Commissioners Consider Elevator For Third Floor Use

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — The possibility of an installing an elevator in the new county office building to permit utilization of the building's third floor is being explored by the Greene County commissioners.

"There's a lot of space going to waste which could accommodate a large number of offices, and we might even be able to rent some of them to help recoup the cost of installing the elevator," Commissioner L.R. Santore said at Thursday's meeting.

When the county purchased part of the former Long Department Store on East High Street and renovated it to create the new office building, a decision was made to utilize only the first two floors because of the additional money which would be needed to install the elevator required if the third floor was included in the remodeling project. The elevator shaft was installed, however, and is ready for placing of the cages.

Cost of the project is uncertain. At the time the building was renovated some four years ago, the commissioners had an estimate of $70,000 to include elevators. Cost of creating offices on the third floor would be an additional expense.

Santore said that one possibility would be to move the Waynesburg magisterial office to the county office building, saving rent the county is now paying. It is presently located in a room about a block away.

The county had hoped to obtain partial funding for the project from the state through the Department of Community Affairs, but has been informed that no such funds are available. DCA suggested, however, that the commissioners explore the possibility of obtaining a Farmers Home Administration community facilities loan, which would make the needed money available at five percent interest with a 40-year repayment provision. The commissioners indicated they plan to follow up on the suggestion.

In other developments at the meeting, the commissioners were informed by County Planner Valerie Cole that two roadside rest sites along Interstate 79 between Waynesburg and Washington will be reopened on Feb. 2.

Mrs. Cole had been asked by the commissioners to contact the Department of Transportation to determine why they had been closed. In reply to her inquiry, John L. Sokol Jr., PennDOT District 12 engineer, wrote:

"Due to the funding situation, these sites were temporarily closed along with all roadside rest sites throughout the Commonwealth where complete comfort facilities do not exist. Considering the numerous requests for reopening of these sites, we requested through normal channels and now have the approval to reopen these facilities on I-79."

On recommendation of George K. Stennett, county development director, the county will offer for sale a package sewage treatment plant, located on land adjoining the county airport, which is no longer being used.

The plant was installed in 1969 at a cost of $80,000 to serve the airport and buildings in the industrial park opposite the airport. It was taken out of service a year ago when the facilities were tied into the new municipal sewer system in Franklin Township.

The plant, which can process a maximum of 35,000 gallons of water a day, was in good working order when it was shut down, Stennett said. He said that while it would be too small to serve a municipality, it would be adequate for a mobile home park or small group of dwellings and businesses.

Bids from interested purchasers will be accepted until Feb. 26.

The commissioners authorized payment of $4,920 in additional fees to the Michael Baker Engineering Co. for inspection services in connection with building of taxiways at the county airport. The authorization is subject to approval of the state Bureau of Aviation, which would pay between 90 and 95 percent of the additional fees. The additional work was done because of problems and time extensions entailed in completing the construction.

At the same time, the commissioners decided against seeking liquidated damages from the contractor, Frich Construction Co., as compensation for the additional time the firm required to complete the job.

European Tour Includes A Visit To Waynesburg Central High

WAYNESBURG — It's not often that a 35-day tour of Europe includes a side trip to Waynesburg. But that was the case for the mother and younger brother of a former Argentine exchange student at Waynesburg Central High School.

Nelly Ordenez and her son, Rai, of San Mi Guel de

Tucuman in northern Argentina, visited Wednesday in the home of Howard and Jan Brunnell of Waynesburg, where Mrs. Orodenez's older son, Roberto, stayed during the 1976-77 school year while attending Waynesburg Central under the American Field Service (AFS) exchange student program.

Roberto, 21, is now working as a translator and attending the Argentine National University at Tucuman where he's studying accounting.

Rai, 20, also attends the national university, majoring in engineering. He jokes that while he will build bridges and buildings for cities he prefers living in a rural area such as Waynesburg.

Mrs. Ordenez and her son had just completed a 35-day tour of Europe and decided to make a brief visit to the United States before returning to Argentina.

They arrived in New York last Tuesday and were surprised to be met at the airport by friends who live near Newark, N.J.

"I had contacted them and said we might make a brief visit to the United States but our plans were not complete," Mrs. Ordenez said. "I was very surprised and happy when they met us at the airport."

The Ordenezs had become acquainted with the New Jersey family when their son stayed in the Ordenez home while an exchange student under the Rotary International program.

Their side trip to Waynesburg was short. They returned to New Jersey Thursday and planned to leave for Argentina on Saturday.

"We seem to always be getting on or off airplanes," Mrs. Ordenez said with a laugh during a reception in the Brunnell home Wednesday night.

Among those at the reception was Becky Popp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Popp of Waynesburg, who returned two weeks ago from a year in Australia attending school under the AFS program.

Mrs. Brunnell, an officer in the Waynesburg Chapter of the AFS, was instrumental in arranging Becky's year of study in Australia.

Behm To Seek Sixth Term

JEFFERSON — Frank J. Behm, a well known funeral director in Jefferson and Waynesburg, has announced he will seek the Democrat nomination for the office of Greene County Coroner in the spring primary election. Behm is finishing his fifth four-year term as coroner.

A native and former resident of Richhill Township, he has been a lifetime resident of the county. He attended California State Teachers College and graduated from the Pittsburgh Institute of Mortuary Science in 1951. He served with the U.S. Army during the Korean conflict.

Behm is a past president of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Funeral Directors Association and a past president of the Pennsylvania State Coroners Association.

He has been active in civic and community affairs in Jefferson and nearby communities, including the American Legion Post in Jefferson, the Veterans of Foreign Wars post in Carmichaels and the Clarksville Area Lions Club.

Behm is a member of the Waynesburg Lodge 153 F & AM, the Washington-Greene

FRANK J. BEHM

Counties Caravan and the Syria Mosque of the Shriners in Pittsburgh. He is also a director of the Gallatin National Bank of Fayette, Washington and Greene Counties.

He is married to the former Peggy McCartney. The couple has five sons and two daughters and several grandchildren. In association with his son, Charles, Behm is the owner of funeral homes in Waynesburg and Jefferson.

Services Honoring Hostages Postponed

CARMICHAELS — A memorial service to honor the former U.S. hostages and the eight servicemen who died in an aborted rescue attempt has been postponed until Sunday, Feb. 8, at 2 p.m.

The service was canceled Sunday afternoon because of bad weather.

The mound at the town square has been decorated with eight crosses and flags for the servicemen who died in Iran and 52 flags, representing each of the Americans held hostage, surround the mound. All service organizations in the county are invited to attend the ceremony next Sunday with their post colors. All ex-servicemen are being asked to participate in uniform and businesses are urged to show the American flag and yellow ribbons.

The service is being sponsored by the Cumberland Post 400, American Legion, the Carmichaels Chamber of Commerce and the Carmichaels Borough Council.

$4,000 Allocation Is Available For Carmichaels Recreation Area

CARMICHAELS — Carmichaels Borough Council has been notified by the Greene County Parks and Recreation Department that $4,000 is available as an allocation for a recreation area at the rear of the old borough building site.

At a council meeting Monday, Recreation Chairman David Klimek said the grant calls for $5,000 of in-kind contributions and services from the community. The list of in-kind services will be submitted to the county department and in turn sent to the Department of Community Affairs for approval.

Local organizations will be asked for support with labor, materials or funds.

Council accepted the resignation of member Richard Ofsanko who has moved from the area. Council now has 30 days in which to fill the vacancy.

Six seats on council are up for election this year. Candidates must specify a two or four-year term and also file a code of ethics form.

Members whose terms expire this year are Robert Dobbins, Nelson Gideon, Christopher Watson, Theodore Blasinsky and David Klimek, with the sixth seat being the vacancy created by the resignation of Ofsanko.

Some of those whose terms are expiring were named to council by appointment, creating the unusual number of seats to be filled this year.

A schedule of payments was set up for the $3,500 owed to McMillen Engineering Co. for engineering services on the borough building. The first payment of $1,500 was approved at the meeting.

Discussion was held on insurance for auxiliary police while on duty for the protection of the volunteer officer and council. One volunteer has been recruited to date, and council voted to reactivate the volunteer auxiliary police force to augment the regular force. An auxiliary was functional at one time, but was disbanded several years ago.

The first revenue sharing fund check of $1,609 was received. The total for 12 months will be $6,438.

