Church Leader Speaker

WAYNESBURG — Mary E. Pardee, an international leader in the United Presbyterian Church, will deliver the commencement address at Waynesburg College this year and will be awarded an honorary doctor of humane letters degree.

The Rev. Dr. Herbert B. Anderson, senior minister of the Brick Presbyterian Church in New York City, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon. He will receive an honorary doctor of divinity degree.

Baccalaureate and commencement will be held Sunday, May 16, with baccalaureate beginning at 11 a.m. and commencement at 2:30 p.m. The traditional alumni banquet will be held the preceding evening at 6:30 p.m. in the Benedum Dining Hall.

The college also will honor two alumni at commencement with honorary degrees. John E. Baily, a member of the class of 1932 and a long-time trustee of the college, will receive a doctor of law degree. Dr. Charles L. Bryner, a professor of biology who has held many faculty and administrative posts at the college, will receive a doctor of science degree.

"Mrs. Pardee has spent her life working for reconciliation and peace with justice," college President Joseph F. Marsh said. "She has shown, through personal commitment, her concern over peace and justice issues, interpretation and support of mission in this country and abroad, and feminist concerns both in the church and in society."

"She believes that all problems are interdependent and must be solved by all peoples," he said.

Mrs. Pardee, a ruling elder in the Fox Chapel Presbyterian Church, is a member of the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, the board of trustees of Beirut, Lebanon, University College and the board of directors of the Ecumenical Development Cooperative Society, Inc., based in the Netherlands.

She earned her bachelor of arts degree at Florida State University, where she was a Phi Beta Kappa. She then earned a master's degree at Yale University. She taught history at the University School, Pittsburgh, and was secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Society.

She has served on the executive committee of the Major Mission Fund of the United Presbyterian Church. She also was president of United Presbyterian Women from 1973 through 1976, and has traveled extensively throughout the world on behalf of the church.

Anderson held pastorships in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Illinois before coming to the Brick Church in 1978. He earned his bachelor's degree from the College of Wooster and his doctorate from McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago.

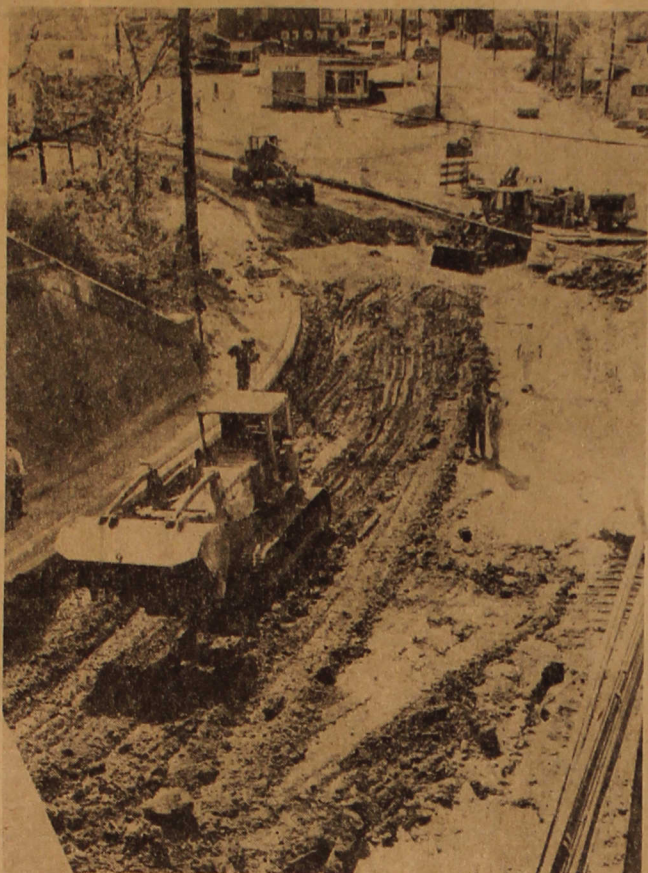

He is a member of the executive committee of the board of directors of McCormick Theological Seminary and a trustee of both Warren Union College, Swannanoa, N.C., and Union Theological Seminary in New York City.

He has served on several national church committees, including the General Assembly Mission Council and the Board of Pensions, which he chaired. In 1981, as a member of the Appeal of Conscience Foundation, he visited Hungary and Argentina as a foundation delegate.

A member of the executive committee of the college board of trustees and secretary of the board, John E. Baily received his law degree from the University of Pittsburgh in 1935. He is a member of the Greene County Bar Association and has been associated with the Waynesburg firm of Thompson & Baily since 1964.

Bryner received his bachelor's degree from Waynesburg College in 1940 and his master's and doctorate degrees from West Virginia University. During more than 35 years in Waynesburg, he has served as an instructor in mathematics, professor of biology, dean of men, associate dean of the faculty and chairman of the science department.

During commencement exercises, 167 bachelor degrees and 19 associate degrees will be awarded.

Road Work Progresses

Greene Street (Routes 19 and 21) between Waynesburg and the Morrisville section of Franklin Township was closed Monday to allow resurfacing of a bridge over Ten Mile Creek and the lowering of the highway at a railroad overpass. The work is part of a $354,629 highway improvement project and traffic is being detoured over a rural road. Greene Street is expected to be reopened on Saturday if the weather is good. The work is being done by Frank Gavlik and Sons, Inc. The pictures were taken from the railroad overpass showing excavation to lower the roadbed on the western or Waynesburg side of the overpass.

Leasing Concerns Property Owners

WAYNESBURG — The increased interest of oil and gas companies in drilling on Greene County land has caused many property owners to "jump on the band wagon" and lease their property for exploration and drilling.

However, many of these property owners have found that printed company leases don't have all the property protections they should have, and they are unaware that state oil and gas laws do little to protect the landowner. As a result, some landowners are left with visible damage to property, contamination of wellwater and abandoned unplugged wells.

The Pennsylvania State Grange is sponsoring an oil and gas leasing seminar for residents of Greene County at 7 p.m. Monday, May 10, in the East Franklin Grange Hall along Route 218 south of Waynesburg.

