Mt. Morris Man Held For Murder In Wife's Death

Franklin L. Buterbaugh, 24 years of age, was held for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Mary Jane Craig Buterbaugh.

Mrs. Buterbaugh, who was 21 years of age, died instantly about 6:20 Saturday night, when she was struck by her husband's automobile as she walked along the Shannon Run road, near Mt. Morris, on her way to her husband's parents. She was jammed against a guard rail by the car.

The charge, filed by State Police before Justice Dally, avers the defendant "did then and there, feloniously, wilfully and of his malice aforethought, kill and murder the said Mary Jane Buterbaugh."

Buterbaugh was lodged in the county jail Saturday night on charges of intoxication. The murder charge was filed Monday morning.

It is reported the couple, who were expecting their first child this summer, had been quarreling.

Buterbaugh was taken to the Davison Funeral Home in Morgantown, W. Va., to view his wife's body Tuesday morning by Sheriff Mark G. Shultz, Deputy Harold A. Russell and a state trooper.

Mary Jane Craig Buterbaugh was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Craig of Mt. Morris R. D. 1, and was born December 31, 1941, in Monongalia County, W. Va. She was a graduate of Mt. Morris High School.

Surviving are her husband and parents; eight brothers, Claude and William of Mt. Morris; Raymond, George, Ross, Phillip, Albert and Craig; and three sisters, Mrs. Gladys Fox, Mrs. Margaret Headley and Mrs. Ira Hollabaugh, all of near Mt. Morris.

Funeral services were held Tuesday. Interment in Cedar Grove Cemetery, Mt. Morris.

Lucky Number—Just by Chance

TULSA, Okla.—John D. Dorchester had thought of trying to get a 1963 car license with the same number as his street address, 4034 South Sandusky avenue. But he never got around to it, so he just stood in line and took the tag handed to him. The number—ZE-4034.

Profit... A Free Society's Engine

No Profit, No Freedom

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following editorial from the Chicago Sun-Times was inserted into the April 10 Congressional Record. Entitled, "Is 'Profit' a Bad Word," the editorial clearly explains the vital role which profit plays in our Republic.)

Words, like men, take on different shades in varying lights. What is to one a common and vigorous word is to another an expression of opprobrium.

Such a word is "profit." Those who buy in the marketplace say prices often are too high because profits are excessive. Those who sell in the market say profits are too low because Government takes too much in taxes. Those who labor to make the goods say wages are too low in proportion to profits. Those who invest their funds in business say the cost of labor is too high to allow a good profit.

What does this variable word mean? Literally, a profit is what is left over from the receipts of a business after the cost of doing business has been paid. This cost includes many things: wages, salaries, employe benefits, supplies and materials, taxes on every level, rent—many items.

Profit is not guaranteed. Approximately 30 to 34 percent of the companies in business lose money in any given year.

Who benefits by profit?

The owners of the company who invested risk capital get the first benefit, either in the form of increased dividends or an increase in the value of stock. Most companies distribute only a part of their profit in the form of dividends; some share part of the profits with employes; the remainder goes into expansion, equipment (and) is used to make the company produce more products, profits, and jobs.

A company is both a buyer and a seller. A profit enables a company to buy more. One profit creates many profits in other lines of business. Profit means growth and growth is essential. Our population grows at the rate of about 7,000 persons a day. An expanding economy is a vital necessity if we are to live.

Profit also means benefits. The Chase Manhattan Bank points out that in 1908 an average worker in a tire plant was paid 40 cents an hour and produced a tire costing $53. The tire would last for 5,000 miles. Today the average worker in a tire plant is paid $3.34 an hour and produces tires that cost $22 and run for 29,000 miles. The rate of pay has increased eight times. The value received for $53 has increased 14 times. This all happened because capital—profits—were spent on methods and machines to improve production.

Without profits this country would stop running. Profit is what makes a free society move. Take profit away and the free society ceases being free and becomes a captive society. Freedom ends when any force puts an end to the profit motive and the free enterprise system.

The Government today taxes more than 50 percent of the profits earned by business. There is, happily, a growing realization in Washington that this goose that lays the golden eggs should not be killed and out of this realization is growing a program to relieve business of some of this heavy tax burden.

This is encouraging, but it is not enough. The jungle of regulations that now clogs business, some of them conflicting, some contradictory, all of them drearily confusing... must also be cleared away so that our business community can operate in a manner consistent with the historical vigor of free enterprise.

