16 Loaded Coal Cars Derail In Waynesburg Saturday

WAYNESBURG — Workmen were busy Sunday replacing a section of track near the Crawford Bridge after 16 cars from a loaded coal train bound for Monroe, Mich., derailed early Saturday.

The cars on the Monongahela Railway Co. train left the tracks near the Porter and Lincoln street intersection at 2:35 a.m.

One of the derailed cars knocked over a utility pole, leaving approximately 1,310 West Penn Power customers without electrical service for at least three hours.

Sherry Black, who lives in a mobile home on the corner of the two streets, said she was in her bedroom when the accident occurred.

"I heard the train coming and I knew something was going to happen because it didn't sound the usual way, the vibrations were different," she said. She also noted that the train seemed to be moving faster than usual.

When the train derailed she described the noise as "a lot of screeching" and saw sparks flying. But her parents, who live two houses away, never heard the crash. Other residents in the area, however, said there was a thundering noise when the derailment occurred.

Officials for the railway company in Brownsville could not be reached Sunday night for a damage estimate or information on the cause of the accident. A number of people in the south side area reported Saturday that the section of track where the derailment occurred had been torn up and replaced about a month ago.

Workers from the Penn Derailment Service, hired to remove the coal and damaged cars from the accident site, said they hoped to have the railroad back in service sometime Monday.

The 140-car train was loaded in Blacksville, W.Va., and was headed east to Connellsville and then on to Michigan. The coal was being transported to the Detroit Edison Co.

Trumka Campaigns In Cokeburg

By KATHIE OPFERMAN
Staff Writer

COKEBURG — "We don't claim to be the best in the way of contract negotiations," declared Richard Trumka, candidate for the presidency of the United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) before a crowd of 200 in Cokeburg on Sunday.

"But we say 'why not the best' because we represent the best in tradition and heritage of the UMW."

Trumka, a 32-year old lawyer from Nemacolin, will challenge Sam Church, Jr., incumbent UMWA president, for leadership of the 160,000 member union. Running with Trumka on the "Why Not The Best" are Cecil Roberts, vice-presidential candidate, and John Banovic for secretary-treasurer.

Church's running mates include Frank Clements of Birmingham, Ala., and Martin Connors of Uniontown, a member of District 5.

All three candidates on "Why Not The Best" slate are third generation miners.

Trumka graduated in 1967 from Carmichaels High School and 1971 from Penn State University with a bachelor of science in accounting and economics. He worked at Nemacolin Mine, Local Union 6290, while attending law school at Villanova University. Trumka received his Juris Doctor of Law degree from Villanova in 1974 with an emphasis in labor law.

Currently Trumka represents District 4 on the UMWA International Executive Board and is chairman of the Local Union 6290 Safety Committee.

Roberts, of Cabin Creek, W.Va., is District 17 vice-president. Banovic, who is from Litchfield, Ill., is president of District 12.

Members of the ticket were in Cokeburg for a Coal Miners Appreciation Day hosted by the Croatian Fraternal Union Lodge 354 and Sons of Italy Hall, with proceeds benefitting the Trumka campaign.

"People like my grandfather and the men and women in this hall have fought to build this union through their sacrifice, struggle and courage," Trumka said.

"The head of the union has failed the union membership in failing to recognize their great strength."

Trumka termed Church "odious" during 1981 contract talks for giving up a "real" cost of living increase and weakening job security.

"Perhaps the most important loss, one taken away during 1978 contract talks, was the Health Service Card," according to Trumka.

"John L. Lewis (Former UMWA president) got us the Health Service Card after a long and bitter strike. But Church voted three times to take the card away, the greatest thing that Lewis gave this union."

Trumka lashed out at Church for failing to notify the rank and file of changes in Black Lung benefits by President Jimmy Carter's administration in 1980.

"We can't stand five more years of Sam Church," Don Redman, president of District 5, stated.

"Your future is in your hands when you vote," he added, "if you don't vote for Trumka you won't get another chance."

"And five years is a long time."

While dining on lamb and kolbassi, Trumka and members of his campaign took shots at Church who was at a $200-a-plate dinner in Washington, D.C. for the benefit of his campaign.

"Church puts his future with the vested interest in Washington, D.C.," Trumka said.

The rank and file will finance Trumka's campaign, said one campaign worker from District 5.

"We don't need help from politicians."

Trumka campaigned last week in Districts 2, 11, 12 and 31 with stops planned in District 4 and 5 this week.

"The support has been excellent," Trumka said. "We knew the support was there but we had no idea it would be to this great extent."

The presidential hopeful added he was warmly received in Church's home district, number 28 in Virginia.

Campaign workers expect to run a grassroots campaign, dependent upon support both financially and physically from the rank and file.

District 4 and 5 leaders urged their members to go back to the coal fields and spread the news about Trumka, called by running mate Banovic as Pennsylvania's favorite son.

Members of the rank and file gathered in Cokeburg greeted Trumka with applause, cheers and whistles.

"I have been a coal miner all of my life," said Tom Stofcheck of Local 1248 of Maple Creek in District 5.

"When Trumka says he wants to be our leader I believe him, coal mining is his life," Stofcheck stated.

"He represents the generation working in the coal mine today."

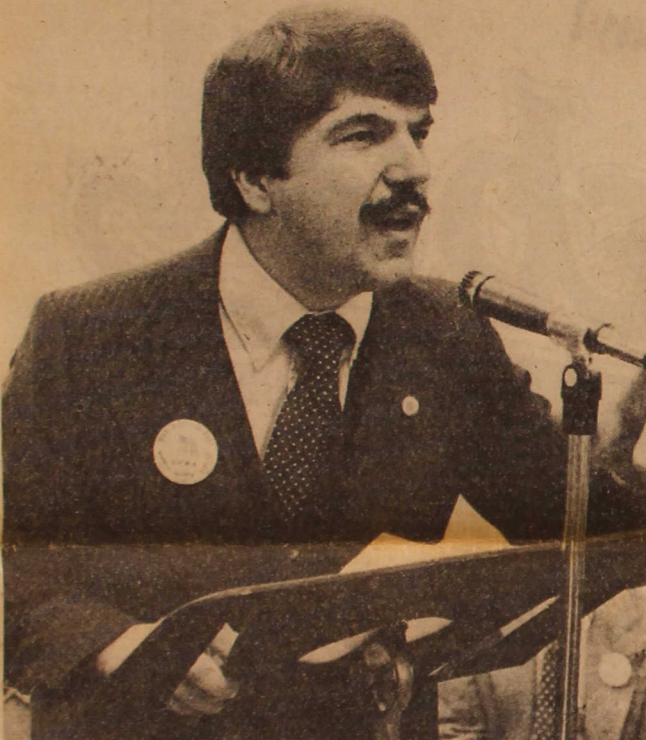

Jane Christopher of Local 2300 in District 4 said "I love him."

