Faculty Expresses No Confidence In College President

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene County Editor
WAYNESBURG — The "constitutional faculty" at Waynesburg College Thursday adopted a resolution expressing "no confidence" in the leadership of college President Joseph F. Marsh.

The vote, taken by secret ballot with no prior debate, was 39 to 17 in favor of approving the motion, with one blank ballot being submitted.

The constitutional faculty is made up of 68 people and includes six principal administrators, three senior administrative officers, two staff-level administrators, 54 full-time members of the academic faculty and three librarians. The resolution was proposed by Dr. David Walker, a professor of physics and one of six faculty members who requested that it be placed on the agenda.

It read, in part:

"Our displeasure lies in the inability of the president to provide leadership and vision in developing and husbanding the resources of the college, his failure to provide support for under-utilized academic programs, his reluctance to plan effectively, his perception of collegiality as a manipulative management tool, and his inability to relate with his professional colleagues at this institution."

President Marsh did not attend. Following the meeting he issued a statement which explained that he remained away for three reasons — because he is responsible to the board of trustees and not to the faculty, because no specific charges were made to which he could respond and because he felt his presence "might dampen debate."

There was no debate, however.

Following proposal of the resolution, there was a motion to move on the question without debate. It was adopted by a 34-14 vote, thus meeting the requirement of a two-thirds majority.

In placing the motion, Walker said that while the proposed resolution carried the signatures of just six members of the academic faculty, many others had been involved in its preparation.

"This was not done lightly," he said. "There has been a lot of soul searching and deep thought which has gone into this motion."

He added that with adoption of the resolution, "anything less than definitive action will be irresponsible and will not serve well Waynesburg College."

It was brought out that the board of trustees has advised the faculty that there is an ongoing evaluation of the president which has been in place for some time.

"Obviously the vote taken today was an emotional response on how the faculty feels about what is going on at Waynesburg College," Walker said following the meeting.

"President Marsh and his administration need to address these concerns. If he is not able to do this I can see that it ultimately could lead to his replacement and that of the academic dean, and possibly some members of the board of trustees."

He stressed, however, that he was speaking as an individual and not as a spokesman for the academic faculty in interpreting the meaning of the resolution. "It probably means something different to everyone who voted," he said.

Walker said one of the areas of concern is a feeling on the part of the faculty that the president and his administration do not provide adequate support for academic programs, particularly in areas where enrollment has dropped off, by providing a recruiting program which would bring in students interested in little used programs such as chemistry and geology.

He cited the fact that while the academic budget for the coming year has been cut by three percent, the athletic program budget has been reduced by just 1 percent, stating that this reflects a philosophy which requires change.

When asked if he felt the freeze placed on all salaries had anything to do with the resolution, Walker said the suggestion for the freeze came from the faculty in light of the tightness of the college budget.

President Marsh responded to some of the points he raised in an interview after the meeting.

He said the college would very much like to attract students for programs which are being under-utilized, but statistical data provided to the college each year on graduating high school students shows that there are very few who are interested in such things as chemistry and geology, which have always been strong programs at Waynesburg College.

"It is for this reason that we are currently evaluating our academic offerings," the president said. "Maybe some faculty members feel threatened by that review, but it has to be made."

With regard to the salary freeze, Marsh said the faculty had drawn up a list of 15 conditions which it wanted the board of trustees to approve if salaries were frozen, but that the document had never been adopted by the faculty.

Trumka To Cheering Crowd: No More Defeats

By STAN DIAMOND

MASONTOWN — Amid a loudly cheering and applauding miners' holiday crowd Thursday Richard Trumka, candidate for the presidency of the United Mine Workers, shouted there will be "no more defeats and no more backward steps" for the coal miner.

Trumka made the remarks during a brief address in a crowded school gymnasium following the annual Mitchell Day parade in this small western Fayette County community, headquarters for UMW District 4 which he represents on the UMW International Executive Board.

The 32-year-old lawyer from Nemacolin is challenging incumbent UMW President Sam Church Jr. for the top job in the 160,000 member union. Church, 46, who served as vice president under Arnold Miller and took over as president two and a half years ago when Miller stepped down because of poor health, officially open his campaign for election to a full term last week at Charleston, W.Va.

Although Trumka is the hands-down favorite in District 4, Church may have lost whatever small support he had in the district when, for the second year in a row, he accepted an invitation to participate in the Mitchell Day activities then failed to appear.

Shouts of "Where's Church?" were answered with almost gleeful shouts of a Trumka campaign slogan "So Long Sam" as miners filed out of the gymnasium following the program.

Trumka compared coal mining today with coal mining in the late 1890s when John Mitchell, at the age of 28, was elected as the fifth president of the UMW which then numbered some 10,000 members. Although Mitchell made many gains for the union, he is best remembered for his achievement of an eight-hour day for the coal miner.

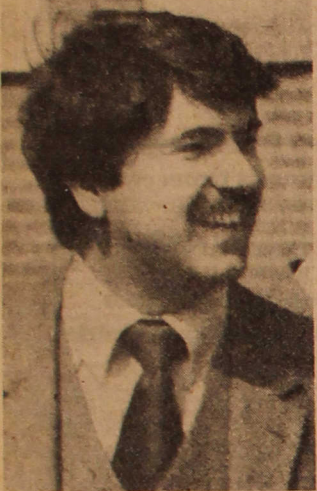

"Think back at the tremendous hardships under which the coal miner had to work and live in those days and what a tremendous victory the eight-hour day was. The coal miner could see daylight again," Trumka said to applause and shouts from the audience.

