New Waynesburg Council Member Takes Oath

By ROBIN ROBERTS
Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — During a busy session Monday night, Waynesburg Borough Council swore in a new member from Ward III; heard a comprehensive report on activities of the borough police department; made two appointments to its planning commission; set a public hearing date on the proposed cable television system for the community and did away with the position of borough dog enforcement officer.

Thomas Brown, a resident of East Waynesburg (Ward III) was sworn into a council seat, filling a vacancy created by the resignation of Kenneth Broad, who resigned earlier this summer because he was moving from the community.

Most members of the police force were on hand for a report which they had prepared for council's information. Much of the report centered upon activities and projects which the police force has undertaken on its own to improve its service to the community.

Some of the changes which the members of the department have instituted included:

- A more competent and comprehensive report system;

- Establishment of an evidence room and a physical training room;
- Bimonthly police meetings;
- CPR and first aid training;
- The placement of first aid kits in each patrol vehicle;
- A standard operating procedure manual;
- The acquisition of a breathalyzer machine and training in its use;
- The acquisition and use of a camera and the establishment of a criminal investigation (detective) department.

The report noted that nearly all of the improvements have been made at no cost to borough government.

A statement made by officers during the report prompted council to do away with the position of dog law enforcement officer in the community.

Police told council that they have had difficulty in contacting the current dog catcher, Don Chappel of Oak Forest, when they have dog problems. As a result, council decided to eliminate the position and seek alternate steps for dog law enforcement within the borough.

Warren Hoffnagle was appointed to a three-year position on the borough planning commission, ending in 1983 and Carter T. Funk was reappointed to a five-year position on the commission. Hoffnagle was appointed to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of William Ross.

Chairman of the public utilities committee, Jim Eichenlaub, told council that his committee will be meeting with the three cable television bidders in the near future and that as public hearing has been set for Oct. 1 in McCance Hall on the Waynesburg College campus to receive input on the proposed new cable system. He told council a criteria rating system is being formed by his committee to rate the three companies which have bid to the cable television rights in the community.

Eichenlaub also told council that his committee is considering a grant request to the Department of Community Affairs for the revamping of the fire hydrant system within the borough. He also recommended that the Insurance Service Office (ISO) be contacted concerning insurance ratings in the community. He said it is the opinion of the Waynesburg

Volunteer Fire Co. that insurance rates in the community may be lowered because of the company's recent acquisition of a new firetruck and new building which has taken place in the community since the last insurance rating by ISO.

Another step toward the closing of the borough landfill was taken when council approved a draft of a resolution calling for covering of the existing dump, located in Franklin Township but operated by the borough.

Manager Jim Ealy noted that the cost of covering, engineering, seeding, water control and fencing will be borne primarily by the Soil Conservation Service, with the borough supplying in-kind services toward the completion of the project, which is a part of an agreement with the Department of Environmental Resources for the closure of the dump.

Helen Porter of Huffman Street approached council concerning a rain water problem at her home in north Waynesburg. She said recent heavy rains have caused damage to her home and the homes of neighbors in the area and she asked that the problem be looked into.

4-H, Lions Clubs Help Train Dogs

Four young 4-H members from Greene County, members of the 4-H Dog Club, will participate in pilot program which may greatly increase the number of seeing eye dogs available for use by blind persons.

Four German shepherd puppies have been assigned to Greene County for a year's training as seeing eye dogs with their young masters. After that the dogs will be returned to Penn State University for further training and, if acceptable, will then be supplied to blind persons.

The project is being coordinated by Penn State, the 4-H, and the Lions Club. The parents of the pups are purchased with funds supplied through the Lions' Leader Dog Program in Michigan and the breeding of the dogs and early week expenses of raising the pups at the university are also covered by the club's monies. The pups are then given to 4-H members to raise for one year and then returned to the program for further seeing-eye dog training.

The four pups which were delivered to Greene County Monday are the first to be brought here as part of the program, according to assistant county agent Roger Smith. Smith said Monday that he hopes local Lions Clubs will help contribute additional funds for the care of the dogs while they are being trained by the 4-H members.

Board Raises Sewer Fee; Playground Money Sought

The Franklin Township Supervisors, in a brief meeting Monday night, heard an appeal from the Waynesburg Borough Recreation Board for financial help next summer and passed ordinances raising the sewer connection fees to $750 in all three sewer districts in the township.

William Winters, playground supervisor, and Marty Doney, a member of the recreation board, told the supervisors that because of soaring costs for equipment and salaries, the playground season has been cut back from 10 weeks to seven weeks in the past few years.

They also pointed out that as high as 40 percent of those taking part in playground activities are from the township.

Winters also pointed out that free services offered in prior years, such as Pirate tickets, are no longer available. "We hope next year, if the funding is available, to offer a special event to local youngsters each month even during the winter months," Winters said.

At the present time only Waynesburg Borough, the 20th Century Club and the Social Service League contribute toward the playground expenses. Several hundred youngsters make use of the facility each summer.

By unanimous vote, the supervisors raised the sewer connection fee from $500 to $750 effective September 14. Three separate ordinances covering the Franklin Township Sewer District, the West Franklin Sewer District and the Bonar Sewer District were approved.

Township solicitor John Hook informed the board that nearly 100 property owners in Franklin Township have failed to pay their front-foot assessment fee for the new sewer and liens will be filed against those who have not paid by Tuesday afternoon.

Late payments to release the liens will also cost the property owner a five percent penalty, costs, fees and six percent interest from March 10 when the new sewage plant was accepted.

Library's Construction Plans Approved By Zoning Board

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Borough Zoning Hearing Board Tuesday evening gave its go ahead to the Bowlby Public Library for construction of a $1 million wing on the existing structure.

The zoning board had rejected an earlier set of plans which had been submitted to it. At that time the zoning board noted the library lacked adequate parking space and that the proposed addition along with the existing building covered more than 25 percent of the lot space available.

Since that meeting, the library's board of directors and its architects have revised the plans so that the number of available parking stalls is adequate. They also changed the size of the addition so that exactly 25 percent of the space available is utilized for the structure.

The zoning board approved the revised plans by a 2-1 vote, with Charles Berryhill and William Ross voting to approve the plans and the third board member, Bob Romanosky, voting against the plans.

The new plans call for the construction of 25 on-lot parking stalls. In addition, the library board has reached an agreement with the First Baptist Church for use of its parking lot which supplies another 38 stalls for library use.

One library representative suggested that the library might be permitted to grade for the additional parking stalls on the lot, but not pave them until a need for them required that they be paved, but the zoning board insisted that the lot be constructed and paved.

Floyd King, acting as a spokesman for the library board, also told the board that at the June 10 meeting — when the original plans were rejected by the zoning board — that objections had been raised concerning the fact that an auditorium-type room was included in the building plan. He noted that under the new plans the size of the auditorium room had been reduced.

It was pointed out a permit will now be issued to the library board and that work must begin within a year and be completed within two years of issuance of the permit.

Following the meeting with the library representatives, the zoning board held a re-organization meeting. Ross resigned the chairmanship, pointing out he is moving from the borough in the near future. Romanosky was elected to serve as chairman of the board.

Carlson Named Superintendent

CALIFORNIA — Waynesburg Central High School Principal Theodore C. Carlson has been elected superintendent of the California Area School District.

The action was taken by unanimous vote of the California Area School Board at a meeting Thursday. Carlson, who was one of 52 applicants for the position, will begin his new duties immediately.

