endeavor to schedule meetings of the sportsmen and representatives of state agencies which are involved.

Ralph Garrison of Waynesburg, field representative of the Department of Health, was to have been present but could not attend. Mr. Yuhas said his group hopes to meet in the near future with Mr. Garrison and other officials.

Sportsmen contend the north fork of Ten Mile Creek is being polluted at Marianna by the Bethlehem Coal Corporation and at Zollarsville by the Republic Steel Corporation, with a result that many fish are being slain.

Clubs represented at the meeting were the Centerville Sportsmen's Club, Isabella Rod and Gun Club; Fin, Fur and Feather Sportsmen's Club; Ten Mile Sportsmen's Club; Nemaocolin Sportsmen's Club; Waynesburg Sportsmen's Club, and Fredericktown Field and Stream Club.

County Track Club Athletes in Meet

PITTSBURGH—Four Greene County Track Club athletes competed in a 5.6 mile Age-Group race walk Sunday at the Bunker Hill Reservoir in Highland Park. The event was part of a 10-mile medley race held in sections of two, three and five miles.

Seven-year-old Barry Harwick paced Greene County in the five-mile walk and in the 10-mile medley. Others from the county scoring were Bob Harwick, Dennis Haines, Dave Haines, Challen Matthews and Ray Tennant.

GREENE STREET GARAGE

Open 24 Hours

With opening night set for Friday Wheeling Downs winterizing program is moving rapidly along as scores of workmen have moved in to speed up completion of the herculean job.

The club house is undergoing a complete change-over in its physical appearance as one improvement after another is being made, starting at the entrance and going through the entire area.

A long sweeping driveway, entirely under cover, leads into the brand new entrance of the club house, allowing patrons to drive up the broad passageway, unload and enter the club house under full cover. At no time during the evening festivities will the guest be subjected to the elements. Everything is now indoors where air-conditioning and heating facilities are being installed.

Both upper and lower club house areas are being glass enclosed under the personal supervision of John Dallas of Wheeling. The steel stairways, leading to the upper club house, have been removed and new ones built in, going directly from the entrance and in reverse position, facing the outside instead of from the inside as had been the setup before remodeling started.

Wheeling Downs has been allotted 32 nights of racing, starting Friday and running through Saturday, October 20. Post time for the entire 32 night is 8:00 p. m., and there will be no racing on Mondays.

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day Honker's Rendezvous

Meadow Stable's filly championship contender, Cicada, called attention this season to one of nature's phenomena, the 17-year locust. However, the reappearance every 17 years of the Cicada, the bug, not the horse, cannot be explained. Nor can Centennial Race Track manager, Ivan Thomas, explain the gathering of the geese each year at his race track at Littleton, near Denver, Colorado. It started with the opening of the track in 1950. A flock of about 75 flew in from Canada, made a reconnaissance pass and proceeded to settle in the infield. There they stayed, honking and waddling as though they had an interest in the proceedings, but never venturing onto the track itself. They stayed throughout the season and took off for points south on the final day of the meeting. They have returned in increasing numbers each season since, arriving as the meeting got under way and taking off the night it ended. Hollywood Park, too, has geese, but they are the domestic variety, and, some suspect, merely an excuse for the pretty goose girl who attends them. Saratoga has swans and a traditionally empty canoe on its infield lake. Aqueduct has seagulls, but can't help it. Centennial's geese are strictly volunteers. The unromantic who demand an explanation for everything say it is because the track feeds them. OK, but who tells the geese when the Centennial race meeting opens and closes?

West Point's 'Theft' of Head Coach Spurs Drive of Congress for Reforms

WASHINGTON—One of the outcroppings of this session of Congress is that a mere change of jobs by a football coach touched off a drive for drastic reforms in the selection of youths for admission to the nation's service academies.

The coach involved is Paul Dietzel, 38, graduate of Miami University of Ohio, who in January broke a contract with Louisiana State University to accept a five-year contract as head football coach at West Point.

Dietzel had been phenomenally successful at the Louisiana school, and his desertion stirred the hot southern blood of the alumni, including Senator Russell B. Long, Democrat of Louisiana, son of the redoubtable Huey.

Senator Long and his fellow alumni were sore at both Dietzel for breaking his contract and at the military academy authorities for inducing him to do so.

Along with hiring Dietzel to amend its ailing football fortunes, the West Point athletic department embarked on an aggressive recruiting program aimed at enrolling officer material that could run faster and block harder than the kind it had been getting.

