State Assembly Pushes For Adjournment

Teen Age Vandals Charged With Rock Damages

Richard Cook, 19 years, of Cherry street, Waynesburg; Guy S. Riggl, 17, of Waynesburg, R. D. 2; and Charles M. Steenbaugh, 17, of Waynesburg, R. D. 4, were arrested Tuesday by Chief Deputy Harold A. Russell of the Greene County Sheriff's Office, and State Police, charged with throwing rocks through windows of several business establishments and homes in the county during the past two weeks.

Investigating officers said information has been filed for warrants to arrest two other Waynesburg area youths.

Cook, Riggl and Steenbaugh pleaded guilty to the charges of malicious mischief at a hearing Tuesday night before Waynesburg Justice of the Peace John L. Dally.

Each was released on $200 bond pending action by the Greene County Court.

Officers estimated the rock damage to nine business places and three homes at more than $1,000.

Sunday, May 12, police stated windows were broken in the homes of Benjamin Davis and Nora Crane, both at Lippencott.

Saturday, May 18, between three and 5:30 a. m. rocks were thrown through a storm door and another window in the home of Leroy Cummings of West Greene street, Waynesburg. Also in the Waynesburg area, rocks were thrown through four windows of the Greene County Farm Bureau Co-Op building on South Morris street, and Mancuso's Drive-in, Morrisville.

Other Greene County business places damaged May 18, included Charles Dille Motorcycle shop on Route 188, between Waynesburg and Jefferson; the Robert Lutz service station at Jefferson; the Manfredi appliance store at Dry Tavern; Aeklin Lumber company, Jefferson; Groom's Service Station on Route 88, near Carmichaels; Gasoline City, Paisley Crossroads; and Howard's Grocery store, Carmichaels.

The three teenagers were picked up Tuesday morning after investigating officers identified the car driven by Riggl.

The car was spotted at Waynesburg and at Mather, police said. The youths inquired the way to Jefferson and then threw stones at their informants as they drove off.

County Planners Elect Officers

W. Bertram Waychoff, Waynesburg attorney, was elected president of the Greene County Planning Commission at the annual organization meeting last week.

He succeeds Harry Gardner of Waynesburg, who was elected to the post of secretary-treasurer. Adam Bronokoski, of Bobtown, was re-elected vice president.

Ira Glockner, vice president of Smadbeck, Inc., was present to review first preliminary plans for Waynesburg Lakes, a large housing development currently under construction at Ruffs Creek.

He was accompanied by Roy Burgess, Smadbeck engineer, with representatives of the Washington Township Supervisors and Washington Township Planning Commission attending to discuss the township's interest in the development.

The county planning commission approved preliminary plans for the first section of the development as meeting requirements of county subdivision regulations.

State Draft Call For 483; Up 217

HARRISBURG—Pennsylvania's draft call for the month of July has been fixed at 483 by State Selective Service Headquarters.

The quota is 217 higher than that of June and 203 more than the call for July of last year.

HARRISBURG — Republican legislative leaders have set July first as the target date for final adjournment of the 1963 session of the General Assembly, but there will be a special session this fall.

With the bulk of Governor William W. Scranton's new tax program over its final hurdle, they have mapped plans to put on a big push for "must" bills and then bang the final gavel.

Under this program, the dynamic-laden issue of legislative reapportionment will be left for a special session. This will be called by Governor Scranton either a week or so after the windup of the regular session or later in the fall.

His call will be limited to one question—reshuffling of the Senate and House in line with population shifts shown by the 1960 Federal Census.

Another motive is involved here, however. Senate Democrats have been refusing to supply enough votes to confirm more than 100 Scranton appointees. Confirmation requires a two-thirds majority.

As long as the Legislature is in session, and their appointments have not been approved by the Senate, these nominees can neither accept their jobs nor receive pay from the State.

But the moment the Legislature adjourns the Governor can install his choices as "interim appointees" and they can immediately step into jobs now held by Democrats. So an early adjournment could end the Democratic stall.

The July 1 timetable became known as the Senate Friday evening passed bills increasing the 4 per cent sales tax to 5 per cent and raising the six cents-a-pack cigarette tax to eight cents.

These will bring in $129,500,000 of the $138,200,000 extra the Governor says is needed to balance his record-high $1,121,000,000 general fund budget for the year starting July first.

There is no session this week because of the primary election and will begin again on Tuesday.

Before passing the Sales tax Friday evening, the Senate inserted several amendments. Thus it will have to go back to the House for action on the amendments.

If the House agrees to them, the bill will go to Governor Scranton for his signature and will become effective June first.

However, if the House refuses to concur, the bill would have to be submitted to a Senate-House conference committee of six members for the reconciliation of differences. This committee would be controlled by the Republicans since they control both the Senate and House.