"Trumka is educated, honest and up-front," Ms. Christopher commented, "I know he would make a good union president."

This campaign is not Richard Trumka, Cecil Roberts or John Banovic's campaign, it is our campaign, Trumka told the gathering.

"Help us clean up the union and get it on track."

Trumka will campaign in District 4 and 5 this week, including a stop at the District 4 parade and a visit at the District 5 open house on Thursday.

County To Consider A Study Of Historic Sites

WAYNESBURG — Greene County commissioners have been asked to consider funding a systematic study of sites in the county that may have historic or architectural significance.

The study would lead to the preparation and publication of a Greene County Register of Landmarks.

The proposal was presented to the commissioners' meeting Thursday by Daniel I. Morris, associate professor of art at Waynesburg College.

Noting that the problem of preserving significant landmarks has been brought into focus by increasing development and industrialization of the county, he said he feels there is a need for a comprehensive listing and ranking of sites and buildings that are significant to the county's heritage.

He added it would ease the conflicts that often arise when the needs of business and industry must be accommodated as the county continues to grow.

As a first step, Morris suggested a pilot study be made on what it would cost to prepare a Register of Landmarks. He said the pilot study could be carried out at a cost of no more than $500 to $1,000 and could be done by any of a number of agencies, including the county Historical Society, county Council on the Arts, Greene Academy of Art or others.

The commissioners agreed to consider the idea and referred it to the county planning commission for a recommendation.

In other developments at the meeting, Prudential Insurance Co. representatives told the commissioners that no private company is in a position to compete with Blue Cross and Blue Shield in providing health and medical insurance to county employees. But they did suggest the county review its life insurance policy, which it has had for many years with Aetna Life Insurance Co.

The county is currently paying 74 cents per thousand dollars for the $5,000 life insurance coverage it provides to elected officials and department heads and the $4,000 coverage it provides for other employees, with a total of some 270 people being covered.

Prudential, they said, could provide the same coverage for 54.3 cents per thousand, for an annual savings of $2,600.

In a related matter, the commissioners informed William Morris of the Morris Agency that the county has decided to continue its liability and accident insurance policy with the Baily Agency. The commissioners cited the service provided by the agency and because it is the second year of a three-year policy. Morris presented a proposal several weeks ago which he said would save the county about $8,000 on its annual premium. Commissioner L.R. Santore, however, said he believes the county should arrange for competitive bidding before any insurance coverage is purchased for 1983.

A bid of $5,854 was received from Strohsider Printing Co. for printing ballots for the May primary election. It was referred to the county solicitor for consideration of a penalty clause to insure on-time delivery of the ballots, with late delivery having been a problem at the election last November.

Architect Gary Dickson met with the commissioners to discuss work being done at the county office building in connection with development of an adult day care center in the building basement. He said that continued presence of the Hooper Building, which adjoins the work site, has created problems in connection with outside work and will cause additional cost if the building remains.

The commissioners indicated they will confer with Judge Glenn Toothman next week to determine the status of their petition asking the court to permit demolition of the Hooper building, which is vacant.

1,000 Miners To Be Laid Off

WAYNESBURG — For the third time in less than a month, about 1,000 miners from U.S. Steel's Robena Division will be laid off because of slumping steel sales.

The new one-week layoff will begin Monday, idling 525 workers at the Robena mine, 385 at Dilworth mine, 100 at the Robena preparation plant and 50 at the Mount Braddock mine.

Meanwhile, about 800 employees at the company's Maple Creek mine in the Frick District will be operating on a reduced three-week work week.

McGilton Defense Argues For Trial In Another County

WAYNESBURG — The attorney representing Paul J. McGilton argued in Greene County Court Monday that conviction of the borough patrolman who accidentally shot and killed McGilton's wife has polarized the community to the point where it is impossible for his client to receive a fair and impartial trial.

Public Defender John Stets argued that the unusually large number of "letters to the editor" received by local newspapers following the trial and conviction of Patrolman Michael J. Fuller on a charge of involuntary manslaughter support his contention that McGilton should be tried in another county — or that a jury be impaneled in a distant county and then brought to Waynesburg.

"There is no other issue that has so inflamed the community in many years," he argued. "Clearly we have an impassioned and aroused citizenry and it will be very difficult, if not impossible, to find jurors who are not prejudiced and who are willing to serve."

McGilton has been charged with aggravated assault and recklessly endangering another person in connection with the fatal shooting on Jan. 17 of his wife, Celia McGilton, by Patrolman Fuller.

The charges are based on the fact that he came to the door of his house with a shotgun in his hand when Fuller and Patrolman Timothy Stephenson went to the house in response to a complaint from a neighbor that McGilton had threatened another man with a gun.

When he did so, Fuller fired two shots in the belief that McGilton was about to gun down his fellow police officer. One of the bullets went through a wall and struck Mrs. McGilton in the heart.

Fuller was subsequently charged with homicide and was tried in March, with a criminal court jury finding him guilty of involuntary manslaughter on March 3.

McGilton's case is scheduled for trial during the May term of criminal court, which begins the last week of May.

At the change of venue hearing Monday, Robert Eichenlaub, Greene County editor of the Observer-Reporter, and Peter Rogers, publisher of the Democrat Messenger, both testified that their newspapers had received an unusually large number of "letters to the editor" following the Fuller verdict. Deputy Clerk of Courts Shirley Stockdale testified that she had received an anonymous telephone call asking for the names of persons who had served on the jury in the Fuller case.

Stets argued that both are symptomatic of the fact that segments of the community have rallied behind Fuller, as are the circulation of bumper stickers and business establishment signs supporting Fuller.

He said there has been a concentrated effort by police to rally support for their fellow officer, as indicated by a radio interview just this weekend with Police Chief Timothy Hawfield in which he said that if the court had not refused to admit results of an internal investigation made by the police department that Fuller would have been cleared.

Because of attacks on the Fuller case jury, the public defender argued, it would be very difficult to find people who are not prejudiced and who would be willing to serve on McGilton's jury.

"I think that we run the risk of getting people on that jury who would be attempting to right what they felt was a wrong in the Fuller trial, or people who agreed with that verdict and would want to serve for that reason."

District Attorney Charles Morris argued that the usual change of venue petitions are based on arguments that reporting has been inflammatory, which is not contended in this case. He pointed to a number of cases in which news coverage was equally voluminous where it was still possible to obtain jurors who were able to judge a case on the basis of testimony presented during the trial, and argued that it would be equally possible to do so in the McGilton case.

Also argued Monday was Stets motion for dismissal of the charge of aggravated assault against McGilton, which he said "is actually attempted aggravated assault on the police officers."

