Waynesburg Budget Approved

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg Borough Council Monday approved a proposed 1982 borough budget and authorized an increase in the monthly service charge for cable television service in the borough, although the increase will be somewhat less than had been requested.

The budget calls for a three-mill increase in the property tax, raising it from 19 to 22 mills. Total expenditures are estimated at $739,867, an increase of about three percent over this year's budget.

Each mill of property tax produces about $9,000. Of the 22-mill levy, revenue from 18 mills will go for general government, three mills to the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Company and one mill for capital improvements to streets.

Borough Manager James Ealy said the general government levy has been raised by two mills. The one-mill street improvement fund is new and has been set up because the county no longer provides annual grants to local governments out of its state gasoline tax revenues.

"There are some streets which are badly in need of major improvements and this will give us the start of a fund to carry them out," he said.

The budget also provides for an increase from $100 to $125 in the annual business privilege tax and calls for the levy of a new tax on coin-operated amusement devices, such as electronic games. It will be levied at a rate of $75 per year per machine, and will be assessed against the owner of the machine.

There are no changes in the one-half percent earned income tax, one-half percent realty transfer tax, $10 occupation privilege tax and $5 per capita tax.

The biggest item in the budget is police protection, which is budgeted at $190,000.

In addition to the three mill fire protection tax, which produces about $28,000, the borough provides the fire company with $10,000 out of general funds and another $5,000 out of revenue sharing money.

Revenue sharing will provide the borough with $80,251 next year, an increase of $3,000 over the 1981 allocation. The money will be used for general government purposes.

Other allocations for the coming year: administration, $83,000; tax collection, $11,132; municipal buildings, $8,755; planning and zoning, $500; civil defense, $200; general health, $7,500; sanitary sewers, $59,000; highways, $95,500; street lighting, $28,000; recreation, $8,700; miscellaneous, $99,700; debt service, $107,200; non-governmental expenditures, $11,800; transfers, $8,000.

The $107,200 debt service includes $100,000 in tax anticipation loans which the borough will negotiate early in 1982 to finance operations until tax revenues begin to come in in late spring.

Ealy said the borough will very likely wind up 1981 with a zero cash balance and will be faced with the first tax anticipation loan in early January.

The budget, which is open for inspection at the borough building, is scheduled for adoption on Dec. 28. A public budget hearing will be held at that time.

Tele-Media Company was granted an increase in its basic monthly service charge from $6 to $8.25, which is 75 cents less than it had requested.

Councilman Charles Berryhill said that while the company had indicated it would have to have a minimum of $8 a month at the time received its franchise earlier this year, that the additional 25 cents was granted because a special $7 per month rate has been established for senior citizens.

The fee for a second connection in a house was set at $2.50 per month, an increase of 50 cents. The company had asked for $3, but again it was turned down because the $2.50 rate had been mentioned in the company's franchise proposal.

Approved without change were increases from $20 to $25 in the connection charge and from $10 to $15 in the additional connection, reconnection, new location and transfer charges. These charges were proposed in the franchise agreement.

Precincts To Be Consolidated

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Court Friday approved the consolidation of voting precincts in three Greene County townships, overriding the objections of two party committeemen from Center Township in doing so.

Approval was given following a court hearing Friday.

"Consolidation of the precincts will result in substantial savings to the county and at the same time will present no inconvenience to the voters," Judge Glenn Toothman said.

Center Township East and Center Township West will be merged to create a new precinct with 541 registered voters. The polling place will be the fire hall in Rogersville, where residents of both precincts are already voting.

Perry Township No. 1 and Perry Township-Mt. Morris will be combined to create a precinct with 723 voters. They will continue to vote in the fire hall in Mt. Morris, where both precincts are currently voting.

Morgan Township-Chartiers and Morgan Township-Teegarden will be joined to form a precinct with 267 electors who will vote in the community building at Teegarden Homes, currently the voting place for the Teegarden precinct. The polling place for Morgan-Chartiers, currently located in a building in Clarksville owned by John Barnish, will no longer be used. It is located within a half mile of the Teegarden Homes voting place.

County Commissioner Joseph Pawlosky, who is chairman of the Greene County Board of Elections, testified that it currently costs the county $3,960 per year to hold elections in the six precincts, with two election boards being paid to sit at the same place and a double rental being charged for use of the fire halls since they accommodate two precincts. Consolidation will cut the cost in half.

He testified that it has become very difficult to get people to serve on election boards and to find suitable places to conduct elections. The difficulty in locating polling places accounts for the fact that the Center and Perry Township electors are now voting at the same locations.

Pawlosky also said that there are several precincts in Greene County which have more registered voters than any of the new precincts.

Burdette Carpenter of Holbrook R.D. 1, a Democratic committeeman in Center-West, testified that combining of the two precincts would cost Center Township two votes on the County Democratic Committee, since party by-laws provide for two members in each precinct.

He stated that a merger would result in an additional burden on the election board and delay still further the reporting of election results.