Still pending in the House is a bill to increase the 10 per cent tax on State store liquor to 15 per cent, but opposition to this is reported to be mounting.

The Governor's office made up-to-date estimates of how much the tax increases will produce. They are:

- Increase the sales tax from 4 per cent to 5 per cent—$102,500,000.

- Applying the tax to take-out food bought in restaurants—one million dollars.

- Two-cent increase in the cigarette tax—26 million dollars.

- Increase the liquor tax from 10 per cent to 15—$12,500,000.

This adds up to 142 million dollars.

However, the Senate amended the House sales tax bill to give merchants 1 per cent commission for collecting the tax—and this is estimated to cost $4,200,000 a year.

$84,251 Now In Robena Fund

UNIONTOWN — Receipt of a check for $5,187.50 from the Robena Local 6321 raised the total contributions to $84,251 for the Robena Disaster Fund.

The fund was established for the future health, education and welfare of the families of 37 men killed in the mine disaster last December 6.

Freedom of Information

A Basic Right Is Challenged

An informed public is one of the basic principles of the American system of politics and government. If our government is to endure, it is absolutely essential that the American people be given the facts about issues as they arise.

Ours is a Republic, a representative form of government in which the citizens elect the officials they believe will give them the kind of government they want. This nation places great emphasis on the belief that if the citizens are given the facts, they will make the right decisions.

Freedom of information does not exist in communist nations, nor is it available to the people of any totalitarian dictatorship. The U. S. still claims to exercise this basic freedom of the right to know what our government is doing, but this right is being challenged.

It has been established that in times of national or international emergencies, the government may withhold information from the public which would injure the security of the nation or "give aid and comfort to the enemy." When this is done solely for security reasons, it cannot be condemned.

On the other hand, there has been a strong tendency by officials in recent years to stamp unimportant and harmless items of information as "classified." There are several reasons why this practice is growing, but the principal one is that officials do not want to answer public queries about their actions. The keeping of information from the people by the practice of "classification" is being abused, and as a result the news media are experiencing difficulty in presenting the truth about government activities.

A second obstacle to freedom of information is the maze of government red tape. Quite often a project may be handled by several government bureaus. The project's surveys, studies and reports may be shuffled between departments and offices, making it difficult to determine the status of the matter.

Last June, a Senator from the midwest said on the Senate floor:

"One of the great bulwarks of freedom in our form of government is the free press. Public opinion can make or break the American way of life. Informed and enlightened public opinion is essential to the preservation of our form of government and to the formulation of a national purpose in keeping with the ideals which gave birth to the United States of America. This being so, it is understandable why so much concern has been expressed recently over what appears to be a calculated effort . . . to exert undue influence upon the members of the free press."

Must alarm has been expressed about one-sided news accounts being fed the American people. These accounts receive top billing almost everywhere. When voices of opposition are sounded, they often receive much less news coverage. The result is that public opinion is in danger of being formulated without the benefit of adequate information on both sides of national issues.

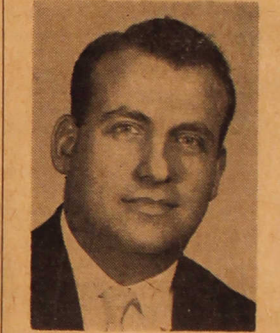

Management of the news is not the American way of doing things. Our form of government cannot continue to exist if our people are spoon-fed the news which officials think they should have. We cannot defeat communism by giving up our right to freedom of information, and we must not succumb to the same sort of totalitarian practices which have enslaved millions under communism.

We must combat this trend toward governmental secrecy and managed information. The more the people know; the more they will demand good government. (Turn to Page Four)

Absentee Ballots Vital Factors In Ultimate Outcome

Tuesday's primary was marked by very close races on the Democratic ticket, two of which prothonotary and county treasurer will be decided by the absentee vote which will not be counted for 10 days. Seventy-five such ballots were issued by the county registration office.

By the unofficial count only one vote separates Democrats Donald Yarish of Cumberland Township, and T. William Barnes of Franklin Township. For prothonotary eight votes separate Leroy Minor, incumbent, seeking a fourth term, and Charles L. Hoy.

However, there was no Republican candidate for prothonotary, and Mr. Minor received 166 Republican write-in votes, this placing him on the Republican ticket for the November election.

Both incumbent judges, Harold L. Erwin and J. Colvin Wright were nominated by the Republicans. Hoffman and Mahady, Democrats, had crossed fire and were on both tickets.

Because of the large number of candidates counting was slow and difficult.