The new borough solicitor, Robert Berryman, attended his first meeting and was welcomed by council.

Mayor Paul Connor gave the police report for January, which included meter collections of $880 and meter fines of $226. He also reported that police issued 326 parking tickets and handled 10 complaints during the month.

HUD Approves Application

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Preliminary application for a $2.1 million federal grant for rehabilitation work to be done over a three-year period in Crucible has been approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Congressman Austin J. Murphy made the announcement Friday, complimenting the Cumberland Township supervisors for the work they did in obtaining the grant under the Comprehensive Community Development Block Grant program.

Approval of the "pre-ap" is considered tantamount to final approval, although the township will have to submit a full application. "Acceptance of the preliminary application virtually assures receipt of the grant," the congressman said.

The preliminary approval covers the $700,000 which would be awarded during the first year of the three-year improvement program, with the entire project involving housing rehabilitation and installation of sanitary sewers and storm sewers. The HUD grant would require no local matching monies.

"Many long hours go into the preparation of these grant applications and I'm happy to see them pay off," Murphy said, adding that he planned to meet Saturday with the Cumberland Township supervisors to discuss the program.

He also said that the HUD regional office in Pittsburgh was eligible for $11.2 million in awards, and that 56 applications had been filed by municipalities within the area served with the office.

Bruce R. Chambers of Fayette Engineers prepared the application on behalf of the Cumberland Township supervisors.

The three-year program calls for the rehabilitation of 97 houses in Crucible at an average cost of $10,000 per house, with low and moderate income home owners being eligible to receive the grant.

The township supervisors have explained that Crucible was selected for the project because the Small Communities program makes money available for sewer construction only in those towns which have no existing public sewer systems.

CLARKSVILLE — An elderly couple was left homeless and damage was estimated at $21,000 in a fire that destroyed a mobile home in Morgan Township, along Castille Run, Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Robison, both in their 80s, smelled smoke just before they fled the flaming mobile home at 8:50 a.m.

Fire officials said an electric light was being used to thaw frozen water pipes and could possibly have been responsible for the fire. Clarksville volunteer firemen were the first on the scene and later called for assistance by the Jefferson volunteer firemen.

The couple will be living with their son James Robison at a nearby farm. All their possessions were lost in the fire.

Mobile Home Destroyed By Fire

CARMICHAELS — A double-width mobile home in Carmichaels was destroyed by fire Friday morning with loss estimated by Carmichaels firemen at $30,000.

The fire broke out at 9:15 a.m. while Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Conard of 195½ Maple Street were having coffee in the kitchen of their dwelling.

"We had just gotten up and were sitting at the table when the smoke alarm went off," Conard said. He went to the back bedroom and opened the door, finding the room engulfed in flames.

"It (the fire) spread very rapidly," Fire Chief William Groves said, adding that Conard had his hair and hands singed. He did not require treatment and his wife, Georgia, escaped injury.

The couple lost everything in the blaze, which firemen battled until 1:15 p.m. They were called back at 2:30 p.m. when flames again broke out.

Groves said the fire broke out under the floor of the bedroom, possibly started by a heat tape on a water line.

The fire was the first of 1981 for the Carmichaels and Cumberland Township Volunteer Fire Co.

Carmichaels firemen battle fire which destroyed Conard mobile home Friday.

Home Health Program Opens Satellite Office

WAYNESBURG — Expansion of the Home Health Program at Greene County Memorial Hospital has resulted in the opening of a satellite office at the Lions Community Medical Center in Dry Tavern.

Kathleen Connolly, RN, who has been affiliated with the hospital program for more than a year, is operating the newly-opened office. The medical center is located on Route 188, east of Jefferson.

Mary Ziros, RN, coordinator of the Home Health Program, said 30 percent of its patients have been from the eastern part of the county since the program started in February 1979, making evident the need for representation in Dry Tavern.

"The eastern part of Greene County is a strong area for us," Mrs. Ziros said. "We feel that a registered nurse such as Mrs. Connolly will be an asset to the program. She can be available to take referrals, get acquainted with the people, establish a rapport by being in the area, and, most important, be readily available."

The Home Health Program was established to meet the needs of residents in Greene County and surrounding areas. It offers homebound patients a variety of services, including skilled nursing care, physical and speech therapy, distribution of medical supplies, dietary instruction, laboratory tests, and patient and family guidance and teaching. Homebound patients can receive a number of these services concurrently as part of the treatment they receive.

A person's eligibility for the program is based on four guidelines. The patient must be willing to accept the service, be essentially homebound, reside within the designated area (Greene County and up to five air miles outside the county line) and be under the care of a physician.

Eligible persons in the eastern part of the county can contact Mrs. Connolly at the new branch by calling 383-3990.

Assisting Mrs. Ziros, in addition to Mrs. Connolly, are Ruth Wade, RN, supervisor; Robin Martin, RN; Jeanine Duke, RN; and Norma Temple, RN.

Because of rapid expansion of the assistance freeing the nurse to handle skilled care, such as family teaching, dietary instruction and cardiac observation.

If the aide service is provided at the same time as skilled nursing service the hospital can be reimbursed through Medicare or Medicaid, Blue Cross/Blue Shield, and commercial insurance plans. The program doesn't provide maid service and home health personnel can't mail letters or clean house for a person participating in the program.

The program's coordinator will also be adding a respiratory therapist to the fast-growing program to go into homes and help patients with pulmonary problems.

"We're very satisfied with progress of the program," Mrs. Ziros said. "It has advanced to the point where we are visiting 100 or more patients in their homes each month. It gives us a good feeling to be able to provide such a service."

During the first year of the program, from February 1979 to February 1980, nurses from the Home Health Program made 1,094 visits and admitted 187 persons to the program.

Veteran Dairy Farmer Believes More Dairies Destined To Fail

By JIM MOORE
Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — Many familiar names in the dairy products department of your favorite grocery store are no longer seen. Names such as Country Belle, Otto, Harmony, Menzie, Keystone and Beverly Farms have long ago disappeared in bankruptcy court.

They are just six of 17 western Pennsylvania dairies which have gone out of business in the past eight years.

John Pevarnik, a veteran dairy farmer from Carmichaels, is of the opinion the trend will continue over the next few years. "This is the worst I have seen since 1954," Pevarnik said recently.

Few people realize the milk-producing business is the second largest industry in Pennsylvania, second only to steel. Fewer still realize milk producers are working for a 1.5 percent profit — or less. Because of the ever-increasing costs of feed, machines and supplies, the profit margin may drop so low milk producers will have to quit.

Area milk processors have not received an increase since Sept. 1, 1978. During that 28-month period, however, the cost to the consumer has gone up 30 cents on the gallon. The cost was passed on to the dairy farmer.

A farmer with a 100-cow herd is currently paying nearly $587 daily for feed alone, Pevarnik put it very simply when he said, "What we buy doesn't balance with what we sell."

The 58-year-old farmer, who lost his right arm on the final day of fighting on Saipan in 1944, blames union labor for the plight of the dairy farmer. "Management no longer has a say in the matter," he said. Figures released by the Greater Pittsburgh Dairy Industry Association tend to back up Pevarnik's words.

Wholesale route salesmen are making $374 weekly, retail route salesmen are making $344 and plant laborers are taking home a weekly paycheck of $314.

"If farmers were paid only the minimum wage, people couldn't afford to eat," Pevarnik said. "I begin at 6 a.m. and work most nights until 9 p.m. every day of the week," he added.

Many may ask why the farmer doesn't just quit? Pevarnik quickly pointed out the world at any given time has a 29-day supply of food. "Just a few years ago the world had a 78- to 79-day supply," he said.

The future looks bleak according to the veteran farmer, who along with his brother Tom, operates the 350-acre farm just west of Carmichaels along Route 21.

"There is no incentive today. People have had it too good for too long," he said.

"No young man will come into the business today. The money he would need for a herd, machines, buildings and supplies would be much better in the bank drawing interest," the former coal miner from Fayette County said.

The Pevarnik brothers have 80 head of Holsteins producing about 300 gallons of milk each day. At one time they had as many as 95 head but replacement costs and operating expenses are just too high these days.

They continue to raise corn and hay on their farm but have ceased planting sweet corn which was popular with hundreds of motorists using Route 21.

"We will spend about $15,000 just for spring planting," Pevarnik said.

