GCID to Construct Shell Building At Paisley Park

WAYNESBURG — At a time when the economy is in a slump, Greene County Industrial Developments, Inc., is going aggressive.

GCID President R.A. Matteucci announced Friday that the county agency will construct a speculative building at its Paisley Industrial Park near Carmichaels to give impetus to its ongoing effort to attract new industry to the county.

The all-metal structure, a Kirby building, will be erected for GCID by Systemics, a McMurray building firm.

The decision to invest agency funds in the building was made by the GCID board of directors at a meeting Thursday evening.

"We are confident the economy will turn around and we want to be ready when it does," Matteucci said. "We could have kept our money invested and earn interest on it, but if we did that we would be turning our back on the reason for which we were created — to provide new jobs for Greene County."

Paisley Industrial Park, which was developed by GCID in 1977, occupies a 74-acre tract at the Paisley intersection of Routes 21 and 88 in Cumberland Township, two miles south of Waynesburg. It is accessed from Route 88 and features a system of paved interior roads, a sewage treatment plant, city water and all utilities.

The only occupant to date is the LeNorse Company, a major manufacturer of machinery and equipment for the mining industry. The firm has a major warehouse, distribution center and regional sales office located in the industrial park.

Matteucci said the shell building will be designed for occupancy by virtually any type of industry. "We have no particular prospect in mind, but we do know that most firms look for existing space when they seek a new location and we have no empty buildings at this time."

The 20,000-square-foot shell building will have an eave height of 25 feet and is designed to allow for 10-ton underslung bridge cranes in each of its two 50-foot spans. The framing system also will allow for future 30-foot expansion of both sidewalls and for unlimited expansion at each end.

Matteucci said GCID is in a position to offer an attractive financing package to prospective industry, either through the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority at interest rates as low as 3 percent or through the Greene County Industrial Development Authority at tax-exempt interest rates.

In making his presentation to the GCID board of directors, Matteucci praised the Greene County commissioners for their continuing support of the county's industrial development program and Jay Aldridge, executive director of the Penn Southwest Association, "for his valuable advice and assistance."

The GCID president said construction of the shell building is scheduled to get under way by mid-May and will probably require about two months to complete. GCID would recoup its investment through sale of the building.

"We will be actively seeking an occupant during the construction period to allow for the possibility that a buyer would want special design features incorporated into the structure," he said.

Student Tree Project

Junior first grade students of Lena Stoner and second grade students of Denise DeMeo at the East Franklin Elementary School near Waynesburg planted 50 pine tree seedlings Thursday. The trees were donated by the Greene County Soil and Conservation District. The planting was a science project for the first graders, and an ecology project for the second graders. Eight-year-old Donald Fields, of Waynesburg, a second grade student, is a study of concentration as he plants his seedling.

States Will Eventually Control Surface Mining

WAYNESBURG — The federal government will relinquish in the near future much of its supervision over surface mining to the states, members of the Waynesburg Rotary Club were told at their weekly luncheon meeting Monday at the Waynesburg Elks Club.

The speaker was John Heider, field manager of the federal Office of Surface Mining headquarters in Johnstown.

At the present time, he said, strip mining is being done under the supervision of OSM, which was set up within the Department of the Interior as one of the provisions of Public Law 95-87, which was enacted by Congress in 1977 to "control the surface effects of mining and to correct the damage which mining has done in the past."

The OSM official explained that the Reagan administration has decided to turn over to the states more control of surface mining, referred to as "state primacy," while using OSM as a monitor of state activities in the enforcement of surface mining laws. In states which have no laws dealing with surface mining, OSM will continue to supervise. "In any case," Heider said, "states which have surface mining laws must bring them up to minimum federal standards or face renewed federal involvement."

He said Pennsylvania has received about $21 million to date from federal funds for use in enforcement of strip mining laws. It is also eligible for $40 million which has accumulated since 1977 in a special fund built up through a fee of 35 cents on each ton of coal removed by surface mining.

According to Heider, three aspects of surface mining are of greatest importance to the average citizen; they are erosion and sediment control, blasting effects and permit requirements.

"The effects of strip mining can be devastating — clogged streams, roads closed by mud slides, subsidence, and structural damages to homes and barns to name a few," he said.

He said people who live in an area where strip mining is being done "are now in a position to do something about damage to their homes and property which may result from strip mine activities. They can ask for, and get at no cost, a pre-blast survey made of their homes and properties. This survey can then serve as a baseline for a similar survey after blasting to enable state officials to determine the extent of damage, if any."

Heider said OSM will maintain just two offices in Pennsylvania, with the one in Johnstown serving the western part of the state. The state Bureau of Mining and Reclamation, which is part of the Department of Environmental Resources, has several offices throughout the state. The one nearest to Greene County is located at Greensburg.

Heider was introduced by program chairman Harry Cancellmi.

Four new members were introduced at the meeting — Edward Stiles of the Gallatin Bank, Jack Smith of the Morris insurance agency, Richard Moore of Seville jewelers, and Kenneth Willison Jr. of the Willison real estate agency.

Southeastern Greene Seeking Bids For Renovation Project

MAPLETOWN — Plans to advertise for bids for the estimated $5.6 million elementary school renovation project in the Southeastern Greene School District have been made.

In a letter to school administrators, architect Robert T. Scheeren said May 25 has been set as the bid due date. The board will hold a special meeting that night at 7 o'clock to open and tabulate the bids. It then has 60 days in which to award contracts or reject the bids.

Board President Jim Minor said Wednesday night that construction on the project could start as early as July or August.

"We're hoping they'll come in low — the way the economy is," Minor said of the bids.

Minor said construction should proceed with a minimum of disruption of school activities. The new additions to the Bobtown and Penn Pitt schools will be built first with students being moved into the new wings as renovation gets under way in the older sections of the buildings.

Sketches of the project, forwarded to the Department of Education, have apparently been approved, although Minor noted the board has yet to receive formal notice.

Under the proposed renovation project, 12 additional classrooms will be added to the Penn Pitt school. An art room, kindergarten, multi-purpose room, kitchen, portable stage and new main entrance are also planned. The school, which now has only four classrooms, will be remodeled for a library, another classroom, as well as space for a special education room, faculty, music, health suite and office.

All classrooms at Bobtown will be contained within the existing building, with plans calling for turning the auditorium and stage into five classrooms.

The addition to the school will house a library, administrative offices, multi-purpose room, kitchen, group instruction room with a portable stage, an elevator and main entrance. The basement will be changed from a faculty lounge into rooms for art, music and storage.

There are no plans for updating the Glassworks Elementary School. After construction is completed, that building will be closed.

County Planners Approve Shopping Center Expansion

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Planning Commission gave final approval Tuesday to plans for a four-lot addition to the Greene Plaza shopping center on Route 21, east of Waynesburg, and to plans for the Wendy's restaurant which will occupy one of the lots.

County Planner Valerie Cole said Waynesburg Associates have received all necessary clearances from local and state authorities and therefore meet all requirements of the county subdivision ordinance.

John Tonti, who will construct the Wendy's restaurant, has also received all necessary permits. The restaurant will occupy two-thirds of an acre on one of the four new lots, all of which adjoin Route 21 on the eastern end of the shopping center property.

The building will occupy 3,058 square feet and the site provides parking for 35 cars. Provision will be made for a drive-through and pick-up window.

Another of the lots is already occupied by a service station. William Miller of Waynesburg Associates said the remaining two lots are still uncommitted.

Clearinghouse approval was given to an application which the Brave Water and Sewer Authority will submit to the state Department of Commerce for a $50,000 supplemental grant for upgrading of the sewerage system in Brave.

The system serves 40 customers, with sewage now being discharged into a community septic system which the DER has said should be replaced.

Plans by Chester Engineers call for the construction of a pump station and forced main to discharge sewage into a leach field, a project which will cost an estimated $137,000. While the bulk of the funding will come from the federal Environmental Protection Agency, the authority feels that the supplemental state funding is needed to reduce the cost as much as possible for the limited number of people to be served.

Clearinghouse approval was also granted to an application which the Greene County Department of Parks and Recreation will submit for federal funding to finance improvements at four community parks in western Greene County.

The applications to the Soil Conservation Service are designed to finance correction of drainage and erosion problems in small parks in Center, Gilmore, Morris and Richhill townships — work which will cost an estimated $70,000.

Under the plan, the SCS would provide $40,000 through its Rural Conservation and Development program. The other 30 percent would consist of in-kind services in the form of work done by the townships involved and community volunteers.