U. S. Steel Gives $15,000 Grant To College

United States Steel Corporation on Monday presented a check for $15,000 to Dr. Paul R. Stewart, president of Waynesburg College, to be used in construction of a new Waynesburg College Center in Uniontown.

Ralph C. Beerbower, general superintendent of the Frick District Coal Division in Uniontown, represented the corporation.

The college is raising $300,000 for its new building in Uniontown to be located in the downtown redevelopment area. The center was opened in Uniontown shortly after World War II. It is the only institution of higher education in Fayette County.

Dr. Stewart in receiving the generous gift stated: "This is one of the happiest gifts I have ever received, especially since it is to be devoted to our Fayette County Campus. Fayette County, as I have often said, has meant so much to United States Steel and United States Steel has meant so much to Fayette County." (See picture on Page Four)

$20 Billion Value Is Mailed Yearly

CHICAGO—The nation's mailmen transport 20 billion dollars worth of valuables every year.

Insurance companies pay out about $3,400,000 annually to policyholders whose mail and express shipments are lost, the Journal of American Insurance reports.

Mrs. Schenley's Book for Juveniles To Be Published

Ruth Stewart Schenley of Waynesburg, has been notified that her juvenile book, "Too Many Kittens", will be published in the fall by Albert Whitman and Company of Chicago.

The book has also been selected as a "book of the month" by the Junior Literary Guild.

Mrs. Schenley is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul R. Stewart. She is a graduate of Waynesburg College, and taught school for a number of years. She retired from teaching about two years ago to pursue her writing career. Mrs. Schenley resides with her parents. Dr. Stewart, president of Waynesburg College for 40 years, will retire in June.

Mrs. Schenley began writing about twenty years ago. She has had her work published in Good Housekeeping Magazine, Look Magazine and the Wall Street Journal. Mrs. Schenley writes under an assumed name at times but her children's book will be published under her own name. The assumed name is used for "wise cracking quatrains."

Student Scores, Professor Pays

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y. — Prof. Matthew N. Chappell of Hofstra College, treated his class of 50, to breakfast after Michael Kerschenbaum, 19, scored 100 per cent in a psychology examination.

The professor has a standing offer since he began teaching in 1927 that he would pick up the tab for the whole class whenever a student made a perfect mark. He previously had to pay off in 1951 and again in 1957.

Dr. Stewart To Be Honored By Alumni

Dr. Paul R. Stewart will retire as president of Waynesburg College on June 30.

Alumni of the college, the Waynesburg College family and many of Dr. Stewart's friends will meet to honor him at the annual alumni banquet in Benedum Hall on June first.

N. Y. Smokers Given Warning

NEW YORK — The Medical Society of the State of New York has taken an official stand against cigarette smoking, linking it to lung cancer, heart trouble and other diseases.

The society urged smokers to give up cigarettes and called on physicians to advise patients, especially teen-agers, of the danger of heavy cigarette smoking.

The society's house of delegates supported the position unanimously.

Without all these experiences his youth is incomplete!

A well-rounded person is one who grows to know all sides of life.

You wouldn't think of depriving your children of the countless uses of science... or of the beauty and pleasure in great art and literature... or of the healthy fun of play.

Then don't deprive them of the experience of religious training from which so many even richer and more valuable experiences result. Whatever your belief, give your children a chance to find the strength for broadening their lives through Faith.

Longer Hours, 210-Day School Plan Proposed; College 2 Years Earlier

Here's bad news for 40 million public school boys and girls in the United States:

A longer school day, going from five to six hours, and a longer school year, jumping from 180 to 230 days, has been proposed.

A study by a leading educational economist, Dr. Harold F. Clark, of Teachers College, Columbia University, concludes that if quality is to be retained in our schools it will be necessary to extend both the school day and the school year.

The study was financed by the Carnegie Corp., and has just been published by the Syracuse University Press.

For some time, educators have considered the possibility of raising the standards in our school program. Because of the huge expenditure of funds for education — estimated at 36 billion dollars annually — many officials in and out of the school system have sought ways to place greater efficiency into education.

The "all year school" has been considered, but has not as yet been put into practice. Some systems, though, have raised the school day by an hour, or more.

To increase the quality of education, and at the same time permit more youngsters to finish school at an earlier age, Dr. Clark recommends that these steps be taken:

Extend the school year, increase the school day, increase the amount of homework to a minimum of two hours daily for junior and senior high students, and use more technological devices in the classroom.

Through these practices, the educator asserts, it will be possible to save two years of the present 12-year elementary-high school course. In some instances the saving in time will amount to three or even four years.

In other words, the average student will be able to complete high school in ten years, not 12 as at present. The extra two years would become the first two years of college.

True, the cost would go up, because teachers would be paid more for longer school years. But in the end the total expense would be much lower than at present.

