Storms Cause Much Damage In Greene County

A hail storm late Sunday afternoon, and severe electrical storms Monday night caused much damage in Greene County. Lightning struck the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dulaney of Spraggs, ripping off the roof. Sue Ellen Dulaney, their daughter, was in the attic at the time and was stunned, but not seriously injured.

Two riding horses belonging to the Herman Hirsh family were killed by lightning at their farm on the Rogersville road, near East View.

A small barn near Rogersville, owned by Oliver Blair of Waynesburg, was destroyed by fire when lightning struck. It contained 800 bales of hay, a highlift and several plows.

The West Penn Power Company and South Penn Telephone Company crews were out all Monday night answering repair calls.

Rising water in creeks caused damage to crops along the banks and washed out many roads.

Dunkard Creek overflowed on streets at Brave, and Smith Creek overflowed at Blairtown, just south of Waynesburg. Route 18 at Sycamore, and Route 21 at Golden Oaks, were inundated.

Temperature reached 90 degrees Monday with humidity at 100 percent. Tuesday night the temperature dropped to 49 degrees with a high of only 55 Wednesday.

Mrs. Ullom Dies Suddenly in Home

Mrs. Lucy Ross Ullom, 78 years widow of Dr. Frank S. Ullom, prominent Waynesburg physician, died suddenly Thursday, June 6, in her home on Cherry street. She had been in failing health for some time.

Mrs. Ullom was a daughter of Timothy and Emma Gregory Ross, and was born at Ruff Creek, Washington Township. Her father operated large gas and oil interests in this area. Mrs. Ullom attended Washington Seminary and Waynesburg College. On November 1, 1906, she was united in marriage with Dr. Frank S. Ullom, whose death occurred October 29, 1929.

Mrs. Ullom was a member of the First Presbyterian Church; James Farrell Post 330, American Legion Auxiliary, the Women's Auxiliary to the Greene County Medical Society; the Rhodora Club, and Emerald Chapter 135, Order of Eastern Star.

Surviving are three children, John R. Ullom and Betty G. Ullom, both of Waynesburg, and Frank S. (Pete) Ullom, Jr., of North Miami, Florida; also one grandson.

A sister, Mrs. Nell Ross Geyer, and a brother, John W. Ross, are deceased.

Funeral services were held Sunday in the Garrison Funeral Home, conducted by Rev. A. D. Sowers. Interment in Rosemont Cemetery, Rogersville.

Navajos Blame Lightning For TB

PHOENIX — According to an old Navajo legend, tuberculosis is caused by the lightning.

The story says that if lightning hit a tree and if a person used that tree for firewood or other purposes, it would make him sick and cause blisters in his throat and abscesses in his lungs.

What Thumbs Are Really For

MENTOR, Ohio — Conversation between young brother and sister, overheard by grandparents:

Six-year-old sister: "I wonder what thumbs are for."

Four-year-old brother: "They're to hold up bottoms of sandwiches."

Greene County Commissioners received low bids totalling $1,468,426 for remodeling and increasing the size of Curry Memorial Home, Waynesburg, R. D. 2.

Baker and Coombs, Inc., of Morgantown, W. Va., put in the low bid of $1,047,700 for general construction.

The Chapman Plumbing and Heating, Washington, had the lowest valid bids for heating and ventilating work, $173,970, and plumbing work, $123,970.

The low bid on the electrical work came from Millcreek Electric Construction Company, Erie, at $123,786.

Lower bids for both the heating and ventilating work and the plumbing work were rejected when the bidders failed to include the required ten percent bid bond.

Governmental approval is required since the county will receive $557,339 from the federal government. This will be a third of the total cost of the improvement. The grant will be made under the Hill-Burton Fund program, which makes money available for hospital and nursing home construction.

On the basis of construction bids, the overall cost of the project is now estimated at $1,691,926. The county's share is $1,134,587 of this amount. The sum of $325,000 is in a capital reserve fund, leaving $809,587 to be obtained through a loan. The loan will be secured by bonds, payable over a five-year period.

George Kuchta, a representative of the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare, explained that $400,000 in Hill-Burton funds were originally set aside for the Greene County project. The additional $157,333 to bring the federal government's share to a full one-third will be available only if all applications can be processed before June 30.

The project is expected to require 18 months for completion.

Persons who are now housed in the Curry Memorial Home will be moved into the nursing wing at Greene County Memorial Hospital before construction begins. This wing is now nearing completion, after being under construction since last winter.

Two wings will be added to the Curry Home which will increase the bed capacity from 34 to 102. Each wing will have two stories with two and four-bed rooms. There will be four solariums, one on each floor.

There will be complete facilities for doctors and nurses, treatment and medication rooms, isolation rooms, physical and occupational therapy rooms, and all other facilities common to a modern nursing home.

The extension at the rear will contain the kitchen, dining room, separate dining room for help, an all-purpose room and recreational areas.

Alumni Directors Are Named

Walter Atalski, Dr. Kenneth P. Rutter, Leroy Willis, and James B. Zimmerman have been elected to the board of directors of the Alumni Association of Waynesburg College.

Mr. Atalski is principal of Carmichaels Area High School. He is active in church and community affairs and has served on several alumni committees, and is a district chairman in the alumni fund program in Greene County.

Dr. Rutter is minister of the First Methodist Church, Greensburg. He studied at Western Theological Seminary, receiving the S. T. B. degree in 1942, and the S. T. M. degree in 1943. In 1956, Waynesburg College awarded him the Doctor of Divinity degree.

Mr. Willis, for several years the proprietor of an appliance store in Carmichaels, is now a teacher in the elementary school in Carmichaels. An active church worker, he also participates in many civic organizations.

Mr. Zimmerman is an engineer with the Pennsylvania Department of Highways, and lives near Waynesburg.

Suffer, Little Children!

Aid To Education

Some months ago in our "Just Thinking" column, we suggested to parishioners of churches that, instead of employing high-salaried ministers to assure them there was Balm in Gilead and asking for volunteers to teach Sunday School classes, that the order should be reversed.

They should hire the most competent teachers available to instruct the children while their minds were plastic and susceptible; and ask for volunteers to assure them that their chances of reaching the Pearly Gates were just as good as ever.

We were enjoyably surprised to have two local ministers ask permission to use the column as their sermon topic.