It is a truism that when Government constricts and constrains business to the point where it can no longer operate in an atmosphere of freedom, that when business becomes, in effect, another arm of Government, then the rights of free men, in or out of business, begin to dwindle and die.

Words mean many things to many men. There are those in our country today who find the very word "profit" distasteful. They would remove all profit, and the meaning of the word, from business.

Profit is a simple word. It is a necessary part of our life. When Government spends more than it takes in it must, of necessity, place excessive taxes on business profits. If these taxes become too burdensome then profits will disappear.

Once that happens another word will cease to have meaning—freedom!

$38 Million Paid On Cuban Ransom

PHILADELPHIA—E. Roland Harriman, chairman of the American National Red Cross, reported Tuesday the organization has delivered $38.5 million of the $53 million worth of supplies pledged to Cuba in exchange for the release of Bay of Pigs prisoners.

"We will not rest till the total amount pledged is on Cuban soil," Harriman added in an address at the opening of the Red Cross' 38th national convention.

Postmaster Named At Carmichaels

Margaret E. Richey of Carmichaels, has been confirmed as postmaster there. She has been acting postmaster since November 30, 1961, when Postmaster Charles I. Donley retired. Miss Richey began as a clerk in June 1942.

The office became a second class postoffice in July, 1942, and with a staff of eight employes now serves a population of 5,519 with a rural carrier, mounted carrier, and city foot route.

Trucks will pick up trash on the North Side on Thursday, the South Side on Friday, and the East End on Saturday.

Hoover Starts Fortieth Year As F. B. I. Head

J. EDGAR HOOVER

On Friday, J. Edgar Hoover will begin his 40th year as head of the nation's foremost crime-fighting agency. It has been a career lasting through six presidents, and the likes of Alvin Karpis, John Dillinger, and plane-bomber Jack Gilbert Graham.

His black hair is slightly tinged with gray now, and the hint of a wave in it is gone, but there is little change in his face. The energy with which he expresses his views makes a passive audience of those in his office, a room that resembles a study. There is a large, orderly desk containing only a few mementos; a small, double-tiered bookcase, and a high-backed leather chair where the F. B. I. chief sits.

Mr. Hoover has a paradox to ponder that disturbs him greatly. Methods of law enforcement and crime detection have improved enormously since he took over the Justice Department's old Bureau of Investigation in 1924. Despite this, crime has consistently increased.

Clarence P. Grimes of Waynesburg R. D. 1, represented Greene County farmers at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Cooperative Association in Harrisburg recently.

Mr. Grimes, a director of the state-wide cooperative, is also secretary of Greene Farm Bureau Cooperative Association of Waynesburg, which supplies 1100 farmer patrons with farm supplies and services.

Coal Pipeline Being Closed

NEW YORK—The only U. S. coal pipeline is about to go out of business—"mostly for doing its job too well"—Business Week Magazine said Tuesday.

The 108-mile line has been in operation six years from Consolidated Coal Company's Cadiz strip mines to the Eastlake generating plant of Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company.

Business Week said the pipeline is expected to be mothballed by early summer in a deal between Consolidated Coal, Cleveland Electric Illuminating and coal-carrying railroads.

"Final terms haven't been ironed out," the magazine said, "but the carriers are expected to cut rates up to 61 cents a ton on CEI's 3.7 million ton annual burn; for CEI a handsome saving in freight costs; for Consolidated Coal a rising share of CEI's coal business."

G. O. P. May Cut Democrat-Held State Agencies

HARRISBURG—Republican legislators are considering the abolishment of seven State agencies controlled by holdover Democrats if Senate Democrats continue to bar confirmation of appointments named by Governor William W. Scranton.

Spearheading the drive are a group of freshmen members of the 27-member Republican State Senate majority, who are dissatisfied with so-called "soft treatment" shown Democrats by the G. O. P. "old guard."

The freshmen lawmakers have recommended to their colleagues that if the Democrats continue to stall the Republican-controlled Legislature abolish the Public Utility Commission, Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, Liquor Control Board, Workmen's Compensation Board, State Securities Commission, Tax Equalization Board and Labor Relations Board.

Such a procedure was followed in 1937, when the Democratic Legislature replaced the Public Service Commission with a new five-member Public Utility Commission appointed by the then Governor, George H. Earle.