He again drew applause and cheers when he said the UMW "has consistently stood for racial and ethnic equality both on and off the job," and that the coal that is dug is not Italian coal or Slavic coal but just plain coal.

The young challenger to the union presidency told the receptive crowd, "The coal miner is not a beast of burden but a valuable member of our society. An organization becomes stronger through victory not defeat. The future holds many victories for the coal miner and there will be no more defeats and no more backward steps."

The last remark by Trumka was a reference to the union contract negotiated by Church which many miners believe was a step backward and is becoming a main campaign issue.

With the ownership of many area coal mines now in the hands of oil companies, District 4 President James W. Kelly expressed uncertainty about their motives for purchasing coal mines and doubts about the future of coal mining when he told the miners and their families, "If they intend to sit on the coal until the oil runs out, we have serious, serious problems."

Venue Change Request Is Denied For McGilton

WAYNESBURG — The trial of Paul McGilton of Waynesburg, charged with aggravated assault and recklessly endangering another person, will be held as scheduled during the May term of Greene County Court.

Judge Glenn Toothman Friday turned down a request by defense attorney John Stets to move the trial to another county or impanel a jury in a distant county and bring it to Waynesburg to hear the case.

Stets based the change of venue petition on the contention that the recent conviction of Waynesburg Patrolman Michael Fuller on a charge of involuntary manslaughter has so inflamed the community that it will be impossible to select an impartial jury of Greene County residents.

Charges against McGilton and Fuller stemmed from the Jan. 17 fatal shooting of McGilton's wife, Celia McGilton. She was accidentally shot by Fuller when he and Patrolman Timothy Stevenson went to McGilton's apartment in response to a complaint from a neighbor. The complainant said McGilton had threatened another man with a gun.

The charges against McGilton are based on the contention that he came to the door with a shotgun in his hand, creating a situation in which Fuller thought McGilton was about to shoot his fellow officer. Fuller fired two shots, one of which went through a wall and struck Mrs. McGilton.

In a brief opinion on the change of venue motion, Toothman said Stets based his request on a claim of bias resulting from published accounts of the Michael Fuller trial and, principally, because of letters to the editor published locally which expressed reaction to the jury verdict.

He also noted that District Attorney Charles Morris had objected to the venue change, expressing confidence that McGilton can obtain a fair trial from a jury selected in Greene County.

"We have studied the testimony (taken at the change of venue hearing) and are persuaded by the same that the defendant has not shown the claim of bias to be well founded, and are further satisfied that the defendant can and will receive a fair trial in this county," the Greene County jurist said.

In addition to dismissing the change of venue motion, Toothman rejected Stets' motion for dismissal of the aggravated assault charge against McGilton, doing so without spelling out his reasons for dismissal.

Stets had argued that a shot must actually be fired to sustain such a charge; that the mere possession of a gun does not constitute aggravated assault.

After Toothman dismissed Stets' motions, the district attorney said the case will be scheduled for trial during the next term of criminal court, which will begin the first week of June.

Burglary Trial

Waynesburg Man Sentenced

WAYNESBURG — Max Malachi Vernon, 41, Waynesburg, will serve from 10 to 20 years in prison for the Oct. 15, 1981, burglary of a New Freeport residence in which five rifles were stolen.

The sentence was imposed Friday in Greene County Court by Judge Glenn Toothman, who said he was imposing the heavy sentence because of Vernon's long criminal record, his inability to become rehabilitated and his apparent unwillingness to hold a job.

"Your continued freedom jeopardizes the security of our homes," the jurist said.

He also said the pre-sentencing investigation revealed that Vernon had prior convictions in other states for burglary and armed robbery, as well as a second degree murder conviction in Florida.

In appealing to the court for leniency,

Vernon's attorney said his client had not been in trouble for 10 years and that he had cooperated with police in other cases since his arrest.

Vernon was convicted of the burglary in a jury trial in December. His petition for a new trial was turned down earlier this week.

The sentence imposed Friday does not cover his conviction in another trial in February, in which he was found guilty of burglarizing the Agway store in Waynesburg. Action on post-trial motions is still pending in that case.

Toothman stipulated that Vernon held in the Greene County jail for an additional 10 days before being taken to the Diagnostic and Classification Center at the Western Penitentiary. The 10 days will give him an opportunity to petition for a review of the sentence.

In other court action, Judge Toothman sentenced James M. Morris Jr., 22, Waynesburg R.D.2, to six months to 23 months in the Greene County jail on multiple bad check charges, giving him the opportunity to serve the sentence on weekends so that he can hold a job.

As part of the sentence, he will be required to pay $200 a month toward the about $3,000 he owes in costs and reimbursement. The worthless checks were cashed at local stores over a period of more than a month last fall.

Belongings Salvaged

OAK FOREST — A six-room, frame home was severely damaged by fire Monday morning but neighbors and the residents of the home, Tom and Carol Rush, managed to save some of the contents.

Waynesburg and Rogersville volunteer firemen responded at 11:10 a.m. when a fire started near a wood-burning stove. The home, owned by Edith Cole of Oak Forest, is located along Legislative Route 30090 about a mile south of Oak Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. Rush were watching television, completely unaware the second floor was burning. A relative, Sandy Cole, was driving by the home and noticed the roof blazing. She stopped and to tell the Rushes and then went to neighbors for additional help.

Guns, a television set, and several pieces of furniture were carried from the house into the yard. Firemen were hampered by a lack of water and were forced to pump from a nearby stream.

The Rushes' two sons were in school at the time.

There was no damage estimate given by the fire department.

State Labor Relations Board Will Screen Union Bargainers

WAYNESBURG — The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board will be asked to hold a formal hearing on the makeup of bargaining units which have been proposed as part of an effort to organize county employees.