Today, there is more and more pressure being exerted by the Federal Government for financial Aid to Education.

We need aid to education, but not from the Federal Government.

Here is the "meat" of an editorial from the Brookville, Pennsylvania, Jefferson Democrat, entitled "Do Schools Need Federal Aid?"

"Those who want a strong central government to control just about every phase of our lives have put out so much propaganda in favor of federal aid to local schools that people have come to believe that such assistance is both desirable and necessary.

"Supporters of federal intervention in public school education are downgrading the achievements of American teachers, school boards and communities (who have built) the finest educational system the world has ever known. This is not to suggest that our school system should not be constantly improved.

"The truth is that there are more classrooms, more teachers, a lower pupil-teacher ratio, and a higher level of education in the United States than ever before in history.

In the last ten years the number of public school pupils increased 48 percent. The number of classrooms jumped upward by 60 percent. Teachers' salaries rose 72 percent. Money spent per pupil increased from $224 a year to $390 a year. And American communities approved the highest volume of school bond issues in history during 1960. Even so, less than one percent of America's local school districts have reached their maximum bond limitations.

"All this has been done without federal intervention, federal dictation, or the federal control that must surely follow federal subsidy."

Yes, we need Federal aid as much as we need Krushchev at the head of what is now called Father Kennedy's Boys' Town.

Our candid opinion in the Aid-to-Education controversy is parallel to our suggestion to the churches.

Let's take our college professors, bigots and self-centered as well, and give them a post-graduate course in The Humanities. Then, when fully qualified, let them take over our grade schools—with salaries beyond that of an ordinary college professor. Let's give our children, in their formative and susceptible years, the benefit of the best brains money can buy. Let the present-day grade school teacher take over the curricula of our colleges.

If this were done, the college boy would be better educated, would know how to conduct himself as a gentleman and a scholar; and would be a credit to his College upon graduation.

No more would there be hell-raising and drunken parties, such as we have seen and experienced right here in Waynesburg. No longer would the expression "educated damfool" be appropo in our colleges.

Layman Heads Presbyterian Synod in State

Elder J. Boyd Spillman of Eighty Four, was elected moderator of the eighty-second annual session of the United Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania, Tuesday at the meeting in New Wilmington.

Mr. Spillman, nominated by the Rev. George W. Kiehl, Moderator of the Presbytery of Pittsburgh, is the first layman to be elected Moderator of the Synod of Pennsylvania since the reorganization of the Synod following the merger of the Presbyterian and the United Presbyterian Churches in 1958, and the first lay Moderator since 1957.

A graduate of the Washington, Pa., High School, the new moderator has been active in community and church affairs since 1922. He owns a local real estate and insurance business and is a member of the American Society of Appraisers. He had been a Justice of the Peace for twenty-four years.

Active in the local church as a Clerk of Session and financial secretary of the Fairview Presbyterian Church, Mr. Spillman also serves in key positions in Washington Presbytery and the Synod of Pennsylvania. He has served as Moderator of Washington Presbytery and is presently president of the board of trustees of that body. He is a former moderator of Pittsburgh Presbytery. In Synod work, Mr. Spillman is President of the Board of Trustees and serves in various capacities in the program of National Missions.

Felt Says A-Subs Are Due in Pacific

TAIPEI, Formosa — Admiral Harry D. Felt, Commander in Chief of United States Forces in the Pacific, said on Friday that Polaris submarines would be sent to the Pacific area "in the short term future."

Felt will stay here until June 2 when he will leave for the Philippines, on his way to New Zealand.

MRS. GRACE L. BOORD

Party to Honor Mrs. Grace Boord

A party in honor of Mrs. Grace L. Boord, who will retire June 30, after 20 years' service as Greene County extension home economist, will be held Saturday, June 22, at 8:30 o'clock in the American Legion Post Home, Jefferson.

The party is being held by the Greene County Agricultural Extension Association, with Mrs. George Pyle of Jefferson, Mrs. Ray Honsaker of Carmichaels, Mrs. Francis Huffman of Waynesburg R. D. 4, and Mrs. Thelma Rices of Waynesburg, as a committee in charge.

The affair will feature a 4-H talent show and dancing of all types to the music of the Charles Hoy's orchestra. Refreshments will be served.

Tractor Using Anti-Roll Bars

BISMARCK, N. D.—A safety bar that prevents highway equipment and farm tractors from tipping over has been tested by the North Dakota Highway Department.

Only two "lost time" injuries resulting from tractor tipovers have occurred since the anti-roll bars were installed in 1959. Warren I. Hanson, Car and Safety Coordinator of the department, has urged that such bars be standard equipment on all new machinery.

Commissioners Ask Child Welfare Program Review

Greene County Commissioners on Friday, requested the Greene County Branch of the Pennsylvania Economy League "to prepare a comparative study of the services and cost of operation between a publicly operated child welfare program and contracting with a private agency for such services."

Under the present arrangement, the Children's Aid Society handles the county's child welfare program, operating the foster home program and in general caring for neglected children who must depend upon the county for their subsistence.

Miss Elizabeth Way Marlatt, who has served as executive secretary since the Children's Aid Society was reactivated in the County, has resigned effective July first.

The commissioners said they are in no way dissatisfied with the services they now receive, but they feel there might be a chance to receive considerably more state financial support for the program, if it were administered by a public rather than a private agency.

The amount of $78,000 has been set aside by the county for this year's child welfare program.

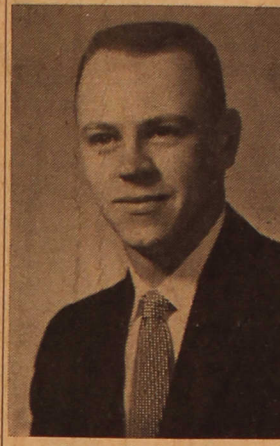

District Heart Meeting June 23

"Rehabilitation of the Stroke Patient" will be the subject to be discussed by Dr. Thomas C. Hohmann, director of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at St. Francis General Hospital and Rehabilitation Institute, Pittsburgh.

He will talk at the annual dinner meeting of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Heart Association, Sunday evening, June 23, at 6 o'clock in the George Washington Hotel.