The industry is quick to point out that dairy products supply more than 25 percent of the family's food needs, yet their cost is only 12.3 percent of the family's food budget.

Eligible Recipients Must Apply For Energy Assistance Program

WAYNESBURG — Public Welfare Secretary Helen B. O'Bannon has announced two more batches of energy assistance checks have been mailed, bringing the amount that has been dispersed so far to $18 million on behalf of 75,226 eligible households under the 1980-81 Energy Assistance Program.

O'Bannon again reminds all low-income Greene County residents they should take advantage of this federally funded program by applying for energy assistance benefits at county assistance offices.

She noted that, unlike last year, the federal government is not automatically sending a supplemental energy payment to aged, blind and disabled persons who are recipients of the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program.

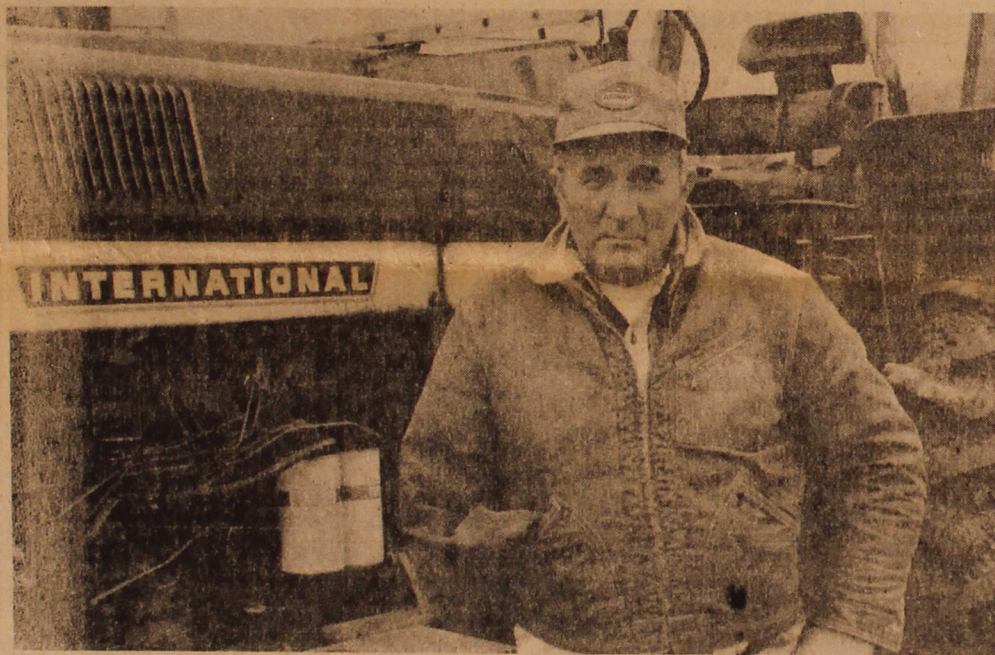

"The only way you can receive energy benefits is to apply at a county assistance office or at one of our outreach centers," O'Bannon said. "In cases where people are homebound, we can arrange to send a worker to the home to take applications."

O'Bannon also reminded renters they may be eligible for benefits. "Persons who rent apartments and homes and have heating costs included in the rent can receive energy payments, but they must come in and apply. And remember, you do not have to be currently on welfare to be eligible for benefits," the secretary said.

In Greene County, the income limits for the program are as follows:

One person in house, $4,738 income limit; two persons, $7,330; three persons, $10,060; four persons, $12,420; five persons, $14,660 and six persons, $17,140 and for each additional person, $2,480.

County Extension Agent Reviews Penn State Extension Program

WAYNESBURG — Greene County extension agent William Brown reviewed the Penn State extension program in the county at the Waynesburg Rotary Club meeting Monday.

Brown, who holds a master's degree from Pennsylvania State University, has been county extension agent since 1979, when he succeeded John Gopen upon his retirement. He had previously spent 15 years with the extension service in Washington County.

He first showed a series of slides which depicted the scope of agricultural and agriculturally-related activities at Penn State, dating back to 1855. Titled "A Better Life," the slide series cited education, research and extension as key points of the work at the college level.

A total of 18 subjects, ranging from food to forests, are included in the program, which is offered at the main campus and at 21 other campuses across the state. Six research stations are also operated.

The slide series pointed that each of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania has an "extension team." Members of the Greene County staff, in addition to Brown, are extension agent Roger Smith, who handles the horticulture programs and 4-H in addition to general extension work, and home economist Jean Elicker, who is active in a wide spectrum of programs relating to the home and family in rural and urban settings.

Some of the specific research projects now underway at PSU and elsewhere include research on producing leaner hogs for increased mean production; improvements in deboning of poultry to provide an increase in beef-poultry mixtures; and breeding research to seek higher quality beef.

The agriculturists are also "deeply interested" in the growth of small mobile markets, known as "tail-gate markets," and hope to support their growth in the future.

Brown pointed out that dairy farming in Pennsylvania is second only to the steel industry in total income, and spoke of other ways in which agriculture is vital to the economy of the state.

On the "home front," he said, extension is involved in pregnancy education, farm-family health concerns, one-parent farm problems and many others.

Citing 1978 statistics on Greene County, the latest available, the county agent said that the county had a total of 821 farms which annually sold crops valued at $1,000. This was an increase of 72 farms over a count taken in

At the $2,500 gross level, the county had 469 farms, an increase of 148 over 1974. Brown noted that the average size of farms in the county has tended to decrease over the years.

He made note of the fact that 68 farms produced more than $20,000 in crops annually, and that most farming in the county is done on a part-time basis. He also told the Rotarians that Greene County still has the largest sheep population in the state, with 13,875 head in a recent count. It also had 8,165 beef animals (second in the state).

Brown concluded his program by telling the Rotarians he is excited about the future of agriculture in the county.

"We are just tapping the surface of a whole new era of farming techniques and methods," he said, pointing out that computers are becoming increasingly important in agriculture.

"Computers can and will unlock the doors to disease control, soil improvements and so on, just to give you one example of the great future ahead of us."

W. L. Stewart is claiming damages to his property as the result of sewer construction. An independent appraiser hired by the sewer authority estimated damages of between $1,350 and $1,550. However, an appraiser hired by Stewart set damages at $14,400.

The authority approved final payment of $3,100 to Fayette Engineering Company for preparing the operating manual for the new sewage treatment plant.

In other action, the authority recommended arbitration in a case involving a damage claim by a Morrisville auto dealer.

Field Fire Fought
It hasn't been that long since the snow has melted, but apparently the ground is already dry enough for a field fire.

Waynesburg firemen were called out Friday afternoon to the Rodney Rober property off Route 218 to a field fire. It took firemen almost an hour to fight the fire, which burned approximately eight acres.

Couple Has 20 Days To File Complaint On 'Misplaced' Case

WAYNESBURG — Judge Glenn Toothman Monday ruled a Canonsburg couple must file a formal complaint within 20 days in a "lost case which got suddenly flushed out of the woodwork and onto the procedural conveyor belt toward trial."

Over five years ago, the couple filed suit in trespass against Waynesburg Borough, local PennDOT officials and the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation after Mrs. Lucille Westlake allegedly fell along the street near the Nazarene Church on East Greene Street and fractured her ankle.

The state attorney general's office filed preliminary objections contesting the jurisdiction of the local court.

Tree Package Is Available

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Conservation District is offering a ten-tree package of Colorado Blue Spruce and Scotch Pine to local residents for only $6 per package.

The trees are four-year transplants and will probably average 10-16 inches in height when delivered at the Greene County Fairgrounds on Friday and Saturday, April 3-4, for distribution.

The packages, which will include five Scotch Pines and five Colorado Blue Spruce trees, are suggested for small lot owners or persons wishing to add a few trees to their farm or home landscape. They also make excellent gifts for friends or relatives according to the district office.

A limited number of packages are available from the Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry and orders will be taken until the allotment is gone or until March 20, whichever comes first. Trees must be paid for when they are picked up at the fairgrounds.

Residents can order by mail by contacting the Greene County Conservation District, 60 West High Street, Waynesburg 15370, or by calling the local office at 627-5821.

