Jury Favors Hallam

WAYNESBURG — A Greene County civil court jury Friday night awarded $27,700 in damages to a Graysville man who sued two Waynesburg Borough police officers. Kyle Hallam, 28, claimed that they took him to a darkened room in the police station and kicked and beat him after arresting him.

The jury of one man and 11 women ruled that Patrolmen Michael Fuller and David Clark were liable for payment of $17,700 to Hallam on his charge of assault and battery. The award covered medical expenses, lost wages and legal expenses, as well as pain and suffering. Hallam had estimated his out-of-pocket loss at $7,700. The jury exonerated Waynesburg Borough, which was a co-defendant, of any liability for this part of the verdict.

The jury also awarded Hallam an additional $10,000 in punitive damages on his contention that the police officers had instituted a malicious prosecution by charging him with resisting arrest to mask their actions. The jury held that the two officers and the borough should be equally liable for payment of this award, but Judge Glenn Toothman eliminated the borough from liability. He pointed out that he told the jury in his charge that the borough could not be held responsible for this part of the claim.

The verdict was returned at 10:30 p.m., three and one-half hours after deliberations began following a four-day trial.

Attorney Ray Conway, who represented the two police officers, declined to say that the verdict would be appealed. "I will say I anticipate some post-trial motions," he said. Such motions must be made within 10 days.

Hallam had no comment. At the request of Conway the jury was polled. All 12 said they had voted for the award. In civil cases, concurrence of 10 of the 12 would have been sufficient for the verdict.

Hallam brought his suit for damages after an incident May 16, 1980, when police attempted to serve him with three traffic violation warrants as he stood on High Street near the police station while talking to friends.

A scuffle ensued when Hallam refused to accompany Patrolman Fuller to the police station.

The plaintiff claims that after Fuller and Clark had subdued and handcuffed him, they dragged him into the police station, threw him to the floor in a darkened room, and beat and kicked him to the point where he later required medical treatment.

The defense called two witnesses Friday before resting its case.

Clark gave his version of what happened when Fuller attempted to serve the warrants on Hallam, stating that he had gone inside the station while Fuller approached the Graysville resident.

"When Fuller failed to return in a reasonable time, I went to see what happened to him," Clark said, adding that he arrived in time to see Hallam attempt to shake off Fuller. He said he did not see Fuller strike, kick or threaten Hallam during the scuffle.

"I asked Hallam to settle down two or three times," he testified, adding that Hallam was then taken to the police station and told to sit on the floor in the corner of one of the office rooms.

Clark denied that either he or Fuller ever struck Hallam, and theorized that blood which was found on the wall of the room could have come from injuries which the prisoner suffered during the scuffle on the street.

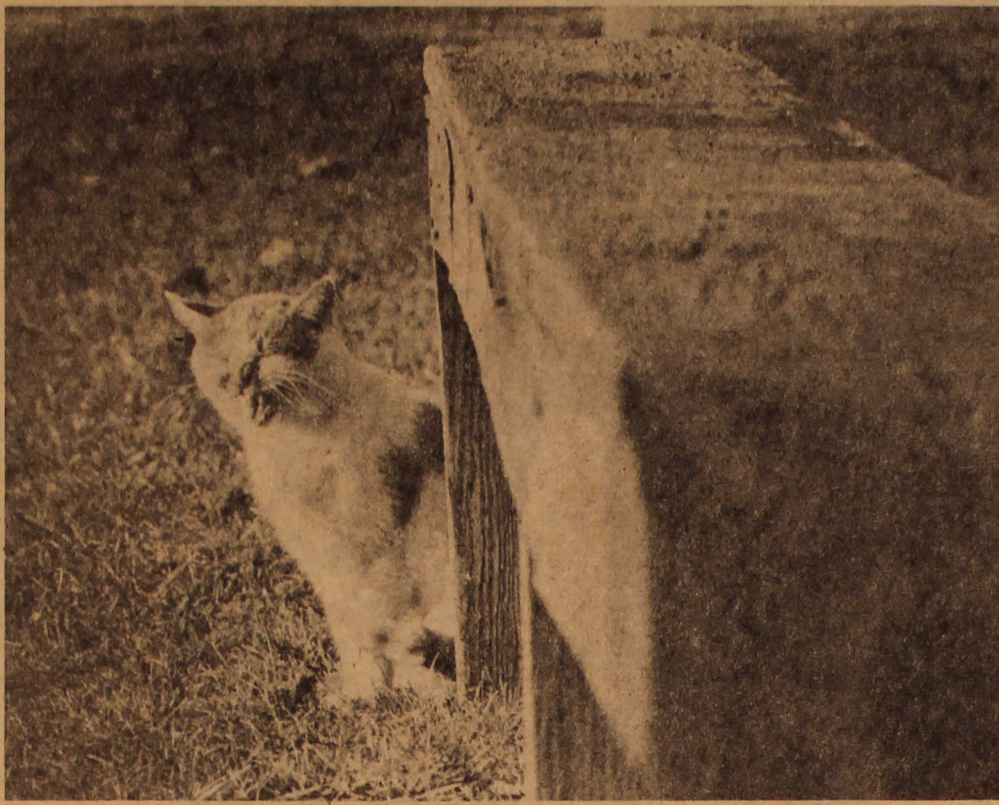

The final witness was Dave Godisart, a downtown businessman who stated he watched Hallam being taken into the police station by the two officers. He said neither officer punched or kicked Hallam and testified that he did not see either officer grab Hallam by the hair of the head, as a previous witness had testified.

Real Cinderella Was Luckier

WAYNESBURG — The magic of the Cinderella Ball didn't quite last until midnight, but sponsors of Waynesburg Central High School's dance Saturday night acted in the best theatrical "the show must go on" tradition.

There was a bomb threat, the band didn't show up and a decorative fountain set up in the middle of the floor sprang a leak. And yet the dance was held.

"I won't say it didn't put a damper on things, and yet the kids seemed to have a good time," Mark McCurdy, one of the chaperones, said. "Suzanne Cole (advisor to the sponsoring Tri-Hi-Y) kept

Catching 40 Winks

There's no better time for a catnap than a crisp, fall afternoon, and judging by this kitten's yawn, it's about time for him to take advantage of one of the last fine days of autumn weather in Greene County, and catch 40 winks. By this time next week, his catnaps may be limited to the great indoors, in front of a roaring fireplace.