Dr. A. Carl Walker of Waynesburg, president of the association will preside. The annual board of directors meeting will precede the dinner meeting at 4 o'clock, to transact business of the association.

Decision Saturday On 22 Absentee Ballots

GEORGE K. STENNETT

George Stennett Chosen Manager For Borough

George K. Stennett of Sharpsville, who served as executive secretary of the Greene County Branch of the Pennsylvania Economy League, has been employed as borough manager by Waynesburg Borough Council.

He will begin his duties here the fifteenth of July.

Mr. Stennett is now serving as executive secretary of the Mercer County Branch of the Economy League.

He will supervise all borough and business departments, being responsible only to the council. His salary will be $8,000 per year.

Council stated that setting up the borough manager position eliminates the position of street commissioner and that Mr. Stennett will also serve as borough secretary.

He also will have charge of collecting Act 481 taxes; will serve as the borough license officer; have charge of the street and sewage departments; do planning and budgeting; coordinate engineering; hire and fire with the approval of Council; be responsible for collecting all monies; serve as purchasing agent, and in general assume responsibility for most borough functions.

Mr. Stennett, a graduate of Pennsylvania State University, also holds a master's degree in governmental administration from the Fells Institute of Local and State Government, Wharton Graduate Division, University of Pennsylvania.

In addition to his academic background in governmental administration, he has completed research projects for a number of departments of the City of Philadelphia and for the office of township manager at Mount Holly, N. J.

Mr. Stennett married Miss Sallie Huffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huffman of Ross street. They have one child.

It Takes $30,000 To Start a Farm

WINNIPEG—A young farmer needs 10 times as much money to start a farm today as he would have required before the war, says an agricultural economist.

Prof. H. C. Driver told the closing session of Conference Week at the University of Manitoba that $30,000 is the minimum capital outlay needed today to begin a farm unit.

It has become next to impossible for aspiring farm operators to gain control of this amount of capital without some assistance from parents. The farm business is often called upon to support two families until the parents retire.

For young career farmers, Professor Driver recommended government aid to increase their knowledge of technical and management aspects of agriculture. The idea would enable them to keep up with the rapidly changing agricultural technology and prevent them from becoming submarginal farmers.

Judge Roy I. Carson of the Washington County Court, and Judge J. I. Hook of the Greene County Court, will sit en banc Saturday morning, in consideration of the petition asking tally of 22 absentee ballots cast in the May 21 primary election, which were rejected for various reasons by the Greene County Board of Elections in the official count.

T. William Barnes of Franklin Township, candidate for the Democratic nomination for county treasurer, filed the petition.

After a recount of Cumberland Township precinct No. 4, Mr. Barnes lost to Donald Yarish of Cumberland Township by 13 votes.

Yarish now has 2,590 votes, and Barnes 2,581.

In the official count 11 of the absentee votes were rejected because voters had not indicated on their applications the reason for not being present on election day.

W. Bertram Waychoff, attorney for Mr. Barnes, contends election board officials should have made sure the reason was checked before issuing an absentee ballot.

Four of the disputed ballots were turned in to the election board prior to election day. But were rejected because the election board ruled at the absentee ballot count that they did not carry the required postmark.

Another was thrown out because the instruction sheet was returned with the ballot, while others were rejected because the ballot itself was not inserted in the special envelope provided for this purpose.

Mr. Waychoff contends none of these are sufficient reasons to deprive the elector of his vote.

Dr. Stewart Named A College Trustee

Jacob B. Adams of Uniontown, Dr. Paul R. Stewart, Richard V. Morgan, Dr. A. J. Patterson, and Samuel P. Weaver, Jr., all of Waynesburg, have been elected to the board of trustees of Waynesburg College.

Mr. Morgan, Dr. Patterson, and Mr. Weaver are Alumni Trustees with Dr. Patterson and Mr. Weaver being reelected.

Mr. Adams, a graduate of 1924, is an attorney in Uniontown.

Dr. Stewart, a graduate in 1909, will become the college's chancellor on July first after serving as college president for 42 years.

Mr. Morgan, class of 1948, has served as president of the Greene County Chapter of the Alumni Association. He has also been active in the alumni fund program in Greene County. Mr. Morgan, assistant secretary of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Waynesburg, is a director of the Children's Library.

Dr. Patterson, class of 1942, is a practicing surgeon in Waynesburg and is a member of the American Medical Association, the American Board of Surgery, the American College of Surgeons, and the Pittsburgh Surgical Society. He has served as president of the Alumni Association, and has been an alumni trustee since 1960.

Mr. Weaver, class of 1941, is associated with the Weaver Funeral Home in Waynesburg. He has been active in alumni affairs, and has served on the board of directors of the Alumni Association and as treasurer. Mr. Weaver is a participant in many civic and church activities.

Small Stores Big Business

CHICAGO — Think general stores are out of vogue?

A mail order firm here needs an electronic computer to process the thousands of orders received daily from 54,000 general stores in the U. S.

The computer handles as many as 26,000 orders a day from crackerbarrel merchants during the peak Christmas buying season.

Attend the Church of Your Choice Regularly

Commencement

On Commencement Day he closed the last page of a great chapter—his youth. Today, he's "on his own." But, he's ready . . . Ready, because he lived in a good home. Ready, because he went to a good school. And ready, because he started to church early in his youth—and kept going!

Wise parents, watching him so proudly now, know full well the importance his early church training will be to him in the years of achievement that lie ahead. They will be years of decision when he must be able to distinguish right from wrong, God from godlessness. His parents and his school will not be there to help.

But his church has given him the judgment he will need. The strong foundation of good character given to him by his church training will keep his ideals true, his morals straight, his ambitions high.

Good luck, Mister. You're the product of a good home, a good school, a good church.

Not that we are sufficient of ourselves . . . but our sufficiency is of God.—II Cor. 3:5

TOMORROW IS 'FLAG DAY'

Our American Flag is the symbol of this Nation's beginning; a Nation of 13 States dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. "Old Glory" is the symbol which Americans have carried to the shores of Tripoli; to places such as Salerno, Anzio, Bastogne, Iwo Jima, Guadalcanal, and countless others. It has stood behind the preservation of the God-given right of Freedom.

The Flag—my Flag and your Flag—should be unfurled tomorrow by all Americans who realize that flag waving is a symbol of love of country, and an act of homage to those who have fought and died in the name of human freedom.

