Watson Assures Re-Election With Convincing Victory

WAYNESBURG — District Justice John C. Watson of Holbrook R.D.1 assured his re-election by rolling to a convincing victory over two opponents in Tuesday's primary election in Greene County.

Watson won the nomination of both parties by substantial margins, amassing 1,108 votes to capture the Democratic win over Waynesburg Attorney Richard P. Krill, who got 610, and John W. Keenan of Richhill Township, a former police official, who received 254 votes. The three candidates finished in the same order in the Republican primary, with the vote totals being 505 for Watson, 291 for Krill and 97 for Keenan.

The contest in Magisterial District 1 encompassed Waynesburg Borough, where the office is located, and 10 townships — Aleppo, Center, Freeport, Gilmore, Gray, Jackson, Morris, Richhill, Springhill and Wayne.

A total of 8,482 Democrats went to the polls, for a turnout of 65 percent. The 3,736 Republicans who voted represented 60 percent of that party's registration total. The turnout was smaller than normal for a Greene County election, but was not surprising considering the lack of any county contests on the ballot.

As had been expected, Sheriff Remo E. Bertugli of Rices Landing, who is seeking a second term, captured the Republican as well as the Democratic nomination. His was the only name on the Democratic ballot, where he collected 7,371 votes. There was no Republican candidate and Bertugli collected that nomination with 378 write-in votes.

Coroner Frank J. Behm of Jefferson, who is running for a sixth consecutive term, led the Democratic ticket with 7,457 votes. His opposition in November will come from David Szarell, a Morris Township dentist who won the Republican nomination with 1,099 votes.

The county's two incumbent jury commissioners, Bernice Kucharik of Mather and Margaret A. Perrin of Waynesburg, also assured themselves of re-election by capturing the nominations of their parties without opposition. Kucharik received 6,571 votes in the Democratic primary, while Perrin collected 1,504 Republican votes.

In Magisterial District II, incumbent Ruth Hughes of Franklin Township received 2,219 votes as the only Democratic candidate, and also won the Republican nomination with 442 write-in votes. The district covers Clarksville and Jefferson Boroughs and Franklin, Jefferson, Morgan, Perry, Washington and Whiteley Townships.

In voting for candidates for state courts, Greene County residents generally favored those closest to home. The unofficial results in these races:

School Board Rejects Lights

WAYNESBURG — Any possibility that lights will be installed in the foreseeable future at the Waynesburg Central High School football field appear dim following Tuesday's meeting of the Central Greene School Board.

It became clear that the board is divided 4-4 on the issue, and the four members who are opposed made it clear they won't vote to provide the money in the 1981-82 budget.

They also voted down a compromise motion which would have authorized action if the needed money was provided by the community, or if money would become available through realty transfer tax revenues which the district would receive if, and when, Sohio carries out its announced plan to purchase U. S. Steel's Cumberland Mine at Kirby.

The compromise motion was offered by board member Robert Stephenson, who said he was refraining from making a motion to install the lights because he knew he did not have sufficient votes.

His motion was to authorize the secretary to again obtain bids only in the event groups supporting their installation come up with all of the necessary money, or in the event the district received a sizeable amount of transfer tax revenues through sale of the coal mine property.

"This motion guarantees there won't be any need to raise taxes to install the lights, but it provides groups with the assurance they need to start raising money to put them up. I think it is a reasonable compromise and I hope you give it serious consideration," he said.

Joining him in voting for the motion were Joanne Brookover, Warren Bowers and Lila Ayersman. Voting against it were Delmont Blue, Francis Fox, Furman Wade and Carolyn McClure.

The resignation of the ninth member of the board, Robert Teagarden of Waynesburg, was accepted "with regret" at the start of the meeting. It was submitted for reasons of health.

The board announced that any resident of Waynesburg who is interested in serving in the position apply as soon as possible to the school district central office. The board has 30 days in which to fill the vacancy, and if it is unable to do so the appointment would be made by the Greene County Court.

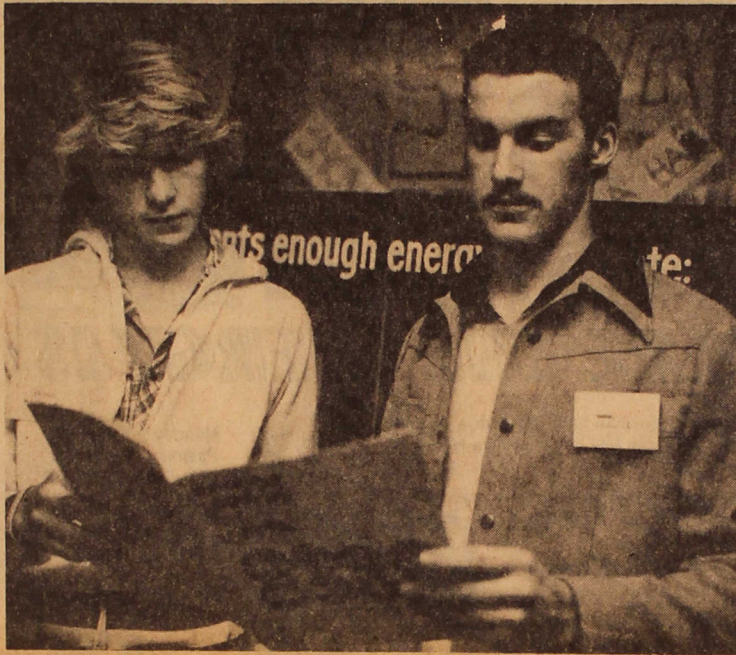

Close to 100 persons who were interested in the issue of athletic field lighting attended the meeting. Speaking in favor of it were Marilyn Jones, on behalf of the Red Raider Band Boosters; Richard Stuck, on behalf of the Little League football program; Ralph Somers, on behalf of the Central Greene Football Boosters; and Terry Tanner, on behalf of the high school student body.

They expressed the opinion that the estimated $29,000 it would cost to purchase the necessary poles and lights would increase attendance to the point where the installation could be paid off within a few years. They also argued that night athletic events would give parents and other interested persons a greater opportunity to watch teams and the band in action. Several of them also said their organizations would be willing to raise money for the project, and expressed confidence that individuals and companies would be willing to donate time and equipment to do the job.

The only person from the audience to speak against them was Mary Stafford of Waynesburg, who said she was opposed to it on the grounds of what it would cost to erect the lights and the additional expense involved in night athletics. "Some consideration should be given to the taxpayers. At some point there is going to have to be a cut off," she said.