Inevitably this annoyed other football-minded institutions. As Senator Long pointed out to his colleagues this month, a football scholarship at Louisiana State is worth about $1,600 a year, whereas the athlete recruited by the Military Academy receives an education which costs the taxpayers $11,000 a year.

The opportunity for vengeance was not long in arriving. It came when the Military and Air Force Academies asked for legislation permitting them to enroll additional cadets in order to keep their student bodies at their full authorized strength of more than 2,500.

This was because of the heavy attrition each year at the service academies because of academic failure, physical disqualification and voluntary dropouts. Normal attrition at West Point is approximately 220 a year.

This gave Senator Long and several of his colleagues the chance they had been awaiting to accuse West Point authorities of wilfully evading the laws and regulations for selection of cadets.

The attack centered on West Point where Dietzel happens to be the coach. As Senator Long said: "While I do not wish to confer any cloak of immunity upon the Air Force or the Navy, it does appear that the Military Academy is the chief culprit at this time."

The great bulk of service academy appointments is made by members of Congress, each of whom is allowed four cadets at one time at West Point and the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, and five midshipmen in the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Other appointments are awarded competitively among enlisted men in regular or reserve units of the armed services; sons of deceased veterans; graduates of accredited military schools and to candidates chosen directly by the President.

While some congressmen still distribute service academy appointments as patronage, most of them pursue the more prudent course of selecting their principal and three alternate appointments by competitive examination.

In his attack on the West Point athletic department, Senator Long cited several cases of evident violation of the resident clause—cases in which congressmen with vacancies on their lists were persuaded to appoint athletes sought by the Military Academy.

He named one athlete from Mississippi and two from South Carolina, all signed to football scholarship contracts at southern schools and all subsequently wooed away by nominations to West Point by congressmen from other states.

Senator Long accused the military academy and the Army of shielding their recruitment actions behind a cloak of secrecy. He said he had been refused information on grounds that academy policy forbids disclosure of results of competitive examinations and also from revealing to any congressman the name and address of another congressman's appointee.

To correct what he called these abuses of the law, Senator Long tacked on an amendment to the service academy bill which provides that the secretaries of the three armed services must provide Congress each year with a list of each appointee to a service academy together with the name of the congressman or official who nominated him.

He was defeated in an attempt to add another amendment which would have stripped the officials of the service academies of discretion in filling vacancies in their schools.

The net effect of the southern uprising over the Dietzel switch of coaching positions may be far-reaching. It may in fact lead to a full-dress congressional investigation of the system of appointment to the academies.

Such a move already has been proposed in a resolution offered by Senators Kenneth B. Keating, Republican of New York, and Joseph S. Clark, Democrat of Pennsylvania, calling for taking the power of appointment of cadets and midshipmen completely out of the hands of Congress.

High School Grid Season Opens Friday; Red Raiders Host McGuffey Joint

Scholastic football resumes command of the district spotlight this week as 18 of the 20 high school football teams in Greene and Washington Counties lift the curtain on their 1962 seasons.

An even dozen games involving Greene and Washington schools are on tap for Friday night with four more slated for Saturday.

The 12 Friday night games are

Hitting the High Spots By JACK HAMMERS

With the start of another football season, we once more have decided to try our hand at predicting the outcome of high school contests. The first week always proves to be a "head-ache" as no past performance is available on which to judge a team. However, must start some place, so here's what we see for this week's action:

Charleroi over Allegheny
Fort Cherry over Bentleyville-Ellsworth
Braddock over Bethlehem-Center
Burgettstown over Weirton Madonna
California over Monongahela
Donora over Canevin
Canon-McMillan over Monaca
Waynesburg over McGuffey Jt.
Monessen over Perry
Avella over St. Anthony
Washington over South High Catholic
Trinity over West Allegheny
Carnegie over Chartiers-Houston
West Greene over East Washington
Mon Valley Catholic over Mt. Pleasant
South Union over Carmichaels

Central Pool to Remain Open

The Central Swimming Pool at Waynesburg will remain open for an indefinite period in response to many requests for a repetition of last fall's post season swimming.

For the convenience of school children the pool will be open each week day from 3 to 7 p. m. and the usual week end hours of 1:30 to 7 p. m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Many persons, including a number of adults, took advantage of last year's post season swimming as it gave them their first chance to swim at a time when the weather frequently is at its best.