"I've enjoyed my years with the Central Greene School District and feel we've made significant advances at the high school in terms of curriculum. I regret I won't be here to see the end result of some of them," he said Thursday night. "At the same time I'm very pleased at being selected and enthusiastic about the move."

Carlson came to the Central Greene District as high school principal in 1975 following the retirement of Dr. Edward Cordray. He had been serving as assistant principal of the Oxford Area High School south of Philadelphia and at the time had eight years of administrative experience.

A native of Donora, he received his BS degree at California State College with certification in mathematics and history. He received his master's degree in educational administration and his secondary principal certification from Temple University.

Following the resignation of Dr. Howard Robertson as Central Greene superintendent in 1977, he served for one year as acting superintendent of the district, and since then has completed the requirements for chief administrator at West Virginia University. He returned to the position of high school principal following the election of Dr. Ronald Ferrari as superintendent.

He is a member of the national Association of Secondary School Principals, the Pennsylvania Association of Secondary School Principals, the Temple Alumni Association, and Phi Delta Kappa, a professional education fraternity.

Carlson has been named to the Outstanding Secondary Educators of America and the Academy of American Educators, and is an Honorary Chapter Farmer of the Future Farmers of America.

In addition to his work in education, he has served in the U. S. Navy and was employed as a mathematician by the Department of the Army at Aberdeen, Md.

Carlson and his wife, the former Margaret Crossley, have two sons, Edward and Theodore.

Fire Destroys Frame House

This two story frame house owned by John Gaskill, located near the village of Oak Forest, was gutted by fire late Thursday afternoon. Firemen from the Waynesburg Volunteer Co. and Center Township responded to the call. One fireman, Randy Hunter of Porter Street, Waynesburg, was treated at the Greene County Memorial Hospital for heat exhaustion. Firemen were called back to the scene at about 10:30 Thursday night when a chair in the building ignited.

Nemacolin Man In Serious Condition Following Crash

WAYNESBURG — Three persons were injured — one seriously — early Tuesday in a three-vehicle accident near the underpass in Morrisville where High and Greene Streets converge.

Seriously injured was John T. Morgan III, 30, of Nemacolin, one of the drivers involved.

He was pinned in his car for nearly half an hour before rescuers from the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Co., using the county Hurst Tool and an Ajax Tool, were able to get him out. Also injured were Ardith Cosgrove, 49, of Rices Landing R.D.1, a passenger in the Morgan vehicle, and Richard A. Morris, 20, of Waynesburg, one of the other drivers.

The third driver, Michael Wayne Frederick, 38, of Brownsville, escaped injury.

After being freed from his car, Morgan was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital for emergency treatment and then transferred to the West Virginia University Medical Center where he underwent surgery. He was listed in serious condition suffering from internal injuries and multiple trauma.

Cosgrove was admitted to Greene County Hospital and was still under observation Tuesday afternoon.

Morris, who suffered a laceration of the chin, was treated at the local hospital and released.

Following his treatment, Morris was arrested by

MR. AND MRS. JAMES ANDERSON

Andersons Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Anderson will observe their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, September 14.

Friends and relatives are invited to the event hosted by their family at their home on Holbrook Star Route from 2 to 5 p.m.

Mr. Anderson, son of the late George and Myrtle Gilmer Anderson and Dennis, daughter of the late Lewis P. and Nora Kuhn Riggle, were married September 17, 1930, at Mt. Pleasant by the Rev. J.L. Updegraph, pastor of the First Church of God.

Mr. Anderson is retired from Peoples Natural Gas Company after 46 years of service.

They are members of the Centennial Church of God and are parents of two daughters Justine, wife of Carroll Neff of Columbus, Ohio and Joetta, wife of Fred Welch, of Fostoria, Ohio and a son, Gilmer F. Anderson of Findlay, Ohio.

There are also seven grandchildren and two step-grandchildren. The couple requests that gifts be omitted.

revelation

It is so much more beautiful than words. The sun touches the lake to bronze and the sky is a wonderful blend of apricot and mauve and burnished orange. The big buck silhouetted at the water's edge seems to be looking right at you. For the moment, at least, you are both unafraid.

You store this sight in your memory, to be dusted off on days when the view is cloudy. Remembering, you realize anew that there's something so much bigger than all of us. No man could have made that lake, nor that sky, nor that deer, nor all that glory.

Nature is an ultimate teacher. It would seem, in fact, as if God must have chosen nature as a kind of reflection. Your place of worship is a reflection, too. Why not take a look at it?

Susan Elizabeth Seeman Weds Maryland Man

A wedding trip to Emerald Beach in the Bahamas followed the August 23, 1980, ceremony uniting in marriage Susan Elizabeth Seeman and Thomas Surendorf Chambers.

The Rev. Edward Wilkins officiated at the 6:30 p.m. double ring service held in St. Luke's United Methodist Church in Denton, Md. The organist was Mrs. Walter Palmer and the soloist was Mrs. Sandra Wood.

MRS. CHAMBERS

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. James Beatty of 167 Maple Street, Carmichaels, and the late Woodrow W. Seeman. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Marvin Chambers of 322 S. Second Street, Denton, and the late Marvin E. Chambers.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Samuel W. Seeman of Uniontown. She wore a floor length empire waist gown with a white gossamer sheer overlay, a portrait neckline and sheer bishop sleeves. A Chantilly lace flounce framed the neckline and hemline of the A-line skirt and train, and theneckline, cuffs and waist were accented with silk Venice lace. All bridal traditions were observed in her attire. She wore a diamond and pearl necklace belonging to her Grandmother Seeman and her mother's pearl earrings.

wedding party and the bride's headpiece were designed and made by Mrs. James Sicklesmith of Clarksville, Ind.

Timothy King of Ocean City, Md. served as the best man. The ushers were William Platt of New York, William Hollingsworth of Denton, Steve Slaughter of Delmar, Md., and Kevin King of Ocean City. The ring bearers were Michael Seeman and David Seeman of Uniontown.

A buffet dinner reception for 300 guests supplemented the ceremony at the Caroline Country Club. Carol Slaughter of Delmar, was in charge of registering guests from Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Bethlehem. Wedding bulletins were passed by Mr. and Mrs. Keith Henry.

The bride is a graduate of Carmichaels Area High School and California State College. She taught for six years in Talbot County Public Schools.

The bridegroom is employed as a certified public accountant with Main, Hurdman and Cranston of Salisbury.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Chambers will be at home on Shell Road in Delmar.

Head Of Dietary Department Joined Hospital Staff In 1958

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is another in a series of articles on various departments at Greene County Memorial Hospital. They are being written by Mrs. Marcia J. McEwen.

Rita Smith is one person who thinks a great deal about food and with good reason, too. Mrs. Smith is both a dietitian and head of the dietary department at Greene County Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Smith lives at 537 Ross Street with her husband, Leighton, and their three children. Working with her at the hospital are Claudia Iams and Robin Dayton, food service supervisors, and a staff of 17 full-time and six part-time employees.

The dietary department is responsible not only for feeding employees, visitors and patients, but also for preparing special treats, such as the recently inaugurated "dining for two," (a dinner for new parents in the mother's room), birthday celebration trays for patients, and holiday extras.

In addition to daily visitors, about 130 of the 300 employees at the hospital enjoy a lunch or dinner in the cafeteria for a price as low as $1.25. A cup of coffee costs 20 cents. A typical menu consists of soup, a main entree, vegetable, salads, desserts and beverages.

