County Officials Furious Over Highway Plan

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene County Editor
WAYNESBURG — A revised 12-year highway program for Greene County which eliminates the Waynesburg by-pass from its schedule of proposed projects drew heavy fire at Tuesday's meeting of the Greene County commissioners.

"It has no relation to what we feel our needs are, and completely ignores the recommendations which were made by the county and its planning commission," Joseph Pawlosky, chairman of the board of commissioners, said.

The proposed program was prepared by Department of Transportation District 12 headquarters in Uniontown as part of a statewide program of road and bridge improvements. It has been submitted in draft form to the county for its comments prior to final adoption.

The plan calls for the expenditure of $15 million in Greene County, but more than $11 million of this would be used on Interstate 79 to resurface the section between the Ruff Creek interchange and the Washington County line ($8,800,000) and to rehabilitate the decks of the nine I-79 bridges in the county ($2,468,000).

The balance of $3,718,000 would be used to replace or restore seven bridges on legislative routes in the county.

In addition, if federal funds are escalated to keep pace with inflation, four additional bridge projects could be done at a total estimated cost of $803,000.

Under the plan, all of the interstate work and two of the bridge projects would be done during the first four years of the 12-year program. The other bridge work would be done sometime after the fourth year.

The Route 21 Bypass, the county's top priority and on the planning board for 15 years, has been dropped in the state's revised 12-year plan for road improvement.

County Planner Valerie Cole, who received a copy of the proposed county program Monday, outlined it for the commissioners and stressed it has no relation whatsoever to the county's recommendations, which were submitted at the request of PennDOT.

"The highway plan for Greene County has turned into a glorified bridge program," she said. "The months of work which we did to establish priorities based on need has been lost because the recommendations were completely ignored."

The major concern expressed centered on the fact that the Route 21 bypass around Waynesburg, which has been on previous Transportation Department construction programs for more than 15 years, has been dropped.

"Anyone who knows anything about our road problems realizes that our greatest need is for the bypass to eliminate traffic congestion in the Waynesburg area," Commissioner Richard Cowan said. "The Economic Development Committee of the governor's cabinet has placed it on its list of priority projects, and it's inconceivable that it wouldn't be included in the 12-year program."

Mrs. Cole said that so far as she can tell, the bypass was eliminated because it wouldn't fit in with any of the categories of improvements the Transportation Department was permitted to schedule.

She said she had contacted District 12 officials and had been told that it cannot be included.

"I was told that our only hope lies with passage of legislation which would provide funding for roads in energy impacted areas which are used as coal haul roads," she said.

It was noted that the program was apparently drawn up with a view to stretching available state money as far as possible by going with programs which qualify for a high degree of federal participation.

The interstate improvements, for example, would be eligible for 90 percent federal funding, while the bridge improvements would qualify for 80 percent federal funding.

The commissioners said they would file a stiff protest about the proposed program, and would also make sure that the county is represented at one of the regional meetings which the Transportation Department has scheduled for comments about the draft program before it is submitted to Harrisburg for final approval.

The meeting for District 12 will be held Nov. 19 at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

The two small bridge projects scheduled for completion during the first four years of the program are replacement of a span over Enslow Fork on Route 30001 in Richhill Township, at a cost of $713,000, and replacement of a bridge on Route 30097 near Jacobs Ferry in Cumberland Township at a cost of $405,000. The latter bridge has been closed for several years.

The other five bridge projects on the program:

Replacement of the bridge on Route 30130 at the foot of the Bobtown hill, $1,218,000.

Restoration and possible replacement of a bridge on Route 30129 over Whiteley Creek in Greene Township, $629,000.

Replacement of a bridge over Muddy Creek on Route 30102, just off Route 21 near Khedive, $157,000.

Replacement of a bridge over Crabapple Run on Route 30050 near Castile, $371,000.

Rehabilitation of a bridge over Crabapple Run on Route 30034 in Richhill Township, $225,000.

The three additional bridges which would be improved if federal funds are increased to keep pace with inflation:

Replacement of a bridge over Enslow Fork on Route 30040 in Morris Township, $230,000.

Elimination of two coal tramway bridges over Route 88, one at Mapletown and one near Poland Mines, $385,000.

Rehabilitation of a bridge on Route 188 over Ten Mile Creek, near the county fairgrounds, $188,000.

Judge Glenn Toothman addresses audience at jail dedication ceremony

Open House Scheduled

New County Jail Dedicated

WAYNESBURG — The new $1.6 million Greene County Jail was officially dedicated Friday with several national, state and local officials taking part in the brief ceremonies.

The public is invited to tour the new facility — which overlooks the Curry Memorial Home on old Route 21 — during an open house from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Greene County Judge Glenn Toothman gave the dedication speech and said of the facility, "let it be dedicated to creative, positive, good citizenship."

He told the 100 persons at the ceremony the best part was the fact, "all of us will be free to leave after the ceremony but it's not true of future visitors."

Toothman called the facility the finest in architectural style and a facility that "exudes confidence and security for those committed to it."

Greene County Commissioner Joseph Pawlosky acted as master of ceremonies and introduced special guests, including Congressman Austin Murphy, State Rep. Barry Stout and fellow commissioners Leonard Santore and Richard Cowan. All elected county officials were present as were representatives of the State Bureau of Corrections and Washington County Commissioner Frank Mascara.

The invocation was offered by Rev. James Donahoo, of Clarksville.

Pawlosky told the audience that many people were involved in completing the facility which can house 27 prisoners. Special recognition was given Attilio Rota, the county's chief inspector on the project.

Rep. Murphy presented a U.S. flag which has flown over the nation's capitol and Rep. Stout presented a state flag to the new jail.

The new jail contains six housing modules, each of which has a dayroom that can serve various functions. Each module has a guard room and security vestibule that allows visual control of each cell and a shower.

The new jail will also have a chapel, library and attorney's conference room. There is also a fenced exercise yard in the rear of the facility.

Andrew Bystry will be jail warden.

Complete Fund Drive

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Area Jaycettes recently completed their annual fund drive to benefit the Osteogenesis Imperfecta Foundation Inc.

OI, a brittle bone disease with as yet an unknown cause and cure, cripples an estimated minimum 10,000 to possibly as many as 30,000 adults and children in the United States alone.

The Carmichaels Area Jaycettes have raised $1,116 for the benefit of the OI foundation during the past year. As part of the fund drive this year, the Jaycettes held a Baby Beautiful Contest with persons casting a penny-a-vote for the baby of their choice.

Fire Damage Set At $25,000

WAYNESBURG — A fire Thursday night left at least five persons homeless and caused an estimated $25,000 damage.

The fire broke out shortly after 11 p.m. Thursday in the third floor apartment of Albert Deter at 648 East Greene Street. Firemen speculate the blaze resulted from a small gas heater setting fire to a rug in the Deter apartment.

Waynesburg Volunteer Firemen were called to the scene at 11:05 p.m. and battled the blaze until early Friday morning.

Two other apartments in the large house were occupied by Marie Berry and Bob and Sharon Patterson and their four-year-old son, Kenneth.

Most of the fire damage was limited to the third floor and the roof.

Jefferson firemen were summoned to assist, but were returned to their station before reaching the scene after Waynesburg firemen determined they had brought the blaze under control.

Although none of the building's occupants suffered injuries, at least two firemen were reported slightly injured while fighting the blaze.

Class Sizes Concern Central Greene Parents

WAYNESBURG — A group of parents with kindergarten students at the East Franklin School met Tuesday with the Central Greene School Board to ask if something couldn't be done to relieve problems of holding classes in trailers.

Vernon Snyder, who served as spokesman for the group, said principal concerns center on lack of rest rooms in the trailers, safety of the children, class size and the need for larger classrooms.

There are two morning and two afternoon sessions held in two trailers, with a teacher and aide at each session. A total of 175 boys and girls attend, with an average of 34 students at each session.

Superintendent Ronald Ferrari said part of the problem lies in the fact that kindergarten enrollment this year is larger than it has been in the past four years, and he said the district has already acted to relieve part of the problem by scheduling another kindergarten session which will reduce the size of the average class to 24 pupils.

At the meeting, the board approved an agreement with the First Baptist Church of Waynesburg to lease a room at the church for the balance of the year at a rental of approximately $10 a day.

Nancy Fox was employed as a half-time teacher to instruct the class, which will begin Monday, Nov. 3, as a morning session.

In addition, Gloria J. Kindervater was employed as a kindergarten aide for the morning session at the Spraggs School.

At the suggestion of Robert Elliott, a former board member, the board directed Business Manager Walter Stout to write to various agencies and individuals putting them on notice that if and when a new coal-hauling railroad is built from coal fields in western Greene County to tie into the Waynesburg Southern Railroad, that a grade separation should be demanded at the point where the railroad crosses Routes 21 and 18 in West Waynesburg.