Target Practice Proves Costly

WAYNESBURG — A Greene County man who has been charged with shooting into a 25,000-volt power line while doing some target practice faces a lot more trouble than the $10 fine he will have to pay for violating the state game laws.

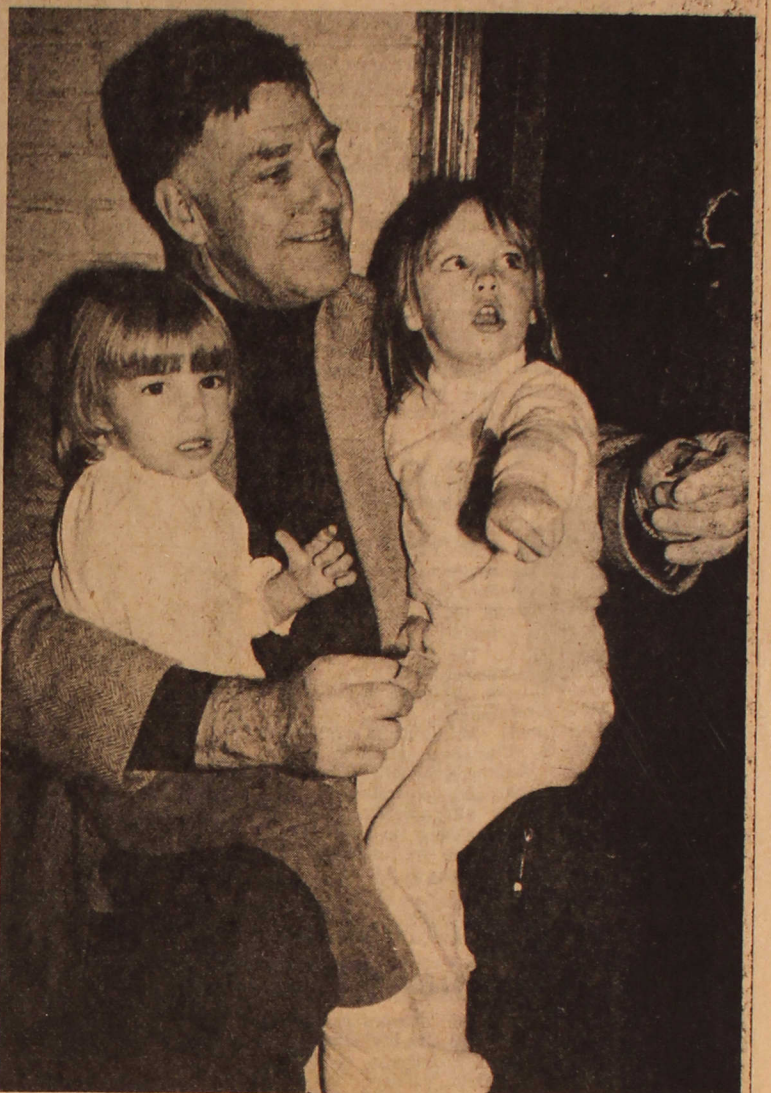

State Game Protector Steve Kleiner of Waynesburg said he has charged Gail Miller of Sycamore R.D. 1 with shooting at an improper target during deer season. The charge carries a $10 field fine.

He also faces a claim for damages from the West Penn Power Co. for money the utility spent to repair the damage and restore electrical power to 2,400 customers who were blacked out when the line was shot down on Dec. 1, the second day of the deer season.

Kleiner said he is satisfied the line was shot down accidentally. "He was shooting across a hollow at a piece of wood on a tree and apparently didn't think about the line being there," the game protector said.

Frank Bogan, West Penn's Jefferson District manager, said that in such cases an accident claim is filed against the person involved to collect reimbursement for the wages of men called out to meet the emergency situation as well as all other costs involved.

"I don't know just how much will be involved here, but it will be a substantial amount," he said.

Double Duty

Returns To Class After Transplant

CARMICHAELS — Roger Williams, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Williams of Buckhannon, W. Va., and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Willard May of Carmichaels, has returned to school following his second kidney transplant and is reported doing very well.

According to the boy's grandmother, Mrs. Rozella May, Roger's body apparently has accepted the kidney donated by his mother and he has gained 20 pounds since the operation in Boston.

Mrs. Williams, the former Frances May, and her son returned to Buckhannon on Dec. 2. Roger returned to school on Dec. 4 and his mother returned to work the same day.

The boy's body rejected a kidney donated by his father last February.

Fire Causes Minor Damage At School

ROGERSVILLE — A fire in the wood shop at West Greene High School caused only minor damage Monday morning but filled one wing of the building, including the gymnasium, with dense smoke.

The blaze, which was discovered shortly after 10 a.m., was apparently started by sparks from a cutting torch, maintenance superintendent Frank Farley said.

There were no students or faculty members in the building since Monday was the opening of the antlerless deer season, traditionally a school holiday in the West Greene District.

Robert Crouse, chief of the Center

Township Volunteer Fire Department, said the blaze started in a pile of scrap wood lying against a concrete block wall.