The pool is operated by the Greene County Recreation Authority, a public agency. It is rated one of the best in the area in sanitation, water purity, general administrative practices and rigid observance of all water safety regulations.

HARD RIDERS OF ROME

The marks of chariot wheels can still be seen on Rome's Appian Way after 2,000 years, the National Geographic Magazine says.

CHASING RABBITS

Only a greyhound can run down a jackrabbit. Coyotes and foxes must resort to their wits to catch it.

In one instance a coyote ran in a straight line for several hundred yards and attained a top speed of 43 miles an hour.

expected to draw between 45,000 and 50,000 fans into area stadiums, while another 10,000 or more will witness the Saturday clashes.

Locally, Friday's opening card finds the Red Raiders of Waynesburg High entertaining the grid-ders of McGuffey Joint High at College Field; Washington at home with South Hills Catholic; Trinity appearing at West Allegheny; Avella entertaining Follansbee St. Anthony; Bethlehem-Center at home with Braddock; Bentleyville-Ellsworth playing at Fort Cherry, Burgettstown opposing Madonna at Weirton, Canon-McMillan at home with Monaca, Charleroi entertaining Allegheny, California visiting Monongahela, Donora at home with Canevin, and Monessen hosting Perry High of Pittsburgh.

Two of these games are divisional battles as Bentleyville-Ellsworth, Fort Cherry, McGuffey Joint and Waynesburg, risk survival in the W. P. I. A. L. Class A race in their first outing.

Saturday's schedule finds East Washington meeting West Greene at Rogersville, South Union appearing at Carmichaels, Chartiers-Houston meeting Carnegie, and Mon Valley Catholic playing at Mt. Pleasant.

Carmichaels, South Union, Carnegie and Chartiers-Houston risk Class A standings, while West Greene and East Washington face elimination in the Class B title chase.

Two other area schools—Jefferson-Morgan and Mapletown—see action for the first time next week, playing each other on September 13 at Jefferson.

Records of district schools last season were: Avella, 9-0; Bentleyville-Ellsworth, 4-3-1; Bethlehem-Center, 4-4-1; Burgettstown, 7-2; California, 3-6; Carmichaels, 6-3; Canon-McMillan, 4-5; Charleroi, 8-2; Chartiers-Houston, 0-7-1; Donora, 5-4-1; East Washington, 3-4; Fort Cherry, 6-2-1; Jefferson-Morgan, 3-5-1; Mapletown, 6-1-2; McGuffey Joint, 2-6; Monongahela, 1-8; Mon Valley Catholic, 2-6-1; Trinity, 4-5; Washington, 8-1, and Waynesburg, 6-3.

Dr. Salk Coins a Word: Bionauts

"Super stars" of science will make up the research team of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies.

Dr. Jonas Salk, who will direct the Institute at San Diego, Calif., quite often draws analogies between sports and science.

He once said, modestly referring to his historic role in developing the polio vaccine, that "I just happened to be in the right place to catch a long forward pass."

Today he might select another sport and say that the Institute faculty members are the Mickey Mantles of science—they can hit home runs from either side of the plate. Dr. Salk points out that in recruiting his Institute Fellows he searched for and found versatile scientists "who have all been trained in a field other than that in which they are working today."

They possess more than one skill or field of knowledge. They are not limited to biology. Some of the 10 Fellows already appointed are equally at home in higher mathematics and physics.

This unique combination of imagination and intellectual curiosity has been described by many as the magic formula needed today to achieve the conquest of disease—from the common cold to cancer. They believe firmly that an assault on disease of any kind and magnitude planned by Dr. Salk and his colleagues could pave the way to revolutionary thoughts.

Dr. Salk

Just as the Mickey Mantles depend on the baseball fans who pay their way through the turnstiles, construction of the Salk Institutes will depend on contributions from the general public. This summer all across the nation a campaign is in full swing to raise $15,000,000 to build and equip the Institute.

The drive is sponsored by The National Foundation through the March of Dimes. It is a renewal of the partnership between all Americans and Dr. Salk—the man who did so much for them in developing the polio vaccine, and will do so much more as director of the Institute.

As another way of describing the scientists who will work at the Institute, Dr. Salk has coined the word "bionauts." "If we can speak of astronauts," he asks, "why can't we think of 'bionauts'—scientists who are capable of doing in biology what has now been done in the fields of space and of atomic physics?" He envisages the Salk Institute as a sort of launching pad for the gifted "bionauts" of the scientific world who will comprise his faculty.