The present Public Utility Commission is dominated by Democrats, three to one. The next vacancy occurs April 1, 1965, when the term of Joseph Sharfstein, Democratic chairman of the agency, expires.

The other Democratic-controlled boards and commissions have no Republican members.

Seat Belt Bill Passes Senate

HARRISBURG—The Senate passed by a 27-4 vote Tuesday a measure which would require all passenger cars sold in Pennsylvania to be equipped with seat belt attachments, beginning July 1, 1964.

The senators opposed to the legislation were Thomas A. Ehrgood, Republican, Lebanon; John J. Haluska, Democrat, Cambria; Albert E. Madigan, Republican, Bradford, and Jack E. McGregor, Republican, Allegheny.

A drive for safety belt legislation has been conducted for several years by safety-minded organizations which have contended they cut down the number of fatalities in car mishaps. The measure was sponsored by Senators Albert R. Pechan, Republican, Armstrong; William J. Lane, Democrat, Washington; Rowland Mahany, Republican, Crawford, and James S. Berger, Republican, Potter.

Waynesburg Borough Council on Monday night, adopted an ordinance which sets up a contract for collection and disposal of refuse in the borough, to be awarded to the lowest bidder.

The contractor will operate the landfill which is to replace the present dump, as well as collect rubbish and garbage from residences and business establishments in the borough.

Household trash will be collected once a week between October and April, and twice a week from May through September. Burners, not commonly used to dispose of rubbish, are outlawed by the ordinance.

Residents will have the privilege of taking trash to the landfill, if they do not wish to pay the collection fee, but they will be subject to a small charge at the landfill.

Council also approved an agreement which provides that residents of Franklin Township will have the privilege of taking trash to the landfill at the same rate charged borough residents. This is in exchange for the borough's right to use borough-owned land in the township for the landfill.

The agreement also provides that the borough pay one-half of the cost of maintaining the township road on which the landfill is located.

In a move toward construction of low-rent public housing, council adopted a resolution authorizing Greene County Housing Authority to make application for a preliminary loan not to exceed $20,000 for survey and planning leading to the construction of a maximum of 100 of the low-rent housing units. The borough will not be responsible for repayment of any part of the loan.

The county agency will be responsible for the project, and the money would be granted by the Federal Housing Authority. Should the project be accepted, the county authority would build housing from bond sale revenues. The loan would be repaid over a period of years from rent. The federal government would guarantee repayment if rents were not enough to pay off the obligation.

The borough has received the sum of $9,533 from the state for street improvement. This is 75 per cent of the borough's annual allocation from the state gasoline tax.

Welfare Rolls At 13-Year High

HARRISBURG—Pennsylvania's relief rolls hit a 13-year-high in March, the State Office of Public Assistance reported Saturday.

The agency said 476,651 persons received public assistance during March, an increase of 1,867 from February and 25,500 higher than the figure for March, 1962.

The post-war high occurred in March, 1950, when 485,813 persons were on relief.

The office said the gain over February was only four-tenths of one per cent, a lower than normal rise for the season, indicating the number of recipients may have reached a peak for the year.

It's All In Cut Of The Cloth

WASHINGTON—The current crowding of capitol corridors by tourists in various states of dress has prompted Sen. Ken Keating, New York Republican, one of the top quipsters in Congress, to recall of popular summertime anecdote on Capitol Hill. It looks like this:

An elderly gentleman, waiting in line for a seat in the Senate gallery, noted a young tourist in jeans. He turned to the person behind him and said: "Look at that character. Is it a boy or girl?"

"It's a girl," was the reply. "I know; she happens to be my daughter."

"I'm sorry, sir, I didn't realize you were her father," the old man said.

"I'm not, I'm her mother."

Castles in the Air

Walk softly, sir!
Don't interrupt this young dreamer, for he's hard at work on a mighty tough job.
He's building himself a castle in the air. . .
In these United States we don't laugh at those castles. Too many men have built them into reality to stand as monuments to their genius:
Edison, Eli Whitney, Robert Fulton, Henry Ford. You know the names.
Of course, none of these castles "came easy." They took vision, planning, hard work, the ability to bounce back after failure and start all over again.