Local 585, Service Employees International Union (AFL-CIO), has estimated that from 80 to 90 people employed by Greene County would be eligible to join the union in one of the four bargaining units it has proposed — county commissioner employees, court-appointed personnel, court-related personnel and jail guards.

A preliminary conference on the eligibility of employees included in each of the four units was held at Pittsburgh on March 28 before PLRB election investigator Matthew J. Purpura. If the union and county had reached agreement it would have set the stage for holding of an election at which the employees would have voted on joining the union.

However, Jonathan L. Alder, who represented the county at the conference, has reported to the county commissioners by letter that a number of areas of disagreement arose which will require a formal hearing and PLRB ruling before the election can be held.

Alder said he had questioned the inclusion of certain employees in some of the units, while the union had also challenged the eligibility of other employees to join the union. Since they could not reach agreement, a PLRB ruling will be required.

Once the makeup of each bargaining unit has been established, the election would be held. A majority vote by employees in each of the units would determine if that group of employees would approve or turn down representation.

Bridge Collapses, Road Closed

WIND RIDGE — A state highway which runs along the border of Washington and Greene Counties was closed during the past weekend when a 100-foot-long steel truss bridge collapsed into the waters of the Enlow Fork of Wheeling Creek after a large tree fell on it.

The rural road, Route 62186, runs from Majorsville in the extreme southwestern corner of Washington County for a distance of seven miles to a point in West Finley Township where it connects with Route 62007, near Ackley Bridge.

There are five creek crossings as the road zigzags into Richhill Township in Greene County at several points, with the demolished bridge being the first one west of Ackley Bridge.

The bridge collapsed Saturday night, during one of the series of weekend wind storms which swept through the area.

Norman Stout, an official at the Department of Transportation's Washington County maintenance office, said they are aware of the situation and have visited the site.

"A large sycamore tree which stood near the bridge was blown down and hit one end of it, knocking it off its abutments," he said. "It was built in 1889 so it's given us good service."

One of the concerns is a two-inch gas service line which was hung from the bridge. It was not broken by the fall, but could go if a big wash sweeps the bridge away. Columbia Gas is making arrangements to replace the line, Stout said.

The Transportation Department official said the road is not heavily traveled. It is on a mail route but is not used by school buses.

Stout said there are just two houses on the road and that their occupants have alternate ways of getting out. No decision has been made about replacing the bridge.

One of the houses is owned by Mrs. Dorothy Fisher and is located near the Greene County end of the bridge.

"I can see the bridge easily from the house but I'm not sure when it happened," she said. "It was on Sunday that I saw it was in the water."

She would like to see the bridge replaced and said that while it is not used too heavily by cars, it is used by gas company vehicles. She is also concerned because gas for her house comes from the line attached to the bridge.

King without pyramid

Nowhere in this world is there a tomb of Jesus Christ!
 The holy sepulchre near Jerusalem contained the body of the crucified Lord but the grieving women who came to anoint his body found the sepulchre empty.
 His mystified disciples gathered in the upper room to discuss the reports being circulated by the women. Suddenly the Lord stood in their midst.
 "He lives!" proclaims one of our beloved hymns. Not he lived but he lives. This is the crowning joy of Easter.
 On Easter morning hundreds of millions more than have ever marvelled at the relics of Tutankamun will joyously worship the King who has no pyramid. Be among them then . . . and worship every week.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN
 Peter Jabour of Waynesburg was guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the American Association of University Women held recently at Benedum dining hall, Waynesburg College.
 Jabour, who was introduced by Vice President Margaret Stefanik, discussed "Transportation in Greene County," presenting historical data to show how the location of population centers affected the county's highway pattern.
 He spoke of the long campaign to have a major east-west highway constructed through the county as an alternate to Route 40 and explored the feasibility of having major roads constructed.
 Jabour also touched on the proposed public transportation system for the county, cautioning that they traditionally have deficit problems, and presented statistics on road maintenance expenditures by the state, township and boroughs.
 He answered numerous questions from the audience, including a number on the long-proposed Morrisville bypass, and provided information on agencies which can be contracted to provide more detailed information on the subject of transportation.
 President Frances Johnson presided over the business meeting, during which the nominating committee's report was submitted.
 The next meeting will be held Monday, April 26, and will feature an illustrated talk by Dr. Mildred Maguire on the year she spent at the University of Leicester in England as recipient of an AAUW scholarship.

Carmichaels Lions Club Chooses Man Of The Year

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Lions Club has announced its selection for the 19th annual "Man of the Year" award. Recipient of the 1981 award will be Carl (Jum) Allison, a life-long resident of the community.

The award dinner is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Friday, May 14, in the social room of the Greene Valley Reformed Presbyterian Church. Tickets will be available from Lions Club members. Richard Forsyth is the banquet chairman.

Allison is the son of Mrs. Isabell Allison and the late P.W. Allison. He was born June 5, 1928, in the house on North Market Street which is now Emily's Gift Shop. He attended public school in Carmichaels and graduated from Cumberland Township High School.

He is married to the former Wilma Blaker and they are the parents of two children, Todd, a freshman at California State College, and Lisa, a junior at Carmichaels Area High School. He has a sister, Edna McCann of Alexandria, Va. With the exception of two years working at Baily's Garage and two years in military service, Allison has worked at the corner of South Market and Morgantown streets since 1949. After working for Babe Sharpnack and the Union Supply Company, he went into partnership and operated the Allison & Alderson Esso Station. In October 1959 he bought the business, now called Allison's Exxon.

Allison served with the U.S.