Trumka Expected To Seek UMW Presidency

WAYNESBURG — Greene County seems certain to have a candidate for the United Mine Workers presidency when the union's national election is held next November.

Rich Trumka, 32, District 4 representative to the union's governing board and a resident of Nemaacolin, reportedly will announce his candidacy for UMW president at a press conference to be held in Pittsburgh on Friday, Nov. 27.

The Trumka ticket is expected to include Cecil Roberts, 35, president of District 17 in southern West Virginia. Roberts is expected to announce his candidacy for vice president at a press conference held in Charleston, W. Va., at the same time the Trumka announcement is made in Pittsburgh.

The Nemaacolin resident has been negotiating for the union in Arkansas and Oklahoma for the past six weeks and could not be reached for comment.

The Associated Press reported that Roberts "all but confirmed that the press conference will be used to announce a Trumka-Roberts ticket," which would take the field in opposition to UMW President Sam Church, whose popularity with the rank-and-file has dropped since he assumed the post in 1979.

According to reports, both Trumka and Roberts wanted to run for the presidency but agreed to run together after deciding they would split the anti-Church vote if they ran separately.

Although the union election will not be held until November 1982, Roberts was quoted as saying that an early start is needed to raise campaign funds.

"It's going to take a great deal of money to run a campaign," he said, noting that in 1977 some candidates spent several hundred thousand dollars on their campaigns.

Church was elected vice president in 1977 and assumed the presidency in 1979 when Arnold Miller retired because of poor health.

Trumka's candidacy will not surprise local miners, because it has been predicted since last May when he received strong support in overcoming a challenge to his election to the International Executive Board.

He was born and reared in Nemaacolin and is a graduate of Carmichaels Area High School. He earned a degree in accounting and economics from Pennsylvania State University, earning part of his expenses by working in the mines during summer vacations. He received his law degree from Villanova University in 1974 and worked for the International Executive Board for three years before going back to the mines to help miners in the field.

"He's well educated and he's got his feet on the ground," said Lawrence Piper, vice president of Warwick Local 6310 in Greensboro. "I think he would be a damn good man for the job. We need somebody like him."

Piper, who recently retired after 45 years in the mines, predicted that District 4 "will go for Trumka all the way. Everybody in our district is for him and I'd say it would be the same for all other districts."

Echoing that opinion was Andrew Wanto of Bobtown, who said he worked with Trumka during Wanto's term as president of Bobtown Local 6159.

"He's not a hothead," Wanto said. "He thinks things over before he speaks. He's sure of himself. He's a lawyer and he'll fight for you. We need a fellow like that."

Ed Bytnar, veteran secretary-treasurer of District 4, feels Trumka will receive solid support from miners in the district, which embraces Greene and Fayette counties. "He's a good man; we all like him," he said.

When the Associated Press asked Church about the Trumka-Roberts challenge, the UMW president said, "I knew this allegiance was taking place several months ago. I'm not surprised at all. That's their prerogative."

Board Against Hiring Policy

WAYNESBURG — Teachers who leave the school district and return are not entitled to those previous years of teaching and the equivalent salary, according to the Central Greene School Board.

The amendment to the hiring policy was suggested in light of a question which has been raised by the Central Greene Education Association with regard to a teacher who returned to the district on a negotiated salary step which did not give her full credit for years she had previously taught in the district. The negotiated salary was agreed to by both the teacher and the board.

The school board voted against the policy at their meeting Tuesday.

School Board Solicitor C. Robert McCall said there is a lower court case dating back to 1970 which held that teachers are entitled to full credit for years previously taught in the district, and that they do not have the right to waive that credit. He added, however, that it was never taken to appellate court.

Dr. Ronald Ferrari, district superintendent, said refusal to adopt the policy could result in the filing of a grievance by the teachers' organization. When questioned, he said the amount involved is $1,200 for the teacher in question during the current school year.

When the matter was brought to a vote, only two members, Robert Stephenson and Warren Bowers, voted in favor of the motion. Joanne Brookover, Francis Fox, Furman Wade and

Jefferson-Morgan Directors Grant Union's Request

By STAN DIAMOND
Staff Writer

JEFFERSON — The Jefferson-Morgan School Board Monday night agreed to credit part-time teachers as full time for salary scale purposes.

The action, requested by the district teachers' union, was approved pending a final opinion by the district's solicitor.

Affected would be eight teachers who are now teaching full time in the district and one part-time teacher. It will cost the district some $18,375 to place these teachers on the proper salary step. The teachers had originally been hired on a part-time basis for several federally funded programs. The request from the Jefferson-Morgan Profession Association, which represents teachers in the district, asked that those years be credited as full-time employment years when placing those teachers on the salary step scale.

The board accepted the resignations of head football coach Robert Antion and athletic director Stanley Sagosky. Both letters were submitted last week as effective immediately. Sagosky cited a full teaching load not allowing time for duties as athletic director as his reason for resigning.

Charles Barno, a physical education teacher and former head wrestling coach, was hired as athletic director for a one-year term. His salary was prorated for the remainder of the year at $1,452.

A motion to grant the district's real estate tax collectors a wage adjustment was denied by a 6-3 vote. The motion proposed increases of $500 each for the tax collectors in the three boroughs in the district as well as Jefferson Township and a $1,000 increase for the tax collector in Morgan Township to bring it into line with the other salaries.

The board set Monday, Dec. 14 at 7 p.m. for its annual reorganization meeting with the regular board meeting to follow the reorganization. The regular board meeting would have been on the following Monday.

Cynthia Loar Vukmanic, of Waynesburg, was hired as assistant girls' basketball coach at a salary of $650. She will be a non-faculty coach.

Charles Braden, an elementary special education teacher, was approved for a permanent teaching certificate.

Bonnie Mylan and Peggy Barger, both elementary teachers, reported on a learning centers workshop they attended recently. The teachers explained the use of various learning centers showing board members various types and how they were used in the classroom to reinforce a skill already learned by a student.

Board members Charles Murray and Robert McCarty who will be leaving the board were given special recognition. Murray has been a member of the school board for 24 years while McCarty has served a four-year term.

WANB Manager Files Suit

WAYNESBURG — The manager and part owner of Waynesburg radio station WANB is seeking to block sale of the station on the grounds that the majority stockholder has fraudulently set up the purchase agreement so that he will receive virtually all of the proceeds from the $580,000 transaction.

