President Kennedy Seeks '62 'Re-Election'

President Kennedy is trying to do what other American Presidents failed to do—turn a mid-term election into a national election.

He is devoting a lot of time to it. This past week he was out three days. This week he will be out four.

Television, radio, jet airplanes, and helicopters make it possible to cover marginal districts, where the fate of the new House of Representatives will be decided; and the big-population states, where status-symbol governorships hang in the balance. The President will be out each weekend until election day.

Now that Congress is almost through, Mr. Kennedy is opening up a frontal attack on the Republicans in Congress. Things Mr. Kennedy did not say while Congress was in session he is saying now.

While Congress was battling over his controversial measures Mr. Kennedy did his best to get support from the northern liberal Republicans on whom, repeatedly, everything depended. Mr. Kennedy did not want to alienate the Republicans while he could still get some votes.

But now the record is almost in, and the tally is made. Mr. Kennedy says that the bulk of the Republicans were against him and he is counting the score.

Occasionally, he mentions the conservative Southern Democratic opposition, too, but not very often.

Until it passed, the trade bill was "bipartisan"; now it is "our bill."

Mr. Kennedy is not alone in over-simplifying; Republican leaders are hard at work, too.

President Kennedy is making hard-hitting speeches, the results of which can't yet be judged. He goes down the list of a dozen or so domestic bread-and-butter issues and declares that the bulk of Republicans opposed him on each.

President Kennedy is making tentative corners. He does not bother to point out that normally Republicans presented alternative proposals.

President Kennedy is not lambasting Republicans the way Harry Truman used to do. He can't denounce the 87th Congress, because it was a Democratic Congress.

The stakes in the unprecedented presidential drive are big.

Can a popular President change the result of a midterm election? Presidents Wilson, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Truman, and Eisenhower tried it; nearly everyone agrees they failed.

President Kennedy is trying harder than any before. He knows that the next two years hang in the balance.

He is hitting less violently but more persistently than his predecessors.

U. S. Reported Eating More Meat

WASHINGTON—The Agriculture Department says that Americans are eating more beef, pork, poultry, and dairy products than they did 25 years ago.

In 1961, as compared with the average of 1935-39, the department said, each American had: 161 pounds of meat instead of 127; 38 pounds of poultry instead of 15.6, and 386 pounds of dairy products instead of 374.

"In 1958-60, we got 67 per cent of our protein from animal products," the department said. "In 1909-13, we got 52 per cent from cereal products, dry beans, peas, nuts, and other foods."

The department said that cereals constitute two-thirds of the diet of the peoples of Japan and India. Red meat and dairy products represent about 2 per cent of the Japanese diet and about 4 per cent of the Indian diet.

Flier Discovers Large Island

MONTREAL, Canada—An island nearly as big as Connecticut, in Canada's Foxe Basin north of Hudson Bay, was discovered in 1948.

Aids in Flight Of Astronaut

CHARLES W. JACOBS

Chief Warrant Officer Charles W. Jacobs of Waynesburg, helped provide continuous communications between Astronaut Walter Schirra and Mercury Control during the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's third manned orbital space flight.

Mr. Jacobs, a communications officer, was a member of a special Air Force Communications Service team which set up air-ground radio facilities in a remote section of the Pacific at a point on the route of flight. The team also was ready to provide communications for recovery teams in that area if needed.

The warrant officer, who entered the service in July 1940, is permanently assigned to the 1st Mobile Communications Group, Clark Air Base, Philippine Islands. A graduate of Waynesburg High School, he is married to the former Elizabeth I. Patterson of R. D. 4, Waynesburg. His mother is Mrs. Allen Jacobs of R. D. 3, Waynesburg.

Long Snarled-Up Congress Battles To End Session

WASHINGTON—Congress will try to extricate itself from its few remaining legislative snarls before the end of the week and bring to an end its longest session since 1951.

With Congressional elections only four weeks away, many members have pulled out to hit the campaign trails without waiting for the adjournment they had hoped for.

Not since 1951, during the Korean War, has Congress stayed in session so long. In that year, adjournment didn't come until October 20.

Still to be acted on before the windup of the present session are half a dozen appropriation bills, a highway financing bill, a public works authorization bill and an assortment of other measures.