Army for two years taking his basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., after which he went to heavy equipment mechanic school in Fort Belvoir, Va. He spent 17 months in Korea with the 571st Combat Construction Company.

Following in his father's footsteps, Allison became a member of the Carmichaels-Cumberland Township volunteer fire company in 1947 and has served as engineer, captain, trustee, second assistant chief, first assistant chief and seven years as fire chief.

For 10 years, he was chairman of the fireman's carnival, has worked for the Greene County Fire School since 1954 and headed the school in 1971 and 1972. He has been a member of the Greene County Fireman's Association since 1948 and served two terms as president.

He has held memberships in the Southwestern Pennsylvania Chief's Association and the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association for 34 years. DeWeese Amendment Suggests Extending Office Of Advocate

HARRISBURG — State Rep. H. William DeWeese, D-Waynesburg, has announced a "parliamentary blockade" designed to force final legislative action on a three-year extension of the life of the Office of Consumer Advocate and a new funding mechanism for the utility rate-fighting agency.

DeWeese said during a token session of the House of Representatives that he was introducing consumer-advocate related amendments to a Senate and House bill immediately and would "continue to introduce amendments to every administrative code bill which comes before the House until the governor gets and signs one of them." The lawmaker said he feared Senate foot-dragging on an earlier DeWeese amendment to legislation improving the funding mechanism for the Office of Consumer Advocate called for an escalation on his part "to protect the already overburdened utility ratepayer."

DeWeese said his first amendment would extend the consumer advocate's existence until at least 1986. "Presently the office will expire next year under the terms of Sunset legislation. But no other state agency battles for the utility ratepayers of Pennsylvania before the PUC. The advocate serves as the consumer's utility, generating light on the subject of utility rate increases."

DeWeese's other amendment would change the funding mechanism for the consumer advocate's office so that the general assembly would be responsible for setting each year's appropriation. Currently, the office budget is set by the governor and the heads of both the House and Senate Appropriations Committees.

DeWeese said, "This appropriation has been whittled away year after year. They have done everything they can to reduce this office's effectiveness to nothing but a token."

Carmichaels Borough Council Approves Contract With Police

CARMICHAELS — Carmichaels Borough Council met Monday night and approved a police contract, set a meeting with the Carmichaels-Cumberland Joint Sewer Authority, accepted a resignation and received the audit for 1981.

The police contract for 1982 had been reviewed by solicitor Robert Berryman and he said it adequately protects borough council. The contract was approved and signed by president of the council, Ted Blasinsky, and the mayor, Robert Dobbins.

Discussion was held concerning a liability policy for the borough police for various items such as false arrest which was in force at one time. Council members said such a policy is vital in light of the recent police case in Waynesburg. Council authorized the mayor to institute the appropriate policy.

In a related matter, Mayor Dobbins asked council to pass a resolution in support of Waynesburg police officer Michael Fuller. However, several council members said they could not support such a motion because they were not aware of all the facts and therefore could not act "as judge or jury." No action was taken.

The deteriorating condition of Cranberry Alley near Carmichaels Arbors was brought out. Ordinances concerning street repair and replacement are on the books and council discussed taking legal action against utilities and authorities that have not been adhering to the ordinance requirements. The solicitor said there are two legal approaches — either repair the alley and bill the local sewer authority, or start a court action to compel the sewer authority to make repairs. Council set a meeting for Wednesday, April 7 at 7:30 p.m. at the borough meeting room for a public meeting with the sewer authority regarding Cranberry Alley and other streets.

Council has been receiving complaints regarding the condition of the intersection of Vine and Morgantown streets. The president said it is a state highway and the department

Developers Appeal Ruling

WAYNESBURG — The developers of a lot plan in Jefferson Township have appealed a Greene County Court ruling which holds them legally responsible for the construction of blacktop roads and a road drainage system.

Earl and Audrey Szoyka of Rices Landing R.D.1, who developed the lot plan in 1976, appealed the ruling to the state Superior Court.

The legal action was brought against the Szoykas and the Jefferson Township supervisors by the owners of 10 homes in the development, who claim that when they purchased their homes, they were told the township would construct paved roads to replace the reddog roads used in the development.

Mr. and Mrs. Szoyka contend the township is responsible for building the roads, but Judge Fred C. Adams of Fayette County, who presided in the case, ruled that the Greene County Subdivision and Land Development ordinance places the responsibility on the developer.

of highways has said it will not authorize a permanent filling of the construction bids there until a specific date.

Joan Meiter submitted her resignation as secretary-treasurer for council for personal reasons. She has served in that capacity for the past two and one-half years. Council accepted her resignation with regret.

The audit report for 1981 was completed and submitted to council. Recommendations by the auditors were: 1) all expenses which are to be reimbursed be paid from actual receipts, 2) the saving certificate interest be deposited in savings before being reinvested so that there is a trace on it, 3) actual monthly statement and a better accounting system for the gasoline purchased from Cumberland Township, 4) it appears that the borough received only three installments for revenue sharing in 1981 instead of four, 5) if it ever becomes financially possible, that elected auditors be replaced by a professional firm.

