Swinging Into Summer

Two boys signal the start of another "swinging" summer at the Central Playground in Waynesburg which opened Monday morning. Supervised hours of operation are from 9 a.m. to noon and 6 to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and on Fridays from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Activities scheduled for the rest of the week include a make-me-laugh contest and a trade-a-gift program. The playground is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day for free play and parent-supervised activities.

Storm Causes Power Outages In County

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — High winds Wednesday evening caused an estimated $15,000 damage to the home of Dr. Eric Stacher, just off Route 19 about four miles north of Waynesburg.

While there were no other reports of major property damage, the violent thunderstorm which struck about 5:30 p.m. caused widespread power outages and knocked down trees and branches in many parts of the county.

The quarter-mile area around the Stacher home seemed to be hardest hit, with many large trees being uprooted.

"From the way big trees were torn out of the ground and the tops were twisted out of others it looks as if a small cyclone touched down," one resident said. "You can see that it came out of the southwest and just cut a path through the woods."

Mrs. Stacher said she heard a window breaking and was on the telephone to her husband when she saw the patio roof tear away and blow over the house. There was considerable damage done to the inside of the house because of the rain, fruit trees in the yard were uprooted, and the township road in front of the house was completely blocked by downed branches, some of them four feet in diameter.

At the nearby home of Dr. Thomas Andrews, a number of trees were reported uprooted but there was no damage to the dwelling.

The high winds also uprooted trees at the upper end of Amity, downing lines and knocking out the power for the entire town. At 10:30 p.m. West Penn Power Co. linemen were still working to restore electricity to the community.

Reed Mankey, Amwell Township fire chief, said uprooted trees and branches blocked off Buttermilk, Mankey, Ridge

Church and Ealy roads. By late Wednesday night firemen and township crews had cleared the roads.

Mrs. Frank McNeely, who lives on Love's Hill east of the Greene County Airport, said that Route 300 was completely blocked by fallen branches.

"It's been a long time since we've had it blow that hard out here, but luckily there was no property damage," she said.

West Penn Power reported that an estimated 1,500 households in Greene County were without power, with 700 of them being blacked out when the entire Bristoria-Aleppo circuit was knocked out. Power to most of the homes there was restored by 8:30 p.m.

Dairy Farmers Reject Milk Marketing Plan

Pennsylvania dairy farmers have rejected a proposed milk marketing program by a vote of 7,678-5,342. A majority vote both by number of producers and volume of milk production was needed for the referendum to succeed.

The program would have assessed dairy farmers three-quarters of one percent of their milk checks to finance statewide milk promotion, advertising, research and education.

Milk production of those opposed to the program totaled 335,534,663 pounds. Production of those favoring the proposal amounted to 287,037,687 pounds.

Out of the 15,541 producers eligible to vote, 13,021 cast ballots with 41 percent favoring the program and 59 percent opposing it.

State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hollowell suggested that declining farm prices for milk, the May 5 announcement by the federal government of further price reductions and a proposed national milk marketing referendum may have had an impact on the Pennsylvania vote. "Based on the information they had and the current market situation, Pennsylvania dairy farmers have determined that they cannot financially afford to support a statewide mandatory assessment program at this time," he said.

Landfill Closes

KIRBY — The Whiteley Township supervisors have announced that the township landfill at Kirby has been closed because it is being used to a great extent by persons who are not residents of the township.

In its place, dumpsters will be made available on a weekly basis on the township lot behind the former school building in Kirby. They will be for the use of township residents only. The dumpsters will be available from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. every Saturday in June, July and August, and on the first and third Saturdays in other months of the year.

Garbage must be in garbage bags and the bags must be tied.

Waynesburg Man Found Not Guilty

A 42-year-old Waynesburg R.D.1 man was found not guilty Thursday of all charges stemming from a shooting last February in West Pike Run Township.

The jury returned its verdict in favor of Harry Theodore Good Jr.

State police had charged Good with criminal attempt to commit homicide, aggravated assault and recklessly endangering another person after he allegedly fired five shots at the home of Kenneth McGavitt of Irish Ridge Road in Coal Center.

No one was injured in the incident. The trial was held before Judge Thomas D. Gladden.

Central Greene Budget Includes 10-Mill Tax Hike

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — The Central Greene School Board, at its meeting Tuesday, adopted an $8.2 million budget for the 1982-83 school year which calls for a 10-mill increase in the property tax.

It also ratified one-year contracts with district non-professional employees and its school bus contractors.

In adopting the budget, the board set up a capital improvement fund of $550,000 to provide for renovation of the East Franklin School and other projects. It uses part of the revenues derived last year in realty transfer taxes when U.S. Steel sold Pittsburgh coal in its Cumberland reserve field.

The property tax will be boosted from 53 mills to 63 mills to provide the district with additional revenues of about $500,000. There will be no change in the earned income tax and realty transfer tax of 0.5 percent each, nor in the $5 per capita tax levy.

Total estimated expenditures of $8,189,011 are 7.1 percent higher than 1981-82 budgeted expenditures of $7.6 million. Areas where there are major increases are staff salaries, up by about $300,000; employee benefits, up $57,800; utility and fuel costs, up by $52,350; pupil transportation, up by $31,000, and payment to the vo-tech school, up by $14,000.