He argued that to sustain such a charge, a shot would actually have to be fired which missed the target; that the mere possession of a gun does not constitute aggravated assault.

In response, the district attorney argued that a mere pointing of a gun warrants filing of the charge. "If you are shooting someone, the first step is to point the gun," he said.

Judge Glenn Toothman stated that he would take both the change of venue argument and the motion to quash petition under advisement and would hand down a decision at a later date.

Community Action Corp. Program

Grant Sought For Day Care Service

WAYNESBURG — Application for a Title 20 grant which will provide Greene County with $294,870 to provide services to needy families through its Day Care program was executed Thursday by the county commissioners.

The application was presented by Marie Simmons of Waynesburg, who directs the Day Care program as a function of the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp. under contract with the county.

Mrs. Simmons explained that the grant will replace funding previously provided through the state Department of Welfare, with Greene County being part of a pilot program to test the practicality of the new funding procedure.

With the grant, the Day Care program will be able to provide services to 45 preschool children in the three day care centers it operates at Waynesburg, and to 60 additional children in the 15 family day care homes it operates in all sections of the county.

Families whose incomes fall within federal poverty guidelines will be able to place children in the centers at a cost of $1 per day.

Mrs. Simmons stressed, however, that the program also provides service to families who are not in the low-income category. In these cases, the daily charge ranges from a low of $6 to a maximum of $10, depending on family income.

The three day care centers are located in the First Presbyterian Church, First Christian Church and First Baptist Church in Waynesburg. They take care of three, four and five-year-old children.

The family day care homes, which are located throughout the county, provide service for children from infancy through the age of 12, with the primary service to older children being after school hours where parents are working. "We are not offering a baby sitting service, but a quality child care program," Mrs. Simmons said.

She said the program is currently providing service to 119 children from 105 families, 54 in the three centers and 65 in the private homes. She also said that 50 of the clients are single women "who probably would have to be on public assistance if the day care program wasn't available to care for their children while they work."

She added that the program was forced to close a center at Bobtown in November, but has replaced it through adding to the family day care homes. She also said that additional savings were effected by eliminating kitchens from two of the Wayneburg centers. Food for all three centers is now provided through one kitchen.

"Financing was difficult for a time, but I think we have now worked out all of our problems," the director concluded.

Cancer Society Unit Begins Crusade

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Unit, American Cancer Society, held its annual kickoff dinner for volunteers for the 1982 crusade Tuesday night in the Waynesburg fire hall.

Robert Anderson, district director and board member of the Pennsylvania Division of the American Cancer Society, was the speaker. Anderson is also past president of the Washington County Unit.

Others participating in the program were Ann Jacobs, Nurse of Hope for the local unit; Arnetta Cooper, Greene County Unit president, and Bill Miller, chairman for the 1982 crusade.

A special award was presented to Judy Graham, a registered nurse who served as chairman for this year's Daffodil Days. She also accepted an award for the service fraternity at Waynesburg College that assisted with the Daffodil sales. She is advisor for the fraternity.

The Greene County Unit will sponsor a free "Quit Smoking Clinic," sometime in April. Anyone wishing to attend the clinic is asked to call the Greene County Unit office at 627-5259.

Council Asked To Review The Proposals

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Health and Welfare Coordinating Council has been asked by the county commissioners to review and comment on proposals for use of a $31,135 adult services block grant.

The allocation will come from $7 million in federal Title XX and state funds which are part of Gov. Thornburgh's budget for the coming fiscal year. Use will be restricted to providing social services to low-income adults between the ages of 18 and 59 who are not eligible for assistance under programs administered by the U.S. Department of Welfare.

The county commissioners have already notified the welfare department that the county will accept the block grant and is considering proposals from county social service agencies for utilization of the money.

Services could include adult day care, adult placement, counseling, home-delivered meals, homemaker services, housing information and referral services, protective services and others.

The money cannot be used to purchase equipment, for capital expenditures or to provide institutional services. Neither can it be used to supplant other federal, state or county funds currently being spent on social services.

Herbert Cox, chief clerk of the county, said the commissioners have already received proposals from several local agencies. They will be referred to the Health and Welfare Coordinating Council.

Barbara Coccari, council president, said several council members have volunteered to serve as a review board to evaluate the proposals. None is affiliated with any group, organization or agency which is submitting a proposal so that there can be no conflict of interest.

The committees evaluation will be submitted to the commissioners to assist them in deciding how the money should be used. Under the timetable, the county has until June 1 to submit a plan to the Department of Welfare for allocation of the money.

College Alumnus Still Thinking About Basketball

The following is the first in a series of articles on the achievements of Waynesburg College alumni. Clair F. Bee is a graduate of the class of 1925, winner of the Distinguished Alumnus Award in 1979, and recipient of an honorary doctorate degree from Waynesburg College in 1981.

WAYNESBURG — At age 86, Clair F. Bee is still thinking about basketball.

The Hall of Fame coach is confined to his bed suffering from a heavy cold and eyesight so poor he can't watch the NCAA tournament on television.

But he has his opinions. "I don't like the new rule eliminating the jump ball," he says about that current controversy. "I think every player should have a chance to jump, not just the center."

Although Bee has been out of coaching for many years, he's pleased that some of his plays are still in use. There's the 1-3-1 defense, a zone variation Bee initiated and the four-corner, control offense. Bee claims credit for helping his friend Dean Smith work that one out at North Carolina, which is again an NCAA final-four team.

Although he has advised many of this year's tournament coaches, including Smith and Bobby Knight of Indiana, Bee says he doesn't have a favorite team. By phone from his farm in Roscoe, New York, the 1925 graduate said, "Waynesburg's team is still the best one for me. How did they do in the playoffs?"

As basketball coach at Long Island University from 1931 to 1951, Bee was a fixture at national playoff games. His team piled up records faster than New York sportswriters could pile on their superlatives.

With 410 wins against 86 losses for a percentage of 82.7, Bee still boasts the best winning percentage among major college coaches. His LIU teams once had 139 consecutive home court victories and had winning streaks as long as 43 and 38 in a row. They won the national chamionship in 1936, 1939 and 1941. "We won the National Invitation Tournament (NIT) twice in Madison Square Garden," he says. "Well, I should say the players won. You know, players win; coaches talk."

With that honesty, he sounds like a character right out of Chip Hilton, the popular sports series for boys. And no wonder — the author of the 23-book Chip Hilton series is Clair Bee. "Players make coaches," said Chip Hilton's basketball coach, in agreement with his author.

But other qualities make coaches too and Clair Bee had them all. Always a student of the game, he was teacher, analyst and master strategist. Through his clinics and his many basketball texts, he has influenced coaches all over the country.

Ironically, this innovative pioneer who was named to the basketball hall of fame in 1968 did not play basketball himself as an undergraduate at Waynesburg College. He remembers being just a "sub quarterback on the football team." He is still proud of one scouting job he did against Navy. "It was the only time we ever beat them," he says.