A new state Department of Transportation program to assign priorities to commercial truck routes in the county was reviewed, with Mrs. Cole explaining that the study will be taken into consideration when the 12-year highway plan is updated in September.

Property Owner Enters Sewer Line Dispute

WAYNESBURG — A Waynesburg Borough property owner has entered into the complicated sewer cross-over agreement among the borough, Franklin Township, Mountain View Gardens and the Franklin Township Sewer Authority.

It began a few years ago when Mountain View was forced to delay construction because the state Department of Environmental Resources had determined the borough sewage plant was at capacity.

Consequently an agreement was made between the four parties that called for the construction of a cross-over. The cross-over, which was to be constructed by the Mountain View developers, would divert sewage from the borough sewer line into the Franklin Township line in an amount created by the new housing development.

Mountain View developers have not constructed the cross-over although it has been almost a year since the agreement was signed. Franklin Township, just recently, contacted the developer in an effort to determine the reason for the delay. Franklin Township is expected to realize about $60,000 annually for treating the development's sewage. Mountain View is paying less than half that for treatment at the borough plant.

John McNay, owner of the former South Ward school building, has announced plans that would convert the former school into housing units for the elderly and handicapped. However, DER has again objected to additional sewage being treated at the borough plant.

McNay wants the Mountain View cross-over constructed in order that the borough could then accept his development's sewage.

In other action Monday, the supervisors approved an agreement with S.J.M. Diversified Co., a surface mining company, for use of a small part of Township Road 559 near Mack Coal Company Hill.

Construction plans by West Penn Foods for a Wendy's Restaurant near Greene Plaza was approved by the board. Supervisor Bob Morris voted no on the motion.

Also approved was an ordinance calling for a fine of $25 to $300 or 10 days in jail for those convicted of starting a field fire in the township. The action was recommended by the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Company in an effort to cut down on the amount of grass fire calls each year. Franklin is the first township to pass such an ordinance in the county.

The new law will go into effect May 1.

Supervisors Included In Convention

HERSHEY — Supervisors Ralph Porter of Franklin Township, George A. Morris of Whiteley Township and Jack Whittlatch of Richhill Township attended the 60th Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors convention held April 18-21 in Hershey.

A record crowd of nearly 1,600 township supervisors, secretaries and managers from Pennsylvania's 1,458 second-class townships participated in the four-day event.

Township officials exchanged information to help them better serve their constituents and exchanged ideas on local government issues at the convention.

Heading the list of notables who spoke at the convention were Governor Dick Thornburgh, U.S. Senator H. John Heinz, U.S. Reps. James K. Coyne and Austin J. Murphy and Secretary of Transportation Thomas Larson.

Wayne Township Supervisors Feel Surcharges Are Too Low

WAYNESBURG — The Wayne Township supervisors feel that surcharges filed against their predecessors are too low by almost $14,000.

They filed exceptions Monday to the 1981 county audit which was submitted to the Greene County Court on March 12 by the township board of auditors.

While they are taking no exceptions to the auditors' claim for surcharges totaling $18,089, they are asking the court to seek another $13,398 from the three supervisors — George M. Adams, John G. Jenkins and Robert Simpson — who left office Dec. 31, 1981.

The present supervisors — Charles J. Raber, Charles E. Tedrow and Kenneth R. Kerr — are charging improper expenditures of $5,860 from the state Liquid Fuels fund for the purchase of red dog and $7,538 from the machinery fund for a wide variety of items and services.

In their exceptions, the supervisors state they are asking for the red dog surcharge because the material was purchased without bids.

They claim that purchases from the machinery fund were improper because that fund, by law, can be used only for the purchase of new machinery. They back their claim by listing 44 separate expenditures from the machinery fund, ranging from the purchase of grass seed to use of the money for wrecker service.

Exceptions to the auditors' report were also filed Monday by Robert Simpson through his attorney, James Hook.

He denies any wrongful expenditures of township moneys, claiming he has no knowledge of any of the items which the auditors claim he purchased with township money.

He also states that the auditors are incorrect in trying to recover the $1,009 he was paid for working on Saturdays at the township landfill, contending that he did, in fact, put in the time and was entitled to the pay.

In addition, he denies that he ever received pay for unauthorized holidays, claiming that the board of auditors had approved the observance of Columbus Day, primary election, the Monday after Easter, general election and the first day of hunting season as paid holidays.

The other two former supervisors — George M. Adams and John G. Jenkins — filed exceptions to the auditors' report on last Thursday.

Filing of the exceptions has set the stage for a Greene County Court hearing into the question of the surcharges.

Couple Plan 15,000 Mile Motorcycle Tour Of America

By JIM MOORE
Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — If John and Anabel Hoge of Kissimmee, Fla., formerly of Carmichaels, were to choose a theme song, it would have to be "On The Road Again."

Although they own an Airstream travel home and a Rockwell Commander airplane, they are planning a 15,000 mile motorcycle trip around the perimeter of the United States mainland and into Alaska and Canada. Departure time is around May 15.

John, 57, and Anabel, 55, will be riding a Harley Davidson FLT Classic with an 80 cubic-inch engine. "It's more comfortable than my Lincoln," John said in an interview last week. Counting the accessories which include a stereo tape deck, CB radio and AM/FM radio, the Hoges have $10,600 invested in the cycle.

Also included is a trailer John constructed from a commercial trailer and a car's baggage container. They need the trailer for their tent, sleeping bags, cooking utensils and clothing because they want to "rough it" during their trip.

They figure to spend about $550 for gasoline and will stay in motels only when weather prevents them from camping out. "Most state parks offer free or minimal-fee camping grounds," John said.

John is no stranger to motorcycles, having been involved with them since he was 16 years old. "I plan to be a gypsy for the rest of my life," he said. His wife completely agrees with him and said her only difficulty is getting up in the mornings. They plan to travel about 300 miles each day and stop every 75 to 100 miles to stretch their legs.

Although their route has been mapped out by a touring club they belong to, they will be guided by those historical sites they wish to visit. They will first head for Maine and then travel down the New England coast and the eastern seaboard to Florida.

"We plan to make a side trip up to Knoxville, Tenn., and take in the World's Fair and then come back to the Gulf Coast and proceed across the southern part of the United States to San Diego."

They will then head north to Seattle where they will join 30 other cyclists for the trip to Alaska.

John and Anabel Hoge on their $10,600 Harley Davidson motorcycle.

Following the Alaskan tour, they will travel across the southern part of Canada to Prince Rupert before returning home.

Involved in the dairy farm and mobile home business since 1942, the Hoges had planned for years to eventually sell everything and "hit the road." John and Anabel are good traveling companions as evidenced by the fact they celebrated their 37th wedding anniversary last Saturday.

They have two children, Mrs. Robert (Sandy) Eaton of Carmichaels and Dr. John L. Hoge, a veterinarian in Carmichaels, who are both cycle riders. Dr. John in fact has a sidecar on his Harley Davidson for making house calls. Sandy prefers her Honda 350. The Hoges sold their 40 acres, mobile home sales and laundromat on Route 21 and headed for Florida last fall.

They have no qualms about the long trip on their motorcycle. "We have always found those long-haired motorcycle riders are very polite and helpful," the Hoges said. "You place your helmet on the ground near your bike as a signal for aid and sure enough the first cyclist who comes along will stop to offer assistance."

They also discount stories about "pushy" truck drivers, saying truckers have always been very friendly and like to use the CB radio for extended, polite conversations while traveling.

The Hoges are quick to defend 90 percent of the cycle riders in the nation. "We are members of ABATE (a local motorcycle club) and the riders are always looking for civic projects," John said. The local club is currently sending riders to instructional school so they can teach motorcycle safety to others.

"Our Harley Davidson club held a big rally in Carlisle recently and the mayor gave us the key to the city and welcomed us back at any time," John said. "In Somerset, the chief of police became angry with the local newspaper when it would not send a reporter to cover our rally," John added.

"The chief told the editor that if we were drinking and throwing things the paper would certainly be there," John said.

They both feel safe on the cycle and point out the fact there are 32 lights on the cycle for safety reasons. "Four-lane highways are much safer than the two-lane roads," John reasoned. "Too many persons attempt to pass in a reckless manner on the two-lane road," he said.

The Hoges said more of the "older" generation are becoming cycle riders. In fact, there is a special group of riders called the "Retreads" which accepts only those over 40. "It's a cheap way to travel and you can get to places you might not consider while driving a car. Certainly the gasoline expense is far less," John said.