Of the $900,000 which the district received in 1981 when the U.S. Steel coal was sold, $250,000 went into school operations for the current year and $77,000 was spent for a computer system for the business office. Of the $679,000 which remains, $525,000 will be used to create a new capital improvement fund which will also include $12,000 contributed by the Quarterback Club toward the cost of installing lights at the high school athletic field. Interest estimated at $13,000 will make $550,000 available for use.

Of this, $346,500 will be used for improvements at the East Franklin School, $88,800 for the athletic field lights, $62,975 for replacing a section of the high school roof, $13,500 for new metal doors at the high school swimming pool, $13,000 for architect's fees, $6,500 for creation of an additional practice field at the high school, $3,200 for fencing and $8,025 to purchase materials needed for installing doors at the Margaret Bell Miller Middle School.

If U.S. Steel's Cumberland Mine itself is sold this year, realty transfer taxes from that transaction would be added to the $346,500 already on hand to completely renovate the East Franklin School and to create eight new classrooms in the basement. If the mine is not sold by the spring of next year, the board plans to use the money now available to replace windows and make other improvements to make the building more heat efficient.

The school district expects to begin the 1981-82 year with a balance of $250,000. The district will receive $4,601,292 from local sources, $3,356,894 from state sources and $39,575 from federal sources.

A breakdown of expenditures, by major budget categories:

Administration, $294,739; instruction, $3,361,108; pupil personnel services, $142,731; health services, $71,311; transportation, $840,000; operation and maintenance, $1,125,183; fixed charges, $786,080; student body activities, $117,636; community service, $19,550; capital outlay, $81,652; debt service, $893,700; outgoing transfers, $438,676, and budgetary reserve, $75,000.

NON-BUDGET ITEMS

While the focus was on completion of budget items prior to the start of July 1, the board also dealt with a number of other matters at the meeting.

A new salary scale for about 70 clerical people, custodians, maintenance personnel, janitors and other non-professional employees was approved for 1981-82, the final year of a three-year contract.

It provides for no change in the starting salaries, which range from $4.17 to $4.75 per hour. Employees who have completed their 90-day probationary period will receive an increase of 30 cents per hour and those who have completed two years will receive 50 cents per hour. Any employee who has worked at least six years in the same job classification will receive a raise of 55 cents per hour.

The new contract with bus contractors — Central Cab Co. John O. Dulaney, Charles Bowers and Sammy Fox — provides for maintaining the same daily rates for buses and vans during the coming year as were paid during the present year. The district, however, will pay up to 50 percent of any wage increase given to bus drivers, provided the district share does not exceed $1.50 per day.

On recommendation of Thomas E. Vent, new head varsity football coach, the board approved the appointment of Joseph Zorosky and Robert Kayla as assistant coaches at salaries of $1,437. It accepted the resignations of Morgan Hunnel as head baseball coach, Gene Cappellini as assistant baseball coach, and Rick Lofstead as assistant boys' track coach.

Bridget Wade, elementary vocal music instructor, was appointed assistant high school band director to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Frank Vucic.

The resignation of driver education teacher Homer Shaffer was accepted and the payment of $3,000 was approved as an early retirement benefit.

Five people were appointed to conduct the annual school enumeration during the month of July. They are Ruth Kiger, Perry Township, $300; Linda Tubbs, Washington Township, $250; Nancy Ketchum, Franklin Township, $650; Carolyn Lohr, Waynesburg, $450, and Carrol Harrison, Wayne and Whiteley Townships, $350.

A budget for use of $247,171 in Title I money, a reduction of 3.25 percent, was approved. The funds will be used to provide four full-time reading specialists.

The secretary was authorized to solicit bids for construction of an additional practice field at the high school which will be created primarily to eliminate scheduling conflicts between the high school band and football team. It will be created in an area behind the high school.

Zoning Matters Taken Before Waynesburg Borough Council

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Judging by what happened at Monday's meeting of Waynesburg Borough Council, next Monday's meeting of the Waynesburg Zoning Hearing Board should be busy — and probably controversial.

Several matters involving the zoning ordinance were considered at the meeting, at which council also agreed to consider a suggestion from Police Chief Timothy Hawfield that the position of meter agent be reactivated and a person or persons hired to relieve police of the responsibility of patrolling meters.

Council revised the definition governing home occupations to place the hearing board in a position to consider a request for a variance from a Waynesburg chiropractor who wants to purchase a home on East Greene Street, a one-family zone, as a combination dwelling and office.

Under the previous definition, professional occupations were not included in the list of home occupations which the zoning board could approve in a residential area. The revised definition corrects this omission and also sets up criteria which the zoning board must consider in reviewing a request.

They include any change in the appearance of the building, the type of activity to be conducted, the rights of surrounding property owners, the size and type of sign to be erected, and "any other criteria within the discretion of the zoning hearing board to insure preservation of the residential integrity of the district."

Councilman Raymond Murdock suggested that the list should also specify that adequate parking spaces must be provided, but Solicitor William Thomas said that parking requirements are already set forth in other sections of the zoning ordinance.

Several persons who are opposed to the request by Dr. Michael Webb attended the meeting and were told that it will probably be brought up for consideration at a meeting of the zoning board Monday, May 21.

In response to a complaint from John Gardner that remodeling work at Jimmy's Lunch on West High Street is not being done in accord with construction requirements in the fire zone, council asked Borough Manager James Ealy to have David Gregg, the zoning enforcement officer, investigate the matter.