He pointed out that survey crews are currently working on possible routes for such a railroad on behalf of the Consolidation Coal Co., and expressed the fear that objections to a grade crossing would be voiced too late to force a grade separation.

Letters expressing the district's opposition to a grade crossing will be sent to the Department of Transportation, Public Utilities Commission, county legislators, and the county commissioners and county planning commission.

Most of the action at the meeting centered on personnel matters.

David O. Blue's resignation as transportation supervisor was accepted. He will remain in his position as home and school visitor. The board indicated it will again elevate the post of transportation supervisor to a full-time job, and is already screening applications for the position.

Mrs. Jane Burns, a teacher at the East Franklin School, was granted a sabbatical leave for the second semester of this year, and maternity leaves were approved for Leslie Thayer and Emily Ehrhardt, both music teachers at the middle school.

The board accepted the resignation of Michael R. Encrapera, middle school social studies teacher, effective Oct. 31.

James Caruso was named a permanent substitute in social studies at the high school and Catherine A. Fuller was employed as a special education teacher at the middle school.

In matters involving non-professional employees, the board employed Carol K. Harrison as an instructional aid at the middle school, hired Ralph Sine as a guard at the Accurate Brass plant bridge at Brave, and employed Carol Cain and George W. White as janitors at the high school.

The board also:

- ✓ Authorized the acceptance of bids for new summer weight band uniforms.
- ✓ Approved several school bus route extensions.
- ✓ Approved use of $7,542 in Title IV-B funds to purchase maps and globes for the high school and equipment for a secondary health laboratory.
- ✓ Authorized sale for $1 each of a large number of unused student desks currently stored at the warehouse.
- ✓ Amended the school bus discipline policy to include a due process hearing before the board transportation committee for students who receive their third misconduct citation from a bus driver.
- ✓ Approved a trip to Killington, Vt. by the high school ski club Feb. 13-16, with all costs to be borne by the students and sponsors.

Crucible Woman Sentenced For Involuntary Manslaughter

WAYNESBURG — Deborah Lee Devo, 28, Crucible, was committed to Mayview State Hospital after she pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in Greene County Court Thursday in connection with the death of her 18-month-old son.

Jerry Devo, her husband, found his son dead of suffocation and his wife in critical condition at their home on May 20. Mrs. Devo had tried to commit suicide by slashing her throat and wrists. She was subsequently hospitalized at the Mon Valley Hospital at Charleroi, and since that time has been at Mayview, where she underwent extensive psychiatric treatment.

Her attorney, C. Robert McCall, presented reports which indicated that Mrs. Devo is suffering from very deep depression with strong suicidal tendencies and will require continuing medical and psychiatric treatment.

"This is a tragic case which requires compassionate treatment. I would suggest that Mrs. Devo has inflicted upon herself the most terrible of all punishments," McCall said. He also pointed out that her husband and family have been supportive of her throughout her ordeal.

Judge Glenn Toothman accepted the involuntary manslaughter plea in light of her mental condition. He imposed a one-to-five year prison sentence, which he then suspended, noting that medical reports indicate that incarceration could only defeat any chance for recovery and also strengthen her suicidal tendencies.

He ordered that she be committed to Mayview under the Mental Health Act for a period not to exceed one year and that she pay a fine of $1,000. He also ordered that the county be reimbursed the approximately $4,000 for the previous commitment to Mayview, which was made under her status as a person charged with a crime.

$3,000 Gift Is Pledged To College

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg College has received a $3,000 pledge from the G. C. Murphy Co. Foundation that will help support the proposed recreational center being planned at the college.

The gift, one of several made by the G. C. Murphy Co. Foundation to Waynesburg in recent years, was presented to college president Joseph F. Marsh by Dennis Eldridge, manager of the local G. C. Murphy store on High Street.

"The G. C. Murphy Co. has been a steady supporter of programs at Waynesburg College," president Marsh noted in accepting a $2,000 payment on the $3,000 pledge. "Their long-standing help has been appreciated, and we hope their belief in the college and its future will be shared by other organizations and individuals in the Three Rivers Region," he said.

Waynesburg is seeking money for the construction of a new recreation center and the renovation of the current college gymnasium. Projected cost of the completed project is approximately $3 million.

Students Jumping Rope For Hearts

WAYNESBURG — More than 3,000 students in Greene County and 2.5 million across Pennsylvania are being asked to jump rope for their hearts in a state-wide "Jump Rope for Heart" during November.

The event is scheduled for Nov. 3 through 7 locally, and is sponsored by the American Heart Association and the Pennsylvania State Association of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (PSAHERD). It is endorsed by the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports and the State Department of Health.

The Rev. Robert R. Byrnes, board chairman of the Heart Association's Southwestern Pennsylvania Chapter, said, "The Heart Association is enthusiastic about the Jump Rope for Heart. It will give students the opportunity to demonstrate the effectiveness of rope jumping as a cardiovascular exercise to keep their hearts healthy. Their participation will help keep their hearts healthy. Through pledges secured from parents and friends, the students will be helping to support the Heart Association programs to research, public and professional education, and community programs."

A state-wide goal of $600,000 has been set for the rope jumping event to benefit the programs of the Heart Association.

Physical education teachers are being asked to hold clinics to teach various jump roping techniques to students.

A student jumper kit will be given to students prior to the event to enable them to obtain sponsors. Pledges will be based on each minute segment the six-member team jumps during the three hour period.

Students wishing additional information on the event are urged to contact their physical education teacher, or the Southwestern Pennsylvania Chapter of the Heart Association.

U.S. Steel Completes Coal-Property Sale Negotiations

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene News Editor

WAYNESBURG — U.S. Steel Corp. has completed negotiations to sell its Manor coal property in Greene County to Conoco, Inc., parent company of the Consolidation Coal Co.

The transaction will include 26,000 acres of Pittsburgh Coal which U.S. Steel leased in 1977 from the Manor Real Estate Co. and the 3,500-acre Charmar Ranch property which U.S. Steel purchased in 1976 for $2.1 million.

The surface property and most of the coal are located in Richhill Township, with the coal block abutting Consolidation's untapped Nineveh reserve of Pittsburgh Coal in Morris Township.

Neither corporation would discuss the amount of money involved in the sale, but U.S. Steel said the transaction would be closed during the fourth quarter of this year and would "result in substantial improvement in U.S. Steel's earnings for the quarter and for the year."

In 1978, U.S. Steel announced plans to develop two mines to work the Manor reserve, both to be located on the Charmar property adjoining the Washington County line. At that time, it anticipated that construction of the first mine would begin in 1980.

Since 1978, it has engineered plans for the mines, completed an impact study, announced that a railroad would be built to transport the coal to Waynesburg to tie into the Waynesburg Southern Railroad, and became involved in negotiations with the Wheeling Creek Watershed Commission to expand a proposed flood control dam on Enlow Fork of Wheeling Creek to provide a water supply for the proposed mines.

Andrew D. Staurisky, U.S. Steel director of press relations, said developments in the coal and steel industry had resulted in revision of the timetable. He added the sale was now being made in conformance with corporate policy announced in its annual report this year to utilize all assets that are not an integral part of steel making facilities in a way which would most benefit the company.

He said that because of other coal holdings added in 1980, sale of the Manor block will reduce the corporation's coal reserves by less than two percent, with its reserve coal holdings still totaling more than 3.8 billion tons.

While all of the pre-construction work completed by U.S. Steel will be included in the sale, Consolidation said Friday that it will do its own engineering work and developmental studies in connection with utilization of the property.

A corporate spokesman said Consolidation has no immediate plans for development of either its Nineveh block or the new Manor block, despite the fact that railroad survey crews are currently working along the general route of the old Waynesburg and Washington Railroad line between West Waynesburg and Sycamore.

A statement was issued to the effect that the survey work is being done "in connection with coal reserves which may be developed in the future," with the spokesman adding that the timetable for such development would depend upon the market for coal and other factors.

In connection with its Nineveh reserve, Consolidation for a number of years has owned 1,500 acres of surface property north of Deer Lick and west of West Union, adjoining the Washington County line. This property is some seven miles east of the 3,500 acres associated with the Manor reserve.

The spokesman agreed that a railroad connecting into the Waynesburg Southern in West Waynesburg could be run north to Sycamore, with one branch then leading to the property north of Deer Lick and another going in a north-westerly direction to the Manor property. This would be essentially the same route proposed by U.S. Steel, with the line following Brown's Fork and Patterson Run from Sycamore to the Manor tract.