Farley said construction company employees were cutting a steel beam immediately above the wall of the woodshop. "It looks as if some of the sparks got through an opening above the wall and fell into the wood," he said.

Basketball coach Don Shrock was in the gymnasium, located above the wood shop, when he smelled smoke. He went to the locker room on the floor below, where there was even more smoke, and then went to get Farley since the shop area was locked.

Rebellious Congregations Lose Round To UP Church

PITTSBURGH — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court has refused to assume original jurisdiction in a Philadelphia test case involving the ownership of property of 10 Presbyterian churches in Pennsylvania — among them the Greene Valley Church in Carmichaels — which have seceded from the United Presbyterian Church in the United States (UPC).

The prothonotary of the Supreme Court's Western District in Pittsburgh confirmed Tuesday that the appellate court has turned down a petition to stay all litigation in the 10 individual cases until the case of the Tenth Street Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, has reached a conclusion.

The per curiam order merely stated "petition denied." It was not accompanied by an opinion.

The petition was based on the premise that the issues in all 10 cases are virtually identical and that the eventual decision in the Philadelphia case could serve as a precedent for all the cases. They wanted any appeals from the Philadelphia case to be reviewed by the Supreme Court, and asked that the UPC be barred from initiating any other litigation in Common Pleas courts in the state until the test case had been litigated.

The dissenting churches have severed their ties with the UPC in a liberal-conservative controversy. They contend they own the church property, which they purchased and hold in their individual names. The PUC and its Presbyteries contend the congregations which have seceded were chartered as PUC churches and agreed to abide by its constitution, which provides that when a church is dissolved its property reverts to the national denomination.

The 500 or so members of the Greene Valley Church in Carmichaels voted in April 1980 to disassociate the church from the UPC and later joined the Reformed Presbyterian Church of the Evangelical Synod, a more conservative denomination.

The UPC's Washington Presbytery in August of this year filed legal action in Greene County Court in an effort to recover all real estate and personal property of the Carmichaels church.

A preliminary argument was held in September, at which time Judge Glenn Toothman urged both sides to seek an agreement which would make an out-of-court settlement possible.

"The Court recognizes that this is a very complicated and very difficult matter," he said at the time. "I would urge counsel to address themselves to the possibility of continuing negotiations in the hope of reaching a fair settlement."

The attorneys involved said Tuesday that there have been some negotiations which were clouded by the question pending in the Supreme Court. Now that that question has been settled with the court ruling, in effect, that each case would have to be litigated on its individual merits in the court in which it is pending, settlement negotiations are expected to be resumed. If agreement cannot be reached, litigation of the Greene County case would then proceed from the point it reached in September.

Waynesburg Must Defend Award On Trash Hauling

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg Borough will be forced to defend in court its decision to award a refuse-hauling franchise to the higher of two bidders.

Judge Glenn Toothman Friday dismissed preliminary objections which the borough had filed in an effort to block an equity action brought by Robert Dugan of 661 Ross Street. The borough resident is protesting council's decision in August to award a five-year franchise to Long Trucking Co., Waynesburg R.D. 6, for the collection and disposal of garbage in the borough.

Defendants are the borough, the five members of council who voted to award the franchise to Long (Charles Berryhill, David Gonsart, Beverly Krill, Glenn Richards and Frank VanCleave); and Mayor John H. Cassidy, as the official who has the duty to enforce borough ordinances.

Dugan, as a private citizen, has asked the court to set aside the franchise awarded to Long because his user fees are higher than those offered by another bidder, Southern Allegheny Disposal Service, Inc. Long submitted a bid of $6 a month for curbside pickups and $6.50 per month for backyard pickups. Southern Allegheny's bid was $4.36 per month for curbside pickups and $5.90 for backyard pickups.

In addition to asking the court to void Long's franchise, Dugan asked the court to surcharge the five council members for damages and to order that the refuse-hauling bids be readvertised.

In commenting on the borough's preliminary objections, Toothman addressed each in turn:

✓ He ruled that Dugan, as a private citizen who resides in the borough, has the legal standing to bring the action since he has a direct interest in the refuse franchise.

✓ He ruled that the complaint does state a cause of action since the borough code provides that when a contract in excess of $1,000 is awarded, a borough must accept the bid of the lowest responsible bidder.

✓ He ruled that Dugan had met the requirement of giving the borough adequate advance notice of filing of the lawsuit.

✓ It may very well be that council, in its sound discretion and for valid reasons, awarded the contract to one other than the lowest bidder, but certainly when this is done, both the council itself and the public it serves are entitled to an explanation of its actions," Toothman said. "And in this circumstance, only after a full hearing has been held on the merits of the complaint can this be determined."

The Greene County jurist therefore directed that the case be scheduled for a court hearing.

Our photographer's wizardry has given us a dramatic reminder of the Star of Bethlehem.

We remember especially how the Star led the Wise Men to Christ. It stood over where the young child was!

Christ is not limited by time or space. He is everywhere. But at Christmas it seems there is a star over every steeple. This joyous season calls us to God's House.

