

Work Continues On Miller Hall

WAYNESBURG — Restoration and repair work is continuing on A.B. Miller Hall, the second oldest building on the Waynesburg College campus, to preserve the structure and help restore it to its original condition.

The work, being done by King Construction and Restoration of Waynesburg, is being funded in part by a grant from the Pennsylvania Bureau for Historical Preservation. This phase of restoration work will be finished this summer.

"Miller Hall has been neglected in recent years in favor of making more money available for student scholarships," Edward A. Marotta, director of college relations, said. "The structure has several problems that must be solved if the college is to continue to utilize it."

Water damage and leakage are two major concerns, and were high on the priority list for the college. During phase one, repairs will be made to the roof, gutters, downspouts and mortar.

"Once we have the water problems under control, we'll be able to deal with other problems," Marotta said.

Soffit and fascia will be repaired or replaced, windows will be caulked and painted, and repairs will be made to the brickwork and mortar as needed. In all cases, special care will be taken to match the original condition, workmanship and materials of the building, he noted.

"The people working on Miller Hall are following specifications written by Bob Childs, who served as the architect at the beginning of this project, and approved by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission and the Office of Historic Preservation," Marotta said.

"Our goal is to take every precaution to maintain the character of the building and to use materials that match the original construction."

Mortar samples from Miller Hall were analyzed by Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory and all repairs to the mortar are being made with a mortar that matches the content of the sample. Loose bricks will be repaired and missing or damaged bricks replaced.

The college's original request to the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission for funding included monies to completely repaint the building and clean the exterior. Funding cuts at the federal and state levels made it financially impossible to repaint and clean the building at the present time.

"The college still plans to pursue other revenue sources," Marotta said. "Much more needs to be done to the building."

The proposed cleaning involved use of a mild chemical that has the approval of the state architect and the museum commission. A building such as Miller Hall, constructed of relatively soft brick, should not be sandblasted.

Miller Hall was begun in 1879. The largest building on campus, Miller has served as a residence hall and gymnasium and housed classrooms, laboratory facilities, and the college library at various times. Today, the building is used for administrative offices, the Education Department, the college bookstore and Alumni Hall.

West Greene Deals Out School Chief

By CHRISTIE R. MOLZON
Staff Writer

GRAYSVILLE — Dr. Elliott LeFaiver was, in effect, fired from his position as superintendent of the West Greene School District during a heated meeting Tuesday.

The board, by a 6-1 motion, directed their solicitor to present LeFaiver with a letter to the effect that after his contract expires on July 1, 1983, his services will no longer be required.

Dr. LeFaiver, who was at the meeting, expressed no reaction to the motion. The only board member who voted against the motion was Anne Bower.

That motion followed one to open up social studies and home economics positions at the high school. Mrs. Bower noted that the original motion was to hire a secondary English teacher and not a social studies teacher. She commented that the "involuntary transfer of a good teacher in this district is a mistake. This is not being made for educational improvement."

Dr. LeFaiver said "I consider it a bastardizing of the educational process" and termed it a political move.

Although it was not brought out at the meeting, speculation was that the board's action centered on a desire to employ an individual as a football coach who is certified in social studies and not in English. Through its motion, the board would transfer a social studies teacher to the vacant English position and make room on the faculty for employment of the person being considered for the coaching spot.

During the open meeting, Dr. LeFaiver handed a sealed envelope to a news reporter with the request that it be held until the next meeting. It evidently contained his prediction about the reasons for the board maneuvers.

"When you open it a month from now, you'll see I am right," he said.

Prior to the controversial actions, the board held a 30 minute executive meeting. After it was over, Anne Bower, when asked what had happened, said "I can't begin to explain it. It's inexplicable."

The board was still deliberating on the budget at 11:30 p.m. after five motions for its passage had been defeated.

Questions involved whether the property tax level should be continued at its present level of 44 mills or dropped to 43 mills; whether money for a business manager should be included; whether provision should be made for the hiring of an industrial arts teacher and the purchase of necessary equipment for the new middle school program, and the amount of money that should be left in budgetary reserve since the district is currently involved in teacher negotiations.