Grilled items are also available for employees and visitors, and hot dogs, hamburgers and french fries head this list. There also are five vending machines in the cafeteria where one can purchase sandwiches, hot foods, desserts, salads and beverages.

With the exception of the main entree, which is prepared in the kitchen, employee-visitor meals are prepared in the cafeteria. The employee-visitor dining area, with a seating capacity of 60 persons, completes the three-room dietary department.

All patient meals are prepared in the kitchen and food service employees deliver the trays in carts to the nurses' stations. Nurses then take the trays to the patients.

"Our is a centralized food service as the trays are filled in the kitchen before going to the patient," Mrs. Smith explained. If the 120-bed hospital were filled, the department would be serving 240 lunches and dinners. The patient menu, of course, is different from the bill of fare employees and visitors enjoy.

A typical patient menu for dinner might consist of stuffed flounder with tartar sauce or baked meat loaf with gravy, potato, buttered whole kernel corn or stewed tomatoes, and a choice of salad, dessert and beverage. Each morning, patients select their menu choices for the following day.

Mrs. Smith and her staff have seasonal menus which allow the patient to eat vegetables and fruits that are in season. Menus are run in 21-day cycles so that no patient is served the same food selection twice in three weeks.

Even though Mrs. Smith has a varied clientele to worry about, she thoroughly enjoys the work she has been doing since she joined the hospital staff in 1958.

"I always wanted to be a hospital dietitian," she said. "I actually never wanted to work as a dietitian in any other place. I guess I mainly enjoy seeing sick people recuperate and take pleasure in eating again."

Although she never forgets food is her job, Mrs. Smith says she does enjoy eating out.

"I actually never forget what to look for in food, but that doesn't bother me. When I eat at home or at a restaurant, I always notice how the food is seasoned, how it is cooked, and even how it is served. This doesn't stop me from enjoying it, however, and I certainly have my favorite dishes."

The hospital dietitian does have other interests besides food. Swimming and boating are on her list of favorite sports and she enjoys knitting, quilting and crocheting.

Kenneth Tompkins, representing Klear Kable; Phil Thoben, vice-president of Firstmark Financial Services, Inc.; and Clyde Ammons and William Barnhart, partners in Klear Kable.

Klear Kable Sale Complete

WAYNESBURG — Tele-Media Company of Waynesburg Thursday officially purchased Klear Kable Television Receiving Service and the new owners have promised a completely refurbished system within six months.

Robert E. Tudek, president of the firm, said "Tele-Media intends to refurbish the entire cable television plant to provide a system capable of at least 20 channels, home box office, Cinemax and a 24-hour sports network, channel 17 from Atlanta, Ga., and the Christian Broadcast Network."

Tele-Media will also have local programs originating from Waynesburg College and will provide other services to area customers whenever economically feasible.

When asked about services such as medical alert or fire and burglary alarms, Frank Vicente, general manager and vice president of Tele-Media, said, "The sky is the limit. We will continue to expand our area and our services in the future."

Vicente said the company will continue to operate out of the old Klear Kable offices at 144 Cherry Alley but hopefully will be moving into new offices in the near future.

"We will expand our services by keeping the office open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each evening and we have made arrangements to have

First National Bank of Washington collect bills," Vicente said. McCracken's Pharmacy will also continue to accept payments.

Various engineering surveys are now under way and an emergency repair service will soon be available after 5 p.m. according to Vicente. Tele-Media will also rebuild the firm's master antenna and will install an earth satellite receiving terminal.

Fairview Methodist Church Records Greatest Increase

HOLBROOK — The Fairview United Methodist Church recorded the greatest percentage of gain in Sunday School attendance during the first week of the 11th annual Enlargement Campaign sponsored by the Greene County Sunday School Association.

The campaign this year is centering on the 200th anniversary of the founding of the Sunday School movement, and the first week focused on honoring Robert Raikes, who began the movement in England in 1780.

M. B. McMillen of Holbrook, evangelism chairman of the county association, said the Fairview church recorded a gain of 54 persons (135 percent) over the same Sunday last year.

Second place went to the Mapletown United Methodist Church with a gain of 22 individuals (61.6 percent); third place to the Blacksburg Baptist Church, nine persons (52.9 percent); fourth place to the Enon Baptist Church, 11 persons (28.9 percent); fifth place to the Rogersville Christian Church, three persons (15.8 percent); sixth place to the Pleasant Hill United Methodist Church, two persons (15.4 percent); seventh place to the Carmichaels United Methodist Church, 13 persons (14.6 percent); eighth place to the Spraggs United Methodist Church, two persons (5.5 percent) and ninth place to the Harmony United Presbyterian Church, one person (1.6 percent).

McMillen said additional Sunday Schools can still participate by calling him with a report on attendance on the six Sundays in 1979, Sept. 2 through Oct. 7, and with reports of attendance on corresponding Sundays for this year.

The theme on the second Sunday, Sept. 7, will be Pioneer Sunday.

Senior Citizens Concerned About Tax Increases

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene News Editor

WAYNESBURG — More than 40 people from southeastern Greene County, some 90 percent of them senior citizens, attended Friday's meeting of the Greene County commissioners to protest the change in the property assessment ratio which will go into effect in 1981.

James Minor, president of Concerned Taxpayers for Quality Education in the Southeastern Greene School District, presented the commissioners with a petition which he said was signed by 1,000 residents objecting to the change on the grounds that it would lead to higher property taxes.

During the discussion, it became obvious that many of those attending were there to express concern generally about steadily rising taxes and the effect it is having on older persons with fixed incomes.

At the present time, all real estate in the county is assessed at 20 percent of market value. In 1981, it will be assessed at 30 percent of market value, which equates to an increase of 50 percent. For example, a $60,000 house is now assessed at $12,000. In 1981 it will be assessed at $18,000.

"What I want to know is if my taxes will go up from $1,000 this year to $1,500 next year?" one man asked. "Does this mean we will have a 50 percent increase in our taxes?" The commissioners were emphatic in saying no.

They pointed out that assessed value is just one part of the formula which determines what tax a property owner will pay. The other is the millage levied by the county, municipality and school district in which the property is located.

At the present time, the county has an 18 1/2-mill tax levy. The commissioners said this levy will be reduced in 1981 to offset the increase in assessed values — perhaps to as low as 12 mills.

"We are starting work on our 1981 budget right now, and I think it is safe to say that the average property owner won't see a change of $5 in his county property tax next year," Commission Chairman Joseph Pawlosky said.

So far as townships, boroughs and school districts are concerned, he said, it will be up to the municipalities to reduce their millage to offset the increased tax base provided by the assessment change.

In an unrelated matter, the commissioners were also subjected to pointed questions from three former nurses at the Curry Memorial Home concerning the status of Thomas H. Boyd, acting director of the county nursing home for the past two years.

Lucille DeFrank, former director of nursing at the home, who has been involved in a lawsuit with the county since her dismissal by Boyd shortly after he was named acting director in 1978, and two other former employees, Janet Mawhinney and Lois Piper, were told that Boyd is scheduled to retake a state certification examination next month.

The commissioners said that Boyd had successfully passed one part of the examination when he took it in the spring, but had failed another section and is therefore still working under temporary certification.

They also denied that the county has lost any federal or state funding because the home is being operated without a certified administrator. They assured the three nurses that they would be permitted to examine all state and federal reports concerning the institution.

