Rain Day Activities

WAYNESBURG — A flea market at 10 a.m. Wednesday, July 29, will kick off this year's Rain celebration. This and other scheduled activities will be held near the Greene County Courthouse.

Local craftsmen and those with yard sale items wishing to participate in the flea market are reminded that booths are still available. Those interested may call the borough office at 627-8111.

Other activities include a children's reading theater at noon, 2 and 4 p.m.; an umbrella contest from 5 to 6 p.m.; a marathon at 6 p.m., beginning at the courthouse steps; a presentation from the Rebecca Wilson dance school; an appearance by Miss Rain Day; and a memorial service for Company K members.

A square dance will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. with music by Jim Ines and the Hewitt Brothers. The rock band, "The Visitors," will perform from 9 to 11 p.m.

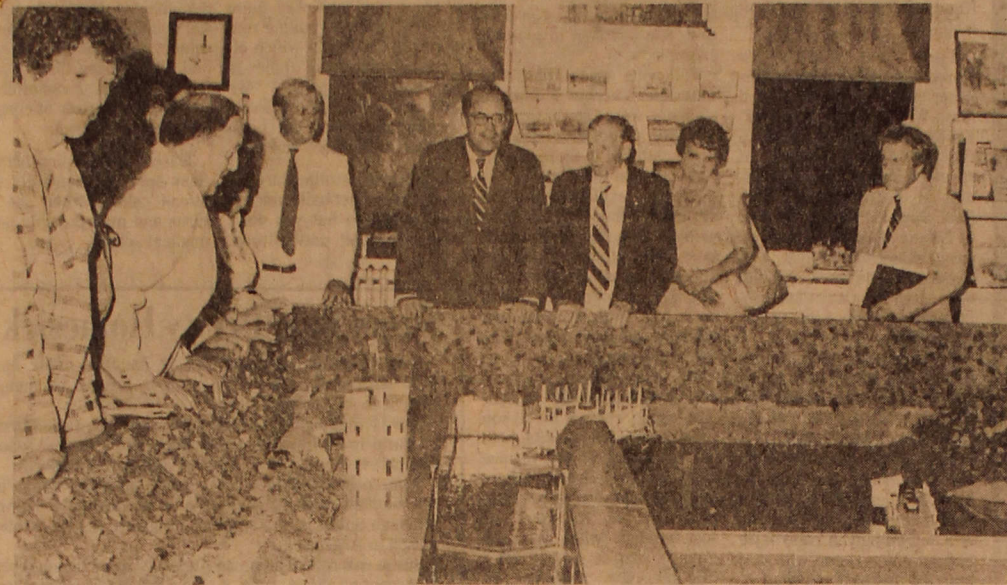

The winner of the merchants' window contest will also be announced.

U.S. Steel Buys Farm

WAYNESBURG — U.S. Steel Corp. has added to its large land holdings in Whiteley Township with the purchase of a 317-acre farm from Leslie W. and Edith P. Haines, and James Leslie Haines of Waynesburg R.D.3.

The property, which is bisected by Township Route 455, was purchased for $425,000. It is abutted on the east and south by other U.S. Steel property which is part of the Cumberland mine holdings near Kirby.

A U.S. Steel spokesman said the property was acquired for possible future use in connection with the mine.

Thornburgh Visit

Gov. Richard Thornburgh visited the River Museum room at Monon Center in Greensboro Saturday. The room, featuring a model of a Monongahela River lock, will be dedicated Friday.

Thornburgh Attends Festival

GREENSBORO — Residents of Greensboro were told Saturday by Gov. Richard Thornburgh that celebration of the town's bicentennial is important because it calls attention to a quality of life that is distinct to small towns in Pennsylvania.

"It is interesting that the history of Pennsylvania dates back to 1681 when William Penn received his royal charter from the king of England, and that the history of Greensboro is just 100 years shorter than that beginning," Thornburgh said, ushering the week-long observance of the chartering of the borough in 1781.

"What you are celebrating here tonight is a way of life which has been preserved in our boroughs and villages from the earliest times, based on the concepts of freedom and liberty which were so important to our forefathers," Thornburgh said.

"It is significant to remember that we live under a rule of law and not of men. In Moscow, it is Lenin who is kept under glass in his tomb for the people to see. In America, we keep our documents — the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution — under glass. It is an important difference."

The banquet, which filled the Greensboro fire hall to capacity, was the first of a week of events calling attention to the history of the small Monongahela River town in southeastern Greene County.

County Commissioners Richard Cowan and L. R. San-

torre arranged for the visit, and the governor was guest of honor at a brief reception at Cowan's home in Waynesburg before attending the banquet. Santore was master of ceremonies for the dinner program.

The governor presented bicentennial chairman Ernest Gabler and Mayor Harry Drew with a document containing greetings from the Commonwealth, and he then was presented with a large Greensboro pottery jug. Other presentations were made by Terry and Doris Ganocy of the bicentennial committee.

The Rev. Glenwood Davis, Greensboro historian, related a brief history of the community.

Following the dinner, the governor was given a tour of Monon Center and of the Greensboro Presbyterian Church, which was built in 1823 and is the oldest public building still standing in the town.

Thornburgh said later that the state is well aware of Greene County's position as the center of the state's soft coal industry, and he added that the state Economic Development Committee will be working closely with local officials to help meet the challenge posed by growth of the coal industry in terms of housing, highways and public facilities.

Bicentennial events scheduled for today are a bicycle parade at 5 p.m. and a riding lawn tractor race at 6 p.m.

Engineering Firm Suing School District

WAYNESBURG — A Pittsburgh area engineering firm has filed suit against the Southeastern Greene School District in an attempt to collect $5,481 for topographic survey work it did in connection with a proposed school construction project.

The action was instituted Wednesday in Greene County Court by R. M. Keddal and Associates Inc., located in Library. The complaint states that in September 1980, the school district solicited bids from engineering firms for preparation of a topographical survey of three tracts of land with a total of some 10 acres.

Keddal submitted a bid of $3,500, setting forth a schedule of hourly rates and an estimate, based on the specifications, of how long it would require to do the job.

The firm claims that after the bid was accepted, school district architect Robert T. Scheeren, expanded the scope of the project by requesting that the firm produce extensive information which is normally not included in a topographical survey. In addition, the amount of land to be surveyed was expanded from 10 acres to 15 acres.

In each case, the engineering firm claims, it contacted the school district solicitor to inform him of the request for additional work and to advise him that it would be charged at the hourly rate set forth in the contract. The solicitor, it claims, provided the firm with authority to proceed with the work on that basis.

After the job was completed, the complaint states, the firm submitted a bill for $8,981, but the school district has paid only $3,500 and refused to pay the balance.

Youth Traffic Safety Council Lists Highway Danger Spots

WAYNESBURG — Using data furnished by the District 12 office of the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation, the Intermediate Unit 1 Youth Traffic Safety Council has compiled a list of the 10 most dangerous intersections and stretches of road in Greene County.

Robert Headlee of Garards Fort, who coordinates Safety Council activities for the Intermediate Unit, said the student organization meets each month during the school year to work on projects connected with traffic safety. Compiling of the highway danger spots in Greene, Fayette and Washington Counties was one of the projects during the past school year.

In preparing it, they worked with Craig Yost, PennDOT District 12 safety engineer, who maintains data on accident rates and causes as part of his job and evaluates requests for safety improvements.

"What we try to do when we plan safety projects for the District 12 area is to get the most safety for the dollar," Yost said.

The safety engineer explained that each PennDOT maintenance district competes with the rest of the state for available safety improvement money. "So when you submit a project it's judged on its worth."

- Danger spots in Greene County:
- Intersection of Route 88 and Route 21 at Carmichaels.
 - Route 21 at Bailey's Crossroads, west of Carmichaels.
 - Route 19 through Morrisville, at Stewart Motor Co.
 - Route 188 intersection with Route 30057 at Jefferson.
 - Route 21 just west of Interstate 79, at road to Waynesburg Central High School.
 - Route 218 intersection with Route 19 (Morgan and High Streets) at Waynesburg.
 - Route 88 at Alicia Crossroads.
 - Paisley intersection of Route 21 and Route 88, east of Carmichaels.
 - Route 21 and Route 19 intersection at Foodland in Morrisville.
 - Route 21 intersection with Sugar Run Road at McDonalds in Morrisville.

'Waynie' Railroad Movies Available

WAYNESBURG — In connection with the series of stories about the old Waynesburg to Washington Railroad currently running on the focus page of the Observer-Reporter, the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Co. reminds those interested that movies of the railroad are available to the public.

Movies taken of the railroad and other events from 1913 to 1926 were donated to the fire company several years ago. Most of the film which was shot by the late Charles Silvius has been converted from 35 millimeter to 16 millimeter film.

Silvius, who once owned two local theaters, took movies of many local events including the Downey House fire and showed them in his own theaters. He later gave the film to Ed VanCleve, a local fireman, and the film has become the property of the fire company.

Much of the original 35mm film has since been donated to the National Archives in return for a grant that helped finance the conversion to 16mm film by the American Film Institute.

Miles Davin, a member for the fire department, is now in charge of the film which runs for about an hour and a half. Davin says the fire company hopes to eventually add narration to the film. "Through showing the film around the area, we hope to eventually identify all the persons in the film," Davin said.

Bill Molzon, a member of the faculty at Waynesburg College, is making a videotape of the movies.

HEAT Members Will Complete Solar Project

WAYNESBURG — Members of the Greene County Home Energy Alternatives Team (HEAT) will meet in the Community Action energy workshop Saturday, July 25, to complete work on the solar demonstration project being prepared for the Rain Day observance.

They will be at the workshop, located on Route 19 north of Waynesburg, opposite the Rush upholstery shop, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The display will include three solar hot water collectors, three hot air collectors, a solar oven and a solar barbecue. They are designed to illustrate the potential for solar energy in Greene County.

Junker said that equipment to be displayed on Rain Day ranges from low-cost items to that which is designed to provide many years of energy savings.

Central Greene Appoints Co-Principal

WAYNESBURG — The Central Greene School Board filled the new position of co-principal at the Margaret Bell Miller Middle School in Waynesburg at its meeting Tuesday.

Allen G. Nixdorf III, who has been principal of Rockwell Junior-Senior High School in Somerset County since 1974, was named to the post at an annual salary of $25,000.

Dr. Ronald Ferreri, district superintendent, explained that new job descriptions have been prepared dividing administrative responsibilities at the school between the two administrators, with both Nixdorf and veteran principal James Zollars to be responsible directly to Dr. Ferreri. The change was made following the resignation of James Mathez, who had served as assistant principal.

The middle school has 950 students in grades five through eight.