Crew Chases 'Patient' Eight Miles

WAYNESBURG — An ambulance crew from the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Company had to chase their "patient" for eight miles on Interstate 79 early Thursday morning and then found his only complaint was being sleepy and cold.

Audie Whipkey and Dorsen Gilbert had picked up an accident victim at Gateway Mine and were heading for Greene County Memorial Hospital. They came upon an apparent accident victim along the southbound ramp in Ruff Creek.

The "victim" was on the ground huddled around his motorcycle.

According to the crew's report, "He appeared to be dead." They immediately called the fire hall to request a second ambulance and the state police.

Just as the second ambulance arrived, the "victim" got up, straddled his Yamaha and sped off toward Waynesburg at a high rate of speed.

Both ambulances continued toward Waynesburg and, when they pulled off the interstate, noticed the cycle rider at the Exxon Service Station. Mike McMahon and Helen Kozlowski, the second ambulance crew, stopped to question the "victim" and obtain a release form.

Steve Jones, who said he was from West Virginia, told the ambulance crew he traveled 150 miles to work each day. He also failed to say where he worked but admitted it was too cold at 3:50 a.m. to be traveling. He was also sleepy so he decided to dismount and catch a few winks "under" his cycle which was still running at the time.

Apparently without regard to the hot exhaust pipes, the possibility of his bike falling on him or a motorist crashing into him, Jones curled up and went to sleep.

He obligingly signed the release form and continued south.

Small Decrease In Violent Crimes During 1981

WAYNESBURG — Pennsylvania crime statistics released this week by the state police indicate Greene County reflected the state figures by reporting a small decrease in the number of serious crimes during the past year.

There were 39 violent crimes reported in Greene County during 1981, down from 48 in 1980. The biggest increase was noted in robberies with 19 reported in 1981 and nine the previous year. Increases were also noted in larceny/theft and burglaries. In 1980, state police reported 284 burglaries and the figure increased by seven last year. There were also 25 more larceny/thefts in 1981 than in the previous year.

Rape showed a marked increase in 1981 with six cases reported. There was only one rape reported in 1980. There were eight cases of arson reported last year and six the previous year.

In 1981, there were 79 vehicles reported stolen, down from the 100 reported the previous year. There were two murders in 1981 and one the previous year.

State police reported solving 20.3 percent of the major criminal cases which occurred in Greene County during 1981. The statewide average is 22.5 percent. Although arrests were made in most of the violent crimes, there was a low conviction rate for larceny/theft with only 82 arrests made in the 402 instances reported. Only 11 arrests were made in the 79 vehicle thefts and 44 arrests in the 291 burglaries.

In the lesser crimes category, statistics reveal a large increase in assaults, forgery and sex offenses.

During 1981, there were 52 assaults reported, better than 200 percent more than reported the previous year when 23 were investigated by police. Forgery increased 600 percent with 18 reported in 1981 and only three the previous year.

For the second consecutive year, there were no gambling, prostitution, or embezzlement arrests made in the county. Drinking related offenses were also down with driving-while-intoxicated arrests falling from 76 in 1980 to 52 last year. Liquor law violations fell from 111 in 1980 to 72 last year. Police arrested 133 persons for drunkenness in 1980 and 127 last year.

There were 11 arrests for sex offenses last year, up sharply from the four arrests made in 1980. Drug arrests increased from 25 in 1980 to 37 last year with the majority of the increase resulting from a major raid in Waynesburg.

According to state police commissioner Daniel F. Dunn, "this is the first time since 1977 there has been a decrease in reported crime in Pennsylvania. This reduction, while slight, is welcome."

Dunn credited some of the decrease to the organization of "Neighborhood Watch" programs, calling the program "an excellent way to involve the public in crime prevention." He went on to say, "I heartily recommend the concept to every community."

Dunn noted there were 3,641 assaults on police officers, a 3.5 percent increase from 1980. Two law enforcement officers in the state, both from Philadelphia, were killed in the line of duty in 1981.

Southeastern Greene Passes 14-Mill Property Tax Hike

MAPLETOWN — A $2.7 million budget with a 14 mill-tax increase for the Southeastern Greene School District was passed by the board Wednesday night, but what should have been a simple procedure took close to four hours.