Asked what he could do for an encore, John said plans are tentative at this time but he has already signed for a motorcycle tour of Mexico later this year.

Enlow Valley Tour Scheduled

WIND RIDGE — The third annual Spring Fling, a historical and nature tour of Enlow Valley which separates western Greene and Washington counties, will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 1.

The tour will be led by several speakers and guides whose expertise lie in many fields. Areas covered will include archaeology, botany, birds, fish and wildlife.

The tour, which is timed to coincide with the blooming of wildflowers in the valley, is being sponsored by the Association for Rural Conservation (ARC). Those who wish to participate are asked to be at the Wind Ridge Fire Hall at 9 a.m. Appropriate clothing should be worn and a sack lunch is suggested.

Accompanying the tour will be selected guides, including local archaeologists William Bennington and William Ringlesbach, ornithologist Ralph K. Bell, district game protector Steve Kleiner, waterways patrolman Gary Dieger, local naturalist Robert Buckbee and nature illustrator Arabelle Wheatley.

The car caravan and walking tour will leave the firehall and proceed to Enlow Valley where the tour will make stops at various points of interests.

The tour, which will last two to three hours, will be followed by lunch. After lunch, participants may wish to make their own tour or make a side trip to Dunkard Fork Valley, site of Crow's Rock and various Indian mounds and sites.

The tour is open to the public. For additional information contact tour organizer Marcia Sonneborn at 428-4344.

Baptist Session Next Weekend

WAYNESBURG — The 123rd annual session of the Ten Mile Baptist Association will be held Saturday and Sunday, May 1-2, in the First Baptist Church of Waynesburg. The session will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday and the theme is "Preach the Gospel."

The association sermon will be given by the Rev. Nick Bardo, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church.

The Rev. Dale F. Salico, pastor of the First Baptist church of Clarion, will be the speaker Saturday morning and Sunday night. Theme of his Saturday sermon will be "To share elements of growth" and his Sunday theme will be "to give illumination and inspiration to evangelism in the local church."

Choirs from association churches will present selections on Sunday evening.

Business and reports will be a portion of Saturday morning's program and will be finished in the afternoon session.

Church Attendance Lists Are Compiled

M.B. McMillen, evangelism superintendent of the Greene County Sunday School Association, has announced the results of the first week of the 1982 Enlargement Campaign.

To date, 21 churches have registered their intent to participate in the campaign. Sunday schools may still register by sending attendance figures for the six Sundays following Easter. The Sunday attendance should be reported to McMillen each week for weekly publication. Please report each week, even though your Sunday school may have a decrease compared to last year, because the final standing in the campaign is determined by all six Sundays.

The first week of standings are: West Union United Presbyterian, 12 people, a 92.3 percent gain; Sugar Grove Union, 12, 85.7 percent gain; Mt. Carmel Church of God, 13, 85 percent gain; Bates Fork Baptist, 31, 50 percent gain; Crabapple Community, 33, 47.8 percent gain; Long Run Church of God, 8, 34.8 percent gain; Enon Baptist, 9, 19.6 percent; Centennial Church of God, 5, 18.5 percent; Rogersville United Methodist, 8, 17 percent; Spraggs United Methodist, 3, 6.8 percent gain.

Greene County Council On Arts

Art Activities Scheduled

CARMICHAELS — The Greene County Council on the Arts has voted to sponsor the local appearance of a folk music couple, approved two bus trips, cancelled a Youth Art Festival and scheduled a blacksmith workshop.

At the request of the Greene Academy of Art, the county art council has contracted with Bill and Carlotta Wellington of Upper Tract, W.Va., to be presented including the Symphony Brass Ensemble, plays, the Junior Tambrizans and a hot air balloon. The free event is sponsored by the Pittsburgh Parks & Recreation Department.

The council will also charter a bus to attend the Three Rivers Art Festival in Pittsburgh on Wednesday, June 9. The bus will leave Carmichaels at 11 a.m. and return from Pittsburgh at 6 p.m. Cost will be $6.50 per person and reservations will be taken until June 1 on a first come, first served basis. Call the council office at 966-2731 for reservations.

Council president Jim Hop-ton reported the Youth Arts Festival scheduled for May has been cancelled due to lack of response from the majority of the art and music departments of the county school districts.

Each year the county art council is attempting to bring a different class to the county residents. It will sponsor a blacksmith workshop on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 1-2, at Ryerson Station State Park.

The smithy will be Glenn Horr, a full time blacksmith at West Alexander Village. Forges will be borrowed from Pioneer Craft Council at Mill Run.

The workshop involved working with iron for decorative purposes, not shoeing of horses. Details of the workshop will be announced. The present folk music during the Covered Bridge Festival Saturday, Sept. 18.

The couple presents music on the banjo, fiddle, guitar, lap dulcimer and hammered dulcimer.

Plans are being made to sponsor a chartered bus to Point State Park on Saturday, May 22, to attend the Kidfest. Continuous entertainment will

The council contributed $100 to the Greene County Community Concert Association and heard a report from Marcia Biddle on the Pittsburgh-Allegheny Cultural Alliance workshop she attended. It was co-sponsored by the State Humanities Council.

The Annual membership drive of the county art council is underway. Dues are $25 per family or $10 individual annually. Mail check to Greene County Council on the Arts, Box 309, Carmichaels, Pa., 15320.

Council has sponsored this spring five adult and two children's classes and scheduled for May are a jazzercise class, baby ballet, continuing adult tote painting and children's tote. A stained glass will be held in the fall.

Grange Honors Area Minister

GRAYSVILLE — Over 140 persons attended a Harvey's Grange meeting Wednesday honoring the Rev. Robert Borland as the community citizen of the year.

It was the largest crowd ever to attend an open meeting.

Borland, a minister in the West Greene Parish since 1961, was recognized for his service to many local projects. He has been active with Greene Valley Farms, Busy Bee, Greene County Hospice, Try Again Homes and the Greene County Health and Welfare Council.

He is coordinator of the Bell Ringers for the Salvation Army in Greene County. He is also past president of the Waynesburg College Alumni Association and is a current member of the board of trustees.

For many years, he has been chaplain of the Graysville Volunteer Fire Company and is past moderator of the Washington Presbytery in addition to being active in many church organizations.

A program on music folklore was presented by Jimmy and Carol Randolph of Waynesburg. Helen Dinsmore gave a short history on Harvey's Grange and Mary Jane Kent spoke on the food co-op and credit union.

CLASS OF 1972
The Waynesburg High School Class of 1972 will hold its 10-year reunion at the Waynesburg VFW Saturday, July 17.

The reunion committee comprised of Linda Bell, Carolyn Huffman McGrath, Melinda Patterson McNeely and John Stewart still needs the addresses of several classmates.

WAYNESBURG — Pros and cons of increasing the amount of discount offered for early payment of county real estate taxes as a means of stimulating cash flow was discussed by the Greene County county commissioners at their meeting Thursday.

The proposal, as outlined by chief assessor Perry Bavera, would call for tax notices to be sent out in May rather than in June, with the discount allowed for payment prior to July 30 being increased from two percent to five percent. At the same time, the penalty imposed on those who do not pay until after Sept. 30 would be upped from five percent to 10 percent.

Key to the plan lies in anticipated reaction by coal companies. The annual tax on their coal brings in $969,000, which is just under 50 percent of the county's total property tax revenues.

At the present time, Bavera said, all of the coal companies are paying their taxes during the face period (July through September) — apparently spurning the two percent discount because they can earn more on their money by keeping it on interest as long as possible.

"I have contacted the four major coal owners in the county and they have all said they would be willing to help the county by paying their taxes early in the discount period if they got a five percent discount," Bavera said.

County Commissioner Richard Cowan expressed doubts, however.

"We stand to lose $50,000 if all the coal companies take advantage of the discount, and there is no guarantee that payment would be made until the end of the period," he said. "I want to be sure that we would save at least that much in investments and reduction of interest before I would favor such a plan."

Principal advantage of the plan would be in reducing the size of tax anticipation loans required at the beginning of the year. Interest on such loans cost the county $70,000 during 1981.

Before making a decision, the commissioners will have a study made on the percentage of taxes now being paid in the discount, face and penalty periods. If a change is made, it will not be effective until next year.

George K. Stennett, county director of development, met with the commissioners to discuss a request from the Federal Aviation Agency for a three-year development plan for the county airport, and specifically for improvements which the county would make if federal funds were made available to carry them out.

Courthouse Preservation Group To Hold Organizational Meeting

WAYNESBURG — A non-profit corporation which has been formed to preserve and restore Greene County's first courthouse will hold its organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 4.