Now faith is assurance of things hoped for, a conviction of things not seen.
—Heb. 11-1

They took faith—real faith; the kind that our churches help to build. Faith that is first imparted in Sunday School, and further strengthened in church. Faith that becomes a part of the fibre of personal character.
Who knows what castle is being planned here by this young citizen? Yet we know that it will stick together if proper education forms the keystone of its arches, if perseverance forms its side-walls, if faith forms its foundation.
Have you given your son or daughter the inspiration to establish this faith—now—through church?

Keeping Ahead Of The Jones'

Here are four beautiful, unusual annuals we'll bet your neighbors will gape at and admire. Upper left is Bartonia, with bright yellow, star-like flowers; upper right is the double form of Godetia or satin flower, for its texture.

The odd flower at lower left is Mimulus or monkey flower, which seems to grin at the beholder; and to the right is baby blue eyes or Nemophila, with cup-shaped, sky-blue flowers.

Your Health
Pennsylvania Medical Society

Pennsylvania is a healthy state in which to live.

The average length of life in Pennsylvania is longer than in 34 of the other states.

Ten per cent of Pennsylvania's population is 65 years of age and over.

For the United States the average percentage of persons 65 or more years of age is just a little over 9.

Generally, there has been a misconception that older persons are mostly sick, incapacitated, unable to work.

Recent surveys show that 90 per cent of men over 60, and 88 per cent of women over 60 are in average good health or better.

It has been recorded that 71 per cent of men and 67 per cent of women over 60 years of age are ill less than six days during a year, with half of them not confined to bed for as much as one day.

As for efficiency in work, a study has indicated that 84 per cent of the companies surveyed have less turnover among older than among younger workers.

Older persons are better off financially, mentally, and physically than many people seem to think.

Some elderly people are impoverished but most are not, in fact statistics show that older persons present a favorable financial position compared to the rest of the population.

In regard to physical deterioration, which starts at birth, Dr. Paul Dudley White, distinguished heart specialist, has a reminder for older people.

Regular exercise can be a potent defense against deterioration at any age, he says, and there is no such thing as an age when exercise should be stopped.

Deaf Man Perfects Tiny Hearing Aid

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — A remarkably tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man, who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and represents a new and unusual design idea in a product to restore natural hearing.

It was especially developed for those persons who can hear, but can't understand. This new hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear.

Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low. The instrument weighs only 1/4 oz. It is about the size of a sewing machine thimble—hardly noticeable yet powerful.

College Players In 'Dial M for Murder'

Waynesburg College Players, under the direction of Frederick B. Randolph, will present the mystery "Dial M for Murder," Thursday and Friday nights in the Madison Hall Playhouse on the college campus. Members of the cast are Larry Volk, who appeared in college productions of "I Remember Mama" and "Death of a Salesman;" Conna Errett, who played in "Tall Story" and "Blythe Spirit;" Eric Haesler, who was seen in "Death of a Salesman;" Steve Ott, Samuel Lauderbaugh, and Charles McPherson, all who make their first appearance. The three-act play was written by Frederick Knott, and in its Hollywood movie version starred Grace Kelly and Ray Milland. It has been noted that the success of "Dial M for Murder" is due to a reversal of the usual mystery formula. From shortly after the opening curtain, it is known to the audience that Tony Wendice is planning to murder his wife. So the mystery is not "whodunit"—but how he will be caught.

State P. T. A. To Form New District

Parent-Teacher Association council and local unit representatives from Greene, Fayette, and Washington counties will meet May 18, at Fredericktown, to form a new district organization of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers. The conference will be in Beth-Center Senior High School. To provide more service to local P.T.A.s and more effective administration, the state organization is increasing its present seven districts to fourteen, according to Mrs. O. D. Montgomery, state vice-president for Region IV, who will preside at the conference. Nominations for officers of the new District 9 are: president, Mrs. Roy Jenkins of Uniontown; vice-presidents, Mrs. Edward Topper of Fredericktown, Mrs. Mary Tolkach of Dunlevy, Mrs. Earl Tolbert of Uniontown; secretary, Mrs. H. C. McDonald of Monongahela; and treasurer, Mrs. Robert Musser of Conneville. The keynote address, "New Aims in P. T. A. Growth and Leadership," will be made by Herbert T. Spence, state treasurer. Two workshops will be held to acquaint the delegates with procedure under the new district organization and objectives of the Pennsylvania Congress.