Nixdorf, who is married and has two daughters, is a graduate of Shippensburg State College and has a master's degree from Indiana University of Pennsylvania. He intends to move into the school district.

In other matters involving professional personnel, the board approved a one-year leave of absence for Robert W. Born, high school vo-ag teacher, for purpose of study; approved a one-year sabbatical leave, for purposes of travel, for high school teacher James Winters, and approved a one-year maternity leave for Mrs. Diane C. Lemley. The resignation of music teacher Emily Ehrhardt was accepted.

A new policy was established for the filling of a teaching vacancy where members of the staff must be given an opportunity to request a transfer into the position. To avoid disruption of the educational program, such vacancies, if they occur too late to be posted and filled before the start of a school year, will be filled during that year by a permanent substitute and then will be filled permanently for the next ensuing school year.

Dr. Ferreri said the change was made with the approval of the Central Greene Professional Association.

On recommendation of the state Division of Food and Nutrition Services, the prices of student lunches for the 1981-82 school year will be raised by 10 cents, increasing to 70 cents for elementary students and 75 cents for secondary students. Reduced price lunches will remain at 20 cents and adult lunches will be unchanged at $1.50. During the past school year the cost of preparing and serving a meal averaged $1.19.

The board voted to renew the contract of ARA Services for providing food services to the district, at the same rate as last year. It is estimated that if current reimbursement rates are maintained, the lunch program will require a general fund subsidy of $71,718.

An agreement was approved under which the Rolling Meadows Church of God, on old Route 21, will provide the district with use of the church facility at $200 per month for a half-day kindergarten session to handle the overflow of students from the East Franklin building. The agreement will replace a similar arrangement under which the district last year used facilities at the First Baptist Church of Waynesburg.

Pay increases of 25 cents per hour were approved for security guards and part-time non-professional employees. Under the new scale wages will range from $3.75 to $4.50 per hour.

Bids were opened and contracts awarded to the Greene Mechanical Corp., Carmichaels, for an air conditioning unit for the high school drafting room, $3,900, and for a dust collector at the middle school kitchen, $2,700, and to Whitby Corp., Uniontown, for a kitchen exhaust fan at the high school, $2,232. Radio Shack was awarded a $2,100 contract for a computer and two line printers for the high school math department.

The resignation of Rich Relich as high school varsity basketball coach was accepted. Joseph Zorosky and Walter Lohr were again hired as assistant high school football coaches at salaries of $1,337 and Rich Lofstead was hired as senior high golf coach at a salary of $917.

The board also:

- Approved field trips for each elementary grade level for the upcoming school year, as well as the schedule of activities for the high school marching band.

- Renewed its agreement with the PIAA to provide football insurance at a cost of $40 per player and renewed its agreement with Reliance Standard Life Insurance Co. to provide student insurance at a rate of $11 for school hours and $48 for 24-hour coverage.

- Approved the 1981-82 Title I budget in the amount of $252,101.

6 More Drug Suspects Are Held For Court

CARMICHAELS — Six more suspected drug dealers arrested earlier this month in Waynesburg were bound over for court following a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Emil Bertugli Friday.

Deborah I. Crawford, 20, of 227 First Avenue, Waynesburg, waived the hearing. She is charged with selling hashish. Several capsules were also found in her apartment and tests are being conducted.

Based on the evidenced presented, the following suspects were bound over for court:

- James Keith Cole, 22, of 646 East High Street, charged with one count of selling marijuana and conspiracy to sell.

- Cecil David Phillips, 26, Garards Fort, charged with one count of selling marijuana.

- Brent Martin, 19, of Waynesburg R.D.6, charged with criminal conspiracy to deliver marijuana.

- Rebecca DeFour, 21, of Perry, Fla., charged with one count of selling marijuana.

- Keith R. Hughes, 18, of 353½ South Morgan Street, one count of selling marijuana.

Borough police detective Dave C. Clark and District Attorney Charles Morris represented the prosecution at the hearings.

Injured Player's Father Files Suit

WAYNESBURG — The father of a Mapletown High School football player who was injured in practice is seeking damages in excess of $25,000 from the Southeastern Greene School District.

The lawsuit was filed in Greene County Court Monday by Victor Shine of Greensboro, as father and guardian of Joseph Shine.

The complaint states that the 17-year-old student suffered fractures of several vertebrae of the neck while practicing with the football team on Aug. 13, 1979, and has incurred medical and hospital bills of more than $25,000.

The plaintiff charges that the school district was negligent in failing to provide sufficient health and accident insurance to cover the medical bills.

I-79 Commuters Continuing Fight Against Route 19 Detour

WAYNESBURG — A group of Waynesburg and Washington residents who have to travel Interstate 79 on a daily basis to get to their jobs are continuing their fight against the Department of Transportation's plan to utilize Route 19 as a detour while the interstate highway is being repaired this summer between the Ruff Creek exit and the Greene County line.

Their concerns are contained in a letter they have written to Robert Mueser, acting engineer in District 12, with copies being sent to Governor Richard Thornburgh, Transportation Secretary Thomas D. Larson and Rep. Roger R. Fischer of Washington.

"PennDOT is planning to put us back on a badly deteriorated, outdated, twisting, hilly, mostly two-lane road for a distance of 11 miles and for two months, maybe more — the very same road that influenced the current location of I-79 more than 20 years ago," they wrote.

While conceding that the interstate highway is in need of improvement, they strongly disagree with PennDOT's position that it is not feasible to construct crossovers so that vehicles can continue to use the highway on a one-lane basis during the construction period, which is scheduled to begin about the middle of August.

"Driving that stretch of I-79 every day gave us a chance to observe several possible locations for crossovers," they wrote. "It seems to us that these points are at convenient locations near the immediate construction area and are at the same level, which seems to be a big concern of PennDOT."

They also take exception with the department's position that head-to-head traffic on the interstate highway would be less safe than utilization of Route 19 as a detour, noting that crossovers are commonly used when a divided, four-lane highway is improved.

They point out that announcement of the proposed use of Route 19 as a detour has generated widespread opposition because of the traffic congestion and safety factors which would be involved.

In particular, they note that use of the old highway would extend well into the upcoming school year and that a school is located along the detour which, in their opinion, would create a hazard.

"What about those frequent school bus stops, causing some motorists to grow impatient and willing to take a chance and pass in a double yellow line area? Could this be any safer than trying to stay on I-79? And what about motorists who would hurry to pass and get around some trucks before he starts up another of the hills?" they asked.

The letter, urging that the Department of Transportation take another look at the situation, was signed by David R. Donel of Washington R.D.5; James A. McCrary of 1240 West Wylie Avenue, Washington; Daniel E. Barnickel of Washington R.D.4; Jeanne Horn of Prosperity R.D.2; Mary Charis of Waynesburg R.D.3; Gary White of 19 Montgomery Avenue, Waynesburg; and Richard Joseph of Waynesburg R.D.3.

Foreign Exchange Student Like 'A Breath Of Spring'

By JIM MOORE
Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — Over the past several years there have been dozens of foreign exchange students at Waynesburg Central High School, but it's doubtful any came to town with the bubbly attitude and sense of humor of 17-year-old Karenne Toofell from Australia.

The short visit with Karenne at the home of her American parents Mr. and Mrs. Worthy Fox Jr. of 643 East College Street was, like the television commercial spouts, a breath of spring. Sitting on the front porch with Mrs. Fox, Karenne appeared to belong there and was an easy subject to interview.

Accent aside, her laughing, open conversation gave the impression one had known her for years. Karenne, who will enter her senior year in the fall, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norm Tootell from Queensland. Mr. Tootell is a contractor of major projects such as hospitals. Karenne has a brother who is a policeman and another brother who is a self-employed contractor and an older sister who was married this past weekend.

Karenne missed the wedding because she arrived in Los Angeles last Thursday for a two-day orientation on American ways. It was suggested, among other things, that Karenne not wear her mini-bikini because Americans might be shocked, although such swim wear is common in Australia.

Officials also warned that some Australian words might be offensive in America because the words have a different meaning. Karenne said. She declined to give an example.

Following orientation, the American Foreign Exchange students were flown to New York for a brief visit. Student then scattered to their American homes in the east.

Karenne explained she had exchanged biographical data with the Fox family and both were given time to study the information and decide if they would be compatible. It has been less than a week and Karenne says she feels like one of the family.

The Fox family is comprised of Worthy Jr., a self-employed contractor; son Charles, 20, who works with his father; and Susan, 17, now an exchange student in Argentina. The relationship between Mrs. Fox and Karenne was soon evident when it came time to snap a picture after the interview. Karenne immediately put her arm around Mrs. Fox.

The perky miss from "Down Under" said she had seen the Statue of Liberty and the Empire State Building during her short visit to New York City and now only wishes to see Disney World in Florida. Plans have already been made by the Fox family to take the trip next month.

Asked about her first impression of the United States, Karenne said she was quite surprised by the vending machines in California which offer everything from apples to packages of popcorn. "We have soft drink and cigarette vending machines, but nothing like California," she said.

While in Australia, Karenne was active in net ball, which is like basketball but you don't bounce the ball, softball and of course, swimming, because she lives next to the beach. Other than "a bit of reading" she has little time for hobbies. She did admit to having left a steady boyfriend behind.

Karenne admitted also she had to take a crash course in Australian history in preparation for the many questions she would face about her home country. She has already visited Waynesburg Central and found the local school offers a much wider variety of classes than her own school.

Karenne is keeping her options open but hopefully will attend college when she returns and may possibly go to medical school.

She said the AFS officials have already warned her about being homesick and said counselors would be available to help.

It's doubtful, however, that this young lady will be homesick because she won't have time. Also, there are fellow Australians enrolled in Pittsburgh and Wheeling this coming year.

Former Local Man Appointed Postmaster

WAYNESBURG — Charles M. Fuller of Lansboro, Mass., a former resident of Waynesburg, has been appointed postmaster of Lenox, Mass. He was sworn in Thursday, July 9, in Springfield by Jon M. Steele, manager-postmaster.

Fuller, who is 51, succeeds Edward L. Barry, who retired after 35 with the Postal Service. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Fuller of 252 Fourth Avenue, Waynesburg.

Fuller was born in Waynesburg and graduated from Waynesburg High School in 1947. Following a stint in the Navy, he entered the postal service in Massachusetts in December 1956 as a clerk at the Pittsfield office.

Susan Fox 'Pretty Homesick'

WAYNESBURG — Susan Fox, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Worthy Fox Jr. is a summer foreign exchange student in Argentina.

She is making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Mirco Fautario in San Carlos de Bariloche, Rio Negro. Senor Fautario is director of tourism at a major ski resort.