Board member Delmont Blue echoed her sentiments, and Francis Fox said he felt the timing was bad since the proposal comes at a time

Among area delegates attending West Penn Power Company's ninth annual spring energy seminar for youth were Jeff Gough, left, and his Westminster Academy teacher Mike Kelley. The seminar attracted 136 science students and teachers from 62 service area high schools. Memorial Day Services Planned CARMICHAELS — Plans for Memorial Day observances at Carmichaels have been announced by Hartford Hartley, commander of Cumberland Post 400, American Legion. The ceremonies will be co-sponsored by the Carmichaels V.F.W. and will be held both Sunday and Monday, May 24 and 25.

On Sunday, members of the two organizations are to meet at 2 p.m. at the Legion post home. They will go in a group to Muddy Creek for a service at 2:45 p.m. and to Garards Fort for a service at 4 p.m.

On Monday, they are to meet at the Legion home at 11 a.m. to go to Glades Church for services at 11:30 a.m.

At 12:30 p.m., a parade will start from the Legion home and move to Laurel Point Cemetery, where an address by Judge Glenn Toothman will highlight a program at 1 p.m. The parade will be led by the Carmichaels Area High School Band and will include Boy Scouts, Little League groups and other organizations, with all interested persons being invited to participate.

Commander Hartley is urging all veterans to take part and is asking Carmichaels merchants and residents to display their flags on both days.

DER Decides Jefferson Doesn't Need New Sewers

JEFFERSON — The Department of Environmental Resources has agreed with a recommendation from the Lower Ten Mile Joint Authority that a new sewerage system for Jefferson Borough is not necessary at this time.

The authority, at its April meeting, voted to delete Jefferson Borough and immediate areas of Jefferson Township from future consideration in any new sewer system, citing the fact that septic systems appear to be functioning well.

A DER representative informed the authority another study of the area would be made before state officials considered the move. The study was made and according to DER representative Steve Weitz, the study revealed a large part of any future construction would not be refundable, thereby making the project too expensive to local residents.

The authority also received a letter from Richard S. Ehmann, Commonwealth attorney for DER, that the state is satisfied the local authority will continue with a feasibility study contracted for several months ago. The local authority was threatened with legal action earlier this year if they refused to proceed with the study as agreed.

Members of the authority discussed the proposed plan for the Clarksville area and suggested further studies be made concerning the possibility of Burson and Braden being included in the Clarksville system. The engineer was directed to collect more data and report back to the authority.

Members also approved immediate action for the Mather area citing the need for a sewer system. The Mather area has been having severe problems in recent years with open sewers in the community.

In other action, the authority accepted two new members. Vance Ross was appointed to serve until December 31, 1981, for Clarksville Borough and Robert Luzier will serve for East Bethlehem Township until Dec. 31, 1984. Each municipality has been entitled to two new members but only one has been serving. 5

Huffman Winner In Waynesburg

WAYNESBURG — Mayoralty races in Carmichaels and Waynesburg highlighted Tuesday's primary election in Greene County's six boroughs.

In Waynesburg, although there was no candidate for mayor on either the Democratic or Republican ballots, John W. McCann and Roy L. Huffman were the only candidates who had workers at the polling places as the climax to a sticker and write-in campaign which developed during the past few weeks.

Huffman, a 29-year-old electrician at U.S. Steel's Cumberland Mine in Kirby, emerged as the unofficial winner, capturing the Republican nomination 129-126 and the Democratic nomination 252-213. McCall, 42, is a former borough manager and proprietor of a men's clothing store.

In Carmichaels, a long-time political feud was resolved in favor of council president Robert A. Dobbins as he defeated veteran Mayor Paul W. Connor for both party nominations. The Democratic vote was 93-61 and the Republican vote 29-19.

Also in Carmichaels, six people were nominated without opposition for seats on council. David J. Klimek, Christopher L. Watson, Theodore M. Blasinski and John Yurick were candidates for four-year terms and Betty L. Morris and Luella A. Galatic were nominated for two-year terms. Marion Smith won both nominations for tax collector.

Clarksville Borough nominated three Democratic candidates for council — Robert J. Parker Jr., Albert Kingan Jr. and Joseph Shulsky. James E. McManus was nominated as Democratic candidate for tax collector and Ida M. Haftmann as Republican candidate for auditor. There were no other candidates.

In Greensboro, five people were running for four Democratic nominations for council. Winners were John Lako Jr., 94; Keith R. Drew, 66; Angelo Furia, 56; and Louie Ralph Brown, 54; with Uarda G. Riffle the runner-up with 50 votes. Unopposed for Democratic nominations were Harry E. Drew, mayor; Dolores Brown, tax collector; and Neila Vernon, auditor.

Hazel M. Bedosky, Lonny R. Waltes and Edward E. Tarr won Democratic nominations for council in Jefferson Borough, with William Lemley becoming the mayor nominee on write-in votes. Democrat Martha Gwynn was nominated for tax collector and Republican Sara McKinney for auditor.

In Rices Landing, Gary Meese received 21 votes to edge John Porter, with 19 votes, for mayor. Neither Porter, who presently holds the office, nor Meese were on the ballot. Winners of a race for four council Democrat nominations were Ronald L. Teegarden, 104; Arnold O'Daniel, 87; David J. Severini, 74 and Thomas F. Hixon II, 71. Richard S. Sutphin received 34 votes. Marilyn S. Morgan won both Republican and Democrat nominations for tax collector and Nancy Buckingham did the same for auditor.

Other than the write-in contest for mayor, there were no races for borough offices in Waynesburg. Beverly R. Krill was nominated by both parties for a council seat in Ward I; Frank VanCleve and Glen Richards won nominations in Ward II, and, in Ward III, Mark W. Fischer and David R. Godisart won Democratic nominations while Thomas C. Brown won a Republican nomination. All but Fischer are incumbents.

Incumbent tax collector James W. Clark received the Democratic nomination and will be opposed in November by Marjorie P. Strope.

School Board Incumbents Lose

WAYNESBURG — Several incumbents were defeated in school board contests which were part of the primary election in Greene County Tuesday.

In the Carmichaels Area District, where six candidates were running for two seats, Erma Jean Thomas lost her bid for re-election and Joseph Baker will have to win as a Republican candidate if he is to remain on the board.

The Democratic nominations were won by Edward W. Chess with 894 votes and Henry Kowalewski with 880. Running behind them were Mrs. Thomas with 605 votes, Baker 538, Thomas Simkovic 396 and Larry W. Adams 187.

Chess also led the Republican ticket with 172 votes, with Baker getting the second nomination with 104. Runners-up were Kowalewski 96; Mrs. Thomas 93, and Adams 42.