The equity action has been filed in Greene County Court by Arnold W. (Abie) Albright and his wife Diana, who live in Amity. Named as defendants are the Commonwealth Broadcasting Co., owner of WANB, the Karas Broadcasting Co. of Springfield, Va., and Kenneth R. and Wilma R. Strawberry of Washington, D.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Strawberry own 51 percent of the common stock in Commonwealth Broadcasting and, according to the complaint, exercise full control over the company. Mr. and Mrs. Albright own 39 percent of the common stock. Mrs. Strawberry is president of the company and her husband is assistant secretary. Albright is vice president.

According to the complaint, the Strawberrys entered into an agreement with Karas Broadcasting on June 30, 1981, which calls for sale of the company before Jan. 1, 1982.

It charges that the defendants are attempting to defraud Commonwealth stockholders "through the false and fraudulent allocation of extremely high values for assets allegedly owned by the defendants (the Strawberrys) and extremely low values for assets owned by Commonwealth."

Specifically, it states, the agreement assigns a highly inflated value of $419,000 to broadcast equipment and other items owned by the Strawberrys and a value of just $25,000 to property of Commonwealth Broadcasting Co.

Miners Will End Walkout

BOBTOWN — Members of UMW Local 6159 were expected to return to work at the Shannopin Mine at the 12:01 a.m. shift Tuesday.

Members of the union walked off their jobs Saturday at the 4 p.m. shift. Local President Dan Barzanti said the walkout occurred over a dispute when a member of the local was removed from his job on a machine.

The local held a special meeting Monday night to discuss the matter and agreed to return to work Tuesday morning.

"We're meeting with the company at 9 a.m. (Tuesday) and hopefully we can get everything resolved then," Barzanti said.

Carolyn McClure voted against it and Lila Ayersman abstained.

In other action, the school board voted to initiate an after-school weightlifting program at the high school with money which had been set aside for the employment of a high school drama coach. The drama coaching position has been posted for some time but no teacher has applied for the $622-per-year post.

"I won't say there is no interest in the drama program on the part of students, but there is no interest on the part of the faculty to assume the coaching position," Dr. Ferrari said.

He added that a teacher from the

Hit-Run Victim Said Critical

WAYNESBURG — Alan Fetterman, 21, of Waynesburg R.D. 3, was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit of University Hospital in Morgantown, W. Va., Tuesday of injuries received when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver Monday night.

Borough police are seeking information from motorists or residents of the area who may have witnessed the accident.

Fetterman, 21, was apparently crossing South Morgan Street in front of the Margaret Bell Miller School shortly after 9 p.m. when he was struck. Police said Tuesday they have no leads in the case and are asking anyone with any details to call the police at 852-2911.

middle school had attempted to do the job last year but that it didn't work out satisfactorily. He also said the job will be posted again next year.

School board member Carolyn McClure, who was attending her last meeting, was presented with a plaque in appreciation for her 12 years of service. During that time she served two terms as school board president and also represented the Central Greene District on the Intermediate Unit board, where she served two terms as board president.

Action was taken to partially solve a problem at the Perry Elementary School, where 39 students are forced to wait from 2:45 p.m., when classes are dismissed, until 3:30 p.m. when buses arrive from the high school and middle school to take them home.

Seven of the students were placed on vehicles which were already in close proximity to their homes, and an extra van run was approved to take another nine students to their homes on Shannon Run. Because of the locations of their homes, it was indicated that nothing can be done about the remaining 23 students.

The board approved attendance by Vo Ag-FFA students at the State Farm Show and FFA convention at Harrisburg Jan. 12 and 13, and participation by the high school band in the All-County Band program at Jefferson-Morgan High School in January.

The reorganization meeting was scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 1. Three board members will be sworn into office and board officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Carl St. Clair of 53 Lane Street, Westover, W. Va., former residents of Davistown, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 22, in the Westover Community Building, 399 Riverview Avenue. The open house will be hosted by their grandson K.C. St. Clair and his wife Charylene. Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair were married Nov. 28, 1931, in Cumberland Md. They have two sons, Kenneth St. Clair of North Ridge, Ohio, and Roy St. Clair of Greensboro; 12 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Opal Ullom of Waynesburg is a sister of Mr. St. Clair.

When the Pilgrims held their first Thanksgiving celebration it wasn't a new idea. The idea was as old as man's awareness of his dependence on God.

But it was a new setting. A group of people far from home, barely settled on a strange shore, surrounded by dangers real and imagined, facing their first New England winter. A remarkable time and place to say "Thank You, God."

Whenever earnest men and women pause to express gratitude to God it's an old idea. But the setting is always new. For wherever we are, whatever the circumstances surrounding our lives, our faith reaches out to the Almighty — realizing anew his Power, his Love; saying "Thank You, God."

Worship with your neighbors this week.

Barbara Lynn Parry Weds Gary Barnard

Barbara Lynn Parry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Roger Parry of 5329 Pamela Circle, Charleston, W. Va., formerly of Waynesburg, became the bride of Gary Alan Barnard of Charleston, son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard H. Barnard of Charleston. The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Parry of East View, Waynesburg.

MRS. GARY A. BARNARD

Nuptial vows were recited in the Cross Lanes United Methodist Church, Saturday, Nov. 7, 1981, with the Rev. Thomas Dunlap officiating at the double ring ceremony. The organist was Loma Parry of Waynesburg, aunt of the bride, and Mark McVey was the soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and mother. She wore a gown of white Venise lace. The bodice was fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline, long full sleeves and an empire waistline. Venise lace motifs highlighted the bodice and sleeves. The full A-line skirt fell into a chapel train which was edged with Chantilly lace.

The matron of honor was her sister, Susan Knisely. Bridesmaids were Karen Hare, Sandy Duvall, Cindy Cwynar and Sandra Porter. They wore full-length emerald green gowns and carried nosegays of bright colored fall flowers.

Rick Barnard of Charleston attended his brother as best man. Ushers were David Darby, Jeff Middleton, Joe Kofira and John Sadler. The reception for 175 guests was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Pam Middleton, the bridegroom's sister was in charge of registering guests from Connecticut, New York, California, Ohio, Maryland and Pennsylvania. The bride attended West Liberty State College and is a junior at West Virginia State College in Charleston. The bridegroom graduated from Marshall University and is a supervisor for Columbia Gas Transmission Corp. in Charleston. After a wedding trip to Virginia at "The Homestead," the couple will reside at 307 Broadway Avenue, Nitro, W. Va.