While not attending school, Susan takes advantage of her adopted family's position and is constantly skiing. Although Susan is in a summer program, it's the winter season in Argentina.

Susan will return home on August 23 after having been in Argentina since June 27. According to her mother, Susan is "pretty homesick" right now and is looking forward to coming home and meeting her new AFS sister who will be spending the next year in the Fox home.

Informants Tell How Drugs Were Bought All Around Greene

By JIM MOORE
Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — Three of the 16 persons arrested by Waynesburg Borough Police in a drug raid earlier this month were bound over to court Thursday afternoon following hearings before Magistrate Emil Bertugli.

Bond was continued on Michael Lynn Conklin, 21, of 272 1/2 East Lincoln Street; Kenneth Paul Yeager, 22, of 77 East Lincoln Street and Ronald Rush, 19, 168 East High Street, all of Waynesburg. None of the defendants offered a defense. Rush and Conklin were represented by attorney R. Wallace Maxwell and Yeager was represented by attorney William Hook.

Yeager was charged with one count of selling marijuana while Conklin was charged with one count of selling marijuana. He also has a detainer filed against him charging him with parole violation. Rush was charged with selling marijuana and also faces possible additional charges after police found drug paraphernalia in his apartment.

Testimony for the prosecution was offered by David C. Clark, a detective with the Waynesburg Borough Police Department and two informants used by the police to purchase drugs. Six other defendants will have a hearing today in front of Bertugli.

In the case against Rush, the informant told the court he went to Rush's apartment and paid $20 for what was later revealed to be 15 grams of marijuana. The informant told the court he was taken to Rush's apartment by an unidentified juvenile.

Another informant testified he met Conklin in front of the Greene County Courthouse and asked the defendant if he knew where he could buy an ounce of marijuana. "You came to the right man," Conklin reportedly told the informant. The informant told the court, "We sat on the courthouse wall and he (Conklin) pulled a bag of marijuana from his sock. Conklin, according to the informant, said he had "about a pound of the stuff to get rid of and I have some acid too."

In the case against Yeager, the informant told the court he was sitting on the courthouse wall when Yeager and another unidentified youth walked by. "I asked them if they knew where I could buy some Quaalude or marijuana," the informant testified. "At first the unidentified youth said no but they walked back and Yeager said he could sell a half-ounce," the informant said.

The transaction took place in the alley behind the courthouse, the informant testified. He said he paid $20 for the half-ounce which was cut from a larger bag Yeager had in his shirt pocket.

In all three cases, Detective Clark revealed the informants were searched and then given $40 to go purchase drugs where they could. "We never told the informants to look for anyone in particular," Clark testified. If the informant made a purchase, he would walk to the intersection of Washington and High Streets and give a signal to Police Chief Timothy Hawfield who was staked out in a parked car behind the First National Bank.

Hawfield would then radio Clark who would pick up the informant at a location already arranged and take a statement and the evidence.

Three juveniles arrested in the drug raid appeared in court earlier. One received probation for one year, another received two year's probation and the third was sent to the Youth Development Center in New Castle because he already had a police record.

Children Will Attend Bible Camp

WAYNESBURG — Reba L. Miller, Greene County director of the Bible Club Movement, has reported that 65 children from Greene and Washington Counties have registered for Camp Sunrise Mountain, Markleysburg, Aug. 2-8.

The non-denominational camp features Bible classes, games, hikes, campfire programs and swimming. A Christian service team from Appalachian Bible College, Bradley, W.Va., will present dramas, puppet shows and musical programs and will be available for counseling. The Rev. and Mrs. Robert E.

Atwood of Elizabethtown will present the Bible messages.

Many of the campers who are signed up earned the week of camp as a free award for memorizing 100 Bible verses or answering 36 correspondence lessons. Others pay part of their fare. Work of the Bible Club Movement in this area is sponsored by interested individuals and groups.

Here is the June honor roll for those enrolled in the correspondence course program:

Storytime — Bonnie Forquer, Natalie Gilbert, Lynne Hartman, Lisa Morehead, Rachel Ridenour, Tammi Straight.

Course A — Suzanna Cadle, Ricki Krause, Shalene Krause, Joseph Phillips.

Course B — Gerald Anderson, Terri Bowen, William Bowen, Shana Chadwick, Debbie Fox, Donna Henne, Robert Hewitt, John Jellots, James Sharp, Tracy Sharp, Nina Thorne, Natalie Whitlatch.

Course One — Sherry Amos, Calvin Earl Fox, Michelle

Diane Mason, Tammy Simmons, Lori Jean Tyler.

Gaskell Family Summons Firemen For The Fifth Time

OAK FOREST — For the fifth time in the past 22 months the John Gaskell family Monday evening had to summon the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Company.

This time there was little damage to the kitchen of the mobile home where a fire of undetermined origin blackened the wall behind the refrigerator. A member of the family entered the home just as the fire was beginning to creep up the front wall.

The family was not so lucky in the past. In September 1980, their home just off the Oak Forest road was destroyed by fire. They erected a pre-fab home on the same site but it too was destroyed by fire on May 4 of this year — one day after another fire heavily damaged their barn.

Following the second fire in their home, some of the family moved into the home of Irene Clayton near Waynesburg. That home was heavily damaged by fire on May 12, only eight days after the fire in their own home.

Mr. Gaskell and his three sons, Jim, Tim and Edward were living in the mobile home at the time of Monday's fire.

Battery Taken

BRAVE — A 12-volt battery was stolen from a parked auto owned by Kenneth R. Kerr in Brave during the weekend.

Blood Bank

Barbara Elko, a medical technologist, was one of 55 employees at Greene County Memorial Hospital who gave blood during a visit of the Red Cross bloodmobile. Thirty-six were first-time donors. The quota had been set at 50 pints.

Bull Testing Nominations Accepted

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Agent William Brown said Tuesday that nominations are now being accepted for the 1981-82 bull testing program at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center.

"This program provides a genetically sound test to evaluate bulls for rate of gain, structural correctness, meatiness and condition," Brown said. "Both large and small beef breeders can participate on an equal basis under similar and unbiased environmental and test conditions."

Nominations will be accepted until Aug. 15, 1981. To be eligible, a bull must have been born between Jan. 1, 1981 and April 15, 1981 and must be eligible for either registry or recordation with a national breed association. Those eligible for recordations must be three-quarter blood or higher. First choice will be given to nominations from Pennsylvania breeders.

Interested beef breeders can obtain additional information and a copy of the 1981-82 bull testing rules by contacting the Greene County Extension Office, 102 County Office Building, Waynesburg, phone 627-3745.

MODERN VERSION

In our grandparents' day, the effort to keep straight was a moral struggle — today it's a diet.

No Changes Made In Magisterial Districts' Boundaries

WAYNESBURG — Assuming approval of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, there will be no change in the existing boundary lines of Greene County's three magisterial districts.

Following a hearing Monday in Greene County Court, Judge Glenn Toothman ruled that there have not been sufficient shifts in population or workload to warrant realignment of the districts. His decision to retain existing districts is subject to Supreme Court approval.

By law, magisterial district reapportionment is mandated after each federal census to make sure districts are kept in balance if there are major population shifts.

Judge Toothman's decision to make no changes was based on studies made for him by Court Administrator Wanda B. Smith and his law clerk, Mark Pope, and on testimony by District Attorney Charles Morris, Public Defender John Stets and Bar Association President Harry Cancelmi, who offered no suggestions for change.

"Even with increases in population, there remains a rough equivalency in the distribution of population among the three districts (after the 1980 census) as there was in 1976," Pope testified in reporting on his study.

Greene County originally had two magisterial districts, but a third district was added in 1976, with the three districts being set up on the basis of population statistics as determined by the 1970 census.

District I, with John Watson as magistrate, consists of Waynesburg Borough and nine townships in western Greene County — Aleppo, Center, Freeport, Gilmore, Jackson, Morris, Richhill, Springhill and Wayne. It contains a population of 12,139, an increase of four percent over the 1970 census.

District II, with Ruth Hughes as magistrate, is made up of Clarksville and Jefferson boroughs and Franklin, Jefferson, Morgan, Perry, Washington and Whiteley townships. It has a population of 14,686, an increase of 19 percent over 1970.

District III consists of Carmichaels, Greensboro and Rices Landing boroughs and Cumberland, Dunkard, Greene and Monongahela townships, with Emil Bertugli as magistrate. Its 1980 population of 13,530 is eight percent higher than in 1970.

Changes in the caseload of the three districts from 1976 to 1980 is analyzed in the studies made by both Pope and Mrs. Smith. Cases in various categories handled by each of the districts during 1980, and changes from 1976:

Traffic citations — District I, 1,287 (up 36 percent); District II, 2,323 (down 52 percent); District III, 635 (down 26 percent).

Summary complaints — District I, 161 (up 48 percent); District II, 413 (up 59 percent); District III, 125 (up 36 percent).

Non-traffic citations — District I, 282 (up 129 percent); District II, none; District III, 37 (up nine percent).

Civil complaints — District I, 111 (up 19 percent); District II, 121 (up 73 percent); District III, 76 (up 17 percent).

Misdemeanors and felonies — District I, 131 (up 18 percent); District II, 146 (up 12 percent); District III, 137 (up 43 percent).

Total cases — District I, 1,972 (up 34 percent); District II, 3,003 (up 43 percent); District III, 1,011 (up 21 percent).

It was noted that the District III office was destroyed in 1978 by a fire in the Carmichaels Borough Building and was closed for some time.

Sandra Lee Brock And David Grimes Marry

The Throckmorton United Methodist Church in Eastview was the setting for the wedding of Sandra Lee Brock and David Reed Grimes on June 28, 1981.

The Rev. Robert Ryan officiated at the 2 p.m. ceremony. The nuptial music was played by Joyce Johnson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Brock of Spraggs R.D.1. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Grimes of Waynesburg R.D.4.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She wore a full-length gown of white taffeta and lace featuring a lace bodice with a ruffled neckline and long lace sleeves. A lace-trimmed double flounce edged the skirt.

She wore a white picture hat trimmed with blue daisies and carried a bouquet of pastel colored daisies, carnations, pompons and baby's breath. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace and earrings. All bridal traditions were observed in her attire.

Cynthia Grimes of Waynesburg, sister of the bridegroom, attended as maid of honor. She wore a full-length pale blue gown with a matching picture hat.

Mark Fonner of Sycamore R.D.1 served as best man. The ushers were Mark Grimes and Danny Grimes, brothers of the bridegroom.

The reception was held immediately following the service in the social room of the church. Susan Grimes, sister of the bridegroom was in charge of the bride's book. Out-of-town guests were from Masontown and Monaca.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Waynesburg Central High School and the Greene County Vocational-Technical School.