As student manager of the basketball team, he once served as coach for two weeks, "when the regular coach didn't arrive on time. He was also assistant to Waynesburg College president Paul R. Stewart and college comptroller, a position he later held at LIU.

He wrote his Chip Hilton books from his own experience as a coach, and as a boy in Grafton, W.Va. "I think that's the best way to write," he says. "But I'm not quite the hero Hilton was, I'm sorry to say."

Other college coaches disagreed. A testimonial dinner given in Bee's honor in New York City four years ago drew an attendance that looked like a who's who of basketball. Waynesburg College Coach Rudy Marisa found himself standing in line there behind North Carolina Coach Dean Smith — to get Bee's autograph. On hearing that Marisa was from Waynesburg College, Dean Smith said, "You must be very proud." By awarding Clair Bee an honorary degree in 1981, Waynesburg College agreed.

Former Area Resident Presents Organ Recital

Christy McNett And Richard Yoders Wed

The bride appeared in a gown of polyester sheer knit lined with taffeta, fashioned with a lace stand-up collar and embroidered front yoke. It featured a slightly raised waist with a pleated front panel, sheer sleeves cuffed in lace and a chapel-length train. Her hat of chantilly lace was decorated with silk flowers and pearl trim, with a back bow of net.

Leslie Godisart of Charle-roi, a friend of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Charlene Raytek of Richeyville and Barbara Barnhart of Mason-town, friends of the bride, and Tina McNett, sister-in-law of the bride. Chastity McNett served as her aunt's flower girl.

Best man was Jeff Kerr of Waynesburg, a friend of the bridegroom. Ushering were David Yoders of Holbrook, brother of the bridegroom; Gary Murphy of Wind Ridge, uncle of the bridegroom, and Dennis McNett of Waynesburg, brother of the bride. Curtis Price, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

Receptions in the church social room and East Franklin Grange hall followed the ceremony, with Tammy McNett, sister-in-law of the bride, attending the guest book. Out-of-state guests attended from Ohio, Maryland and West Virginia.

The bride graduated from Waynesburg Central High School in 1978 and from Waynesburg College in 1981. She majored in elementary education and was a member of Phi Sigma Sigma sorority. The bridegroom, a 1974 graduate of West Greene High School, is employed by the Texas Eastern Gas Pipeline Co.

The newlyweds are residing at 427 Coolspring Street, Uniontown.

36 Central Students Inducted Into NHS

WAYNESBURG — Thirty-six Waynesburg Central High School students were inducted into the National Honor Society during a candlelight ceremony held in the school library last week.

Members were selected by the faculty for meeting high standards of scholarship, service, leadership and character.

The following sophomores were inducted: Cheryl Amos, Cassy Crediford, Jennifer Espenshade, Kim Kiger, Roshan Khorsandian, Lee Ann Neubauer, Corby Orndorff, Richard Rush, Fred Wheaton and Lorna Varner.

Juniors inducted were Whitney Francis, Jennifer Graham, William Haney, Jessica Halow, Ronald Hostuttler, Laurel Kelley, Chris Kendall, Colleen Kress, Gwen McCullough, Jay Morris, Greg Statler, Megan West, Jack Woods and Joy Waychoff.

Senior inductees were Jane Baily, Melody Bennett, Kristy Fitch, Susan Fox, Tai Hua Quoc, Vinh Hua Quoc, Amanda Johnson, Arnika Keiderling, Susan McCollum, Amy Parker, Susan Ponzoo and Edward Smith.

National Honor Society members are expected to continue their exemplary contributions to the school and community," said Mrs. Marion Berryhill, faculty adviser.

The National Honor Society ranks as one of the oldest and most prestigious organizations for high school students. Chapters exist in three-fourths of the nation's high schools and, since 1921, more than six million students have been selected to membership.

More than $2 million in scholarships have been awarded to senior members since 1945 by the sponsoring organization, the National Association of Secondary High School Principals.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sagosky of Rices

Landing announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Ann to Brian Keith Rohanna, son of Isaac Rohanna and the late Olline Rohanna of Waynesburg. The bride-elect is a 1976 graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School and a 1980 graduate of California State College with a bachelor's degree in elementary education. She is a teacher in the Central Greene School District. Her fiancé is a 1974 graduate of Waynesburg Central and is employed by Rohanna Iron and Metal Inc. of Waynesburg. A June 5th wedding is planned.

He wrote his Chip Hilton books from his own experience as a coach, and as a boy in Grafton, W.Va. "I think that's the best way to write," he says. "But I'm not quite the hero Hilton was, I'm sorry to say."

Other college coaches disagreed. A testimonial dinner given in Bee's honor in New York City four years ago drew an attendance that looked like a who's who of basketball. Waynesburg College Coach Rudy Marisa found himself standing in line there behind North Carolina Coach Dean Smith — to get Bee's autograph. On hearing that Marisa

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

This week's Faces From The Past photo shows Russell Pettit with this ewe and her four newborn lambs some 30 years ago at the Pettit Farm in Washington Township near Swarts. Hundreds of such lambs are born in Greene County at this time of year. The girl with Pettit is not identified.

Fact and Folklore
 John O'Hara

After having virtually been a two-county area instead of a single county (which it really was but did not function politically as) Greene — the southwest cornerstone of Pennsylvania — will shortly have a singular dominating lifestyle. The fusing material, of course, will be the numerous veins of metallurgical soft coal underlying thousands of acres of land, much of it still farmland or wooded areas as when the last Indians moved westward after being dispossessed of their tribal areas.

Except for the rich deposits of oil and gas which underlies most of Greene County in varying amounts, coal has been the principle source of wealth aside from farm crops and livestock.

Greene County's first mine to produce the Pittsburgh vein was at Rices Landing where the vein outcropped along the Monongahela River and could be mined at a comparatively small cost per acre. Most of that mine's production was shipped by river barges to mills in Pittsburgh.

The first type of modern mechanized mine was opened by the Crucible Steel Co. of Pittsburgh at the county's first identical row housing in the northeast corner of Cumberland Township along the Monongahela River.

It was followed a few years later by the Cleveland based Mather Collieries Co. During the first decade of its existence it was the scene of a massive explosion that took more than a hundred lives.

Within the same decade the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Corp. opened the massive holdings they had put together at their first mine in Cumberland Township three miles south of Carmichaels. It shared a name with an ancient Indian chieftain whose domain was in that area — Nemacolin.

Shortly after the Nemacolin mine came the Bobtown mine of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Co. of Pittsburgh.

More mines followed until the Monongahela River became one of the biggest river carriers of soft coal in the United States, its cargos included that of the gigantic U.S. Steel Co.'s Robena mine — then the largest in the United States.