Commissioners Cite Solicitor For Service To The County

WAYNESBURG — It wasn't generally known, but Friday was "A.J. (Tony) Marion Day" in Greene County.

The proclamation was issued by the Greene County commissioners at their meeting Friday to honor the Waynesburg attorney for a quarter of a century of service as county solicitor.

The recognition, which came as a complete surprise to Marion, also included the presentation of a plaque which cited his "25 years of faithful service to Greene County."

"It was very pleasurable since it came as a completely unexpected honor," Marion said. A number of attorneys who had been told in advance that the presentation would be made were present for the brief, informal ceremony.

Marion was first appointed county solicitor in 1956 by a board made up of Arleigh Varner, Herman Gugliotta and John Carter, and has been reappointed by succeeding boards every four years since that time.

He feels that major accomplishments during his 25 years were expansion of the Curry Memorial Home and closing of the old county home, and revision of the method of appraising coal for tax purposes from a system which depended upon its proximity to the Monongahela River to one which establishes values according to the quantity and quality of coal within a seam.

The major lawsuits he has tried for the county have involved coal assessments, some of which went to the State Supreme Court.

Marion was appointed to the Greene County bar on Feb. 4, 1939, and has been practicing law in Waynesburg since that time. He is the fourth oldest member of the county bar in terms of length of service.

In the only action at the meeting, the commissioners entered into an agreement to purchase unemployment compensation insurance through the Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners, which has a contract with a private insurance company to furnish the coverage at one percent rather than the 3.55 percent now being charged by the State Department of Labor and Industry.

They pointed out that the state coverage was increased from two percent to 3.55 percent in July, but was made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1980, which increased the county's cost to some $75,000 a year. With the private coverage, this cost is expected to be cut in 1981 to approximately $22,000.

Future rates beyond 1981 will be based on experience, but under the agreement cannot exceed two percent. In addition, the county would be reimbursed each year if the experience rate falls.

Biology Dept. Offers Several Options

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg College's Department of Biology offers a wide variety of courses designed to meet the needs of the individual student. Dr. John Cummings, chairman of the Biology Department, said, "Biology has become a very complex field. It is a rapidly growing science. This growth is reflected in the increasing number of options available to Waynesburg students interested in the study of biology."

Dr. Cummings explained, "The biology major at Waynesburg is more or less a liberal arts study. Many students in this program go to work in drug companies or in administrative positions."

Currently, several students are involved in two-year programs offered by the department. These programs are designed for students planning careers such as pharmacy, occupational therapy and mortuary science. After completing two years of study at Waynesburg, these students go on to schools specializing in their field of interest.

Waynesburg also offers pre-medical and pre-dental programs. Dr. Cummings said, "These programs don't differ greatly from the biology major. This option is also available to chemistry majors."

According to Dr. Cummings, there is still a need for elementary science teachers despite a local abundance of teachers. He said, "If a student is looking for a job in elementary education, the best bet probably is teaching science and math." The biology department offers courses to prepare students for work in this field.

Another option open to biology students is the three-year medical technology program. After three years of course work at Waynesburg, students, if accepted, go on to study for one year at an approved school of medical technology. The Waynesburg College biology department works closely with Washington and West Penn Hospitals in this program.

Dr. Cummings said, "There are currently nine students in the medical technology program at Waynesburg. It is a fairly difficult course with tough competition to gain entrance into hospital schools." He added, "All of our program's students have successfully completed the hospital-based program. The biggest hurdle is getting into a hospital school."

Once the students finish their year of study at a hospital, they are awarded the bachelor of science degree from Waynesburg.

Medical technology students not only learn to perform laboratory tests, but are trained for advisory positions, such as directing the operations of a laboratory. Dr. Cummings said, "It is important to recruit good students for this program. There are positions open in the field for good students."

Not all biology courses at Waynesburg are geared toward the biology major. For non-majors, three courses are currently being offered.

Students in the human biology for non-majors course study the form and function of the human body. In this course, students also learn practical things such as taking blood pressure, studying EKG's, and measuring muscle strain. Dr. Cummings explained, "Like math anxiety, there's also a science anxiety. This course shows students they can 'do' science and have fun with it. Students in the course do some dissection, but it basically involves a lot of physiology and chemistry."

In other courses offered for non-majors, students study plant and animal life, and environmental conservation. According to Dr. Cummings, these courses are practical as well as interesting. He said, "We survey the students involved in these courses to discover their majors. Jaycettes Quarterly Awards

CARMICHAELS — President Barbara Nelson presented quarterly awards during a meeting Thursday night of the Carmichaels Area Jaycettes.

Bernie Klamerus was named Outstanding Jaycette of the Second Quarter for her contributions to club projects and the community since July. Mary Bialko received the Quarter award for her work as chairman of the committee for the King Coal parade float. Brenda Gresh received the Presidential Award of Honor for her management of several of the club's internal programs and also received a Spokette pin, a state award for first year Jaycettes.

Special recognition and a certificate of appreciation was presented to Albert McMinn who rode 50 miles and collected over $500 for the Jaycette's Bike-A-Thon held recently for benefit of St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital. The Jaycettes collected over $1,000 for the hospital.

Carla Cater, a representative of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Lung Association, was the speaker. She presented a program about women and smoking.

The Carmichaels Area Jaycettes meet the second and fourth Thursday of each month at the Knight of Columbus Home in Carmichaels. Membership is open to women between the ages of 18 and 36. Women over 36 may become associate members. Persons interested in the Jaycettes may attend any meeting or call 966-2664 for additional information.

Cow Killed

Timothy L. Simms, of Cameron, W.Va., escaped injury as a cow ran in front of his vehicle on LR30004 in Jackson Township about 6:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The cow, owned by Arleigh Willy, of New Freeport R.D.1, was killed.

Franklin Township Supervisors Approve Sub-Division Plan

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Supervisors, at a brief meeting Monday night, approved a sub-division, agreed to proceed with vacating an unused road and tabled a request to vacate streets in another lot plan.

Sub-division rights were granted to Donald E. Patterson who owns 20 acres of property in the Dark Hollow Area. The supervisors approved the rights on the condition that Patterson understands a 50-foot private right-of-way will be his responsibility and the township will be responsible only for drainage where the private road meets the township road.

Blaine Beeghly, of Washington, who has options on several lots in the South Addition of Morrisville requested the supervisors vacate three streets in order to enable him to re-structure the lot plan.

The supervisors tabled the request until they could check the location of sewer and water lines and determine how the action might affect other properties. Also, the supervisors would require roads that remain in the plan be constructed 33 feet wide in order to receive liquid fuel tax funds. This is the minimum under state regulations for receiving aid.

As required by law, the supervisors were to hear testimony from property owners adjoining land in the proposed Greene County Duplexes development. The only adjacent property owner, Mrs. Judy Tennant appeared before the board and offered no objections.

Crest Avenue, the road in question, is located in the middle of the McAnallen project.

Sets 'Concentrated Effort' Date

WAYNESBURG — Frank Van Cleve, chairman of the Bowby Public Library's expansion campaign committee, reports March 1981 has been selected as the time for a concentrated local effort in obtaining funds for project.

While progress is being made to raise funds for the expansion wing, the date has been selected because travel in the winter months may be difficult for volunteers.

The new wing will house a children's department, a story-hour arts and crafts room, lobby and circulation area on the ground floor and a technical services section. The adult library will be housed on the upper floor, as well as the garage for the bookmobile.

A slide presentation is being prepared, explaining the new wing and its facilities, for showing in November 1980. Civic and other organizations are invited to phone the library for a date to see the slide presentation. Time will be allowed for questions and discussion. Those wishing to see the presentation should call Mrs. Lucille Van Cleve at 627-6038.

Volunteers are needed to assist with the building fund campaign and are asked to contact the library at 627-9776 or 852-1878, or Frank Van Cleve at 627-6038.

The fund raising campaign will continue until June 30, 1983. Response to the campaign by the public raised $14,300 in four days and certified funds amounted to $32,361. New contributions and pledges since the August 15, National Endowment for the Humanities deadline, amount to $1,560.

Donations are tax deductible.

The Greene County Library system is comprised of Bowby Public Library, Flenniken Memorial Library in Carmichaels and Operation Outreach in Waynesburg, which supplies audio and visual aid materials, and the bookmobile which stops at 48 locations throughout Greene County.

Faces From The Past—Do Your Recognize Them?

One of the last physical symbols of the former Waynesburg and Washington Railroad, the West Waynesburg trestle over the Ten Mile Creek, will soon fall in the path of progress when a new broadgauge line will be built for Consolidation Coal Co., to a projected mine near Deer Lick, mostly over the old "Waynie" right of way. The trestle, known locally as "trestle beach," was the town's favorite old time "swimming hole" before the first public pool was built at Waynesburg after World War II

Under The Dome
 Bob Eichenlaub

In Greene County, as throughout the nation, the overriding interest in next Tuesday's election is centered on the presidential race between President Jimmy Carter and his Republican challenger, Ronald Reagan.