MRS. DAVID R. GRIMES

She is also a 1980 graduate of the West Virginia Career College, Morgantown, and is employed as a dental technician at West Virginia University Hospital.

The bridegroom attended Waynesburg Central High School and the Greene County Vocational-Technical School and is employed by Burke's Amoco Station, Waynesburg.

DeVito-Brown Vows Exchanged

JEFFERSON — St. Marcellus Church in Jefferson was the setting at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 11, 1981, for the wedding of Nancy J. DeVito and Charles P. Brown. The Rev. John R. Chess presided at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert DeVito of Jefferson. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brown of College Park, Md.

Delbert R. Gardner Jr., director of music at St. Peter's Church, Brownsville, was organist and soloist. Ann DeVito, sister of the bride, served as lector for the nuptial mass.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a sleeveless white polyester organza gown, featuring a "V" neckline trimmed with silk venise lace with triple flounce covering the shoulders. A full skirt attached at the Empire waistline was finished with lace and a double flared flounce extended into a brush train.

Her walking-length veil of silk illusion was caught to a lace-trimmed headdress studded with seed pearls and she wore short, sheer gloves with ruffled cuffs. She carried a cascade of white rosebuds, daisies and baby's breath and carried out all traditions in her ensemble.

Janice DeVito of Jefferson attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ann and Barbara DeVito of Jefferson, also sisters of the bride; Terry DeVito of Virginia, sister-in-law of the bride; Linda Brown of Maryland, sister of the bridegroom, and Krystal Karolwitz of Jefferson. The attendants wore gowns of lilac tint d'spirit.

Jenny DeVito of Virginia served as flower girl for her aunt.

Robert Spurlock of Maryland was best man. Ushers were Gary Cartwright of North Carolina, cousin of the bridegroom; Fred DeVito of Virginia, brother of the bride; Peter Vann of Virginia, and Bill Love and Glen Watkins of Maryland.

A reception was held at the Lone Pine Golf Club at Washington with Linda Kolat and Mark Knight attending the guest book. Out-of-state guests attended from New York, Ohio, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of California State College and teaches in the Prince William County School in Virginia. The bridegroom, a 1973 graduate of Towson State College, is a teacher and coach in Prince Georges County School in Maryland.

Following a wedding trip to the Poconos, the newlyweds will reside in Upper Marlboro, Md.

Terie Lee McLauthlin, Robert Henderson Wed

The Green Valley Church of God, Crucible, was the setting for the wedding of Terie Lee McLauthlin and Robert Wayne Henderson. The Rev. William A. Barnes officiated at the 2:30 p.m. double ring ceremony, Saturday, July 11, 1981.

Paul Valo was the organist and soloist. Ann Godfrey, sister of the bridegroom, also sang.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McLauthlin of 392 Sentry Lane, Westerville, Ohio. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Henderson of Rices Landing R.D.1.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride appeared in a gown featuring a laced bodice with lace and pearl trim and a pleated skirt with lace trim and a full-length train. Her fingertip-length veil of matching lace was trimmed with pearls.

Jennifer Gibson of Ohio attended her friend as maid of honor. The flower girls were Susan Testa and Karen Mattox of Virginia and Lisa Imondi of Ohio, friends of the bride, and Donetta Henderson of Rices Landing, sister of the bridegroom. They were identically attired in peach colored gowns.

The flower girl was Katie Holdren, daughter of the best man. Chastity Henderson, niece of the bridegroom, was the train bearer.

Jim Holdren of Ohio attended his friend as best man. The ushers were Steve Henderson and Kevin Henderson of Rices Landing, brothers of the bridegroom, and Mike McKenzie and Art Van Tassel, uncle of the bride, both of Ohio.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Westerville North High School and is employed with Rouch Hardware in Ohio. The bridegroom is a 1978 graduate of Carmichaels Area High School and is also employed by Rouch Hardware.

4-H Clubs Model Fashions

WAYNESBURG — "Entering the Eighties" was the theme of the 1981 4-H Fashion Revue held Thursday, July 16, at the First Baptist Church of Waynesburg.

Members of 4-H clubs throughout Greene County modeled outfits they made as part of their club projects.

Competition was held at the senior and junior levels. The four senior division winners will represent the county in the Southwest Region Fashion Revue to be held Thursday, July 23, at New Kensington. Winners there will go to Penn State for the state fashion revue Aug. 11.

Winners in the senior division, in the order in which they placed, were Tracy Cobert, Jefferson Community Club; Pam Kerr, Carmichaels Club; Vicki LaCount, East Franklin Club, and Lorna Varner, East Franklin.

The six junior division winners, as they placed, were Sioux McCann, Carmichaels Club; Rhonda Mankey, East Franklin; Amy Osso, East Franklin; Becky Titus, Carmichaels; Sharon McDougal, Spraggs Club, and Lisa Torri, East Franklin.

The annual fashion revue ends the club year for clothing club members. In addition to increasing their skills in clothing construction, those in the clubs learn about wardrobe selection, color coordination, the importance of good posture, physical fitness and other aspects of good grooming.

Lorna Varner narrated the revue. Irene Gopen of Waynesburg and Mary Ann Laychak of Washington were judges. Mary Childs of the Greene County Historical Society presented a program on spinning during the afternoon.

Jean M. Elicker, Greene County extension home economist, coordinated the event. Lorna Varner, Kim Kerr and Becky Titus served on the fashion show committee. Amy Osso, Tracy Cobert, Amanda Cohn and Janette Schuster were on the decorations committee, and Vicki LaCount, Pam Kerr, Kimberly Montgomery and Diana Stewart were on the refreshments committee.

Boards Elects New Officers

WAYNESBURG — The board of directors of Greene Valley Farms Inc. have elected officers.

The agency owns and operates a 100-acre farm near Oak Forest chartered in 1968 as a rehabilitation home for alcoholics. There are 14 men living at the farm.

Officers re-elected were J. Kenneth Willison, president; Fred T. Gillogly, vice president, and the Rev. Robert E. Borland, treasurer. Helen J. Eddy was elected secretary to succeed Donnis Shultz, who received the thanks of the organization for her many years of service.

Five new members were welcomed to the board of directors: Charles J. Donovan of Mt. Morris, Helen J. Eddy and Jesse N. Eddy of Waynesburg, Myra Gibson of New Freeport and Ed Haywood of Jefferson.

Haywood is a son of Cliff Haywood, a charter member of the organization. The Rev. Borland conducted a memorial service for Haywood, who died June 26, 1981, and for Dr. Gordon R. Jones, who died Nov. 1, 1972, another of the five founders of the farm.

ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Jackson of 806 Race Street, Waynesburg announce the engagement of their daughter, Lisa Ann, to John A. MacLeod, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. MacLeod of 7618 Lisle Avenue, Falls Church, Va.

They are both 1980 graduates of Waynesburg College. The bride-elect is employed as an associate analyst for Potomac Electric Power Company in Washington, D.C.

Her fiancé is employed with Northern Virginia Training Center for the mentally retarded as activity program coordinator at Fairfax, Va.

An October 3, 1981, wedding is being planned by the couple.

WARD REUNION

Descendants of James and Dela Ward will hold their annual reunion Sunday, July 26, at Glen Dale (W.Va.) Park. A picnic lunch is scheduled for 12 noon. All family members and friends are invited.

Hospital Hosts Theater Group

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Memorial Hospital will host three performances of "Practical Cats" by the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Stage Company at noon, 2 and 4 p.m. Wednesday, July 29, on the Greene County Courthouse steps.

In the play, T.S. Eliot's poems introduce children to man's other best friends—felines.

Appearing in the children's reading theater production are Metro actors Jim Boerlin and Shirley Tannebaum. Boerlin joined the Metro in 1978 after appearances off-broadway and in films and network television. Shirley Tannebaum has appeared in five Metro productions and has been seen in stock and professional theater throughout Pennsylvania.

The Pittsburgh Metropolitan Stage Company is in its third year as a resident professional theater in Pittsburgh.

Seating will be on the courthouse steps. The presentation will be given on the sidewalk. There will be no admission charge.

Community Events

RIFLE CLUB PICNIC
The Dunkard Valley Rifle Club at Brave will hold a picnic for club members and their families at 1 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 2, at the club. All members and their families are invited to attend. Everything will be furnished except dessert, and those attending may bring a dessert of their choice.

Mrs. Wilford Burns of Washington.

ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Edgar of Ninth Street, Waynesburg, announce the engagement of their daughter Janet to Fred Montoya of Anaheim, Calif., son of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Montoya of El Paso, Texas. Miss Edgar, a resident of Annandale, Va., is a 1973 graduate of Waynesburg Central High School and a 1978 graduate of Indiana University of Pennsylvania with a degree in sociology. She is employed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Washington, D.C. Mr. Montoya graduated in 1973 from W. H. Burgess High School at El Paso, Texas. He attended the University of Texas at El Paso, where he received a B.S. degree in criminal justice and an M.A. degree in sociology. He is employed as an investigator for the federal government in Los Angeles, Calif. An Oct. 10, 1981, wedding date has been set by the couple.

BAND PARENTS

WAYNESBURG — Parents of Waynesburg Central High School band members were reminded at a meeting of the band boosters last week that the band will be performing their football show in new uniforms on Saturday, Aug. 1, at the conclusion of band camp at Bethany College.

Although the school district furnishes transportation to the camp, the members pay $66 to attend and find their own transportation home.

Boosters were introduced to instructors from the Cassevaux Clinic, who will be working with the majorettes and color guard, and Bill Parker, who has volunteered his time to help with the musicians.

Band camp will be held from July 26 through Aug. 1.

SENIOR CITIZENS GOLF

A senior citizens golf tournament, sponsored by the Southwestern Pennsylvania Area Agency on Aging (AAA) Advisory and Nutrition Councils, will be held Aug. 12 at Linden Hall near Perryopolis.

The tournament will be divided into four age groups for men and women: 60-64, 65-69, 70-74, and 75 years of age and over. Cost will be $4.50 for green fees and $12.50 for cart rental. Top finalists will be invited to participate in the fourth annual "Over 60" Golf Tournament at Hershey on Sept. 1.

Other activities will be available for individuals not taking part in the tournament, including swimming, fishing, shuffleboard, tennis and tours of the Linden Hall Mansion. To register, call the AAA district office at 852-1510.