Primary objective of "The Olde Greene County Courthouse" will be to rally public support for a campaign to purchase the building on East Greene Street. It conceals a two-story log structure which served as the courthouse from 1797 until the first brick courthouse was erected shortly after 1880.

Harold Dulaney, one of the incorporators, will serve as temporary chairman at the meeting to be held in the courtroom of the present courthouse.

He said that officers and directors will be elected and preliminary plans for acquisition and restoration.

"Membership is open to all interested persons and I hope to see a large attendance at the meeting," he said. "Every township should be represented."

Others who have been involved in forming the corporation are Judge Glenn Toothman, George A. Albert, Orville Dayton and William Garner. Their goals, as set forth in articles of incorporation, are "to acquire, preserve and protect the site of the former courthouse and other historical buildings and structures for the benefit of the cultural, educational and architectural enrichment of the community."

The building, which is essentially intact, is concealed beneath the exterior of an empty storeroom formerly occupied by the George G. Albert Co. It served as the courthouse and jail until 1800, when the first brick courthouse where the present courthouse was constructed in 1950. When Albert purchased the building, it had long since been covered by siding and a large addition had been built at the rear.

Historic Hughes House For Lease

WAYNESBURG — It is being called, quite aptly, a placement program.

It's in reverse, though, since it involves neglected houses which are looking for good families.

Houses involved — and one of them is in Greene County — are owned by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission and all of them have valid claims to a unique place in local and state history.

They're standing empty and unattended, with the danger of gradual deterioration that involves, because the PHMC doesn't have the money to restore and staff them.

Among the two dozen or so such houses which are scattered throughout the Commonwealth is the Thomas Hughes house in Jefferson, a two-story stone structure which was built in 1814 by one of Greene County's pioneer settlers.

The PHMC, acting through the Pennsylvania Department of General Services, is soliciting bids from people who would like to lease the houses as private residences.

"It's part of the commission's new placement program to insure that properties and museums administered by the commission are fully used," said Dr. Larry Tise, PHMC executive director. "We're pursuing this alternative use as a means of insuring the preservation of the buildings."

The Hughes house, Tise said, needs both exterior and interior repairs and improvements. With the exception of some necessary exterior work which the PHMC will take care of, the outside of the house will remain as is. The person leasing the house will have the right to make interior improvements at his cost, subject to PHMC approval of the type of changes to be made.

"We want to be sure the basic integrity of the structure will be preserved," the state official said. The person leasing the house will have the right to decide if he wants to open it visitors.

The Historical and Museum Commission purchased the Hughes house in 1967 with the intention of restoring and staffing it as a historical attraction. But due to lack of funds the plan was never carried out since full restoration of the house and adjoining spring house, landscaping and development of the property, providing a parking lot and erection of a maintenance building would have cost an estimated $600,000.

In 1980 the PHMC spent $25,000 to stabilize the stone foundation walls and stone exterior walls, but nothing else has been done.

Thomas Hughes (1749-1823) was born near Winchester, Va., and became a highly skilled hunter who first settled in Carmichaels, building a cabin in part of that community known as "Old Town."

VFW Bugler Pin Awarded

GREENSBORO — Edward J. Franks of Bobtown was presented with a Veterans of Foreign Wars state bugler pin during a recent ceremony held by Greensboro Post 6303, where he is a member.

The pin was presented by L.R. (Butch) Santore, a VFW past state commander.

Franks held the post of state bugler under three state commanders — Santore, Marlin Walters of Millersburg and William J. Tepsic of Brentwood.

Others taking part in the ceremony were Michael L. Moflar, Post 6303 senior vice commander, and Richard Reynolds, junior vice commander.

Franks is a veteran of World War II who served in the U.S. Navy with the Guam M.I. Joint Communication Activities (radio) unit. He is employed as a mechanic at the Duquesne Light Warwick mine at Greensboro.

Franks has been a member of the Greensboro Post since 1947 and is credited with attending 90 percent of the military funerals and other military functions of the post.

Former Greene Man Discovers New Fungus

A former Greene County resident has been credited with the discovery of a heretofore unknown plant fungus.

He is Dr. Joseph M. Krupinsky of Bismarck, N.D., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Krupinsky of Greensboro.

Through his research as a plant pathologist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, he isolated the fungus from Russian wildrye in 1978, 1979 and 1980, and from Siberian wildrye and basin wildrye in 1980.

Krupinsky has named the new species "Septoria Spraguei" in honor of Dr. Roderick Sprague, a former USDA plant pathologist who worked at Mandan, N.D. in the 1940s. Isolation of the new fungus is regarded as a major breakthrough in the field of plant pathology.

Krupinsky received his bachelor's degree from St. Meinrad College in Indiana in 1966, with a major in biology and minors in philosophy and classics. He received his master's degree in agronomy and with cereal crops at Beltsville, Md., from 1966 to 1971, when he became a biological technician with the Department of Plant Pathology at Montana State University. He has been a USDA plant pathologist at Mandan, N.D. since 1977.

He has had articles printed in 39 publications in Maryland, Montana and North Dakota and has won a number of awards and honors as a member of Sigma Xi. Professional affiliations include membership in the American and Canadian Phytopathological Societies and the Soil Conservation Society of America.

He and his wife Diane have two sons.

Students Qualify For Summer Camp

A number of Greene County children have qualified for a week at summer camp as the result of their participation in Released Time Bible Classes in several communities.

Children who completed 36 Bible lessons or memorized 100 Bible verses will be enrolled in the summer camp without charge. Children who completed half of the work will pay half of the price and pay campers will be welcomed as space permits.

The camp program for children 9 years old or older will include free milk, Bible classes, singing, sports, crafts, hikes, swimming and campfires.

The non-denominational program has been held in Carmichaels, Nemaquin, Jefferson, Graysville and Aleppo under the direction of Reba L. Miller, a Bible Club Movement missionary to Greene County.

Recently named to the Released Time Bible Program honor roll were Jacy Wilson and Heidi Dudas, Aleppo; Jeff Grimes and Lynn Hartmen, Graysville; and Billy Everly, Nemaquin. Guy Baker, Royce Baker, Emily Morris, Georgina Jo Rush and Donna Whetzel were named from the Jefferson-Morgan area.

Those named to the Mailbox Club Bible correspondence lessons honor roll included:

GCID Vital Part Of Progress

Since its organization 25 years ago, Greene County Industrial Developments, Inc. has played a major role in the economic well being of the county.

It has been instrumental in location of many industrial plants in the county to provide residents with hundreds of jobs, beginning with the Manson Belt Service Co. which has operated near Greensboro since it moved into the county in 1959.

The industrial park at Waynesburg which it created in 1961 is home for three manufacturing companies and the Paisly Industrial Park near Carmichaels, established in 1977, has one plant. Other businesses it helped entice are located in various parts of the county.

In addition, through its dual role as the county development agency, it has assisted municipalities and authorities throughout the county in obtaining grants which have made possible the construction and expansion of water and sewerage facilities to provide the public facilities which industry must have.

It is interesting to note that one of the first things GCID did after it was created by the county in 1955 was to erect a shell building at Carmichaels as a speculative venture. The theory was that if a building was in place and ready for occupancy the agency would have a big edge in seeking a tenant at a time when every county was deeply involved in trying to lure new jobs.

Since then the structure on the Stringtown road has had a number of occupants, but it has seldom been empty for any appreciable length of time. The current owner is Leder, Inc., the American branch of a Swiss firm which manufactures industrial belting. GCID was instrumental in its purchase of the building in 1981.

GCID is going back to that beginning with the announcement last week that it will erect a shell building in the Paisley Industrial Park in the hope of attracting a job-producing tenant. As was the case two decades ago, the step is being taken at a time when the economy is depressed and competition is keen in the industrial development field.

It was particularly gratifying to learn that members of the GCID board of directors have enough confidence in the economy to take money which could be drawing substantial amounts of interest if invested and put it at risk in a way that they feel will help their county.

If more of the people who run the nation's big corporations felt the same way the country might not be having such problems.

Jobs For Summer

WAYNESBURG — Approximately 77 jobs will be available for the 1982 Summer Youth Employment Program administered by the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp.

Bernice Stichtick, CAC youth program director for Greene County, said Monday that any municipalities, municipal authorities, private non-profit corporations, county agencies or school districts planning to participate in the 1982 program by providing a worksite must complete application forms and return them to the Community Action Corp. office in Waynesburg no later than Wednesday, May 5.