25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Stockdale of 402 North Porter Street, Waynesburg, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Oct. 27. They were married Oct. 27, 1956, in the First Christian Church of Waynesburg with Rev. Earl B. King officiating. Mrs. Stockdale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Phillips of Waynesburg and Mrs. Stockdale is the son of Hillard Stockdale and the late Sarah Stockdale of Rogersville. They are the parents of three children, Gregory of Endicott, N. Y., and Erin and Beth, both at home.

Inspection Of Curry Home Required By FmHA

WAYNESBURG — A federal agency will conduct an inspection at the Curry Memorial Home this week to determine if it meets all aspects of the fire and panic code and regulations regarding accessibility to the handicapped.

County could receive a $1.9 million loan from the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) to replace the boiler plant in the 111-bed county nursing home.

alterations it could more than offset the advantage of the low-interest loan.

FmHA has committed the money to the Greene County project at an interest rate of five percent. The loan would be repayable over a 30-year period.

End Of GCID Could Harm Greene County Economy

WAYNESBURG — Efforts to eliminate the state Industrial Revenue Bond program could have a far-reaching effect on the county's economic growth, directors and shareholders of Greene County Industrial Developments Inc. were told Wednesday evening.

Without such a financing vehicle, the high conventional interest rates would have made many of these projects economically unfeasible, he said.

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

Happy Thanksgiving to Republican readers from coast to coast and all points in between.

This is being sent a week in advance of the holiday so it will reach you before turkey day. Speaking of Thanksgiving, Greene County has been having wonderful weather all week. There is bright, blue sky during the day and cool, star-studded nights.

For those interested, turkeys are selling for 55 to 70 cents a pound—frozen of course. With the gobblers but not the giblets removed, we might add. Things sure have changed since hundreds of live birds were herded into Waynesburg and slaughtered on the Bowly lot on the north side of Waynesburg. Many others were shipped by train to the wholesale markets in Pittsburgh.

Speaking of the county, the new-coming of king coal in Greene County will force the removal of several, early day farm homes and others of recent vintage in the beautiful Lippencott Run section of Franklin Township. Included is the heritage-type home of the first Lippencott families.

A group of Greene County Country Club golfers will climax the 1981 season with a trip to several nationally known championship courses in South Carolina. They will be playing the Dunes, Azelia Sands and Myrtle Beach along with several other lesser-known layouts. Making the trip will be Mike Vukmanic, course superintendent and groundskeeper; John Marshall, Gary Battistoni, Frank Benematti, Bucky Ross, Gus Klimek, Jerry Ankney and John Duke.

James Davis, last of custom tailoring family, is a patient in Greene County Memorial Hospital. Needless to say, he will be cheered by cards from old friends such as Odell Cooper in Salt Lake City, Leo Cunningham in Costa Rica, Charles Stephen in Mesa, Ariz. and Ross and Sarah Frye Minor in New Orleans.

The memory of Mrs. Viola Walker, well known musician and swimming teacher who died recently, will be remembered on Thanksgiving by a group of youthful folk singers who will tour her neighborhood on the Northside that evening under direction of Jim and Carol Randolph with Wendy Saul and Joe Paazak, violinists.

Don't blame the printers for any errors in this column. It's being typed on a portable typewriter given to me by my sister Edna in 1923 when I enrolled as a science major in college and traded copies of experiments performed by Charley Susano who later became a chemist and engineer. He helped with the development of the atomic bomb when it was constructed in Oak Ridge, Tenn. The machine is almost, but not quite, as old as the operator.

Jean Elicker Retires As Home Economist

WAYNESBURG — Jean Elicker, Greene County extension home economist for the past five years, will retire on Jan. 1, 1982.

Her resignation was announced officially at the annual dinner meeting of the Greene County Cooperative Extension Service, held Thursday at the Greene County Country Club.

Mrs. Elicker, who joined the Greene County extension staff in 1976, first became associated with the Penn State Extension program 35 years ago and has worked in a total of seven counties.

She drew on this experience to rebuild the Family Living Program in Greene County and was responsible for formation of the Family Living Advisory Council, which has planned and conducted many activities during the past two years, including demonstrations at the annual county fair.

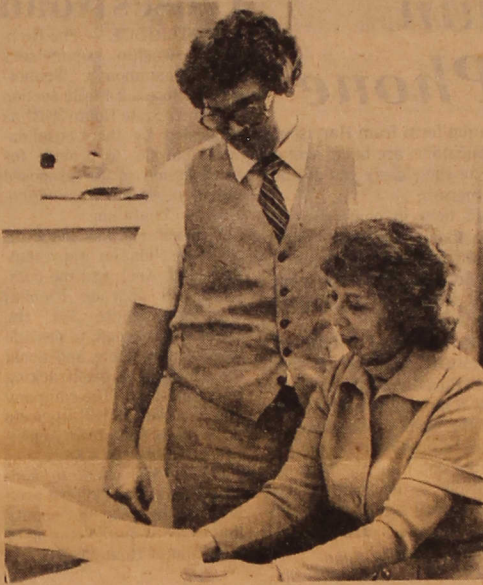

Mrs. Elicker was also responsible for administration of the Expanded Food and Nutrition Program in the county and has done considerable work with 4-H clubs.

She has served on many state extension committees and has been active in both state and national home economics associations. Last year the National Association of Extension Home Economists recognized her accomplishments by selecting her to receive its Distinguished Service Award.

College Promotes Two Employees

WAYNESBURG — Frank B. Oviat, a 1980 Waynesburg College graduate, and Jean Weaver, a veteran college employee, have been named to posts in the Waynesburg College's business office.

The appointments were announced recently by C.B. Stoy, vice-president for business and finance at the college. Oviat and Mrs. Weaver have assumed their new duties.

Oviat was named office manager in the business office and Mrs. Weaver was named assistant office manager. They will be responsible for the accounting and service of the business office, including the two new areas of grants

Beds Sought For Family

WAYNESBURG — The Red Cross is seeking cooking and eating utensils, box springs for two double beds and four single beds, in addition to two other single beds or one double bed.

Light-Up Night Will Be Dec. 12

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Chamber of Commerce completed plans for its annual community Christmas street lighting ceremony during a meeting Wednesday night.

The event will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 12, in front of the First National Bank of Carmichaels. Stephen McCann will serve as master of ceremonies and the Carmichaels Area High School band will play. Lisa Gavlik, the 1981 State Bituminous Coal Queen, will take part in the program.