In the Central Greene District, Gary W. White edged veteran school board member Carolyn D. McClure to win the Democratic nomination as a member representing Waynesburg Borough. The vote was 242 to 237. White also captured the Republican nomination, defeating Mrs. McClure 170 to 150.

In Perry, Wayne and Whiteley Township, incumbent Joanne L. Brookover won a narrow 397-394 victory over Lynne

C. Snyder for the Democratic nomination. Mrs. Brookover also captured the Republican nod, 132 to 74.

Board President Lila S. Ayersman had no opposition for either nomination in Franklin and Washington Townships.

Charles Ferencak survived a tough 12-way race to win one of the three Democratic nominations for school director in the Jefferson-Morgan District, but incumbent Robert E. McCarty ran far down on the list in both the Democratic and Republican primaries.

Ferencak got 339 votes to run behind Stanley E.L. Falor 467 and Karen E. Sabo 360 in the Democratic primary. Finishing out of the money were Carl Y. Virgin 330, Clancy A. Murray 286, Donna L. Brown 275, Vito R. Virgili Jr. 267, David Saunders 242, Richard C. Machesky 194, Bob Glister 192, William Bruckner 184, Stanley C. Ziemba 182, James Reed Long 133, Robert E. McCarty 102, William E. Wilson 85, Jack L. Buskirk 82 and Arthur Kelly 50.

Falor also led the way in the Republican primary with 95 votes. James Reed Long finished second with 72 votes and Donna L. Brown won the third nomination with 61 votes. Runners-up were Karen E. Sabo 59, Carl Y. Virgin 53, Clancy A. Murray 50, Richard C.

In the Southeastern Greene District, an ongoing debate over renovation of existing elementary schools seemed to have an influence as two candidates who have questioned the wisdom of the proposal joined veteran board member Adam Novak in winning Democratic nominations.

The newcomers are Gary P. Moser, a Greensboro pharmacist who led all candidates with 728 votes, and Mark D. Brozik, an 18-year-old West Virginia University student from Bobtown who was a student body representative to the school board while a senior at Mapletown High School. He got 405 votes to finish third behind Novak, who had 600.

Unsuccessful candidates were Freda J. Menear 360, Stanley Zalar 351, Marlene Moody Craig 269 and R. L. Grim 159.

Moser and Novak also won Republican nominations with 148 and 82 votes, respectively, with the third nomination going to Stanley Zalar with 65. Runners-up were Brozik 56, Freda Menear 46, Marlene Moody Craig 41 and R. L. Grim 39.

YDC Holds Annual Recognition Day

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Youth Development Center (YDC) held its 15th annual Recognition Day program Sunday, May 17. Theme was "After the Rain . . . The Rainbow."

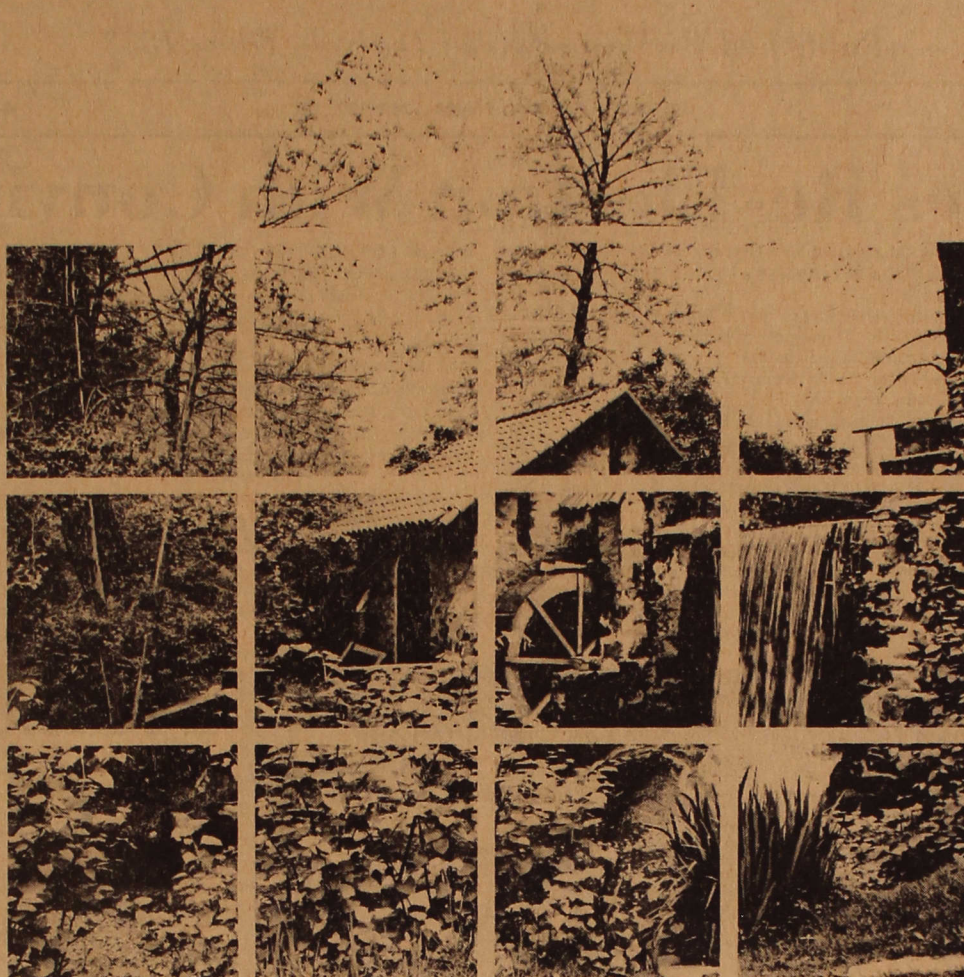

The program consisted of various award presentations for excellence in both academic and extra-curricular activities. A commencement exercise was held for those students who have earned diplomas. Intermediate Unit I provides the education programs for students at the YDC.

"Our annual Recognition Day affords students an opportunity to demonstrate their capabilities and to be recognized for their accomplishments — an opportunity which for many of them will be a brand new experience," Gloria G. Gugliotta, YDC director, said.

Charlotte S. Ginsburg, executive director of the Program for Female Offenders, Inc., and president of the board of Western YDCs and Forestry Camps, was guest speaker. Mrs. Gugliotta welcomed the students, parents and guests and Kathy Moninger served as mistress of ceremonies.

The awards presentation was followed by a fashion show in which students modeled their own creations.

Herry J. Brownfield is executive director of Intermediate Unit I; Roy E. Shook is assistant executive director in charge of support services, and Robert Headlee is administrator for the YDC educational program.