In other business: Ordinances have been prepared by the solicitor and council will meet in a working session to review the proposed ordinances;

Advertisements will be placed for bids on the old police cruiser;

An ordinance authorizing use of the "excessive speed prevention machine" in Carmichaels borough by the police will be prepared and advertised;

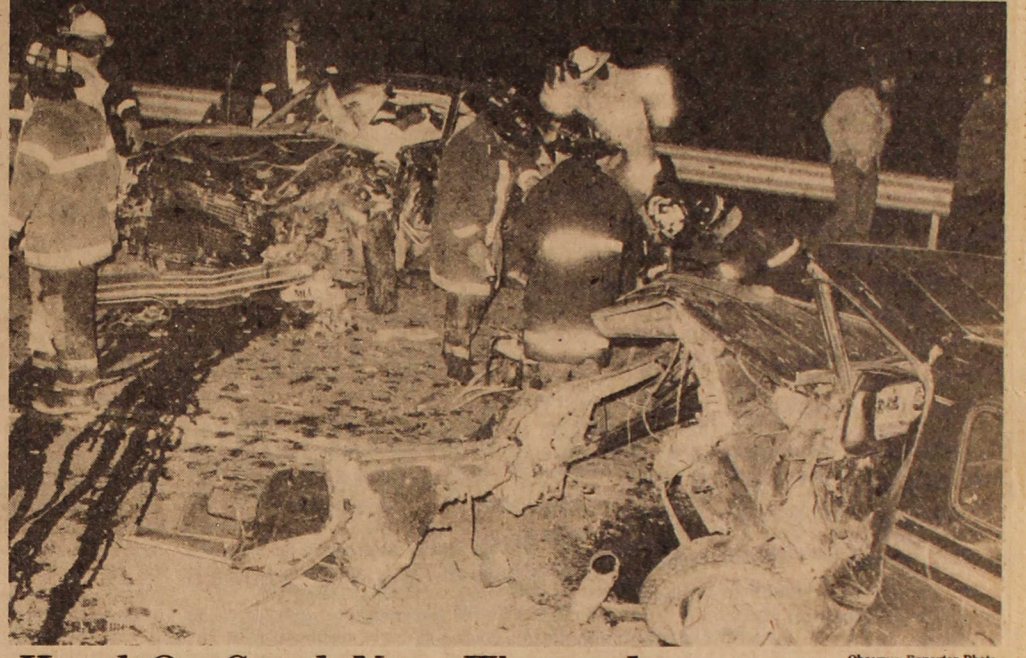

A second notice will be sent to ten delinquent business privilege tax accounts.

GUEST PREACHER — The Rev. John Henry Shadburn from the Office of Finance and Field Service of the National Division of the Board of Global Missions will assist the Oak View United Methodist Church in their building fund crusade.

The crusade will begin Sunday, April 18. Shadburn is from the West Virginia Conference and is a graduate of Marshall University and Emory. He was ordained in 1952 and has served the Huntington, Clarksburg and Parkersburg churches.

He will be preaching at the 10 a.m. services at Oak View on Sunday, April 18, and Sunday, April 25. The public is invited to attend the services.

Head-On Crash Near Waynesburg

Two persons remained hospitalized Monday following a head-on crash at 9:15 p.m. Sunday on Route 21 between West Waynesburg and East View. According to state police, Rick A. Aberegg of New Freeport was traveling west in a 1972 International Scout without lights when he crossed the center line and crashed into a 1982 Thunderbird operated by Melvin W. Ferrell of Waynesburg R.D.5. Waynesburg volunteer firemen had to use a power tool to extricate Ferrell. Betty Ann Roberts of Waynesburg R.D.4, a passenger in the Ferrell car, and Ronald Teuteberg of Freedom, a passenger in the Scout, were treated and released from Greene County Memorial Hospital. Aberegg was still in an observation room at the hospital Monday. Ferrell was transferred to a Morgantown hospital for treatment of a leg injury.

Plan Approved Zoning Considered Little Girl Hit By Car

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Borough Zoning Board Monday night approved plans submitted by Donald Throckmorton to move the IGA store on West High Street. The business will be relocated to the former Acme Grocery store on the corner of High and Richhill streets, which closed in 1979.

Throckmorton told the board that he plans to begin remodeling the store immediately for a tentative Jan. 1, 1983, opening.

Although he has owned the store for a couple of years, he recently purchased land on the west side of the building for parking. There will be 60 parking stalls and an addition to the store is also planned.

RICES LANDING — Rices Landing Borough Council is exploring the possibility of enacting a zoning ordinance as a means of regulating the placement of mobile homes in the borough.

Council President Arnold O'Daniel reported at a council meeting this week that he has met with members of the Rices Landing Planning Commission to discuss the preparation of such an ordinance for council's consideration.

Under terms of a subdivision and land use ordinance adopted by the borough some two years ago, any property owner may place a trailer on a lot if it has 4,000 square feet and can sustain a septic system. Arnold said a zoning ordinance would provide a method by which the borough could control the placement of mobile homes.

Council also discussed the hiring of a building inspector to enforce a borough ordinance which requires the removal or repair of abandoned buildings which are found to be hazardous. A qualified inspector must certify that a building is hazardous before the ordinance can be implemented.

WAYNESBURG — An eight-year-old Waynesburg girl was listed in satisfactory condition Monday in Greene County Memorial Hospital after being struck by a car at 10:05 p.m. Saturday on South Morgan Street.

According to borough police, Laura Strope, daughter of Richard Strope of 163 South Morgan Street, ran from between parked cars into the path of a vehicle driven by Ralph Six, 47, of Wadestown, W.Va.

No charges were filed against Six.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

Fact and Folklore
John O'Hara

Waynesburg College Furor Symptomatic Of The Times

The clash at Waynesburg College between the faculty and President Joseph F. Marsh is probably symptomatic of the difficulty which small, private colleges are having in the face of declining enrollments and a drying up of financial wells-prings.

There are a lot of uncertainties, and under those conditions it is not unnatural that an apprehensive faculty would censure the president "for his inability to provide leadership and vision in developing and husbanding the resources of the college."

This is particularly true when the faculty feels that President Marsh holds himself aloof from the everyday concerns of the faculty and students.