Melanie Christopher And Gregory P. Humble Wed

The Church of the Nazarene in Waynesburg was the setting for the wedding of Melanie Jean Christopher and Gregory Paul Humble. The double ring ceremony was performed at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, January 17, 1981, by the Rev. Deane Hardy. Audrey Whipkey was the organist. Soloists were Dan Humble, brother of the bridegroom and Natalie Greenlee, both of Waynesburg.

MRS. GREGORY HUMBLE

The bride is the daughter of Norma J. Humble of Waynesburg R.D.1 and the late Kermit R. Christopher II. The bridegroom is the son of John H. Humble Jr. of Waynesburg R.D.1 and the late Bertha Mae Humble.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and escorted to the altar by her brother, David K. Christopher of Miami, Fla. She wore a full-length gown of peau-de-soie satin with an empire bodice covered with Galloon Venice lace and featuring a full skirt. Her fingertip veil of illusion was trimmed with tea-dyed lace and was held by a band of lace and seed pearls. The gown and veil were designed and made by the bride's sister, Karen Toothman.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Harry Toothman, as matron of honor and bridesmaids Diana Christopher, sister of the bride; Pamela Humble, sister of the bridegroom; and Melonie Kesner, all of Waynesburg, and Karen Pompura of Mt. Director Explains Program WAYNESBURG — William Winters, director of the Central Playground, discussed both the achievements and problems of the recreational facility during a meeting of the Waynesburg Rotary Club Monday night.

Winters, a native of Long Island and a member of the Waynesburg Central High School social science department since 1977, is in his third year as playground director. He is a 1972 graduate of Waynesburg College.

In his comments, Winters gave high praise to the community-at-large for support of the program, both in terms of financial assistance and donation of supplies and equipment. "The merchants and others in the area have always responded to our requests for help," Winters told the Rotarians, "and the money and equipment have been put to good use."

In 1980, Winters noted, the playground showed an average daily attendance of 125 children. "Over a normal span of 10 weeks in a typical summer," he pointed out, "that level of attendance comes to more than 6,000 boys and girls using our facilities and services," he said.

Winters explained the financial position of the borough's recreation board, which manages the playground. "Costs have been rising steadily over the past few years," he said. "With a staff of no less than five people, all of them creative and talented working with children, over an entire summer, our costs are well into $6,000 or more. This is now becoming a money problem which needs to be resolved if we are to maintain a 10-week program."

Winters explained the money crunch came about, to a degree, "as a result of the extensive renovation of the playground in the middle 70s. Many agencies and people concluded that state funds were available for salaries and supplies. This is not the case; we rely totally on community support for our money requirements."

Winters emphasized that "there will be a program this summer at the playground beginning about a week after the close of school. However, we need all the help available to use from both private and public sources."

He touched on some possibilities for future growth, especially in winter activities. He cited ice skating as a "typical winter outdoor activity which we could easily introduce here if funds ever become available."

Winters was introduced by Richard Cowan, club president.

Students Feed The Birds

JEFFERSON — The first phase of a science project on wildlife for first grade students in the Jefferson Morgan School District culminated Friday with the placing of egg carton bird feeders around the school area and in the community.

First grade students of Bonnie Mylan, Peggy Barger and William Phillips made the feeders by recycling egg cartons. Parents donated the bird seed and Friday afternoon the students placed the feeders in trees and bushes around the school and community.

The project will continue throughout the winter with the students trying to chart the kind and number of birds using the feeders.

The bird feeder project is one phase of a federally funded project called KARE. Other phases of KARE are collecting soil samples, water samples, the study of noise pollution and control, wildlife preservation, littering, recycling, environmental awareness and other areas dealing with the outdoors.

College Faculty Member's Play Scheduled For Production

WAYNESBURG — A play written by Alonso Alegria, a head of the drama department at Waynesburg College, will be previewed in Washington, D.C. on Tuesday, Feb. 3, and then will be presented from Feb. 9 through March 15.

Titled "Crossing Niagara," the play tells the story of a tightrope walker who crossed Niagara Falls. It is based on a mid-nineteenth century historical figure.

Alegria explained it is a two-act play about how two people meet and the relationship that develops between them. It climaxes when the tightrope walker, Blondin, triumphantly crosses Niagara Falls with his friend, Carlo, on his back.

Alegria wrote the play in 1968 while free-lancing as a theater director in Lima, Peru. Alegria, who served as the director of the National Theater in Lima from 1971 to 1979, came to the United States in 1979. He taught at the Florida International University before moving to Waynesburg.

Another of Alegria's plays is scheduled for production soon in Germany. He recently completed a contemporary, five character play which is set in an ancient Inca ruin.

"Crossing Niagara" will open at the Folger Theater in Washington, D.C.

Alegria said if the play is successful, chances are it will be taken to New York. Waynesburg College alumni in the greater Washington, D.C. area are planning a theater night and reception for March 7. More details are available through the alumni office at the college.

Subdivision Ordinance Enforcement Signalled

Greene County has had a subdivision ordinance for more than 10 years and just recently updated it by adopting a package of land development regulations.

At the time the new ordinances were adopted, the county commissioners made it clear they were relying on the county planning commission to administer and enforce them.

A case is currently in litigation which marks the first time the criminal section of the subdivision has been invoked. It involves a mobile home at Rices Landing which was placed on a lot which did not meet size requirements.

The owners were notified of this fact in advance, but still moved the trailer onto the property after they received a sewerage permit from the DER. And they have kept it there despite action taken by the planning commission to prosecute under the section of the ordinance which provides for possible fine and/or imprisonment.

The planning commission itself has held two hearings in the case, and it is now in the county court.

Regardless of the outcome of this specific case, it is important because it signals the determination of the planning commission to prosecute when it feels circumstances warrant such action.

Between The Bookends

Marcia McKenna Biddle

Somebody asked me how big our puppy is now. Well, I said, he's no bigger than, say, a small cow. His name is Alfred. And Alfred unfortunately has learned his behavior from his parents.

His parents are both sheep dogs, of the kind you see on TV commercials with the long beautiful hair and gentle manners. Our dogs, on the other hand, look and act like they should be playing for the Oakland Raiders. They tackle hard, and they don't seem to care which unsuspecting friend they flatten. To them all people are friends, and putting them on the ground and walking on them is considered a sign of affection. It is considered that by the dogs, of course, rarely by the people.

And as for combed hair, we don't discuss the subject. We started out brushing the dogs faithfully, and they loved it. That is, they loved the attention. They love attention so much that they will even sit still when we shear them with the sheep shears, which is what we ended up doing after admitting failure.

The causes of this failure are many. The dogs you see on TV don't look like they go to the creek to take a bath after they have been brushed. The TV dogs don't then go rolling around a barn yard while soaking wet. They don't seem to care that they'll never be TV stars, not with their coats collecting what they do at the barn.

Lately, their favorite playmates seem to be skunks, and the results of that type of fun linger so long in those massive coats of hair that we automatically begin to hold our noses every time they come near us. With all those things sticking or crawling in, or infesting their coats, it is not hard to see how everybody lost interest in brushing them. An industrial vacuum cleaner and a car wash have been suggested for cleaning them up, but we're afraid they'd wreck the car wash.

And, speaking of wrecks, one of the bad habits Alfred has picked up from his father is that of rushing into the house every time the door opens. They both thunder over to the cat's dish, chomp up everything in it and chew on the dish for a while. Alfred's daddy is then satisfied to go outside again, but Alfred had not yet learned to do that willingly. When I explain that it is now time to go out, he sits down. He was only a month old when it became impossible for me to lift him. Now that he is older, I can't move him at all. I have as much luck with that as if I were trying to push Joe Greene or Matt Millen out of my way.

The other night, Alfred got into the house again. I was away, and he was accidentally left inside. When I came home, assorted family members greeted me with, "YOU have a mess in the sun porch." Somehow, a mess is always "mine."

In this case, one look at the sun porch convinced me that the armies of the People's Republic of China had marched through it. Little Alfred had, in succession, pulled down the curtains from all six windows. He had bent the curtain rods so they can never be used again, torn the rings off the curtains, chewed them a little, and carried them around a lot. He then attacked the kitchen, knocked a bowl of tapioca off the table, broke the bowl and ate the pudding.

He ate a loaf of bread, then tore open a bag of potatoes and started on them. Back in the sun porch, he found the cat litter box, ripped it apart, and redistributed it around the house. The cats expressed their disapproval in the upstairs hall. I went into shock, and Alfred indicated that he was still hungry.