GO WHERE THE ENERGY IS

No one is sure whether Hiram Hegarman built the dam — it may have been there before his time. The lake has given its own legacy of refreshing beauty to the country-side.

But Hiram built his mill by the waterfall — where the energy was. There he and his sons spent most of a century grinding corn for their neighbors.

His descendants remember Hiram as "a God-fearing man." Not surprising, of course . . . you'd expect a man who goes where the energy is to have a deep respect for the Source of all energy.

Think about building your life . . . your family's future . . . close to the spiritual resources of your church or synagogue. Go where the Energy is!

Hotly Contested Supervisor Races Highlight Election

WAYNESBURG — Two of three court-appointed supervisors in Wayne Township failed to survive Tuesday's primary election, and the third appears to be in trouble.

It was one of a number of hotly-contested supervisor races which highlighted the election for voters in Greene County's 20 townships.

In Cumberland Township, Nick Maddich of Crucible topped a field of 12 Democratic candidates for the seat now held by Thomas Skiles, who did not seek re-election. In Franklin Township, T. Reed Kiger was a solid winner in the Democratic primary in his campaign for re-election, and will face Republican nominee William (Bill) Hopkins in the fall.

Court-appointed supervisors George M. Adams and Robert L. Simpson were defeated in Wayne Township, with Charles E. Tedrow winning both the Democratic and Republican nominations for the six-year term for which Simpson was running, and former supervisor Kenneth R. Kerr winning the nominations of both parties for the two-year term sought by Adams.

Incumbent John G. Jenkins, who was unopposed for the Democratic nomination for the four-year term, survived a write-in challenge by former supervisor Charles J. Raber, 155 to 131, but will face Raber again in the fall since Raber was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Both Raber and Kerr resigned from the board of supervisors early in 1980 when a group of township residents attended several meetings to shout criticism at them.

Incumbent supervisors were also defeated in two other townships.

In Dunkard Township, Thomas Orban lost the Democratic nomination to Charles S. Caldwell Jr. In Morris Township, incumbent Carl W. Hildreth was defeated by Catherine Lynn Wagh for the Democratic nomination, but got enough write-in votes to capture the Republican nomination, where there was no candidate on the ballot.

Winning nominations in townships where incumbents decided not to run were William Stoneking in Freeport Township, Kenneth Baldwin in Gray Township, Kenneth Kurfman, Democrat, and William H. Godshall, Republican, in Jackson Township; Charles K. Mitchell in Jefferson Township; Gene A. Morris in Morgan Township and Ed Conner, Democrat, and Randy Patton, Republican, in Whiteley Township.

Millage Lower, Taxes Higher

(Continued From Page 1) with school bus contractors. Also included are the $28,425 committed to the purchase of new band uniforms, a $24,685 increase in payments to the intermediate unit and vocational-technical school, and a $10,046 increase in debt service payments.

Inflationary increases in the cost of everything used by the district are expected to add another $123,086 to the cost of operations.

To partially offset these increases, the board has reduced allocations for the operation and maintenance of plant by $61,461, for food service by $56,023 and for capital outlay by $60,906.

The district will also defer action on a plan to renovate the East Franklin building, which would have cost an estimated $57,000, in the hope that this project can eventually be carried out through revenues produced by the realty transfer tax when — and if — U.S. Steel carries out its announced plan to sell its Cumberland Mine property at Kirby to Sohio.

In all, budget requests which totaled $453,710 have been pared to $255,074.

The board has gone over everything with a fine-tooth comb and has eliminated expenditures wherever it was possible to do so without hurting the program," Stout said.

The business manager also said that revenues from state sources are being projected at $3,203,183, with the district anticipating that it will receive an additional $63,000 (to $2.5 million) in basic instructional subsidy under Gov. Thornburgh's proposal for a $50 million increase in these subsidies.

"The PSEA is pressing for a 50-percent increase, but we feel it is more realistic to believe that the governor's proposal is the one which the Legislature will accept," he said.

Stout also pointed out that the tentative budget is subject to change until it is finally adopted next month. No changes are being made in any of the tax levies other than the real estate levy. They include a $5 per capita tax, a levy of one-half of one percent on realty transfers, and a one-half of one percent earned income tax.

The earned income tax is expected to produce $380,000 and other taxes $151,000. In addition, the district expects to realize $440,000 in earnings from temporary investment.

A breakdown, by category, of the projected $7,644,011 in expenditures:

Administration, $250,420; instruction, $3,099,353; pupil personnel services, $133,113; health services, $65,531; transportation, $790,000; operation and maintenance, $1,001,403; fixed charges, $710,835; food services, $13,977; student activities $135,688; community services, $9,500; capital outlay, $68,362; debt service, $890,849; intersystem payments, 399,970; budgetary reserve, $75,000.

The district will begin the new school year on July 1 with an anticipated balance of $283,202, which is about $80,000 less than the amount it had on hand when the 1980-81 school year began.

Busing Contract Approved For Jefferson-Morgan District

JEFFERSON — A one-year contract with the Central Cab Company of Waynesburg to provide bus transportation in the Jefferson-Morgan School District was accepted by the district's school board at a meeting Monday night.

The motion stipulated acceptance of the contract following its final wording. Cost of the contract is $285,200 with a gasoline escalation clause. If gasoline cost to the contractor goes above $1.25 per gallon the increase will be passed on to the district pro-rated at four-and-one-half miles per gallon.

Central Cab Company has had the transportation contract in the district. Negotiations for the new contract had been underway for several months.

Bids for a food service contract in the district were received from Interstate United, of Monroeville, Custom Management Corp., of Kingston, and Cuisine Management Corp., of Allentown. The bids were opened and turned over to the administration for review and study. Because of various options in the bids, their overall costs could not be immediately determined.

A three-year fire, liability and peril insurance package bid for the district was accepted from Baily Insurance Co., Waynesburg, at a cost of $15,950. Baily Insurance was also awarded the contract for senior high football insurance at a cost of $58 per student, up $9 per student from last year, and for regular school student insurance at a cost of $9 per student for day coverage or $36 per student for 24-hour coverage.

Board member Louie Baniecki was elected board treasurer for a one year term. Stanley Sagosky was rehired as athletic director for the 1981-82 school year. A motion was passed to table hiring a head football coach until the board's June meeting and to have an Athletic Council meeting in the intervening time. Robert Anton was head football coach for the district last season on a one-year contract.

Following considerable discussion and on the recommendation of its architect, the board approved payment of $20,000 to Garfield Inc., heating contractor for the district's new consolidated elementary school. The district is still withholding some $10,800 in final payments from the contractor because of continuing malfunctions of the

Try-Again Homes Plans Benefit Roast

WAYNESBURG — The planning committee of "The Great Glenn Arnold Roast" met recently to complete plans for the Sunday, May 31, event to benefit Try-Again Homes. It will be held at the Moose Lodge on Morgan Street, beginning at 6 p.m.