A petition signed by 22 property owners in the East End was referred to the hearing board for action. It concerns a former single-family dwelling on East Street which has been converted into apartments.

The petitioners contend that the owner received a permit to convert the house into two apartments, but that he actually has four apartments with no off-street parking.

Strikers Expected Back On Job

WAYNESBURG — United Mine Worker construction local members who are building Consolidation Coal Company's new Baily mine in Greene County are expected to return to work Monday after walking off the job Thursday.

"It was all a misunderstanding that has been cleared up and we expect our people to be back on the job on Monday," Fred Sunseri of the Ram Construction Co., Canonsburg, said Friday evening.

Earlier in the day union sources said the unauthorized walkout was a protest over awarding of a railroad construction contract to a company which employs members of the AFL-CIO rather than the UMWA. The railroad is to be built from a point in West Waynesburg to Enon in Richhill Township, where the new mine is being developed.

Paul M. Kvederis, a Consolidation spokesman, said the company would not comment on the wildcat strike since it did not involve any company employees. "That's a matter between the contractors and their employees," he said.

Neither would he confirm Consolidation had awarded a contract for building of the railroad.

The strikers are all members of UMWA Construction Local 1846, headquartered in Waynesburg. They are employed by Ram and by Ohio Atlas Construction Co., Weirton, W. Va. Ram has the contract for site preparation work at the mine, while Ohio Atlas has a contract for construction of the shaft and slope.

While Ron Opel, president of Local 1846, declined to comment, a spokesman for UMWA District 4 headquarters, Maestown, said he understood the unauthorized walkout resulted from the awarding of a railroad construction contract.

"We've had close to a dozen telegrams about it and have been told that the matter will wind up in court," the spokesman said Friday afternoon.

Later in the day, however, Sunseri said that to his knowledge the railroad contract has not been awarded as yet and that both his employees and those who work for Ohio Atlas have agreed to return.

Mine Worker officials have been campaigning for months to have the rail construction job awarded to a contractor who employees UMWA members rather than workers affiliated with the AFL-CIO because of the large number of members of the Waynesburg local who are currently on layoff status because of a lack of construction work.

Mid-Penn Telephone Settles For Half Of Rate-Hike Request

WAYNESBURG — Mid-Penn Telephone Corp. on June 7 filed a $4.56 million rate increase with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PUC).

It is scheduled to be effective on June 17, 1982, and will raise the cost of basic local telephone service to the average residential customer in the company's Western District, which includes all customers served through the Waynesburg office, by four cents a day.

The rate increase was filed pursuant to the PUC's order of June 4 which granted the company the option to file rates to produce an increase of $4.56 million in lieu of the $9.85 million increase originally requested on Jan. 26, 1982.

T. A. Weeter, president of Mid-Penn Telephone Corp., said he felt it was in the best interest of the company to accept the lower rate increase.

"Company management believed that the original request was justified, but in an effort to obtain immediate rate relief to produce the much needed earnings to finance the company's ongoing improvement program and to avoid costly litigation which would have had to be born by its customers, it was in the best interest of the company, its customers and service area to accept the lesser rate increase," he said.

In the alternative, Mid-Penn could have proceeded with seven months of litigation before the PUC in an effort to prove the reasonableness of the original request.

Weeter added that acceptance of the lesser rate increase will have no effect upon the company's current construction and improvement program.

He noted that the company presently has a new central office project under construction in its Waynesburg service area at an estimated cost of $3.3 million.

The equipment, to go into service in October, will greatly enhance services to its Waynesburg customers, Weeter said, adding that overall, Mid-Penn plans to spend $17.5 million in capital improvement in 1982.

"Mid-Penn is committed to assuring its customers adequate and efficient telephone service based upon today's standards and technologies," Weeter said. "However, such services can only be provided with adequate rates."

Mid-Penn's Western District is comprised of four operating areas which are located at Meadville, Kittanning, Ridgway and Waynesburg. The company's smaller Eastern District includes the areas of Muncy and Lansford.

Mid-Penn services a total of 188,863 customers in Pennsylvania and is a subsidiary of Mid-Continent Telephone Corp., the fifth largest independent in the nation.

Happiness Is...

There's a great satisfaction in surf-fishing at sunset. Why? Is it because happiness is the serenity of the evening hours or is it because happiness is serenity?

Our moods as well as our interests determine what happiness is for each of us. And our emotions, our longings, our appreciation of nature—all play a part.

What we believe makes a difference, too. There are countless individuals for whom happiness is faith. And there are others who lack this spiritual ingredient and they wonder why they aren't happy.

A scene like this gains new dimensions when you think of the sea as God's creation . . . and of man as God's child.

Vo-Tech Board Approves $634,103 Budget

By STAN DIAMOND
Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — A new procedure to fund the Greene County Vocational-Technical School was approved and final adoption of its 1982-83 operating budget was made during a meeting of the school's Joint Operating Committee Thursday night.

New funding procedures for vo-tech schools in the state was made necessary with passage of Act 115, which goes into effect July 1 and does away with former funding procedures for vo-tech schools. In the past, a vo-tech school's approved budget was submitted to the state and the school would receive its budgeted amount in two installments during the year. The state would then deduct each participating school district's share of the vo-tech budget from their state subsidy payments.

The changes under Act 115 will have the local districts advancing the operating monies directly to the vo-tech school.