Christmas glows from our hearts as we worship together the newborn King.

College Gospel Choir Receives Warm Reception

By PATTY HARVEY
Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — There's a new sound in town, and it has people in Waynesburg — both young and old — tapping their toes. The recently formed Waynesburg College Gospel Choir has received warm receptions in the community as well as on campus, according to director Kevin Williams.

"Last year we sang at about every church in the community," Williams said. "The churches we performed at were very responsive, and have asked us back to sing for them again."

The gospel choir was founded by Williams, a senior at Waynesburg College, and by college counselor Jan Harris.

"The idea came to me as a result of taking a course in ethnomusicology taught by Jim Randolph," Williams said.

"We spent a lot of time in class talking about black music, and when I mentioned an interest in forming a gospel singing group, Professor Randolph referred me to Jan Harris, who is an excellent pianist."

Harris agreed that forming a gospel choir was a good idea, and soon, ten students interested in joining the group were found. Since that first year, the group has more than doubled in size, and according to Williams, the group has also grown in other ways.

"Being a part of the gospel choir has done a lot for me. The choir has a sort of spiritual atmosphere about it, and I feel that this has brought me and other members of the choir into a closer relationship with God."

Williams' love for music was firmly established well before his arrival in Waynesburg. A resident of Philadelphia, he has been a member of the Second Baptist Church choir there from the time he was a child. Despite his long singing career, it was only recently that Williams learned to read music.

"No sheet music is used by the group — as a matter of fact, several members of the group don't read music, and Jan and I only learned to read music last year," he said.

"Jan plays by ear, and at rehearsals, that is how she teaches the parts."

He laughed and added, "I just bring out the parts, and do all of the hollering."

In addition to the gospel choir, Williams is a member of the Waynesburg College Lamplighters and college choir. "I love them all because I love music," he said. "I don't get to sing when I direct the gospel choir, and these other groups give me a chance to use my singing talents."

Williams explained that the gospel choir does not charge for its performances, with hosting churches paying only transportation costs. The choir recently performed at a church in Pittsburgh, where the reception was every bit as warm as those received in Waynesburg.

"The real test for the group is when we appear in churches such as this one in Pittsburgh," Williams explained. "People in the city are exposed to many more groups, and if they respond well to us, it's a good sign."

Perhaps the reason for the group's success can be found in the attitude of its members. There are no auditions, and anyone who enjoys singing gospel music is welcome to join.

"If I had two wishes for the choir, they would be to see the group double in size, and to see that the members just keep doing what they love best — singing," he concluded.

Waynesburg Man Participates In 'Bright Star'

CAIRO, Egypt — While millions of Americans were reading about the Mid-East exercise "Bright Star," a Waynesburg soldier was in on the action.

1st Lt. Charles A. Harry, 24, was with the 24th Infantry Division's task force in the Western Desert, some 40 miles southwest of Cairo. He was assigned as a chaparral anti-aircraft missile platoon leader with the division's 5th Battalion, 52nd Air Defense Artillery.

Harry is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Harry of Waynesburg R.D.1. A 1975 graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School, he was commissioned through the ROTC program at Washington & Jefferson College, entering active duty in January 1980.

The portion of the Western Desert where "Bright Star" was carried out was the scene of some of the fiercest battles for North Africa during World War II and is one of the most inhospitable parts of the earth. There are no trees, large rocks or hills — nothing but a barren expanse of sand and gravel stretching to the horizon in all directions.

"Cover and concealment out here is almost impossible," Harry said, "though the ground isn't quite like the pool table I'd expect. There are a few folds in the terrain for hiding in."

Harry feels that the best part of the exercise was the joint firing American troops had with the Egyptians. The Egyptians fired their SA-7 missiles, 14.5mm anti-aircraft guns and the ZSU-23-4, a tracked, four-Soviet barreled, 23mm radar-directed anti-aircraft weapon. Americans used the Vulcans (20mm anti-aircraft guns), chaparrals and redevyes (heat-seeking anti-aircraft missiles.)

The multi-service exercise and test of the nation's Rapid Deployment Force (RDF) highlighted many of the problems and situations U.S. forces would encounter in desert operations.

Lt. Harry said the fine, abrasive sand coated everything with a gritty layer of dust. Engines required constant attention to keep them going.

Optical systems, weapons systems and virtually every piece of equipment required constant attention to protect it from the environment. Soldiers also required extensive support and special desert gear to operate and survive.

"The deployment over was very realistic," the Waynesburg soldier said. "It's been very much of a challenge to move such a great distance and then engage in maneuvers. And I've come to realize that in an area like this, where there is virtually no key terrain, air superiority will probably win battles. That makes our job of air defense that much more critical."

Troops of the 24th were fortunate in one respect. They did not have to maneuver in the incredible heat of high summer when temperatures can reach 120 degrees. During the winter months, daytime temperatures reach about 80 degrees and plunge into the 40s at night.