A donation of $3 per person or $5 per couple will be requested.

Property owners will be advised on their rights on the kinds of provisions which should be printed in a lease before signing land away.

The grange formed an oil and gas leasing service last year to help the many landowners who requested assistance with writing leases. The service, which is open to non-members as well, has since helped to negotiate leases for property owners groups in several counties.

Dr. Charles Weber, professor of geography at Indiana University of Pa. and a leader for the grange leasing service, says he has a gas company which has indicated strong interest in leasing property in Greene County.

At the seminar, Dr. Weber will discuss the formation of a landowner leasing group to work together in obtaining a solid leasing agreement with a company. In a group arrangement, each individual has his own lease, and allowances can be made for individual provisions which need to be included.

The small donation will cover expenses for materials, facilities and travel. Registration will be taken at the door.

Porter Apparently Wins Seat On District 4 Executive Board

MASONTOWN — Harry Porter of Denbo, president of Emerald Local 2258, Waynesburg, has apparently won the special election held Tuesday to fill a vacancy on the District 4 executive board, United Mine Workers of America.

According to unofficial returns, Porter received 705 votes from miners in Greene and Fayette counties.

Finishing behind him were Frank Rutherford, Gateway Local 6330, 419 votes; George Wayne Homrock, Cumberland Local 2300, 403 votes; Vincent J. Kopec, Mt. Braddock Local 1816, 359 votes; Larry J. Martelli, Dilworth

Local 1980, 179 votes; Russ Riffle Jr., Carmichaels Local 2201, 150 votes; Bob Brown, Robena Local 6321, 136 votes; and Randy C. Costolo, Lemont Furnace Local 1835, 53 votes.

Approximately 4,500 miners and 3,600 pensioners were eligible to vote at 23 mines, but only about 2,400 cast ballots. Official results will be released on May 14.

Porter will fill the unexpired term of former District 4 executive board member Steve Minnick of Nemaocolin, who died about four months ago. After the election is certified May 14, Porter will

County Rules Out A Discount Hike For Early Tax Payment

WAYNESBURG — Greene County commissioners have ruled out an increase in the discount allowed for early payment of property taxes, but they plan to explore other means of increasing the county's cash flow.

Their object is to move forward the time period in which tax revenues are received to reduce the amount of tax anticipation loans required each year — generally about $1.5 million — which carry 9 percent interest.

Under the present system, tax notices are sent out in May and property owners who pay in June and July are given a 2 percent discount. Taxes paid in August and September are collected at face, while those paid after Sept. 30 require the payment of a 5 percent penalty.

A suggestion had been made that if the county increased the discount from 2 percent to 5 percent it might encourage more property owners — and particularly coal companies which provide almost half of the county's annual $2 million in tax revenues — to pay during the discount period.

A report by County Treasurer Joseph Souder, presented to the commissioners at their meeting Thursday, indicated, however, that the suggested increase in discount could cost the county as much as $50,000, which would more than offset any gain obtained through reducing interest paid on tax anticipation loans.

During 1981, according to the report, the county received $1,468,388 in taxes during the discount period, representing 74 percent of the total levy. Another 20 percent ($401,182) was received during the face period. The remaining 6 percent ($5,698) came in during the penalty period.

"It's apparent that most taxpayers are already taking advantage of the 2 percent discount, so increasing it to 5 percent would be self-defeating since its potential for increasing the cash flow is insignificant," the commissioners said.

As an alternative, the commissioners will explore the possibility of getting tax bills out earlier in the year so that the payment periods could be moved ahead, perhaps by as much as three or four months. The hurdle to be overcome is the time required to prepare and mail the tax duplicates, a process now done primarily by hand.

"It would probably require computerization of the entire process, but there is a good possibility that we could save $30,000 a year, which would more than offset the cost of buying the computer," Commissioner Richard Cowan said.

Low Crime Rate

WAYNESBURG — According to statistics released this week by the Governor's Justice Commission, Greene County ranks very low when it comes to criminal activity.

Dauphin County, for the second straight year, had the highest crime rate among the 67 counties in the Commonwealth. Juniata County again had the lowest crime rate.

Youth Dies, Three Hurt In Collision

GREENSBORO — One youth was killed and three persons were injured in a two-car accident at 10 p.m. Friday on Route 88 near Greensboro.

Steven Joseph Kurilko, 17, Macedonia, Ohio, died at 11:30 p.m. at Mon Valley Hospital, where he was taken by ambulance. He suffered a fractured skull and other injuries when the small car he was driving slammed into a car operated by Frank J. Shoaf III of Greensboro R.D.I.

Shoaf was taken to Uniontown Hospital, where he was listed in fair condition.

John and Michael Kurilko of Greensboro R.D.I., who were riding in the car which their cousin was driving, were taken to the West Virginia University Hospital at Morgantown, where they were treated for cuts and bruises.

According to state police in Waynesburg, the accident happened at Fieldson's Crossroads, where Route 88 intersects with Route 3068. They said Kurilko was driving south on Route 88 when he lost control of his car and went onto the west berm. The car continued along the berm for about 144 feet before coming back onto the roadway. It then skidded sideways for about 120 feet before striking the Shoaf vehicle.

Kurilko, a son of Rudolph and Shirley Ann Baliker Kurilko, was born April 20, 1965, in Cleveland, Ohio. He was an eleventh grade student at Nordonia (Ohio) High School and a commercial art student at the Cuyahoga Valley Vocational School at Brecksville. He was a member of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church at Macedonia.

Surviving in addition to his parents are two sisters, Kristine Marie and Gabriella Kurilko, both at home; his paternal grandparents, Rudolph and Pearl Kurilko of Bobtown; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Ethel Baliker of Morgantown, W. Va., and a number of aunts, uncles and cousins.

Friends were received in the Louise E. Rudolph Funeral Home at Point Marion on Sunday, after which the body was taken to the Romito Johnson Funeral Home at Northfield, Ohio. A funeral mass will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday with burial following in All Saints Cemetery, Macedonia.