The original rural image of the eastern part of the county faded rather rapidly as the mining communities continued to increase and living customs became altered.

Soon the Polish polka tunes became as familiar as "Turkey in the Straw" and other pioneer ballads of the original Scotch, Irish and English settlers. The ethnic marriages strengthened the better heritages of both groups and under the long Presidential regime of Franklin D. Roosevelt eventually turned many rural Democrats west of Waynesburg, towards the Republican conservatism.

Now, in 1982, the first coal mines in such solid rural areas of Richhill, Morris and Wayne Townships presage the large influx of miners that soon will be flocking there to create another dynasty of Democrat persuasions as the first coal mines did in the eastern end of the county.

It is inevitable that sooner or later some younger prototype of Stephen McCann of Carmichaels, whose first job was shoveling coal in the former Crucible mine, will arise. The political techniques McCann learned as a union leader in the UMWA led him to the Pennsylvania House of Representatives and, ultimately, to all things, chief lobbyist for so many years since the first mine opened at Rices Landing in 1907.

All of which is just a part of the prologues of what lies ahead as Greene again becomes one county instead of the two counties it has been within the same perimeter for so many years since the first mine opened at Rices Landing in 1907.

Embarrassing as that was for somebody, things were going from bad to worse at home. "Did you know four of the steady theatre-goers of Carmichaels came to a big bust-up last Saturday evening because some dates got mixed up and the wrong people appeared on the scene when they shouldn't have? It was very embarrassing for some."

In other mistakes, "The girl with the purple slack suit got on the wrong truck the other night and came near not making it home from the baseball field. Now why didn't she stick with her old boy friend?"

In the year 1948 alone, the following activities were noted: first, "Four we know of who went riding in a jeep to see the ball game in Pittsburgh got all tangled up in the downtown traffic there and were in an awful stew for an hour or so." Times haven't changed very much, I see. I have been in an awful stew in Pittsburgh traffic more than once myself.

A coal mining family found itself in an awful stew, too; "Gee whiz, was all one poor miner could say, when his wife took leave last week, all because her spouse held out for John L. Lewis in a heated argument, pro and con, in the family living room." I looked through later issues in vain, trying to find the outcome of this dispute, and whether or not John L. Lewis became the cause of a divorce action.

In other misadventures, "Tractors are used for more than plowing and doing other chores about the farm...heard of one the other P.M. not too distant...that was hired to pull out a car from where it got bogged down in the old pasture field. What places those lover choose! Should have been mindful of the wet weather."

Lesson To Be Learned In Waynesburg Lawsuit

Judge Glenn Toothman asked a very pertinent question during a hearing in Greene County Court this week in a lawsuit brought against Waynesburg Borough because it awarded an exclusive trash-hauling contract to the higher of two bidders.

One of the charges brought by a borough resident is that council violated the Sunshine Law because it never discussed the merits of the two bids in public. They were tabled for evaluation when they were received, and then three weeks later the franchise was awarded without comment. No reason was ever given to the public for selecting the higher bidder.

At the hearing, council members conceded that all their deliberations were held in private but denied that any decision was made until the public meeting. They also presented a number of reasons which they felt were valid for selecting the contractor they did.

During the hearing Judge Toothman asked Council President Glenn Richards if many of the problems might not have been prevented if council had been more open in its deliberations, so that the public would have access to its reasoning. Richards conceded that might be true.

The purpose of the Sunshine Law was to force elected officials to conduct public business in public. In this case, residents of Waynesburg had a right to know why their representatives passed up a chance to save them some money on their refuse collection bills. They found out only because one resident brought legal action, and that action would probably never have been brought if the firm which lost the franchise had not been willing to bear the cost of a lawsuit in an effort to have the court nullify the contract.

When elected officials conduct public business behind closed doors they have only themselves to blame if people think that something shady is going on. We wonder if Waynesburg Borough Council has learned that lesson.

Waynesburg Taken To Court On Refuse Issue

WAYNESBURG — Trial of a lawsuit brought against Waynesburg Borough for awarding a refuse-hauling franchise to the higher of two bidders began Monday in Greene County Court.

The action was brought by Robert Dugan of 661 Ross Street, who is protesting council's decision in August of last year to award a franchise to Long Trucking Co., Waynesburg R.D.6, for the collection and disposal of garbage from the borough.

Defendants are the borough; the five members of council who voted to award the franchise to Long (Charles Beryhill, David Godisart, Beverly Krill, Glenn Richards and Frank Van Cleve), and former Mayor John H. Cassidy, as the official who has the duty to enforce borough ordinances.

As the first witness at the hearing, Dugan testified that he brought the equity suit after voicing his complaints about the borough action to Dan Asmonga, a friend who is employed by the company which owns Southern Allegheny Disposal Service, Inc. It was brought out that Southern Allegheny is one of five commonly-owned companies which provide refuse disposal services to many communities in southwestern Pennsylvania.

On July 27, 1981, Southern Allegheny submitted the lower bid for refuse collection from residences in the borough. Its bid was $4.36 per month for curbside pickups and $5.90 for backyard pickups.

On Aug. 10, 1981, council voted to award the franchise to Long Trucking, which had submitted a bid of $6 per month for curbside pickups and $6.50 for backyard pickups.

Principal issue is borough's contention that Southern Allegheny did not meet bid specifications because it failed to agree to establish an office in Waynesburg and by failing to spell out completely commercial customers would be served.

In addition, the borough contends that when it checked out references of Southern Allegheny by contacting communities where the company was supposed to be providing residential service, it found out that it was not doing so.

Michael Peretto of Murrysville, one of the owners of the group of five companies which includes Southern Allegheny, testified that he had met on several occasions with Borough Manager James Ealy and that Ealy was aware of the corporate setup. He said that a meeting in April Ealy had told him and Asmonga that the borough was dissatisfied with service being provided by Long Trucking and with the condition of that company's equipment.

Peretto agreed that Southern Allegheny primarily had handled commercial contracts, but that other companies in the corporation collected residential waste in Washington and many other communities, and that the references were given for the corporation as a whole since it is actually one entity.

He also testified that their bid stipulated that it would comply with all provisions of the specification, including establishing an office in Waynesburg, and that it had indicated it would negotiate individual agreements with commercial customers, as Long did in his bid.

Two members of council who voted to award the franchise to Long — Beverly Krill and David Godisart — were called out of turn.

They testified that they voted to award the contract to Long because they were satisfied with the service he was providing; because they felt that Southern Allegheny did not meet all of the bid specifications, and because they felt the company had misled them when it claimed to be making residential collections when it was not in fact doing so.

They also testified that while council had discussed the proposals in an executive session before awarding contracts, no action was taken at that time. "I had no idea how any member of council was going to vote," Mrs. Krill said.