Federal Grant For Ryerson Station Park

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Representative Austin J. Murphy has announced a federal grant of $15,000 has been awarded for handicapped standards improvement at Ryerson Station State Park in Greene County.

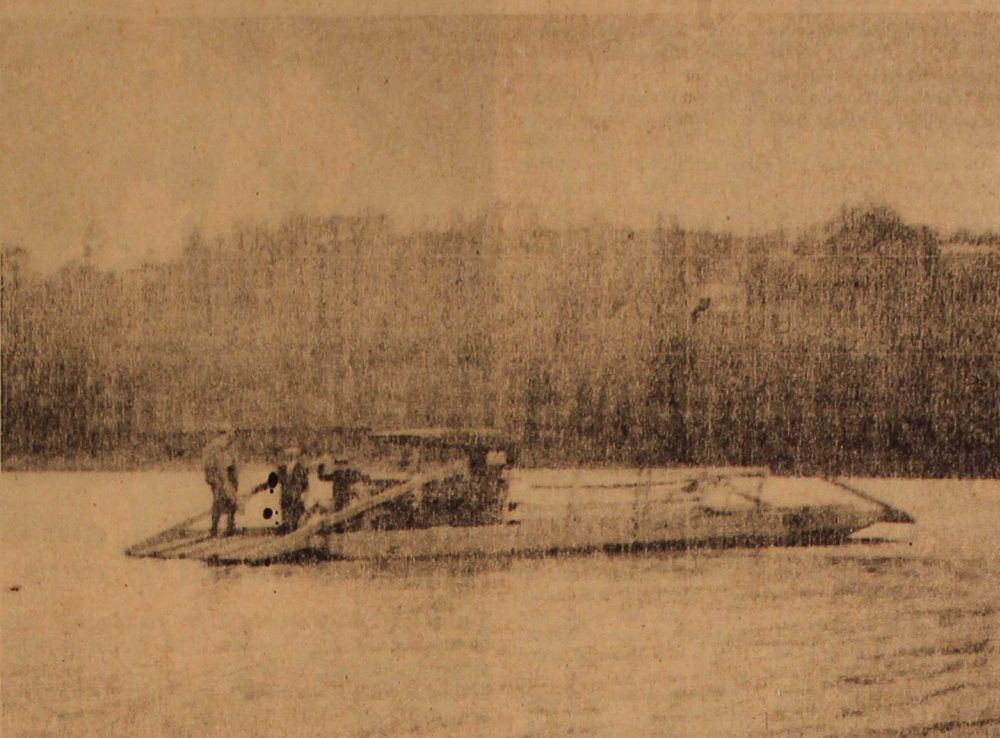

The grant was awarded by the Land and Water Conservation Fund of the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service under the U.S. Department of Interior.

The project at Ryerson Station State Park includes renovation of walkways, parking spaces, campsites, installation of drinking fountains and picnic tables and trail construction for accessibility and use by handicapped individuals.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund helps state and local governments purchase needed lands and develop facilities for outdoor recreation. The project sponsor matches the federal grant with funds from state and local sources.

Congressman Murphy stated that revenues to the fund are generated by the sale of federal real property, federal motorboat fuel taxes and appropriations from Continental Shelf mineral receipts.

Faces From The Past—Do You Recognize Them

Long before the Masontown Bridge spanned the Monongahela River, connecting Greene with Fayette County, a ferry of the type shown above was hauling fancy cars like Gordon Wood's classy Cadillac along with its owner and two friends, Frank and Edward Lippencott, all of Waynesburg. Around The Town

By The Staff

The groundhog must have been wearing magnifying glasses when he saw his shadow this year. By the time he got back into his hole the temperature dropped right down to zero and hasn't been much higher since.

Glad the hear that although they are selling their jewelry store to a Pittsburgh firm, Jim and Dorothy Hennen will still be around town with time to travel and have more time for genealogical and historical research on the early families and settlements of Greene County. They were both among the first members of the Warrior Trail Association and played an active role in building the first shelters along that trail.

Funeral services were held Thursday morning in Wilkinsburg for Henry Tear, 78, a native of England and former employee of J & L Steel Corp. He was the father of Mrs. Darrell (Dodo) Lewis of Pittsburgh, whose husband was the former football coach at Waynesburg College while practicing dentistry in town.

The mobile home of an elderly couple, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Robinson, in the Castile Hollow section near Clarksville, was burned when an electric light exploded as they were attempting to thaw a frozen water pipe last Tuesday morning. They escaped injury and the loss was $21,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anderson of Hillcrest Ave., Waynesburg, have returned home from an extended three-week southern trip following their attendance at the annual meeting of the American Cancer Society in Atlanta, Ga. Jan. 7-9. Mr. Anderson is a past president of the Pennsylvania Cancer Society and has served on national committees for several years. Following the convention they visited several former Waynesburg residents in Florida, including Mr. and Mrs. William Ross of Hudson; Harold "Bud" Moore in St. Petersburg. Later they stopped at the winter home in Sarasota of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Baker of Waynesburg and had dinner with a group that included former Greene Countyans Virginia Tustin Philpot, Marshall and Alfretha Lemley and Jim and Ruth Davis. Enroute home they also called on Lois Carter Smith, formerly of Nineveh and now living at Daytona Beach. They also visited the U.S. Space Center where the nation's first space shuttle, the Columbia, is slated for liftoff on March 17.

The Andersons, incidentally, arrived home just in time to be chilled by the second sub-zero weather of the winter which hit town last weekend and is scheduled to run through the end of the week by the Pittsburgh television seers.

Robert and Richard Doody of Waynesburg attended funeral services for William Sharp in Phillipsburg, N.J. this week. The deceased was a brother-in-law of their father, Joseph Doody, who is spending the winter in California. Mr. Sharp was a supervisor of dining facilities for a large eastern railroad line prior to his retirement several years ago.

Don't let the cold and snow depress you. Arden Turner, a retired Waynesburg life insurance agent, says that there's no use to wait on that traditional "first" robin to herald the coming of spring because he sighted a flock of about 70 of them near his home on Maiden Street just when the snow was falling its hardest.

Back in the spring of 1932, when the late Cecil Tennant was in the graduating class at the Margaret Bell Miller High School in Waynesburg, there were no "tailor made" scholarship plans awaiting any of the graduates wanting to go on to college.

The terrible depression which had hit the nation after the 1929 collapse of the Wall Street stock exchange in New York City was roaring into its awesome devastation and even college graduates were selling apples instead of securities.

Politics Stirring In County

those for magistrate, require just 10 signatures. Magistrates and school directors can cross file to run as candidates in both the Democratic and Republican primary. All others must run as a candidate of the party with which they are registered.

In the Carmichaels Area district, the terms of Joseph Baker and Irma Jean Thomas expire this year, while those of the other seven members expire in 1983.

In the Central Greene District, terms expiring in 1981 are those of Lila Ayersman, representative from Franklin and Washington Townships; Joanne Brookover, representative from Perry, Wayne and Whiteley Townships, and Carolyn McClure, representative from Waynesburg Borough. The terms of the other six members run through 1983.

The terms of three members are also expiring in the Jefferson-Morgan District, where school board members are chosen on an at-large basis. They are Charles Murray, Charles Ferencak and Robert McCarty. Terms of the other six members run through 1983.

The same situation is true in the Southeastern Greene School District, where the terms of Adam Novak, Gary Yoskovich and Robert Headlee expire this year.

In the West Greene District, terms expiring in 1981 are those of Robert Andrew, who represents Center and Morris Townships, and Roger Stalnaker, who represents Aleppo, Freeport, Gilmore and Springhill Townships. The terms of seven members will conclude in 1983.

In each of the county's 20 townships one member of the board of supervisors and one member of the board of auditors will be elected, along with the township tax collector and assessor.

There are three exceptions. In Wayne Township, all three supervisor posts are to be filled because the three incumbents — George M. Adams, John G. Jenkins and Robert Simpson — are in by appointment which ran only until the next municipal election. As a result, one supervisor will be elected to a six-year term, one to a four-year term and one to a two-year term.

In Greene Township, where there was also an appointment, one supervisor will be elected to a six-year term and one to a two-year term. Incumbents whose terms are expiring are Gail Maser and Lloyd Henderson.