Also standing in the way of adjournment is another bill already passed by Congress—a measure that would permit professional men like doctors and lawyers and other self-employed persons to set up partly tax-deductible pension funds for themselves.

Sponsors of the bill are afraid that President Kennedy won't sign it and they want to keep Congress here until after the Wednesday midnight deadline for him to act. In that way, they will be in position to try to override a veto.

Another stalemate is threatened over a bill to authorize a host of rivers and harbors and flood control projects, for which funds would have to be appropriated in later years before construction could begin.

As passed by the House, the measure authorized $2.25 billion for water projects. The Senate jacked this up $4 billion.

The House on Saturday passed an appropriation bill providing $3.9 billion for foreign aid, more than a billion dollars under President Kennedy's original request.

'A Fed-Up Citizen'

Constructive Legislation

American youth, and perhaps youth everywhere, seems almost inevitably to arrive at an age of rebellion. This is not necessarily bad, for that exuberant spirit may be turned to good. This rebellion we see is not necessarily confined to youth. Sometimes we observe it in the older ranks—and often with favorable results.

The educational director for a large group of Western newspapers recently received a letter from a gentleman who signed himself simply, "A Fed-Up Citizen." The writer described himself as the proverbial average man until he came across the record of his great grandmother's trip across the Great Plains. His letter continues, in part:

"As I read, I began to think about America and being an American and what it all stands for; and I thought about our enemies and what they intend to do to that America, to those rich lands and farms, to the cities and the people, to its freedom and its hope. And suddenly I realized that I am a sick American. I mean really sick. I am sick of panaceas and of backing up. I am sick of reaction where there should be initiative. I am sick of bureaucrats who tell me that my enemy is not really my enemy and that I should live together with murderers and tyrants. I am sick of government that won't clean out its own offices. And I'm sick of being a nice, patient guy about it. I am sick of placidly accepting excuses instead of being a silent gentleman about it for fear of controversy.

"I am sick of my country being ridiculed all over the world. I am sick of politicians who place personal careers above the fate of the flag.

"I am sick of forty years of relentless, creeping, cancerous communist godlessness that never once has wavered from its avowed purpose of conquering that flag and seeing it trampled in the mud under Russian boots. I am sick of genteel desires to stand pat and hope the enemy will vanish. I am sick of those who teach tolerance of subversion and of leaders in all fields who would have me equal at the spectre of battle and turn my other cheek in fear of what our enemies might do.

"In all honesty, the thing of which I am sickest is the man who let these things come to be—myself.

"And by the living God who made me, sir, I am a sick American who intends to get well."

This sick American has, in all probability, read these words by Abraham Lincoln: "It is difficult to make a man miserable while he feels he is worthy of himself and claims kindred with the great God who made him."

The primary aim of those we call the Mistaken is to end freedom. The primary aim of those we call Constructives is to maintain and strengthen freedom. Thus the line is clearly drawn, and what remains is for Constructives to determine how they can best attain victory.

Just Thinking!

By JIM DENT

Have a mother—a very dear Mother

In fact the only Mother I've ever had

Who celebrated her 90th anniversary Monday of this week.

While I've only known her for seventy years

She having been older than I (which I understand was standard procedure in those days).

Still under the existing circumstance putting up with this old curmudgeon for seventy years she's wonderful.

Had a grandfather, too: Dr. George Washington Dent whose name is on a plaque in Rivesville, West Virginia

as a co-signer of the first American Medical Association

You could dig him up tomorrow and the cadaver would be better looking would have more insight into today's world's troubles

Would be a better Democrat with a damned sight more personality and know-how the best days of his life.

Than Just For Kinfolk

Ilex and Flowers Add Flourish To Home Scene

Flowering trees have been winning their way with home gardeners in recent years. In the South the decorative dogwood, either pink or white, has long had a firm place on the home grounds. Now, more and more in the north, flowering crab apples are blooming on spring lawns, whether the place is large or small.

Magnolias also are being planted, and pink dogwood, with an occasional flowering plum, flowering cherry, or flowering almond, the latter more likely to be shrub shaped. But it is the crab apple that appears most often, and no flowering tree is prettier in spring and more satisfactory all the rest of the year besides.