Tax Collectors' Earnings Totaled

WAYNESBURG — Greene County's 26 municipal tax collectors earned an average of $7,887 during 1981, ranging from a high of $23,500 in Franklin Township to a low of $1,077 in Clarksville Borough.

The elected officials, who collect property taxes and per capita taxes for the county's school districts, townships and boroughs, earned a total of $205,054 during the past year, according to reports filed in the office of the county clerk of courts.

While their compensation generally is in line with the size of their municipality and the amount of taxes they collect, there are variations because the rate of pay set by the municipalities.

Among the school districts, for example, the Carmichaels Area and Jefferson-Morgan Districts pay their tax collectors a flat annual salary. The Central Greene District pays 2½ percent of the first $250,000 in taxes which are collected, and two percent thereafter. The Southeastern Greene District pays its collectors in Greene, Dunkard and Monongahela townships three percent of collections, and in Greensboro Borough four percent. The West Greene District pays three percent.

Among townships and boroughs, Cumberland Township and Jefferson Boroughs are the only ones which pay a prescribed annual salary, with the others all paying on a percentage basis.

The lowest is Wayne Township, which pays two percent. Waynesburg Borough and Monongahela Township each pay 2½ percent. Carmichaels Borough and Center, Franklin, Perry, Morgan and

In another development at the meeting, the commissioners sent letters to U.S. Sens. John Heinz and Arlen Specter and Congressman Austin J. Murphy urging them to support the reinstatement of funds for the Library Services and Construction Act in the 1983 federal budget.

During the past six years, they noted, public libraries in Greene County have received grants of about $188,000 under the program. They were used to develop the free county library system, have enlarged the program of library services to the homebound and disadvantaged, and have made it possible to establish a library at the county jail.

Wayne Twp. Has Money In Coffers

SPRAGGS — From all indications Wayne Township has weathered a financial crisis and now appears to be on solid footing.

It was revealed at the board's regular meeting Friday that the township now has $16,000 in its general fund and $87,798 in the state fund. When the current board took office in January the township coffers were nearly empty.

The board was also faced with a labor contract signed by the former board which called for wage increases. New members protested the legality of the contract and because the treasury was nearly empty — furloughed all road employees.

Although the township now has money on which to operate, there is little the three supervisors can do in the way of road maintenance. The supervisors have been doing some work with the aid of family members and volunteers.

The issue of the labor contract will be heard by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board on June 16.

In other action at Friday's meeting, the board formally accepted the gasoline and diesel bid submitted by Jacobs Petroleum Products at the April 15 meeting.

The board also learned all problems with the revenue sharing fund have been solved and the state gave the board approval of fund expenditures.

Whiteley Townships each pay three percent. Jefferson Township pays 3½ percent, while Dunkard and Washington Townships each pay four percent.

The other 13 municipalities all pay five percent — Clarksville, Greensboro and Rices Landing boroughs and Aleppo, Freeport, Gilmore, Gray, Greene, Greensboro, Jackson, Morris, Richhill and Springhill townships.

Carmichaels Man Charged With Homicide By Vehicle

By BYRON SMIALEK
Staff Writer

A Carmichaels man faces charges of homicide by motor vehicle in the fatal crash in Washington on April 13 that killed a co-worker.

The homicide charge, in addition to several summary violations, was filed by the Washington County District Attorney's Office against Kit Douglas Watson, 27, of 301 East Greene Street, Carmichaels, following a corner's inquest in which the jury could not reach a verdict.

Watson was the driver of a sports car that crashed into a utility pole on Jefferson Avenue, killing Harry Thomas Marshman, 28, of 929 Fayette Street, Washington. Marshman died of a fractured skull and multiple injuries nearly 3½ hours after the crash.

The jury of five women and one man, after hearing three hours of testimony Friday, was unable to reach a verdict after 45 minutes of deliberation.

"The jury could not come to an agreement on a verdict," said Coroner Farrell Jackson, "and therefore I have to refer this case to the district attorney for further action."

"We're going to serve it (the homicide charge)," Assistant District Attorney Frank Roney Jr. said immediately after the inquest. "I think there was sufficient evidence for a finding. I don't know why the jury couldn't find a case."

Marshman was pinned in the wreckage of the car for more than a half-hour before city firemen could pry away pieces of the vehicle and free him. He was rushed to Washington Hospital for emergency treatment and was to be transported to a Pittsburgh hospital by helicopter but died before the flight could be made.

Watson and Marshman were co-workers at the Penn Mould shop of Metro Glass Containers on Jefferson Avenue, Wolfdale, three-tenths of a mile from the scene of the crash. Working the midnight shift, the men were on their way to lunch at an all-night restaurant on Jefferson Avenue in the city when the mishap occurred.

Ptl. Roger Blythe, certified technical accident investigator for the city, said "the minimum speed of the vehicle prior to the crash was 64.8 miles an hour," a figure determined from the length of the skid marks on the roadway.

Ptl. J.R. Sweeney, who gave the bulk of testimony for the city, said the longest skid mark was measured at 174 feet to the point of impact. Debris from the fiberglass-bodied car was found 73 feet from the wreckage.

"We're very satisfied with the (jury's) verdict," said Eric Held, attorney representing Watson. "We're satisfied that they could not find any criminal responsibility."

JOY IN THE MORNING

There is something thrilling about a new day! Another dawn of hope and promise to live and dream and love.

Frustrations of yesterday are gone and like the earth on which we live, we stand refreshed, renewed and hopeful in the shimmering rays of the morning sun.

How wonderful that we have been given the power to make a new beginning—if we trust and have faith in our Creator.

Worship in church each week and find the faith that renews your life—that brings "joy in the morning."

Bill Allows Counties To Buy, Sell Property Without Court's Approval

WAYNESBURG — Local court approval is no longer required when a county wants to purchase or sell property, construct or remodel a building, or tear down any of its buildings.

House Bill 223 was signed into law Thursday by Gov. Dick Thornburgh, eight days after its passage by the State Senate, and went into effect immediately. It amends a 1955 law which required approval of the county court of common pleas in many matters involving the acquisition, use and disposition of county-owned property.

Twice since the first of this year, the law has come into play in Greene County.