Both of the members of council also

Wind Disrupts Power Service

WAYNESBURG — Electrical service to sections of Greene County was disrupted by a heavy wind and rain storm which swept across the county at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

"It only blew hard for 10 minutes or so, but that was enough to cause a lot of problems," a West Penn Power spokesman said.

Customers in the Clarksville, Jefferson, Carmichaels and Bobtown areas were involved, with the most widespread outage occurring in the Jefferson area, where 332 customers were blacked out.

In most cases power was restored within an hour, although it was close to 10 p.m. before the final problems near Jefferson were cleared up.

The utility company spokesman said that most of the trouble was caused by trees and branches falling across power lines.

Fire companies in the four sections of the county said they had no reports of property damage caused by the winds.

Council Hires Policeman

WAYNESBURG — Bernard J. Bealko Jr. of Carmichaels R.D.2 will join the Waynesburg Borough Police Department as a probationary patrolman.

He was hired by borough council at a special meeting Wednesday night to fill a vacancy created in January by the resignation of Patrolman Terry Livingston.

Police Chief Timothy Hawfield, who recommended the appointment, said that he had requested the special meeting so that Bealko would have an opportunity to enroll in the state police training class which begins April 5 in Greensburg. He will become an active member of the force after he completes the three-month course.

Bealko, who is 21, will graduate in May from California State College with a degree in criminology and urban affairs. Hawfield recommended that he be hired after interviewing the three candidates who scored highest on a borough civil service examination. His recommendation was endorsed by Frank VanCleve, chairman of the borough police committee.

The five members of council acted unanimously in employing him at the starting salary of $12,700. Bealko indicated he would move to Waynesburg after graduating from the state police training course.

The new patrolman is a 1978 graduate of Carmichaels Area High School, where he was a member of the football and wrestling teams and of the National Honor Society. He has maintained a 3.5 grade point average at Penn State, where he was enrolled for one year, and at California State College.

He has worked as a security guard at Three Rivers Stadium; is assistant chief of the Crucible Volunteer Fire Company, and is a certified emergency medical technician affiliated with the Uniontown Firemen's Ambulance Corps.

AROUND TOWN
 By THE STAFF

Regardless of the day the weatherman says spring officially arrived, it's real return to Greene County was Tuesday afternoon (March 30) with a pleasant sun and a few floating clouds. Also, the thermometer was flirting with the 65 degree mark. The "stay-at-homes" felt almost as smug as those who did or still are far, far below the Mason-Dixon line.

The big talk around town last weekend and early into this week was the derailment of 16 gondolas from a coal train going from a mine at Blacksville to a power plant in Michigan. It occurred about 2:30 a.m. No one was injured but the damage was enormous and made a terrific impression on those who visited the scene at east Lincoln Street beside Crawford Bridge.

Many of the heavy steel cars were bent up and crushed as though they were toy trains under a Christmas tree. The scene prompted many sightseers, especially mothers of grade and high school pupils who ride busses across the grade crossing on south Morgan Street in Waynesburg. Many of them have been worried about the site ever since the railroad was built through Waynesburg. And the hazard will be worse as more and more mines are completed in the western end of the county during the years to come.

A reminder for those in the south who may not have decided yet when to return home, the spring primary election is on May 18 with the biggest prize for Greene Countians being the Democrat nomination for the House of Representatives — more commonly referred to as the "Assembly." The incumbent is William DeWeese of Waynesburg.

Members of the Fairhill Methodist Church in Whiteley Township are anxiously awaiting their annual Sunrise Easter service again this year, the observance of which started more than a half century ago and has always been one of the best attended events of its kind anywhere in the county. Another big attendance is anticipated this year.

Starting next fall the directory assistance for Greene County telephone users will be originating in Altoona due to a change in operating schedules of the company. Regardless of where the service comes from patrons of the company will always remember the pleasant service of the "local employees" and where most of them were personal friends and acquaintances of the patrons. Especially so with elderly patrons who were sometimes confused when making long distance calls to out-of-county locations. It's another facet of daily life that will be losing a part of its original highly personalized service back in the days when the expression "toll please" was generally used to indicate the patron wanted an out-of-town number.

John Marshall, of Dry Tavern, a retired employee in the supervisory department of the coal mine at Fredericktown and who now spends most of his spare time golfing at the Greene County Country Club, had the misfortune to suffer an injury a few days ago and will be unable to be on the course for several days as a kiltizer which is no fun at all for Marshall, who is a former president of the club.

Mrs. Helen Clark Moore of South Richhill Street, who has been a patient in Greene County Memorial Hospital for a respiratory condition, is reported much improved during the past few days.

BIRTH ANNOUNCED
 Al and Cathy Schloemer of Delmont announce the birth of a daughter, Patricia Evelyn, on March 11, 1982. The child weighed 10 lbs. and 10 ounces and was 21 inches long. Mrs. Schloemer is the former Cathy Gump of Waynesburg. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert ("Scopy") Wood of Jefferson and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schloemer of Overland Park, Kansas.

McCombs J-M's Choice

By JOE TUSCANO
O-R Sports Staff

There will be a familiar face on the sidelines coaching Jeff-Morgan High School's football team this fall.

He's been there before but on the other side of the field as an opposing coach.

At a meeting Monday night, the Jefferson-Morgan Area school board hired Tom McCombs as head football coach for the Rockets.

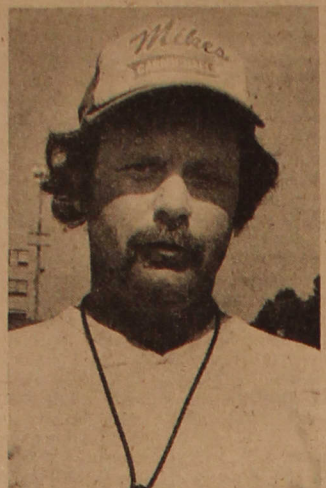

McCombs, who has been coaching cross-county rival Carmichaels for eight years, the past three as head coach, will replace Bob Antion, who was fired after last season.

"The main reason I applied there was to get a teaching position," McCombs said in a telephone interview Monday night. "I've been a substitute at Carmichaels and the Jefferson job included a teaching position. So I decided it was time to look elsewhere."

McCombs led Carmichaels to a second-place finish in the Class A Tri-County South Conference last season and a spot in the WPIAL playoffs, the team's second straight. But the Mikes were eliminated from the 1980 playoffs by eventual Class A champion Laurel and by Serra in the first round of last season's playoffs.

"There's not much difference between the schools down here (in Greene County)," McCombs said. "For me, it will just be a matter of getting it going."

The Rockets ended last season with a

TOM MCCOMBS

5-4-1 record after a 3-7 mark in 1980.