While the vote of "no confidence" was adopted without discussion so that specific charges were never aired, it has come out in comments from both sides that one of the major concerns is the evaluation currently underway about present course offerings which are under-utilized. The board of trustees some time ago directed that a complete review be made of the curriculum and staffing to determine if changes should be made.

Some professors, particularly those in the sciences, feel that it is a duty of the administration to recruit students who will fill their classrooms.

The faculty also seems to be concerned about priorities assigned for the use of funds which are available, and feels the administration should be able to increase income through gifts and larger enrollment.

President Marsh is quick to defend his accomplishments in the area of fund raising. And while he agrees that the administration should work with the faculty and seeks its recommendations, he stresses that he is, in the final analysis, answerable to the board rather than to the faculty.

Throughout the controversy, both President Marsh and the members of the faculty have been willing to talk openly about their points of view and President Marsh has said he would like to find out what the specific problems are so he can address them.

It would seem to be a good starting point toward attempting to resolve the differences which exist.

Old Rogersville Bridge

Only the older citizens will recall this scene near Rogersville when the dam and iron bridge were still a part of the community. The structures were razed in 1930 according to Robert Crouse, owner of the picture.

Log Cabins Built By Lippencott Family Sold For Dismantling

BY JOHN L. O'HARA
Staff Writer
WAYNESBURG — The final chapter was written Saturday in the saga of a Greene County land-owning dynasty which started in the late 1700s.

The end came when two log cabins erected by early members of the Lippencott family along what became known as Lippencott Run or Crayne Run were sold to buyers outside the family — cabins which for many years had been concealed beneath the exterior of what appeared to be a modern home.

They were purchased from members of the Crayne family, which over the generations became aligned with the Lippencotts, by Terry Dayton and David Hook, both members of other pioneer Greene County families.

Dayton, who paid $3,800 for the larger cabin, said he intended to use the logs for adding to a cabin he has atop a hill overlooking the site where it was originally erected. His father lived for many years in a log cabin on a nearby farm and he recently completed a new cabin in which he has incorporated modern facilities.

Hook also plans to use the smaller part of the house to add to a cabin which he owns.

Indians were still roaming many sections of Greene County when the first members of the Lippencott family settled in the county about the time of the American Revolution. The basic part of the old house was constructed from gigantic oak logs and other hardwoods to create the first 16-by-20, two-story section. The smaller one-story addition was added later.

Many generations of the Lippencott family were born and reared there and their original holdings of several hundred acres extended from the mouth of a small stream and ended at Ten Mile Creek, along present Route 188 near the fairgrounds. It started on a high ridge and bordered the stream that has historically been known as Lippencott Run.

For many years the vast area comprising the family holdings was a never-never land where farming was done in a leisurely pattern that left time for the colonial sport of fox hunting by horseback, until traffic and fences ruined the sport.

The house was the center of social affairs, particularly square dances, and the rallying point for many of the fox chases held in that section. On one occasion, it hosted the state fox hound field trials with entries from all over the commonwealth.

Parts of the original Lippencott farm were gradually sold off to other families, the largest group of which was the Crayne family.

The last link to owners of the land when it was still known as the Lippencott farm was the Herb Crayne family, members of which had other extensive land holdings in the same part of Franklin Township.

The Lippencott-Crayne property had a storybook sort of appearance, what with the babbling brook that ran within a few feet of its front door, a one-time spacious barn, and other buildings along a short stone walkway from the book to the front yard.

The Crayne family was forced to sell the house when one of the major coal producers operating in the county exercised its option to buy the surface as part of the transaction in which the firm purchased coal underlying the land.

The company is expected to use the land as a refuse disposal site, burying the rustic site under tons of slag.

To the surprise of many persons who visited the auction at which the old house was sold for dismantling, the siding which had covered the house for many years had preserved the hand-squared logs in practically perfect condition.

"They're fit to last another century," a bystander observed as the sale ended.

Uncovered Lippencott-Crayne log house.

AROUND TOWN
By THE STAFF

Best wishes for a happy and pleasant Easter are extended to all readers of the Waynesburg Republican from coast to coast on behalf of the publishers and staff.

Naturally everyone back here in Waynesburg is looking forward to a nice, warm Easter, but hopes are not too high what with the remnants of a two-inch snowfall on Wednesday and a sharp edge to the wind.

Among early arrivals back home from a winter vacation in Florida are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baily of Carmichaels. Mr. Baily is retired president of the First National Bank of Carmichaels.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Meighen returned last weekend from Florida, where they visited Mrs. Nancy T. Meighen. Her husband, the late Charles P. Meighen and an uncle of Mr. Meighen's, was one of Greene County's first automobile sales agency owners.

Mr. and Mrs. Jean Abinader of Carmichaels returned home this week after spending the winter in their winter home in Florida. Prior to their retirement they owned and operated a department store at Carmichaels and were involved in many community activities.

Another get-together of the Waynesburg College Wolfmen's organization has been announced for next Sept. 18 to coincide with the opening game of the college's 1982 football season.

The organization is made up of former players, student managers and others who took part in the football program at the college during the coaching regime of the late Frank Wolf.

together at the Veterans of Foreign Wars post home opposite College Field. Harry Anderson is coordinating the plans for this area and Frank Nivert for the Washington, D.C. area.

Miss Peggy Baily and Mrs. Nell Pollock of Waynesburg have returned home after spending the past month at Atlantic City. Miss Baily resided there for several years and was graduated from high school there before moving back to Waynesburg.