Alaska Is Overseas

Recently the Hawaiian and Alaskan Congressional delegations protested because servicemen received "overseas pay" for serving in those states. The House Armed Services Committee now has reached a conclusion: Hawaii officially is not overseas; Alaska is. Few Counties Gain WASHINGTON — Only about 600 of the 3,000 counties in the United States gained population through migration in the 1950s, according to a recent Census Bureau report.

April Rains Still Coming, Farmers Hope

Western Pennsylvania farmers are hoping that some of April's showers show up in May.

With farm areas still recovering from the effects of last summer's drought, rain-fall about one-third less than normal during April is causing livestock farmers particular distress.

In the sheep and cattle country of Greene and Washington Counties, however, pastures held back by cold weather and lack of rain, are being over grazed in many cases, simply because farmers had no more hay to feed because of the small crop last year.

County agents fear this may damage some pasture lands and reduce this year's hay crop in some areas.

Agriculture extension agents in Allegheny, Butler, Westmoreland, Washington and Greene counties said grass is a week to two weeks behind normal growth, but could pick up quickly if there is enough rain.

William Kelly, assistant agent in Westmoreland County, said one benefit of the dry spring was that many farmers sowed their oats crops much earlier than usual, which usually leads to increased yields. But associate county agent Nelson Gotwalt, in Washington County, said the cold weather has held back germination of oats in some areas, so the earlier planting benefit was lost. He is predicting a smaller than normal oat crop.

The corn crop will not be planted until after May 20 in Western Pennsylvania areas and farmers are hoping there will be considerable rain before then.

If the weather remains dry, however, county agents warned that poor germination will result.

Jack Paules, assistant agent in Allegheny County, said County vegetable farmers have been irrigating early crops to keep moisture in the ground.

Your Heart Beats 100,000 Times Each Day

WASHINGTON — The human heart beats, on an average, 100,000 times a day.

This has been reported from the University of Chicago after a study of 100 normally healthy men, ranging in age from 16 to 65.

With a new pocket-sized cumulative heart beat recorder their heart beats were measured during regular daily activities, rest and sleep for a 24-hour period.

The measurements showed that the 24-hour total for each individual remained fairly constant.

The count for different men, however, ranged from about 98,000 to 135,000 beats. Each individual was tested three times or more.

The study is reported by Dr. Seymour Glasgow and his associates in the physiological department.

The miniature heart beat recorder used in the study was developed under the direction of Dr. Glasgow.

This counter is contained in a case about the size of a cigarette package.

It is connected by wires to small electrodes fastened against the chest.

Further studies will count the heart beats of other men and women in various stages of disease.

Natural Heritage

Mervyn LeRoy is better known as the director and/or producer of some 60-odd of the better-remembered products of Hollywood, ranging from "Little Caesar" to the current hit, "Gypsy". His eleven-year tenure as the president of one of America's glamor race tracks, Hollywood Park, is less well-known, perhaps because he modestly says, "Actually, everyone on the Board is a president. We work together". LeRoy's life reads like a script which today he'd probably hesitate to film because "Horatio Alger" tales are considered "corny". He started out selling newspapers on the streets of Oakland, California; at 17 he was a vaudeville star; at 27 he was a full-fledged Director in Hollywood and recognized as one of the most talented of a talent-packed industry. He survived the appellation "boy wonder" and continues today as one of the film art's greatest craftsmen. Next to producing a fine film, LeRoy likes nothing better than breeding a fine Thoroughbred. LeRoy's affinity for racing is not strange, his father was at one time president of the old Emeryville race track.

Indians May Still Fire Last Shot In War Of 1812; Creeks Are Rising

The last covered wagon long since has given way to the station wagon. The towering hillsides from which the Indians were wont to charge the embattled White Man, in many cases, has been bulldozed away to create another subdivision. The Wild West lives on only in television.

But the Redskins are still on the warpath, and the arbiters of a difficult peace between them and the Great White Father are to be found in the ranks of the nation's Realtors.

The problem: Find a fair market value for 8,986,653 acres of land — as of August 9, 1814.

Since 1946, professional appraisers all over the country have been trying to determine the fair market value of lands as of dates ranging from 1923 to as far back as 1805.

In size, the disrupted property ranges from 320 to 51 million acres.