The procedure to be used by the Greene County Vo-Tech School will have the five participating school districts each making six payments to the vo-tech school during the year.

The first payment would be 25 percent of each district's share of the budget with the other five payments being adjusted to reflect each district's actual student enrollment at the vo-tech school.

Operating cost of the vo-tech school is shared by the five school districts in Greene County with each district's share established by the real estate value in the district. In addition, each district pays an additional amount according to the number of students that it actually has attending the vo-tech school. Student quotas for each district are established according to student population.

Kenneth Macek, superintendent of the Jefferson-Morgan School District and currently chief school administrator for the vo-tech school, said the new funding procedure was agreed upon by superintendents of all five school districts as the most fair way to do it.

"It's a pay-as-you-go system based on enrollment and need," Macek said.

He, as well as vo-tech school director Norman Waldman, said that some changes may have to be made in the system but that will have to be looked at in another year to see how it has worked.

The new arrangement was formulated after a cash-flow study was made on the school's proposed budget for the coming year, category by category. That was how it was decided that the first payment from the districts would have to be 25 percent with adjustments made on following payment schedules.

Vo-tech schools have no way to generate their own operating funds because they have no taxing authority and cannot borrow money.

With the funding changes, the vo-tech school will lose several thousand dollars it had been earning as interest on investments. Last year, the Greene County Vo-Tech School earned $17,000 to $18,000 on interest by investing its advance payments from the state and drawing down the money as needed.

Thomas Braddock, committee representative from the West Greene School District, cast the only negative vote when the committee gave final adoption of its 1982-83 operating budget calling for total expenditures of $634,103.

The share of the $634,103 budget for each of the five participating school districts is as follows: Carmichaels Area, $101,456; Central Greene, $234,618; Jefferson-Morgan, $107,797; Southeastern Greene, $88,774; and West Greene, $101,456.

The committee also voted to adopt the school licensed practical nursing budget in the amount of $72,422. The vote was unanimous. The LPN budget is totally financed by state reimbursement and tuition.

In other action, the committee approved a Youth Development Center summer program. The program, with a tentative starting date of July 9, will be three-hour morning classes in electrical, welding and business education.

The committee voted to hire Sandra Grose, of Waynesburg, as secretary for the CETA program.

Norman Waldman said that many applications have been received for a long-term substitute teacher in the food service area for Dorothy Kopanic who was given a one year sabbatical. Waldman, Macek and several members of the committee will review the applications for persons to be interviewed by the entire committee for hiring consideration in July.

Unique Principal Draws National Attention

KENT, OHIO — Albert Lackney, a 1956 graduate of Waynesburg College and the son-in-law of Mrs. Delilah Summersgill of Braden Street, Waynesburg, is drawing national attention for his unique methods as principal of the Crestwood Middle School in Portage County, Ohio.

Lackney, 51, recently addressed the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools in Chicago. He was the first educator in Portage County to be honored by such a request.

He has been chief administrator at the middle school since construction of the new building in 1970. He brought with him some fresh ideas he wished to try on the 1,100 students that at the time made up the largest middle school in Ohio.

During his Chicago appearance, Lackney was asked to explain those ideas to professional educators.

Crestwood, according to Lackney, is "a successful middle school model program" that has worked out a way to produce "high achievement scores" with "no bells, no locks, no vandalism and no cheerleaders."

A middle school isn't a building, Lackney explained. "A middle school is a philosophy that the kids come first." With the help of a mostly hand-picked staff of teachers, the principal has tried to develop a teaching program that is as "child centered" as possible.

A part of that philosophy involves getting students to take part in school activities. Any program that makes a child shy away from his fellow students is eliminated, Lackney said.

For example, "there are no fair criteria for picking cheerleaders. It's unfair and it breaks kids' hearts," Lackney said. Therefore, the middle school has no cheerleaders. "It's more of a high school experience anyway," he said. Another "high school experience" is tackle football and Lackney has banned the sport from the extra-curricular program. Football is often the most fiercely defended activity in American public schools. However, Lackney, who was once a high school athletic director, feels the active flag-football program he established at Crestwood generates more interest in the sport because it involves more players and doesn't discourage potential athletes.

While the school is child-centered, students are expected to handle responsibility. No bells interrupt teachers between classes because Lackney feels the students can make it to classes on time without them.

A sense of trust is also an important characteristic to encourage in a student, Lackney said. Most of the lockers in the hallways are not locked, yet theft is not a problem, he said, and neither is vandalism.

"Twenty dollars could cover my vandalism bill for a year," he insists.

While some of his policies are a bit unorthodox, Lackney said the Crestwood community is "enlightened enough" to go along with his ideas.

His popularity however, is probably tied more to what the school has than on what it doesn't have. Students consistently score well above the national average in basic skills tests, and a recent Ohio math test found Crestwood rated third in the state against schools of all sizes.

"To me, that's as big an accomplishment as a wrestling championship," Lackney said.

Students, according to the principal, will perform pretty much as they are expected to. "If you set high expectations for them, they won't let you down. You should expect a lot of good things from them."

Lackney is married to the former Martha Summersgill of Waynesburg.

Arbitrator Will Decide Validity Of Contract

SPRAGGS — The question of the validity of a union contract designed to cover former Wayne Township employees will be decided by an arbitrator.