The Summer Youth Employment Program is for economically disadvantaged youth between the ages of 16 to 21.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

For many years, this very large three-story barn stood at the north end of Morgan Street in Waynesburg and was the largest structure of its kind in Greene County. It was erected at the turn of the century by the late Dick Ewart for use as a livery stable and was finally razed in the early 1930s when it became clear that the automobile was here to stay. Ironically, the place where it stood is now part of Waynesburg's municipal parking lots. At the time the picture was taken, the building was owned by the late Alva Patterson.

AROUND THE TOWN

By The Staff

The sighting of the "first robin" was at one time the traditional harbinger of Spring. Now it's the return of Greene Countians who have spent the winter months in the south.

Among them, so far, is Mrs. Kate Whyte of South Morgan Street from St. Petersburg. She and her late husband Harold (Doc) Whyte started going south after they had retired as teachers in the public schools.

Speaking of the south, Miss Josephine Denny of West High Street, is back home after attending the annual convale of the Daughters of the American Revolution and other hereditary societies that were held last week in Washington, D.C.

Her two sisters, the late Mary D. Weaver and the late Helen D. Howard were also long time members of the a number of such groups and were familiar figures at the annual meetings in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Wisecarver now lives in Charlotte, N.C.

Judge and Mrs. Glenn Toothman of Waynesburg have returned home after spending a few days in New York City.

Many Greene Countians who have traveled through Waynesburg for several years without seeing many of the adjoining communities will be seeing another facet of the community when a detour south of town will be established soon. Major renovations are being made on East Greene Street by Gavlik Construction Co.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hughes of Waynesburg and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hughes of Mineral Ridge, Ohio have returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Phillips of Winter Park, Fla.

A former Waynesburg resident who has the distinction of having been the town's first and only feminine mayor will be back in town over the weekend and for possibly a few days next week. She is former Wilma Sayers, widow of Russell Milliken and later of Timothy Wisecarver, who also were both natives of Waynesburg. She will be the house guest of her long time friend Miss Josephine Denny of West High Street. They both attended the annual meetings of the Daughters of the American Revolution last week in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Wisecarver now lives in Charlotte, N.C.

Mr. and Mrs. M.K. Talpas who now reside in Wayne Township off Route 218, have returned home after spending several weeks in Miami where they were called by the death of his brother, Edward Talpas a graduate of Waynesburg College and a football player under Frank Wolf. He had resided in Florida for several years. Michael Talpas is the retired registrar of Waynesburg College.

Speaking of the work at the site of the former Double Bridge in Morrisville that railroad underpass, older residents of that end of town were amazed at the good condition of the bricks laid several generations ago. The county's first brick road was built on the Gordon farm in Whiteley Township and was the testing ground for cars to see if they could be run all the way to the top of the hill in high gear.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

More than a hundred former Greene and Washington Countians now living in various cities and towns in Arizona enjoyed a real life enactment of the song that tells how "a little bit of heaven dropped from out the sky one day..."

In the song they called it Ireland, but the former western Pennsylvanians hailed the spirit of their get-together as being "a little bit of Greene and Washington Counties" when they spread their picnic tables in the beautiful Elrado park at Scottsdale with the temperature in the low 80's. It was a treat they could never have enjoyed back home in Greene County at that time of the year.

The afternoon was spent mostly in reminiscing about things that happened in "that other world" back home years and years ago.

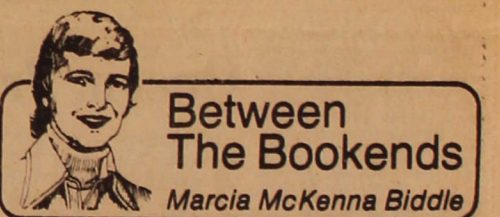

There was a steady hum of conversation punctuated by exclamations of surprise and joy as old friends met again and nostalgia spread over the picnic grounds until darkness finally fell over the happy scene.

According to Harry Dunn, who was chairman of the event, there were "at least 150 attending — the largest crowd since the reunion was started several years ago. It was so successful and enjoyable that another reunion will be held in November, Mr. Dunn stated in a letter.

Persons planning western trips at that time can contact Dunn at 3825 East Mulberry Drive, Phoenix, Ariz., 85018, for the date and place of the next meeting.

When the buzz of reminiscing slowed down enough for the announcement of prize winners, they were Sam Minor, for having lived longest in Arizona (since 1922); Mr. and Mrs. Russell Headlee, for having the most grandchildren (32); and Mrs. Jessie Wilson for being the only person who wanted to move back to Greene County.

Others from outside Arizona who were present were Ruth Stewart, Athol, Ind.; Bill and Gwen Cowell, Perry, Mich.; Lloyd Boone, Waynesburg; Raynor and Eleanor Parkinson, Waynesburg; Charles and Margaret Huffman, Waynesburg; Bill and Frances Hudd, Harriet, Calif.; Alberta Ackley, Hadley, Pa. R.D.1, and Clark Adams, Greensboro.

Between The Bookends

Marcia McKenna Biddle

"Death by Sheer Torture," by Robert Barnard. Scribner's, $10.95.

Author Robert Barnard is a nice find for mystery fans who like their stories witty, puzzling, and only semi-violent. And, of course, British.

Barnard, born in England, lives "above the Arctic Circle" in Tromso, Norway, where he is a professor of English literature. He is said to be "taking advantage of the long Arctic winters to write more mysteries." Since 1979, he has published five of them, so either the winters are unimaginably long or he has had his manuscripts stashed for a while, and finally found a publisher. Whichever, he has quickly accumulated many fans.

His first book, "Death of a Mystery Writer," was said by "Publishers Weekly" to be "A positively ducky satire of the British whodunit." With the words "positively ducky," you know the book is going to be fun, and not to be taken too seriously.

In the next book, "Death of a Literary Widow," there is not only a murder but a literary hoax to unravel. "Death in a Cold Climate" was set in Tromoso, and word of its publication must have created some panic among his colleagues at the University, since they were not especially admirably portrayed.

Barnard's next, "Death of a Perfect Mother," was less light-hearted, with more depth of character than the others. In his latest, "Death By Sheer Torture," he's back to caricature and humor, however grisly.

The opening paragraph sets the tone: "I first heard of the death of my father when I saw his obituary in The Times. I skimmed through it, cast my eye over the Court Circular, and was about to turn to the leader page when I was struck by something odd in the obituary and went back to it."

This character, who is obviously not overcome by grief, is Peregrine Trethowan, the only sane member of a famous English family. As a police inspector, he is further embar-

Greene Street Detour Noted

WAYNESBURG — Motorists who travel Route 19 and 21 (Greene Street) in Waynesburg are reminded of a five-day detour beginning Monday, May 3.

The bridge over Ten Mile Creek near McDonald's Restaurant will be resurfaced as part of the $354,629 highway improvement project that Frank Gavlik and Sons, Inc. is currently performing.

It will be necessary to close the bridge for a maximum of five days so the bridge deck can be milled and resurfaced.

'Town Meeting' Part Of TV Show On Drug Abuse

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Memorial Hospital will be taking an active part in a nine-part, area-made TV series entitled, "The Chemical People," which will be shown over Pittsburgh's channel 13 beginning Monday, May 10.

Local participation begins with a "town meeting" at 7 p.m., May 10, in Waynesburg Central High School. Representing the hospital as coordinators will be Bonita Roche and Linda Mosier.

"The Chemical People" is a community effort against teen-age drug and alcohol abuse. More than 100 meetings have been planned the same night in nine Pennsylvania counties.

The first show of the nine-part series is called a "Television Primer" and may be viewed with other parents, teachers, church leaders, health professionals and teen-agers themselves.

Those attending the town meeting will be able to watch the first part of the series in classrooms at the school.

Local coordinators hope to create a permanent community task force that will continue to take action against teen-age drug and alcohol abuse. Further questions regarding the program should be addressed to Mrs. Roche or Mrs. Mosier at 627-3101, extension 511 or 300.

The first television show will be hosted by Sarah Purcell of "Real People" and Clarke Brandon of "Mr. Merlin."