In February, the Greene County Court rejected proposed sale of 150 acres of Pittsburgh seam coal underlying the old county farm property east of Waynesburg on the grounds that the price being offered was insufficient. The county commissioners had sought permission to sell the coal for $600 an acre to the Henderson Mining Co., a subsidiary of Emway Resources, which operates the Emerald Mine at Waynesburg.

Last month, the commissioners applied to the court for permission to tear down the Sayers-Hooper building, which stands on a lot on High Street between the two county office buildings. While the court has taken no official action, Judge Glenn Toothman has indicated that he opposes the proposal because the building, one of the oldest in the community, has historical significance.

Joseph Pawlosky, chairman of the board of commissioners, said Friday that passage of House Bill 223 does not mean that the county will automatically proceed with either of the two proposals blocked by the court.

"We (the commissioners) are taking a look at other ideas for utilizing the Sayers-Hooper building, and there is a possibility it can be left standing and used in some way," he said.

So far as sale of the coal is concerned, he said the commissioners "will be talking with the county solicitor to see what we want to do at this point."

Judge Toothman said he has no strong feelings either way about removal of the court as a check and balance in such matters. "As long as the law made the court responsible for evaluating such matters, I exercised that the responsibility. I understood the reason for the requirement (for court approval), and I understand reasons why it has been changed." He added:

"It has this meaning and significance to me. Whoever holds the authority over the capital assets of the county should exercise that authority in either acquisition or disposition only after a careful consideration of all of the factors involved, so that the public interest will best be served in the ultimate result."

The amended law provides that counties can pay no more than fair market value when they wish to purchase property, and must receive no less than fair market value when they sell or lease property. Fair market value is to be determined by the county commissioners in consultation with the county assessor and two licensed real estate brokers doing business within the county.

The Greene County commissioners had favored enactment of the amendments on the grounds that the former system in effect gave the court the final say in policy matters which lie within the province of the county commissioners, enabling the court to substitute its judgement for that of the commissioners.

Demolition Bids Sought In Mather

MATHER — The Mather Civic Association is soliciting bids from people who would be willing to demolish the old elementary school in Mather as a means of salvaging the materials it contains.

The bids are scheduled to be opened on May 15, with the association indicating that it will award a contract if an acceptable offer is received. The individual receiving the contract would be responsible for removal of the building and backfilling of the basement.

The two-room frame building was erected in 1919 and was closed in the fall of 1980 when the Jefferson-Morgan School District opened its new consolidated elementary school.

When the building was abandoned by the school district, the property reverted to the Cleveland-Cliffs Coal Co., successor to the former Pickands-Mather Coal Co., which operated the Mather Collieries until the mine was closed some 20 years ago. The coal company, in turn, deeded the property to the civic association for possible use by the community.

Isadore Virgili is acting on behalf of the civic association to seek the bids. Several events were held at the school, but the building has since deteriorated and most of the windows have been broken. The association has decided that the land can best be put to use as a community ballfield for Little League and softball teams.

Grand Opening

The Jury Box Restaurant and Lounge on Waynesburg's South Washington Street, which has been closed for complete remodeling, will hold its grand reopening at 8 p.m. tonight. The establishment is under new ownership. Manager John Glass is shown in part of the restaurant area. Hours will be from 11 a.m. until 2 a.m. Monday through Saturday. A lunch menu, beginning Monday, will feature soup, salads and sandwiches with two sandwiches and one soup special each day. Lunch will be available from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. with a snack menu from 4:30 to 7 p.m.

Ryerson Station State Park Superintendent Wins Refund

WAYNESBURG — Ronald J. Duke, superintendent at Ryerson Station State Park, took his $9.60 complaint against the West Greene School District and Central Tax Bureau before the magistrate Thursday, and acting as his own attorney, won a favorable verdict.

In a hearing before Magistrate John Watson, the park superintendent demanded the tax bureau refund $9.60; pay him $100 for "stress" and loss of work and also pay the cost of the proceedings.

The hearing was the culmination of several months of letter writing, phone calls and visits which failed to satisfy Duke that his $909 business deduction was not allowable. "I was not getting any satisfaction and the school district attorney would not return my calls, so I decided to take the case to court," Duke said.

Duke testified that he wasn't allowed to deduct $909 from his gross wages as business expenses although he had done it for the past several years.

Duke claimed such expenses are deductible according to a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling and also the state Department of Revenue which recently ruled such expenses were an allowable deduction when paying state income taxes.

Duke explained that a condition of his employment by the state calls for him to reside at the state park in Richhill Township. However, the state using a formula based on rooms used, deducts the rent from his pay checks. Because the residence is required as a condition of employment, Duke maintains the rent deduction can not be counted as income.

Don Wilkinson, president of Central Tax Bureau of Pennsylvania, took the stand and told the court that Act 511, under which local municipalities can tax earned income, does not define a business expense. Wilkinson told the court his agency does not have to follow state and federal procedures in collecting tax, explaining the local taxing agency sets the standards.

Duke, during his cross examination of Wilkinson, asked how the local agency could ignore standards and procedures established by state and federal governments? Wilkinson said that Act 511 allows the local agency acting on legal advice from its own solicitor can determine procedure.

Although Robert Berryman, whose firm represented both the school district and tax bureau, requested the complaint be dismissed because the agency was only following normal procedures and Duke failed to give evidence that he lost $100 in pursuing the case, Magistrate Watson ruled against the motion.

Watson cited the U.S. Supreme Court decision and said he could hardly go against the ruling of the highest court in the land. He directed the tax bureau to refund the $9.60, pay the cost of prosecution and also pay Duke the $100 for stress and lost wages.

Architects Praise, Criticize Greene County Courthouse

the finest examples of a Greek revival courthouse building to be found in Pennsylvania, the Department of Architecture at Pennsylvania State University has found that it has a lot of shortcomings in terms of use.

A detailed analysis of both its strengths and weaknesses is contained in a study which the department has made of courthouse facilities in all 67 counties. The survey was commissioned by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court to assess the suitability of existing courthouses for judicial needs.

The principal recommendation for the courthouse in Waynesburg is to make better use of existing space and to make major structural alterations.

