Heat Needed to Dry Field-Shelled Corn

Heated air is the key to successful drying of field-shelled corn in Pennsylvania, according to W. L. Kjelgaard and E. F. Olver, agricultural engineers, the Pennsylvania State University Agricultural Experiment Station. Note the air ducts on the floor and the grain distributor in the ceiling of this experimental bin. The distributor prevents the formation of trash "pockets" that invite mold, The men are installing moisture-temperature measuring units prior to filling the bin with corn. Wagon drying of field shelled corn, as some farmers cure hay, also was satisfactory in tests, Drying equipment must be capable of removing about 8,000 pounds of water each 24 hours to match the capacity of a two-row field sheller. "All of us, whether we work in a steel mill or teach school or sell groceries for a living, have a big stake in farm prosperity."

Just as other citizens, the American farmer buys a lot of just about everything, affecting most incomes in one way or another. But some goods get used up in really big amounts in the farming process — and farmers have to keep on buying them.

Although farm people make up only 8 per cent of the population, Dr. Larson reports, they buy 13 per cent of the petroleum produced in the United States more than any other single in-dustry; 8 per cent of the rubber—enough to have put tires on all enough to have put thes on an the automobiles manufactured in this country last year; twice as much steel as the railroad in-dustry—about 5 million tons, and ore electricity than was used by the cities of Washington, D. C.; Baltimore; Chicago; Boston; Detroit, and Houston combined!

Farmers also buy more trucks and tractors than any other dustry. They also utilize $1½ billion worth of fertilizer and on their fields annually

Statistics can be dull, but Dr. Larson believes, the exciting story is in what all this big farm buying power means to people everywhere in the U. S. Millions of the so-called "city" jobs depend on farming. Some Millions of the so-called "city" jobs depend on farming. Some 6 million people are involved in providing the goods and services that farmers buy. Another 10 million work at transporting, processing, storing, and selling farm products. Their paychecks help expand American buying power all along the line.

It's estimated that 4 out of 10 jobs in private employment are related to agriculture . . they depend on the farmer's continuing to be a "big customer."

Omly 8 per cent of Americans, about 15 million, actually live on farms today. "But," Dr. Larson says, "when you add them together with all their business partners in our economy—mer-who have scored all of the Titans' touchdowns so far, accounted for two TD's. Ellis scored on a 1-yard keeper and Swift on a 49-yard pass-run play with Ellis.

Herb Ellis and Wayne Swift, Or Tied in 1962

But the big heroes for West-minster were Bill Walker and Dick Heiden. Walker kicked the conversion which provided the margin of victory. Heiden blocked the placement following Waynesburg's second touch-

Westminster scored first in the first period, Ellis capping a 44-yard drive. But the Yellow Jackets came back to tie it two plays later, Tony Lettieri racing 53 yards to the Westminster 29 and Laurent and Milchak hooking up for the rest of the dis-

Westminster pushed 80 yards for its second TD, in the second quarter. It came on the only pass the Titans completed, a 49-yard pass-run involving Ellis and Swift

Once again Waynesburg fought back. A Waynesburg punt hit a Westminster blocker and the Jackets recovered the ball at the Titans' 11. Three plays later, Laurent hit Milchak with a 9-yard pass in the end zone,

The defeat broke a sevengame winning streak for the Jackets, who had won their first five games this year. Westmin-ster, which also has beaten Grove City and Indiana State by one point, now is 4-1. They were defeated by Slippery Rock. Westminster _____ 6 7 0 0—13 Waynesburg ____ 6 6 0 0—12

GALLATIN NATIONAL

Opens Monday, November 5th in

WAYNESBURG

At 135 West High Street

TEMPORARY QUARTERS

When the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States gave official approval for our bank to open an office in Waynesburg, we at Gallatin National welcomed the opportunity to serve the banking needs of this community and surrounding

We have confidence in the future of Waynesburg and Greene County. We believe that the natural advantages of this County make it an area that can and will grow.

We believe that a growing community is greatly enhanced, when the full resources of a large, progressive bank are available to provide financial help and guidance, when needed.

You and your neighbors will have available all of the services and facilities (*) of Gallatin National Bank. Whether it's cashing a check, purchasing a money order, opening a Checking or Savings Account or a 1963 Christmas Savings Club—or borrowing money for a worthwhile purpose-you'll find us ready, willing and able to serve you in our new office in Waynesburg.

We look forward to many pleasant and profitable associations. Come in and see us, won't you?

> *Excepting safe deposit boxes, which will be included in our new building to be constructed at the corner of West High and Morris streets.