The conditions under which the Salk Institute "bionauts" will pursue their studies are probably unique. The physical as well as the intellectual atmosphere of the Institute has been designed so that the individual scientist can concentrate fully on productive work and thought. Laboratory equipment will of course be the most modern. A highly specialized reference library on biology and related fields will be maintained. The whole environment is designed to spur the Institute Fellow toward daring and uninhibited original thinking on how to reach the goal he is seeking—faster.

In most great universities and other research centers scientists are obligated to invest a great deal of their time in teaching and in administrative detail. There will be none of these time-consuming duties for the faculty of the Salk Institute. Its members will spend all of their time on pioneering projects. Moreover, they will have complete freedom to launch whatever projects they elect and may change the direction of their research if they wish.

Experts familiar with the scientific world and its leaders agree that the 10 Fellows selected thus far are entering the stage of their most productive period. Their average age is 49 years but seven of the 10 are even younger.

Dr. Warren Weaver, vice president of the Alfred P. Sloan

Foundation and a Salk Institute Nonresident Fellow who is often described as the "elder statesman of American medical research," is 67; but Dr. Melvin Cohn, a famed American biochemist now with the Pasteur Institute of Paris, and a Salk Institute Resident Fellow, is only 38.

Dr. Leo Szilard, long-time professor of biophysics at the University of Chicago and celebrated worldwide as one of the "architects of the atomic bomb," a Nonresident Fellow, is 63. But Dr. Edwin Lennox, an American microbiologist now also on leave at the Pasteur Institute, and a Resident Fellow, is only 41.

Dr. Jacob Bronowski of London, a Resident Fellow who is well known in the United States for his books and lectures, is 54. His versatility is outstanding—in

by

On several occasions, the President has emphasized to us that the future belongs to the industrious and strong, the courageous and determined; soft and idle nations will be "swept away by the debris of history."

Despite these stern warnings that we must all work harder and with greater determination to preserve and improve our country, the Administration persists in a policy that encourages softness and idleness.

Abuses are widespread. A family with 23 children in New Jersey receives almost $1,000 a month under the aid-to-dependent-children program. Six persons in New York defrauded the public of $41,900 in unemployment benefits by falsifying work records. In Hollywood, a child actor turned down a $28 a day job and was rewarded jobless pay. He had been used to $150 a day and wouldn't consider the lesser paying job. Some cases have been uncovered where four generations of a single family were on relief. It is common practice to pay benefits to seasonal workers and employees on vacation.

When the Federal Government got into the welfare business in the depression, it was an emergency measure designed to provide relief only after private and local charities had exhausted their funds. President Roosevelt noted this policy in 1935.

Listen to what he had to say about public relief in 1935 after two years' experience with the Federal Emergency Relief Administration established to care for the jobless: "To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit. It is in violation of the traditions of America. Work must be found for able-bodied but destitute workers. The Federal Government must and shall quit this business of relief."

But we made Federal welfare big business. More than $37 billion was paid out in benefits in 1961, and this does not include such welfare-related activities as farm price supports, urban renewal, aid to depressed areas, etc. Late last year, the New York Times reported seven million people on public assistance. Cost to taxpayers: $4 billion. The administrative costs to investigate, keep records and pay out this dole amounted to almost half a billion dollars. Social Insurance, Health and Medical Payments, Veterans' Benefits, and other welfare payments help swell the grand total to $7 billion.

Public welfare pay-outs have increased eight-fold since World War II. Old age pensions to both men and women at age 62 continue to grow, financed by rising taxes paid by workers and employers. Amendments of 1950, 1954 and 1956 made millions of people eligible for pensions after only nominal contributions. Last year, unemployment benefits, paid by taxes from employers only, hit a new high of almost $4 billion.

Despite generous social security payments and veterans' benefits (4 1/2 million recipients), the costs of public relief are mounting. Additional welfare programs grow in number and cost each year. Piled on top of public programs is support from employers and organized charities.

In February, President Kennedy asked Congress for: Federal aid for work relief and on-the-job training, a permanent program to aid children of unemployed parents, an extension of payments to entire families rather than just dependents, a raise in federal grants to states from 50 percent to 75 percent of the cost of rehabilitation, special training for social workers, larger allowances for the expenses of welfare recipients who are working. Hitting medical care to social security benefits and liberalizing unemployment benefits were also top priority Administration targets.