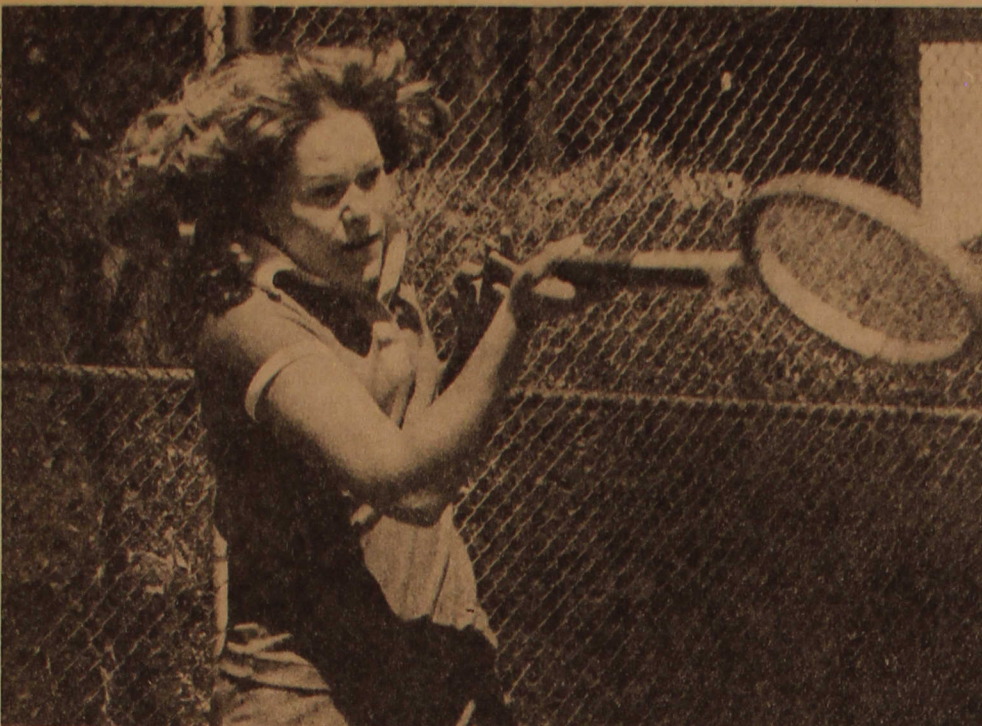

Part of the first show will be about a recent survey conducted by the University of Pittsburgh's Graduate School of Public Health. The study reveals the use of both alcohol and marijuana among high school seniors is greater in this area than nationally.

According to the survey, 12 percent of the 2,216 seniors surveyed earlier this year use alcohol or drugs daily, 97 percent have used alcohol (92 percent nationally) and almost two-thirds have used marijuana (compared to 59 percent nationally).

Money for the program which runs through May 21 comes from the Richard King Mellon, Hillman, Henry C. Frick Educational and H.J. Heinz foundations and the Pennsylvania Public Television Network.

Denise Garcia refused to give up tennis even though Waynesburg dropped its womens program.

Garcia Beats The Odds

By JOHN BARKER
O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — Denise Garcia has had a dream for the past five years. It was a dream that seemed to be materializing last summer when she planned to join the Waynesburg College women's tennis team.

Garcia was offered a scholarship, the first ever for tennis, from Waynesburg College to play on the women's team and it appeared the opportunity she was hoping for had become a reality.

That dream, however, has been altered. Waynesburg College dropped its women's tennis program before the 1981 fall semester, leaving Garcia without a team.

But Garcia had a guaranteed scholarship to play tennis and faced the situation of either not playing at all or playing for the men's team.

She had the ability. Garcia, a graduate of Fort Cherry High School, was undefeated in the section in singles competition her senior year and missed advancing to the state competition in doubles by one match.

So, she decided to play for the mens team.

"When I first heard that there wasn't going to be a girls team I cried," said Garcia. "Mrs. Haney (the former womens tennis coach) called me on the phone and said she had both good and bad news. The good news was that I still had the scholarship and the bad news was that the girls team got dropped. She told me that I didn't have to play at all or I could try and compete on the boys team."

Garcia was concerned about how the men would react to having a woman on the team, but surprisingly the effects have been mostly positive.

"The guys on our team have treated me very good," Garcia said. "They haven't made any bad remarks about me being a girl on the team. Actually, they encourage and treat me as an equal."

"The reaction from other teams hasn't been that bad either. The players usually kid the guy who has to play me but after they watch me play for a little while they realize that I'm good and don't deserve any remarks."

Waynesburg head tennis coach Rudy Marisa feels the same way.

"I believe they kid the guy who is playing against her and he smiles when he gets introduced," Marisa said. "It's usually just friendly ribbing."

"The kidding ends and it's all business once the match begins though. They try their very best to beat her."

But Garcia hears the remarks from other teams and it has had an effect on her play.

She's ranked No. 5 on the six-member team but feels her play is not up to standard because she can't concentrate mentally.

"I've changed a lot since I started playing here," Garcia said. "I can't concentrate on the game like I used to because I psych myself out. Instead of just playing an opponent, I think about playing against a guy."

"I've played against other guys at home and when I just mess around it doesn't bother me. But when a match against a guy starts I have problems."

Brian McHugh, one of Garcia's teammates, is aware of the problem.

"Denise plays as good as any guy on the team. Her problem is just mental," McHugh said. "It's a different game for her against guys and I can see it in her play."

"Some of the teams harass both her and her opponent and that's just ignorance. When we played West Liberty they accepted her because they knew she could compete against guys. That's how others should act."

"I have one year left on my scholarship so I intend to stay and see what happens," Garcia said. "I haven't had a good year but with some hard work this summer and some serious thinking I think I can do better next year."

It hasn't been a good year for neither Garcia nor the Yellow Jackets. Waynesburg sports a 0-3 record going into its final match against Wheeling College next Tuesday, while Garcia is also winless.

"I've been doing terrible considering what I've done in the past," Garcia said.

Garcia plans to transfer once her scholarship runs out at Waynesburg.

Umpires Become Scarce

By TOM ROSE
O-R Sports Editor

Softball is on the move in Washington and Greene County, and this couldn't come as better news to the two area softball associations.

But for one of the district's softball governing groups, the USSSA (United States Slow Pitch Softball Association), the growth has also posed a problem.

While the number of players and teams has sharply increased, the number of USSSA umpires has not corresponded to that increase.

And the USSSA is looking for help. "At this point there's enough umpires to cover the leagues in the area," said Ten Mile Valley president Al Steele, whose TMV league joins the Washington Metro Industrial as the USSSA's major responsibilities. Both are men's leagues.

"We're now using one umpire in the game and he has to call balls and strikes, fair and foul balls and work the bases. Believe me it's difficult for one man to do the job," Steele said. "And men's softball is a fast game."

"We just want to get it to the point where we're covered comfortably in the schedule and that we can have two man crews. That would take a lot of heat off the umpires."

John Thompson, president of the USSA umpires chapter, outlined the qualifications necessary to become an umpire, and stressed that knowledge of the game, and not umpiring experience, is a priority.

"We can put a new umpire with someone who's experienced to let him get a feel for the job," Thompson said. "We just won't throw someone in without some help. We're looking for people who are interested and knowledgeable."

The pay for umpiring softball games isn't bad. A single umpire gets $14 per game while a two-man crew each receives $10. The job can be controversial at times, but Steele and Thompson insist that the men's leagues do not abuse umpires.

"It really isn't the rule, it's the exception," Thompson said.

"Go watch a Pony League game and watch the manager," Steele said. "It's no worse there than at our games. We won't put up with players or managers abusing umpires. If you bump an umpire you pay the price."

While the USSSA is actively seeking umpires to aid primarily in its coverage of men's softball, the rival Amateur Softball Association chapter in Washington and Greene County is experiencing little difficulty with its umpiring schedule. According to ASA umpire-in-chief Bill Elosway, the local ASA organization has been able to keep pace with the increasing number of teams.

"The ASA does not have a shortage of umpires," Elosway said. "I think that's because we have very good cooperation from our leagues. Our leagues, the McMurray and Community Youth Leagues in particular, live up to their by-laws concerning umpires and enforce them."

Steele is particularly adamant in finding and maintaining quality umpiring for the Ten Mile Valley league. The league, which has grown from eight teams when it was founded in 1946 to its present 27, has been using paid umpires since 1976.

And Steele insists the TMV won't take any steps backward.

"The game is totally different with paid, quality umpires," he said. "It's improved so much and I think it's gotten faster."

"And our league has really taken off because of them. In fact, if we were able to secure more facilities and had enough umpires to cover the games, we could easily expand to a 50-team league. We've gotten to the situation where we can't take a team into the league unless they have a home field. And of course we would need the umpires to cover whatever expansion we do."

Persons interested in joining the USSA umpires association can contact Thompson at 225-1555 or 228-3050. Prospective ASA umpires can contact Elosway at 228-0696.