However, it is not the financial aspect that is of concern to most educators; they are more interested in raising standards.

What about the students themselves? How would they react to a six-hour day, a 230-day school year? (Incidentally, that is just about what the Soviet Union now has.)

They wouldn't like it, judging from comments from typical high school students.

"When will we have time for ourselves?" a youngster in 11th grade, demanded. "as it is, I hardly have time to do anything but study."

"Why this get tough attitude?" another asked somewhat beligerently. "We're not responsible for Sputnik are we? I think they've gone far enough in putting pressure on us."

This appears to be the attitude of teachers, too.

Studies show that teachers average from 40 to 50 hours a week now. In addition to classroom work, they have a host of other duties, such as making out assignments, correcting papers, working with special students after class, and doing extra-curricular duties.

"Another hour a day of teaching will just about finish me," said a high school teacher of English, with a current teaching load of 150 students. "I don't have a minute to myself as it is."

Pipelines transport 2/3 of the nation's energy needs

Because pipelines have proved to be the most economical and dependable means of transporting energy fuels, they are today carrying 66 2/3% of the nation's total energy requirements.

Long-haul, large-volume pipelines are a phenomenon of the past twenty years. More than a half-million miles of pipelines serve America today. This number will increase greatly in the next twenty years as the demand for fuels zooms to almost twice its present size.

In meeting the nation's future energy demands, you can look to Texas Eastern, as pipeliners of energy, to play an ever-increasing role in moving, storing and supplying energy fuels in all their versatile forms. Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation, Houston, Texas.

What! No Buttermilk Biscuit?

'Shortnin' Bread'

Virginia W. McClain, writing in last week's Christian Science Monitor, on "SHORTNIN' BREAD", gives us a heavy touch of nostalgia, particularly when she mentions Peachtree Street in Atlanta, Georgia.

Our home, when calling on our customers in Atlanta, was the Winecove Hotel, on Peachtree Street, which many readers will remember, burned some few years ago, with a terrible loss of life.

Here is Virginia McClain's story:

I have a difficult decision to make. When the opportunity comes for me to retire to a cottage with kittens and puppies and red geraniums with plenty of time to write and write and write, should I settle in a white clapboard cottage with mocking birds and magnolias deep in the heart of Dixie, or should I choose a sun-kissed adobe with turquoise-blue window frames in Old Sante Fe? At the moment, the former has the edge.

I'm basking before my typewriter, positively radiating good will, good humor, and peace and contentment with all mankind. I have just been fed. On Southern cooking. There was okra and tomatoes, hot biscuit and honey, corn bread with "everlasting" butter—when one pat melted along came another—collard greens with ham, and a wide wedge of the best pecan pie in the world. I'm positive on this last point because the menu said so. Certainly it's the best in the South, for it was flying a miniature Confederate flag! And where is this bower of gastronomical delight? Where-else? Peachtree Street, Atlanta, Georgia?

It's not surprising I have so easily succumbed. I've been plied with camellias for a week. There was a bouquet of them, dainty pink ones still on their branches, which I hand-carried in a sloshing bowl all the way from Alexandria, Louisiana, to Jackson, Mississippi, only to be greeted with an open dish on which floated four enormous blooms in camellia red, camellia pink, and camellia white. Even a corsage pin was provided, and I gloried in this flower wardrobe with a fresh camellia on the hour. I was wooed on camellias and won with collard greens.

Of course I've been a staunch supporter of grits and hominy for as long as I can remember. Which was exceedingly helpful when I made Kentucky my home, acquired a family that included someone who would eat creamed anything if served on rice and who, along with our dog, could eat grits three times a day—preferably laced with chicken or pork-chop gravy. I grew up thinking it a shameful insult to serve a body with anything but hot bread.

In my childhood even a loaf of white bakery bread got put in the oven, emerging fragrant and moist, to be spread with soft butter as a between-meal snack. To be quite truthful, even now the only cold bread I'd pass the time of day with is a Kentucky beaten biscuit.

Now there are those who don't understand a beaten biscuit and think it cold and hard, but when opened and covered with a slice of turkey or salty country ham—well, a beaten biscuit can be what memories are made of!

I know a restaurant, in the mountains of eastern Kentucky, where each place is simply set with one plate and one knife and squarely in the center of the table is a tall old-fashioned glass compote filled to the brim with wild honey. As soon as you pull out a chair, a waitress hurries over with a huge platter of hot fresh biscuits right from the kitchen, and a bowl of butter. And when the platter is empty and the last morsel of biscuit has mopped up the remaining honey on your plate and you're contentedly licking sticky fingers, the waitress ambles over, hands you a menu, poises her pencil over a scrap of paper, and says in a comfortable voice, "Now, folks, what will ya'll have to eat!"