UNITED NATIONS DEFICIT GROWS

Last year, American taxpayers were told that the United Nations was nearly 200 million dollars in debt and would be bankrupt if the United States did not buy 100 million dollars worth of United Nations bonds.

The United States bought the bonds, but the United Nations is still in debt. The United Nations is said to be facing a cumulative operating deficit of 250 million dollars at the end of 1963.

Two United States Senators, who serve as delegates to the United Nations' General Assembly, recently gave a reason for the shaky financial status of the United Nations. They reported that "There is a continuing lack of fiscal responsibility among United Nations members."

The budget of the United Nations, however, keeps growing. From 50 million dollars in 1957, it reached the 80 million dollar mark last year. That figure did not include the 10 million dollars a month spent for "keeping the peace" in the Congo and on the Gaza Strip.

Where does the money come from? As its share of assessments, the United States pays 32 per cent; Russia less than 15 per cent. The rest of the world is supposed to make up the difference.

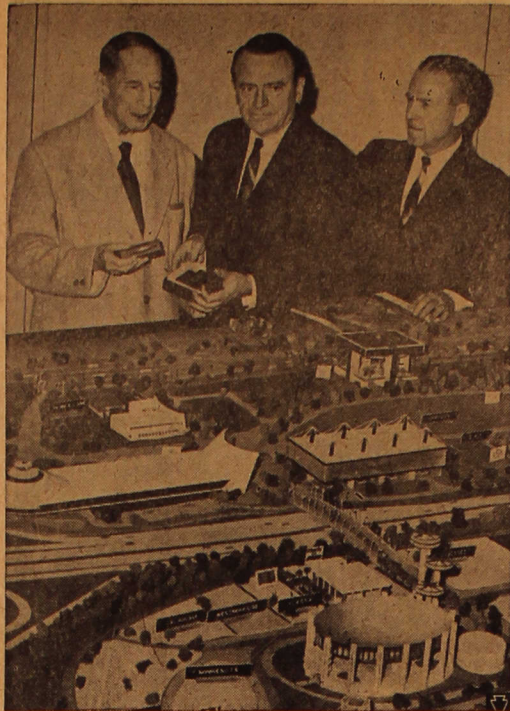

Last August, our government picked up a United Nations tab of 65 million dollars. The money was used, in part, to reduce United Nations assessments of Cuba and other communist-bloc countries. Then the International Court of Justice handed down an advisory opinion that all United Nations members must pay their regular dues, plus their share of special peace-keeping assessments, or lose their vote. Russia, eight communist-bloc nations, and 40 other countries have ignored the ruling and have refused to contribute to the "peace-keeping" operations.

Russia owes more than 70 million dollars on the regular budget and the Near East and Congo emergency accounts. This Russian default was largely financed by the 200 million dollar sale of United Nations bonds, of which the United States bought 100 million dollars' worth. Considering that Russia uses the United Nations as a springboard for espionage and a sounding board for propaganda, this amounts to paying the piper while he plays your funeral dirge.

Eight communist satellites: Albania, Bulgaria, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Mongolia, Poland, Rumania and Yugoslavia, have refused to pay their total assessment of $13,081,575. Thus the total the communists owe comes to $38,430,068, or 42 per cent of the total current deficit on all United Nations accounts. Yet, not one of them has lost its United Nations vote.

Meanwhile, the United Nations sends millions of dollars to Cuba and other communist countries for special United Nations projects. A recent example is the United Nations' gift of one and one-half million dollars to Cuba to help Castro unravel his self-imposed agricultural problems. American taxpayers furnished 40 per cent of this Special Fund; Castro has never paid his share. After an aroused American citizenry protested this action, our officials expressed "regrets" and we were assured that "no American money would be used on the Cuban project." If no American money were used, there would be no projects.

Previews World's Fair

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur accepts a gold medallion to commemorate his visit to the 1964-1965 New York World's Fair. This medallion, usually reserved for Heads of State, is presented by Thomas J. Deegan, Jr., (center) Chairman of the Fair's Executive Committee. Major General William E. Potter, U. S. A. (Retired), (right), Fair's Executive Vice President described the exhibits displayed.

Less than a week after the "regrets" were expressed, the United Nations announced that 11 new projects would be started in Cuba. One which should be of particular interest to American taxpayers is being carried out by the United Nations' Civil Aviation Organization, to which we also contribute. It has programmed for communist Cuba a grant to be used to send 12 Cubans to flight school where they'll learn to fly Russian Mig fighter planes, such as those which recently attacked fishing boats in international waters.

So long as the United States is a member of the United Nations, it will have to support such projects.

GOVERNMENT FINALLY FINDS HOME

Between 1774 and 1789, the Continental Congress played a grand game of hopscotch. It had no place it could call a permanent home, and some observers said, with tongue-in-cheek, that the Continental Congress moved around more than the British troops. It was true. The Congress had a good reason to keep moving.

In order to avoid capture by His Majesty's troops, the Congress moved from Philadelphia to Baltimore, then back to Philadelphia. The British came too close for comfort once more so the Congress packed up and took fast carts and carriages to Lancaster, Pennsylvania. Later on the proximity of the enemy forced the Congress to move to York, Pennsylvania.

The British did not present the only problem. On June 21, 1783, the Continental Congress was chagrined when a group of unpaid militia men approached the Congress' meeting place in Philadelphia. Unpaid soldiers are notoriously short-tempered after months of risking their lives without payment.

Before you could say "King George is a tea taxer," the unpaid soldiers poked their heads and their guns through the windows and began shouting insults at the lawmakers.

With no small amount of indignation, the Continental Congress viewed the affair as something to be avoided in the future, and picked up its files and moved to Princeton, N. J. The lawmakers felt that the incident at Philadelphia was ample proof that a government district ought to be set up. They also felt that armed protection would be a good idea.

Four months after the rather shocking affair at Philadelphia, the Continental Congress passed a resolution to erect buildings at one of two places; either on the banks of the Delaware near Trenton, or on the banks of the Potomac (then spelled Pawtawmmack) near Georgetown.

If anyone thought that argument was inevitable, they were right. The Southerners and Northerners immediately disagreed about locating a site for a permanent place of government. One satirist poked fun at the long argument by suggesting that the capital be set upon wheels so it could be transported from one place to another.