An appointment in Gilmore Township will also result in two supervisors being elected there, one for a six year term and one for a two-year term. Terms expiring are those of Glenn A. Morris and James L. Shough.

In the other 17 townships, supervisors whose terms are expiring: Aleppo, Rex McCracken; Center, Floyd W. Peffitt, Cumberland, Thomas Skiles; Dunkard, Thomas Orban; Franklin, T. Reed Kiger; Freeport, Roger Bragg; Gray, Paul E. Hennen; Jackson, John Pierson; Jefferson, Richard Faddis; Monongahela, Calvin G. Gallatin; Morgan, Edward Burnfield; Morris, Carl W. Hildreth; Perry, L. Carl Phillips; Richhill, Harold F. Finnegan; Springhill, Phillip G. Williams; Washington, M. Wayne Miller; Whiteley, Robert H. Mooney.

Each of the county's six boroughs is to elect a mayor and varying numbers of council members, as well as an auditor (except in Waynesburg).

In Carmichaels, six council members will be elected, four to four-year terms and two to two-year terms. Members whose terms are expiring are Robert Dobbins, Nelson Gideon, Chris Watson, David Klimek and Ted Blasinsky, and there is currently a vacancy on the board. The term of Mayor Paul Connor is also running out.

In Clarksville, the terms of Mayor Ann Rota and council members Bernard M. Ciota, Herman A. Ropele Jr., Albert Kingan and Betty Riecks are expiring this year.

In Greensboro, terms expiring are those of Mayor Harry Drew and council members Louie R. Brown, Uarda Ruffie, John Lako and Keith Drew.

Jefferson Borough councilmen whose terms expire in 1981 are George Trbovich, Robert Stilwell, Hazel Bedosky and Edward Tarr. A mayor is also scheduled to be elected. At the present time there is no mayor, with Council President Robert Lutes holding the office in an acting capacity.

Terms expiring in Rices Landing are those of Mayor John Porter and council members Arnold O'Daniel, Ronald L. Teegarden, Barry Elliott and Acie V. Underwood.

In Waynesburg, the terms of Mayor Jack Cassidy and council members Frank VanCleve, Thomas Brown, David Godisart, Glenn Richards and Beverly Krill are expiring. One council member will be elected from Ward I and two each from Ward II and Ward III.

Under The Dome

Bob Eichenlaub

It would be safe to guess that environmentalists were not among the groups which provided Ronald Reagan with solid support in his successful campaign for the presidency. It therefore must have come as a pleasant surprise to them when word got out this week that the Reagan administration, as part of its cost-cutting efforts, wants to halt in midstream most of the big synthetic-fuel plants for which a large part of the funding would have come from the Department of Energy.

According to the Wall Street Journal, thrust of the new policy is to trim the number of commercial scale projects the government backs, eliminating or restructuring federal financing for at least a half dozen major demonstration projects approved by the Carter administration. He wants to get the Energy Department out of the synthetic fuels business and transfer some of its responsibilities to the quasi-governmental U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp.

Locally, the major impact of such a move would center on the $1.4 billion coal liquefaction plant being planned along the Monongahela River in West Virginia, just south of the Greene County line. It is sponsored by Gulf Oil Corp. in conjunction with the governments of Japan and West Germany. According to the Journal article, this project is among those which the administration seems determined to eliminate. "The operating assumption is that most, if not all, of the big projects okayed by the Democrats will be eliminated," a Republican Senate staff member was quoted as saying. "After that, we'll see how we can work within the law to keep the (synfuels) effort going."

The SRC-II plant in West Virginia had been targeted for construction starting this year and would employ as many as 3,300 persons during the peak construction period. The Monongahela Alliance for Community Protection, one of the most outspoken groups opposing it, had the support of Greene County Association for Rural Conservation, whose primary battleground was the Wheeling Creek Watershed dams. They feel the plant will both pollute and strain the water resources of the Monongahela River, and will create mammoth problems in terms of health, environmental and social impact.

Not so clearly defined is the effect of the new administration's thrust in the synfuels area on the grants recently received for a coal gasification plant in the West Virginia panhandle, which would have utilized Greene County coal, and the program of the Greene County Coal Owner's Association to study the economic feasibility of bleeding methane gas from coal seams as a source of fuel.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

Little by little and season by season, he continued to turn a few dollars to help other youths such as himself gain the physical and emotional values of competitive sports. He was to gain the esteem of his elders and the gratitude of his contemporaries as his gift in training extended his ideals on a much broader dimension in his later life.

When the long depression finally started to end, Tennant reluctantly left Greene County and joined many others who crossed the Allegheny Mountains to Baltimore. There he became associated with the Martin Marietta Corp. as a security chief and spent most of the last years of his life in that work. He also most of his spare time in coaching Little League and American Legion baseball teams and also girls softball teams.

He was also a scout for the Baltimore Orioles American League baseball team, and was sports information director and facilities coordinator for the physical education department as well as a baseball coach at Essex Community College in Maryland.

A Maryland newspaper, commenting on Tennant's accomplishments said recently, "No doubt Cecil was a good coach and will be remembered as such. But he will also be remembered for his sincere desire to challenge youth to make the most of their lives."

Following Tennant's death last March (1980) the Cecil B. Tennant Scholarship Fund was established at St. Andrew's Lutheran Church at Bowleys Quarters, Md. in the suburban area of Baltimore. It was established by his two daughters, Mrs. Nancy D. Edwards of Essex and Miss Helen V. Tennant of Parkville, Md. to benefit students in college or graduate school wishing to enhance their education.

A scholarship, of course, is an intangible thing, but it is something which Cecil would appreciate far more than a marble statue one hundred feet high. Because, as he would be the first to say, "it will do more good for a kid."

Along with the few part-time jobs he was able to find to help with things at home, his greatest asset was his interest in sports and, gradually, with the help of a few companions, he was promoting independent basketball tournaments over in the then still "new armory" on North Washington Street.

With a few close friends, Cecil worked day and night in getting tournament team sponsors. He was aided from time to time by townspeople interested in youth, including the late James Meighen, then clerk of courts and later county youth probation officer. Also, the late Irwin Tilton, operator of the town's busiest service station across the street from the armory; the late Jim Sutton, who printed the tourney programs and advertisements and the late Ralphord Furman, then chairman of the armory board.

During the summer months, Cecil was a tireless worker in the last days of sandlot baseball before it was finally replaced by the contemporary softball version of the sport.

It was a hard way to turn a dollar in those days and it was a job that made such enormous demands on even a youthful person as Cecil that he got the nickname of "Sleepy" because of its exhausting drain on his energy and not as a tagline for indolence as it is often used in small towns.

Hillers Stun Waynesburg

By JOE TUSCANO
Sports Writer

The inscription on the tombstone was to have read: "To The Trinity Wrestling Team, May It Rest In Peace."

But just when the Trinity High School faithful had buried the team, the Hillers rose from the dead and pulled a stunning 34-24 upset victory over Waynesburg High School in an exhibition match at the Hillers' gymnasium Friday night.

This has been an untypical season on the hill. Just three nights earlier the Hillers were beaten by Peters Township, a first, and the Hillers were riding with a 3-7 record.

Trinity's comeback night was also sprinkled with a bit of revenge for Waynesburg's win last season. That loss was one of the few black marks on the Hillers, who finished second in the state at the PIAA tournament.

When a team is down, especially with Trinity's tradition, people start to point fingers. Trinity coach John Abajace said, "This win will stop that finger pointing and hopefully put us back where we were. We were down but I hope this win is a turning point."

The turning point of the match came with the first four Trinity wins. After a forfeit win by Jim Cappelli in the 98-pound weight class, freshman Mike King (105) pulled a spectacular 11-7 upset over defending WPIAL champion Marty Stewart. Chris Wilson (112) won by default over John Throckmorton and Mark Veltri (119) pinned Todd Shaffer.

Stewart, who was wrestling at 105 because he couldn't get down to the 98-pound limit, fell behind 5-3 after one period. King held his two-point lead throughout the second period and registered two takedowns in the final period for the victory.

"The win says a lot about Mike," Abajace said. "The win started a little fire in him. It's the fire I've been trying to get under him all year. I am really proud of him."

Wilson was given the default when Throckmorton, who was suffering from the flu, became too ill to continue. Veltri, wrestling in his first varsity match, pinned Shaffer with 1:37 gone in the bout.