Attorneys representing the township and Local 266 of the Laborers' District Council of Western Pennsylvania agreed to submit the issue to arbitration at the suggestion of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board.

The PLRB, at a hearing held Wednesday at Pittsburgh, said that either side would have the right to file an appeal with the PLRB if it was not satisfied with the arbitrator's decision.

The union contract was executed in November of last year to cover nine people who at that time were employed by the township. There were two supervisors — George Adams and Robert Simpson — in office at that time, with the third board member, John Jenkins, having resigned so that he could be covered by the union contract.

The contract was to have gone into effect on Jan. 1, 1982, but the new board which took office on Jan. 4 — Charles Raber, Charles Tedrow and Kenneth Kerr — disavowed it and laid off all nine employees on the grounds that the township did not have the money to continue their employment.

The union subsequently filed an unfair labor practice complaint with the PLRB on the grounds that the three elected supervisors, by working on the roads, were violating the contract by taking over jobs which could be done only by contract personnel.

Wayne Township Solicitor Ewing B. Pollock contends that the contract is invalid because the waiver of an election to accept or reject union representation was signed by a member of the bargaining unit rather than by the supervisors, because there is nothing in the minutes of township meetings to record acceptance or execution of the contract, and because the contract was signed by just one of the supervisors.

"The question of the validity of the contract is the first question the arbitrator will have to rule on," Pollock said.

Ketterling To Be Inducted Into NAIA Hall Of Fame

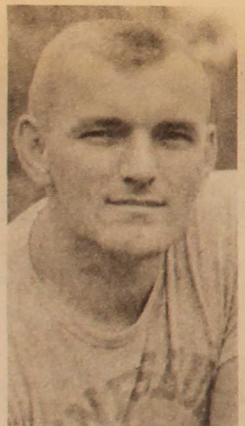

JAMESTOWN, N.D. — Clayton Ketterling, wrestling coach at Waynesburg College for 14 years, will be inducted into the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics hall of fame next March.

Ketterling teams from 1963 through the 1976-77 season posted a record of 153 wins, 61 losses and three ties. His career record as a high school and college coach was 202-70-6.

While at Dickinson College, his teams had a 37-match win streak. His best team at Waynesburg College, the 1964-65 group, was ranked third in the nation.

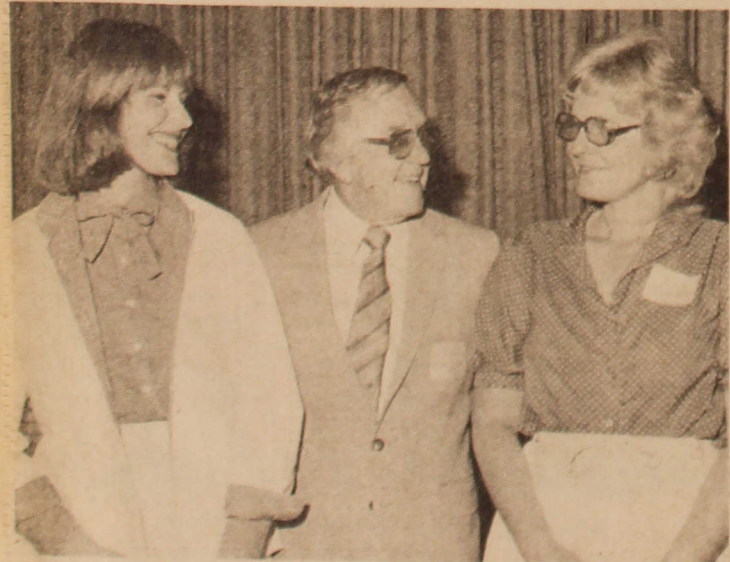

A graduate of Jamestown College where he lettered in four sports, Ketterling came to Waynesburg College in 1963 after Raymond Murdock resigned as wrestling coach.

He will join Murdock and

CLAYTON KETTERLING

Anthony Gizoni in the Helms Foundation Hall of Fame during ceremonies at the national wrestling tournament to be held in Minot, N.D., next spring.

Hospice Honor Volunteers

Several volunteers and members of the community were honored with certificates of appreciation at a Recognition Tea hosted by Hospice of Greene County Inc. on Sunday. Denise Harris, left, executive director of Hospice, presented the Volunteer of the Year award to Mrs. Carol Pultorak, right, of Waynesburg for her service to Hospice. She serves on the Board of Directors, is president of the association, works in fundraising and special projects and has provided direct assistance to Hospice clients and their families. Dr. J.E. Victor Carlson, center, founding chairman received a plaque for his continued dedication to the Hospice program. He spoke on dynamics involved in working with clients and families experiencing a terminal illness.

Stricter Enforcement Would Improve Zoning

The Waynesburg Zoning Board has been increasingly busy during the past few months in acting on requests for variances, and from all indications faces even busier times.

The most recent development involves a request by a chiropractor for permission to establish his office in a house he plans to purchase in a part of the town which is zoned for single-family dwellings.

Borough Council, at its meeting this week, gave the hearing board the power to consider the request by amending the home occupation regulations, which for some unknown reason excluded professional occupations while permitting the board to grant variances for beauty shops, craft shops and other non-professional endeavors.

The action was justified, since it gives the chiropractor the same chance to present his case as is afforded to those with other home occupations. Residents who oppose the petition will have an opportunity to be heard, and the zoning board will have to judge the case on its merits. That's as it should be. A decision will be made and that will be that.