Benefits from the roast will go towards Try-Again Homes' Foster Care Program. Sixty dependent and delinquent youngsters were helped by the foster program in both long and short term care over the past year. It is designed to place boys and girls from ten to 18 years of age in foster homes and also accepts children with special needs, such as those with emotional, intellectual or physical limitations. Currently the organization has 35 foster homes in the three counties.

Try-Again Homes also operates a Group Home Program for six female residents in Uniontown. The arrangement provides a family atmosphere, and the girls attend public schools. In October a Supervised Community Living Program was started with a $69,000 grant from the Pennsylvania Commission on Crime and Delinquency. The first home, which houses three females and a resident counselor, opened in Waltersburg, Fayette County, in November. Three other homes for older girls not needing the amount of structure in a group home, are planned.

The board approved a one day trip on May 27 for the senior class and sponsor to Geauga Lake, Ohio. The board also granted permission for the administration to advertise for bids for coal for the 1981-82 school year and for repair or replacement of the football field lights.

Dinich, executive director.

This year alone programs have helped over 70 troubled adolescents and children ages eight to 18 in the tri-county area. Try-Again Homes get referrals from County Children and Youth Services, Juvenile Probation, Waynesburg Youth Development Center, Centerville Clinic and the Mental Health-Mental Retardation Clinic.

Try-Again Homes also sponsors a Speaker's Bureau and members are available to speak to church, social, civic and professional groups. A volunteer program, that matches volunteers with adolescents, and an in-home counseling program are two other services the agency provides.

Tickets for the Glenn Arnold Roast are still available from the agency's office at 32 Church Street.

Police Payment Plans Defeated In Mt. Morris

MT. MORRIS — Residents in the Mt. Morris area recently expressed their desire to have police protection but a public opinion poll conducted in conjunction with the primary election Tuesday revealed they are apparently against paying for police service.

Residents were offered two separate means of financing a police protection system but both proposals were defeated at the polls.

One method, which would have had each household assessed $125 for police protection, was defeated 186-82 with 27 others having no opinion about the matter.

The second option was to raise the per capita tax from $3 to $5 and also raise the real estate tax by four mills. This plan was defeated 194-135 with 35 residents having no opinion.

The initial question on the poll asked if residents considered themselves living in a built-up area that should have police protection. Results showed that 230 people felt they lived in an area needing protection, 29 felt they did not and 11 had no opinion.

The township has been without a police officer since 1977 when Paul Stewart resigned. However, during the past few months vandalism and minor crimes have increased drastically prompting citizens to request help from the supervisors.

At a public meeting held in April, township solicitor William Hook reported it would cost about $20,000 to hire and train a police officer.

School Board Rejects Lights

(Continued From Page 1) when the board is hard pressed for funds. "We can't even make the repairs which are necessary to make the East Franklin School energy efficient and I cannot support the lights at this time," he said.

In other action, the board approved a tentative budget for 1981-82 and handled a wide variety of other matters.

In matters involving professional employees, the board approved leaves of absence for Mrs. Elizabeth H. Franks, high school physical education teacher, and Mrs. Mary J. McNelly, second grade teacher at Spraggs, both for the coming school year. It also accepted the resignation of Mrs. Lynne Goroney, high school math instructor who has been on leave for the past year, and appointed Mrs. Jane V. Burns to the second grade vacancy at East Franklin.

The retirement of Lucille Phillips, was accepted "with regret," effective June 30, and Nancy J. Baldwin of Waynesburg was employed to fill the vacancy. The resignations of Penny Wall, high school secretary, and Roy Phillips, East Franklin janitor, were accepted, and a leave of absence was granted to Elizabeth Shultz, high school cook.

The board also: Awarded a contract to Mak-Lyn, Inc. of Pittsburgh for replacing two sections of roof at the high school on the basis of his bid of $59,500.

Rejected on a 4-4 vote a motion to permit the high school band to attend band camp at Bethany (W.Va.) College July 26 through Aug. 1, with the proposal being that the district provide transportation at a cost of approximately $900.

Renewed Walter Stout's contract as board secretary for another four years at an annual salary of $1,700; designated the Waynesburg office of the Carmichaels National Bank as treasurer, and designated the Carmichaels bank, the First National Bank of Washington and the Gallatin Bank as depositories.

Approved a one-year contract with the Wayne Township Community Association to permit it to use the former Brave School building as a community center.

Referred bids for a three-year renewal of property and automobile insurance to the appropriate committee.

Approved an application for $59,000 in federal funds for five vocational programs at the high school.

Approved a proposal for a dental hygienist examination and instruction program which will expand the present school dental examination program, with the additional funds, including hiring of a dental hygienist on a part-time basis, to come from federal funds.

Approved a Title I program in the amount of $248,696, but stipulated that the district will provide none of its own funds to subsidize the program if there is

LSD Sold In New Form

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Sheriff Remo Bertugli has issued a warning to parents and teen-agers about a new method of ingesting LSD.

According to police, a form of tattoo transfers called "blue stars" is readily available in some areas. They are small sheets of white paper containing numerous blue stars the size of a pencil eraser. Each star is impregnated with LSD and can be removed from the paper and placed in the mouth.

Persons should be aware that absorption also can occur through the skin by simply handling the paper or "tattoos."

There are also brightly colored paper tabs, which resemble postage stamps in size, that have pictures of Superman, Mickey Mouse dressed as a sorcerer's apprentice, Dopey, and possibly other Disney characters.

There have been arrests in Pennsylvania and New Jersey involving these stamps or tattoos.

Batteries Stolen

BOBTOWN — State police are investigating the theft of two Interstate batteries, valued at $80, from a high-lift owned by Robert Sperko of McClellandtown.

The machine was parked along LR 30020 in Dunkard Township at a strip mining site.

Faces From The Past—Do You Recognize Them

First Auto Victim

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

In 1981, automobile accidents, including those in which one or more of the occupants of the car or cars involved are killed, get only brief public attention.

Actually they have become so commonplace that it is only when there are multiple deaths or the victims are nationally or locally well-known individuals that such incidents get more than passing attention.

But it wasn't always like that.

Back in 1912 when three Greene Countians lost their lives just across the state line at Blacksville, W.Va., it was an incident that shook up the entire town of Waynesburg and many other communities.

A faded newspaper clipping saved from that date by Gladys Ewart relates that the accident was caused by incomplete grading work on the road. It was a dirt road and the car went out of control because of the poor condition of the highway although it was open to travel.