Crab apples are extremely hardy and will withstand the rugged northern winters that are sometimes too much for the Japanese cherries or even the dogwood. There also seem to be more variety in the kinds to choose from—in the shape of the tree, the color and habit of bloom, and the size and quality of fruit. If you are planting for the birds, furthermore, be sure to include a crab apple. Birds will love it in the spring and later will enjoy the small fruits.

Autumn in the north is the time to set out spring-flowering fruit trees. Choose a location that will give your tree room to show off its flowers and its interesting shape. They run fairly small when mature, and there are also dwarf forms of some of the favorite larger kinds. The dwarfs are small enough to be planted in the shrub borders. Standard sized trees grow to about 15 feet.

A great favorite is Malus Hopa, an abundant bloomer in deep pink to maroon, that will thrive in any soil, is perfectly hardy, and bears toward late summer clusters of small red apples that make good jelly or are valued by the birds. Katherine is a fine white. The buds are pink, but soon the whole tree is white as if made of wired strings of popcorn. There is a weeping form, Pink Weeper, that showers down like a fountain; and there is a very Japanese one, Malus Red Jade, especially spectacular when covered with its red fruits in autumn.

Most brilliant red-flowering crab to date is Malus-Crimson Brilliant, a beautiful round-headed tree that grows to about 15 feet high. The blooms are abundant (beginning about the second year after transplanting) a deep crimson, and the fruits are purpled about the size of a cherry. It is a patent of Wayside Gardens in Ohio.

Popular among other flowering fruit trees are the purple-leaved plums, which bear pink blooms in early spring followed by bronzy foliage and small fruits. The plums grow to about 10 feet. The best flowering cherries are the Japanese varieties, beautiful early-blooming trees in pink or white.

Any of the flowering fruit trees makes a decorative specimen tree on the lawn or near the flower border. It is also lovely for its beauty and light shade by the terrace or near a window of the house where it can be enjoyed from inside.

Flowering trees of other sorts include the pink or white Hawthorns with their bright haws in the autumn that the birds love; the favorite mountain ash or rowan tree, beloved by robins for its Chinese-red berries; and the Laburnum or Golden Chain tree with its pendant flower clusters like wisteria blossoms, only gold.

Cliser. Mrs. Neff presented her aunt with a decorated birthday cake. Her son, Delmont, spent the weekend with his mother.

Indian Summer

This is America's show-time. This is our Indian Summer, when field and hill and woodland unite in glorious blazes of color. Never have the clouds seemed so full, the skies so blue, the days so right for living. It is also the time when we prepare for things to come. Granaries are filled. Fences are mended. Roofs are repaired. And over town and country alike drift the autumn's two most beloved trademarks—the sharp, clean scent of burning leaves, and the familiar aroma of the kitchen, where fruits and vegetables are slowly simmering into goodness on the fires. . . . The hand of God—the "Great Provider"—is

Be of good courage, and he shall strengthen your heart, all ye that hope in the Lord.
Psalm: 31-24

everywhere evident now. But throughout the year, God provides for us in an even more important way, if we but give Him the chance. Through Him, we can all prepare for coming events by fortifying our souls with a faith that cannot be shaken, no matter how severely our hearts and minds are tried. We need the material security so evident everywhere in America in Indian Summer. But we also need a spiritual storehouse of moral reserve that only our churches can help us to build. No man can neglect it. And by attending church regularly, he will earn a great, though simple truth—that the strength of God is also his own.

'A Fed-Up Citizen'

tive approach to problems that affect our individual freedoms and our national welfare must be based in three essentials:

- 1. A knowledge of the nature of these problems;
2. A real concern about these problems; and
3. Willingness to take constructive action to help solve the problems.

Because of the reckless economic course our federal government has pursued during the last thirty years, and because of the insidious attacks of the Mistaken force against our free institutions, the United States is faced with fearful risks.

These hazards make certain decisions incumbent upon Constructives.

We must decide how important we believe it is to save our personal enterprise system and our individual freedom. If we care enough to devote even half an hour a day to freedom's cause, then we may make great progress.

If we make an effort to encourage and do business with commercial concerns that let their patriotism show in their advertising and other public relations activities, we will find our strength is increasing in geometrical, rather than simply arithmetical progression.