What was disturbing was a complaint by other residents at the council meeting which, if correct, would seem to indicate that not all people are paying attention to the regulations, and may be getting away with it.

One complaint centered on work being done on a business structure in the downtown fire zone which allegedly do not conform to construction requirements regarding types of building materials.

Another resident presented a petition complaining about a property owner who had converted a house in a single-family zone into a four-apartment dwelling without permission to do so.

It's manifestly unfair to those who go through the required steps to obtain a variance to permit others to flaunt the regulations and get away with it.

There is a mechanism for policing the ordinance and it should be employed. If violators are not penalized, people will begin to get the idea that they should simply go ahead and do what they want without seeking permission.

Apparently No Substitute

Unless someone was still doing the chores, this Whiteley Township baseball team had no substitute. We have no idea when the picture was taken, who is pictured or who even owns it. Despite the half-century or more it has been around, the picture is in remarkably good condition.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

The recent death of John Pauley, a well-known member of an early Greene County family, recalled once again for many Waynesburg senior citizens the truth of the old saying that "one picture is worth a thousand words." And it's nowhere more effective at times than in the heat of a political campaign.

At the time in the early 1900s, John's father, the late W. T. H. Pauley, was bucking the Democrat organization in running for election as county treasurer.

His opponent had the solid support of the county Democrat organization regulars and the hopes of the elder Pauley to upset the election for such a well-paying job were almost non-existent.

However, some of the members of the organization had earlier been involved in some party maneuvers which, while never aired in any regular court proceedings, were one of those open secrets which everyone knew and talked about but were helpless to contest publicly as the election neared. And the chances of Pauley to win the election seemed to be fading almost by the hour.

It was at that point that John's talent as an artist were put to highly effective use.

A sketch by John showed some of the organization principals meeting around a table in postures which left no doubt that they were dividing the spoils from some sort of deal or another. Also, it made all those who saw it get the message.

He was also a member of the former Phi Sigma fraternity at the college and for years was a familiar figure at annual dinner meetings of the college alumni association. He left a substantial bequest to the college. His older brother, James, who also attended Waynesburg College, was a teacher and high school administrator for a number of years.

ing of the drawing at first glance and to be able to recognize immediately that it carried a message of political chicanery.

His father won the election almost hands down in what was one of the county's biggest political upsets up to that time.

Besides being a good artist, John also excelled in photography and worked for the state in that capacity at Harrisburg for several years. After his retirement he returned to Waynesburg, where he lived up to the time of his death.

Several years ago, John, accompanied by the late Clarence Long and long-time owner of a photo studio on West High Street, along with Long's wife, took a motor trip to the west coast and back.

Determined to make a complete photo history of the journey, they loaded all sorts of expensive cameras into the car. When they arrived back home, friends could hardly wait to see the pictures the two professional photographers had taken. But their friends were doomed to disappointment.

When they started unloading their gear, they explained that their big professional cameras were too bulky and complex to unload and set up, and that the only pictures they had time to take were made with little Brownie hand cameras that used ordinary roll film, giving them the same snapshots as hundreds and thousands of amateurs were taking all the way from Greene County to Los Angeles.

Couple Receive $610,000

WAYNESBURG — A Waynesburg area couple has received $610,000 from the sale of property in connection with proposed construction of a railroad from West Waynesburg to the new Consolidation Coal Co. mine in Richhill Township.

According to deeds recorded Thursday, the property along Route 18 between West Waynesburg and Sycamore has been sold to the Monongahela Railway Company by William A. Wilson Jr. and his wife Verla, Sycamore R.D.1.

Two of the deeds covers sale of 37 acres on the north side of Route 18, opposite the former Preston gas transmission station. Another conveys to the Wilsons 25.8 acres of adjoining land which the railway company purchased some time ago from Mark Headlee, while a fourth transfers 7.1 acres of the Headlee property back to the railway.

Public Records

WAYNESBURG — The following deeds were recorded during the past week in the office of Greene County Register and Recorder Thomas Headlee:

Mabel Kent with just some of her shoes.

Hundreds Of Shoes,
 But Not For Wearing

By JIM MOORE
 Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — Unlike the lady who lived in the shoe and had so many children she didn't know what to do, Mabel Kent of Waynesburg has so many shoes she doesn't know what to do.

Actually, she does know what to do. She puts them on the windowsills, floor, shelves and cabinets.

It all began about 20 years ago when three sisters decided to begin a collection of some kind. Ann Thomas starting collection skillets; Mildred Phillips selected turtles and Mrs. Kent opted for shoes. "Everyone was collecting something, so we decided to join them," Mrs. Kent said.

She joined them in a big way. The next shoe will make an even 400. They are not necessarily pairs and they range in size from a full-size pair of wooden shoes to a shoe that's only an inch long.

There are shoes made of tin, plastic, brass, wood, ceramics and even coal. They are neatly displayed in one room of the farm home along Route 18 a few miles northwest of Waynesburg. Some of the shoes are in the form of bracelet charms and Avon perfume bottles; and one pair of shoes is of the windup variety and will walk right off the table.

Some shoes are flower pots and some hold cigarette lighters. Some are knitted and one pair is carved. They come from Mexico, Taiwan, Holland and a dozen states. Another shoe is actually a bottle with the opening in the toe. Mrs. Kent has no idea what the bottle once contained.