While those who made the study do not feel that an addition is needed, it does recommend a long-term plan for renovating the old jail addition at the rear of the building to provide office space. Some judicial staff members, such as children and youth services, adult and juvenile probation, domestic relations, district attorney and public defender are now housed in other buildings.

The Greene County courthouse, which was built in 1850, is one of nine in the state which were erected in the first half of the 19th century. It is rated excellent in terms of historical significance, architectural character and flexibility for expansion; satisfactory as to physical condition, security and records management, and unsatisfactory in the categories of public convenience and functional planning.

Major shortcomings which are noted include lack of facilities for the handicapped, lack of a security alarm system, miscellaneous maintenance problems throughout the building, lack of a "courthouse" sign outside the building, inadequate public restrooms, lack of provision for evidence storage, and existence of functional planning problems relating to the location of the law library, court administrator and court reporter.

Trip Planned

CARMICHAELS — The Greene County Arts Council has chartered a bus trip to the Three Rivers Arts Festival in Pittsburgh.

The bus will leave the parking lot behind Russell's Used Car lot in Carmichaels at 11 a.m. Wednesday, June 9, and will leave Pittsburgh at 6 p.m. that evening.

Cost of the trip is $6.50 per person and the reservation deadline is June 1.

Immediate action is recommended to:

- Install an access ramp for the handicapped to the entrance on South Washington Street.
- Install a security alarm system in the judge's chamber and at his bench in the courtroom.
- Take appropriate measures to preserve the historical character of the classical entrance portico and stairs.
- Design and install an exterior courthouse sign in accordance with the historical and architectural character of the building.
- Initiate a long-term plan to use the vacated jail.

In summary, the report states:

"Greene County's courthouse is an old building with many of the problems common to aging structures. Its environs, likewise, bear the marks of a growing obsolescence.

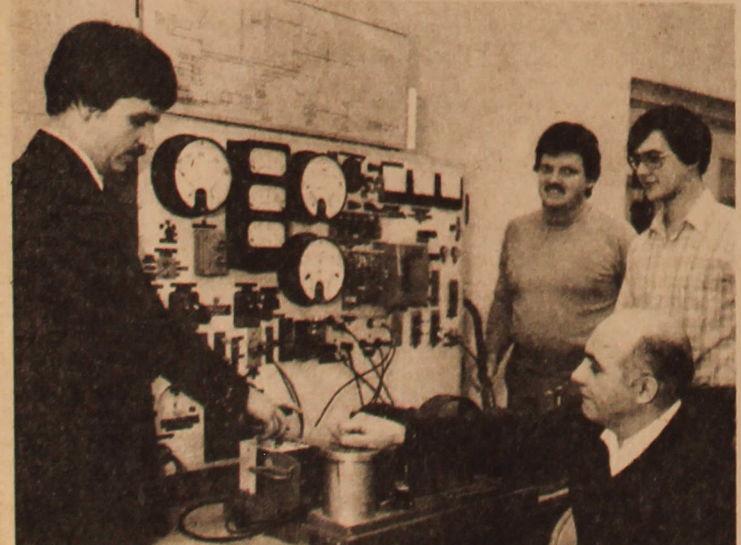

"Yet this town and this courthouse have maintained a vitality over the years, possibly due to a fundamental simplicity in the relationships between basic elements — courthouse, main street and topography. This town is typical in many ways of all small towns; but the commonplace pattern is far from dull in Waynesburg."

Households with an annual income no greater than $5,388 for one person, $7,112 for a couple, or $1,724 for each additional person in the household are eligible for energy assistance.

Although 260,000 households in Pennsylvania had been helped by early April, some funds are still available. Homebound applicants can make arrangements with their local county assistance office to have an application mailed to their home.

County residents are reminded to contact or visit the county assistance office for information and to submit an application no later than May 14 to receive this benefit.

STUDENT CITED — April Lynn Bedosky, a student at Jefferson-Morgan High School, has been named a 1982 U.S. National Award winner in foreign languages by the United States Achievement Academy. Each year, the academy honors less than 5 percent of American high school students in various curriculum areas, based on recommendation of teachers and school officials. She is a daughter of Hazel Bedosky of Jefferson and the late Julius J. Bedosky.

Power Course Is Offered

Representatives of various local firms are attending a 10-week power-distribution course to help business and industry design safe, efficient electrical distribution systems. Fire Damage

NEW FREEPORT — The Melvin Anderson home at Garrison was extensively damaged by a fire which broke out Tuesday evening while the family was away from the house.

New Freeport Fire Chief Jack B. Cooper said the living room and kitchen were pretty much gutted by the blaze, and there was smoke damage throughout the frame dwelling. Cooper estimated the damage at $5,000.

The fire was spotted by a neighbor, who called in the alarm at 8:15 p.m.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

For years, the phrase for the thousands of residents in northern West Virginia and the southwestern corner of Pennsylvania who traveled to the industrial areas of Ohio was "The Cleveland Caravan."

The caravan didn't suddenly spring into existence during the depression days of the late 1920's. A professor at West Virginia University determined the number grew to over 100,000 before the attack on Pearl Harbor resulted in more industry in this area. The sudden change in the situation by no means was the end of the "Cleveland Caravan" and many of those from southwestern Pennsylvania and the Morgantown area continued their weekend commuting until there was no rubber for auto tires.

Before anyone could be really aware of the situation or admit it was happening, those from West Virginia and this area had been absorbed into the Ohio communities in which they were working.

As their children were born they were married to members of the families who were natives of that section and their children gradually became mostly assimilated into the "permanent" families of literally scores of communities in the densely populated Ohio cities and suburban areas.

To back track briefly, when the "caravan" was in its early stages it was often a target for the Grim Reaper when they would start home without sleep after a night shift or to get "back home" for every precious minute of Christmas Eve, the family Thanksgiving dinner or to otherwise delay a start back to Ohio for work Monday morning.

That was the heartbreak factor of the legend of the caravan. The other side of the coin or the good side was that it liberated them from working underground.