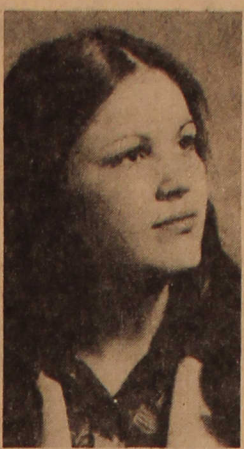

Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Wood of Holbrook will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house at their home from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, July 26. Friends and relatives are invited. Mrs. Wood is the daughter of the late Charles Wise and Rachel Platt Wise of Waynesburg and Mr. Wood is the son of the late Thomas Wood and Estella Minton Wood of Holbrook. They were married July 27, 1931, in Canonsburg by the late Rev. George W. Buckner. Mr. and Mrs. Wood are members of the Holbrook Christian Church. Mr. Wood is a retired employee of the National Transit Oil Company. They are the parents of two daughters, Mrs. Wayne L. (Helen) Clark of Waynesburg and Mrs. Donald (Martha Jean) Tedrow of Cleveland, Ohio. They also have four grandchildren, Joe and Barbara Clark and Donna and Cindy Tedrow. Mr. and Mrs. Wood request no gifts.

60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George Policz Sr. of Jefferson R.D.1 celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary with family and friends with a picnic dinner June 13 at their home. The occasion also marked the 88th birthday of Mr. Policz, the son of the late John and Susie Duzik Policz. He is a retired coal miner from the Mather Collieries. His wife, Julia Urban Policz, is the daughter of the late Matthew and Julia Benic Urban. They were married at the Jefferson Baptist Church on June 13, 1921, by the Rev. Andrew Swasko. They have 14 children, 46 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren. They belong to St. Paul Lutheran Church, Carmichaels.

Faces From The Past—Do You Recognize Them

Another Rain Day Loser

John Daily, right, the Waynesburg Rain Day prophet, is hoping for another scene like this one in which the late Harry Keck, sports editor of a Pittsburgh newspaper, paid off his debt for having lost the annual Rain Day bet. In the center is the Kenneth Baily, a local banker who played the role of stake holder that year.

Old-Fashioned Fairs Still Have Their Charm

The season of summer fairs will get underway next week, and if experience is any criteria they will draw huge crowds. The first of the outdoor attractions is the Jack-town Fair at Wind Ridge, hailed by the sponsoring Richhill Agricultural Society as "the oldest continually operating fair in the United States." The 116th edition will begin Tuesday, July 28, and run through Saturday of that week. It will be followed by the Greene County Fair the week of August 8 and the Washington County Fair the week of August 15.

Although there may be some new rides and entertainment features, everyone who attends will know pretty much what to expect.

The livestock barns will be hot and noisy, the exhibition halls will be filled with colorful flowers, fancy needlework, arts and crafts items, grange and 4-H booths, home-canned foods, and fruits and vegetables that many an amateur gardener will be sure he could duplicate — or top.

The midway will feature the traditional games, rides and stands with their crowd-grabbing barkers. There will be horse races, horse pulling contests, long days of livestock judging, and jammed 4-H stock shows and sales.

And there will be people by the thousands. In an age when television is king of the entertainment business, and when good roads put other forms of diversion within easy reach of everyone, it is perhaps surprising that the old-fashioned fairs continue to thrive.

But the unchanging character of the country fair is probably its biggest charm. People, despite their sophistication, still seem to enjoy some of the more traditional ways of having a good time.

Court Rules Road To Remain Open

WAYNESBURG — Henry Hollow Road in Springhill Township will remain open despite the efforts of a property owner to have it vacated on the grounds that it is "useless, inconvenient and burdensome" to the township. The Greene County Court handed down an order Monday in which it ruled that the rural road has been maintained sufficiently to bear traffic and that it is no more of a burden to the township than is any road on its system. Victor Zeni of Monongahela, who owns property along the road, petitioned the Springhill Township board of supervisors on Feb. 23, 1979, to close the road from State Route 3001 (Wagonrun Road) a distance of 1.5 miles to its intersection with Township Route 377. He contended that it was virtually impassable and dangerous.

When the supervisors refused, Zeni took his case to court and a board of viewers was appointed to look into the matter. The board of viewers held a hearing at which Zeni presented core testings in an effort to prove that there was no base on the road and that it had not been graveled for at least five years. He also claimed it was seldom used except during hunting season. But the supervisors and 15 other witnesses argued against the abandonment and presented a petition signed by 70 residents who supported their position. When the board of viewers upheld the position of the supervisors, Zeni appealed their decision and asked the court to reverse it. In dismissing the exceptions, the court finalized its order that the road remain open to the public.

College Receives $25,000 Grant

WAYNESBURG — The Charlotte W. Newcombe Foundation for student scholarships has awarded Waynesburg College a $25,000 grant which will be used to challenge churches and individuals for matching funds. Joseph F. Marsh, president of Waynesburg College, announced the grant and said it would play an important role in the college's effort to find new sources of scholarship support. "Waynesburg College has a tradition of providing financial-aid opportunities for deserving students," Marsh said. "In the face of proposed decreases in government monies available for scholarship support, the college has begun a systematic, intensive search for new sources of voluntary support from individuals, churches, organizations, foundations and business and industry. "The Newcombe Foundation grant will serve as an example of the type of support that Waynesburg College is seeking," he said. He also said that the Charlotte W. Newcombe Endowed Scholarship Fund is being established at the college to assist needy students. Mrs. Newcombe was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church and was a strong supporter of its ministry and mission. Although her older sister and younger brother were college graduates, Mrs. Newcombe never attended college.

Bobtown Couple Awarded $741

WAYNESBURG — A Bobtown couple has been awarded $741 in damages for water damage done to their home when a contractor drove a nail into a water pipe while installing paneling in a basement bedroom. A Greene County arbitration board ruled that the damages should be paid to George and Olga Brozik.

Her eyesight was impaired by a childhood accident and she could not read for long enough periods to make serious study possible. Mrs. Newcombe set a high value on a college education, however, and during her lifetime sent the children of many of her friends to college and took a vigorous interest in their progress. She established the Charlotte W. Newcombe Foundation to continue her scholarship gifts.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

The community of Waynesburg and neighboring Franklin Township lost one of its most cultivated and public spirited residents in the death of Atty. Albert A. Sayers at the age of 72 last Sunday. His death followed an illness of four years and occurred at his home on North Morris Street in the spacious brick homestead which was the former residence of a revered uncle, J.T. Rogers and later became the home of Mr. Sayer's own parents, the late Judge A.H. and Mrs. Florinda Bridges Sayers who also reared their own family of Atty. James Sayers of Pittsburgh and their daughter Miss Katherine Sayers, now deceased.

The death of Mr. Sayers came peacefully last Sunday morning in the setting most dear to his heart under the same roof where his parents spent their final years, as did his sister and where he and his wife, the former Jane M. Scott, reared their own son, Albert Sayers Jr., now of Washington, D.C. and their two daughters, Mrs. Charles (Katherine) Reed of Tallahassee, Fla. and Mrs. Margaret Upshaw of Jacksonville, Fla. It was the same home in which many of the family members and long time friends from his own boyhood days spent many happy hours when they dropped in from time to time when "back home" for a few hours to rekindle the joy of youthful escapades.

It was the home that was in a setting dear to the heart of Mr. Sayers, dearer by far in many ways than the numerous places of scenic and historic interest which he had visited from time to time in his adolescence also than the more distant places later in life and to the other side of the globe as a Navy lieutenant in the Pacific theater of World War II. From his mother, a native of Indiana who came to Waynesburg as an art teacher, Mr. Sayers had inherited considerable talent and had it not been for the family tradition in the legal profession would have preferred to have been a professional artist.

From his father and grandfather who had played leading roles in preserving the original colonial day Waynesburg Commons from commercial development to become the community's outstanding aesthetic heritage in its excellent system of five parks are unmatched in most communities the size of Waynesburg. Mr. Sayers devoted much of his time and efforts in other public or quasipublic institutions for the cultural enrichment of the community. These included 40 years service as a trustee of Waynesburg College and consistent financial assistance to its expansion and growth.

He was an organizer and past chairman of the Greene County chapter of the Pennsylvania Economy League through which many industries were brought to the county and was a long time president of Green Mount Cemetery Association. He also served many terms on the Waynesburg Borough School Board.

Although Mr. Sayers had traveled to many parts of the world and had a cultural background which was steeped in the classics of art and literature which was cosmopolitan in scope, he never lost touch with the scenes of the friends of his youth. Through his professional career he became acquainted with many persons of affluence, prestige and varying measures of fame but they never in any way lessened his respect for his fellow townsmen who by their own diligence, honesty and particular skills and expertise had, so to speak "made it on their own."

Along with the noted Pittsburgh historian-folklorist, George Swetnam, who came north from Alabama to write the history of "The Pennsylvania County" OF Western Pennsylvania, South-eastern Ohio and North-western West Virginia, of which Greene County is about the geographical center, Mr. Sayers regarded the people of his native county as among the most resourceful, most stalwart and industrious of any comparable area in the nation.

And for the county's center of population in Waynesburg, he had a fondness that never flickered. From his great-uncles, the late William and Albert Allison, the two drug store clerks who first preserved the observations of the unknown farmer who originally noticed the unusual sequence of Waynesburg's July 29th Rain Day showers, has come world wide publicity from this unique bit of weather lore.

During the most troubled days of Waynesburg College, the late Dr. Paul R. Stewart often said he found his most dependable source of financial help and encouragement came from various members of the Sayers family until full academic accreditation was achieved.

During the last few years of his life, Atty. Albert Sayers gradually cleared his office files in which he discovered a bonanza of miscellany of town and gown memorabilia which in years to come will be the most appropriate living type of memorial for one whose love for both town and gown was second only to that of his own family and of his ancestors.

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

It's here again — July 29, the day for which Waynesburg is now world famous. If it rains here again this Wednesday it will put the record at 92 out of 105 times that it has rained in this town on that date. Of course the early records are pure folklore, handed down by word of mouth, but since the late 1930's, the record has been accurately kept by all kinds of media—from party line telephones to television via satellite.

Collecting bits of local lore which has made Waynesburg such an interesting place to live for natives and newcomers alike was a long time hobby of Atty. Albert A. Sayers who died July 19 after a long illness. Perpetuating these interesting facets of community life was one of his favorite hobbies which will enrich the future of the community for many years to come.

It was nice seeing two former "Waynesburgers" who were born and reared in this area but who have lived in the Seattle, Wash., area since having been in military service there during World War II. They were Fred and Lowell Thomas, whose parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thomas. They are nephews of the late Clyde Thomas, former superintendent of the Franklin Township schools. They visited their sisters, Miss Betty Thomas and Mrs. Mary Joy Andrews.