The best known victim of the crash was Richard "Dick" Ewart of Waynesburg. Ironically he was one of the best known horsemen in the county and owned the largest livery stable in Waynesburg, a massive three-story wooden barn at the north end of Morgan Street.

Besides renting out horses, Ewart also owned several harness horses of his own which he raced for years on the county fair circuits of Pennsylvania and West Virginia. At the time of the accident he and the other two victims were enroute home from a fair at Fairmont, W.Va., where his horses were competing.

Word of the accident was telephoned to Waynesburg and the fact that one of the town's best known residents had died in an auto accident, along with two others, spread over the community like wild fire. Most persons, older residents say, were stunned that three people had been killed in a single accident.

That, of course, was at a time when even a flat tire on a car attracted a lot of attention. No one would have thought of starting on even a five or six mile drive without being sure there was patching material to repair a puncture on the spot or at least a spare tire to get them back home. It was a choice between being prepared or walking because there would be only a few cars on the road during the day and virtually none at night.

The Ewart family came to the United States from Ireland and most of them settled in the Carmichaels area. All of them were expert horsemen and one of them, the late Clarence Ewart, was a professional jockey on running tracks for thoroughbreds until after he was in his late 50's, and at parimutuel tracks in Frostburg and Cumberland in Maryland, at Wheeling in West Virginia and at Erie.

He was also a familiar figure at the county fairs in this section when the harness races were generally followed by two or three "runs" for those who preferred that type of competition over the less flamboyant harness races.

Clarence, or "Sunny" as he was more intimately known, was the son of Dick Ewart and when the first coal mines were opened in Fayette County, the elder Ewart had a contract to cut the huge hardwood trees that were used in those days as roof supports before modern structural steel beams became available for that purpose.

Using horses for pulling the huge logs off the mountain sides was extremely hazardous and, during his lifetime, Clarence had suffered several broken legs when caught by logs sliding sideways out of control.

Clarence's younger brother, Mike, also had all of the family's instincts for horses, favoring thoroughbreds and fancy show horses. He was born in the county but spent the latter years of his life in Uniontown.

The love of good music was also a heritage the Ewarts brought with them when the first members of the family came from Ireland. Gladys Ewart, a son of the late Milt Ewart, has a natural talent for singing and playing string instruments. He has had hundreds of public appearances, playing to audiences in theaters, fairs, reunions and other gatherings throughout the tri-state area and is still going strong at age 85.

His daughter, Mrs. Dorothy E. Chamberlain, has combined her musical talent with her spiritual work in leading revival meetings throughout the entire northeastern United States and has inspired many to follow in her footsteps in relating music to their spiritual lives.

The name of the Ewart family will long remain in Greene County folklore not only because of one of their members was one of the county's first victims of an automobile accident. More so because of their variety of talents from Clarence reigning a throughbred down the home stretch to cousin Gladys fretting his banjo to a lively square dance selection somewhere over the hill from Khedive or some other place along the Muddy Creek road on one side or the other of Love's Hill.

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

Another milestone in the ongoing history of Waynesburg College was enacted at the 130th annual commencement ceremonies last Sunday on the front campus. It was also another milestone in the extraordinary "town and gown" relationship between the school and community.

It was highlighted by the beautiful custom of having the two oldest present make the motion to admit the members of the graduating class into the alumni association at the annual dinner meeting the evening before commencement. Those playing that role this year were Harriet Luse Bell and Josephine Denny.

Another special alumni highlight Saturday evening was the special recognition given to members of the 50-year graduating class. They were Alice Gover Dugan, Regina White Simpson, Margaret Gross Turfa, Sara McKay Wright, Charles Farrell, Merle McCandless, Mary Drake Manning, Milton Decker, Alice Elms, Grace Rinehart Cassidy, Arleigh Pettit and Margaret High Pettit.

It was also a special evening for the following graduates of 55 years ago: Mary Rea Squibb, Mary Stewart Mansberry, Ralph E. Taylor, Sarah Jenkins Olmstead and Ruth Watson Dittman.

Illness prevented two members of an original group of three 1916 graduates who, for many years, had attended alumni meetings together, from being united again this year. Those missing were Dr. Burdette Clendenning of Waynesburg and Prof. Douglas Gold of North Carolina. Their third member, Worthy K. Scott, was there. He has been doing his usual gardening both at his home on Main Street and at the former Byran Dairy farm just over the borough line in Morrisville.

Also missing this year was a familiar figure at alumni banquets for many years, Roy Clovis, one of the school's most loyal and consistent supporters. His death occurred only a few weeks ago. He and his wife were dinner companions for many years at this event with the Denny sisters, Josephine and Helen, and Mrs. Clovis joined them again this year.

Although not a part of the alumni weekend event, officers of the Waynesburg Chapter of the Association of the College and University Women for 1981 are Ruth DeWeese Fuller, immediate past president; Marion Berryhill, Carmen Cole McNay, Mrs. Margaret A. Stefanic and Frances Johnson, who is the new president.

One of the most pleasing incidents at the 1981 commencement ceremonies was the conferring (in absentia) of a Doctor of Humane Letters honorary degree on Clair F. Bee, a member of the class of 1925. It was awarded in recognition of his authorship of the Chip Hilton series of inspirational fiction for teen-age youths, copies of which are now collector's items. They were read by many youths who are now executives of corporations, college and high school teachers, and at least one college vice president, Waynesburg's own Jerry Beasley who, like Bee, was also born and raised in West Virginia. Bee was unable to attend commencement ceremonies and the degree will be conferred later at his home in Roscoe, N.Y. by President Joseph Marsh who, incidentally, is also a native of West Virginia.

One final town and gown item: the college has graciously made its campus area available for an outdoor observance of the silver jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood, the Rev. John B. Corbett, present pastor of St. Ann's Church of Waynesburg. There will also be an outdoor reception after the 4 p.m. services, followed by dinner at the Benedum Hall dining room.

Registration For Swimming

CARMICHAELS — Registration for Red Cross Learn-To-Swim classes will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, June 19-20 at the Eastern Pool in Carmichaels.

Lessons will be given to children and adults, however, children must be at least seven years old or having passed the first grade of school, not kindergarten.

Between The Bookends

Marcia McKenna Biddle

"Murphy's Law, Book Two," by Arthur Bloch. Price/Stern/Sloan, paperback, $2.50.

Here's kind of a dumb little book which doesn't have any possible use, except perhaps to make you laugh when you're down. It attempts to explain why everything always seems to go wrong, and sometimes it succeeds.