It was illustrated dramatically one day at the Greene County Country Club when Charley (Cash) Mordosovich of Mather stopped by in a tailor-made suit and kidded his former buddies in the mines "these are my work clothes." He was employed in a Chrysler assembly plant at Cleveland. Joe Stassa, a five time golf champ at the country club, and his brother Frank also used the caravan as an escape route to a different way of life.

Now, however, the caravan has another sinister threat to second and third generations of those who first went to the cities.

The grandchildren of many of the first of those who left Greene County for a short time or permanently now return to visit their grandparents and to see in person the never-never land of farms, small towns, villages and the friendly people their grandchildren have told them in stories about Greene County.

Down through the years the caravan has been in existence, fate has claimed its share of victims.

Last weekend, its victim was Steven J. Kurilko, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Kurilko of Macedonia, Ohio, formerly of Bobtown.

He was spending the weekend with his paternal grandparents Rudolph and Pearly Kurilko of Bobtown and his maternal grandmother was Mrs. Ethel Baliker of Morgantown.

Described by friends as a very purposeful youth, he was an 11th grade student at Cuyahoga Valley Vocational School in Breckville, Ohio and was also a member of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church in Macedonia.

The accident in which he lost his life resulted from a collision with another car at Fieldson's Crossroads.

Like in years past, another generation is in a hurry to return to Greene County to visit or hunt.

Field Fire Ordinance Step In Right Direction

An ordinance which sharply increases possible penalties for people who carelessly cause field fires went into effect in Franklin Township on May 1.

It provides for fines ranging from $25 to $300 and a possible 10-day jail sentence, which is well above the $20 maximum fine provided in the previous township trash burning ordinance.

On top of that, it designates the Waynesburg fire chief as the enforcement officer, giving him the authority to prosecute when he feels the degree of negligence justifies such action. Under the old ordinance, no provision was made for an enforcement officer, and as a result no prosecutions were made.

The ordinance retains the existing requirement that stipulates that people who live in residential areas must burn trash in a closed container which meets certain standards, and that they burn trash only between the hours of 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. In rural areas, trash fires can be set at any time but the person setting one is required to personally supervise the fire at all times.

It was passed at the request of the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Company, which to date this year has been called out 15 times to battle grass fires. Most occur during the daytime hours, taking firemen from their jobs and requiring them to spend hours beating the brush with brooms to bring them under control. Luckily none has resulted in property damage.

The fire company has indicated it has no intention of prosecuting where a trash fire gets out of control despite the best efforts of the property owner to exercise caution. But it wants some way to obtain compensation when the property owner shows utter disregard for safe practice and than stands by and lets firemen bail him out of trouble.

The classic example which the company cites involves an occasion when firemen were called to the same place three times in one day and then watched the persons who started the fire sit on their porch drinking beer while they protected a neighbor's property.

Firemen are hoping that the ordinance passed by the Franklin Township supervisors will serve as a model for other municipalities in Greene County.

Field fires are usually no more than a nuisance, but they can be a threat to property and firemen have been known to be stricken because of the physical exertion required to battle them.

It's time that steps were taken to control them.

Hold Convention

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Association of Township Officers will hold its 67th annual convention Friday, May 7, in the courthouse in Waynesburg.

Marvin L. Moody, Dunkard Township supervisor, is president of the association, which is made up of supervisors, tax collectors, auditors and assessors of the county's 20 townships.

The first session will open at 9 a.m. following registration during which free coffee and doughnuts will be served, with Waynesburg Borough Manager James Ealy giving the welcome address.

Speakers at the afternoon session will include Congressman Austin J. Murphy, state Sen. Barry Stout, Rep. H. William DeWeese and the county commissioners.

The session will conclude with a business meeting during which officers will be elected.

The annual banquet at 6:30 p.m. in the Benedum dining hall at Waynesburg College will climax the one-day convention.

U.S. Geological Survey

Followup Studies Suggested

WAYNESBURG — The Water Resources Division of the U.S. Geological Survey would like to maintain 12 observation water wells in Greene County as a followup to a three-year county groundwater study to be completed this fall.

But county commissioners have expressed reluctance to investigate the $8,000 a year it would cost the county until they have more information on the practical value of the entire project.

"Close to a million dollars has already been spent and we have yet to learn if it provides the answers we wanted when we agreed to join in the project," County Commissioner Richard C. Cowan said Thursday. "It's supposed to tell us how coal mining has affected the county's water resources and what we can expect to happen in the future, but we haven't received any reports to date."

During the past three years, the Geological Survey has invested $725,000 in the study. The Pennsylvania Topographic and Geologic Survey has spent $187,500 and the county has invested $38,500 in cash and $30,000 through in-

Historical Marker Unveiled

WAYNESBURG — A state historical marker honoring Greene County was unveiled in Waynesburg Monday, the highlight of the annual observance of Law Day.

The plaque, mounted on a post on the courthouse lawn, was unveiled by attorney Edward Martin of Washington, son of former Gov. Edward Martin, a Greene County native.

The plaque states that the county was formed in 1796 from southern Washington County and is named for General Nathanael Greene; that Waynesburg, the county seat, was named for General Anthony Wayne and incorporated in 1816 and is the home of Waynesburg College, founded in 1849, and that nearby Ten Mile was the birthplace of Governor Martin.

It was presented to the county by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission as part of the observance of Pennsylvania's 300th birthday, which has been proclaimed "A Celebration of Friends" by Gov. Richard Thornburgh. Arrangements were made through the Greene County Historical Society and the county commissioners.

Judge Glenn Toothman, in a brief address, said the plaque commemorates 186 years of county history. He made particular mention of the accomplishments of Martin, who served as general of the 28th Division during World War II, and as a United States senator in addition to holding office as governor.

"His contributions as a statesman and a soldier merit the stamp of history and will long be remembered," the Greene County jurist said.

Attorney Dennis Tanner, chairman of the Law Day committee of the Greene County Bar Association, served as master of ceremonies for the dedication. Others taking part in the program included Joseph Pawlosky, chairman of the board of county commissioners, and the Rev. George Shultzabarger, president of the Greene County Historical Society.

Several selections were played by the Waynesburg Central High School band.