If we see clearly that this is the "contest for keeps," to be decided now, we may determine to prove by resourcefulness and by trial and error, the precepts which are workable and which will save our liberties.

We must firmly know that in this life and death struggle, the Mistaken can win without changing their plans and actions. But the free world, now losing at the rate of 12,000 human beings per hour to communist domination, will surely lose unless it changes its tactics—and the changes must come through United Constructive effort.

Freedom—the most worthy objective attainable to man—must be made the topic of our conversation, our policy, our plan, and the core of our living. With courage and determination and knowledge on our part, the very imminence of the danger becomes an asset, spurring us on in the most vitally important struggle in which Americans have ever been engaged.

Constructives can work together to save freedom for all. This is how that great patriot, General Omar Bradley, defines freedom: "Freedom—no word was ever spoken that has held out greater hope, demanded greater sacrifice, needed more to be nurtured, blessed more the giver, damned more its destroyer, or come closer to being God's will on earth. May Americans ever be its protector!"

Two Flags Will Fly Over Canal

BALBOA, Canal Zone — The flags of the United States and Panama will fly side by side when the new "Bridge of the Americas" across the Panama Canal is dedicated October 12, officials have announced.

The road bridge, built at a cost of $20,000,000, lies entirely within the Canal Zone.

One Panamanian flag already flies on Canal Zone property as evidence of Panama's titular sovereignty over the area. Panama granted the United States "all rights as if sovereign" over the zone before the canal was built.

Officials said the Panamanian flag will soon also fly alongside Old Glory at several other points in the Canal Zone. These include the administration buildings on the Atlantic and Pacific sides.

Popular opinion already has dubbed the new structure the "Bridge of the Americas," although its official name is the Thatcher Ferry Bridge.

One out of twelve of the population will require mental hospital care at some time during his life.

The encouraging fact is that a patient who enters a mental hospital for the first time has an 80 per cent chance of being discharged within a year.

Even schizophrenics have a fifty-fifty chance of being discharged within a year.

After a year though, the prospect of leaving the mental hospital diminishes.

About 16,000 people become chronic mental hospital patients each year, spending up to fifty years as in-patients.

There are some new tranquilizing drugs which have a place in modern psychiatry as symptomatic therapy.

These drugs are popular and extensively used in mental hospitals.

Such tranquilizing drugs bring about sedation without hypnosis or danger of addiction.

They generally calm down excitement, reduce the need for seclusion rooms, and benefit ward atmosphere, and the morale of nurses and attendants.

They do not cure, and cannot allay excitement in each and every case.

Nor can they take the place of psychotherapy, with its attendant insulin shock or electroshock treatment.

The new tranquilizers have no curative benefit for personality disorders such as criminalism, alcoholism, and drug addiction.

And they cannot be expected to reduce the number of schizophrenics who will enter hospitals in the future.

But there is value in tranquilizers for the acutely excited or chronically agitated mental patient.

Modern treatment of the mentally ill provides new hope, century, the National Geographic Magazine says.

Yellow Jackets Undefeated; Meet St. Vincent Next

Waynesburg College Yellow Jackets pushed Carnegie Tech's Tartans around Saturday afternoon, winning 25 to 6. The game was on Tech's field.

Waynesburg took a 2-0 record into the game at Tech Field and showed enough stuff in passing, running and defense to justify its label as a first-rate power among the district's small colleges.

The Jackets had 17 first downs to Tech's 9, and they also gained 109 yards in passing to the Tartans' 56.

A Waynesburg back, named George Washington, showed the ability of the man for whom he was named. Stanek, Fullerton, Laurent, and Everson were standouts for the Jackets.

Saturday afternoon Waynesburg will play St. Vincent at the Homecoming game on College Field.

This was the second exhibition game for the Rockets, who are in Class B contests.

The Fayette countians scored first in the second period when quarterback Al Andria pushed the ball across from one yard out to climax a 60 yard drive, but the try for the extra point failed.

Minutes later Jefferson forged into a tie when reserve quarterback George Alexander flipped a short pass to end Brent McClellan, who skirted the sidelines for 31 yards and the touchdown. Joe Burich added the extra point with a perfect placement to put his team ahead.

Conference Standings

Pre-season predictions which pointed to a battle between defending champion Westminster and Waynesburg are holding up in the West Penn Football Conference.