Douglas Gold, a graduate of Waynesburg College and one of its oldest former students, is already looking forward to 1982 commencement week ceremonies and is planning to be here for all the events, including the alumni banquet.

He was a teacher and administrator for a number of years in the U.S. Department of Indian Affairs and was stationed in Montana for several years. Currently and for some years past he has been living in North Carolina and is still interested in many aspects of higher education.

One of the most adventurous lives of any former Waynesburg residents among its present generation ended with the death on Wednesday of Carl Rush. So far as is known, he was the first Waynesburger to enter the hazardous field of crop dusting. He died in California, where he had lived for several years.

During World War II he was one of the pilots who undertook the hazardous job of flying food and supplies over "The Hump" to beleaguered areas of southeast Asia.

He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rush of the East End. His father was an oil and gas well drilling contractor in Greene County and later in Texas.

Between The Bookends
Marcia McKenna Biddle

Harrisburg Revisited: On the second day of my attendance at a conference in Harrisburg, I started taking notes immediately, knowing that I would have to translate them later in order to figure out what the speakers had been talking about.

Our morning meeting was opened by our "facilitator." I had already discovered that a "facilitator" is not a rest room attendant or a janitor, but a discussion leader. Today, he announced, we were to discuss "the struggle we all face," "vis a vis vroad community-cultural interests" which might "reveal the natural partnership" of multiple-doing people.

Suddenly turning folksy, perhaps sensing we were all about to doze off, the "facilitator" confided that we would soon find out "where everybody's coming from," "where we're at," and other "stuff." I put up my hand and said I was coming from Greene County, and hoped to return there immediately, if not sooner.

This attitude was seen to "impact negatively" upon the "beneficial interaction" we expected to achieve through our "issue-oriented focus" upon "experiential opportunities" and "demographic realities." I brightened at these words. I knew it was too much to hope that the "Demographic Realities" would turn out to be a rock group like the "Base-Line Realities." But I thought they might be at least a pair of English majors who would read poetry.

But, no, the "demographic realities" were said to be "impacting" on our "mutually supportive relationships" and causing us to "relinquish responsibility" in "areas of organizational development." What we had to do was "look at the bigger picture."

I looked around for the pictures, but found none. In a "spirit of cooperation" and "beneficial interaction," I proposed to remedy this lack by showing around pictures of mil children, which I happened to have with me.

This activity moved the "facilitator" to comment that there was "no constituency" for this type of "overview." I finally realized that he meant he didn't want to look at my pictures, and sullenly put them away.

It was suggested that we conduct an "image audit," to "identify priority needs" and bring "united input" to the "circumstantial response" we "perceived as the outcome."

I wrote all that down in my notebook and then started drawing pictures of the "facilitator." I quickly covered the pictures, since the result of this "image audit" were not too favorable to the "facilitator" and I didn't want him to see it.

I was already in enough trouble, and was afraid I was one of those identified as "emerging as a source of concern," needing "positive reinforcement" if I were ever to "articulate the legitimacy" of the "base-line realities." I said that I was an old friend by now of the "Base-Line Realities," and was waiting only to hear from the Demographic ones.

This "perceived definition" was said to "lack a central focus," and I was accused of "trying to wear two hats." I said this was a conclusion which could not be "extrapolated from my own experience." That's when I came home. I had scared myself — I was starting to talk like "them."

PP&L Places Coal Reserve On Market

WAYNESBURG — A 32,000-acre block of Pittsburgh seam coal in western Greene County has been placed on the market by Green Hill Coal Co., a subsidiary of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co., Allentown.

The company said the 300 million tons of coal are being offered for sale or lease because the reserves are no longer required to power PP&L power plants. The reserves are no longer required because of a decline in electric load gross projections.

The coal, much of it in Center Township, comprises about half of Greene County reserve coal which the Allentown utility purchased in 1975.

The other 32,000 acres, which was located south of the coal now being offered for sale or lease, was leased in 1980 to Standard Oil of Ohio.

Acreage Program Deadline In April

WAYNESBURG — Greene County farmers who produce wheat, corn, sorghum, barley and oats have until Friday, April 16, to enroll in the 1982 voluntary Acreage Reduction Program (ARC).

Alex Harry, chairman of the Greene County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, said the ARP is designed to reduce 1982 grain production to a level which can be profitably marketed.

In return for reducing acreages of wheat by 15 percent and feed grains by 10 percent, farmers will be eligible for price protection on 1982 production. Benefits include eligibility for target price payments, annual price support loans, and premiums for grain placed in a three-year grain reserve loan program.

Acreage taken out of production will be maintained in a conservation cover with no crop mechanically harvested in 1982. The conservation acres may be grazed after Aug. 31, 1982.

Target price protection assures farmers of 1982 crop income approximating ational targets of $4.05 per bushel for wheat, $2.70 for corn, $2.60 for sorghum, $2.60 for barley and $1.50 for oats.

Principal Hospitalized

WAYNESBURG — Allen G. Nixdorf III, co-principal of the Margaret Bell Miller Middle School in Waynesburg, suffered a heart attack Saturday and is a patient in the West Virginia University Hospital. He was reported to be "resting comfortably" Sunday. Nixdorf, 38, joined the Central Greene School District administrative staff in July of last year after serving for seven years as principal of Rockwell Junior-Senior High School in Somerset.

Pacers Start Season At A Run

WAYNESBURG — Several members of the Greene County Pacers have started the 1982 season by participating in events held in Uniontown, Morgantown, W.Va., and Washington D.C.

Taking part in the Avon Running Circuit 20K run in Washington, D.C., were Kathy Guthrie and Linda Simpson.