Tanner also presided at the Law Day program which was held in the courtroom prior to the plaque dedication, pointing out that 1982 marks the 25th anniversary of the observance "which was created in 1957 to call attention of the American people to the principles and practice of the American judicial system."

The courtroom was crowded for the program since it coincided with the opening of the May term of civil court, with members of the jury panel adding to the audience of county officials and employees.

Washington attorney William C. Porter, as featured speaker, commented on changes in the legal profession in recent years, and particularly on the great increase in the number of people entering the profession.

"There are 116,000 students in American law schools today which means there will be more and more competition for available business," he said, adding that he believes the U.S. Supreme Court has opened the door to a possible lowering of standards by ruling that bar associations cannot set schedules of minimum fees and cannot prevent attorneys from soliciting business through advertising.

"If we are going to maintain a high level of professional standards the bar is going to have to exercise some degree of restraint," he said. "The legal profession is not simply a money-making business and it will up to young lawyers to see that high standards are maintained."

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

The dog days of August may still be a long time away but Spring events such as commencement ceremonies, weddings, baseball, picnics and hitch-hiking are moving right into the front yard.

Don't forget Little League baseball (the season has already started) and detours of which there is a dandy right now between Morrisville and East Greene Street, via Sugar Run. It was caused by the necessity of the road under the overpass of the Monongahela Railroad needing to be lowered 18 inches.

Donley Ammons, 92, who died May 3, is thought to have been the last Greene County resident who was a teamster as his principle occupation. He worked at that job until the horses were replaced by trucks. He spent most of his life at the farm opposite the present Curry Memorial Home.

Speaking of farms, Greene County's real estate market picked up a bit of momentum last month when 309 farms and other properties were sold as compared to 288 the preceeding month. The slow down, of course, is attributed to the current high interest rates.

It was nice to see representatives of some of Waynesburg's earliest families participating in the law day ceremonies this past Tuesday. They were Miss Josephine Denny, a charter member and past president of the County Historical Society; Mrs. Wilma Sayers Wisecarver, who came home from Charolette, N.C. and Atty. Edward Martin Jr. of Washington, son of the late Gen. Edward Martin, former governor of Pennsylvania and commander of the 28th Infantry Division. While living in Waynesburg, Mrs. Wisecarver served one term as mayor. All three participated in the dedication of a lawn marker in front of the courthouse.

The annual Waynesburg Horse Show, scheduled for May 28-30 at the Greene County Fairgrounds, has become one the largest in the eastern part of the United States. Horses and riders from seven states will compete every afternoon and evening.

Beverly Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Johnson of Mt. Morris, has just returned from a visit to the British Isles, Holland, West Germany, Switzerland, France and Italy. She will be spending a few days with her parents prior to returning to her home in Los Angeles, Calif.

Mrs. Marian C. Rush of 253 Second Avenue, Waynesburg, has returned home after spending the past week in Fort Worth, Texas where she attended the Daughters of America convention held at the Fort Worth Hilton. Mrs. Rush is national deputy of Pennsylvania and is a member of Wayne Council 124 in Waynesburg.

Ron and Patty Lippencott of Waynesburg R.D. 1 are announcing the birth of a son, Nathan Aaron on Monday, April 5 in Monongalia General Hospital in Morgantown, W.Va. He was welcomed at home by a sister Hether Elaine, 6. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Lemley of Spraggs and the paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George E. Lippencott of Waynesburg R.D.1. Great-grandparents are Ralph W. McCord of Holbrook and Mrs. Tillie Lippencott of Waynesburg R.D. 1.

VFW Seeking WWI Veterans

WAYNESBURG — Officers of the Waynesburg Veterans of Foreign Wars post are asking for local cooperation in obtaining information about World War I veterans still living in the county.

The VFW needs the names, addresses or phone number of veterans still living in the area. At future date, the veterans will be honored a special banquet and given a life-membership to the post.

Projects Slated

UNIONTOWN — Bids on two major highway projects in Greene County will be received May 27 in Harrisburg by the state Department of Transportation.

A major renovation of a nine-block section of Greene Street in Waynesburg is planned for this summer. Also included are improvements to traffic signals at three intersections, the cost of which will be shared by Waynesburg Borough.

According to an agreement with the borough, light renovation will cost $30,000 of which the borough will pay $1,500 as its share. The borough will be responsible for future maintenance of the lights at the corner of Morris, Morgan and Washington streets.

Plans call for the old surface to be removed from Richhill Street to a point near the Nazarene Church where a current renovation project started this spring. A new bituminous surface, varying from 28 to 30 feet in width, will be applied.

Bids will be received on the same day for major improvements to Legislative Routes 30050 and 30051 in Clarksville and parts of Morgan and Jefferson townships.

Plans call for the rehabilitation of two bridges, including the decks, back walls, wing caps, steel railings and approach slabs. The new surface will be 22 feet wide for 904 feet and total new construction is called for 495 feet of highway.

SALLY WALKER

Local Pitcher Undefeated

MORGANTOWN, W.V.A. — The girls' softball team at West Virginia University has earned the top seed in the Eastern Regional tournament to be held next week in Allentown — and much of the credit goes to an undefeated pitcher from Waynesburg.

Sally Walker, a senior, has been the ace of a fine pitching staff this season and going into the final doubleheader of the year sported a 6-0 record. Her earned-run-average was a stingy 0.43.

One of the smallest players on the squad, Sally improved her record of 3-3 last season. The team was 18-5 going into the doubleheader with Morehead State. Two of the losses were against Michigan and another was to South Carolina early in the year.

Sally, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Walker of Waynesburg, had several no-hitters during her high school career at Waynesburg High School and was also an all-star basketball player having topped the 1,000 career point plateau.

Good News For Hunters

By JOE PARRY
Special To The O-R
DEER

How do hunters spell relief? This story could provide a bit of relief to at least 16,800 outdoor lovers who enjoy the antlerless season.

As predicted in an earlier column the antlerless deer permit allocation for Washington County will not be reduced. In fact it has been raised from the 1981 allocation of 8,050 to 9,300 permits in 1982. So area hunters may rest a bit easier now for they will have a chance at a whitetail if they draw an antlerless permit from the County Treasurer's office this year.