Santa Claus will arrive on the Carmichaels-Cumberland Township fire truck. Four costumed elves will assist him in distributing treats to children.

Fact and Folklore
John O'Hara

Another spaceship has returned safely from outer space with little more commotion or surprise than when the first flights across the oceans were being heralded as the ultimate in aviation expertise and the science of aeronautics.

Somehow the season of the year and the way it was taken in stride by youth and adults, recalled a much-less sophisticated outlook by young and old because this is also the time of year described by James Whitcomb Riley as "When the frost is on the pumpkin." His poem extolled the joys and pleasures of nature's ever-changing, eternal ways.

It was a poem which all school boys and girls had to recite often enough to be memorized and made a part of their philosophy of life.

It was also a time of the year when cornfields were transformed from the row-on-row of corn stalks turned brown after having resembled a sea of green through the long growing season which began in May.

In his poem, which is a classic of early American farm life, Riley captured all the pleasantness of farm and rural life and the pleasures of growing and harvesting crops. It was far removed from the mechanized, push button life style of the late 1980s.

That was in a day when the corn crops were harvested by hand with a saber-like tool called, appropriately enough, a "corn knife" to distinguish it from a chopping ax for cutting wood or a spade or shovel for digging a ditch.

Now days of course, all corn is cut with tractors in a sort of endless chain concept. It is hoisted into huge silos built near the field and from there moved on endless belts to the feeding parlor which is an important part of modern farms.

Cutting corn by hand was no easy job and took up several weeks of time during autumn.

The result was a pleasure to behold however as the neatly formed shocks of corn were aligned with almost minute precision to stand in place until the ears of corn had dried out enough to be husked and hauled to the cribs.

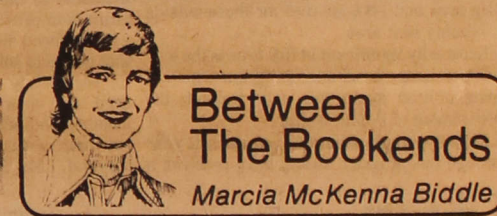

Paul Kent of Reese's Mill is one of the few farmers still around who for years cut large fields of corn by hand and later husked them out ear-by-ear in the long fall season.

Shaping the shocks so they would stand erect was sort of an art. The stalks of four hills of corn were first pulled together and tied securely. They form a sort of brace on which the other stalks, from four hills each way from the center, were fashioned together to form the horses on which the ears of corn would dry.

From the roadside they resembled rows of overdressed soldiers and became a symbol of harvest time in rural areas.

Husking the corn out, known as husking bee, often became a social occasion with a square dance. Husking corn was not exactly the most pleasant job for a short man as they had to drag eight-foot long stalks into the center of the pile.

Cutting 100 shocks a day was considered about average but the best known and most famed corn cutters and shockers were the late Arch Seals and Sol McHenry. Each was well over six feet tall and like most men of their era, hard workers who took pride in their skills and their ability to give their employer a full day's work for the agreed wage.

Between The Bookends

Marcia McKenna Biddle

"Mrs. L. Conversations with Alice Roosevelt Longworth," by Michael Teague. Doubleday. $19.95.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth contrasted her family with her cousin Franklin Roosevelt in her own unique, sarcastic way.

"We were a reading family... 'Black Beauty' was considered terribly sentimental and 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' was not even allowed in the house because it was so dreadful. Now, Franklin was encouraged to read 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' as a child. We even suspected he dressed a little like him. It was THAT kind of difference which manifested itself at an early age."

These little personal insights, both serious and witty, about the Roosevelt family life and about national politics, make this book interesting. So do the 170 photographs from Mrs. Longworth's personal collection. The large number of pictures explains the high cost of the book, which you can ask for at the library if you don't feel like springing for the price.

Mrs. Longworth was famous for her witty remarks in her later years and, earlier, for her unruliness as the young daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt. Well, she says, "Driving a car alone and smoking in public were bad enough. Then there was the time that I was seen paying money to a bookie at the races and they said that would probably wreck my father's chances of re-election, so that was all hushed up."

"I suppose a lot of my showing off was a defense against the incipient shyness which almost everyone has," she added. "And, being the off spring of a very conspicuous parent, I wasn't going to let him get the better of me."

Mrs. Longworth knew everybody. When she was six, she was taken to meet President Harrison, "who appeared to me a gnarled, bearded gnome of a man gloomily ensconced in a corner of the Red Room at the White House."

She went to McKinley's inaugural ball, and, "I was reprieved for sitting on the arm of Mrs. McKinley's chair while she was in it. She was such a pathetic, frail little person. I hadn't even noticed she was there."

"We were against the League of Nations because we hated Wilson, who was a Family Horror. He couldn't do any good in our eyes because he had beaten Father."

And later presidents: "I had a personal grudge against Harding. At the 1912 convention he had worked actively against my father and then told my husband (a congressman) he could have anything he wanted." I told him Nick wouldn't take anything from thieves and the feud was on.

"Harding was a very dull man, given to calling his girl friends 'girlie.'" "Coolidge by contrast was a precise little man. I didn't invent the phrase about him looking as if he had been weaned on a pickle but I certainly gave it currency."

She especially didn't like Senator Joe McCarthy. "I remember him coming up to me once at a party and putting his arm around my shoulder, and saying with a kind of yokel jocularity, 'Ah, here is my blind date. I'm going to call you Alice,' and I said, 'No, Senator McCarthy, you are not going to call me Alice. The truckman, the trashman, and the policeman on the block may call me Alice, but you may not.' I never saw him again after that."

Jackets On The Prowl

WAYNESBURG — The trophies are still shining and the memories of a championship season are still fresh.

But it's time to start over for the Waynesburg College basketball team. It's an unusual position for Waynesburg. Instead of fighting its way to respectability in the NAIA's District 18, Waynesburg will be trying to defend its title.

The Yellow Jackets have finally turned from the hunter to the prey.

"I like it this way," said Waynesburg junior guard Tim Tyler, who shares the team captain role this season with junior forward Tim Walker. "Everybody will be after us and throwing their best stuff at us. It's a challenge we're looking forward to."

It's a challenge that head coach Rudy Marisa also recognizes. But with four players returning from last year's 24-6 team it's understandably a difficult task.

"To say things aren't progressing the way we hoped is an understatement," Marisa said Thursday in his office. "We're getting our butt kicked in scrimmages (against Allegheny Community College, Salem and West Virginia Wesleyan). We haven't gotten our act together yet."