"Anytime we have to do something out of the ordinary, we improve our ability to do our mission," Harry said. "Exercises like this are great for that — a very realistic test of our ability to do the job."

"Navigation is tough with no terrain features to use in locating one's position. There is little concealment for man or machine and the inevitable clouds of dust give away movement for miles. Distances are hard to estimate and the stillness and clarity of the desert night make the slightest noise available for long distances. "While the logistics required to support a large force in the desert are formidable enough in themselves, it would be the American soldier, the everyday GI, who would face

two enemies here — the desert and his opponents."

A chaparral anti-aircraft missile crew races the clock and mechanical stubbornness to prepare its "birds" for firing.

Opinion To Cost School Board About $18,000

JEFFERSON — While the Jefferson-Morgan School Board saved a projected $16,000 by increasing lunch prices for the second semester, another action will cost the board an estimated $18,000.

A final opinion by its solicitor said the district must credit part-time employment years as full-time employment, placing eight teachers on a salary scale which will cost about $18,000.

Last month, pending a final opinion from its solicitor, the board approved a request from the district teachers' union to credit past part-time employment years as full-time when placing eight teachers currently employed full-time on the salary scale.

C. Robert McCall, the district's solicitor, gave the board his final opinion Monday night and said, "I think our position today is to put those teachers on the salary step that their years of employment indicates."

The decision will cost the district an estimated $18,375 and will affect eight teachers now teaching full-time and one part-time teacher.

The board, however, saved a projected $16,000 in operating expenses for its cafeteria by approving one of three changes in lunch prices offered for consideration by Custom Management, the food service company which operates the cafeteria.

Effective Feb. 1, lunch prices will increase from 75 cents to 80 cents for elementary students, 75 cents to 90 cents for secondary students and reduced price lunches will go from 20 cents to 40 cents. It was projected that the increase in lunch prices will reduce the operating deficit by about $16,000.

In its annual reorganization meeting held prior to Monday night's regular meeting, the board re-elected Stanley Fowler of Clarksville to his 12th term as board president, and Paul D'Antonio of Jefferson to his 13th term as vice president. The board retained its regular meeting date as the third Monday of each month at 7 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

New members of the board being sworn in were Karen Sabo and Dr. Stanley Falor. Sworn in for another term was veteran board member Charles Ferencak of Mather.

In other action at its regular meeting, the administration was instructed to advertise for sealed bids for the purchase of the district's former Dry Tavern School building which was among several elementary buildings closed when the district opened its consolidated elementary school two years ago.

The district had earlier tried to sell the building and had entered into an agreement with John C. Gill of Rices Landing R.D.1, for purchase of the building for $62,000. Gill had made a $1,000 down payment, but when the transaction was scheduled to be completed in February Gill refused to accept the deed and the district brought legal action to force him to carry out his agreement.

The Greene County Court then authorized the district to sell the building again.

West Penn Power Co. Officials Say That Waste Is No Problem

MASONTOWN — Waste, be it hazardous or non-hazardous, is no problem at Hatfield Ferry Power Station according to West Penn Power officials who hosted an informal meeting at the plant Tuesday for elected officials and media representatives.

The utility company became concerned recently when a news release from the Department of Environmental Resources mentioned West Penn had applied for a waste handling permit for hazardous materials. Some residents became "concerned" about what hazardous materials were involved.

West Penn told the small gathering of interested citizens that the hazardous materials referred to are used lubricating oil, degreasers and solvents. The latter two items are used in cleaning machinery. All of the so-called "hazardous" materials are burned in a boiler at the plant.

Two by-products of the plant, fly ash and bottom ash, are stored at the plant but only for a short period. Most of the ash is sold for municipal or commercial use.

According to plant superintendent E.L. Jacobs, the fly ash is purchased by contractors to be used as cover at landfills, for stabilization in subsidence areas and as a concrete additive. Bottom ash, which is much more coarse, is used for cindering highways. West Virginia recently purchased 30,000 tons of the material from the plant.

Apparently concerned over nationwide publicity resulting from accidents and incidents at nuclear plants, West Penn officials were quick to point out they had no nuclear plants in their power system.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

Collective Bargaining

"A Lesson in Collective Bargaining" was the caption on the above photo when it was initially published in a Waynesburg College publicity release during World War II. There is an almost complete absence of male students in the picture because of the war. No doubt Dr. Paul R. Stewart, president of the college, had negotiated a deal whereby the female students were released from freshman rules in return for their willingness to rake leaves in the park.

Good Neighbor Policy Can Lessen Mine Effect

A cemetery dedication service held Sunday at the Enon Baptist Church in rural Greene County may seem far removed from Consolidation Coal Company's plan to eventually develop five new mines along the boundary between Washington and Greene Counties.

It was, in fact, directly linked to the start of construction of the first of those mines and lent a ring of truth to Consolidation's insistence that it intends to do everything it can to have the least possible adverse impact on people who live in that area.

The service marked completion of reinterment in the Enon Cemetery of the remains of 113 persons who were buried during the 19th century in three family grave yards in Richhill Townships.