With the county's overwhelming Democratic majority—a spread of 13,203 to 3,873 among registered voters—Carter has to be the big favorite, but the county's GOP leaders anticipate the race will be a lot closer than these figures would seem to indicate.

While they don't have much hope that Reagan will be able to repeat Richard M. Nixon's achievement in 1972 when he carried the county by 2,231 votes over George McGovern to become one of two Republican presidential candidates to ever win in the county, they are looking for strong support from voters who are disappointed with Carter's record in office.

The only other Republican victory came in 1928, when Herbert Hoover defeated Al Smith, 6,910 to 5,293.

A study of presidential elections of the past shows one thing: Greene County voters get out for them. There hasn't been one for thirty years in which less than 80 percent of them go to the polls, and that's a record to be proud of considering the national average. And while Democrats have been consistent winners, there hasn't been a time when the Republican candidate has not exceeded the county's Republican registration. The one who came closest to doing so was Barry Goldwater, who lost to Lyndon B. Johnson by an 11,412 to 3,896 margin in 1964.

Four years ago Carter defeated Gerald Ford 8,769 to 5,293, and Republicans are expecting to make a better showing this time.

One of the unknown factors this year is the presence in the race of George Anderson, who has been the first serious third party candidate since 1968, when George C. Wallace was considered to be a serious factor in the contest between Nixon and Hubert A. Humphrey. But despite the support Wallace was thought to have in the county that year, he wound up getting just 1,094 votes to run far behind Humphrey's 8,198 and Nixon's 5,099.

In a normal presidential contest in the county, the majority by which Democrats have carried the county have ranged between 2,000 and 3,000 votes, and most political observers seem to feel that will be the case again this year. They also feel that if there is a deviation, it will be to the benefit of Reagan and would be part of a Republican national victory.

Visitors To New Jail Find One Trip Enough

It may be a dubious distinction, but Greene County can now lay claim to the most modern jail in Pennsylvania.

The $1.6 million facility, which was placed in service this week, takes full advantage of modern electronics to keep staffing at a minimum. One guard, seated in a central control room equipped with small television screens, can keep a constant watch over every part of the jail through the use of monitors, and can also control the electronic locks on all doors.

Prisoners will have access to an exercise yard. There will be a library, a chapel and a place where family members can visit. It also provides an opportunity for rehabilitation services which have never been possible in the past.

In short, it is a mini-penitentiary which will provide Greene County with a place to which people can be sentenced for terms of up to two years, thus cutting down on the increasingly high cost of sending them to state institutions.

It's a great improvement, in every way, over the old jail at the rear of the court house, which was used for nearly 100 years and which had been repeatedly condemned by the state, even for use as a temporary lockup.

But the hundreds of people who took advantage of an open house to visit the new jail during the past weekend discovered that it is far from being an inviting place.

Stark, austere and forbidding were some of the descriptive words heard. One visitor even resuracted the old remark usually applied to New York:

"It may be all right to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there."

And that's as it should be.

Cancer Society Has Guidelines

WAYNESBURG — Pamphlets on the American Cancer Society's new guidelines for cancer-related checkups are now available to the public, according to Mrs. Barbara Miller, public education chairperson for the Greene County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The guidelines, issued several weeks ago to physicians, have been printed in an easy-to-read leaflet for the public. Mrs. Miller emphasized that they apply only to people without symptoms and are suggestions rather than rules aimed at the early detection of cancer.

"Each of us should discuss them with our doctor," Mrs. Miller said. She explained when the guidelines were first made public in March, some people mistakenly assumed they applied to complete health checkups. "Hopefully, this leaflet will help alleviate the misunderstanding. I cannot stress enough that they are merely guidelines and each person's physician should decide what guidelines apply to them," Mrs. Miller said. Free copies of the leaflets explaining the new guidelines are available by contacting the Greene County Unit office of the American Cancer Society at 90 East High Street, Waynesburg, or by calling 627-5259.

In the interests of seeing that the corrosive cancer of racial hatred does not enter the body politic in southwestern Pennsylvania, I call upon all area citizens and elected officials in Greene and Fayette Counties to unanimously reject any contact with the Ku Klux Klan.

In these days of civil disharmony and of political strife, let us not cave in to this hate-ridden group, whose only intent is to poison the wells of intelligent discussion and analysis of the problems that beset us.

The Klan has never created anything except to foment racial hatreds and to inflame racial tensions. In this connection, it is interesting to list those national groups that also feel the brunt of its hate. In addition to its detestation and persecution of black Americans, the Klan seeks to annihilate the national heritage of all Slavs (Poles, Russians, Czechs, Rumanians, Bulgarians, Croats, Ruthenians, Serbs, etc.), all Hispanics and Portuguese, all Italians, all Hungarians, all Greeks, all Jews, all Roman Catholics, and all Moslems, in addition to many other components of our variegated population.

People in the millions came to the New World precisely to escape the ravages that such misguided fanatics unleashed in their original homelands. We certainly do not want any repetition of the Old World's historic religious and racial turmoil here. Do not be fooled into believing that the Klan is kin to the more familiar fraternal and civic clubs that justifiably ought to be cherished and strengthened in our midst. Beneath its surface blandness and strident manifestations of interest in the welfare of the community lurk only the venom of the racist demagogue and the elemental unscrupulousness of the professional bigot.

Winston Churchill, in the second World War, made no bones about his detestation of Soviet Communism, and once styled it "Foul babboony." Without a doubt a similar use may be made of the identical epithet in dealing with the upsurge of this notorious religious-baiting and race-baiting organization here in Greene and Fayette counties.

Treat the Klan with the unmitigated contempt and distrust it fosters in our homes and communities so that its raucous shriekings go unheard and unheeded.

Around The Town
 By The Staff

October's traditional "Bright Blue Weather" bids Greene County goodbye for another year this weekend. It will be followed immediately by the small and big game hunting seasons for which hundreds of men (and many women, too) have been waiting for ever since the last day of the deer season in December.

Atty. Albert Sayers, who was a patient in Greene County Memorial Hospital for the past few weeks, is now recuperating at his home on North Morris Street.

It's a long time until next

February but members of the Waynesburg Central High School ski club are already looking forward to a three-day trip to Vermont during the mid-term break on February 13-16. The trip was approved by the Central Greene School Board at its meeting Tuesday evening. All costs are to be paid by the students and the club sponsors. The same group made several trips to Seven Springs last winter.

Ralph Matz, Greene County director of Veterans Affairs, would like to remind any veteran receiving income questionnaires with their November checks they must be returned to the Veterans Administration before January 1 or their payments will be suspended. Those needing assistance in responding to the questionnaires will get free assistance at the Veterans office in the County Office Building in Waynesburg after November 3.

When the Greene County commissioners designated last Friday, October 30, as Anthony Marion Day in the county they couldn't have given the honor to a more deserving person. It was in recognition of his many years of service not only to the county government as the county commissioners' attorney in legal affairs and thus also to all residents of the county. A native of Jefferson and a graduate of the former Jefferson High School and the University of Pittsburgh law school. He also absorbed much of Greene County historical and cultural lore from his legal sponsor, the late Atty. Samuel Smith. His early life was also spent in the Jefferson community.

A 39-year-old Waynesburg native, Charles Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Reed of Mechanicsburg, has been appointed director of legislative affairs to Gov. Robert Graham of Florida. A graduate of Waynesburg High School and George Washington University in Washington, D.C., he was formerly Education Policy Director for Florida public schools and was coordinator of research in teacher education. He holds a doctor's degree in education. He was on the faculty of George Washington University and also a member of the varsity football team. He is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Miller, all of whom live in Waynesburg, where Mr. Reed was a highway construction contractor and Mr. Miller was a newspaper editor.

Although politics does not come within the scope of this column, its prediction is that the Democrat candidate for president will carry the county but possibly by slightly less than a normal majority it has enjoyed ever since the county came into existence as a separate county from Washington County back in 1895.

Planning must come naturally to the Stoy family from Fayette County, one of whose members, Mrs. Valerie Cole is head of the Greene County Planning Office and whose brother, Riley Stoy is director of planning for the big renewal project for the city of Uniontown. It was one of five cities in the state to be designated for such a project. One of their relatives, Charles Stoy is director of finances for Waynesburg College. Of interest to older residents of Waynesburg is the fact that Charles Stoy is a nephew of the late Gus Stoy, a Waynesburg pharmacist who owned one of the first soda fountains in any small town in the state. It was the most elite establishment of its kind in Waynesburg.