In the only formal actions at the meeting, the commissioners awarded a contract to Strodsider Printing Co., Waynesburg, for printing the November election ballots on the basis of its low bid of $4,965, and accepted the resignation of Patricia O'Connell of Waynesburg as a member of the Curry Home citizens' advisory board. They said Miss O'Connell will be moving to Pittsburgh, where she has accepted a position in a bank.

United Way Drive Starts

WAYNESBURG — United Way of Greene County has set a goal of $75,000 for its 1980 campaign, with September having been designated as United Way month in the county.

The chapter kicked off its fund drive with a dinner for volunteer solicitors held Wednesday evening at the First Presbyterian Church of Waynesburg.

Speakers included Ray N. Ivey, vice president of campaigning for the Allegheny County United Way; Robin Herman, a United Way staff person from Pittsburgh; Frank J. Bogan, Greene County campaign chairman, and Greg Pecon, president of United Way of Greene County.

Ivey spoke of the overall effort of United Way of Southwestern Pennsylvania, which includes Greene County, Central Washington County, the Mon Valley and Allegheny County, explaining that the association is for purposes of fund raising only, with each chapter being responsible for its own division of funds to agencies which it assists.

He said the total campaign goal for the four areas is $27 million, with the board of directors of each area setting the percentage of the overall goal which it will attempt to raise.

"United Way is the most efficient philanthropic organization in America," Ivey said, noting that overall fund raising and administrative expenses total just eight percent, or eight cents of each dollar collected. He broke this down into three percent for administration and five percent for campaign costs and compared it with the state ceiling of 35 cents per dollar set by the Commission on Charitable Organizations.

"Campaigning on the four-area basis is essential to maintaining a low percentage of cost, and this benefits each area by delivering 92 cents out of each dollar back to agencies within the area," he said.

At the present time, there are 18 agencies in Greene County which derive a portion of their operating budget from allocations provided by United Way. Additional agencies could be added in the county after the campaign is held this year, provided they meet certain guidelines.

Job Classification Plan Should Not Be Inflexible

Five years ago the Greene County commissioners adopted a job classification and salary schedule in an effort to bring some order into the employment and compensation of county employees.

Every job in every office was evaluated in light of its duties and responsibilities. After that was done, they were classified and placed on a scale in terms of the salary to be paid, with a starting salary being established for each type of job. Finally, provision was made for annual pay increases of eight percent.

As a whole it has worked well. In theory and generally in practice, a secretary who works for the sheriff is paid the same amount as a secretary who works for the commissioners if they have the same amount of experience. The same holds true for all other jobs.

Over the years there have been some deviations, particularly where a person is being hired for a key job. But this does not mean that the system isn't functioning properly.

Recently Prothonotary Charles Hogue hired a clerk-typist for his office and asked the county commissioners to start her on the second step of the pay scale, or eight percent above the starting salary. He said he was making the request because the person he was hiring had 10 years of prior experience as a secretary.

Two of the commissioners refused and indicated that in future no one will be hired at any amount higher than the starting salary prescribed for a job.

Regardless of the merits of the particular case involved, it seems only logical that some salary allowance should be made for experience if the county is to be able to recruit people with proven qualifications.

Any salary schedule must allow some flexibility, and negotiability in starting salaries where special circumstances exist will in no way compromise the validity of the system.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

For the first time in three decades since Richard (Dick) Hatfield became the voice of the Waynesburg College varsity football and basketball teams there will be a new sound when the Yellow Jacket's 1980 football season starts Saturday, Sept. 13.

The voice which Yellow Jacket fans had known so well was still ed forever in the pre-dawn hours Thursday, Sept. 11, when Dick suffered a massive heart attack at the home of Hillcrest Avenue, a few blocks off the campus, where he and his wife Estella had lived practically all of their married life.

His passing in such sudden fashion sent shock waves of surprise and regret throughout the community where he had become a symbol in his own particular way of all of the many qualities which down through the years have helped make Waynesburg such a pleasant place to live.

His friendships were not confined to any one particular group or class but ranged upward from some of the most humble — many of them from his boyhood days in the public schools and Waynesburg High School — on through adolescence and the "flaming youth" era of flappy galoshes in the early 1920's.

Others were orientated to his undergraduate days at the college when varsity sports were booming with football stars such as his longtime friend, the late Dick Toline from Moline, Ill.; Henry Luecht, who pioneered wrestling at the college, and most enduring of all Clair Bee, who was destined to become the most winning basketball coach in American college basketball.

Bee was one of the out-of-town athletes who roomed at the Hatfield home before residence halls were built on campus.

It was he and other athletes of that era who helped instill the love of competitive sports into Dick's life and also helped mould his career as a narerator of sports events for which Dick will be long remembered by fellow townsmen and athletes who appreciated his enthusiasm in narrating the play-by-play progress of any sport.

Except for the late Dr. Paul R. (Prexy) Stewart himself, no other loyal follower of the Yellow Jacket sports teams from the 1920's through the '70's had such an encyclopediac storehouse of instant information on Waynesburg College sports.

He also had a gift for detail and could recreate particular plays or incidents in games long, long forgotten by almost everyone, as well as the particular skills which made some of them "tick" better than others.

Dick was one of the few small college announcers — or large schools either, for that matter — who had had formal musical and voice training. He studied violin at the former college conservatory of music as a pupil of the late Ellen Reid Carter, who was a concert musician before joining the college faculty.

During his high school days at Waynesburg Dick was a guard on the varsity basketball team coached by Earl Zook and later he himself coached a girls' basketball team in college.

Dick's loyalty to not only the college sports teams but to those of the high school, too, was deeply rooted in his family circle. His paternal grandfather was an early-day physician at Mt. Morris in the horse and buggy era of that profession.

His father, the late Morris Hatfield, was a traveling salesman for a national shoe company. His mother was a member of one of the many branches of the Rinehart family that were among the pioneers who first settled this region.

With such a deep rooted background in both parts of the "town and gown" heritage of small colleges in rural areas, Dick was unflinching in his attachment to any and every kind of sports team fielded by the college since sports were rejuvenated in 1922 after a World War I lapse.

Although he observed the strict customary neutrality of the press box in calling the play-by-play progress of a game, he was incessantly rooting in undertones which never were picked up by the mike but with the same fervor as which he and Buck Montgomery and Sam Faddis brought the game ball home from Waynesburg's shattering upset victory over a stand-out West Virginia Wesleyan football team in 1924.

"The biggest thing about that game," as Dick had said a thousand times, "was that Wesleyan beat Navy the week before and New York University (NYU) the week after being beaten by Waynesburg.

That is only one of the scores of tidbits of Waynesburg College sports lore of which Dick possessed instant — and total — recall.

Dick will be missed for many years to come by those whose days were brightened by his cheerful greetings along the streets, in corridors of the courthouse, and in the "between half" chatter at football and basketball games or the impromptu "bull sessions" wherever sports fans are apt to congregate.

Because, to paraphrase the old saying of lumber camps that a fellow was a "handy man with his fists," Dick was a "handy man with a microphone" which he used so skillfully to enhance the pleasure of Waynesburg sports enthusiasts for half a century of exciting local sports events.

It became quite obvious during a recent meeting of the Greene County commissioners that a lot of people don't understand the meaning of notices they received earlier this year from the county assessment office regarding the 50 percent increase in property assessments which will go into effect in 1981.

Of the 40 or so members of Concerned Taxpayers for Quality Education in the Southeastern Greene School District who attended the meeting, many seemed to feel that it meant their property taxes would be automatically increased by half next year. Understandably they were disturbed.