Finally, an agreement was reached; but it was no agreement at all. It had been agreed that a site in New Jersey would be amicable to all. However, since there was no money to establish the New Jersey capital, the plans were dropped.

In 1787, the Constitution of the United States specified the setting up of a district for the government. The first U. S. Congress met in New York City, which would not be a good site, some said, because that area's "money power" might corrupt the lawmakers.

The banks of the Potomac were decided on when anti-federalists, who had previously voted against federal assumption of debts, said they would change their votes on the debt issue if the Potomac were picked for the seat of government.

The actual site, which includes Georgetown, was selected by President George Washington.

Congress met in the District of Columbia for the first time on November 21, 1800.

WORDS TO REMEMBER

"Let our object be our country, our whole country and nothing but our country. And by the blessing of God, may that country itself become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror, but of wisdom, of peace and of liberty, upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever."—Daniel Webster.

Plans for Allegheny Power System Development Are Announced

Preliminary financing and engineering plans for Allegheny Power System participation in the multi-company $350,000,000 power development outlined late last year have been announced by J. Lee Rice, Jr., Allegheny System president, and S. L. Drumm, president of West Penn Power Company.

West Penn, along with Monongahela Power Company of Fairmont, W. Va., and Potomac Edison Company of Hagerstown, Md., are the three principal operating subsidiaries of the Allegheny Power System.

Initial investment of $57.5 million in the first 500,000 kilowatt section of the new Fort Martin generating station of the Allegheny Power System, on the West Virginia-Pennsylvania border just south of Point Marion, Pa., will be shared equally by Monongahela and Potomac Edison. The site study is completed and engineers to design the station will be selected after evaluation of proposals. Construction will start in 1964 and be completed by 1967. A second 500,000 kilowatt unit is planned for 1970.

Presidents Rice and Drumm also stated that an engineering firm is being selected to design the 500,000 volt transmission line that will carry power from the new station and provide large capacity ties with other systems east and west. Practically all the 130 miles, estimated to cost $17.5 million will be owned by another subsidiary, West Penn Power Company. Completion is scheduled for 1966.

The principal section of the extra-high voltage line under West Penn supervision runs from Fort Martin station northeastward to Keystone power station, which General Public Utilities, and Pennsylvania Power and Light and Philadelphia Electric Companies are building on the eastern edge of Armstrong County. This 1,600,000 kilowatt generating station is another major part of the $350,000,000 program.

Allegheny Power System studies are in progress with Virginia Electric and Power Company looking toward an additional 50 or more miles of 500,000 volt line connecting the Fort Martin station with that company's new Mt. Storm station in West Virginia.

The 900-acre Fort Martin station site is at the Pennsylvania-West Virginia state line on the Monongahela River near Point Marion, Pa., an eight miles from Morgantown, West Virginia, in an area of extensive coal reserves.

How Cardinals Elect New Pope; Difficult Task

VATICAN CITY—The successor of Pope John XXIII will be elected at a secret conclave of the cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church.

With the passing of the Pope, the princes of the church will come to Rome from throughout the Christian world. In two to three weeks they will barricade themselves in the Sistine Chapel and the adjoining Vatican apartments.

They will not emerge from the tightly guarded conclave area until a new Pope—almost certainly one of their own number—is elected by a majority of two-thirds of the cardinals present.

There is no foretelling how long the conclave might last. The election of Pope Pius XII in 1939 took just 20 hours. Pope John was elected on the 12th ballot in a four-day conclave in 1958. The conclave that elected Pope Gregory X in 1271 took two years and nine months—the longest on record.

With the election of the new Pontiff—who will be regarded by Roman Catholics as the 262nd vicar of Christ on earth and a direct successor to St. Peter—a cardinal deacon will appear on the central balcony of St. Peter's basilica to announce to the great crowd in the square below.

"Nuntio vobis gaudium magnum: habemus papam." "I announce to you tidings of great joy. We have a Pope."

The tens of thousands waiting in St. Peter's square will thunder its approval. Then the new Pope will step into view, garbed in newly tailored papal vestments, and slowly raise his hands in benediction.

The method of electing the Pope evolved over many centuries. During the first three centuries of Christianity the bishops of Rome, who are the Popes, chose their successors, sometimes with the advice of bishops of nearby sees. From the time of the Council of Antioch in 341 until the eighth century synods were held to take the vote of clergy and faithful, which led the way to considerable lay meddling.

Even after the cardinals won the right to elect the Popes, they were subject to interference. They also found the task difficult because of their own differences. To prod them, the Franciscan monk Bonaventure suggested in 1268 that the cardinals be locked up and given skimpy rations of food and water until they made up their minds.

A wing of the Vatican palace will be given over to the coming conclave. With about 200 aides, the cardinals will remain under lock and key—virtual prisoners—until they have chosen Pope John's successor. Each cardinal will have a small apartment of three rooms in which he will live with his conclave secretary and personal servant. The apartments will be outfitted with beds, tables, and chairs—little more.

Until the new Pope is announced, the only clue to the progress of the voting will be wisps of smoke from a thin, round chimney thrust through a window of the Sistine chapel.

According to a tradition which has become accepted during the past century, a puff of white smoke is supposed to signal that a new Pope has been elected. The smoke is from ballots which are burned in a small stove in the chapel after each round of voting. If a Pope has been elected, the ballots are burned alone. If no candidate has received the required majority, a little damp straw is supposed to be added and the smoke is supposed to come out black.

The signal system hardly is foolproof. Despite the addition of the straw, great billows of white smoke shot from the chimney on the first day of voting in 1958. Vatican Radio announced erroneously that a Pope had been elected.

The next day the cardinals added a petroleum by-product to the burning ballots to make sure the smoke would come out black.

Three days later Angelo Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli, elderly patriarch of Venice, received the required majority from the conclave of 51 cardinals. Then there was a tiny wisp of smoke, but none could say for certain whether it was white or black.

The bustle of activity on the balcony of St. Peter's basilica ended the doubts.

Of the vanishing acreage, 40 percent is cropland and grassland pastures, 40 percent forest and 20 percent idle land.

Secret of His Success?