As everybody knows, Murphy's Law states that, "If anything can go wrong, it will." This book extends the law to include the obvious but ominous corollary, "If a series of events can go wrong, it will do so in the worst possible sequence."

Bloch has now collected a series of one-liners to fit almost all possible bad situations. Evans' and Bjorn's Law, for instance, says, "No matter what goes wrong, there is always somebody who knew it would."

Since that consequence is inevitable, it may be helpful to have such a law to quote at the proper moment.

Hellrung's Law is more optimistic: "If you wait, it will go away." But Grelb's Addition to it becomes ominous again: "If it was bad, it'll be back."

When "it" comes back, it would be well to remember the Law of Life's Highway: "If everything is coming your way, you're in the wrong lane."

But then there is also Etorre's Observation: "The other lane moves faster." If you consider that observation and decide to take some action, O'Brien's Variation immediately takes effect: "If you change lanes, the one you just left will start to move faster than the one you are now in."

The book comes down hard on committees, bureaucracy, and business practices. First is Harrison's Postulate: "For every action, there is an equal and opposite criticism."

Next, Conway's Law: "In any organization there will always be one person who knows what is going on. This person must be fired."

"This person" must be the one who forgot to observe Whistler's Law: "You never know who's right, but you always know who's in charge."

When nobody is in charge, the result follows Rogers' Rule: "Authorization for a project will be granted only when none of the authorizers can be blamed if the project fails but when all of the authorizers can claim credit if it succeeds."

Another aspect of this procedure is covered by Mollison's Bureaucracy Hypothesis: "If an idea can survive a bureaucratic review and be implemented, it wasn't worth doing."

But if in doubt, you can call in the experts. According to Mars' Rule, "An expert is anyone from out of town." In addition, Warren's Rule tells you, "To spot the expert, pick the one who predicts the job will take the longest and cost the most."

And the next time you're called to a meeting, don't forget Gourd's Axiom: "A meeting is an event at which the minutes are kept and the hours are lost."

And then there is Matilda's Law of Sub-Committee Formation: "If you leave the room, you're elected." For your own peace of mind, that's the most important one to remember.

College Board Will Solicit Bids For New Recreational Complex

WAYNESBURG — Commencement exercises at Waynesburg College Sunday had something for undergraduates as well when Ewing B. Pollock, chairman of the college's board of trustees, announced the board had voted unanimously at a meeting Saturday night to request bids for construction of a proposed $3.5 million recreational complex.

The project has been in the works since July 1979, when the college announced a three-year campaign to raise $5.2 million to meet high priority needs in three major areas: capital improvements, endowment for student financial aid and academic excellence, and endowment for current operations.

The new recreational complex would be constructed on a site adjacent to or as an addition to the present College Gymn, with plans to include remodeling of the present gym which was constructed in the mid 1930's and has been used for both varsity sports and intramural activities.

Pollock said Sunday night the new recreational center would be for intramural sports and activities and that varsity sports would continue to use the present gymnasium.

The new facility would include an intramural basketball court, swimming pool, volleyball courts, exercise areas including weight room, wrestling area, training room, a sauna, steam bath, courts for handball, squash and paddleball, and seminar and special rooms for clubs, fraternities and sororities and areas for dancing and concerts.

Pollock said bids could be awarded as early as late this summer, and with a 12-month construction period and no delays the facility could possibly be ready for use by the fall of the 1981-82 school year.

According to Pollock, the project will be bid with several options to included the complete package, the recreational center with all facilities included and remodeling of the present gymnasium; the new center without remodeling of the present gymnasium; the recreational center with the intramural basketball court and not the swimming pool; or with the basketball court and not the swimming pool.

Pollock stressed the new facility would be for intramural use in order to provide better recreational facilities for both male and female students. He did say that any renovation of the present gym would provide additional seating capacity in conjunction with the new building.

Good Things In Threes At Curry Dental Clinic

This article was written by Marcia J. McEwen, public relations specialist for the Greene County Memorial Hospital.

WAYNESBURG — It's only a superstition, perhaps, that good things come in three's, but it happens to be a fact at the pediatric dental clinic in the Curry Memorial Home.

The three good things in the dental clinic are Beth Hellems, registered dental hygienist, Susan Havins, dental assistant and Barbara Leichliter, clerk/receptionist, who comprise the ancillary group working under Dr. Jane Weinzierl, the center's director, and Dr. Paul Roberts, who works at the facility two days a week.

Weinzierl stressed the importance of her accessory team. "Each girl handles specific duties and this enables me to concentrate more fully on a patient."

"Beth, for example,

GRADUATE — Pamela S. Humble, daughter of John Humble Jr. of Waynesburg R.D.1 and the late Bertha Mae Humble, was one of 300 students who received degrees in spring graduation exercises at Liberty Baptist College on May 11. She majored in elementary education and with a 3.5 grade-point average was named to the dean's list.

screens, charts, treats and educates all patients, a procedure which takes about 40 to 45 minutes before I see them. I can spend more time with my patients because I have been freed from these preliminary procedures."

Hellems, a dental hygienist who graduated from West Virginia University in Morgantown and is working on her master's degree in Community Health Education, is the first person to see the youthful patients visiting the center.

The center accepts clients 21 years old and under on medical assistance and exists not as a free clinic but as a non-profit facility which then clues in the dentists.

Mrs. Hellems' main responsibility actually is to focus on prevention and education when she initially screens the young patients and cleans their teeth.

"I try to expose our patients to oral health instructions by giving them nutritional guidance and counseling, telling them about fluoride applications, and instilling in them good dental habits," she said. "My goal is to expose good dental procedures as a preventive measure against future dental disease."

"It's important to educate the community to arrange a first appointment for a child even before a dental problem arises, usually when he is two or three years old. That way, I can educate the child at an early age on prevention and try to eliminate and dental problems in the future."

In conjunction with her stress on prevention at the clinic, Mrs. Hellems has been coordinating community dental health programs for schools and organizations, as well as providing in-service programs for health-care personnel.

A second member of the ancillary team at the clinic, Susan Havins, is a resident of Carmichaels who has been with the clinic for two years.

She mainly assists either Weinzierl or Roberts in all dental procedures.

"I really like chairside assisting because I'm working directly with the patient. We work with patients by 'four-handed chairside assisting.' In other words," she said, "I hand the dentist the instruments and mix the silver fillings. This eliminates excessive movement on the part of the dentist and enables him to work more productively and efficiently."

The dental assistant's duties, however don't stop there. Havins also must prepare the patient for treatment, sterilize instruments, assemble tray set-ups for treatment, expose and process x-rays, maintain supply inventories, and assume responsibility for order and cleanliness in the clinic area.