Rabies More Common

By JOE PARRY
Special To The O-R

Mother Nature has a rather nice tendency in that she usually provides refreshing news from the outdoor world.

But even Mother Nature has her bad days.

Rabies has been reported in the states just south of Pennsylvania. While Pennsylvania's chief game manager Dale Sheffer stresses there is no need for alarm or panic, common sense is advised when area residents take a trip afield this spring and summer.

Sheffer reported that the disease has occurred in Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia and that as far as the Pennsylvania Game Commission is concerned, the disease is moving northward.

In Virginia, Sheffer stated that 85 cases of rabies have been confirmed and that 75 percent of those reported came from raccoons. Seven percent came from skunks, two percent from foxes and one percent from domestic dogs.

This statistic has game officials concerned because some residents take young raccoons from the mother in the spring and attempt to secure them as house pets. This practice should be stopped, however, as there could be a danger should the rabies find its way to Pennsylvania. It is also against the law to keep a wild game animal in captivity, with the exception of the legal trapping season.

"There is no immediate threat of rabies to Washington or Greene Counties, but all indications show that the disease is moving to the north," Sheffer said in a telephone interview.

In West Virginia eight cases of rabies have been reported, all in wild animals. Five of those involved the raccoon while the other three were divided among a skunk, a bat and a groundhog. Even though an animal is not a carnivore (a meat eater), it is still highly susceptible to rabies. For example a groundhog is a vegetarian (herbivore).

The commission is concerned because this is the time of the year when people return to the woods for camping and the opening of trout season. But it's also the time to leave wild animals alone.

If you happen to notice an animal that appears to be acting in a strange manner do not approach it. A groundhog or woodchuck infected with rabies, unlike a carnivore, will fall into an almost paralyzed state.

But the animal is still quite dangerous. If a person has an open wound and attempts to pick an infected animal up, the disease could easily spread into the bloodstream. Or if a person is exposed to the saliva of the animal by reason of a bite or through an open, he can also contract rabies.

And the disease is fatal if not treated immediately.

A domestic dog infected with rabies will act in a similar fashion to an infection of distemper. If you suspect your own dog has been exposed to an infected animal take him to a veterinarian immediately.

Regis Senko, newly appointed game protector of southern Washington County and veteran game protector Jack Sickerberger, who handles the northern portion of the county, report there have been no known cases of rabies in Washington or Greene County in over 10 years.

"Leave the animals where they belong and notify us if you suspect an animal in the wild of having the rabies infection," Senko said.

Sheffer noted that there have been three confirmed cases of rabies in Bedford County. He maintains that it's nothing to be alarmed about at this time as there are usually a few reported cases each year. These incidents occurred in March and two of them involved raccoons and the other a skunk.

"Although I don't want to frighten anyone unnecessarily as there is no immediate threat in our state I definitely want people to know the possibility exists and to please leave the animals in the woods," Sheffer said. "We will certainly inform the public immediately should the infection spread significantly to our area."

FIELD TIPS — There are a few changes in the fishing regulations summary booklet for 1982. This booklet is to be provided by the issuing license agent and should be carried with you while fishing for easy reference. Also it seems to be a common practice for anglers to fill their spoons with a line that is really too heavy for the average size fish caught locally. Most trout stocked by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission won't exceed eight ounces, so a six-pound test line is more than adequate. Fill your reel to just below the top as lighter line and filling it to near-capacity will improve casting and hopefully the chances of landing the fish that got away last season. Do not allow the line level to drop more than one-eighth inch below the exterior spool lip of your spinning reel. Longer casts can be achieved if you follow this tip.

A Dish Of Turkey & Trout

By JOE PARRY
Special To The O-R

It may seem a bit ridiculous for a person to be running around the local woodlots with a trout rigging attached to his favorite shotgun, but it's not out of the question in the month of May.

The spring gobbler season opens May 1, at one-half hour before sunrise. Hunting is permitted until 11 a.m. and hunters must be out of the woods by 12 noon. This of course leaves plenty of time for fishing, so it would be wise to toss the favorite trout fishing gear into the trunk of the car to provide a full day of outdoor enjoyment.

Although Washington and Greene counties aren't expected to receive the benefits of Pennsylvania's turkey trap and transfer program until the fall of 1983, there are still a few nice gobblers available for the spring season.

Gary Bailey, an avid hunter and wildlife photographer from Lone Pine, has reported sighting several nice turkey's in recent weeks. On his trips afield Bailey was able to call several gobblers to his camouflaged stand in Greene County.

Keep in mind this season is for bearded turkeys and a call of the diaphragm or box-type is required by law while hunting the strutting spring gobblers. It is also unlawful to use single projectile ammunition during this hunting season.

In addition hunters are only allowed to use shot of the No. 2 size or smaller. Many hunters have rifle/shotgun combinations but you should remember that it is legal to carry just shotgun shells in the field. Rifles, revolvers and pistols are not to be used during spring hunting.

Bow and arrows are permitted and quite popular among local archers. Taking into consideration that a call must be used and that camouflage is necessary, pursuing these birds with a bow would be a challenge only an expert should attempt.

During the week of April 26, most of the area waters will receive another stocking of trout. The Pennsylvania Fish Commission will no longer release specific dates and times of in-season trout stockings, only the week of delivery.

Canonsburg Lake, Dutch Fork Lake and Dutch Fork Creek are scheduled for another stocking during the week of April 26 along with Mingo Creek, Aunt Clara Fork, Pike Run and Ten Mile Creek. Two more stockings are planned for Canonsburg and Dutch Fork Lakes.

Pike Run, Aunt Clara Fork and Kings Creek will have their last supply of trout during the week of May 3 while Miller's Run and Ten Mile Creek will get their final replenishing during the week of May 10.

The last deliveries for Templeton Fork and Enlow Fork are scheduled for the week of May 17.

In Greene County the Ryerson Station Lake will get three in-season stockings: the weeks of April 26, May 3 and May 17. Wheeling Creek (Dunkard Fork) and Wheeling Creek-Dunkard Fork South will be stocked during the weeks of April 26 and May 3 while the newly approved Whately Creek will receive a delivery during the week of May 10.

In nearby Beaver County, Raccoon Lake will receive trout during the week of April 26 and its final delivery the week of May 24. Traverse Creek, which flows into the lake, will get its final supply of fish the week of May 17.

McGuffey's Hott Fires No-Hitter

WAYNESBURG — McGuffey High School must love playing baseball in Waynes-

0-3 in section competition and 1-8 overall.

burg.

For the second consecutive season Wednesday, the Highlanders traveled to Waynesburg and defeated the Red Raiders with the help of a no-hitter.

Jim Hott (4-1) struck out 11 and walked five while holding Waynesburg hitless and enabling the Highlanders to collect a 10-1 WPIAL baseball victory.

Last season, McGuffey's Gary Loughman did the same thing.

The Raiders scored in the fourth inning on two consecutive walks, a double steal and a passed ball.

Eric Swart went four-for-five with two triples and two singles to help give Bryan Tanner the loss. Pete McAnallen collected a double and a single for McGuffey (6-3 overall and 3-1 in section play). Waynesburg dropped to

Waynesburg To Host Match

WAYNESBURG — Tentative plans have been made for the University of Pittsburgh to meet the University of Missouri in a wrestling match at Waynesburg Central High School next year.

The match, according to Waynesburg head coach Joe Ayersman, will probably be held in January. Two former Waynesburg state champions — Joey Throckmorton and Doug Haines — are on the Pitt wrestling team and it should a homecoming of sorts.

The announcement was made at the annual Red Raider wrestling banquet held Monday night.

Toddy Eddy, a state runnerup this past season, received both the Paul McClure and Frank Bonifed Memorial Awards.

Track Club Places At South Park

PITTSBURGH — Several members of the Greene County Miners Track Club placed in a 10-team competition held at South Park last weekend.

Winners at South Park were:

Mike Wilson, second place in the 800-meter run for the 13-14 age group; Danny Litton, fifth place in the 400-meter run for the 9-10 age group; Scott Fowler, third place in the 800-meter and 1,500-meter runs for age 8 and under; and Lee Robinson, first place first in the 100-meter dash for the 9-10 age group, first place in the long jump and third place in the 1,500-meter run.

Also, Amy Levine won second place in the 50-meter hurdles and fifth place in the 100-meter dash for the 11-12 age group while Tammy Bedilion won first place in the 100-meter dash and second place in the 200-meter for the 11-12 age group.