Last week's action saw Waynesburg remain unbeaten by dumping Carnegie Tech (25-6) while Westminster opened conference play with an exciting win over Grove City (8-7).

Two other West Penn teams lost exhibitions last week. Improving Geneva lost a thriller to Southern Connecticut, 28-21, and St. Vincent fell to powerful California State, 40-6.

Waynesburg would have probably been happy to let its 13-6 half-time score stand against Tech.

Tech, winless and scoreless in its first two games, proved a tough nut for the Yellow Jackets to crack. Waynesburg's size and depth proved too much the second half for the game Tartans.

The Titans scored a first period safety and a second period TD before Grove City hit the scoring column in the final quarter.

Overall the West Penn elevens are 7-10 with Waynesburg (3-0) and Westminster (2-0) leading the pack. Then comes Grove City and Geneva (1-2) each, and Carnegie Tech and St. Vincent (0-3 each).

A full slate of action is on tap this weekend with every West Penn team in action.

Geneva is at Westminster, St. Vincent at Waynesburg, and Carnegie Tech at Grove City. All three games will be Homecoming contests for the hosts.

City Finds Sheep Worth Their Salt

LANCASTER, PA. — Next spring this city plans to expand its mowing operations with a sheep operation.

Alex McIntyre, superintendent of the City Sewer Bureau, says that an experiment, in which two sheep were used last spring to keep the grass of a sewer plant mowed by eating, worked so well he plans to put six sheep on the job next spring. Total cost last spring was 37 cents—for salt lick.

SAFE DRIVING TIPS

KEEP PENNSYLVANIA "THE SAFE DRIVER STATE"

By Walking Safely

Although many pedestrian accidents occur because drivers break the law or disregard the rules of courtesy, more frequently it is the pedestrian himself who is at fault.

When you're a pedestrian, always observe these safety rules:
Obey traffic signals.
Never cross diagonally at an intersection.
Never cross in the middle of the block.
Don't enter the street between parked cars.
Walk on roadways facing traffic.

If every pedestrian had observed these few safety rules last year, 5,574 accidents, and 262 pedestrian deaths might have been prevented!

Motorists Warned To Watch for Deer

Several thousand Pennsylvania motorists will probably learn, with regret, that deer don't give a darn about crossing highways this month and next. Reports from Pennsylvania Game Commission field officers over the past four years show that October and November are the two top months in accidental

Electric Clothes Dryer Easy On Family Budget

Do you think you can't afford an electric clothes dryer? Well, after you find out how it actually saves money, you might change your thinking. Home laundry experts say there are a number of savings that can be made by the owner of a dryer.

Many families find they do not need so many clothes. With a dryer you can run a load through your washer and have them dry in a jiffy. You don't have to wait for good weather to do the laundry. Some of the new fabrics don't even require ironing.

Although the sun and wind are free, you may think that you save by using the extra effort needed to hang your clothes on the line. However, that may not be the case. Did you ever notice how the sun fades some of the colors? Such clothes last longer and stay new looking when you use a dryer.

Families with growing children often find that dryer savings are considerable. For instance, the dryer handles diapers so quickly and easily that many families find they don't need to use diaper service.

When older children are growing by spurts, there usually are many garments discarded because they are outgrown. With a dryer, the clothes can be washed and dried quickly and you need fewer changes. That growing youngster can get far more wear out of each garment. Some estimates are he may need only half as many clothes.

According to one study, here are some amounts of money you may be able to save with a dryer.

A sample testing showed that families clothed babies for an average of $29.00 a year where dryers were used. For families without dryers, the cost averaged $75.38 a year.

A year's clothing cost for a seven-year-old boy was $42.34 with a dryer, but averaged $85.21 when dryers were not used. Likewise, figures for nine-year-old girls were $71.55 and $125.25.

In addition to savings of money, another important item is your time. Some estimates are that dryers dry clothes 15 times as fast as line hanging methods. How important is your time?

The career of Jimmie Van Zandt is living proof that the Great American Dream can still come true. In his climb from laborer and seaman to business executive, Admiral and U.S. Congressman, hard work and determination were, of course, important. But Jimmie's most important characteristic can be summed up best in the words of others: "See Jimmie Van Zandt... he'll do his very best to help you."