Greene County hunters will experience similar relief as the Pennsylvania Game Commission has retained the doe permit allotment for Greene County at 7,500.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission's decision to authorize 360,500 antlerless deer licenses this year is designed to produce a harvest of approximately 57,000 statewide, according to game management chief Dale Sheffer. Sheffer noted that last year the Game Commission authorized 451,250 licenses which reported a harvest of 64,212 doe. Deer taken in archery and flintlock season swelled the total to 75,208. There were only nine counties unchanged in their antlerless permit allocations while there were increases in 15 others. So Washington and Greene County hunters are among the fortunate few, considering there are 41 counties with decreased allocations.

"Usually an increase in antlerless licenses results in a larger harvest and a resultant lowering of the total population," Sheffer said. "However, antlerless license allocations this year are designed to keep deer herd sizes at the same level as last year in 28 counties, while total populations of whitetails should be reduced in 13 others."

"In some counties the number of licenses for antlerless deer will be decreased but the number of deer in the county will be further reduced. Likewise, in some counties the allocations will be increased but the herd will be permitted to grow."

The Game Commission's decision was made after an intense study which took into consideration vital factors such as the number of deer reported vs. the actual harvest, sex ratios, age classes, percentage of yearling females, survival and productivity tests, hunter success rates and out-of-season losses.

Glenn Bowers, the executive director of the Pennsylvania Game Commission has been named by the National Wildlife

Federation as it's 1981 Conservationist of the Year. The award was given for his "success as a wildlife agency administrator through steadfast support of sound wildlife management."

His success is evidenced by the fine work in past year's with the Commission which has resulted in this state gaining a reputation as a leader in conservation.

Bowers has been executive director of the Game Commission for 17 years.

FIELD TIPS — Many fishermen fillet their catch at the lake or streamside or put the fish in the melted ice water in their styrofoam coolers. This is a detriment to preserving the tasty flavor of fish. A simple and inexpensive way to prevent the fish fillets from coming into direct contact with the cooler water is to save a few plastic bread wrappers and take them along on the fishing trip. Placed the fillets into the bags before placing them in the cooler and they'll stay cool and dry. And they'll retain their flavor and color as well.

Also, a good way to brush up on your shooting is to take a few summer trips to the Game Lands range. This will keep you sharp and better enable to secure venison this winter. Don't wait until two days before deer season to sharpen your shooting talents. It will be fun for you and fair to the whitetails.

Deadly 'Pole-ution'

Please don't nail, tack, or staple signs to our poles.

The reason? That kind of pollution could seriously injure or even kill some of our linemen who climb those poles in all kinds of weather — day or night — to provide you with electric service. Their climbing safety depends on their hooks or "spurs" digging into good, solid wood, free of metal obstructions.

There's another reason for asking you not to attach signs to utility poles. It's against the law. And violators are subject to penalties.

So for the protection of our linemen who work hard to provide you with reliable electric service, please don't nail, tack, or staple signs to our poles. Of course, you'll protect yourself, too — from possible prosecution for breaking the law.

Our linemen are counting on your cooperation and they appreciate it.

DeCicco Signs Steeler Contract

By JOHN BARKER
O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — After five years of looking to what was called a bright future, Dominic DeCicco has finally come of age.

The former Waynesburg College tight end was signed as free agent by the Pittsburgh Steelers on Thursday following a brief workout. He will begin light conditioning next week in preparation for the Steelers training which tentatively opens in mid-July.

"This is really great," said DeCicco during a telephone phone interview Thursday. "I've been a Steeler fan all my life and now I'm part of the team."

"I quit my job about a month ago to put a 100-percent effort towards training and hopefully it will be worthwhile. It hasn't really sunk in yet but it's a great feeling to know Chuck Noll is my coach."

DeCicco did have hopes of being drafted in the two day selection held earlier this week. Several teams had expressed interest in him but his number never came up in the draft.

"I really expected to be drafted," said DeCicco. "I had worked out for the Miami Dolphins before the draft and they told me that they might draft me. I sat around all day Wednesday waiting for the phone to ring from the Dolphins but it never happened."

"I'm surprised he wasn't drafted," said Waynesburg head coach Hayden Buckley. "A lot of teams showed interest in him before the draft and we were told he was going to be drafted."

DeCicco did receive a call a day later though. Pittsburgh contacted him Wednesday night and asked him to come to the stadium for a workout the next day as a free agent.

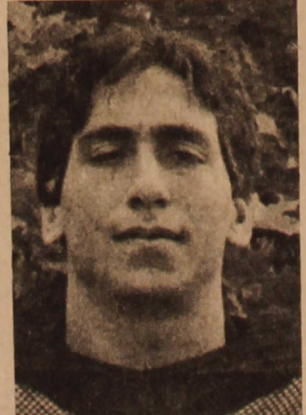

The 6-4, 235-pound DeCicco worked out on Thursday with ten other free agents and was offered a contract.

"They had us run through all the drills and seemed to be impressed with me," DeCicco said. "Out of ten guys who were there, I think I was one of three that were kept."

Steeler vice-president, Art Rooney Jr. was pleased with DeCicco's tryout.

"We had him up for a workout and we were both surprised and impressed with his athletic skills," Rooney said. "We think he could be a sleeper."

But DeCicco has his work cut out for him if he's to make the Steelers roster. Pittsburgh already has veterans Bennie Cunningham and Randy Grossman at tight end and drafted Mike Hirt, a 6-3, 225-pounder from Central Michigan in the ninth round this year.

"I can't worry about those three right now, I just have to concentrate on me," said DeCicco. "They're all great athletes, no doubt about that, but they're also a little older than me. That might be my advantage. I might be a little faster (4.80 in the 40-yard dash)."

The possibility of a strike in the National Football League this year could work in favor of DeCicco. If the veterans are absent, the rookies and free agents may fill the void until the labor dispute is settled.

"I think it is a numbers game," said Buckley. "He has a real good chance and a strike by the players would certainly help his chances."