Reed had a natural aptitude for dealing with people like his great grandfather, the late Jesse L. Ross. Besides preparing the medical remedies for his patrons, Ross functioned as a counselor in their personal and financial difficulties in an era long, long before the plethora of present day agencies came into existence. Reagan Wins Mock Election

WAYNESBURG — Ronald Reagan was the winner in a mock presidential election conducted among students at Waynesburg College Tuesday.

The Republican candidate won 58.3 percent of the vote. President Jimmy Carter received 33.3 percent with independent candidate John Anderson getting 8.3 percent.

Fact and Folklore
 John O'Hara

My first recollection of Charles Reed goes back to an early spring evening at the Greene County Fairgrounds as he was getting ready to ride a thoroughbred race horse owned by his grandfather, the late William K. Reed.

He was scarcely more than ten or 11 years old but appeared younger because of his slim physique. The preparations took only a few seconds and in an instant he was being whizzed around the half mile track at a full gallop as the animal was apparently aware of an inexperienced rider in the saddle.

Both his father and grandfather were aware of the danger but had the good judgment to know that attempting to stop the horse was more apt to bring injury to the rider. As the animal raced around the track they shouted encouragement to the youthful rider and to "ride it down" until it gradually slowed to a gait that it could be stopped.

It was a highly impressive display of courage and good judgement which made a deep impression on the handful of people who saw it.

A few years later this writer was equally impressed with the physical capabilities of the same youth when, at no more than 130 or 135 pounds, he was a linebacker on the high school football team and went on to the even harder experience of playing the same role for George Washington University in Washington, D.C., at only a slight increase in weight and brawn but a big one in skill, courage and determination.

At about the same time this writer had an example of the truth of the old saying, "the boy is father of the man," when he, also for the first time, saw Steve Korcheck of Nemacolin in action in the field of sports.

It was by pure chance that walking into College Field at Waynesburg I saw Steve in action as the catcher for the former Cumberland Township, now Carmichaels Area, High School baseball team. Coached by Al Cree, one of the best high school coaches not only of baseball, but of football and basketball too, Korcheck, even at that age, had all the moves and some of the knowledge of a major league player.

His energy, enthusiasm and expertise in playing his position was an inspiration to other members of the team and eventually led to his being signed to a contract by the Washington, D.C. Senators of the American League.

Before getting there though, he, like Reed, played at George Washington University and where each of the two bridged the gap from youth to maturity not only in the sports but also in the classrooms and lecture halls of academic subjects and the teaching arts.

At George Washington University both of the Greene County youths played football under Hayden Buckley, who was on the GW coaching staff for several years before coming to Waynesburg College as athletic director and head football coach.

Reed had a natural aptitude for dealing with people like his great grandfather, the late Jesse L. Ross. Ross was a druggist by profession but a humanitarian in the most practical sense of the word by avocation. Besides preparing the medical remedies for his patrons, Ross functioned as a counselor in their personal and financial difficulties in an era long, long before the plethora of present day agencies came into existence. He gave generously from his purse as well as from wisdom in counseling the distressed in family affairs.

Reed has preserved much of the empathy his great-grandfather possessed by directly counseling hundreds and perhaps thousands of young men and women advancing in the field of higher education through a long series of advancements in administrative work in the public school system in Florida.

His most recent assignment is that of advisor for legislative affairs for the executive office of Governor Robert Graham of Florida. He previously held many sensitive positions at departmental levels and the coordination of legislative and academic objectives helping to raise the state of Florida to the upper levels of public education in the United States.

Greene County's other native to become one of the leading educators in Florida, Steve Korcheck, who, like Reed, has advanced to the doctorate level in that field, has concentrated his career in the classroom teaching and student affairs as a coach, teacher, counselor and administrator at Manatee Junior College where he was academic dean for the past four years and acting president since last July.

He previously served as academic dean and as a coach in the athletic department along with his teaching duties and president of the faculty.

As an outstanding athlete, both at the college level in football and baseball, and also as a professional baseball player, Korcheck exerted a dual influence on the lives of the students as one who taught not only by precept but also by example to prepare them for the realities of life after their campus days were completed.

In the days of an earlier era of American life, Horace Greeley's advice to "Go west young man," inspired thousands of young Americans to find wealth, excitement and a greater fulfillment of their destiny far beyond the banks of the Mississippi River.

But in the mid 1900's, two Greene County young men, Charles Reed and Steve Korcheck, turned in a different direction and headed south to prove the truth of the poetic line, "When duty whispers low thou must, and youth replies, 'I can'."

 Marcia McKenna Biddle

"Halas, by Halas." The Autobiography of George Halas. McGraw-Hill. $12.95.

Trivia question: Who was the New York Yankee right fielder the year before Babe Ruth took over that spot?

Answer: George Halas. The kid was a great athlete, but small. And he couldn't hit a curve ball. He only lasted a year with the Yankees—1919.

Halas was a fighter, though. Once he baited Ty Cobb, his idol, to the point that Cobb challenged him to a fight after the game. When Halas came out of the dressing room after a long, nervous shower, Cobb was waiting for him. But there wasn't any fight. Cobb just put out his hand and said, "I like your spirit, kid, but don't overdo it when you don't have to."

"It was not the last time I made a chump of myself," Halas admits. His life story is not only the story of the Chicago Bears, it's almost synonymous with the history of professional football—Halas was one of twelve men who met in Ralph Hay's Hupmobile showroom in Canton, Ohio, on September 17, 1920.

"In two hours we created the American Professional Football Association," he says. During the meeting, "I sat on a runningboard." They had all realized that pro football needed a few regulations. Schedules were alibed, college stars would play under assumed names, and a team might be there one week and gone the next.

In the previous season, Halas had played against the Canton Bulldogs and Jim Thorpe. Halas caught a pass and was knocked down. But he kept going, "scrambling along like a crab, trying to get an extra yard or two. Jim threw a leg over me and sat down on me. 'All right,' he said, 'if you are a horse, I'll ride you.'"

Halas didn't crawl any farther. But Thorpe, although he wasn't at the Canton meeting, was named president of the new league. If you can get past the prologue, this book is filled with great football stories, enough to interest any fan, whether you like the Bears or not. The prologue is written by two Chicago reporters and presents Halas' entrance at Super Bowl XIII with all the pompousness of Caesar entering Rome. Ignore it—Halas isn't like that in the rest of the book. He's more likely to tell about his failures than his successes, even though his pride in "my Bears" comes through on every page.

And, after bringing the Bears through the years when they were making less than a thousand dollars profit a year, he does have something to be proud of. In the early years,

Halas himself had to write up the games and talk Chicago papers into carrying his items. "I learned that editors like superlatives," he says. "I blush when I think how many times I wrote that the next game was going to be the most difficult of the season, or how a new player was the fastest man in the West."

It was easy to use superlatives, though, when he had players like Red Grange and Bronko Nagurski to write about. Another good story tells how Waynesburg's Hall of Famer, Bill George, singlehandedly destroyed San Francisco's new shotgun formation.

It's a fun book for football fans, even if it does seem at times as though George Halas invented pro football all by himself. But who wants to argue with "Papa Bear"?

Facility Gets X-Ray Processor

CARMICHAELS — Centerville Clinics, Inc. has announced the installation of a new $13,000 X-ray processor at the clinic's Carmichaels facility.

Larry L. Horne, administrator of the Centerville Clinic, and Ronald King, its radiology supervisor, said purchase of the processor was funded in part by a $9,600 grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Health's chronic respiratory disease program.

One of the primary uses of the processor will be to develop chest X-rays taken in conjunction with the Carmichaels Clinic's new respiratory disease program.

The program was started in June of this year under direction of Jim Newman, C.R.T.T., supervisor of the Centerville Clinic's cardiopulmonary laboratory and coordinator for its black lung program. It is intended for the diagnosis, treatment and rehabilitation of patients with black lung.

Both miners and non-miners who have respiratory complaints and reside in the southwestern Pennsylvania area are eligible for treatment.

Further information about the program can be obtained by contacting Jim Newman at 757-6801, extension 105.

Nursing Program For Registered Nurses Scheduled

WAYNESBURG — Carlow College will present a program for registered nurses who want to develop nursing diagnoses as a component of the nursing process.

It will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 11, at Margaret Bell Miller School in Waynesburg.

Bernie Jordan, Ph.D., RN, who is director of Education and Research at the Medical Center of Beaver County, will guide participants through a review of the historical perspective of nursing diagnosis, definition of nursing diagnoses as a component of the nursing process, differentiation between nursing diagnosis and medical diagnosis and the development of nursing diagnoses from data.