I suppose my indoctrination was really begun by Betty, who cooked for my grandmother for many, many years. I can't recall that she was so tall, but she was pretty wide. Betty always wore white. Her dress consisted of a gathered skirt, well starched, that nearly touched the floor so that only the tips of her black slippers peeked out, and a white waist, also starched, with full sleeves that came to her wrists and a high stiff collar, starched like a board, held firmly under her chin by a brooch of four silver dimes mounted on a pin. Going to and fro she wore a little round black pillbox-style hat perched atop her gray hair and held in place by long white organdy streamers tied in a pussy-cat bow beneath her chin.

Betty was a Deaconess in her church. She read her Bible every free moment, and she lived her faith in gentleness and compassion. Betty couldn't write—she was born in slavery—but my, how she could sing! Her voice was deep and throaty, and swelled with understanding as she filled the house with spirituals and the haunting sadness of Stephen Foster's songs.

She ruled in her domain—the big old-fashioned pantry, the kitchen with its huge range and double ovens, and the breakfast room with its oval table. And of course, the screened-in back porch was solely hers. But it was in the dining room, used only on Saturdays and holidays, that Betty really put on a show. Our family spent every Saturday, all day, at my grandmother's, and I think Betty cooked the entire week beforehand. Over the years there was a long succession of chicken and dumplings, baked chicken with sage and onion dressing, roasts, and hams; but the things I cannot forget are rutabagas cooked with chunks of pork, and all the messes of greens. Turnip greens, collard greens, mustard greens—even beet tops got into the pot of greens. And always there was corn bread, hot and crumbly, to hold the butter and dip, when no one was watching, into the "pot likker."

On holidays the radishes were cut like tulips and the carrot and celery strips were curled from hours of being submerged in iced water. Fancy salads and more glamorous meats replaced the simple fare. My grandmother planned the dinners, but even then Betty's firm brown hand was evident. Regardless of the magnificence of a New Year's Day dinner, we still had to eat black-eyed peas and boiled cabbage! Betty wouldn't permit her folks to begin a fresh new year without the assurance of plenty and good fortune represented to her in these two dishes.

And so, I have this dilemma—Santa Fe or Dixie. I'm not pressed for time on the decision, and perhaps in the meanwhile there will be little finger-posts that hint the way. Such as the fact that even now, in my apartment up north in Chicago, I've a four-poster bed with a "fester" canopied top that drips like 'lasses with white organdy ruffles, frills, and flounces, and a tell-tale box of grits in the kitchen cupboard.

Oh, I grant you that a green chili omelet topped with cheese sauce in Santa Fe brings tears of gladness to the eye, but for all-around twenty-four-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week pure eating enjoyment it takes cracklins and shortening bread, corn pone and candied yams, spoon bread, chess pie, and fried tomatoes with milk gravy. Why, I even know where I can get lemon pie so full of sugar and butter and eggs it's actually chewy! Fie, I say, to that base canard that Americans can't cook. It's a false story calculated to deceive and deprive the public. In the patois of the southland, "Doan' you believe it! 'Taint so, honey. Nossuh, it jus'... aint... So!"

We need to arouse the public so that it will condemn efforts to withhold information or to manage news. An aroused public contains great power, and this power is needed today to support freedom of information.

If we allow government to encroach on freedom of information, and if we permit our officials to censor and manage the news, we will not be able to make informed decisions. We will be on the road to political slavery.

Our people, having known freedom of speech, assembly, press, religion and petition, do not want regimentation and slavery.

But if we do not guard our freedoms, we will have none.

Pennsylvania Medical Society

There are 51,600,000 children one to fourteen years old in the United States.

This number comprises 29 per cent of the total population.

What of the health of the children in this age group.

Today, the leading causes of death for the 1 to 14 children are first, accidents, then malignant growths, congenital malformations, influenza and pneumonia, and heart disease.

Fifty years ago, the leading causes were influenza and pneumonia first, then gastroenteritis, diphtheria, accidents, and tuberculosis.

Death among children one to 14 years of age from such diseases as diphtheria, tuberculosis, and measles, has dropped more than 98 per cent in the past 60 years.

Vaccines have nearly eradicated diphtheria and whooping cough and have reduced the number of cases of poliomyelitis. The use of antibiotics has contributed to the decline of deaths from scarlet fever, nephritis, and many forms of meningitis.

As for mental afflictions, there are 37,000 children in public mental institutions, indicating that out of every 100 patients in such institutions, six of them are children.

About one quarter of first admissions of children under 15 into private and public mental institutions are due to transient situational personality disturbances and psychotic disorders.