Although the burial plots had long been disused and had become completely overgrown, Consolidation, with court permission, spent more than $300,000 to have a funeral director carefully open every grave, remove whatever remains there were, place them in individual caskets and vaults, and rebury them in a new section of the cemetery donated by the coal company.

Although old headstones which were found were preserved, each grave will be marked by a headstone and the company will build and pave a road into the new cemetery.

Every request which was made was approved without question, leading Judge Glenn Toothman and all others involved to have nothing but praise for the manner in which a difficult and touchy job was carried out.

Another example of Consolidation's approach was the way in which it gained approval to close a section of highway which had to be abandoned because of construction of the first mine.

The Richhill Township supervisors held two public hearings on the proposal. Even though Consolidation owned all the land on both sides of the road, it readily agreed with a request that the company completely upgrade another nearby road so that there would be no interference with school bus routes and other road uses. The end result was that most of those who attended the hearing seemed satisfied.

A multi-million industrial development of the type planned by Consolidation cannot help but cause disruption to the environment and to the social pattern of people who live in what has always been a rural area.

But when a company realizes it has a responsibility to get along with its neighbors the adverse effects can be lessened and Consolidation, judging by its actions to date, seems to have that attitude.

West Greene School Board Changes Grade Organization

By CHRISTIE MOLZON Staff Writer
 ROGERSVILLE — Two changes in grade organization, one eliminating double grading in two elementary schools and another making the sixth grade part of the middle school program, were made at the West Greene School Board meeting Tuesday night.

A motion to keep the football program in the WPIAL conference failed, and the board also agreed to post the head football coaching position. (See related story in Sports section.)

In conjunction with the district's middle school program, which will begin with completion of the construction work at the high school, grades at the Aleppo and Springhill-Freepoint Elementary Schools will be changed. Currently both buildings, and the Grayville Elementary School, house students K-6.

Last night, however, the board voted 6-2 to designate Springhill-Freepoint as a Primary Learning Center for grades K-3 and Aleppo as an Intermediate Learning Center for Kindergarten and grades 4 and 5.

The middle school program will include grades 6, 7 and 8. The grade change was made after a lengthy and at times, heated, discussion between board members Rick and Roy Barnhart and parents in attendance against Elementary Principal Bill Throckmorton and Superintendent Dr. Elliott LeFaiver. The latter two both gave presentations — Throckmorton insisting that single grading is the best education for a student, and LeFaiver showing how the district would save money in personnel expenses.

But a couple of parents were angry that the board had not notified the public the subject would be discussed Tuesday night. One woman said that had other parents known the matter would be considered, more would have attended the meeting or phoned their board members to object to the change.

A motion to decide the administrative structure for the middle-high school was tabled, and approval was given for the administration to complete a general curricular plan for a grade 6-8 middle school and corresponding staffing requirements for presentation at the January school board meeting. Approval was given to the superintendent, for a two-month trial period, to approve spending up to $500 for emergency repairs to existing building machines and equipment. The board asked LeFaiver to check with the district solicitor about assigning someone the task of approving emergency change orders to the building project.

Graduation date has been set for Friday, May 28, 1982, at 7:30 p.m. Byron Hughes was given permission to take 30 students to the Pennsylvania Farm Show Jan. 11-13 in Harrisburg. It was brought out that a chaperone for each 10 students would also be making the trip.

It was reported that the board will begin negotiations with teachers in January and the board agreed to send letters to the area township supervisors and the state about the winter road conditions.

Both Stout and Dr. Ronald Ferrari, district superintendent, pointed out that all school districts are facing the same problem, and that some of them are increasing their lunch prices still higher. Factors involved include increased operating costs, reduced subsidies, and mandated free and reduced-price lunches.

Dr. Ferrari said he was reluctant to recommend another increase in the price of lunches unless it is accompanied by a reduction in cafeteria staff, since it could result in less participation while costs remain substantially the same.

"There is no question but that something will have to be done before the beginning of school next fall," the superintendent said. "We are making a comparative study of the alternatives and will be prepared to make a recommendation for next year."

Susan Marie Dickey Gency, Carmichaels R.D.1, from Richard Allen Gency, Carmichaels R.D.1. They were married Feb. 14, 1976, and have one child.

Dr. Ferrari announced that the Pennsylvania Economy League has been asked by the state Senate to make a study of the impact on school districts of state and federal mandates, and that the Central Greene District is one of 50 in the state in which an in-depth analysis will be made.

He said that James Eichenlaub of the Economy League staff will meet on Jan. 12 with representatives of the administration, faculty and school board to discuss the study.

In action involving athletics, the board appointed Howard Brunell to the new position of weightlifting coach, setting his salary at $622 for the current school year. It accepted the resignation of the two boys' track team coaches, head coach Don Roddy and assistant coach Joseph Zorosky.

Board members Furman Wade, Robert Stephenson and Francis Fox were named to serve with the business manager in negotiations with non-professional employees, who have a wage reopener this year in their contract.