There will be a registration fee of $15 which will cover certificate, materials and coffee. Certification will be for three contact hours.

Additional information on the program can be obtained by calling Naomi Mewhirer, Continuing Education in Nursing at Carlow College, 412-578-6112 or writing to 3333 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213.

GCCD Spring Inventory Now

John Reagan, executive assistant, of the Greene County Conservation District has announced that a spring inventory is currently being conducted in the county. The inventory is part of the three-year groundwater study initiated by the Conservation District and sponsored by the county commissioners and the U.S. Geological Survey.

Bob Reynolds is currently doing the inventory for the district. The initial activity will be to locate and inventory the springs. A sample of water will be taken to measure the water's Ph, conductance and temperature. Also, a flow rate will be taken if possible.

Persons who have a spring and would like to have it inventoried and recorded, should contact the conservation office at 60 West High Street, Waynesburg, or by calling 852-1171, extension 319.

Man Training

RICES LANDING — George Evancheck, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Evancheck, of Rices Landing, is currently undergoing special training in Georgia to become a U.S. marshal with the Justice Department.

A graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School and Penn State University, he was a probation officer with the Greene County Court for over three years.

He was among 800 persons who tested for the government position in Pittsburgh recently. Only 80 were accepted.

Curry Home Expansion Plans Proceed

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene News Editor

The Greene County commissioners have decided to proceed with their plans for expansion of the Curry Memorial Home despite the fact that a private firm expects to build a 120-bed nursing home in the county.

The decision was based on a number of factors, including the results of a study which indicate that the county is far below the state average in terms of the number of nursing home beds per 1,000 persons over the age of 65.

The county nursing home presently accommodates 111 persons. Plans are to add a new wing and make alterations in the existing home which would increase the capacity to 158 persons.

"We feel the need is there even if the private nursing home is built, and on that basis are proceeding with the county project," the commissioners said Wednesday after meeting with members of the Curry Home Advisory Board.

They will therefore submit a certificate of need and preliminary plans for the expansion project for approval of the Health Systems Agency of Southwestern Pennsylvania. The HSA must agree that the need exists and approve the preliminary plans before the county can advance to the next stage of the project.

A study made by the county planning commission at the request of the commissioners established that in 32 counties surveyed there are an average of 68 nursing home beds — private and public combined — for every 1,000 people age 65 and over.

And in those counties with a population of from 35,000 to 45,000 people, putting them in the same classification as Greene County, the average is 57 beds per 1,000 senior citizens.

A 158-bed Curry Memorial Home and a new 120-bed private nursing home would increase Greene County's average to 57 beds per 1,000 people over the age of 65.

Plans to build the private nursing home were announced recently by Grandview Health Care, Inc. of Franklin, a corporation which has a number of major nursing homes throughout the state.

Their application has already been submitted to HSA for approval. Plans for expansion of the Curry Home were already underway when the announcement was made by Grandview Health Care. It calls for the construction of a 42-bed wing and revisions to the existing facility which would add five beds to its capacity, for a total gain of 47 beds.

The basement floor of the new wing would also provide the nursing home with a multi-purpose room, meeting room, and greatly expanded laundry facilities.

The major renovation in the present home would be removal of the boiler plant from inside the building to a separate building outside. Solariums which now are at the end of each wing would be moved close to the central core, where they could be watched from the nursing stations, and the present solariums would be converted into 16 resident rooms.

In addition, kitchen facilities would be greatly expanded, new windows would be installed for energy conservation purposes, and the entire building would be air conditioned.

Space on the second floor, which originally was designed as an apartment for the nursing home administrator, was converted a number of years ago to patient rooms. These rooms will now be remodeled as office spaces and will also provide space for two of the new solariums.

Total cost of the project, including fix equipment, fees and contingencies, is estimated at $4.5 million.

Thomas Bontempo of the architectural firm of Wallover and Mitchell met with the commissioners Tuesday to review the preliminary plans, and they were then presented to the advisory board Wednesday for their review.

"We anticipate that if everything goes as expected we could be in a position to begin construction in 1983, and it would then take another 18 months or so to complete the job," he said.

Close to 75 people attended the final public meeting held Oct. 21 at the Mt. Morris fire hall.

Pollock said that some of those present questioned the ability of residents to pay the tap-in fee and the monthly charge, but most seemed to agree that the system is badly needed and will have to be built.

Other questions dealt with the area to be served. It was explained that this was based on economic feasibility and on the area delineated by the Department of Environmental Resources as the source of present pollution.

GCID Speaker Is Announced

Keith F. Anderson, public affairs manager for the SRC II (Solvent Refined Coal) project near Morgantown, will be featured speaker at the annual shareholders' meeting of Greene County Industrial Developments, Inc. (GCID).

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 5, at the Greene County Country Club.

Shareholders will elect members to the board of directors, which will then meet to appoint an executive committee and elect officers. R. A. Matteucci of Dry Tavern is the incumbent president.

The SRC II demonstration project is designed to determine the technical and economic feasibility of converting high-sulphur coal into clean-burning liquid and gaseous fuels. The proposed plant would be located along the Monongahela River in West Virginia, south of Point Marion.

Anderson is responsible for dissemination of SRC II-related information to the public, and is also the primary project public affairs liaison officer between Gulf Oil Corp. and the U.S. Department of Energy.

Architect Outlines Plans

WAYNESBURG — Architect Richard Glance, head of Richard Glance and Associates of Pittsburgh, outlined his plans for the facade renovation phase of Waynesburg's downtown revitalization program at a meeting Monday of the Waynesburg Rotary Club.

Glance has been retained by the Waynesburg Economic Revitalization Corp. (WERC), the agency responsible for the program, to work closely with property owners and businesses in the two-block pilot area (Morgan to Morris Streets) to achieve facade uplifts which will, in Glance's words, "make the downtown area a more enjoyable place in which to shop."

Glance, who holds a degree in planning in addition to his architectural degree, recently completed renovation of the Washington County courthouse and the lobby of the Fort Jackson Building in Waynesburg.

Glance said he hopes to convince people that "being old is good in many, many respects" when speaking in terms of downtown areas of towns and cities.

"Downtowns in our older communities have had a bad rap for too long," he said. "They are viewed as centers for ugliness, dirt, rundown hangouts and the like. We must change that image by preserving those aspects of downtown which reflect the real history of the area and, at the same time, do those other things in terms of parking and traffic which will restore our downtown to the role of an attractive, pleasing shopping area."

Under provisions of a $460,000 grant which the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development recently approved for downtown Waynesburg, an outright grant of $2,000 will be made available for each facade which is renovated during the revitalization program.

Property owners will participate on a voluntary basis, Glance said, adding that specific details on color selections, use of materials and facade changes will be worked out with each individual property owner.

"Our goal will be to retain the authenticity and unique quality of each building. They will not look alike but the overall effect will be pleasant," he said.

In order to determine the best set of criteria for the pilot area, Glance is currently doing extensive research on each building, studying drawings and photographs and gaining as much first-hand knowledge as he can this winter. He hopes to present his concepts and drawings to property owners early next spring.

The Pittsburgh architect also touched briefly on the need for sidewalk improvements, including ramping for the handicapped, and on the need for street lighting improvements.

In urging Rotarians to support the concept of historic preservation, he said that "one big step forward would be to enroll the entire com-

County Commissioners Hear Proposal

WERC Wants A Downtown Facelift

WAYNESBURG — The president of the Waynesburg Economic Revitalization Corp. (WERC) asked the county commissioners Tuesday to consider making improvements to the fronts of county-owned properties in the Waynesburg business district as part of WERC's downtown rehabilitation program.

Robert Berryman explained that WERC will make funds available to store owners for use in improving building facades. The money will come from a $463,540 federal grant.

Berryman said there are from 35 to 40 business places within the two-block revitalization area, and that $2,000 will be made available for each facade. "We would hope that the property owners would add some of their own money and do a good job of improving their store fronts," he said.

In addition, the services of an architect, Richard Glance, are being made available by WERC to assist property owners in planning the improvements.

While the county properties were not included in those to be provided with money, Berryman suggested that the commissioners might want to join in the program by improving them.

In response, the commissioners said they already have plans to replace the steps in front of the courthouse and expect to provide funds for the project in the 1981 budget. They also said they have advised that the Sayers-Hooper building, which contains two store fronts, is not worth renovating and that plans call for eventual demolition of the building.

They did express interest in making improvements to the front of the Old County Office Building, and agreed to meet with Glance to discuss ways in which it could be done.

John Graham, who heads the county's Family Services office, met with the commissioners to obtain approval of an agreement with a private agency, Vision Quiet, which will provide services to a juvenile being transferred from the New Castle Youth Development Center. With the transfer, he said, the county's share of the cost of maintaining the youth will be reduced from $46 a day to $19.25 a day.