Fifteen years have passed since Nellie Fox, powerful little second baseman of the Chicago White Sox, sauntered up to the plate and punched out his first major league hit for the old Philadelphia A's. When a reporter recently asked him where he gets all his bounce, Fox, said some athletes prefer candy or a sandwich before a game, but he likes peanut butter for a quick energy lift. Fox and his guest, Darel Glaser, 7, are perched on the edge of the White Sox dugout watching the visiting team practice before a night game. The veteran baseball star has already delivered more than 2,400 hits in his colorful career.

Dr. Bryner's Chuckaluck Chunky Is State Champion Beagle Dog

Chuckaluck Chunky is a dog with a tale which is as fantastic as its natural tail is commonplace.

In the first place, the husky 15-inch beagle hound wasn't supposed to have ever been born. It just resulted from an accidental mating when a kennel gate was left open.

In the second place it's not owned by the kind of man who ordinarily owns field trial hunting dogs. Instead, his owner is a brilliant biology professor at Waynesburg College, Dr. Charles Bryner.

In the third place, Chuckaluck is the best beagle dog in the State. The husky tan and white beagle king was crowned after the long Pennsylvania State Championship Stakes held recently at the Lebanon County Beagle Club Association grounds near Harrisburg.

Elimination trials were started last fall with 2,600 entries.

But even before the trials were started, adversity seemed to hit Chuckaluck every time he turned around. Only a small boy's intense desire to own a dog saved him from destruction because of the chance inbreeding when he was whelped. Even a minister gave up on him when he was given to him.

After that he was sold for $100 (when it was found out he could trail a rabbit). But the check was no good so he was brought back. Later one eye was shot out and was saved only by a new type of electric meter. Then he was stolen and recovered because of a chance remark by a youngster that his dad had a new dog.

Finally, Chuckaluck started winning field trials and hasn't stopped. At the state contest he proved worthy of the faith his teacher-owner had in him by winning both the 15-inch class title and then the Grand State Championship beating the 13-inch winner.

Needless to say, his proud owner wouldn't trade him for all the microscopes in the world. In fact, Dr. Bryner rates him an A grade hound.

WASHINGTON—Competition for summer jobs has been getting keener and keener year after year—and 1963 will be no exception.

Observers in the field of employment believe this situation will continue for years because of the sharp jump in the annual number of boys and girls who will turn 16.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, some 3,500,000 boys and girls will reach that age this year.

Moths' Appetite Has Long History

NEW YORK—A flighty thing—the hungry moth—causes 300 million dollars worth of damage annually in the United States, reports Allied Chemical Corporation.

The pesky thing caused trouble as far back as Biblical times, as evidenced by a verse from Job. The verse: "Though I am like a rotten thing that consumeth, like a garment that is moth eaten."

Regatta at Fredericktown Sunday Backed by County Tourist Agencies

Some of the nation's top racing drivers will compete at Fredericktown Sunday, June 16, in the first annual Boating Regatta sponsored by the Washington-Greene County Tourist Promotion Agency. The drivers, including national and international record holders will travel from many parts of the United States and Canada to compete in the seven hydroplane and two utility races which will get under way on the Monongahela River at one o'clock.

In addition to the races, a water skiing performance will be conducted by the Golden Triangle Water Ski Club of Pittsburgh. Special races between radio, television and newspaper personalities are also being planned.

There will be no admission charge to the regatta, and the police, firemen, and residents of Fredericktown have arranged to block off streets and make private property available for thousands of free parking spaces.

West Virginia Derby to Be Renewed At Waterford Park on Saturday July 27

General Manager Harry R. Bell has announced that the West Virginia Derby, formerly run at Wheeling Downs for four years, will have its renewal at Waterford Park on Saturday, July 27.

In commenting on the transfer of the Derby from Wheeling Downs to Waterford Park, Mr. Bell stated: "We felt that Waterford Park would be the more ideal place for the Derby because of the full mile oval as compared to the half-mile at Wheeling Downs. This fact alone should draw much better horses from many sectors of the country, horses whose owners and trainers are reluctant to run on a half-mile track. We are expecting to draw a fine field of better thoroughbreds for the race at one and one-eighth miles for the added purse of $5,000. Our field representative, Herman 'Slim' Summers is now on an extended trip lining up horses for the race."

Racing Secretary F. G. "Pug" Wilson stated that the race will be run under handicap conditions in order to give every starter an equal chance to vie for the added purse.

A handsome solid silver cup that will be presented to the winning owner of the West Virginia Derby is now on display in the club house. Nominations for the important stake event will close on Saturday, July 20.

Mr. Bell also announced that the second running of the Waterford Park Silver Plate Mile at $3,500 added, will be held on Saturday, August 24. This race is also under handicap conditions with nominations closing on Saturday, August 17.

Both stakes events carry a nomination fee of $15 per horse and a starting fee of $25. All nomination and starting fees will be added to the winner's share of the purses.

The regular Waterford Park summer meeting opens on Wednesday, July 3, and runs through Labor Day, September 2. Post time has been set at 3:45 daily and at 2:00 p. m. on Saturdays. Racing will be conducted six days a week during the entire meeting and the minimum purse has been set at $1,000.

Seven records were broken and two more were tied on Saturday. Ribbons were awarded to the first three in each event.

Local Women Win All-Comers Track

Diane Waddington of New Castle, took first place in six events at the Greene County Track Club's third annual All-Comers Women's Track Meet, Saturday, at College Field.

Diane won the low hurdles, 100-yard dash, 440-yard run, broad jump, softball throw and tied for the lead in the high jump.

The Greene County team topped the meet with 59 points followed by New Castle 32, Jeanette 21, Pittsburgh Striders 13 and Greensburg 10.

Miss Rita Goodwin, who sparked the G. C. T. C. with 13 points, tied with Miss Waddington in the high jump and thus shares the meet record.

Miss Goodwin, rated as one of the Allegheny Mountain Association's finest new prospects, placed in six events.

Seven records were broken and two more were tied on Saturday. Ribbons were awarded to the first three in each event.

And Other Game Protect Songbirds

"No more reading, writing nor 'rithmetic" is the happy cry of Pennsylvania youngsters, but for the Pennsylvania Game Commission, the end of the school term and the start of summer vacations pose a perennial problem. Commission spokesmen said that the release from school routine and studies leads thousands of boys, and even some girls, to take to the woods and fields in search of adventure and outdoor challenge. Many of these youngsters carry along guns, bows and arrows, sling-shots or other weapons. Most of them will take aim at paper bulls-eyes, archery butts and other safe targets but too often, they can't resist the temptation of shooting at some wild bird or animal.