Dr. Ferrari reported that plans are almost complete for new windows and lights at the East Franklin School and said that the architect will meet with the board in January to discuss the possibility of expanding the project to the point where it would be eligible for 50 percent state reimbursement.

The board also:
 Accepted the resignation of Mrs. Gloria Bishop, who had been employed to be a long-term substitute at the Spraggs School from January through May, and that of Mrs. LuAnn Lemley, a part-time teacher at the Perry School.
 Reappointed Francis Minor and Burdette White to additional four-year terms on the Central Greene School Building Authority.
 Awarded a contract to Ekedahl Tool and Supply Co. for a planer and shaving hood for the federal industrial arts program based on its low bid of $4,917.
 Voted to engage Milinovich and Co., Inc., to conduct various school audits for 1982.
 Approved board committee assignments for the coming year. Chairmen of the various committees are Joanne Brookover, curriculum, athletics, activities and Title I; Robert Stephenson, budget and finance; Francis Fox, building and grounds; Warren Bowers, personnel; Furman Wade, transportation; Lila S. Ayersman, legislative and policy; and Delmont Blue, teacher-administration liaison. Mrs. Ayersman will serve as board representative on both the In-Service Council and the Greene County Vocational-Technical School board.

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

Since this issue of the Waynesburg Republican will be the last to reach out-of-town readers before Christmas, the writer of this column wishes on behalf of the owners and management and himself, sincere wishes for a joyous Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

Sincerely, it has been a great pleasure to function as a link between the out-of-town readers the "the old home town" and their friends and kinfolk who are still living in this southwestern cornerstone county of Pennsylvania.

The big news of the past two weeks and the first two days of this week has been the annual buck deer hunting season with the extra two-day special session for does the first two days of this week.

Many Greene Countians have been making late autumn trips to visit out-of-town friends and relations for the past few weeks and many now living elsewhere will be "back home" for the Christmas holidays with family members still residing here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Custer of South Richhill Street, for instance, returned last week from a southern trip on which they visited their daughter, Joan and her husband, Kent Reimann at their home in West Palm Beach for several days. From there they went on to Fort Lauderdale where they visited an old friend from their home town in central Pennsylvania. Before returning home the Custers also visited her brother, James Stick at Cape Coral. Mr. Custer is a retired lineman of West Penn Power Co. in Waynesburg.

Although cold weather has temporarily halted most exterior work on the Waynesburg two-block downtown revitalization project, four ornamental shade trees have been "set out" along the curb in front of the courthouse as the first step in a general face lifting of the area between the intersections of Morgan and High on its western end.

Miss Amy Gregg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gregg of Morningside, which will be remembered by earlier waynesburgers as the Cooke Addition to Waynesburg, is advancing rapidly in her television career at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. She initially was featured in a number of commercials and has since had roles in motion picture and television dramatic productions. Fort Lauderdale is rapidly becoming one of Florida's leading centers in art and the stage and electronic media.

Both of Greene County's two state game protectors, Steve Kleiner of Waynesburg for the western end of the county, and Robert Shaffer of Carmichaels for the eastern end, had nothing but the highest praise for the sportsmanship and observance of the law during the two day antlerless (doe) season. It was another case, they said, of everyone getting the type of benefits which the state game commission has stressed for many years. Ideal weather conditions prevailed with a light snow for tracking and a temperature reading of about 30 degrees on both days.

Miss Sarah Rush, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Calvin C. Rush of Waynesburg, who has appeared in Hollywood movie productions and commercials, will visit her parents during the coming Christmas season.

Other yuletide visitors at the Rush home will include their son, Richard, now a graduate student in forestry at Duke University in Durham, N.C. Also their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Prichard, also of Durham where Mr. Prichard is a district forester in the North Carolina state forestry department.

And, just once more — Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to Republican readers from coast-to-coast, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and to the many Greene County snow dodgers in Florida and Arizona.

In 1963, the Waynesburg fire hall was dedicated after it was under construction for two years. It was built on property owned by a founder of the fire company, the former Grover Linton.

Facing one of the busiest streets in town — East Greene — it is a humble sort of monument to those who gave their lives in the town's most tragic fire.

It started some years ago on a rather modest basis after the fire hall had a temporary

Snowmobiles Banned

WAYNESBURG — Officials at Waynesburg Central High School warned Tuesday that snowmobiling on school property is absolutely banned, and that violators are subject to prosecution for trespassing.

Assistant Principal David Lemley said that some signs have already been posted and that others will be put up.

"The school doesn't want to be difficult, but this is an unsupervised and unauthorized activity and there is a question of liability involved in case of an accident," he said.

He said that violators will be identified and reported.

Lunch Costs Worry School

By BOB EICHENLAUB Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — The increasing level of subsidization required by the school lunch program was discussed at the monthly meeting of the Central Greene School Board Tuesday.

Business manager Walter Stout reported that the program has cost the district $30,487 since the start of classes this fall despite an increase in the price of lunches to 75 cents at the high school and 70 cents at the elementary schools.