Commissioner L. R. Santore questioned Graham about a court order handed down last week appointing a member of the probation staff and setting the salary for the job.

"I feel it is the job of the county salary board to set wages and we aren't having any input into these appointments," he said. "It's pointless to ask us to approve these salaries when they are being set by court order."

In reply, Graham said the court orders are being handed down primarily to establish the scope of responsibility of the jobs, with the salaries being set to meet standards of the State Juvenile Judges' Commission, which provides part of the money for services in the county.

No action was taken on a request from the Greene County Association for Related Citizens for a county grant of $15,000 to provide local matching funds for a $45,000 state grant for site acquisition and development for a sheltered workshop.

The request will be considered in connection with preparation of the 1981 county budget, as will a request from the Washington Greene Community Action Corp. for a $20,000 allocation.

Comprehensive Blood Testing Sponsored By Rotary Club

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Rotary Club will again this year sponsor a wide-ranging blood testing program for area residents.

The program will be held for the sixth consecutive year and is referred to as the Multiphasic Blood Biochemistry Program. It is designated as an early detection program to permit the prevention and prompt care of a broad range of disease including diabetes, forms of cancer, heart disease, kidney and liver diseases.

Over the past five years almost 2,600 participants have taken part in the program. This year's program will last three weeks and will be able to take care of as many as 900 people.

The blood samples will be taken on three consecutive Saturdays, Nov. 1, 8 and 15, in the social hall of the First Baptist Church of Waynesburg, from 7 a.m. to 11 a.m. Parking is available in the church lot at the corner of High and West Streets.

Interested persons are asked to call 627-6168 and make a reservation to be tested. Reservations can be made beginning Monday, Oct. 27, and will be taken Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

until Friday, Nov. 14. A $15 fee will be charged to cover the cost of collection of the blood sample, laboratory processing and mailing information to the participant's personal physician.

Again this year, the specimen will pass through 32 computerized, automated tests. In addition to a complete blood count (CBC) which includes a red blood count, white blood count, hemoglobin, Hematocrit, MCV, MCH, and MCHC, the tests also include the following: blood sugar (glucose), calcium, inorganic phosphorus, cholesterol (direct), cholesterol (extracted), total bilirubin, alkaline phosphatase, LDH, SGOT, blood urea nitrogen (BUN), uric acid, total protein, albumin, triglycerides, GCTP, creatinine, chlorine, carbon dioxide, sodium, globulin, A/G ratio, anion gap, BUN/creatinine ratio, osmolality, ionizable calcium and potassium.

Participation in the program has been recommended for all age groups from 10 years old and up, but particularly for those aged 20 to 60 years old.

Each participant must fast for 12 to 14 hours before the blood specimen is taken. For most persons that means no food or beverages should be taken after the evening meal the night before. Water can be taken in moderate amounts.

At the collection site, participants will be asked to complete a short medical history questionnaire and to provide the name and address of their personal physician.

The blood specimens will be sent to the Associated Pathologists Laboratories. The test results will be sent directly to the physician designated by the individual tested. The physician will then send a notice to the individual as to whether the results of the tests were normal or whether medical attention is needed.

Trained medical personnel will be at the test site through the cooperation of several local organizations. The average time at the test site per individual is estimated at 15 minutes.

It should be emphasized that although the tests can detect many disease states, they can not detect all diseases. The physician-patient consultation must still remain an essential part of any health care program.

This is a community service project of the club and any proceeds will be returned to the community in the form of contributions to local health-related organizations. Some of the organizations helped by the proceeds of last year's program were the Greene County Memorial Hospital, Hospice of Greene County, the Greene County Chapter of the American Cancer Society and the Royal Commonwealth Association for the Blind.

Art Is An Up! Says Lori

WAYNESBURG — "Art is an up!" So says Lori F., whose paintings were recently displayed at Greene County Memorial Hospital, which is under the direction of Michael Flinn, hospital administrator.

For Lori, a 17-year-old student at the Youth Development Center at Waynesburg, art is the most enjoyable and thought-provoking medium available to us. Due to today's economy, people are staying at home more. "I'm just glad I'm able to make someone's surroundings more interesting."

Like many talented artists, she views her renderings as a form of communication. "Through my paintings, I can convey my thoughts. I like to paint because it allows me to imagine my own world the way I see things."

Lori credits the educational system for fostering her creative ability. During her 11 years in school, she has been exposed to and participated in various artistic genres. Her favorites include jewelry making, painting and photography. Upon graduation, she plans to attend college to prepare for a career as an art instructor.

Presently, Lori is exploring this possibility by functioning as a teacher's aide under the supervision of Mrs. Shea at the East Franklin Elementary School of the Central Greene School District.

Concerning her style, Lori modestly asserts that she doesn't have one. "I don't think I'm quite old enough to have one. As yet, it hasn't developed."

Two Teams Have What They All Wanted — Berth In Playoffs

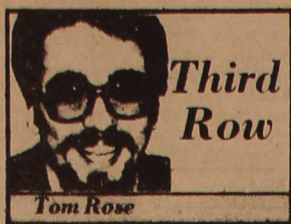

For 18 of 20 high schools in the Washington-Greene County district, the high school football season is already one week too long.

At Burgettstown and Carmichaels, the fun is just beginning. Both have football teams that have clinched berths in the upcoming WPIAL playoffs.

But neither can clinch a conference championship by winning and that has given both schools a case of the Friday Night Fidgets.

To explain the playoff procedure as simply as possible: the top two teams in each conference qualify for post-season play. Both schools have done that.

But the conference champion will get the home field advantage in the first round of the playoffs, and for Burgettstown to win the Class AA Century Conference championship it must beat Washington while Beth-Center must upset Albert Gallatin Friday.

Third Row

Carmichaels is in the same predicament. The Mikes must beat Greene County arch-rival Jefferson-Morgan while Frazier must lose to Fairchance-Georges to win the Class A Tri-County South.

"Oooh boy, you'd better believe we're rooting for Beth-Center," said Burgettstown head coach Rege Onderick. "If we weren't playing we'd be down at Beth-Center en masse to watch that game."
"It would be beautiful to have Burgettstown host a first round playoff game for so many reasons. We'd have the home crowd and our own field and I would imagine the game would be packed. It would be a first for Burgettstown."

Albert Gallatin presently leads the Century Conference with a 5-0-1 record while Burgettstown is 5-1.

Carmichaels head coach Tom McCombs is just as optimistic as Onderick. He's hoping Fair-Georges can turn from foe to friend, at least for one night.

"Our boys are playing for the conference championship, they want it badly," McCombs said. "If we would lose now, we'd still be in the playoffs but it would be as a second place team. Fairchance has a really good shot against Frazier, we barely slipped by them, so we have to beat Jeff-Morgan and hope for the best. We'd like to play at home."
Now that it's been established what the two schools would like to do, what remains to be determined is the playoff opposition.

The Century and Three Rivers Conferences will meet in the opening round. Seton LaSalle can clinch the Three Rivers title by defeating Carlynton Friday while Swissvale can win the No.2 playoff spot by disposing of South Park on the same night. Brentwood and Northgate have remote mathematical possibilities as well for second place in the conference.

If the standings remain the same after this weekend's play, Burgettstown will play at Seton LaSalle in the opening round.

"From what we saw Seton LaSalle has a good team but they can be had," Onderick said. "I saw Seton LaSalle beat Sto-Rox 18-0 Saturday but I think we can give them a game."

The Tri-County South and Eastern Eight Conferences will battle in the first round but the situation in the Eastern Eight remains muddled. Clairton can clinch the title by beating Riverview Saturday and Serra can win the runnerup spot by defeating Duquesne. But should Riverview beat Clairton, it would win the conference title and knock Clairton out of the playoffs.

"I don't know which one to look at," McCombs said. "At least all three teams are playing on Saturday and two of them are playing each other so we'll get to see them. But I guess we'll know where we stand after Friday night's games."

Of the 32 available playoff positions in the four classifications of the WPIAL, 13 spots remain. Only one game is firm as Mt. Lebanon (Western champion) will host Butler (Interstate runnerup) in Class AAAA.

The complete WPIAL playoff pairings can be found in the Scoreboard section on page C-2.

Mon Valley Catholic easily wins this year's high school hard luck award. Despite defeating German Township 23-20 last week and boasting the district's most prolific runner this season in junior tailback Jon Green, the Spartans have been mathematically eliminated from the playoffs.

According to a tabulation of the Modified Gardner Point system, Mon Valley can finish with a maximum of 940 points. Frazier has a minimum of 950 points while Carmichaels has a minimum of 960.