The system is complicated. To begin with, the county assessment office establishes a market value for every property in the county, whether it be land, a building or minerals. Once this has been done, the assessed value assigned to the property is an arbitrary percentage of the market value. In Greene County, assessments are currently set at 20 percent of market value. But in 1981 this percentage will move up to 30 percent, with the commissioners having decided that they need the additional tax base this will provide to meet budget demands in the years ahead.

The decision meant, as an example, that a house with a market value of $60,000 will have an assessed value of $18,000 in 1981 as compared with $12,000 in 1980. That's an increase of 50 percent, but it does not mean that property taxes will be 50 percent higher in 1981 because the assessed value is just one part of the formula used to levy taxes.

Just as important is the millage which is levied, and that is the factor which will determine the amount of increase they will be paying next year in county, school and municipal property taxes.

The county, for example, currently is levying an 18½-mill tax. If the county cuts that levy to 12 mills next year, there will be no change in the county taxes which individuals will pay. That is something which will be decided late this year when the 1981 budget is adopted, but the commissioners have said that any change in county taxes will not amount to more than five dollars in the tax paid by the average property owner.

There is also an additional safeguard which has not been considered as yet.

County Solicitor A. J. Marion has unofficially ruled that the same legal restrictions apply when a change in ratio is made as applies when a complete reassessment program is carried out. That restriction states that the county cannot increase its budget by more than five percent in the year immediately following a reassessment, and if he is correct the county cannot legally increase its tax revenues by more than five percent in 1981.

The same five percent limit applies to boroughs and townships. School districts can raise their tax revenues by 10 percent.

In the case of the county, his ruling apparently guarantees that the commissioners will cut the present 18½-mill levy to the point where the levy next year will be in no more than five percent in excess of what they received this year.

So far as the townships, boroughs and school districts are concerned, Marion said he feels they would be bound by the same restrictions, but he said that ruling will have to come from the solicitors who represent them.

Residents who are concerned about the ratio change are no doubt correct in thinking that it opens the way to future tax increases, even if they won't be getting a 50 percent increase in 1981.

The important thing, as has been said many times, is that they keep an eye on their local municipalities and school districts when they prepare their 1981 budgets.

I guess that some people think of Labor Day as a holiday. I do not.

Labor Day is a signal that you'd better get to work. All the things you have been putting off doing are now going to catch up with you.

Just look in the kitchen. There sit two bushels of tomatoes. No doubt they are beginning to draw gnats. You are going to have to can them.

At the same time, school is starting. Getting children ready for school, you may have noticed, is not just a matter of buying new tennis shoes. Somehow over the summer everybody has managed to outgrow everything. So now you have to dash around from store to store trying to find enough jeans to last through the first semester. This is not a small item. Jeans used to be cheap. When I was in school, we bought them at Army surplus stores, belted them in, and rolled them up. Now they have to fit and finding them to fit, could try the patience of even Princess Grace.

If you have children going away to college, you should not be surprised to find, on the night before departure, that everything they own needs washed. While the tomatoes are burning by the kettlefull, Father is talking about how he hitch-hiked to college with one suitcase which held all he needed for the year, and you are trying to imagine what to do with a pile of laundry which is four feet high. You will, of course, be accused of losing all the socks. And shrinking the jeans.

Other necessities will be lost, too, and you will have to help find the tennis balls, the squash rackets, the popcorn popper, the color-coordinated rugs, etc. You put those away once, but will never remember where. Father insists that they are a waste of money, anyway, and he never took such things to school. You smell burned tomatoes.

An emergency comes up when it is discovered that there are not enough hair dryers. Somehow, these things seem to be made to last about as long as do disposable razors. Naturally, it is impossible to go to college without a hair dryer. Grandmother notes that she sent her children to college with one suitcase. Then she reminds you about the threshers.

Action stops while everybody tries to explain to the children about threshers, or thrashers, as we call them around here. The thrashers always came sometime around Labor Day, too, along with school, tomatoes and whatever else. The thrashing machine moved from farm to farm, to separate the oats or wheat from the straw. All the neighbors came along to help.

At noon, the farmer's wife would feed everybody. Everybody included probably fifteen or twenty workers, along with assorted neighborhood children, and spectators. Thrashers were not fed peanut butter sandwiches.

The day before the thrashing was spent in killing and dressing some incredible number of chickens, enough to feed an incoming army. It was also spent in baking bread and scavenging the garden, and maybe in picking apples.

The morning of the thrashing was spent in cooking the chickens, peeling potatoes, making gravy, snapping beans or whatever, slicing tomatoes, peeling apples and baking pies. "It was a heavy day," says Grandmother. After lunch, of course, it took all afternoon to wash the dishes. Then you had to start over for supper, peeling potatoes and all that again, since there wouldn't be any leftovers from lunch.

You smell burning tomatoes, turn on the automatic washer and dryer, and suddenly feel...underworked.

Letterbox

Fighting Reality

I would like to reply to the letter of Danny Kablack which appeared in Saturday's (Aug. 30) Observer-Reporter.

I live in a log cabin, heat with firewood and drink "free" spring water. I spend my spare time digging ditches and fixing fence. I love Greene County and the people who live here. I belong to the National Wildlife Federation and the National Trust for Historic Preservation. I expect that Mr. Kablack would consider me a prime candidate for membership in the Association for Rural Conservation (ARC). Except that I work for U.S. Steel.

In fact, I have been associated with the Manor Mines Project almost from its beginning. I willingly admit that I share the responsibility for U.S. Steel's involvement with the Wheeling Creek Watershed Commission in the construction of Dam Pa. 648. I could discuss that issue at great length, but that is not the subject I want to address.

A friend of mine moved to Colorado about four years ago. When we next talked, he was bursting with praise for his new home and lifestyle, the natural beauty, the independence, the challenge of living "in the rough". A few weeks ago when we met again, much of his enthusiasm was gone. "Too many people moving in" was his complaint.

My friend's discomfort is not an uncommon one. I suspect that Mr. Kablack suffers from it, to a degree. It dates back to those early settlers who kept our borders constantly expanding because they valued their independence and self-sufficiency far above the society of others. I share in those feelings myself.

But I am a realist. I realize that as long as people go on "making babies" there will be a need to develop new land to feed them, new homes to shelter them, new jobs, new roads, new schools, new water supplies. Call it progress or whatever, it is inevitable. I do not believe, just because I own a small piece of land and value my lifestyle, that I can speak for an entire region and say "Don't come here!"

Dr. Richard Cowan and his fellow commissioners are also realists. They know that the same features which appeal to Mr. Kablack and myself will appeal to others, and that different features, which perhaps Mr. Kablack cannot appreciate, will attract still others. Greene County will grow and change. I doubt the commissioners are any more anxious for those changes than the rest of us, but they have accepted the responsibility to anticipate and prepare for the future, so that it will come as painlessly as possible.

The day will come, if it is not already here, when there will not be enough "free" spring water for everyone. Then there will be frustration and anger, and conflict between those who say "I've got mine" and those who also deserve a share. The commissioners recognize Dam Pa. 648 as an opportunity to forestall such problems.

All of us have a right and a responsibility to defend what we care about in Greene County. On many points I would stand shoulder to shoulder with Mr. Kablack. In the matter of Dam Pa. 648, however, I do not believe Mr. Kablack and his associates in ARC are fighting for anything, as much as they are fighting against reality. And that, I think, is a futile, and perhaps fatal, waste of talent and time.