In response to a question from a board member, he agreed that subsidization of the program may very well "eat up" the entire budgetary reserve provided in the general fund budget for this year.

Both Stout and Dr. Ronald Ferrari, district superintendent, pointed out that all school districts are facing the same problem, and that some of them are increasing their lunch prices still higher. What should I remember about electrical safety in the home?

Electrical safety starts with an adequate home wiring system. Otherwise, your use of electricity could overload the wiring and cause a fire.

If fuses blow or circuit breakers trip frequently, have a qualified electrician check for inadequate wiring.

Worn electric cords can cause short circuits, shock, or fire, too. So repair or replace them.

Always disconnect an appliance that sparks. Also disconnect portable appliances before cleaning. And don't place such appliances where they might fall into sink or bath water.

Are portable electric heaters safe to use?

Generally they are, if your wiring can safely handle the added electrical load and if you take precaution in using the heaters.

For example, you should connect the heater cord directly to a wall outlet and not use an extension cord. If one's required, however, use a heavy-duty cord. Never use an ordinary extension cord.

And if buying a heater, select one with a tip-over safety switch.

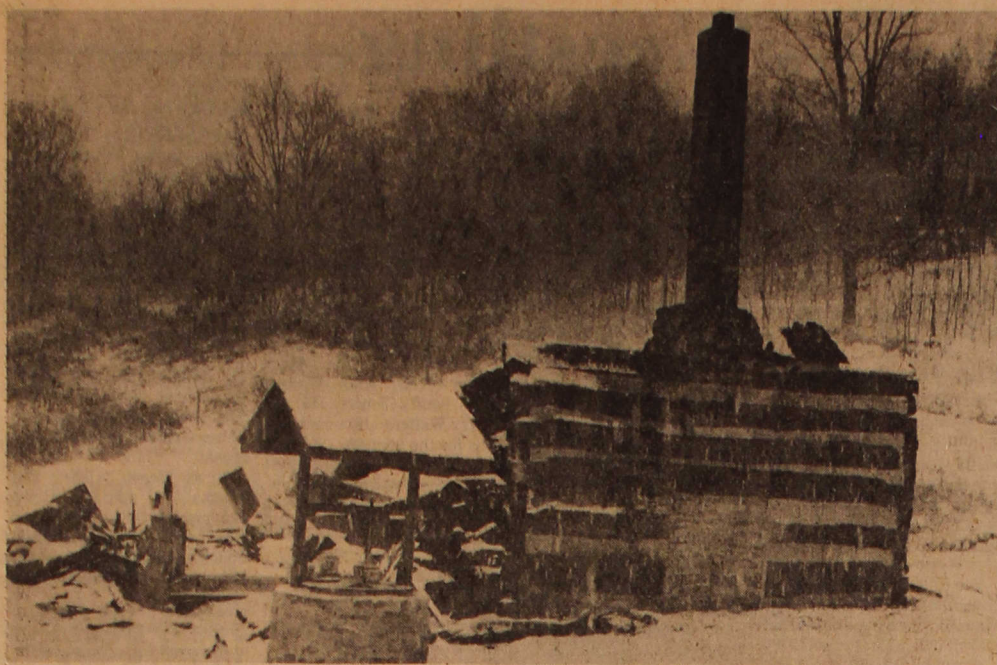

Do you have any Christmas lighting safety tips?

Yes. Before using, inspect decorative lighting for broken insulation, frayed wires, and loose sockets. Always unplug lights before going to bed or leaving the house. And if you decorate outside, use equipment designed for outdoor use.

Of course, we suggest decorating conservatively, too. A few, well-placed lights can create an effective display yet hold down holiday lighting costs.

Log House Destroyed By Blaze

OAK FOREST — Loss was unofficially estimated at $30,000 following a fire late Sunday night which destroyed a restored log house in Center Township owned by Lenore Brick of Pittsburgh.

Center Township Fire Chief Robert Crouse said the house was empty and the fire had engulfed the five-room dwelling by the time it was discovered. The roof had fallen in and three walls were down when firemen got to the scene.

Crouse speculated that a gas leak may have caused the blaze, which was discovered at 10:30 p.m. by a passing motorist who went to the nearby home of Phillip Foley, who called in the alarm.

The house, known in the area as the "Frank Rush place," is located on a back road northwest of Oak Forest. It was purchased by Robert and Lenora Brick from Raymond Clark.

L. Milton Sproat, who lives nearby, said he had helped the Bricks completely rebuild the house over a three-year period, removing siding from the log section of the old house, remodeling the other section, and adding a new kitchen and utility room and bathroom. "They had a lot of antiques and other furnishings in the house," he said.

Sproat said that Mr. and Mrs. Brick had used the house as a weekend and summer retreat and had planned to move into it after Mr. Brick retired from his position at the Koppers Company, but that he had died recently.

The house had been completely rewired and the plumbing had been replaced. Crouse said the only fire in the house was the pilot light on the hot water tank and on the furnace.