In anticipation of the upcoming birthday on July 29 of John H. Hughes of Waynesburg R.D.4 (Rogersville road), he and Mrs. Hughes hosted a family dinner and reunion July 19. Those present included their children, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Filer and daughter, Larissa; Mrs. Brenda Scritchfield, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hughes and daughter, Rebecca; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hughes and daughter, Lori and sons David and James. Others attending were Muriel White, Herbert Staggers, Nancy Wahula and Carl Hughes. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Phillips of Winter Park, Fla., Mrs. Cassie Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy and son, Kerry, and Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Hughes of Cameron, W.Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Lou Kinsell of Clarksville.

The Rohanna Restaurant and Lounge on old Route 21, four miles east of Waynesburg, which has been closed since the death earlier this summer of the manager, Joseph Rohanna, has been reopened under the management of Joseph Pawlosky of Greensboro Star Route. Pawlosky, who operated a restaurant in Waynesburg for several years, is also a county commissioner.

Mrs. Viola Walker, well-known Waynesburg musician and a Red Cross volunteer swimming instructor, has recovered sufficiently from extended surgery in a Pittsburgh hospital to take strolls around the pool deck while observing the teaching program of which she had been a part ever since moving to Waynesburg from Altoona more than 20 years ago.

Concert Presented

WAYNESBURG — The musical group, "Trapezoid" will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, July 25, at the Waynesburg Moose. Proceeds from the concert will benefit the Warrior Trail School.

Based in the mountains of West Virginia, the group is composed of Paul Reisler, guitar and hammered dulcimer; Lorraine Duisit, vocals, mandola and bowed psaltery; Ralph Gordon, bass and cello; and Freyda Epstein, vocals and fiddle.

The group performs a variety of music, an engaging blend of old fiddle tunes, Irish melodies, jazzy swing, folk music, strong original songs and sweet harmonies. They have performed at a number of major festivals and performance centers, on television and radio broadcasts, and have recently released their third album.

IU Meeting

Intermediate Unit I board of directors will hold its monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 23, in the board room of the Central Office, 1148 Wood Street, California.

STAND ALONE

Tradition is a fine thing when used to set a course in life — it's useless employed as an anchor.

REPORT FROM

HARRISBURG

BY
 Rep. H. William DeWeese

LEGION GATHERS

The American Legion's Pennsylvania branch met in convention in Pittsburgh last week and I was fortunate in being invited by the state chapter to address the large gathering.

Several other political figures also spoke to the body, among them U.S. Senator H. John Heinz III and State Senator Edward M. Earley (D-Allegheny County). Mr. Heinz spoke of the recent Congressional passage of legislation to assist the victims and their families of Agent Orange — the incredibly poisonous defoliant employed to eliminate the jungle and ground cover from the landscape during the Vietnam War.

The senator received much applause when he told the delegates that the government would not neglect those who came to its defense during this bitter conflict, the memory of which has not been forgotten by these Legionnaires.

I spoke to the group of Boys' State, the annual assembly held on the campus of Millersville State College near Harrisburg. For the past two years I have been invited to speak to the young men whom individual Legion posts have selected to represent them in a simulated political convention.

The boys form political parties, write a platform and select nominees for high office. The experience is an invaluable one, if only because the week spent there breathes new life into the tired, dusty platitudes of the civics textbooks in high schools. It's one thing to read about how a political convention operates, but quite another to actually participate in one!

My talk to the Legionnaires chided them for the swindling participation of the young in political life. It is remarkable to learn that 1,200 youths assembled in the 1940 meet, while only 289 attended in 1980. (This year's total was about 300. I could not learn the exact figure when I addressed the boys on June 16.)

The numbers have fluctuated over the past 45 years (the first conclave was held in 1936), but I could not help but think that this Commonwealth's posts could do far better now. If the Legion could attract 1,200 young men in the depths of the Great Depression that we today — at a far more prosperous time in this nation's history — ought to do far better than 300 or 400.

In my address to the Legionnaires I stressed the importance of post leadership and community involvement. It's all right for hundreds of veterans to gather and to remember the past — to recall long-vanished days in both the South Pacific and Europe, and elsewhere in Europe and Asia, where so many fought and gave their lives in World War II.

Yet to dwell on nostalgia alone will not help maintain the American Legion as one of the pre-eminent lobbying groups for veterans in this country. It is all too easy to forget that World War II ended nearly 36 years ago this summer. It's impossible to forget that this country ought to investigate, and above all resolve, the medical problems created for younger veterans by the baleful presence of Agent Orange in their lives.

Time will tell whether more young men attend the 1982 Boys' State meeting at Millersville, and time will tell whether more veterans will join to further the work of the American Legion in the troubled times we live in today.

Between The Bookends

Marcia McKenna Biddle

My friends Mazy and Honey Bunch dropped in the other morning to make an announcement.

"Elmer is refusing to raise Honey Bunche's allowance," Mazy told me.

"What else is new?" I yawned. "Elmer hasn't given Honey Bunch a raise in her household allowance since hamburger was 39 cents a pound."

"But this year Honey Bunch is going to do something about it," Mazy said.

"What is she going to do—go on strike, refuse to go shopping for groceries?" I laughed. Honey Bunch frowned at me.

"It may come to that," Mazy said, "but Honey Bunch is going into negotiations first."

"I don't envy her," I said. "Elmer is no George Steinbrenner."

"No, Elmer doesn't believe in high salaries. He says Honey Bunch is lucky he gives her a roof over her head."

"Elmer is a hard-liner," I agreed. "How does Honey Bunch propose to bring him to the bargaining table?" "Well, if he won't negotiate, she is going to declare herself a free agent."

"Wow!" I cried. "She's not going to leave him, is she?" "No, not immediately. She is willing to play out her option."

"I think Honey Bunch needs a lawyer," I said. "This plan sounds dangerous."

"She is getting an agent." "Oh, is he a part-time dentist, like the famous football agent?"

"No, he is a taxidermist. But he claims he can get Honey Bunch her price. He has a new contract ready for Elmer's signature."

"But what if Elmer won't sign?" I worried.

"He'll sign," Mazy said, "or Honey Bunch will ask to be traded to Cincinnati."

"Why would Honey Bunch want to go to Cincinnati?" "She doesn't. That's just a bargaining position. Elmer won't let her go because there's no compensation clause in the contract."

"This is beginning to sound complicated," I said. "What is a compensation clause?" "Who knows?" Mazy sniffed. "But it seems to be important. In other words, Elmer is not going to trade her without getting something in return."

"I hope he isn't going to trade her at all!" I cried.

"Honey Bunche's agent assures her that Elmer will come to terms before that happens." "I don't understand negotiations," Mazy snapped. "You have to use threats."

"But what if Elmer threatens to get an agent, too, and hold out for a compensation clause?"

"He won't. He's too cheap. He'll try to handle the negotiations himself, and when Honey Bunche's agent is through with him Elmer will probably give her a bonus, as well as a long-term contract." "I hope so. But remember what happened to Keith Gray and Vince Ferragamo. I just hope Honey Bunch doesn't end up in Canada!"

Honey Bunch brightened. "Maybe if I become a free agent, I could negotiate with Vince Ferragamo, instead of Elmer!"

"Honey Bunch," I said, "that idea is not all bad!"

Area Man Receives Citation

MT. MORRIS — William O. Seymour, associate professor of journalism at West Virginia University and a resident of the Mt. Morris area, has received a citation from the National Press Photographers Association.

The citation is for work as a regional magazine editor, teaching and chairing the association's freedom of information committee.

Seymour and professor Joseph Costa of Ball State University also received a $1,000 grant from the association for research in photojournalism — the first such awarded presented.

WAYNESBURG — The seventh annual Greene County Walter Hagen Golf Tournament will be held Saturday.

Banjo Player Assured Of Appreciative Audiences

Otto Hohing playing banjo

By JIM MOORE
Staff Writer
WAYNESBURG — Depending on who you are talking to, Otto Hohing of Waynesburg is either a "Poor Man's Lawrence Welk" or the nation's oldest disc jockey.

A native of Frostburg, Md., the 69-year-old banjo player has become a Pied Piper for the senior citizen crowd in Greene County and is becoming so popular at local functions he may soon need a booking agent.

His Tuesday performances at the Senior Citizen Center in Waynesburg have attracted overflow crowds during the daily luncheons. He is a familiar figure at local clubs, churches, fire halls and just about any place where people congregate for a good time and good music.

Although he has been a local resident for only three years, he and his wife Lucy have easily slipped into the mainstream of Greene County life and are popular additions to many social functions.

Following a 40-year career with Crucible Steel Company as a cost accountant, Otto and his wife chose to settle in Greene County where there son and his family found a home a few years earlier. "Actually, the location is perfect," Otto said. "We still have friends in Pittsburgh and Midland and some relatives back home in Maryland. This way we are about half way between both."

Otto left Frostburg during the depression to attend business college in Philadelphia and then became a clerk for the Crucible Steel Company in 1937 in Pittsburgh. He remained there until 1964 when the plant closed and was transferred to the Midland plant. The family lived in Industry until his retirement in 1976.

Otto lived in Dormont while he worked in Pittsburgh and one of his neighbors was Slim Bryant, one of the most popular country musicians in the area. A close associate and caller for Bryant for almost two decades, Otto made several trips to Greene County during the 1950s, near Nineveh, and consequently fell in love with the area.

During this period he also expanded his repertoire on the banjo. Although he took violin lessons for six years and "never improved" he is self-taught on the banjo. "A family friend was teaching me violin while courting my aunt and he bought me a ukulele as a present. This was during the era when ukuleles were so popular and I took to it right away," Otto said. It was a natural transition to the banjo and thousands of songs later, Otto is still plunking.

Otto is actually the third in line with that name. His grandfather Otto was a sheriff in Allegany County, Md., and his father Otto was in the clothing business in Frostburg. Otto IV, who moved to Rogersville in 1976, is a salesman with Fox Auto Sales in Waynesburg and Otto V is too young to be anything but a boy.

Citing the lack of men at many of the senior citizen functions, Otto has of necessity become a dancer also. Not only is he a willing dance partner but many times must teach some of the older dance steps. One his most happy partners is a 92-year-old widow who tries all the steps and squeals with joy while attempting them.

His wife Lucy, a registered nurse, was an active square dancer with Otto until recent years but because of open heart surgery and other health problems has had to remain a non-participating, but vocal supporter of Otto's music.

Otto became active with square dancing as the result of YMCA-sponsored events in South Hills. He does little calling these days but his playing dates are numerous. He works with the Koal Krackin' Klowns, plays at senior citizen centers in Waynesburg and Carmichaels, and will be featured along with other musicians on Rain Day at the Hillcrest Shoppes.

He prefers the smaller audiences because he likes to stroll among the people and not stand on a stage for long periods of time. His music, which he calls the "golden, golden oldies" dates back to the twenties.