AROUND THE TOWN

By The Staff

It's only the second week of September but that poetic line of "October's bright blue weather" is already the best description of the superb weather which is being enjoyed in Greene County for the past few days. Not a single complaint about the weather heard on Main street during a stroll all the way from Cumberland to Richhill Street.

And speaking of the weather, Gail Lewis, the retired telephone company employee, got back for it just in time to enjoy it most after visiting at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Duke and Pauline Inghram, long-time residents of Las Vegas and who lived there long before it became the play spot for Hollywood and most other parts of the nation. While there he gypeded all over that section of the west. He was in 19 different states and logged a total of some ten thousand miles.

Another former Greene County couple, Tom and Pearl (Harrison) Waychoff of Mesa, Ariz., celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary Sept. 9 at their home at 10249 East Brown Road in Mesa. She is a daughter of the late Attila and Ater Harrison and he is a son of Mrs. Pearl Waychoff of Whitely Township and the late Charles Waychoff. They are the parents of a son, Thomas Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Judy Bayer, both of Mesa. An anniversary dinner was held at the Waychoff home, where they have resided for the past 22 years.

Greene Countians who are having trouble getting through knotted traffic in Morrisville and in parts of Cumberland Township won't get much hope from truckers who have been studying the situation for several weeks.

In effect what they say adds up to about "you haven't seen nothing yet." Mix that advice with two parts of an early Autumn foggy night and two other parts of a February blizzard and a lot of people will be wanting to evict the Punksutawney groundhog a month ahead of time — so they can move into its den until the first of Spring.

Speaking of snow, Wayne Long of Carmichaels, who was lucky enough to find an old-time sleigh still in basically good condition, is having it reconditioned and "prettied up" generally at Miles Davin's furniture center in the former Long Building. And even at this early date he can hardly wait for the first "Good Sleddin' snow" as the farmers used to say.

Speaking of ancient treasures, Dave Belford of Waynesburg has an American Waltham watch which is more than a hundred years old and still keeps perfect time. It was owned by his grandfather, Nathaniel Belford, who was killed by a powder blast while working in the old Waynesburg brickyard on the Hook farm in Franklin Township back before World War I.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Yost of Springfield, Mass., former Greene County residents from Rogersville and Waynesburg, respectively, visited last weekend at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cosgray of East View and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Yost of Rogersville. Mr. Yost, a former football star at West Greene High School and the University of West Virginia, is manager of the Ford Motor Company's Springfield agency. They visited here for the past two weeks.

The hundreds of Greene County residents who had known Harry Rothenberg

(Roth) during the many years he operated a men's clothing firm in Waynesburg from the time he arrived here in 1925, were saddened when word was received of his death last Thursday at Miami Beach, where he and his wife had resided since going to Florida.

His first store was in a one-room establishment on the Morris Street side of the former Downey House Hotel, where he opened the town's first Army and Navy surplus store. After the Downey House fire, he located in the former Harrison and Cohen store room next to the old Citizens National Bank and from where he moved to the Messenger Building on the northeastern corner of High (Main) and Washington Streets.

His generous gifts to individuals and fund drives, particularly the Cancer Fund, were unknown to anyone except a very few close friends. Word of his death was received by a former clerk, Pauline Lucas of East Greene Street.

His wife and two brothers, both of whom were also former Waynesburg residents, were his only immediate survivors. Mr. Roth was a native of Germany and was only 25 years of age when he arrived in Waynesburg with only a small out of merchandise from which he created one of the town's most flourishing mercantile establishments.

Carmichaels Slips Past Fair-Georges, 20-14

By ROBIN ROBERTS
Sports Writer
CARMICHAELS — Carmichaels High School football coach Tom McCombs was happy to come out of last night's 20-14 Tri-County Conference opener with the Fair-chance-Georges a winner.

But even with the score in his favor, McCombs was anything but pleased with the way his Mikes performed in the game.

"I just don't know what we have to do to get these kids motivated and keep them that way," said the young coach. "They go up and down during a game like a bunch of yo-yos. Like tonight, we went up the first time we had the ball and pushed it in. Then, the kids just start walking around with their heads down and before we knew what was really happening we were down 14-7 at the end of the first half.

"We holler and yell at them and they seem to pick up for a little bit, we'd score and then again would go the heads and we have to get on them again to get them back up. I just don't know," McCombs said.

The Mikes, using a solid ball control game, dominated action in the first quarter, and with just 56 seconds left in the initial quarter, quarterback Dick Krause flipped an eight-yard scoring pass to Joe Durco. Bob Phillips' kick made it 7-0.

It didn't take long for the Runners to get right back into the game though as the Mikes went into one of their down moods. On its second offensive series of the second quarter FG tailback Pat McDonough slanted to his right and rambled 55 yards with the first points of the night for the Runners. Soccer style kicker Ed Abraham converted to knot the score at 7-7.

With only 30 seconds remaining in the half, quarterback John Kopas tossed a soft five-yard pass to split end Dale Smith and Abraham again tacked on the point after to give the Runners their only lead of the evening, 14-7.

The Mikes' next touchdown came from tackle John Clarchick. After halfback Rick Hribal had pounded repeatedly into the Runner line and carried the load from the Mikes' 32 to the Runner two, he again got the call.

But, as he slammed into the middle of the line, the ball popped loose and Clarchick covered it in the Runner end zone for Carmichaels' second touchdown, but Phillips' attempt for the point after failed and the Greene County team was down by a 14-13 margin. Carmichaels got all it needed very early in the fourth quarter when, following a big 29-yard pass play from Krause to Pete Swift and a seven yard gainer by Hribal, John Townsend went into from two yards out and Phillips' kick made the score 20-14.

A number of major penalties and turnovers punctuated the final 10 minutes of play and when a fourth and 40 pass attempt failed for the Runners from the Carmichaels 42, the game was all but over as the Mikes simply ran out the clock to assure themselves of their first win of the season.

On the evening Hribal was the big ground gainer, getting 126 yards on 28 carries.

'When Will It End?' Asks Portler Family

By JIM MOORE
Staff Writer
CLARKSVILLE — When will it end?

The Joseph Portler family in Morgan Township has been asking this question of themselves and the state Department of Environmental Resources for the past three years.

The long battle over a water supply may now erupt into a major confrontation on Monday if the state agency follows through with a threat to halt its latest project at the Portler home.

The Portlers lost their water supply about three years ago when strip mining operations apparently fractured their well. Under a state law, the DER was held responsible for restoring the water supply. However, the legal battle took better than two years in the courts before DER finally advertised for bids to install a storage tank.

State officials determined the two wells on the Portler property were producing about 30 gallons per hour and the two wells would be connected to the storage tank and the problem would be over.

The last flow test was conducted in May, 1979, and the tank installation began late this summer. Apparently, there was no later check of the flow because one well now produces 10 gallons each hour and the second well produces 20 gallons per hour.

When the Portlers found this out, they told the contractor not to bother installing the storage tank because it would be a waste of taxpayers' money. They felt the small flow was not in keeping with the agreement with the state which called for 30 gallons per hour from each well.

Joseph Portler pulled his vehicle across the property to prevent the contractor from removing the tank after state officials said they would go no further with the project. "They said take it or leave it," Mrs. Portler said.

An official from DER said on the telephone Friday that a crane would be moved onto the property Monday and the tank would be lifted over the Portler's car, according to Mrs. Portler. "I will personally stand in front of the crane to keep it off our property," she said Friday.