"We are glad to see Pennsylvania youngsters enjoying their vacations in the outdoors," says T. F. Bell, Chief of the Game Commission's Division of Law Enforcement, "but we don't like to see promiscuous shooting, especially at protected birds and animals. We urge parents to impress upon their children the importance of safe gun handling and the need for protecting wild birds and animals during the summer months. Although a few birds are unprotected by law, we strongly recommend that youngsters refrain from shooting at any wild bird or animal. All shooting, in fact, should be done under parental supervision in a safe location."

Race Walk Held At College Field

John Caldwell, 16, and Buddy Greco, 15, tied for first place in the Greene County Track Clubs two-mile youth race walk Sunday at College Field. Their time was 23:33.

Barbara Tennant, 12, won the girls' division in 23:48.

Barry Harwick, 8, copped third in the boys' race in 24:16. Shirley Wilson, 14, was second for the girls in 27:00 and Prissie Tennant, 8, third in 31:17.

Rounding out the finishers among the boys were Woody Tennant, 10, 24:17; Bob Harwick, 6, 25:49; Dan Humble, 9, 25:58; and Joe Buckley, 7, 29:43.

Rounding out the finishers among the girls were Debby Scherich, 7, 31:47, and Tammy Scherich, 5, 42:37. Sara Matthews, 10, and Beth Harwick, 5, did not finish.

'Old Ironsides' On Annual Voyage; Turns in Harbor

The United States frigate Constitution was loosed from its moorings at the Boston Naval Shipyard in Charlestown Wednesday morning for the first time in a year.

And the pomp and ceremony surrounding the event could scarcely have been greater had Old Ironsides been setting out on a long trip to New York to take part in the next world's fair.

But, with the decision on the New York journey still pending, the 44-gun frigate was content Wednesday to go no farther than the Boston Harbor on its annual "turn-around cruise."

Adding formality and color to the event was an imposing line of ranking Navy personnel, including Prince Knud of Denmark, who is a vice-admiral in his country's Navy, and Lt. Victor B. Stevens Jr., commanding officer aboard the 166-year-old ship. Also on hand to play throughout the two-hour cruise was the Boston Naval Base band.

The object of the annual towing of the vessel by three tugs is to reverse the position of the Constitution in its berth. Thus warping from wind and sun is evenly distributed on both sides of the mast and yardarms. Today the 204-foot-long ship faces inland.

Old Ironsides was one of six war vessels constructed in the 1790s to combat the twin enemies of American shipping, The Barbary pirates of North African shores demanded annual tribute for noninterference with American commerce, and France and Great Britain, while at war with each other persisted in interfering with our neutral merchant ships.

Put together with copper bolts and spikes from Paul Revere's blacksmith shop in Boston, the Constitution was made of oak, cedar, pine, and locust wood.

But it is the live oak used only in American shipbuilding, which has lasted through the years of wear and tear on Old Ironsides. Only about 15 percent of the original ship still exists.

The victorious veteran of many battles, the Constitution had one of its closest calls in the early part of the War of 1812. The frigate was being chased by six British ships when the wind stopped and its sails began to droop.

In response to an order from the captain of the vessel, the crew towed Old Ironsides for 50 hours by means of small boats lowered from the main deck. A strong wind finally caught and filled the sails, pulling the Constitution far out of range of gunfire.

Today the retired warship is manned by a crew of 48 sailors. Louis Porina, executive officer of the ship, maintains that a smaller crew would not be able to do the job.

"It's like keeping a hotel clean to keep this ship in order," he explains. "Someone has to be on fire watch at all times, and sometimes we don't have enough men to act as guides for visitors."

Barring a change in plans brought about by a decision on the world's fair proposal, the Constitution will be open to the public until it goes into dry-dock during the last months of 1963 for a rebuilding.

Special wooden beams are going through an aging process at the shipyard and will be used as new masts for the vessel.

Unemployment And Future Stability To Be Explored

"Focal Point," a major year-long broadcasting project designed to focus on the alarming Pittsburgh and area unemployment problems, will be launched simultaneously on KDKA-TV and KDKA Radio on Sunday, June 23, from 9 to 10 p. m.

To be followed on consecutive nights by three 90-minute symposiums to be broadcast live from Carnegie Hall from 8:30 to 10 p. m., the initial documentary will set forth the patterns of Western Pennsylvania's unemployment picture in terms of its impact upon the families involved.

KDKA Radio will actually begin its schedule of programs on Saturday, June 22, with unemployment in general to be the subject for a series of documentaries to be presented every hour on the half-hour.

The subsequent programs will embrace key national and local figures in industry, labor, education and government, who will study the three main factors of unemployment, and advise the public just what is being done to solve the problem. Topics to be discussed include: The drive for new industries; the role of local, state and federal governments in seeking solutions, and the key roles that education and culture must play.

Each forum will be preceded by a short documentary designed to establish the problem at hand and enlighten the panelists on their specific roles.

The "Focal Point" project will be of year-long duration with both KDKA Radio and Television maintaining a continuous pattern of broadcasts in an effort to enlarge, examine, and give impetus to subsequent actions taken by the communities.

Following the introductory programs, the series will cover such significant areas as Automation, Diversification, Welfare and Relief, the Labor Climate, Unemployment Compensation, and the Fact and Fiction of Federal Retraining.

In an effort to integrate its series of programs with those to be planned by the individual communities, KDKA Radio and KDKA Television are making available an informative handbook outlining not only their own course of action, but also offering aids and suggestions to all civic, business and governmental organizations wishing to participate in the project.

All interested parties should contact the Focal Point Director at KDKA-TV, One Gateway Center, Pittsburgh 22, Pa.

Tickets for the initial debates at Carnegie Hall on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, June 24, 25, and 26, may be obtained by writing KDKA at the above address or telephoning to the Focal Point office at 391-3000.

Who was the first human to fly? A French physician, Francois Pilatre de Rozier, in 1783.

Who was the first person to lose his life in an air casualty? The same physician, in 1785.