"As far as a winning attitude, that comes with winning," McCombs said. "I feel Jeff-Morgan is on the upswing. In the eight years I was at Carmichaels, Jeff-Morgan had a good program."

"They have a nice tradition there and always seem to have good talent. They always seem to have size but I don't know what they have coming back."

McCombs was also the head baseball coach at Carmichaels.

"I was born and raised in Carmichaels and I hate to leave," he said. "But there was no teaching position and financially-speaking I had to make the move."

And Jeff-Morgan seems to be McCombs' land of milk and honey, as well as an opportunity for a permanent teaching position.

"Tom had a winning record at Carmichaels and anytime you hire a coach you hope he's going to lead you in the right direction," said Jeff-Morgan athletic director Charles Barno. "When a coach resigns, you've got to get someone else. I'm sure I'll be able to work with whoever they hire."

Barno feels the Rocket football program is heading in the right direction and the hiring of McCombs could move it another step forward.

"I think the program is getting better," he said. "I'm sure Tom will start a weight program as soon as he gets here. I know he wants to be at the top. Every coach wants to do his best."

Barno said he didn't believe any other area coach had been one of the 20-25 applicants for the job.

"I had a lot of pleasing memories at Carmichaels," McCombs said. "We've done pretty well in baseball and football and I don't think I could single out one memory. I've had good years here and I don't really want to leave. But it's best for me."

And only time will tell if it was best for Jeff-Morgan football.

Yellow Jackets Gain Split

WAYNESBURG — A grand slam home run by Vince Apicella broke an 8-8 tie and gave Waynesburg College's baseball team a 12-8 win in eight innings over West Virginia Monday for a split of a doubleheader.

Apicella, who had three hits and five RBIs, was joined by Tracy Oliver, who had a double and two RBIs, and Frank Del Pinto, with three singles, to lead the Jackets' scoring.

In the second game, West Virginia trounced the Yellow Jackets, 19-2, in a game called after six innings. Dave Yoders took the loss and Apicella stroked two singles for Waynesburg, now 1-1.

Work Just Starts For Jacket Program

By TOM ROSE
O-R Sports Editor

WAYNESBURG — Basketball fans in this Greene County community have bitter memories of February 26, 1982.

That's the day the season, and the NAIA District 18 championship, ended for Waynesburg College.

But while the fans may be looking ahead to the spring sports, it's strictly business in the office of Yellow Jacket head coach Rudy Marisa. The sudden ending to Waynesburg's season doesn't satisfy Marisa or the players, and they're determined to work overtime to correct the situation.

"Having ended the season with an empty feeling I could probably crank it up and start the season tomorrow if needed," Marisa said in an interview here Thursday. "I'm personally entering next season wanting to correct what was holding us back. I'm anxious to dive into our extensive list of shortcomings."

Despite the shocking finish to its season, the Jackets were upset by LaRoche 55-54 in the first round of the District 18 playoffs here, Waynesburg still finished with an overall record of 17-9. That's a record enviable at some institutions.

And while the record provides some solace, it's the way the Jackets ended their season which frustrates Marisa.

"When we were 12-3 I kept telling you we needed to be a better team," he said. "We needed to improve physically and in finesse. Then we hit that slump when we started losing or barely winning. That started a new problem, we became tentative."

"So for the first half of the season we were mentally alert but physically needing to improve. In the second half we were ready physically but mentally we were tentative. But we understand what our shortcomings were now and more importantly our players understand."

Marisa, like the rest of his coaching peers, is in the midst of the staggering amount of legwork necessary for recruiting high school players. He's not necessarily recruiting by position, but admits one of Waynesburg's pressing needs next season is to improve its rebounding game.

"Traditionally rebounding is one of our main problems," he said. "But that doesn't rank as high as other problems in the final analysis. There's no doubt though that we need to do a better job on the boards next year."

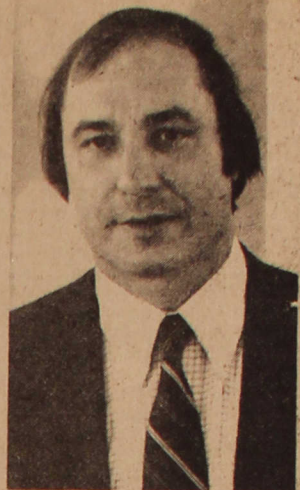

"Every coach wants to recruit people with the talent to push other people out of the starting lineup or move into a sixth or seventh man spot. When you find someone of that caliber then you've done a good job of recruiting. I'd love to bring someone in who has the tools necessary to break into the starting lineup."

While the search continues for recruits, the present team members will also be busy. Several team meetings have already been held while several will be involved in off-season weight programs.

And of course, they'll be spending time in the gym playing informal games of basketball.

And at the same time looking for improvement.

"This is a very important time of the year for our players," Marisa said. "Sure, it's a time to rest after a long season but it also begins the time for the self-improvement campaign to begin. Frankly some of the players need to become better physical specimens to become better basketball players. Some have to gain a little weight, some have to lose some and others need some serious weight training.

"I just don't feel content, that's the difference between now and the end of our past six seasons. We're going to be working hard to become a better basketball team."

Changes Haven't Affected Haines

By JOE TUSCANO
O-R Sports Staff

He put the old wrestling shoes on the mantle and bought a new pair when he left Waynesburg High School for the big city life of Pittsburgh.

But that hasn't changed Doug Haines.

He's still a successful wrestler.

When Haines left Waynesburg last season with a PIAA championship trophy under his arm for the University of Pittsburgh, he wasn't quite sure what the future would hold.

But a burning desire to succeed and a lot of wrestling talent has made his first year with the Panthers satisfying.

"I can't complain because I had a pretty decent year," Haines said in a telephone interview Tuesday evening. "I was wrestling at 167, 158 and then 150. I took a few losses up there (at 167) but I got down and got my confidence going. Things worked out well."

Haines finished the season with an 8-8-3 record, an Eastern Wrestling League championship at 150 pounds and a trip to the NCAA wrestling tournament at Ames, Iowa.

"I had a goal of making it to nationals as a freshman," Haines said. "The experience really helped me."

Haines pinned his first-round opponent, Phil Hacker of Chattanooga, Tenn., before being decided 13-3 by Tom Roper of Missouri in the NCAA tourney.

To get there, he defeated a defending champion in the EWL finals at 150 pounds. For his performance, he was voted Freshman of the Year in the EWL.

"I learned more in the match that I lost than the one that I won," Haines said of the NCAA bouts. "The wrestlers there are real aggressive and never let up."

And now that Haines has a chance to look back, he wouldn't change a thing. After a three-year career at Waynesburg, where he recorded an 85-7-3 mark, won a state title at 155 pounds and finally wore out a pair of good-luck wrestling shoes he had been using since junior high school, he enrolled at Pitt.