Mr. Portler was talking to District Attorney Charles Morris late Friday to determine his rights in the issue.

Uhlans, 28-0

McCLELLANDTOWN — German Township, with 300 yards rushing and two interceptions leading to touchdowns, defeated Jefferson-Morgan 28-0 in a Class A Tri-County opener here Friday night.

On the fifth play of the game, German's Bob Evans took a pitchout from the right off quarterback Tom Giltz for a 54 yard touchdown. The Uhlans failed to convert the extra point.

In the second quarter, Marvin Truly intercepted a pass from the Rockets' Dale Davis and took the ball to the J-M 17 yard line. Kevin Frye then took a pitchout in for the touchdown and moments later ran for the extra point.

In the third quarter Giltz scored on a 14-yard run with Evans scoring the extra point.

In the fourth quarter, German began a drive on the Jeff-Morgan 31 yard line after again intercepting a Davis pass. The drive went to the four-yard line where Giltz ran to the right for the score. The kick for the extra point failed.

Jeff-Morgan gained just 43 yards rushing, all in the first half.

Sewing Kaleidoscope Set For September 25

The Cooperative Extension Services of Greene, Fayette and Washington Counties, along with two area sewing shops, are planning a Sewing Kaleidoscope for Thursday, Sept. 25.

The event will be held on the campus of California State College from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Exhibitors from the home sewing industry will be present during times when mini demonstrations will be presented. Throughout the day there will be scheduled 45-minute demonstrations in a nearby auditorium.

The Kaleidoscope is an educational event open to the public. There will be no selling of products during the event.

There is a registration fee of $2 per person, with lunch being available at an additional cost of $3.75. A reservation by Sept. 15 is required for lunch, which will feature a fashion show. Reservations may be made in advance from any of the sponsoring agencies.

There will be ample free parking close to the Kaleidoscope site.

Reservations may be made by contacting Jeann M. Elicker, extension home economist, 102 County Office Building, Waynesburg, or by phoning 627-3745 for a reservation form.

Captain's Golf Tourney Team Winners Listed

WAYNESBURG — One of the most enjoyable intra-club golfing events of the season at the Greene County Country Club was the Captain's Tourney over the Labor Day weekend.

Each team included a captain and three other players on the first drive at each tee and at all fairway shots.

The winning team at Waynesburg was that captained by Gary Battistoni. The other members were: Paul Oneacre, Gus Climic and Adie McDaniel.

The other three teams all tied for second. Their players were: Jerry Hribal, captain, John Curtis, Butch Levine, Nancy Harry; Bob William, captain, John Stennett, John Fazzari, Sally Stennett; Don Chappel, captain, Bob Doody, John Nagy and Peggy Milliken.

The Women's Memorial Tourney and annual medal play event in memory of all deceased women players of the club was won this year by Mrs. Patty Holupka of Nema-colin. The runnerup was Mrs. Dottie Bernarducci of Nema-colin.

Subchairmen For Greene County Reagan-Bush Committee Named

Richard S. Cowan Jr., chairman of the Reagan-Bush Committee in Greene County, announced Sunday night the appointment of a several sub-chairmen who will be working to elect the Republican's presidential and vice presidential candidates in November.

Chairmen announced Sunday include attorney Albert A. Sayers of Waynesburg, honorary campaign chairman; John G. Burns of Wind Ridge, western region chairman; Gary Bedilion of Waynesburg, central region chairman; and Paul M. Long of Carmichaels, eastern region chairman.

Other chairmen include attorney H. Terry Grimes of Holbrook, professionals; John E. Titus of Jefferson, veterans; Viola Donovan of Carmichaels, women's organizations; James A. Minor of Mapletown, concerned taxpayers; Robert H. Lutz of Jefferson, educators; John Gardner of Waynesburg, business and industry; and Jeff Wymard of Waynesburg College, college voters.

Cowan said H. Leonard Frye of Waynesburg R.D.1, County Republican Committee chairman, is coordinating the county committee effort and will be working closely with the Reagan-Bush Committee.

"We are very fortunate to have high quality leadership for the campaign in Greene County," Cowan said in making the announcement. "We plan an aggressive campaign which will sharpen the differences between the candidates and their platforms. I feel confident that Greene County voters will support the Reagan-Bush team."

Fails To Pay For Gasoline

State police are looking for an out-of-state motorist in connection with the theft of $14.60 worth of gasoline from the Greenwood Oil Co. service station located just east of Waynesburg.

Investigating officers said the suspect — a white male in his 20s, about five feet five inches tall and with curly blonde hair — filled the tank of his pickup truck at 7:30 a.m. Saturday and drove off without paying.

The truck was described as a 1977 to 1979, light red Chevrolet with out-of-state license plates that had a white background with blue lettering. The registration number was NF5805.

The New Greene County Jail

By STAN DIAMOND
Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — The new Greene County Jail, a $1.7 million facility, is expected to be in operation by next month.

Construction of the one-story brick building on county owned property along old Route 21 east of Waynesburg began in April of last year. With 12,300 square feet of space, the new jail will contain 27 cells for male prisoners along with support facilities. Female prisoners will be taken to the Washington County Jail.

The new jail will permit the present jail located at the rear of the county courthouse at Waynesburg to be closed. Its closing will allow for some expansion of courthouse facilities. One cell will be kept in operation at the courthouse for prisoners during court appearances. The county sheriff's office will also remain in the courthouse.

Greene County Sheriff Remo Bertugli said the new jail will be staffed by 15 deputies as well as others. When the jail opens, at least four members of the staff will have completed special schooling in prison operation.

A prisoner arriving at the jail will be driven into the garage receiving area and taken to the booking room to be photographed and finger printed. The medical room is the next stop where a physical check will be made and the prisoner given a shower before being placed in his cell. The jail has a small kitchen to provide meals for prisoners arriving after regular meals have been served.

Regular meals for prisoners will be prepared at the nearby Curry Memorial Home and trucked to the jail. The Curry Home will also be used for laundry facilities. Meals are served to prisoners in the common areas of each housing module.

The 27 cells are arranged in separate housing modules with two sets of modules containing four cells, two modules of six cells, two separate isolation cells and two segregation units, one with two cells and one with three cells. Each cell is eight feet by six feet and contains a steel frame bed attached to the wall and a stainless steel sink and commode. They are one prisoner cells. One common shower is provided for each housing module.

A separate guard station is provided for each housing module. Cells doors are operated electrically from the guard station.

Two multi-purpose rooms are provided for prisoner use. Preliminary plans are to make one room a library with the other to be used for a lawyer-prisoner conference room. A large fenced exercise area is at the rear of the jail.

The visiting room has seven stations where persons can talk to a prisoner over a telephone from one side of a bullet proof glass. All glass in the prisoner area is bullet proof.

The entire prisoner area will be monitored by closed-circuit television from the jail's main control room. All doors in the prisoner access area as well as all cell door can also be operated from the main control room. Prisoners are monitored from the time the approach the outside receiving area.

The jail also includes a receptionist-clerical area, general office and records rooms, a staff locker room with shower and various storage rooms.

... The new Greene County Jail.

Guard station for a prisoner housing unit contains a control panel and view of individual cells.

Seven station prisoner section features telephones, stools and glass barrier.

Miss Hope Program

WAYNESBURG — The Miss Hope program of the Greene County Unit of the American Cancer Society has a new name. It is now the "Nurse of Hope."