They also have a daughter Mrs. Susan Comfort of St. Joseph, Mich., who hopes to visit her parents this summer.

Decision Promised Within Week

Board Gets Damage Claims

CARMICHAELS — Claims for damages for flooded basements during the early stages of customer hook-ups to the sewer system in 1977 were presented to the Carmichaels-Cumberland Joint Sewer Authority at its meeting Tuesday night.

Attending the meeting were three residents who were among those that had been served with notices that water would be shut off due to delinquent sewer bills.

Two of the residents said they had let their sewer bills add up until they matched approximately their claims for damages, hoping to settle the claims in that manner.

Another resident had basement flooding in 1975, prior to the new line being installed on Brown's Ferry Road. The resident had waited until now to see if the new line completely solved his problem. The authority said that the time lapse for his claim for damages will be hard to justify to the insurance carrier.

The authority had notified residents, by way of newspapers in early stages of the sewer project, to submit any damage claims and they were in turn submitted to the insurance carrier for settlement.

Chairman Steve Morris said the three claims will be resolved within the week and the residents notified of the board's decision.

Plant superintendent Edgar Harris reported that PennDOT has advised the authority that a section of East George Street has developed a "dip" and requested that it be repaired. Harris explained this area is where quicksand was encountered when the sewer line was laid across the road. Flyash was used to shore up the road. He said repairs would require an overlay of one road section to remove the dip. This is a state maintained road. Harris, the engineer, Bruce Chambers, and contractor Alex Paris will meet with PennDOT to determine who is liable for the repair costs.

Harris also reported that McMillen Excavating is presently installing the 12-inch force main from Ceylon Road to the treatment plant. Work is now centered in the Cranberry Alley area. Harris said that alley will require full width paving after the construction is completed. He asked the authority members to inspect the deteriorated condition of the alley prior to its being torn up for construction.

Solicitor James Hook reported the budget is to be completed in August and he will present it to Carmichaels Borough Council and Cumberland Township supervisors at their September meetings. The fiscal year of the authority has been changed to operate from Oct. 1, 1981, to Sept. 30, 1982. The authority anticipates no increase in user rates in this budget. The authority said they would, in fact, see the rates decrease when it is all feasible.

The meeting recessed until 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 28.

Equitable Employee Promoted

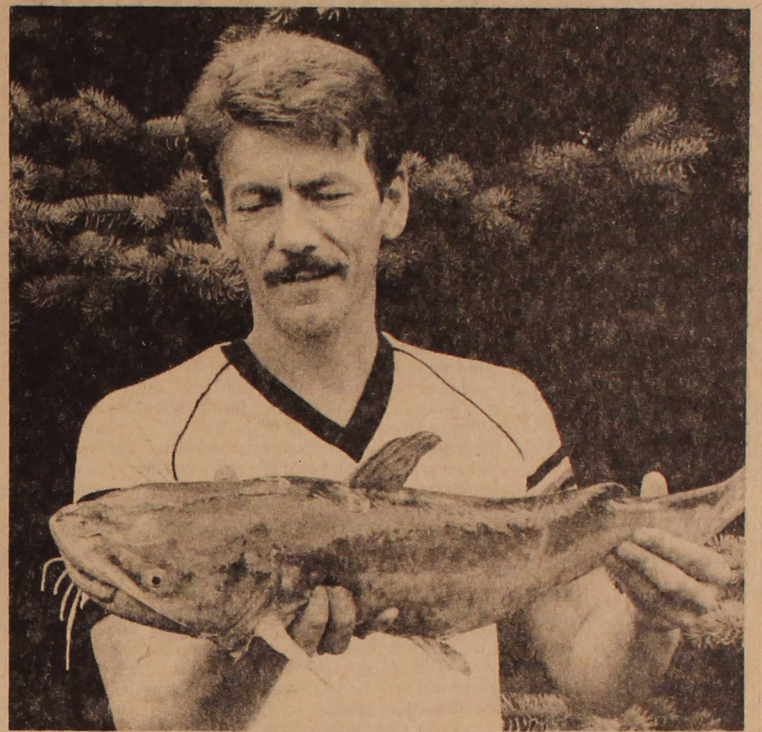

William F. Connor was recently promoted to the position of division superintendent, Division H, production and transportation department of Equitable Gas Company, located in Waynesburg.

Connor joined Equitable as a messenger in 1957 and served in various capacities before being appointed supervisor of customer service and regulation in the Division E office, McKeesport, in 1980.

He is a graduate of East McKeesport High School and received an associate of arts degree from the Allegheny Community College, Boyce Campus, in 1976.

Connor is a senior member of the Instrument Society of America, Pittsburgh chapter. He served as a corporal in the U.S. Army from 1961 to 1963.

He and his wife, Maggie live on Taylor Street in North Versailles and are the parents of two children, Eric and John.

The Cat's Meow?

Bob Watson of 325 North Market Street, Carmichaels, didn't mind bragging about the big fish he caught in the Monongahela River Wednesday, but he was pretty cagey about just where he pulled it out. The Fish Commission has been stocking the river with Mississippi Blue catfish for the past two years, and his catch was the largest reported to date. It measured 28 inches and weighed 12 pounds. The location of the fishing hole will remain Watson's secret because he thinks there are even bigger ones lurking there.

Ben Franklin Is Rotary Topic

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg attorney William Baily, who specializes in the study of one of America's founding fathers, Benjamin Franklin, was the speaker at Monday's meeting of the Waynesburg Rotary Club.

He traced Franklin's life in detail, from his birth in Boston in 1706, as the 15th of 17 children born to a soap maker, to his death on April 17, 1790, as one of the most respected citizens of the nation he helped found.

Although he was extremely poor at the outset, Baily said, Franklin's work in a printing shop in Philadelphia brought him to the attention of colonial authorities who sent him to England to procure printing presses for the colony of Pennsylvania.

Upon his return, he was able to launch his own career as a printer, a career which lasted for 25 years and brought him wealth and popularity. He eventually published two newspapers, the Pennsylvania Gazette and Poor Richard's Almanac, and a magazine, the well-known Saturday Evening Post.

Baily said that many Americans are not aware of Franklin's popularity in Europe, where his sayings, proverbs and home-spun philosophies were translated into French, German and Italian.

But his lasting fame is also based on his achievements in the fields of science, public service and diplomatic missions.

"To cite a few of his achievements in science, we can list the Franklin stove, the discovery of lead poisoning and development of bifocals. He discovered the use of lime on acid soil, leading to the use of fertilizers in agriculture; charted the 'rivers of the ocean,' the most famous of which is the Gulf Stream; and invented the lightning rod, positive-negative poles on batteries, the condenser and the armature."

Baily noted that his achievements were recognized in Europe, where he was elected as a member of both the Royal Society of London and the French Academy, which were unusual honors for an American.

In Philadelphia he organized the first street paving project, organized the first volunteer fire company and first fire insurance company, established the first organized militia in Pennsylvania, founded the first hospital, and established a school which later grew into the University of Pennsylvania.

As assistant postmaster for all the colonies he improved service throughout the 13 colonies, and as a statesman-diplomat succeeded, as ambassador to France, in obtaining both military support and financial aid in the War for Independence. He was fluent in five languages.

Police Unable To Locate Escaped Franklin Brothers

MARTINSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — A Berkeley County man says he's willing to take a polygraph test to show authorities he's serious about a claim that he saw two convicted murderers who escaped from the Jefferson County Jail.

A reported sighting of the Franklin brothers by Charles Gregory touched off a four-hour manhunt for the Franklins last week. But police say they now have doubts about Gregory's report.

The search turned up no sign of the brothers, Charles Franklin, 25, and Warren Franklin, 23, who escaped from the Jefferson County Jail July 10.

Each club prepared its own food, with an orange drink being furnished by Mary Jane Kent, nutrition youth assistant. Following the program, the group was led in singing by Lorna Varner of the East Franklin Club. The closing circle was led by Jean Elicker, extension home economist.

State police at Martinsburg said Sunday that authorities still are searching for the Franklins, but that they had no new information about the Franklins' whereabouts.

The Franklins were being held in the jail while awaiting trial on a variety of charges, including kidnapping, stemming from an earlier escape.

On March 7, the brothers broke out of the Maryland Correctional Institution at Hagerstown, Md., where they were serving life sentences for the 1979 fatal beating of a Hagerstown man.

On July 13, Gregory told police the Franklins had threatened him with a gun as he was unlocking his mailbox.

He told police he was certain the driver of the van was Charles Franklin, to whom he had sold a truck and a car three years ago.

Police responded with an intense search for the brothers. But trooper Preston Gooden of the state police's Criminal Investigation Section said the only van they could trace to Paynes Ford Road at the time of Gregory's reported confrontation couldn't have been driven by the Franklins. He said the van belonged to the Berkeley County Sheriff's Department.

4-H Members Treated To Picnic

WIND RIDGE — Greene County 4-H Club members learned something about the way in which the rugged lifestyle of their pioneer forefathers touch on their lives during the annual 4-H picnic held Friday, July 17, at Ryerson Station State Park.

Some 87 boys and girls and their families, representing 26 Greene County clubs, attended the picnic, which was sponsored by the County 4-H

Council and the staff of the Cooperative Extension Service.

One of the highlights was a program by Roland Cadle and his wife Kathy, who told the young people about the early settlers of Monongalia County, Va. (which included Greene County) 200 years ago.

Most of those early settlers, they said, came for one of three reasons — to escape from the law, to acquire land, or to trap animals. Their lives could be related to 4-H projects of their listeners.

The Market Lamb Club heard of the necessity for raising sheep; the Sewing Club of the endless work by women and girls to keep the family in clothing; the Careers Club heard how tradesmen and craftsmen followed the pioneers after towns became established, and the Cooking Club, Baby Beef Club and Horse and Pony Clubs could see how their interests were reflected in some aspect of frontier life.

Before dinner, the 4-H members enjoyed swimming and boating and Assistant County Agent Roger Smith conducted bait casting contest. Junior Division winners were Steve Mooney, first; Adam Andrew, second, and Ryan Mooney, third. Senior Division winners were Jeff Mooney, first, and Dan Anderson, second. The two first-place winners received fishing poles.

Each club prepared its own food, with an orange drink being furnished by Mary Jane Kent, nutrition youth assistant. Following the program, the group was led in singing by Lorna Varner of the East Franklin Club. The closing circle was led by Jean Elicker, extension home economist.

Jacktown Fair Entertainment Will Feature Carla Wallenda

WIND RIDGE — Carla Wallenda, the last of the original seven Wallendas who performed the famous pyramid on the high wire, heads the list of entertainers who will be performing this year at the annual Jacktown Fair.