Who was the first to make a planned scientific air flight over land? John Jeffries, M. D., a Boston physician, in 1784 in England.

The first to cross the English Channel by air? The same doctor, in 1785.

Accompanying Dr. Jeffries on his two epic flights was J. P. Blanchard, a Frenchman, who came to America in 1793 and made the first balloon flight in this country.

Blanchard covered the fifteen miles from Philadelphia to Woodbury, New Jersey, flying over the Delaware River, in forty-six minutes.

An interested spectator was George Washington.

The first space medicine comment was made by the aforesaid Dr. Rozier, on making the first human ascent above the earth.

Having risen to a height of 330 feet, he stated, "The air up there is not poisonous."

Space medicine today need not be concerned with whether or not the air up there is poisonous, for astronauts carry earth's atmosphere with them in their space vehicles.

Weightlessness over a long period and what it does to the human body is now eminently important.

Space medicine today involves acceleration, deceleration, pressurization, radiation, nutrition, isolation, sensory deprivation, neurologic and mental states, physical activity.

Space medicine makes space travel possible.

Sculptured Italian Furniture

The beautifully molded form of the chair with its sleigh runner base is characteristic of the sculptured and engineered look of the newest Italian furniture designs. The chest, also from Italy, is walnut. Although its lines are simple, the striations of wood grain are exploded to give it a decorative effect. Drawer pulls in a darker finish accent it.

Field Course In Geology Offered By College

The eighth annual summer field course in geology offered by Waynesburg College will be held during August at Waynesburg College Rocky Mountain Field Station, Florissant, Colorado.

Approximately ten students, majoring in geology at Waynesburg College and at other colleges and universities will spend four weeks in the high southern Rockies, studying rock formations, mineral deposits, fossil beds, and the geological history of an area of about 10,000 square miles.

Students will practice the field techniques of various mapping procedures, using instruments such as the alidade and plane table, the Brunton compass, the altimeter and magnetometer. Two or three small areas will be mapped geologically in complete detail, using aerial photographs as well as surface measurements. Exploratory trips will be made to important metal deposit areas such as Cripple Creek, Leadville, and Climax, Colorado. The geology of the great natural park areas of Colorado, of the Arkansas River valley, and of the Pike's Peak batholith will be studied extensively. The world-famous Florissant Fossil Shale beds are near the field station, and for several years Dr. Paul R. Stewart, president of Waynesburg College, has made research excavations in these rocks.

Students will live bunk-house fashion in the college's new cinder block building. Other facilities provided include a museum-laboratory, a small library, and jeep transportation for rough mountain field work.

Students from Allegheny College, Alma College, Purdue University, the University of Puget Sound, and the University of Rhode Island, as well as from Waynesburg College, have been enrolled in this course at one time or another in the past eight years. The course carries four semester hours credit.

The work of the group is under the direction of James B. Schroyer, associate professor of geology at Waynesburg College. Various specialists in the geology of the Rocky Mountain region are called upon from time to time for added guidance.

Mural Symbolizes Plant Kingdom

Art speaks a universal language, according to Mrs. Lois Sealy Gray, former graduate student at The Pennsylvania State University, who painted this mural. Wallace E. White veteran forester at the Agricultural Experiment Station, has found interesting features to discuss with Henry H. Chisman, another faculty member. This vivid art work hangs in the conference room of the Forestry Building at Penn State where it attracts a lot of attention. It represents dendrology, the study of trees from seed to maturity.

U. S. and Cuba Deal Ending

WASHINGTON—A somber era in United States relations with Cuba will end — perhaps within the next week — when the last American ship carrying Bay of Pigs ransom goods sails to Havana.

Communist Cuban Premier Fidel Castro will then have been "paid off"—with 53 million dollars worth of aspirin, baby food and medical supplies ranging from heart valves to tongue depressors — for releasing 1113 Cuban invasion prisoners last December.

Red Cross officials said today they have now shipped $56,600,000 in ransom cargoes in eight ships. They hope to send the next ship out within a week. It may be the last, depending on how much cargo can be crammed into it. Or, there could be one more.

The ransom price was negotiated by New York lawyer James Donovan on behalf of the Cuban Families Committee and with President Kennedy's benediction. More than 200 U. S. firms donated the goods, with the President's brother, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy playing a key role in the negotiations.

Bell Spent Life Teaching Deaf

WASHINGTON—A pioneering organization established by Alexander Graham Bell carries on the work dearest to the great inventor's heart.

The Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf, founded in 1890, continues to lead deaf children from bewildering silence into the world of hearing people.

At a time when most authorities held that deaf children were doomed to mutism, Dr. Bell firmly believed that they could be taught to speak.

Even until his death, in 1922, when asked to state his profession, Dr. Bell replied proudly, "I am a teacher of the deaf."

Dr. Bell's association has 4,000 members in every State in 46 countries, the National Geographic Society says. Its headquarters is the Volta Bureau, housed in a Grecian-style building in Washington.

Founded by Dr. Bell in 1887, the Volta Bureau is the world's leading information center about deafness. The bureau's library on deafness and speech, based on Dr. Bell's personal collection, is probably the largest in the world, containing books in more than 20 languages.

Every year thousands of parents of deaf children ask the association for help. They receive an information kit that answers the most frequent questions about deaf children, a list of books and pamphlets, information on educational and voca-

Tattoos Taboo In Connecticut

HARTFORD, Conn. — Tattoos are taboo in Connecticut, even for sailors.

The State legislature approved recently a bill outlawing tattooing and in effect shutting tattoo parlors near the U. S. Submarine Base at Groton.

From now on, tattoos can be applied only by a doctor or under a doctor's supervision.

2 Locomotives To Be Presented

WINNIPEG, Man. — Two played-out steam locomotives have been hauled from a railroad graveyard here to be painted, polished and placed in a museum near Montreal. One—the 2850—headed a royal tour train from Quebec City to Vancouver in 1939.

Name-Calling At Its Worst

GRAFNEY, S. C. — Two elementary school youngsters having a disagreement were calling each other names.

"You're a Yankee," said one of the boys.

"You're a Russian," retorted the other.

The first boy thought for a moment and triumphantly declared, "And you're a Republican."

Apparently the other youngster could think of nothing worse. "Well, you're a Republican, too," he shouted.