"Veltri is a pretty solid wrestler," Abajace said. "He's one of our best conditioned kids on the team. He's the type of kid who gives 100 percent, but if someone had asked me before the match if I thought he would pin the guy, I would have told him it would be a surprise."

"This isn't the best team we've fielded this year, but it was the best match we wrestled this season. When you are constantly getting beat, it's hard to say work will pay off. This was a big win for us. I've been praying and somebody heard me tonight," Abajace added.

Behind 21-0 in the 126-pound weight class, the two-time WPIAL Class AA team champions began their comeback. Ed Henderson pinned Randy Vankirk 49 seconds into the first period; John Kuntz (138) won a 14-12 decision; Kevin Durkin (145) dished out Jeff Lucatoro and defending WPIAL champion Doug Haines (155) pinned Bob Grudi to close the gap to 24-18.

Rick Lobozzo (132) had a 7-4 decision over Todd Eddy for the only Trinity win in that span.

The actual turning point of the match came at 167 pounds where Waynesburg's Bill Skelton slammed Scott Staso to the mat injuring his shoulder. When Staso was unable to continue, referee John Sarnese disqualified Skelton and awarded Trinity six points for a 30-18 lead.

"There is no doubt it was a slam," Abajace said. "I told (Waynesburg head coach) Joe Ayersman I would have wrestled him if Staso could go. He (Ayersman) told me we probably would have won anyway."

Waynesburg's Ernie Throckmorton (185) pinned David Lane seven seconds into the second period to cut the Hiller lead to 30-24 before Hiller heavyweight Kevin Holley won a 13-5 major decision over Mark Moore securing the win.

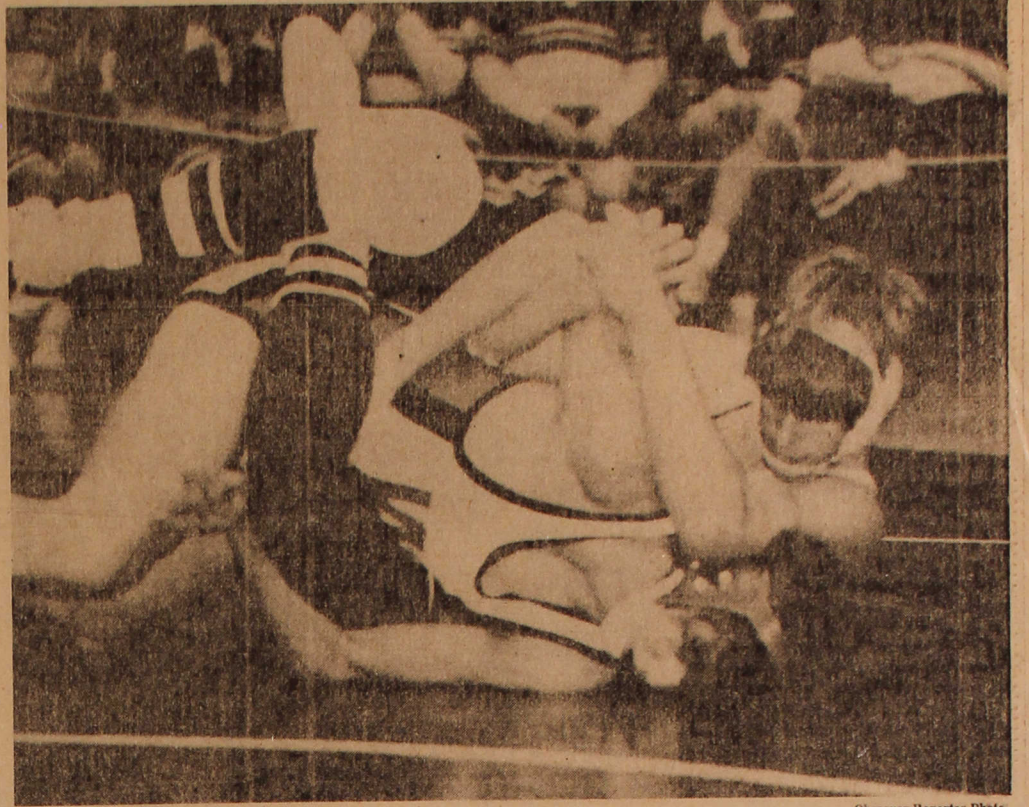

"We just got outwrestled," said Ayersman, who saw his team's record drop to 10-2 on the season. "Trinity has a good team and we are disappointed with the loss. We just weren't ready. This loss will cause us to work harder."

Ayersman felt the turning point of the match came in the lightweights, not Skelton's disqualification.

"When you wrestle out there, you are always trying to pin the guy," he said. "Sometimes you can get too aggressive, but it was a judgement call."

"Stewart and Throckmorton not getting down to the next weight class hurt us. Also, you can't give points away like we did. We gave up 21 points and played catch-up. We did come back, though. I have to give the team credit for that."

"Now, I hope we can get healed up and get back on the right track," Ayersman added.

Waynesburg Drops Fourth

GROVE CITY — Waynesburg College's basketball team, continuing to struggle after winning 12 of its first 13 games, saw its record drop to 13-4 with a 60-51 loss to Grove City Saturday night.

The defeat was the third in a row for Waynesburg, which had lost to Point Park last Monday.

The Wolverines went into a four-corner offense after taking a five-point lead in the second half and the Yellow Jackets were never able to catch up.

Grove City started strongly with a 13-4 lead in the first eight minutes before Waynesburg rallied for a 36-32 edge at halftime.

"Grove City just played a better game than we did," said Yellow Jackets head coach Rudy Marisa. "They were very well prepared for us. They executed better than we did and they showed more patience. I don't like to make excuses for our play. I would much rather credit Grove City with a good performance."

The Wolverines, who have a 9-7 record, enjoyed a 27-20 margin in field goals and were six for eight at the free throw line, while Waynesburg was 11 for 17.

Dave Watson's 16 points led the winners with Mike Smith adding 13 and Jim Tilton 11. Grove City also had a 26-18 rebounding advantage.

Mike Taylor with 19 on nine baskets and one free throw and Tim Tyler with 14 were the only Waynesburg players in double figures. The two accounted for all but five of their team's baskets.

The Yellow Jackets will play a home game tonight with Davis & Elkins.

asked about the Waynesburg College's basketball players was "How far can the Jackets go?"

It was a legitimate question.

But when Waynesburg lost three of four games, the latest coming Saturday at Grove City, the question most asked was "What's wrong with the Jackets?"

It is a legitimate question.

Waynesburg provided answers both on the court and in the locker room to the latest question here Monday night. First, the Jackets defeated Davis & Elkins 59-54 in a hard-fought contest, then head coach Rudy Marisa handled the expected and unexpected in a post-game interview.

"Are we stale? The answer is a big, fat yes," Marisa said trying to mend a pair of glasses he broke during the game. "It's hard for people to understand that Willie Stargell gets the blabs, Terry Bradshaw gets the blabs, teams get the blabs. Fans expect victories and nothing short and when we don't win they expect something physical is wrong with the team."

"I'm not worried about the team, believe it or not I love everyone of those guys. But I am a little worried that we haven't been able to find that spark recently. We're striving for a form of excellence and we want to feel that we have something special going this year. We want to feel that momentum building but we're just not feeling it. We're sort of just pecking away."

The Jackets' victory over Davis & Elkins, which raises their record to 14-4 overall, wasn't a pretty one. The visiting Senators led 19-18 in a first half that could be best described as uneventful.

But the first half was pleasing to Davis & Elkins head coach Joe Super. He was upset that his team couldn't capitalize on the advantage.

"I knew we had disrupted Waynesburg's game plan and it felt good," Super said. "I told the guys at halftime that we were playing some good defense, now we had to clean up our offense. I really think the way to beat Waynesburg is to slow them down, try to frustrate them. I've seen them play four times and I think that's the only way to beat them.

"But I don't really feel Waynesburg beat us. I think we beat ourselves. Now don't take anything away from Rudy's team. I'll be angry if you do. They executed in the final minutes and we didn't. But it's because we didn't execute that I feel we beat ourselves."

Waynesburg scored the first six points of the second half to erase D&E's slim advantage and led by as many as eight points (31-23) with 15 minutes left in the game. But the Senators, now 10-7 overall, gave the comparatively small crowd in attendance a scare when Brian Syc's three-point play gave Davis & Elkins a 44-43 lead with 6:02 to play.