Clerk/receptionist duties are the main responsibility of Barbara Leichliter, the third member of the clinic's ancillary team. It is Mrs. Leichliter's jobs to schedule all patients for treatment and to set up recall appointments every six months.

A patient wouldn't have a dental record, either, if it weren't for the Carmichaels resident who maintains and keeps in order all dental records for the young patients.

"As all other people with my job classification, I greet and register patients, prepare daily statistics and billing forms, confirm appointments, answer routine correspondence, and prepare schedules for the staff," Mrs. Leichliter said. "The work, actually, is standard, but it's particularly interesting because I enjoy dealing with young people."

These three dental workers are kept busy, too, as approximately 25 patients visit the clinic each day. The facility is open five days a week, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. by appointment. People eligible for treatment should telephone 627-9263.

Funding For Elevator Investigated

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene News Editor
WAYNESBURG — Possible

sources of funding to help offset the cost of installing an elevator in the new County Office Building in Waynesburg are being explored by the Greene County commissioners.

The elevator is necessary before the third floor of the building can be utilized for additional county office space. The commissioners said at their meeting Thursday that they hope to install it by next year.

In this connection, the commissioners met with Dr. Wendell Ramey, executive director of the Mon Valley Health and Welfare Council, and Robert Willison, executive director of the Area Agency on Aging. The agencies provide senior citizen services to Greene County and currently have an office in Waynesburg.

"There is the possibility that we (the county) could provide them (AAA) with the additional space they need and that a suitable agreement could be worked out where they could assist us in the

Former Resident Buried

WAYNESBURG — Funeral services were held Friday, May 15, for the son of a former Waynesburg resident who disappeared last August while enroute to Portland, Ore.

The body of Clark Richard Tanner, 24, son of Mrs. Louise Haines of 12131 Bayer Drive, Waynesboro, formerly of Waynesburg, and the late Clark James Tanner, was found March 15. It was not released for burial until last week because of the investigation into the circumstances of his death.

The body was discovered at Mt. Hood Meadows, Ore., nearly 40 miles from where his car was found abandoned last August. Oregon state police have not been able to establish the cause of death.

Tanner was a graduate of Liverpool High School, North Syracuse, N.Y., attended Wayne Community College at Goldsboro, N.C., and served in the U.S. Air Force.

Surviving in addition to his mother are his stepfather, Bonnie R. Haines; two sisters, Mrs. Vickie T. Haynes of Raleigh, N.C. and Christine Fawn Haines of Waynesboro; a brother, C. Jeffrey Tanner of Waynesboro, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Rose of Waynesburg R.D.3.

financing," County Commissioner Richard Cowan said.

When the county office building was created in 1976-77 through renovation of part of the former Long Building on East High Street, the commissioners installed an elevator shaft in the building but did not have sufficient funds to put in the elevator.

The large third floor was left unpartitioned and vacant, but the commissioners now feel it should be utilized if possible as there is a need for additional office space and because it contains air conditioning and heating ducts, plumbing and other basic facilities.

The commissioners feel they can use county personnel to put in a drop ceiling and divide the space into offices, and they already have a county draftsman working on preliminary plans. The major expense would be installation of the elevator, which is required by the state Department of Labor and Industry in three-story public buildings.

In action at their meeting, the commissioners accepted a proposal from Millinovich and Co., Waynesburg accounting firm, for preparation of an audit of engineering services provided Michael Baker Co. in construction of taxiways to the new T-hangers at the county airport.

The audit is required before the county can receive a final $27,000 payment from the Federal Aviation Agency, which provided 90 percent of the funds for the project. The Millinovich proposal stipulates that cost of the audit won't exceed $1,300.

Davin and Son of Waynesburg was awarded a $7,300 contract for repointing and painting of the county swimming pool at Carmichaels, with a requirement that the work be completed by Friday, May 22.

Donna Brown, a member of the board of the Greene County Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Council, presented the commissioners with the board's recommendation for the person to be employed as EMS coordinator. The commissioners said the three persons who have applied for the position will be interviewed before they make a selection.

At the request of Waynesburg Borough Manager James Ealy, the commissioners authorized the holding of a concert by the Waynesburg Central High School stage band on the patio in front of the courthouse on Friday evening, May 22. The concert will symbolize the start of the downtown revitalization program being carried out by the Waynesburg Economic Revitalization Corp. (WERC).

Register and Recorder Thomas Headlee met with the commissioners to decide on a procedure to be followed in complying with a request from U.S. Steel Corp. that it be furnished with copies of all deeds, rights of ways, leases and other company documents on record in his office. He said U.S. Steel has agreed to pay for having the job done, but that it would require several months to complete and would tax the capabilities of the one copying machine located in the office.

The commissioners and Headlee agreed that the company should install its own copying machine and should pay for the additional staff time required to do the job.

A resolution was adopted to proclaim Thursday, May 21, as Greene County Vocational-Technical School Day, calling attention to the services provided by the school in preparing young people for vocations. Open house is to be held at the school that day.

In addition, county citations were presented to Randy Ball and to members of the school team for their second place finishes in competition held by Vocational-Industrial Clubs of America.

PROMOTED — New York Life representative Dave Antonelli was recently promoted to assistant manager in the Pittsburgh office. He will also maintain his Carmichaels office. His new duties include the recruitment and development of new agents.

Speaking of future expansion plans, Flinn said, "Much needed expansion is being considered for the newborn nursery, pediatrics, special care unit, operating room storage, office areas, conference rooms, ambulatory surgery and outpatient clinic facilities."

Flinn pointed out that in the physical therapy department alone, treatments have increased from 10,417 patients in 1975 to 18,596 patients last year. Laboratory tests have increased from 71,200 in 1974-75 to over 96,000 during the 1979-80 fiscal year.

In the x-ray department, there were 15,873 procedures in fiscal 1974-75 compared to 21,620 in fiscal 1979-80.

The luncheon was sponsored by Greene County Memorial Hospital which announced its official logo and motto, "Where Caring Is A Way Of Life."

Michael Flinn, hospital administrator, presented a slide program on the hospital and the community and the strong relationship between the two, citing the hospital volunteer program which dates back to 1921 and includes nearly 200 local citizens who donate their time to various programs at the hospital.

In a statement released for the special observance, Flinn said, "We are dedicated to providing the best health care possible at Greene County Memorial Hospital. Because of our commitment to the community, we are looking well into the future and are anticipating the needs of Greene County residents."

JEFFERSON — Over 70 local and state officials and leaders of the business community attended a luncheon Wednesday afternoon at the Greene County Country Club in observance of National Hospital Week.