These distresses are recorded to result mainly from parental rejection, neglect, excessive punishment, excessive coercion, over-indulgence, and broken homes.

Pre-school health examinations disclose that a third of the children examined have problems, with visual disorders, cardiovascular disorders, and dental disorders being the most frequently detected.

Letter to THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

Recently we had Be Kind To Animals Week and we associated that week with children. Why did we have the tendency to look to children when we think of those things that are kind and good?

Maybe this week is the time for adults to inspect our own minds—to blush a little and to try to better ourselves! A blistering, bustling rebellion is needed against the bleating, bloody, bellowing butchering of our own meat animals.

The primitive method used in most of our own abattoirs is debasing to man and is a blight on our society. This is not just a blemish on our civilization! We are to blame and this burden lies with each of us because we are the beasts of prey!

The baneful, baleful inhumane slaughter will not stop but will keep beginning again until every

Livestock Feed Program Growing; County's Request 54,000 Bushels of Corn

Howard R. Porter, Chairman of the Pennsylvania Disaster Committee, reported that the Livestock Feed program is growing steadily. Up-to-date figures for Pennsylvania, show 1900 cars or 3,818,000 bushels of corn ordered. Statistics reported for the first week in the program were approximately 5 cars or 10,000 bushels of corn ordered. This increase emphasizes the pressing need for this program in Pennsylvania.

"Eligible farmers under this program are reminded that they have only a little over a week to submit their application," Chairman Porter stated. "May 31, 1963, is the final date that farmers in the 51 disaster counties in Pennsylvania will be able to make applications for CCC-owned feed grain for the preservation and maintenance of foundation herds of cattle including production dairy cattle, sheep and goats, at not less than 75% of the feed grain support prices and for other eligible livestock 100% of the support prices," continued the chairman.

The Livestock Feed program was approved on September 28, 1963 for Pennsylvania by the Secretary of Agriculture. This program operates under Public Law 127, 87th Congress and Public Law 299, 86th Congress. Eligible livestock owners in Pennsylvania under this program are receiving corn for feed grain for their livestock at the reduced rate of approximately $1.02 per bushel (75% of the CCC price-support rate). One of the important requirements of this program, that a livestock owner and father becomes as benevolent as they teach their children to be and begins to breathe in this beckoning for mercy!

We can help simply by writing to the Chairman of the Agriculture Committee, William H. Ashton, House Post Office, Harrisburg, asking him to urge the members of that Committee to report the Humane Slaughter Bill HB 901 favorably to the floor for a vote.

We should also write our own Representatives, House Post office, asking them to support the Humane Slaughter Bill. Let the Adults be kind to animals this week.

Bear Facts Cost Taxpayers $27,500

WASHINGTON—The Interior Department spent $27,500 last summer to find out whether visitors to national parks saw enough bears or too many bears. Actually it was part of a survey to determine how much use citizens are getting out of their parks.

Representative Earl Wilson, Indiana Republican, who wonders why a private corporation was hired to do the questioning when thousands of park rangers were available, commented:

"As far as I know, there was nothing in the report about 'Yogi Bear.' I almost hesitate to mention this for fear some bureaucrat may ask for money to send a group out to look for 'Yogi.'"

Pick yourself some scarlet berries and make this pie. A sweet, transparent glaze filling brimful of berries nestles in a tender pie crust lined with softened cream cheese—delicious!

GLAZED STRAWBERRY PIE

Makes one 9-inch pie

- Pie Crust:
 - One half 10-oz. pkg. (1 cup) Flako Pie Crust Mix
 - 2 tablespoons cold water
- Filling:
 - One 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened
 - 1/2 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- Sweetened whipped cream

Heat oven to hot (425°F.). For pie crust, measure 1 cup pie crust mix into bowl. Sprinkle cold water by tablespoons over mix; stir lightly with fork until just dampened. (If necessary, add another one-half tablespoon cold water to make dough hold together.) Form into ball. Roll dough out on lightly floured board or canvas to form 13-inch circle. Fit loosely into 9-inch pie plate. Trim; flute edges; prick bottom and sides. Bake in preheated oven (425°F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Cool.

Blend together cream cheese and confectioners' sugar; spread on bottom and sides of baked pie crust. Combine sugar and cornstarch in separate pan; stir in water and 1 cup strawberries. Cook over medium heat until thickened and clear; reduce heat to low and cook 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Cool 5 minutes. Arrange remaining strawberries in pie crust. Pour cooled glaze over strawberries. Just before serving, garnish with sweetened whipped cream.