But Waynesburg's ability to draw fouls against the visitors (four of D&E's first six fouls in the second half were committed while a Jacket player was in the act of shooting) was the difference in the final minutes. Freshman point guard Ray Natili scored 13 of his 17 points from the free throw line and scored nine of the Jackets' final 11 points to slowly pull away from the Senators.

Following Natili in the Waynesburg scoring was Tim Tyler with 13 points and Mike Taylor with 12. Ken Miner led Davis & Elkins with 22 points while Syc added 12.

The Jackets played the game with only nine players dressed for action. Marisa admitted after the game that junior Brian Dawson quit the team after the 60-51 loss at Grove City and also explained the absence of freshman Ray Trincia.

"Trincia has been asked to take a reprieve so he can get his stuff together," Marisa said. "Dawson did quit. It might be a problem in practice with just nine guys but as I said before I'll play with seven or eight if those are the right guys. But I might ask Ray to come back tomorrow."

Waynesburg faces two critical District 18 road games this week, playing St. Vincent Wednesday and Behrend Saturday. It can't afford the blabs much longer.

Haines' Goal A PIAA Title

The expression of the red-faced Indian chief emblazoned on the front of the wrestling warmup T-shirt closely resembles the determined look of its wearer, Waynesburg's Doug Haines.

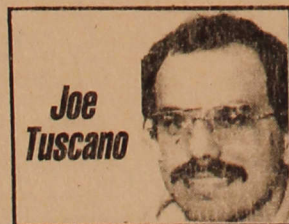

Waiting for his 155-pound bout to begin, Haines bounces slightly on the balls of his feet. The wave of the referee's hand catapults Haines to the mat to face his next victim.

The shrill of the referee's whistle gets him moving, looking for an opening or a mistake by his opponent. When he finally spots his chance, he strikes quickly — hands and legs in constant motion — working for a pin.

Once an opponent is down, it is unlikely he'll be on his feet again until he shakes hands and watches the referee hoist Haines' arm high into the air.

That's basically how the Waynesburg senior's first 12 dual meets have gone. Haines has a penchant for taking longer to warm up for a bout than pinning an opponent. In fact, it is news when a wrestler is able to last more than a period against Haines. But talent is not Haines' only weapon.

He is superstitious. He has been wearing the Indian chief T-shirt since he was in seventh grade and the same wrestling shoes since he was a sophomore.

"Yeah, I'm superstitious," Haines said. "In seventh grade, we each got a T-shirt like the one I wear. I've just kept mine longer. Coach (Joe) Ayersman didn't say anything about it."

Why interfere with success? "I've threatened to burn that thing several times," Ayersman admitted. "It's not a good luck charm. Doug has been beaten before when he's worn it."

Haines does not lose often, with or without the T-shirt. Along with teammate Marty Stewart, Haines is a defending WPIAL champion from last year's 17-1 team. Haines wants to better that performance this year. "Winning a state championship is my goal for this year," he said.

"Last year I got beat by (Grove City's) Mike Bell in the quarter-finals. He was predicted to win, so I knew he'd be tough. After I lost, I thought 'it's next year or never.'"

"If Doug stays free from injury and keeps working hard, I feel he has a good chance to win a state championship," Ayersman said. "He is probably one of the best I've seen this year, and one of the best we ever had at Waynesburg."

A PIAA championship is only one of Haines' goal. His other interests are in football where he was a stand-out running back. Wrestling, though, is his love, and he says he will carry on the affair in college.

"I like football, but I've been wrestling since the second grade," he said. "When I was growing up, Waynesburg always had a good wrestling team. I wanted to be one of them. I don't feel I'm the best wrestler around. You can always find someone who is going to beat you."

Only he hasn't met that person this season.

Lenny Powers, a sophomore at Avella High School, recently won a gold medal for his first-place finish in the 130-pound weight class in the Ohio Open House Wrestling Tour-namment in Cleveland.

Powers was the only area wrestler entered in the tournament.

Ironically, Powers is not on the Avella wrestling team. He has opted to play on the junior varsity's basketball team.

No. 25 Is Lucky For Area Leader

No. 25 may turn out to be a key one in the Washington-Greene scholastic basketball scoring race.

At least it helped last week to keep Mon Valley Catholic High School's Lance Spornak atop the chart, a position which he has held for several weeks.

Spornak came through with 25-point games against West Greene and German Township to improve his average to 24.6 from last week's 24.4.

The 6-1 senior guard has totaled 467 points on 203 baskets and 61 free throws.

McGuffey's Mark Dobrzynski retained his runnerup position with 57 points in two games, including 35 against Chartiers-Houston.

Dobrzynski has 420 points for a 22.1 average, after having a 21.4 mark last week.

Also averaging 20 or more points per game are Jeff Cetin, Mapletown, 21.0; Jeff Conn, Bentworth, 20.6; and Bob Connor, Carmichaels, 20.3.

This week's top 10 also includes Larry Romboski, California, averaging 19.8; Del Walker, Avella, 19.5; Anthony Maropis, Burgettstown, 19.3; Barry Niemiec, Beth-Center, 18.7; and John Knisley, Burgettstown, 17.5.

Dobrzynski's 35-point effort on 13 baskets and nine free throws represented the week's top individual performance in the district.

Others with 25 or more points in one game included Romboski, 31; Kirby Atkinson, Chartiers-Houston, 29; Connor and Cetin, 25.

Mon Valley Catholic continues to dominate team statistics with a 17-2 record, the best in the district, and the top team offense and defense marks.

The Spartans have scored 1,425 points, an average of 75.0 points per game and allowed 1,010 for a 53.2 average.

Washington has an 11-0 record to lead Section 9-AA-A, while Mon Valley Catholic leads Section 16-A with an 11-1 mark. Charleroi is tied for first place in Section 11-A with Southmoreland with each having a 5-2 record.

Health Agency Okays Private Nursing Home

MONROEVILLE — Construction of a 120-bed private nursing home in the Waynesburg area moved one step nearer reality Thursday when the board of directors of the Health Systems Agency of Southwestern Pennsylvania unanimously approved the project.

The proposal was one of a number considered by 48 members of the 67-member board at a meeting held at Monroeville.

In response to a question by Neil D. Cole, a Greene County member of the board, representatives of Greene Health Care Association said they had acquired an option on property off Woodland Ave., a half mile north of Greene County Memorial Hospital, as a proposed site for the long-term health care facility.

Greene Health Care Association is a partnership made up of members of the Uniontown architectural firm of Altman and Altman, the Fairchance Lumber Co. in Fayette County, and Grandview Health Care Inc., a corporation based in Franklin which operates large nursing homes throughout Pennsylvania.

The presentation was made by Michael Altman of the architectural firm, Michael Bolling of the lumber company, and Thomas A. Gabreski, chief executive officer of Grandview Health Care.

In response to another question by Cole, they said that the nursing home would help relieve the demand for nursing home care in Greene County, which is evidenced by 97.6 percent occupancy of the Curry Memorial Home, the county nursing home.

They also said that the home would accept medical assistance patients as well as private pay patients, and that the sponsors have so informed.

Partnership Lawsuit Filed

WAYNESBURG — John Modrick of Carmichaels filed an equity action in Greene County Court Wednesday seeking an accounting of a partnership he was engaged in last year with Richard Swift of Carmichaels R.D.1.

The complaint states Modrick and Swift formed the partnership on Feb. 15, 1980, for operation of Swift Auto Parts, but decided on Dec. 3, 1980 to dissolve the partnership. It further states that all records of liabilities and assets are in possession of the defendant, and claims that Swift failed to contribute to the partnership a business worth $54,000, including parts inventory, which their agreement called for.

The plaintiff is asking the court to formally dissolve the partnership and to direct that a full accounting be made by the defendant.

the Greene County commissioners.

Now that the 10-county agency has approved the application, the only approval which remains to be obtained is that of the state Department of Health.

The developers have said that once state approval is obtained they will apply for loans guaranteed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Farmer's Home Administration.

The 35,500-square-foot building will cost an estimated $3.1 million and would employ an estimated 106 persons. The developers have indicated they hope to break ground in March 1982 so that the nursing home could be ready for occupancy in 1983. They also said it would feature two-patient rooms rather than the usual four-patient rooms.