The fair, which will open with a parade Tuesday evening, July 28, will run through Saturday, Aug. 1, centering on the hilltop fairgrounds in Wind Ridge. It will be the 116th annual exhibition, giving it the distinction of being the longest-running consecutive fair in Pennsylvania.

Carla Wallenda and her troupe of aerialists will perform at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday, July 30 and 31, on the stage in front of the grandstand. She works atop a sway bar 110 feet above the ground.

Her father, the Great Karl Wallenda, and her husband died within months of each other from high wire accidents. A cousin was killed and her brother was permanently paralyzed when the pyramid collapsed in 1962 during a performance in Detroit. An aunt was killed in 1964 when she fell from the sway bar.

A parade at 6 p.m. Tuesday will mark the start of the fair. It will be followed by the crowning of Miss Jacktown Fair, a band contest, and appearances by guest dignitaries.

Those interested in taking part in the parade or competing in the Miss Jacktown Fair contest can contact Ronald Jesso of 164 West Franklin Street, Waynesburg, who is band director at West Greene High School. He can be reached at 627-3835 or 852-2440.

The midway will be in operation Tuesday evening, with rides and other attractions again being furnished by the Hannah Amusement Co.

Musical entertainment will be provided by the Easy Livin' Band Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings and by "Starfire," with comedian Jack Cole, on Saturday evening. The Rev. George VanRiper and his gospel music team will perform Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

Other scheduled events include lightweight and heavyweight pony pulling contests starting at 8 p.m. Wednesday, a Ladies' Leadline contest at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, a tractor pulling contest at 1 p.m. Saturday, and lightweight and heavyweight horse pulling contests starting at 8 p.m. Saturday.

All entries in the floral hall and other exhibition halls are to be submitted between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesday, July 28. Halls will be judged Wednesday, starting at 10 a.m. Livestock judging will be held Wednesday and Thursday.

Raymond McCracken, vice president of the Richhill Agricultural Society, serves as overall fair manager. Superintendents are William M. Hughes, grounds and custodian; J. Gross Dinsmore, livestock and tractor pulling contest; Helen Dinsmore, exhibition hall; C.J. Behm, horses and horse pulling contests; Thomas M. Tharp, gates and parking, and Ronald Jesso, parade.

Truck Stolen

MT. MORRIS — A 1978 Ford truck owned by Abraham George of Mt. Morris was stolen between 10 p.m. Monday and 2:15 a.m. Tuesday while it was parked in the lot at Shannopin Mine Corp. in Dunkard Township along Route 341.

Value of the half-ton, 4-wheel drive truck was listed at $5,000.

Driver Injured

CARMICHAELS — A California man was listed in satisfactory condition at Monongalia Hospital in Morgantown Monday following a one-car accident at Paisley Intersection near Carmichaels early Sunday morning.

Police said Charles Wallace, 36, of Hermosa Bay, Calif., crashed into the metal highway divider at the intersection of Routes 21 and 88.

Wallace was extricated from the wreckage by members of the Carmichaels-Cumberland Township volunteer fire company.

Girl Missing

WAYNESBURG — Alma Leonard, 15, of Waynesburg, has been reported missing and state police are seeking information as to her whereabouts.

She is five feet, four inches tall, weighs 105 pounds and has brown hair and brown eyes. When last seen at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday, she was wearing a blue shirt and blue-jean shorts.

Miss Rain Day And Court

Kimberly Huffman, center, was selected Sunday night from among 21 other contestants at the pageant to chose this year's Miss Rain Day. She will participate in various activities to be held as part of Waynesburg's annual Rain Day celebration July 29. Members of her court from the left are Jonna Shultz, Dolly Goodwin, Jamie Rohanna and Mary Annette Janco. At front is crown bearer Denielle Hoy.

Cumberland Receives $2.1 Million Grant

CARMICHAELS — Cumberland Township supervisors at their meeting Thursday night learned that environmental requirements for a $2.1 million Housing and Urban Development grant for Crucible have been met.

About $700,000 is to be allocated each year for housing rehabilitation and the construction of sewer and storm drain systems in Crucible.

The grant over three years is to "revitalize and rehabilitate" Crucible, according to HUD.

A project office will be established in Crucible as the base for all operations and pertinent documents.

Marian Gaydos Chambers, director of the project, presented documents showing that all environmental requirements have been complied with and have been sent to the Department of Environmental Resources, Environmental Protection Agency and the Greene County Planning Commission. She said the project will benefit the environment.

Mrs. Chambers will advertise job descriptions for a program coordinator and a housing rehabilitation inspector for the project.

Supervisors Seek Members For Committee

CARMICHAELS — The Cumberland Township Board of Supervisors is currently soliciting recommendations for persons who live in the Crucible HUD target area to serve on the planned Community Development Block Grant Advisory Committee.

The committee will work in a voluntary capacity with the township supervisors, program staff and consultants to provide input on a regular basis into the implementation of the Crucible multi-year Small Cities program. Because the HUD program focuses on serving the needs of disadvantaged persons, special interest is directed at involving low and moderate income persons on the committee.

Persons or organizations wishing to make recommendations regarding possible candidates for the committee should submit a written statement on the person they are recommending and a brief description of the person's ability, level of involvement in the community and interest in federal programs to William Groves, secretary, Cumberland Township Board of Supervisors, Box 382, Municipal Road, Carmichaels 15320, by July 30.

Carmichaels First National Bank as depository for the project money.

The supervisors accepted a proposed plan of lots named Alpine Acres to be located on Township Route 517 between Ceylon Road and the south branch of Muddy Creek. The developer is Robert Bosco.

The plan was accepted under the condition that Bosco sign an agreement that the 40 foot-street will not be the responsibility of the township unless it is built to township specifications.

The proposed plan will be forwarded to the Greene County Planning Commission.

Township Police Chief Phillip Carter reported he and Assistant Chief William Lewis have completed training requirements and are now certified as VASCAR operators. Carter said they are using the speed detecting device and will be citing all violators.

Schools Prepare Discipline Plan

CARMICHAELS — A progress report on discipline by a task force of board members, teachers, parents and administrators in the Carmichaels Area School District was presented to the board at its meeting Thursday night.

Director Edward Tekavec reported the task force has received a proposal from the administrative staff to resolve some of the problems.

Administrators are to try their plan for the first nine weeks and then evaluate it. In the junior high school, pupils will be kept in their building for classes. The administration hopes to keep the junior and senior high school students separated.

The district will also work to instill discipline in the elementary school children so the pupils are not problems when they enter the secondary level. A drug education program will also be started in the elementary grades.

Tekavec said the task force considers the proposals from the administrators a good start for teacher and administrator control.

The directors accepted a recommendation from the Education Committee to continue the reading service under the ESEA Title I program in the high school, but to curtail the math service because federal money has been reduced.

Permission has been granted by the Department of Education to revise the program. The director, Terry Ganocy, has been made part-time and one professional employee, Lois Swestyn, was furloughed because money ran out. The district will receive $146,019 for the program for the coming year.

The sabbatical leave for Evelyn Newman, secondary math teacher, created a vacancy and Lois Swestyn was offered the temporary position. Applications are also being accepted to fill positions for a reading specialist, learning disabilities teacher, and art instructor for kindergarten through the 12th grade.

The vacancy in the custodial staff was filled by hiring Donald Walker.

The elementary professional staff assignments and schedules were approved by the board by a vote of 5-3.

The board will investigate the possibility of hiring a food management company to supervise menus for the cafeteria.

Business manager Louis Pascuzzo is asking any student needing transportation to a non-public school this fall to notify the business office by July 31.

The Greene County Memorial Hospital was granted permission to use the high school gym Aug. 27 and 28 for a Greene County Health Fair during the Coal Show. The fair has received the support of the King Coal Association and will provide free health screenings for residents.

Directors approved donating the old bell from the Crucible Elementary School building to the county for the Greene County Historical Society Museum.

Bids were opened and the following contracts awarded to Blout Painting Co. of Uniontown, paving Central School playground, bid $7,500, and Caldwell Window Wear of Pittsburgh, for more than 200 window shades, bid $10,380, amount allocated in the budget.

The contract to repair the gymnasium roof was given to L.R. Lloyd of Uniontown, who bid $2,746.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the board's negotiating team asked for an executive session on several points of the teachers' contract.

The Electric Consumer's Corner

Are overhead electric lines hazardous?

Yes, when energized. But you should always consider all electric lines potentially hazardous and stay away from them. Either contacting a line directly or indirectly through some object could result in serious burns or death.

Remember, electricity constantly looks for a path to the ground. And anything which provides this path becomes part of an electrical circuit.

Remember, too, you don't have to stand on the ground to make such a circuit. Standing on a metal ladder and holding a piece of siding which accidentally touches a line provides a path for electricity.

What precautions should I follow?

Keep all ladders away from electric lines. Pay particular attention when moving an extension ladder so it doesn't fall against the wires.

Also, if installing an antenna or aluminum siding, guard against it coming in contact with the wires.

Don't trim or cut trees near the lines. The branches or tree could fall onto the wires and become electrical conductors.

And keep a clearance of 10 feet or more between power lines and boom equipment, post-hole diggers, raised truck beds, and other equipment.

What if I see a fallen wire?

Don't touch it or even go near it. Keep others away, too. Report the downed wire to West Penn Power or to your local fire or police department.

For additional tips, contact the West Penn Power office serving your location for a free copy of "Electrical Safety Outdoors." Or write West Penn Power, c/o The Electric Consumer's Corner, Cabin Hill, Greensburg, PA 15601. This message paid for by West Penn Power.

Health Fair Plans Completed

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Memorial Hospital has completed plans for Health Fair '81, a fair which will be held Wednesday, July 29, in conjunction with the 14 area organizations.

The health fair will be held at the Waynesburg Armory, North Washington Street, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. as part of the observance of Rain Day.

Free screenings available to adults (18 and over) will include blood pressure, vision, hearing, anemia, height and weight, and summary and referral. The Easter Seal Society will offer speech screening for pre-school children.

In addition to the multiple health screenings, the health fair will include exhibitions and demonstrations. Literature will be available without charge on many health-related subjects, including stress and depression, tooth brushing, nutrition, eye safety, cataracts, death and dying, first aid, drugs and alcohol.

Several of the participating groups will present slide presentations. There will be CPR demonstrations and a mini carbon monoxide analyzer test. Aerobic dance demonstrations will be held at 11 a.m., 1 p.m., 3 p.m., 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. Personnel staffing the seven Greene County Memorial Hospital booths will be Kristi Scott, administrative secretary; Pat Davis, laboratory supervisor; Ann Jacobs,