This year's Nurse of Hope is Vickie Gashie of Greensboro. She is a student in the practical nursing department at the Greene County Vocational-Technical School and is available to provide programs for clubs and organizations in the county.

The Cancer unit requests that those interested in scheduling a cancer program give at least four week's notice if at all possible. Programs can be scheduled by calling the unit office at Waynesburg, 627-5259.

Some of the available programs:

Why Quit Quiz — A 15-minute film narrated by Dr. Frank Field, science editor at New York's WNBC-TV. The film stresses the value of an active and healthy lifestyle free from cigarettes. It invites audience participation with a series of quiz questions and features interviews with former smokers who relate their feelings and experiences concerning the benefits of quitting smoking.

The Prostate: A Patient's View — An 18-minute film describing how the abnormal prostate affects the individual and the advice that the family physician gives his patients on a visit to his office.

The Cancer Nobody Talks About — A 13-minute film that brings into the open many previously unspoken aspects of colorectal cancer to motivate people over 40 to have regular procto examinations.

Women in the Middle Years — A 10-minute film featuring women of varying ages, backgrounds and outlooks discussing endometrial cancer and menopause with a female physician. Factual information about endometrial cancer is presented in a calm, reassuring tone.

How to Examine Your Breast — A six-minute film designed to demonstrate breast self-examination. Betsi Breast model is also available.

The Priceless Gift — A 12-minute film about the causes of oral cancer.

Hit By Lightning

ROGERSVILLE — Center Township firemen reported that a two-story barn on the former Staggers farm on Route 3013 near Rogersville was destroyed when hit by lightning at about 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The barn, owned by a coal company and leased by Kenneth Willison of Waynesburg, contained 2,000 bales of hay. No loss estimate was made.

Firemen said the building was completely engulfed by flames by the time they got to the scene.

Nemacolin Man Injured In Crash

According to state troopers from the Waynesburg station who investigated the accident, the Morgan car was traveling into Waynesburg on East High Street when the Morris car, traveling in the opposite direction on Greene Street, entered the curve near the underpass, reportedly crossed the center line and struck the Morgan vehicle, causing it to spin off the roadway and into the Best Oil Service Station lot where it came to rest.

Library Fund Drive Proving Successful

WAYNESBURG — The Bowly Public Library has been notified by the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) that certified monies received for the first grant installment, due Aug. 15, amounted to $32,361 from local contributions.

NEH challenged the library with a $187,500 grant to be matched $3 to $1 by local non-federal dollars. The deadline for the first installment to raise $100,000 was Aug. 15.

The fund raising campaign for the library expansion building will continue until June 30, 1983, with cumulative matching funds totaling $562,500.

"A fast-paced four day blitz to raise funds for the Aug. 15 deadline netted $14,300," Frank VanCleve, library building fund campaign chairman said. "I'm just amazed at the generous response by people. It really shows that people understand how important our library is. We've gotten the message across that if the library isn't supported financially by county residents now, we lose our state aid in a few years. Raising $14,300 in four days convinced the NEH manager in Washington (D.C.) that we have a credible fund-raising campaign for our library expansion."

"On behalf of our committee, our library board and staff, I want to thank all the volunteers who helped and everyone who pledged their dollars for the new library building, plus local media for their coverage when we needed it most."

Because $14,300 was received in four days, NEH will now apply $67,639 to the second grant period which runs from July 1, 1980 to June 30, 1981, rather than challenging the library with that amount by the Aug. 15 deadline.

"What that showed," VanCleve said, "was that there is local support for this expansion building, and that we weren't flogging a dead horse. People do care."

The $67,639 is the amount remaining from $100,000, deducting the $32,361 raised for the first installment in August.

Presently the library campaign steering committee is reorganizing its time table for the continuing fund raising campaign. Volunteers are invited to call VanCleve, or Mrs. Jean-Marie Wilt, administrative librarian, at the Eva Bowly Public Library in Waynesburg, 627-9776 or 852-1878.

Truck Weight Bill Subject Of Hearing

WAYNESBURG — A public hearing on Senate Bill 1198, which addresses the issue of weight distribution on tri-axle trucks and other similar vehicles, will be held in Waynesburg Wednesday, Sept. 10.

State Sen. Barry J. Stout said the hearing will be held from 9:30 a.m. to noon in Waynesburg Borough Council chambers, 90 East High Street.

"Primary purpose of the hearing is to take testimony from representatives of the trucking industry," Stout said. "Naturally, we welcome participation by any interested party. The committee desires as much input into this bill as is possible."

The Senate Transportation Committee has been conducting hearings on the bill throughout Pennsylvania to give all interested parties an opportunity to express their views.

Air Quality Project Costs $37 Million

POINT MARION — A $37 million project to improve air quality in southwestern Pennsylvania is underway at Allegheny Power System's Fort Martin power station, located near Point Marion just south of the Greene County line.

West Penn Power is part owner of the 1,107,000-kilowatt power generating facility.

The project involves the installation of additional electrostatic precipitators which remove fine dust particles from exhaust gases at the coal-burning plant. When work is completed, pollution control equipment will remove 99.5 percent of the coal dust particles. Existing precipitators already remove 97.5 percent of the dust from smokestack gases.

The additional $37,000,000 investment in pollution control equipment is required to meet standards established by the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the West Virginia Air Pollution Control Commission.

The Fort Martin generating plant must be in compliance with these standards by Aug. 31, 1982. Installation of the new dust collectors is scheduled for completion in June of 1982 to meet that deadline.

Site preparation began this spring. Holes have been drilled for the support and foundation system and structural steel erection is scheduled for this month.

Firemen Handle Highway Blaze

Waynesburg Volunteer Firemen were called out just before 11 p.m. Wednesday to extinguish a car fire along the north bound lane of Interstate 79 approximately two miles north of the Ruff Creek exit.

The car, a 1973 Dodge owned by Sue Scott of West Finley R.D.2, was destroyed by the fire and traffic was tied up briefly on the interstate until firemen brought the blaze under control.

The vehicle was reported stolen to state troopers at the Waynesburg station just minutes after firemen were called to put out the fire.

Girl Missing

WAYNESBURG — State police at Waynesburg have been asked to issue a missing person's report for Brenda Sue Patterson, 16, Mt. Morris R.D.1. She has been missing from her home near Davistown since 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 3.

Police described her as five feet, five inches tall, weighing 140 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. She was reported as wearing slacks and a striped sweater.

Police say the Morris car and the Morgan vehicle both sustained severe damages while the Federick van was only lightly damaged.

What uses the most energy in my home?

House heating does by far. It's responsible for at least half the energy you use in the home. Next comes water heating.

In fact, the two account for about 80 percent of a home's total energy use. So they offer the greatest potential for saving energy and money.

What can I do to save the most energy?

Insulate your home adequately, especially the attic. Even if it has some insulation, you may need more. For electrically heated homes, we recommend a minimum of R-30 insulation in the attic.

A well-insulated house reduces heating and cooling bills substantially. And those savings will continue year after year, becoming greater as energy prices increase.

Of course, setting your heating thermostat at 68 degrees or as low as comfort permits saves energy, too. Each degree reduction saves about three percent on heating bills.

How can I reduce my water heating costs?

Wrap a roll of R-19 insulation around your electric water heater. The additional insulation will further reduce heat loss through the tank walls and save as much as $25 a year on your electric bills.

Also, lowering the thermostat setting on your electric water heater from 150 degrees to 120 degrees normally saves about $20 a year on the heating cost.