"Pitt had what I wanted in a school and in wrestling," Haines said. "I really can't complain and if I had it all over to do, I would still pick Pitt."

There were some problems making the adjustment from high school to collegiate competition.

"In high school I had a lot more self-confidence," Haines said. "I woke up real quick in college since they're a lot more physical here. In high school, people respected you and I had a lot of confidence. Here in college everyone's coming at you."

"I thought if Doug finished 50-50 for the year, that's pretty good," said Joe Ayersman, head wrestling coach of Waynesburg High School. "I didn't know how well he'd do in his freshman year because it's always tough. When I wrestled in college there was quite a difference between your freshman and senior year."

Yet Ayersman knew there was nothing ordinary about Haines.

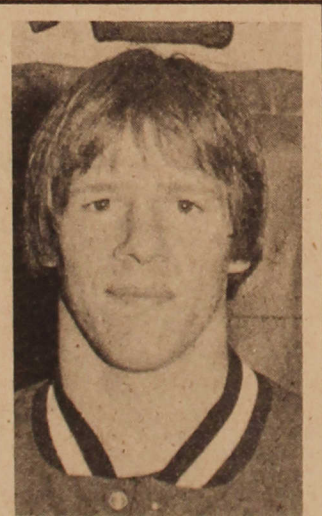

"Doug is a hard worker, a tough competitor and he never quits in a match," he said. "Just when you think he's beat, he'll surprise you."

Now that the initial learning year has passed, Haines is anxious to start his sophomore season with the Panthers, who are coached by Rande Stottlemeyer.

"I'm looking forward to next season," Haines said. "I know what I've got to do and I'm anxious to begin again."

After all, one successful season isn't nearly enough to wear out a second pair of shoes.

Ayersman will coach the WPIAL senior all-star team in this year's eighth Annual U.S. Wrestling Classic scheduled for 6:30 p.m., Saturday, at the Pitt Field House.

The Pennsylvania team, which will be coached by Chartiers-Houston's Tim Moussetis, will be made up of Frank Bing of Harry S. Truman (98); Mt. Lebanon's Bill Perri (105); Marc Sodano of Central Bucks East (112); Shaler's Kyle Nellis (119); Todd Nighman of Erie Prep (126); Seneca Valley's Rich Barron (132); Mike Rudolph of Wilson (138); Shikellamy's Nate Carter (145); Methacton's Chuck Murray (155); Mike Gardner of McCaskey (167); Mahanoy's James Trusky (185) and heavyweight Todd Moulos of Wilkes-Barre Meyers. Plans For New College Gym To Be Drawn Up

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg College board of trustees, at a meeting Friday, authorized their architect to prepare detailed plans and specifications for the new intercollegiate gymnasium the college plans to build as part of expanding its recreational facilities. The architect was asked to have firm cost estimates available for consideration at the board's May meeting.

The board also indicated it would have no statement at this time concerning the action of six members of the faculty in calling for a faculty vote of "no confidence" in President Joseph F. Marsh.

The decision to move ahead on the recreation program follows initiation last week of a "Forward Together" campaign to raise the additional $300,000 which is needed to start construction of the recreation center. The task force, made up of leaders from the community and campus, hopes to have the necessary funding commitments by May 15.

The project, in addition to building the new intercollegiate gymnasium, included renovation of the present gym for intramural and recreational sports, with upgraded locker rooms and other facilities. The college feels the additional facilities are needed to accommodate both men's and women's sports, an expanded intramural program and increased recreational use.

To date, more than $820,000 has been received and earmarked for the project. Another $350,000 in pledges have been made by alumni and friends. Raising of the additional $300,000 would enable the college to undertake the revised recreation center plan without extensive borrowing.

Ewing B. Pollock, chairman of the board of trustees, said the board had discussed the resolution proposed by six faculty members earlier this week which, one of them said, is designed to put President Marsh on notice that the faculty feels a more efficient administration is needed at the college.

In addition, many other prizes will be awarded by local sponsors. The state organization will

Baseball Season Underway

The high school exhibition baseball season got into full swing Tuesday afternoon.

Bentworth ripped Mapletown, 13-0; Burgettstown shut out Weirton Madonna, 4-0; McGuffey edged IC Catholic, 10-9; Trinity dounced Chartiers-Houston, 10-7, and Fairchance-Georges beat Jeff-Morgan, 6-3.

Mark Lohr paced the Bearcats' win, hitting a double and homerun, to improve Bentworth's record to 2-0. Dave Powell was the winning pitcher and Jim Dugan was tagged with the loss.

Ken Orgovan and Joe Stracci combined to record a shutout for the Blue Devils in their exhibition opener.

Orgovan, who pitched the first four innings, and Stracci each surrendered one hit while combining for 10 strikeouts.

Burgettstown, which jumped out to a 1-0 first-inning lead, added two runs in the third inning on a bases-loaded double by Stracci. The Blue Devils added another run in the fourth inning.

Mike Riccardonna went the distance for Weirton Madonna, now 1-1 on the season, and gave up seven hits.

Joe King singled in two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to pace McGuffey to its 10-9 win over IC Catholic. The win evened the Highlanders' record at 1-1.

Tim Bedillion picked up the win in relief for the Highlanders, while the Comets' Brian Emery was the losing pitcher, relieving Stan Karnash in the sixth inning.

McGuffey, which overcame a 4-0 deficit in third inning by scoring five runs, had to come back two more times to secure the win.

IC's John Bednarski had three hits, including two doubles and one homerun, while teammate Bob Mazzie had a solo homerun.

Trinity's John Hairston smashed two homers while allowing seven hits to lead the Hillers to a 10-7 win over Chartiers-Houston in the season opener for both teams.

Hairston drove in three runs with a first-inning blast moments after leadoff hitter Mark Veltri connected with the first pitch of the season for a homerun. The homers helped the Hillers to a 6-0 first-inning lead.

Trinity's Steve Howell also collected a double while Chartiers-Houston received a double from Rob Castelli.

Even though Jeff-Morgan out-hit

Fairchance 11-8, Fairchance made the most of its hits, scoring all of its runs in the fourth inning.

Alan Yanak and Rick Kubasik each hit doubles for the Rockets in the losing cause.

Brian Virgin picked up the loss, as the Rockets' record drops to 1-1.

In high school softball action yesterday, McGuffey annihilated IC Catholic 13-4 and Jeff-Morgan defeated Uniontown 16-8.

Sherri Zappi allowed the Comettes just two hits, but walked nine during the game. She also struck out six.

The Highlanders (1-0) used a seven-run fifth inning to break open the game. Linda Wieser collected a bases-loaded triple for McGuffey.

McGuffey ended the game with a triple play, doubling two Comette runners off base after a fly ball to right field.

Jeff-Morgan scored seven runs in the first inning and four