These proposals are a complete about face in policy for Federal welfare. Once a last resort, to be called in only when local means were exhausted, the Federal Government is now taking prime responsibility for all the problems of the needy.

Welfare for non-workers not only costs money; it undermines the morale of the entire country. Relief becomes a substitute for wages; an escape from self-support. We all know of men who get more on relief than they can earn, after taxes. In time, a man on relief loses the will and capacity for work.

At long last the New York Times reports: "President Signs Welfare Reform — Far-Reaching Revision of Federal Program Hailed". If the Administration really wants a strong, courageous and resourceful nation, it will quit advocating larger and larger handouts and eliminate the free-loaders.

What is needed instead of handouts is encouragement for private enterprise to create more jobs.

WATCH YOUR STEP!

Each time a pedestrian steps off the curb, he risks meeting Death in the street. Last year, 76 pedestrians were killed when they entered the street from between parked cars. Hundreds more were injured, maimed or crippled.

Watch your step! Cross only where it's safe—at intersections or pedestrian crosswalks. And look both ways before you take that crucial step—the one off the curb.

Work as Service

MOST people have work to do. It may be that of a homemaker, a builder, or a business executive. The important thing about employment is not what one is doing, but how one is doing it.

The Bible states that Christ Jesus was once a guest in the house of Martha and her sister, Mary. Mary listened to Jesus while Martha busied herself about the house. Martha wanted to be hospitable, but she was over anxious. Becoming flustered and irritable, she cried out (Luke 10:40), "Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me."

Jesus replied gently and compassionately, "Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things; but one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her."

Jesus knew that the one thing which we need above all else is a spiritual understanding of God and of man in His likeness. When we begin to gain even a glimpse of God's all-wise, all-loving government of the universe and man, we stop running around in circles or worrying about our work. We learn to listen for divine direction, to let God's law control all the minutiae of daily affairs, to reflect spiritual energy, and to express divine wisdom. Jesus, who was the mightiest as well as the meekest man who ever walked this earth, disclaimed any personal ability. He attributed all power to God and said (Luke 22:27), "I am among you as he that serveth."

Before he became a great teacher and healer, Jesus was a carpenter, and we can be certain that he was a good carpenter and that he performed the humblest tasks as perfectly as he could and to the glory of God.

Christian Science teaches that God, Spirit, is the only cause and creator and that His creation is spiritual and perfect. Man, the highest idea of God, reflects the divine qualities of wisdom, intelligence, understanding, power, love, purity, health, and harmony. These spiritual qualities are demonstrable in human experience, and if our sincere desire is to serve God with gladness, our daily duties will be accomplished with ease and satisfaction.

Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 40), "It is said that the phrase divine service has come so generally to mean public worship instead of daily deeds."

A woman was washing dishes and finding it tiresome and distasteful. Suddenly she remembered hearing an experienced Christian Scientist say that there are three ways of performing a task: as labor, work, or a sense of service. She saw that labor implied arduous toil; work was practical efficiency; but service was joyful and inspirational activity. She considered her task afresh in the light of this thought and realized that what she was doing was a means of bringing cleanliness and order into domestic affairs. She felt deeply grateful to God for a harmonious home and for loving companionship, and she saw that the willing performance of humble tasks was an opportunity to express that gratitude in service. The work was accomplished swiftly and happily, and weariness fled.

We all have the ability to do our work intelligently, patiently, and lovingly. As we aim at perfection in every task we undertake, with a deep desire to serve God and our fellow men, we shall gain an ever-increasing sense of spiritual satisfaction, self-completeness, joy, and peace of mind.

Mrs. Eddy writes in "The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany" (p. 195), "To do good to all because we love all, and to use in God's service the one talent that we all have, is our only means of adding to that talent and the best way to silence a deep discontent with our short-comings." —The Christian Science Monitor mathematics, philosophy and history.

Dr. Salk has remarked that the professional and cultural interests of the Fellows happily overlap. At a recent meeting of several of these scientists in New York City, they chatted with vivacity of organizing competing string quartets at the Salk Institute next year, of sailing and swimming in the Pacific, even of shooting a round of golf now and then. These "super stars" of science who may be expected soon to revolutionize biology and thus "help make the most of his gift of life" are human beings, too.