Some shoes have a cat, mouse or even dog peering out. One shoe is actually a seashell that just happens to look like a shoe. Another shoe is a bank but even if it was full of money it would mean less than two "special" handmade shoes.

The special shoes were made by her grand-nephews when they were small children. Rob and Ross Kalsey, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Kalsey, are always on the lookout, like their parents, for another shoe to add to the collection. Rob cut some cloth into the general outline of a shoe, tied a ribbon to it and presented it to Mrs. Kent several years ago. It holds a place of honor in the collection.

Not to be outdone, Ross decided to make a shoe also. He cut and shaped the cloth but couldn't find anything to stuff inside the two pieces. In a desperate move, he went to the barn and got a handful of horse feed and stuffed the shoe. It too has a place of honor in the collection.

Mrs. Kent hasn't added to her collection lately, saying the shoe replicas are becoming harder to find.

"Then again, perhaps I have bought them all," she said. She now scours many yard sales searching for more shoes.

Barber Shop In Rices Landing
 Intact 41 Years After Closing

By JIM MOORE
 Staff Writer

RICES LANDING — It seemed like a time warp.

When you step through the door of the Roseberry Barber Shop on Main Street in Rices Landing, the first thing you notice is the musty smell. That's understandable because the shop has remained virtually untouched since February, 1941.

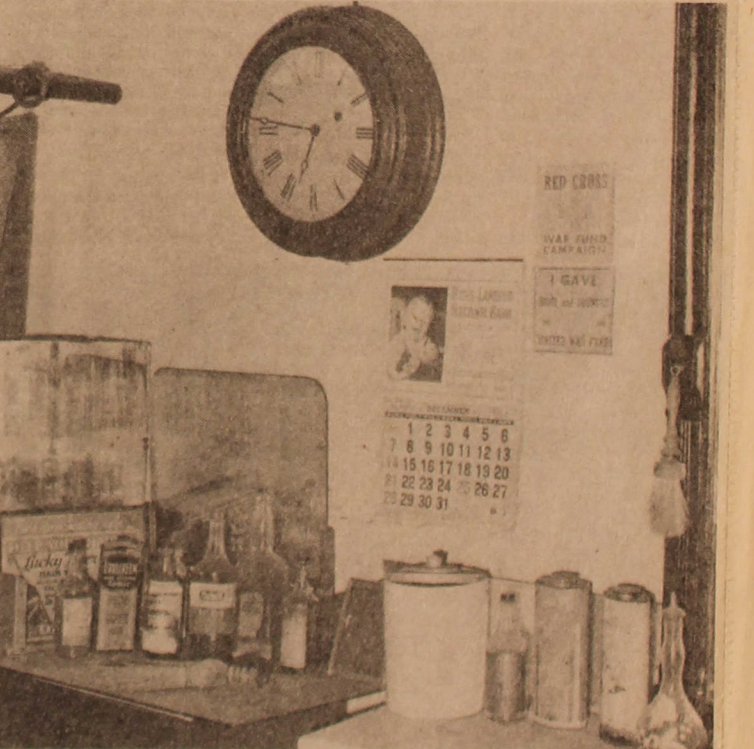

It has been over 40 years since the familiar "next" rang out in the two-chair emporium along the main street of this river town. Until recently, even the coins in the cash drawer remained as a silent link to the past.

The shop was owned by Benjamin C. Roseberry, a life-long resident of the community who was the second generation of the family to cut hair in the town. Benjamin's son Purl helped his father in the shop during the evenings. When Benjamin died, Purl closed the doors and never again operated the shop.

The shop was a community meeting place and a "hang out" for local residents, especially those with a musical instrument. Purl taught violin and clarinet and was a member of the Rices Landing Military Band.

Purl, who was a special agent for the Monongahela Railroad, was a third generation barber. His grandfather, Elijah Roseberry was a town barber at the turn of the century and taught his son Benjamin. Their shop was in the old House Hotel until a fire leveled the entire corner of the block. It was then Benjamin moved his shop to the current site.

The old Inghram wall clock

Time stood still after shop's doors were closed.

became silent and the wall calendars collected dust as did the display case and counters. Bottles of Lucky Tiger, Sweet Pea Talcum, Wildroot and Brylcreem lined the shelves and evaporated over the last four decades. Razors and scissors remain almost rust-free and the towels show little sign of age.

Two wooden barber chairs, with the familiar sanitized paper on the neck rests, stand as mute testimony to the days when a haircut cost 25 cents. A towel steamer stands next to the wash basin and shows little sign of aging. Two gas lights, with the mantles intact, capable of illuminating the shop.

Brushes remain in the soap cups although the soap has long since disappeared. Most of the supplies carry the name "Edlis Barber Supply Co. of Pittsburgh." According to Ben Roseberry, grandson of Benjamin and a two-time mayor of the town, "Grandpap caught the packet boat in Rices Landing and went to Pittsburgh to buy his barber supplies."

Mr. Roseberry said he has offered the entire shop to Meadowcroft Village for a permanent display. However, he has not received an answer. Should Meadowcroft refuse the offer, Roseberry said he would consider giving the shop to the local historical society.

Betty Ann Eckard Weds Naval Officer In Md.