The best the Spartans can hope for is a share of the Tri-County South championship at 7-2. Chartiers-Houston (6-3) is the only other district team with a record better than .500.

Trinity is one of four schools in the WPIAL — and the only team in Class AAAA — to be winless entering the final week of the regular season. The others are Ford City, West Milflin South and Midland.

Raiders, 14-0

WAYNESBURG — The Beth-Center Bulldogs jumped to a quick 14-0 first quarter lead over Waynesburg here Friday afternoon and then seemed to fall asleep as the fired up Raiders stormed back to take a 15-14 homecoming win in the Century Class AA Conference.

Both teams are now 2-4 in conference play.

The Bulldogs took their big lead during the first 12 minutes of play as quarterback Rick Zabrida capitalized on an interception and capped a seven-play, 24-yard drive by plunging into the Waynesburg end zone from a yard out. Zabrida kicked the point after to make it 7-0, Beth-Center.

The first touchdown came with 6:21 gone in the first quarter. Exactly two minutes later, with 8:21 gone, Zabrida connected with split end Doug Havrilesko for a 43-yard score. Zabrida's second conversion kick gave the Bulldogs a 14-0 lead and the beginning of what appeared to be a rout.

However, the Raider defense took over at that point and the Bulldogs never threatened again.

With just eight seconds elapsed in the second quarter, Waynesburg got on the boards when John Eckard took an eight-yard pass from quarterback Rich Neubauer. Doug Haines, who was to score the game tying touchdown in the third quarter, ran the ball across to cut the BC lead to 14-8.

Early in the third quarter, Waynesburg was forced to its own five by a Beth-Center punt. On the third play from scrimmage halfback Bruce Bartholomew went 49 yards to the Bulldog 46, and on the next play Haines went the remaining 46 yards for the score which knotted the game. Jerry Sedek kicked the point after and Waynesburg went up to stay by the slim one-point margin.

California, 20-0

CALIFORNIA — The California Trojans kept their hot streak going in the Tri-County South A conference with a 20-0 shutout over West Greene in high school football action last night.

California has now won three of its last four games and has climbed into seventh place in the 10-team conference.

Junior running back Brian Schaum had an outstanding night as he rushed for 145 yards on 22 carries and scored two touchdowns.

The all-purpose back rambled for four- and 30-yard runs to give the Trojans a 14-0 lead.

Scott Santo capped the scoring for the Trojans with an 18-yard run. The kick failed.

West Greene threatened twice in the game penetrating to the California two and five yard lines but the Trojan defense threw them back. California quarterback Brendan Folmer hit seven of 13 passes for 104 yards while the ground game rumbled for 255 yards. They also picked up 19 first downs.

California is now 3-5 in the conference and 3-6 overall. West Greene falls to 1-7 in the conference and 1-8 overall.

Coach Quits At Waynesburg

WAYNESBURG — The resignation of Howard L. Brunell, head track coach at Waynesburg Central High School for the past several years, was accepted by the Central Greene School Board Tuesday night.

The board also accepted the resignation of junior high basketball coach William Winters who cited the pressures of graduate work. Winters has been junior high coach for the past two seasons.

Ken Potter was hired as a temporary replacement for assistant junior high wrestling coach Mickey Boudreau who has been ill. Potter is a physical education teacher at Margaret Bell Miller School.

Michael Daverio, a student at Waynesburg College, was named junior high assistant basketball coach and Wayne W. Kiger was named assistant varsity basketball coach.

Diane Kayla was hired as assistant girls basketball coach.

A Conference lead here Friday night by administering a 34-12 beating to Bentworth High School.

The win assures Carmichaels of at least a third of the top spot in the conference depending upon the results of Friday's German Township-Mon Valley Catholic game and today's Jefferson-Morgan-Frazier game.

The Mikes, going into Friday evening's game, were tied with Frazier and German Township. All three teams had 6-1 conference records.

Mike Rumancik got the Greene County team on the scoreboard first on a 45-yard run in the first quarter and John Townsend kicked the point after to give the Mikes a 7-0 lead.

But just minutes later, the spunky Bearcats came roaring back and Tom Lapevcic, who played nearly all of the last three quarters at quarterback after Don Voxel was injured, bulled his way in from the Mike five. But, the point after failed and the Mikes were never headed, nor threatened, the remainder of the evening.

Pete Swift recovered a Rumancik fumble in the Bearcat end zone in the second quarter and Townsend again converted to give the Greene County team a 14-6 lead at the intermission.

Quarterback Dick Krause scored on a one-yard run and Ken Christopher on a three-yard burst in the third quarter to make it 27-6 after 36 minutes of play.

Bill Mundell concluded the Carmichaels scoring.

The Bearcats scored their final points of the evening later in the fourth when Lapevcic connected with wide receiver Greg Korinsky on a 22-yard scoring play.

MVC's Green Goes For Record

By FRED SIGLER
Sports Writer

With only one week left in district scholastic football competition, the big question still remaining is whether or not Mon Valley Catholic's Jonathan Green will break the Washington-Greene scoring record.

Green, although held to one touchdown in a hard-fought 23-20 win over German Township, now has a total of 21 for 126 points, to lead Charleroi's Jim Edwards by 18. The MVC star needs only one touchdown to tie and two to beat the record of 132 points set by John Menhart of Carmichaels in 1973.

Edwards also scored one touchdown in the Cougars' 31-20 loss to Burgettstown, and now has 108 points on 18 touchdowns.

No other district player is remotely near the two junior tailbacks as Brian Schaum of California and Mark Policz of Jefferson-Morgan are far behind in a third place tie with 56 points apiece.

Green will end his season Saturday night in a home game with California, while Edwards will play his final game at home Friday against Monessen.

"It would be very hard for Jim (Edwards) to catch Green now but he has done a great job all season and he would have had a real shot at the record if he could have played all the time," said Charleroi coach Bob Hodgson.

The Cougars' ace missed two games and part of another with an ankle injury but his season total is still higher than that of six winners since the Washington-Greene scoring champion was first recognized in 1970.

"Jim is a great all around back who can do just about anything and combines power with speed and quickness. The fact that he is a fine team player and doesn't try to run up points but still has scored so many shows what a valuable player he is," said Hodgson about the 5-9, 170-pound back.

There is a scramble in the remainder of the top ten which besides Schaum and Policz, also includes Terry Fowler of Burgettstown with 54 points; Joe Cario, Trinity, 48; Chuck Coles, Jefferson-Morgan, 46, and Kevin Donovan, Peters Township; Rich Hribal, Carmichaels, and Tom Lapevcic, Bentworth, all with 44.

Mon Valley Catholic continues to lead in team offense with a total of 228 points or 25.3 per game. Carmichaels holds second place with 215 for an average of 23.9 per game.

Chartiers-Houston is the team defensive leader, allowing 52 points for an average of 5.8 per game. The Bucs have scored five shutouts. Beth-Center is in second place, giving up 79 points for an 8.8 average.

Only five district teams will take winning records into their final regular season games, including Burgettstown, Carmichaels and Mon Valley Catholic, all with 7-2 marks; Chartiers-Houston, 6-3, and McGuffey, 5-4.

Washington-Greene area squads have combined for only 68 victories, while losing 110 for an overall .382 percentage.

Another Year Of High School Football Closes

at Jefferson

Carmichaels may be heading toward the Class A WPIAL playoffs but there's a Greene County rivalry to be dealt with first, the annual grudge match with Jeff-Morgan. "To show you what this game means to our kids we have some boys who are hurting that I wanted to rest for the playoffs but they insist they are playing against Jeff-Morgan," said Carmichaels head coach Tom McCombs. Carmichaels can win the Tri-County South championship and the first round homefield advantage if Frazier loses at Fairchance-Georges. "There won't be any letdown and we won't be taking Jeff-Morgan lightly," McCombs promised. "The boys are playing for the conference championship. If we would lose to Jefferson we

at West Greene

Even though it is the last week of the season, the West Greene-Mapletown game will be very important if only for pride's sake. Both teams are 1-7 in the Tri-County South A conference and the winner will have the dubious distinction of not finishing in the cellar. West Greene head coach Earl Finney has had his problems this season with the team roster going as low as 19 players at one time. His graduating seniors will be Steve Burns, Jay Jones, Chip Lightner, Ken Jones, Ray Burns, Tom Tewel, Ron Horn, Dave Ziefel, Dennis Hooker, Ron Jacobs, Doug Snee, Randy Tedrow and Terry Lidey. The key to WG's offense is quarterback Steve Burns, who threw for 155 yards last week and ran for 70. Finney said his finest moment of the season was a 6-0 win over Bentworth. Finney will start all his seniors for their final season. His reason for optimism is that most of this year's squad will return with a year's experience under their belts.