A Family Park

If anyone told you a schoolboy could manage a race track, he'd be right — provided the lad had started working at the track during vacations at the age of ten. Such is the case at a little track in Nebraska named Madison Downs, where Morris Moyer has succeeded his late father as General Manager and is meanwhile continuing his studies at the University of Nebraska Law School where he is a junior. Madison Downs' meeting is a short one, but its function in the community goes beyond horse racing. It is owned by the Madison County Agricultural Society which was organized in 1893 and Moyer notes that the annual 10-day race meeting is run for pleasure rather than profit. "We consider this a family park with facilities for racing," he said. The race meeting is operated on a non-profit basis with proceeds going into such community projects as premiums for the County Fair, 4-H Club shows, and scholarships to the University of Nebraska Agricultural School. The daily average betting turnover at one meeting at Aqueduct last year was $3,182,693. The total "handle" at the pari-mutuel windows for Madison's ten days in 1962 was $949,744, the daily average less than $100,000. "It's not big-time racing, but the thrills are just as big and everyone has a good time," Moyer says.

Grove City Nabs Track Crown

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa.—City is the West Penn Conference track champion for the third consecutive year despite Westminister's 10 victories in 16 events.

Grove City tallied 95½ points Saturday to 92 for Westminister. Geneva had 25½, Waynesburg 11 and St. Vincent 10.

Six new records were set while one mark was tied. Four individuals were double winners.

Hottest performance was turned in by Pete Warner, who scored all of St. Vincent's points with record-setting victories in the broad jump and the hop, step and jump.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico—The National Livestock Confederation says Mexico will export 1,250,000 head of cattle to the United States this year.

West Greene's Crouse Scores At Mt. Lebanon

West Greene High School was among the fifty teams scoring in the W. P. I. A. L. title track-field events and P. I. A. A. District 7 qualifiers at Mt. Lebanon, Saturday afternoon.

Competing in the Class B events, West Greene came up with two points on the fourth place efforts of miler John Crouse.

Two new champions were crowned at the meet. In Class A, Penn Hills took the crown and Brentwood was proclaimed Class B kingpin.

Eight new records were set in the meet. The longest standing meet record, that of Russell Thomas set in 1938 for the broad jump was chopped by one-half inch. Carl Foy of West Mifflin North took the leap in 22 feet 5½ inches.

The first two finishers in the events will represent the W. P. I. A. L. in P. I. A. A. championships at Penn State this coming Saturday.

Driver Applicants Cram for Exams

ROME—Getting a driver's license in Italy is no snap.

The applicant must pass a quiz on driving techniques and traffic rules and display a rudimentary knowledge of automotive mechanics. Most applicants go to a school for a formal course before applying.

WASHINGTON—The top attraction among Federal recreation areas last year was the Blue Ridge Parkway of Virginia and North Carolina, which drew 6,507,300 tourists.

Waterford Opens Saturday; to Run Through June 19

Waterford Park will open the second half of the spring meeting Saturday running through June 29.

Post time for the second half of the meet will continue at 3:45 p.m. (DST) on weekdays and 2 p.m. (DST) on Saturdays.

There is a large turnover of horses and jockeys as many new stables and riders are arriving daily to replace the ones leaving for other racing sectors.

Veteran trainer, R. J. Fitzgerald, Jr., a former jockey of note who hails from Lancaster, has shipped in 15 head for the second half of the spring meeting, and has announced that his son, now 17, will ride his first race at the upcoming meeting. Young Bobby, who has been exercising horses for several years, appears to be a natural lightweight, has a good seat, and knows his way around a race track.

Liaison representative, Herman "Slim" Summers has returned from a goodwill tour of tracks and brought with him applications for stalls numbering over 200. He reports several top riders will be seen in action here for the second half of the spring meeting.

Statistics released by Triangle Publications show racing is the number one spectator sport for the eleventh straight year with attendance soaring to 61,414,452. An interesting fact is noted that West Virginia ranks eighth in the national standings with a total attendance of 1,627,706, far in front of such nationally famous racing states as Kentucky, Louisiana, Delaware and Massachusetts.

FACTS ABOUT FARMING...

A CENTURY AGO, THE AVERAGE AMERICAN FARMER PRODUCED ENOUGH TO TAKE CARE OF HIS OWN NEEDS AND THE NEEDS OF FOUR OTHER PEOPLE.

TODAY, THANKS IN LARGE MEASURE TO PLENTY OF SUPPLIES OF LOW-COST ENERGY, THE TYPICAL FARMER'S YIELD HAS BEEN GREATLY INCREASED. HE NOW PROVIDES FOR HIMSELF AND 27 OTHERS. THE 23 MILLION HORSES AND MULES ONCE NEEDED ON AMERICA'S FARMS HAVE BEEN ALL BUT REPLACED BY 5 MILLION TRACTORS AND 3 MILLION TRUCKS.