With eight newcomers, seven of them freshmen, to the Jacket team it's easy to see why Waynesburg is struggling in the early portion of the pre-season preparation.

But with three starters, Tyler, Walker and sophomore point guard Ray Natili, joining sophomore Mark Doppelheuer, the Jackets certainly have four solid players.

"They're quality players," Marisa said. "Tim and Tim are doing an exceptional job so far as leaders, they really are. Doppelheuer is doing what we've always hoped he'd do. He matured from the Kansas City experience and he's got all the character needed to be a good ball player."

But it's the elusive fifth spot, Waynesburg's third guard in what Marisa calls a "three guard, two forward team" that remains to be filled. "So far none of the freshmen have really come forward but it's really too early," Marisa said. "Look at Ray Natili for example. He didn't come forward until our last scrimmage against Fairmont, and he's been a key part of the team since."

Natili, a graduate of Immaculate Conception High School, is still the offensive catalyst for Waynesburg. He stepped in admirably last season at point guard, leading the Jackets' fast break and singlehandedly breaking opponents' pressure defense.

"I'm not looking at this year as any different than any other," Natili said before practice. "I'm just looking to improve my game more and help the team."

"I really don't think we'll be complacent, the four of us especially. We've got too big a job ahead. Losing Mike and Paul (Taylor and Epps) respectively to graduation in 1981 is going to be tough, especially early. The pressure will be on us until the freshmen get comfortable and can help out."

While Marisa wouldn't commit himself to naming the fifth starter Wednesday three of the newcomers, Craig Harris (5-10½) of Uniontown, Paul Stanley (6-4½) of Butler and Rich Curry (6-2) of Laurel Highlands appear to be the leading contenders.

And the Jackets don't have all that much time to work with. Their season opens Saturday, Nov. 28 at Wheeling College and play at LaRoche Dec. 2 before the home opener Saturday, Dec. 5 against talented Pitt-Bradford.

But the dreams still remain. The NAIA tournament in Kansas City, Mo., has left an obvious impression on Marisa, assistant coach Larry Marshall, and the four returning players. They'd like to go back, but first Waynesburg will have to play 25 regular season games, reach the district playoffs, and defend its title.

"We have the same goal as before, to be competitive," Walker said. "Sure you think about Kansas City but that's a long distance goal. It's fun to reflect about the tournament and talk about how we did but that's all in the past now. We're thinking about the games ahead and about the district, that's where our goals lie now."

GENERAL ADMISSION — Waynesburg has 12 players on its roster. The other first-year players are junior David Head (6-4½), a transfer from Allegheny Community College who didn't play basketball there, Henry Hall (5-11) of North Fork, W.Va., Dick Bender (6-2) of Grantville, Md., Scott Harvey (6-1½) of Alderice and Kent Yoho (6-5) of Cameron, W.Va., Dwayne Pettis of Perry High School quit the team following Monday's practice. Waynesburg will have 10 home games and 15 on the road.

Waynesburg forward Tim Walker (center) is shooting for a return trip to the playoffs.

Jackettes Earn National Berth

WAYNESBURG — For the second consecutive year, the Waynesburg College women's volleyball team has advanced to the NAIA National Championship Volleyball Tournament.

The Yellow Jackettes defeated Alderson-Broaddus College 15-7, 15-2 and 15-6 Thursday night at College Gym to win a berth to the national tournament.

This year's NAIA tournament will be held at Concord College in Athens, W.Va., Nov. 19-21. Waynesburg's first game will be Friday morning, Nov. 20.

And the Jackettes are hoping they won't run into the same difficulty as they did last year at the national tournament when they were eliminated in the early rounds.

"They were just a super bunch," Waynesburg head coach Lorraine Cassidy said of the Jackettes' performance last night. "Our serving game was just so much better than theirs."

"In probably 70 serves we made six errors and that's very good, and probably 23 of those were aces."

What made the victory even sweeter was the way Waynesburg battled back from a 5-1 deficit.

"We were down 5-1 at one point," Cassidy said, "but we're good at coming from behind. All of them had hits that got points and 80 percent of Karen Mottura's blocks got us a point."

Waynesburg won the District 18 volleyball championship last week and face Robert Morris College Saturday to decide the winner of the Pennwood West Conference. The Jackettes are the top seeded team in that tournament.

"The Pennwood West Conference will be very demanding," Cassidy said of the double-elimination play. "If we defeat a strong team they'll come right back at us in a round and we'll have to beat them again."

Serra Depending On The Bowens Carmichaels Doesn't Size Up

By DENISE BACHMAN
O-R Sports Staff

Just call it a family affair for Serra Catholic High School's football team.

The head coach is Dick Bowen and the quarterback is Bowen's son, Rich, rated the best quarterback in the WPIAL and one of the best in the state.

The duo has been a major force in propelling the Eagles to an Eastern 8 Conference title with a perfect 9-0 record, which earned them the right to play Tri-County South Conference runner-up Carmichaels in the first round of the WPIAL playoffs (kickoff 1:30 Saturday afternoon at McKeesport).

"That's where it starts," Bowen said of his son Rich in a telephone interview. "He is able to do a lot of checking off and he is able to recognize the defenses."

"He does make it go, but it depends on whether we pass a lot. We have a really good tailback and fullback, and we depend on them, too."

Dewayne Jeter is the tailback and Mike Washowich is the fullback. Jeter is the workhorse of the Eagle backfield, leading Serra in rushing with 961 yards this season.

Bowen said the Eagles are averaging close to 300 yards rushing per game, and they have reached the 500-yard mark in a couple of games.

The Eagles are just as effective in the air, averaging at least 100 yards per game. They have averaged 17 yards per completion out of an average of 12-15 passes per game.

Nevertheless, Bowen has passed for an impressive 1,131 yards this season.

The Eagles' explosiveness on offense is evidenced by their scores. They have averaged 38.8 points per game, with their highest output being 54 points. At the same time, their defense is surrendering just 7.5 points per game, including three shutouts. Their closest game was a 28-19 win over Clairton.

"I think we're pretty well-balanced," Bowen said. "But we probably go with the run more than the pass. We try to keep other teams off-balance with the pass and keep them honest with the run."

Despite the dominance the Eagles have shown over their regular-season opponents, they don't expect to continue their tear on Carmichaels, even though the Mikes finished the season with a 6-3 record.

"We really respect Carmichaels," Bowen said, "even if they've lost three games. No matter what their record is, anyone can beat any team in the playoffs."