Betty Ann Eckard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Eckard of Friendly, Md., was married May 29, 1982, to Lt. Cmdr. C. Paul Duffield Jr., U.S. Navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Paul Duffield Sr. of Waynesburg.

MRS. DUFFIELD JR.

The ceremony was held in the Chapel at Andrews Air Force Base, Camp Springs, Md., with Chaplain Rodney Hanson, a U.S. Navy lieutenant, officiating.

Mrs. Jack Payne of Alexandria, Va., attended as matron of honor. Mr. Duffield was his son's best man. Ushers included Carl Duffield, the bridegroom's brother of Waynesburg; Jack Miller of San Francisco, Calif., and William Milliken of Trafford, Pa., brothers-in-law of the bridegroom.

The reception took place in the Officers' Club, Andrews Air Force Base.

The bride is a graduate of Crossland Senior High School and Strayer College in Washington, D.C., where she was valedictorian. She is a Supervisory Personnel Staffing and Classification Specialist with the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Waynesburg High School and Waynesburg College. He is currently serving as Course Director, Manpower Systems Management at the Defense Systems Management College, Ft. Belvoir, Va.

The couple cruised the Caribbean on their honeymoon and will reside in Alexandria, Va., near Mt. Vernon.

Peabody ABC offers a wide range of mine and tunnel fans to meet specific requirements. Shown here is a carriage-mounted model coupled to Rigiduct tubing.

Warehouse Moved To Waynesburg

WAYNESBURG — The eastern warehouse of the Peabody ABC Corporation has been moved to Waynesburg from Washington.

Peabody ABC, headquartered in Warsaw, Ind., manufactures and distributes a full line of mine ventilation equipment.

The new location will allow Peabody ABC to expand its light manufacturing capacity and allow greater access to transportation facilities. A primary benefit of the relocation is improved service to the eastern United States for products such as brattice cloth roll goods, line curtains and fly pads. Larger inventories of Rigiduct and Minevent ducting can now be stocked as well.

James Marsillett has been appointed warehouse manager of the new facility. Marsillett, formerly a department supervisor at the Warsaw plant, has eight years experience with Peabody ABC. James Kozorra remains the northeastern regional sale representative. It is located on Rolling Meadows Road in the former Coca Cola facility.

Peabody International Corp. is a New York Stock Exchange listed company with 1981 annual revenues of $424 million. Peabody, which now employs 5,600 people at 61 locations, provides equipment and services for energy conversion, power generation, pollution control, industrial and agricultural markets.

Haynes Tosses Perfect Game

telling the boys Tim and Tim will be graduating soon and I'll need someone to step in and take their place. But at the same time I want to get the best boys I can, not those who may just be mediocre. And I'll be working hard to get them next year too."

This year's search will apparently end without the Jackets securing the proverbial big man in the center position. Marisa insists he would love to recruit a dominating center but can't find any available.

"I don't even meet boys that size. I don't even see them," he said. "I think Cal State getting that (6-10 sophomore John) Acors kid is a minor miracle to me. He's going to be a fine player.

Sure, I'd like to get a big guy. But it seems that players who come here and do well are quick and jump well or they just can't play."

Jackets' Recruiting Season Continues

By TOM ROSE
O-R Sports Editor

In years gone by Rudy Marisa would have the worries of recruiting behind him before the annual June vacation.

But times have changed for the Waynesburg College basketball program. The Marisa family still enjoys their summer vacation, but when the fun and sun is over the recruiting work continues.

"No, this isn't the normal process for me," Marisa, the Waynesburg head coach, said in a telephone interview Tuesday night. "In previous years I wouldn't be meeting people in June on campus but this has been an unusual recruiting year. The trips out of state have taken a little more time."

"Normally I would have known by May 1st or May 15th how the recruiting year was going but I still can't tell yet what kind of recruiting year I'm going to have. I may end up with a great recruiting year, an average one or a poor one."

While Marisa admits there are several prospects he is hopeful of signing in the near future, he has secured three firm commitments to date. Two of the incoming freshmen are forward-types. Bob O'Donald of Altoona High School and Scott McCloud of Valley, while Williamsburg point guard Sam Liberman is the third prospect.

McCloud (6-3) will enroll at Waynesburg with impressive credentials. He was a member of the Metro to a pair of WPIAL section championships.

"He's rugged, tough, determined and shows constant motion on the court. He doesn't stand and watch," Marisa said. "Those are the traits I saw in him. He really does have a good resume."

Liberman, a 5-8 guard, will apparently serve his apprenticeship behind junior Ray Natili of Washington's Immaculate Conception. But according to Marisa, Liberman's abilities were too promising to simply pass by.

"He's quick and he's a team player," he said. "We'd like to believe he's in the same mold as Cliff Mitchell (a highly-regarded California State College recruit). I'm not sure we'll have room for him right away in the lineup with Raymond around but we should be pretty deep at that position now."

O'Donald, a 6-5 forward, was also recruited to add some inside depth for the Jackets and provide additional rebounding support.

The remainder of the Waynesburg prospects remain a mystery, one that Marisa prefers to keep alive.

But there's no doubt this recruiting season is a critical one for the Waynesburg program. Co-captains Tim Tyler and Tim Walker are seniors and the players added this spring may find themselves in prominent roles a year from now.

"I have to admit I had that thought in mind," Marisa said. "I've been Index Finest 40 and averaged 17 points per game while leading Valley