In 1946 Congress created an Indian Claims Commission to hear claims by Indian tribes, bands and other groups. It was given power to render money judgments against the United States to repay the Indians for land taken from them under a variety of circumstances.

The problem is a thorny one because claims must be settled for the value of the land at the time the land was taken.

Writing in the April issue of the "Appraisal Journal," quarterly publication of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, Ralph A. Barney, chief of the Indian Claims Section of the Lands Division of the Department of Justice, points up some of the problems involved in settling one such claim.

During the War of 1812, a portion of the Creek Indians joined the British and fought against the United States. Following the defeat of the Creeks, Gen. Andrew Jackson required them to cede nearly 25 million acres of land in what now is southern Georgia and most of Alabama.

Nothing was paid for the land, since General Jackson held it was an indemnity to the U. S. in the wake of rebellion. The treaty was dated August 9, 1814.

Descendants of the Creeks filed a claim under the 1946 Act to recover the value of the land. The Commission held that while the U. S. was justified in taking the land from the disloyal tribesmen it was wrong to take the land of the loyal Creeks. The Commission ruled that the Indians should be paid for 8,986,653 acres improperly confiscated.

Theoretically, Mr. Barney says, there should be little difference in valuing such a tract from appraising a similarly large tract in 1963. But the appraisers are handicapped by lack of knowledge and experience with land values at such remote times.

This means the appraisers must become experts in what Mr. Barney calls "economic history."

To illustrate: Location of the land was important in 1814 as it is in 1963, but with a different emphasis. At that time the nation's population was relatively small and concentrated along the eastern seaboard.

Georgia has only a short coast line, and none of the 1814 cession touched the coast.

Transportation was important as it is today. But there are other factors which must be considered.

In several states, for example, timber found in the area at the time plays an important part in the final evaluation of the land. Most settlers preferred land containing timber and water. Even the type of timber is important.

Hardwoods today are considered the most valuable timber and hardwoods will not float, and with water as the chief means of transport, hardwood was a liability, not an asset.

In other cases, the date of the invention of barbed wire, the effect of large grants of land to railroads, the railroads themselves, and the effect of the invention of the self-scouring plow, all have their effect on land values at the time.

The case even now is not final. The Indians can appeal to a Court of Claims.

But, predicated on settlement of 45 claims to date in which land values have been established, it is estimated that the value of the contested 189,394,810 acres is $138,457,694.61.

U. S. Probing Steel Rod Imports

Stephen Walker, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. Carl Walker of Waynesburg, was a member of the Mercersburg Academy relay team showing in the recent Penn Relays in Philadelphia.

In the prep school "championship of America" mile relay Walker ran the third leg for Mercersburg, running his quarter-mile lap in 53.2 seconds.

Cheshire School, Connecticut, won the event in 3:29.6, with Mercersburg finishing third in a 10-team field in 3:31.4.

In the 440 relay, Mercersburg finished fifth in a 13-team field with Walker running the third leg. Lawrenceville won the event in 44.2 seconds, with Mercersburg being clocked at 45.8 seconds.

The finishes were among the best ever recorded by Mercersburg at the Penn Relays.

Out of Dollars

Mint Making Foreign Coin

Despite a gigantic U. S. coin shortage, the United States Mint in Philadelphia is making change for other nations.

The mint has manufactured 25,000,000 coins for Ethiopia and has orders for a total of 170,000,000 more from the Philippines and El Salvador.

The mint is empowered by law to make currency for other friendly nations when and if it runs out of money for making U. S. coins. And that is what has happened.

A spokesman for the Mint said in Washington on Thursday it had gone through its fiscal 1963 appropriation for the full-time production of 3,300,000,000 coins.

As early as late fall, a request for a supplemental appropriation of some $400,000 was submitted to Congress, but no action was taken on it. The request has been re-submitted, the Mint said.

The additional funds, a Mint spokesman said, were to keep the Philadelphia mint running on a three-shift basis. Philadelphia has unused capacity, he said, so the Treasury Department accepted the foreign orders.

The proposed new $17 million mint is another matter. A Senate banking subcommittee heard testimony in March on a bill to authorize new construction, but no other action has been taken yet. A separate appropriation would supply money for the project.

U.S. May Help Consolidation Get Coal from Gasoline

Gasoline from coal, a concept which has a great deal of magic to it, is not magic at all, but an economic feasibility that may be a huge boost to the economy of Pittsburgh.