Lincoln Robinson won first place in the 200-meter, second place in the 400-meter and first place in the long jump for the 17-18 age group. Jamie Levine took third place in the 800-meter for the 15-16 age group and Kelly Robinson took third place in the 200-meter dash and third place in the 400-meter for the 11-12 age group.

The next meet will be held Saturday, May 8 in Bethel Park. Those interested in joining the club are asked to call 627-6794 or 627-6328.

Knapik-Braddock Vows Exchanged

Charlene M. Knapik became the wife of Phillip C. Braddock on Saturday, April 10, 1982, in a double ring ceremony in the First Presbyterian Church, Waynesburg, with the Rev. David L. Barrett and Rev. Robert E. Borland officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Matz of Waynesburg R.D.6. Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Braddock of Wind Ridge are parents of the bridegroom.

Mrs. June Anderson was organist and Mr. John Graham was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of polyorganza with laces of silk venice and chantilly. The high collar was made of silk venice lace and the fitted bodice was trimmed in silk venice lace and accented with sequins and seed pearls. It had a full circular skirt with a ruffle on the bottom of chantilly lace, flowing to a cathedral length train. The veil had a camelot cap covered with chantilly lace and accented with seed pearls.

Mrs. Braddock carried a cascading bouquet of yellow roses and white daisies. She wore a ring belonging to the groom's great-great-aunt, Laura Briois, for something old.

Fran Dobosh of Waynesburg was matron of honor, and wore a light blue gown of chiffon over taffeta. Bridesmaids were Mary M. Lee, Anita Howard, and Karen Wright, all of Waynesburg, Joanne Shea of Carmichaels, and Denise DeMeo of Washington. The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to that of the matron of honor.

Mark Pastoria of Brave was best man, and serving as ushers were Gregg Grimm of New Jersey, Michael Howard and Randy Adrian, both of Waynesburg, Michael Burns of Evans City, and Jay Jones of Rogersville.

A reception for over 400 guests was held in the church social room following the ceremony. The wedding cake was baked by Joanne Shea, a friend of the bride and groom.

Barb DeVito was in charge of the guest book, and Doug Iams handled the bulletins. Lena Stoner and Marie Bryne served the cake, and Carol Corwin and Theresa Viarengo served the punch.

A 1974 graduate of Waynesburg College with a B.A. in Elementary Education, the bride teaches first grade at the East Franklin School. Her husband, who graduated from Waynesburg College with degrees in Christian Science and Elementary Education, teaches third grade at the East Ward School.

Following a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Virginia, the couple will reside at Wind Ridge R.D.1.

Numerous out-of-town guests attended the wedding.

Waynesburg Men Join Rotary Club

WAYNESBURG — Four Waynesburg businessmen were inducted into the Waynesburg Rotary Club by club President Dr. James T. Miller during ceremonies Monday at the Elks Club.

New members Richard Moore, a jeweler; Jack Smith, an insurance agent; Ed Stiles, a bank executive and James K. Willison, a real estate agent were welcomed by club member and former president G. Wayne Smith, academic dean at Waynesburg College. Smith reviewed the club's history since its founding in 1937 and outlined the history of Rotary International, which dates back to 1905 in Chicago.

In that year, Smith explained, attorney Paul R. Harris first conceived of "rotating" meetings of his professional and business associates to promote "ideals of good citizenship, high moral principle and good fellowship."

Mary Sue Watson, Lynn Crayne Wed

WAYNESBURG — Mary Sue Watson and Lynn M. Crayne II were married Saturday, April 17, 1982 with a ceremony performed in the First Baptist Church of Waynesburg.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan R. Watson of 495 North Maiden Street, Waynesburg. The bridegroom is a son of L. Myers Crayne of Jefferson and the late Kathryn Crayne.

The Rev. John R. Clayton of Tega Cay, S.C., a friend and former pastor of the bride, and the Rev. Dean Hardy, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, Waynesburg, officiated at the double ring ceremony, which was highlighted by a candle-lighting ceremony and receiving of the sacrament of communion.

Musical selections were played by Charles B. Jenkins of Lewisburg. Vocalists were Fistle Butler of Sunbury and Natalie Greenlee, sister of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and mother. She wore a floor-length gown with embroidered yoke, double georgette tucking and Swiss embroidery. Schiffl lace trimmed the three-and-one-half cuffs and chapel train. Her headpiece was a derby-style hat adorned with beadwork and lace netting.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white silk philanopsis orchids and pink organdy rosebuds, baby's breath and grapevine ivy with white satin streamers. All wedding traditions were observed in her ensemble. Her only jewelry was gold earrings, a gift of the bridegroom, and an heirloom diamond necklace borrowed from her sister.

Natalie Greenlee served as her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sharon Stephenson, sister of the bride, and Sharon Davis and Cathy Zigler of Lewisburg, friends of the bride. They wore white blouses and navy blue taffeta floor-length skirts with wide bands and a large gibson bow at the back.

Acolytes were Jennifer Stephenson, niece of the bride, and Heather Broadwater.

Lynn M. Crayne III served as best man for his father. Ushers were John Heltter, Gary Broadwater and Mendell McKinley Jr.

A reception was held in the church social room immediately following the wedding, with Mrs. Inez Dulaney and Mrs. Dianna Broadwater as wedding coordinators. Aides were Mrs. Lil Zieler, Mrs. MaryAnn Moninger and Mrs. Sandy Toler. Sherri Zieler was in charge of the guest book.

Out-of-state guests attended.

Cochran-Murray Vows Exchanged

CARMICHAELS — St. Hugh Church at Carmichaels was the setting Saturday, April 17, 1982 for the wedding of Donnell Lynn Cochran and Kenneth A. Murray.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Cochran of 222 Calts Addition, Carmichaels. The bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Joan Murray of 75 Cumberland Village, Carmichaels, and the late Robert E. Murray.

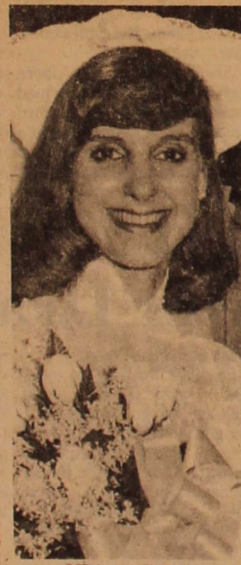

The Rev. Ralph V. Stack officiated at the double ring ceremony, with Stan Ferek III as organist and Crysta and Robert Cowell of Waynesburg as soloists.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She appeared in a floor-length gown of white chiffon and imported re-embroidered lace. It featured a bodice enhanced with lace and with a sheer, yoke neckline; full bishop sleeves with tight cuffs of lace, and a sheath silhouette skirt with an attached train which fell into a cathedral sweep.

She wore a matching hat with tiers of illusion falling from a bow and carried a bouquet of roses and baby's breath.

Dayna Cochran attended the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Deanna Leone of Uniontown, Dixie Paletta of Fredericktown, Marilyn Antonelli of Carmichaels, Linda Guman of West Virginia, Zoe Chambers of Carmichaels, Suzanne Chambers of Irwin and Brenda Mayer of Pickneyville, Ill.

The attendants wore matching gowns in aubergine quiana and white lace with derby hats.

MRS. MURRAY

Anthony Mayer of Pickneyville, Ill., served as best man. Ushers were Dean Cochran, Donald Cochran Jr., John Menhart, Donald Williams, Paul E. Bandish and Robert Hathaway, all of Carmichaels, and Kenneth Titus of Dilliner.

A reception for 750 guests was held at the Carmichaels fire hall.

The bride, a graduate of Carmichaels Area High School and Robert Morris College, is employed by Jofra Cosmetics, Inc. The bridegroom graduated from Carmichaels Area High School and from Pennsylvania State University. He is employed at U.S. Steel's Cumberland Mine at Kirby.

BARKING DOGS CAN BITE... WEST PENN POWER METER READERS

OH! OH!
FLO, LOOK AT THE METER READER TRYING TO SLIP BY THE NEIGHBOR'S DOG.

POOR GUY NEVER HAD A CHANCE. THE NEIGHBORS OUGHT TO KEEP THAT DOG INSIDE.

LATER
THE METER READER IS BACK. FLO HE SURE IS PERSISTENT

DOG BITES AREN'T FUNNY. Every year, unrestrained dogs bite a number of West Penn Power meter readers. In fact, about twenty-five such needless incidents occur annually. So please leash or restrain your pet in some manner when our meter reader comes to your home. You can help him, too, by trimming shrubbery and keeping other obstructions away from your electric meter.