The Eagles know just how true that statement is, especially after the Mikes upset Serra 20-18 in the opening round of the playoffs last season.

"As I look back at the game last year," Bowen said, "I think we took Carmichaels a little lightly."

By DENISE BACHMAN
O-R Sports Staff

MCKEESPORT — A more appropriate billing for this football game would have been the battle of David and Goliath.

But in this instance, the law of averages held true and the Goliaths slew the Davids.

In the first round of the Class A WPIAL playoffs here Saturday, Serra Catholic High School, with a definite size advantage, blanketed Carmichaels High School 33-0 to advance to the semifinals against Monaca next weekend, the site and time to be determined.

"When we lined up along side them, we looked like little kids," Mikes' head coach Tom McCombs said. "They stopped us right from the beginning. It was a long day. When we did do things right we had those turnovers."

That isn't surprising. The Eagles' defense, averaging 183 pounds, was going against a Carmichaels' offense which averaged 167.3 pounds.

Monaca's front line just ran over the Mikes, and buried quarterback Dick Krause seven times for a loss of 61 yards.

"You can't have guys weighing 145 blocking guys 220, 230," McCombs said, "and consistently keep them out of there. We were just crumbled underneath. I tried to make myself believe it wouldn't happen but it did."

"They were just physically too much for us. What happened to us is they got ahead and we got uptight."

The Eagles' shifty tailback Dewayne Jeter can take credit for rattling Carmichaels early. He first put Serra on the scoreboard with a 59-yard touchdown jaunt midway through the first quarter.

But he was by no means through giving the Mikes fits. Jeter slithered his way through Carmichaels' defense the rest of the day and amassed 251 yards on 20 carries, including three touchdown runs.

In Jeter, Carmichaels saw flashes of Mon Valley Catholic's Jon Green. But the Mikes had better success against Green, holding him to just 122 yards on 22 carries earlier in the season.

"They run a little bit differently — Green has straight away speed," McCombs said. "Before the game, I thought Green had more speed, but Jeter has more moves."

"I'd like the opportunity to pick one of them for our team. But I don't know which one I'd pick."

Serra head coach Dick Bowen almost had the opportunity to have both in his backfield, and his eyes light up when he talks of what might have been.

"Green is from McKeesport and went to school with my son (Eagle quarterback Rich) up until the fifth grade," Bowen said. "If we would have both Green and Jeter in the backfield we would be devastating."

But the Eagles didn't need Green to devastate the Mikes as Serra gained over 400 yards in total offense, most of which came on the ground. Rich Bowen, one of the best quarterbacks in the WPIAL, threw just 11 passes, completing seven for 81 yards.

Despite the offensive effort, Bowen wasn't totally satisfied.

"I was disappointed in the offense a little bit," Bowen said. "Rich got his bell rung on our second series, and we couldn't audible as much as we would've liked. Jeter and (fullback Mike) Washowich played well, but our offense needs a little work."

But for the defense, Bowen had nothing but praise.

"Defensively we were really good today," Bowen said. "(Ends Richard) Bradley and (Jim) Simak did a good job of putting a lot of pressure on them."

"But it was a good team effort today. I didn't think it was an easy win — we had to work to score. Carmichaels has a scrappy bunch of kids and they kept coming at you."

Just like Jeter and company kept coming at Carmichaels.

Jeter and Washowich carried the Eagles to their second touchdown in the second quarter. He gained 22 yards on two carries, while Washowich picked up 30 yards on four carries and capped the 57-yard drive with a one-yard plunge.

Jeter increased the Eagles' lead to 21-0 when he rambled 26 yards in the third quarter, and then he accounted for Serra's final score in the fourth quarter when he went in from 60 yards out.

Sandwiched between Jeter's last two scores was a 14-yard pass from Bowen to split end Roy Jenkins. Aside from his touchdown catch, Jenkins had a rather frustrating day kicking extra points. The Mikes blocked three of his attempts.

"We didn't know what to expect from Serra," McCombs said. "But they are everything people said they were and more. I didn't know if anyone could beat them, but I don't think so now."

"We had an outstanding year. We started off bad, but at the middle of the season we regrouped and came on strong at the end. I don't care who would've finished for second in our conference, they would've got thrumped by Serra."

For Bowen, he was happy to be on the winning end of this score.

"This is really an exciting feeling," Bowen said. "We can relax a little bit today and tomorrow, but we have to get right back to work after that. I think we're going to peak soon."

Barno Is New Rocket AD

JEFFERSON — Charles Barno, a physical education teacher and former head wrestling coach, was hired Monday night as athletic director for the Jefferson-Morgan School District.

He replaces Stan Sagosky who submitted his resignation last week. Sagosky had held the post of athletic director for the past three years and cited a full teaching load as his reasons for resigning.

Barno was hired for a one year term with his salary prorated for the remainder of the year at $1,452.

The board also accepted the resignation of head football coach Robert Antion. Antion also submitted his resignation last week. His job was posted as being open.

It took an executive session and three votes of the board before Barno was hired.

The first motion for his hiring was defeated by a 5-4 vote with board members Robert McCarty, Stanley Fowler, Robert Harry, Charles Murray and Robert Goslin voting against the motions. Casting votes for the motion were Floyd Haney, Louie Baniecki, Charles Ferencak and Paul D'Antonio.

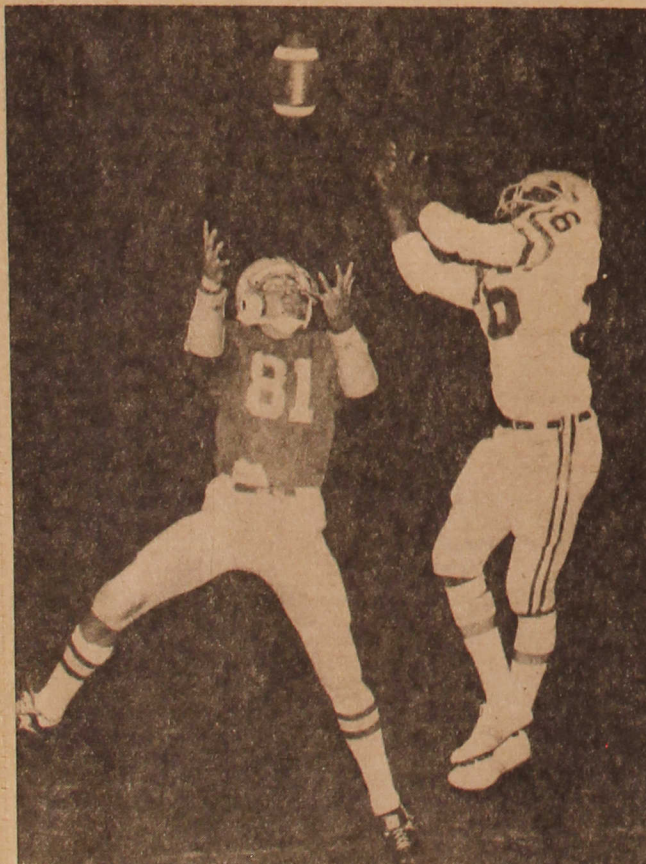

Barno was the only applicant for the position and board member Robert Harry wanted to know if the board had to elect him. He also wanted some discussion of the matter saying he didn't know why Sagosky had resigned.