The Consolidation Coal Co. and the Federal Government are studying it right now.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall just announced that a special three-man staff committee has been set up to study the possibility of the Government entering into a formal contract with Consolidation.

He is the man who will make the decision.

President Kennedy's 1963-64 budget contains a request for 10 million dollars for the Office of Coal Research to set up a pilot plant in West Virginia to launch the program if it is approved by Mr. Udall.

Actually, there's nothing new about making oil from coal.

Germany did it in World War II and some oil is being made from coal in South Africa today under the old German concept.

The trouble with the German idea, however, is that it costs too much to make oil this way and the product would not be economically competitive with oil on the American market.

Some 16 years ago Consolidation Coal set up its research division with one major object in mind: Large-scale new markets for coal.

Although Consolidation officials still are talking officially about it, they feel they've come up with the answer in gasoline from coal.

First, they checked thoroughly the German method, determined the approach to be uneconomical and conceived a new approach. Fifteen years later, they feel they have made "pretty good progress," that their new approach "is within the ballpark" of being competitive in the American market.

Generally speaking, the Consolidation approach is to make oil from coal in much the same manner as the oil companies would, by refining it as crude oil.

Consolidation Coal did not go to the Government with the idea.

When the Government, more specifically the Office of Coal Research, heard what the Pittsburgh company had, it came to Consolidation.

The government's question: What would it cost to speed up the research?

Consolidation's answer: 10 million dollars.

The money would be used to build a pilot plant, at Cresap, W. Va., if Consolidation has its way although the Government could change the site if it wanted to.

This would take the research out of test tube and into production of test tube and into production.

At a pilot plant, more about such things as cost could be determined with more accuracy, although several studies have been made of the Consolidation process by outside engineers and their answer always has been, "Go."

Consolidation does not foresee its proposal ever panning out to the extent that oil from coal would replace oil from oil, say in Texas.

It does, however, see the product being competitive in the highly populated Northeast, where there is a tremendous market.

Asked if the process could mean a major boost to the Pittsburgh economy, a spokesman for the coal company answered:

"There can be no doubt about that."

He went on to say that Consolidation could come up with a gasoline better than is being marketed today but that it just would be more expensive, and "What would we do with it if we had it?"

The spokesman also emphasizes that the matter is a long-haul one and even if the Government approves tomorrow will not mean thousands of unemployed miners returning to work immediately.

Unemployment is a factor, however.

The coal industry generally feels that the Government's role in atomic energy, where some 200 million dollars have been spent, is on the "anti-coal" side of the ledger.

In addition, President Kennedy has repeatedly said he wants to do "something" for the unemployed of West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania.

'Breakthrough' 2,000 Years Ago

Electric batteries are one of the engineering marvels that would seem to distinguish modern living from that of ancient times — but are they?

Archaeologists have found 2,000-year-old pots at the site of old Baghdad that can best be described as ancient batteries.

Within such a pot is an upright cylinder of sheet copper and inside of this is an iron rod showing corrosion due perhaps to some acid.

The iron rod was insulated from the copper by pitch. Iron and copper leads were used to carry current to and from the cell. The cylinder seems to have been soldered with a 60-40 lead tin solder such as is used today.

First discovered in 1938-39, these pots have received relatively little general notice. One of the few experts who has studied them is W. F. M. Gray of the General Electric Company's Transformer Division at Pittsfield, Mass.

He says he has no doubt the pots are the remains of ancient electric batteries. He has reconstructed them and obtained electricity.

In these experiments, Mr. Gray used copper sulphate as an electrolyte. It served the same current-carrying functions as does the weak acid in your automobile battery. The ancients, he says, may have also used this chemical or perhaps citric acid or acetic acid, which were available to them, as an electrolyte.

What the cells were used for is anybody's guess. It is thought that they probably supplied current for electroplating gold and silver onto other metals.

Mr. Gray says archaeologists have found electroplated materials 4,000 years old in the same general area that yielded the batteries.

This implies a very ancient knowledge of some complex chemistry and electrochemistry.

Mr. Gray observes that the way to electroplate gold today is to use the compound gold cyanide. This, he says, is a fairly complex compound to make. Mr. Gray notes that the people of the area where batteries have been found were the metalsmiths of their day. Electrical knowledge may well have been limited to them, a closely guarded trade or community secret.