Dave Matthews entered the Pepsi Challenge race in Morgantown, W.Va., while several members entered the first annual Good Neighbors 5-Mile Run in Uniontown on March 28. Local finishers included Dr. Bruce Shipe, Kathy Guthrie, Eileen Lang and Pete Stoy, who finished second in his age group.

Vic Lapkowitz of Carmichaels won a gold medal in the 50-59 age group with a time of 37:14. Mike Milliken of Waynesburg competed in the 15 and under age group.

The Pacers, along with WANB Radio and R.A. Matteucci Distributing will sponsor the second annual Mothers Day 10K and 2-mile Fun Run on Sunday, May 9.

Jackets Sweep Doubleheader

WAYNESBURG — Dale Walker singled home the winning runs to give Waynesburg a 10-9 and 12-11 come-from-behind doubleheader sweep over Washington & Jefferson Friday afternoon.

Trialing 9-8 going into the last of the seventh inning in the first game, the Yellow Jackets' Mike Bevecka opened the inning with a walk. Frank Delpino followed with a walk and Joel Carolla singled to load the bases. Bevecka scored the tying run on a passed ball before Walker singled up the middle for the game-winner.

Don Smith, in relief of Jim Duca, picked up the win, while W&J starter Rick Roth was tagged with the loss.

Waynesburg scored 10 runs on 11 hits, while W&J scored nine runs on six hits.

In game two, the Yellow Jackets also found themselves behind in the bottom of the seventh, trailing 11-9. But the first five Waynesburg batters drew walks to tie the score and set up Walker's other game-winning single up the middle.

Waynesburg's Bill Stough was the only player to collect two extra-base hits, which included a three-run homer in the first game and a double in the second.

Waynesburg, which is 3-1 on the season now, plays Geneva today away. The Presidents are 0-2.

Finish In Classic Style

PITTSBURGH — Lonnie Barnes, Todd Eddy and Jim Vulcano would have it no other way.

It was their final competition as high school students and they would not leave in defeat.

All three made sure of it. Barnes captured a 16-11 decision over Eric Wertz of Altoona at 138 pounds; Eddy (132) managed a 7-4 victory of Everett's Todd Allman and Vulcano (112) took a 4-1 win over Greenville's (112) Hejazi to spark the WPIAL All-Stars to a 31-12 victory over the state's Northwest-Central team in the eighth annual U.S. Wrestling Classic at the Pitt Field House Saturday night.

Eddy, who graduates from Waynesburg High School this year, made his first trip ever to the Classic and came away a winner.

"So far this was okay," he said. "I got to meet boys I didn't know before."

"I was real pleased with Todd Eddy," said Waynesburg's Joe Ayersman, who coached the WPIAL team. "He did an excellent job. I wish that all my team's victories were that easy. Boy if we had the upper weights that were here at Waynesburg. . . .

"Most of the wrestlers were in pretty good condition," Ayersman said. "It was good to have Lonnie Barnes on my side for once."

Ayersman, who was presented a plaque at the match for being named the WPIAL Class AA Coach of the Year, felt coaching the Classic was something special.

Beavers Are Safe, Doe Aren't

By JOE PARRY
Special To The O-R

Beavers can now rest a bit easier. The beaver trapping season ended recently and the final day for tagging by a game protector was March 2. And it looks as though the beavers did a pretty good job of eluding the strategically set traps too, as district game protector Jack Sickenberger has tagged just 42 pelts this season.

While last year there were 41 beavers tagged in the district, this season's harvest was expected to increase by a significant number.

And there were just 11 pelts tagged in Greene County, but as county game protector Steve Kleiner noted, fur prices have decreased in value.

The average beaver pelt was receiving $20 this year as opposed to the $60 price of beaver pelts two years ago.

"It doesn't seem to make any sense," Kleiner said. "Inflation is going up at an astronomical pace but what a trapper is able to earn is going below desirable figures."

"Traps, which can range from $4 to $12 in cost, were also disappearing in the field according to Sickenberger, as numerous incidents of stolen traps were reported.

"Perhaps it's being done by people that do not believe in the sport of trapping," he said.

Sickenberger emphasized that trapping is necessary to control the beaver population in the area and to also minimize damage done by beavers, muskrats, foxes and other animals on the legal trapping list.

Another reminder from the local game protectors is for dog owners to keep them under control to prevent the domestic dogs from attacking deer. This is the time of the year when dogs can easily overtake doe who are expecting with fawn.

Sickenberger noted that deer kills of this type are growing county-wide. "A lot of people think their little Bowser wouldn't hurt a fly but it's always the most gentle pet that does the most damage to the deer herd," he said.

Despite all the controversy in Harrisburg over the muzzleloading season, flintlocks continue to be popular sellers and clubs for the muzzleloaders are being formed in rapid fashion.

An organization for flintlock enthusiasts has been formed in Washington (the Washington County Muzzleloaders) and meetings are held twice a month in the County Courthouse.

Club president Rudy David indicated the local organization is a member of the National Muzzleloader Rifle Association and members will participate in some of the regular registered shoots sponsored by the NMLRA.

Those interested in joining the muzzleloader club may contact Howdy Sanders at 228-3384.

Make sure your children FLY 'EM SAFELY

For safety sake, forbid children to fly kites, model airplanes, or toy rockets near electric lines, busy streets, or highways.

Instruct them to use wood and paper in their kites, and to always attach dry string to kites or airplanes. A wet string, wire, or anything metallic could cause serious burns or even death if it touches a power line.

If any object should get snagged in an electric line, don't try to remove it or touch any dangling strings or wires.

Remember, too, kids are climbers. So do not permit them to climb electric poles, towers, or trees where they can touch or fall into electric wires.