IN FUELING THESE TRACTORS AND TRUCKS AND IN PERFORMING NUMEROUS OTHER CHORES, FARMERS USE THE EQUIVALENT OF 15 BILLION GALLONS OF CRUDE PETROLEUM EACH YEAR—MORE THAN IS CONSUMED BY ANY OTHER AMERICAN INDUSTRY.

$100,000 Life Insurance For 7 Astronauts

WASHINGTON — The seven original U. S. astronauts took out individual $100,000 life insurance policies a few days ago, and the premiums are reportedly less than for some steeplejacks.

The policies cover the lives of the astronauts "anywhere in space or on the earth."

The policies are the first individual plans issued to anyone in space travel.

Applications for the second group of astronaut candidates, nine men selected to follow into the Project Gemini program, are being processed, the announcement said.

What the premiums are was not specified, but spokesmen said they are similar to rates for other unusual jobs. They include surcharges normally made for military jet pilots and an undisclosed added charge for space travel.

The premium, the announcement said, is greater than that for a jet test pilot working on prototype aircraft. But at the same time, it is less than the cost to men in more dangerous types of steeplejack work.

Criteria included not only the intensity of the hazard, but also the frequency of space flights and the length of such flights. To this was added the consideration that most of the astronauts are military jet pilots and are still flying jets from time to time.

Its completion left the National Guard with 23 instead of 27 divisions, with a total authorized strength of 400,000 men. The Army reserves was cut from 10 to six divisions, with its authorized strength nominally left at 300,000 men.

Nearly two-thirds of the Reservists, including the guard, are now in high-priority units. In most cases, however, their assignments are to support regular Army divisions. The six highest priority divisions, by contrast, are self-sufficient and self-sustaining, with missions of their own.

Re-organization plans call for the six high-priority divisions to be maintained at 75 to 80 per cent of war strength, and to be capable of taking the field within eight weeks after the outbreak of hostilities. In some cases, units are to be ready for combat within four weeks.

The re-organization involved elimination of four National Guard and four Army Reserve divisions, and a giant shift of men into fewer, better equipped and more modern fighting teams.

Japanese Emperor Marks 62nd Birthday

His Majesty Emperor Hirohito of Japan, celebrated his 62nd birthday on April 29. The Imperial birthday is the principal holiday in Japan today. His Majesty studied at the Peers' School and at a special institute established for his education. After a six-month visit to Europe in 1921, he became Prince Regent and married Empress Nagako in 1924. Upon the demise of the Emperor Taisho in 1926, His Majesty succeeded to the Throne as the 124th in the line of the Imperial Dynasty of Japan. His formal accession took place in 1928. His Majesty is noted as a devoted student of marine biology and has published a number of books on his discovery of new species.

28th Division Gets Top Rating

WASHINGTON — Six remaining infantry divisions including Pennsylvania's 28th Division, have been singled out as the readiest of the National Guard's ready reserve forces.

The select six are being given top combat status in the nationwide re-organization of Army reserve forces just completed, according to informed sources.

Besides the 28th, they include crack divisions from Massachusetts, North Carolina, Minnesota, Tennessee and New Jersey.

According to the re-organization plan, they would be among the first civilian units to see action if war breaks out.

The Army has announced that its once controversial reorganization had been completed May 1, a month ahead of schedule. But a spokesman at that time refused to name the divisions selected to spearhead the reserve fighting forces.

Their selection was foreshadowed last year, however, when four of the states involved were given sharp increases in authorized National Guard strength, and the other two were ordered to maintain a high level of readiness originally generated for the Berlin crisis.

The strength increases were from 10,707 to 11,417 men in North Carolina, from 10,430 to 11,775 in Tennessee, from 14,789 to 15,324 in New Jersey and from 9,125 to 10,146 in Minnesota.

The authorizations were increased only slightly in the other two states, from 17,585 to 17,626 in Pennsylvania and from 14,811 to 14,888 in Massachusetts. These outfits had been alerted, but not called for the Berlin crisis, and were already near war strength.

Liberty Bell At Allentown

During the Revolution when the British army was approaching Philadelphia, a group of American patriots removed the Liberty Bell from Independence Hall (then known as the State House), and hauled it to Allentown, Pennsylvania, 55 miles to the north. It was hidden there in the basement of Zion Church. There it remained during Washington's encampment at Valley Forge. It was returned to Philadelphia after the British were driven from the area. That the public might visit the hiding place, the Liberty Bell Shrine was dedicated at Zion Church in Allentown's Hamilton Street in 1962. Here is an exact replica of the Liberty Bell, where the original once stood. Here also is the "Portrait of Freedom," the first art collection ever on display at Independence Hall. The Shrine is open daily to the public.