The board went into an executive session to talk it over and returned with a vote to amend the board's agenda so they could again vote on the athletic director position. That motion passed 7-2 with McCarty and Fowler casting the no votes.

The second motion to hire Barno passed on a 6-3 vote with Murray, McCarty and Fowler voting against the motion.

King

Elizabeth V. King, 91, of 435 North Morris Street, Waynesburg, died after a long illness at 6 p.m., Tuesday, November 17, 1981, in Greene County Memorial Hospital.

She was born December 22, 1889, in Monongalia County, W. Va., a daughter of James L. and Laura Dell Wilson Varner.

Mrs. King had resided most of her life in Waynesburg and attended Waynesburg College. She was a retired school teacher, having taught for 34 years in elementary schools, mostly in Franklin Township. She was a member of the Pennsylvania State Education Association and the Retired Teachers Association.

She was a Gold Star Mother, a member of the James Farrell Post of the American Legion Auxiliary and the Emerald Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star 135.

She was a member of the First Christian Church of Waynesburg, the Progressive Sunday School Class and the Mother Study Club.

Her husband, Dr. Albert E. King, died June 14, 1957.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. John (Virginia) Stehulak and Mrs. Frederick (Kathleen) Plank, both of McMurray, Mrs. Betty Adleman of Chambersburg; a son, Floyd A. King of Waynesburg R.D.5; 10 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; two brothers, Arleigh Varner and Richard Varner, both of Waynesburg R.D.3; and several nieces and nephews.

50-Year Members Honored By Grange

WAYNESBURG — Over 100 persons attended the 65th anniversary dinner of the East Franklin Grange this past weekend and 12 members, all of whom have over 50 years membership, were special guests.

The local grange was chartered Nov. 30, 1916, with 33 members. All though all charter members are deceased, Charles B. Orndorff joined soon after and has been a member of the organization for 65 years.

Arleigh Varner, 92, has been a member for 62 years. Other golden age members and their length of service are as follows: Mary Stephenson Hohag, 55; Mrs. Margaret Gordon, 55; W.D. Ammons, 55; Harley Swart, 55; Miss Margaret Gordon, 53; Goldie Williamson, 52; Orville Dayton, 51; Dorothy Davis, 50; Mabel Davis, 50 and R.E. Varner, 50.

Mabel Pollock, 95, was also recognized for having been a member for the past 46 years. Ethel Lahew presented an oral history of the local grange. Also taking part in the ceremonies were Janet Shumaker, Sue Hall, Maxine Anderson, June Shriver and Delmont Rose. Marian Rush presented a talk and slides on the Holy Land.

Dignitaries recognized at the turkey dinner included Lloyd Craft, state executive committeeman; Louise Craft, state junior deputy; Margaret Scott, past lady assistant steward of the state grange and Gladys Day, Greene County Pomona Master.

All past masters of the grange were introduced including Albert Lahew, who has served the longest term of all — 10 years. Harold Wilson, who held the office for seven years, was among those introduced.

Cox-McCarty Vows

Lucinda Lee Cox and Dennis Kerr McCarty were married Saturday, Oct. 31, 1981, at the First Christian Church of Waynesburg. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Cox of Waynesburg R.D.3. Mr. and Mrs. John K. McCarty of Hickory are parents of the groom.

The Rev. Kenneth Thomas officiated at the 1:30 p.m. double ring ceremony. Virginia Wood was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a formal length gown of white Poly-organza styled with an empire waistline, a Queen Anne neckline with beaded mock Alencon wide scalloped lace, and long straight sleeves with appliques of lace. It had a bouffant skirt with lace appliques and a five-tiered bouffant chapel train of alternating wide scalloped lace. The attached train fell into a full chapel sweep. Her fingertip double-tiered veil was edged with scalloped Chantilly lace attached to Juliet cap of net with mock Alencon lace to match her gown with pearl trim.

The traditional something borrowed, something blue theme was followed: the bride carried a handkerchief belonging to her great-grandmother, wore a necklace borrowed from her sister, carried a six pence in her shoe and wore a blue garter.

She carried a bridal bouquet arranged in a white 12-inch colonial design with red roses and yellow daisies ringed with red mini-carnations. Each mother was given a rose from the bouquet.

Cindy Kesner of Mt. Morris Star Route was the bridesmaid and wore a blue gown.

Terry Livingston of Cameron Star Route served as best man. Ushers were William Cox, brother of the bride, and Drew McCarty, brother of the groom.

'Crossing Niagara' Play Reopens In New York

WAYNESBURG — "Crossing Niagara," a two-character play written by Alonso Alegria, an assistant professor of drama at Waynesburg College, is playing a six-week limited engagement in New York City.

Alegria, who came to the United States in 1979, wrote "Crossing Niagara" while free-lancing as a theater director in Lima, Peru. Since then, the play has been produced in Japan and Australia, making its United States debut at the Folger Theater in Washington, D.C., on Feb. 9.

"The play tells the story of a mid-nineteenth century historical figure — a tightrope walker who crosses Niagara Falls," Alegria said. The play deals with how these people meet and the relationship that develops between them. It climaxes when the tightrope walker, Blondin, triumphantly crosses the falls with his friend, Carlo, on his back.

"What interested me when I discovered this story was the idea of two people conquering their fear together — the whole relationship, starting from scratch," Alegria said in a Washington Post interview.

The play recently completed a six-week engagement in Washington, D.C., where it received favorable reviews. It reopened in New York City Oct. 20.

Alegria said the future of the play depends largely on the reviews it receives and the amount of interest shown by the play's producers