Included in the $2,748,907 budget is $90,000 for a partial payment for the elementary renovation project, an undesignated amount for teacher contract raises, and possible staff reductions which will be decided on at a later date. It was learned that the board is considering furloughing three elementary teachers and nine persons on the janitorial staff.

The increase puts the district's millage at 71 mills.

The special meeting, which was scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., but had also been advertised for 8 p.m., did not get underway until 9 p.m.

The board did not have a quorum until 7:45 p.m. when Floyd Hornick arrived. At that point, members Jim Minor, Bob Watson, Gary Mosier and Mark Brozik were also present. But, since several board members felt Brozik would vote against the school budget, the meeting was not convened until 9 p.m. when Emil Enoff showed up.

When the motion to pass the budget was taken, however, Enoff voted with Brozik against its passage. At that point, 9:10 p.m., Minor recessed the meeting. While district solicitor John Stets attempted to persuade Enoff or Brozik to change their no votes to an affirmative one; Minor, Watson and Hornick tried to contact board member John Mason at a church where he was attending services to ask him to attend the meeting. It was reported that members Dave Bierer and Adam Novak were both out of town.

County To Get $34,985 Check

HARRISBURG — Greene County will be receiving a check for $34,985 this month from the state Department of Transportation representing the county's share of state police fine revenue.

The county received a $37,069 check last December bring the fiscal year total to $72,054.

Before 10 p.m. Brozik agreed to change his vote since passage had to take place before the June 30 deadline or the matter would have to be brought before the court. However, the other board members would not reconvene the meeting until Mason arrived.

At 10:25 p.m. Brozik left the building and five minutes later Mason arrived. With the needed five votes, the budget was passed with Enoff voting against it.

A motion to increase the real estate tax to 13 mills was defeated when Mosier voted no saying, "I don't think that's going to be enough to get us through the school year."

Mosier then made a motion to raise the millage to 14 mills and it was approved. The board also levied the one percent income tax, the one percent real estate transfer tax, the 10 occupational privilege tax and the $5 per capita tax.

Two County Groups Favor, Other Votes Down Union

WAYNESBURG — Two groups of county employees voted Wednesday in favor of union representation. A third group turned it down in a tie vote.

As a result of the election held under supervision of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, employees who were grouped in the county commissioners unit and those in the court appointed unit will be represented by Local 585, Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO.

While employees at the Curry Memorial Home have belonged to the same union for more than five years, this marks the first incursion by a union into other areas of county government.

Forty-one of the 43 full-time and regular part-time employees who made up the county commissioners unit voted, with 27 of them voting for SEIU representation and 14 against. They include people who work in the commissioners' office, maintenance department, Tax Claim Bureau, tax assessment office, Children's Services, police communications, planning commission office, airport, recreation department, Veterans' Affairs office and treasurer's office.

All 11 people in the court-appointed unit voted, favoring union representation by a margin of seven to four. They work in the offices of the district magistrates, domestic relations department and probation department.

Eight of the 10 people who made up the court-related unit went to the polling place, dividing 4-4 on the question of representation. John Haer, SEIU representative, said that a tie vote is traditionally interpreted in favor of the "no" voters, since a majority vote of more than 50 percent is required for the union to be recognized as the bargaining agent.

The court-related unit included employees in the offices of the prothonotary, register and recorder, clerk of courts, jury commissioners, district attorney, public defender and sheriff.

Management level employees, including supervisors, first level supervisors and confidential employees are barred from union membership and were not entitled to vote.

The election was conducted by John Posul, a PLRB agent, who said five voters, all of them in the county commissioner unit, were challenged for various reasons. In one case, for example, two employees whose names were on the list of eligible voters resigned prior to the election and their successors were challenged.

Posul said the challenged voters were permitted to cast ballots, which were kept separate from other ballots in sealed envelopes. They will be counted only if the PLRB rules that they should be. In this case, because of the 27-14 vote in that unit, the five votes could not change the outcome of the election.

He said that results of the election will not be official until they are reviewed by the PLRB, which should take several weeks. Haer said the SEIU will seek to enter into contract negotiations with the county commissioners as soon as possible after the results are declared official.

Haer also said that the PLRB has scheduled a hearing for July 29 on questions which have been raised regarding a fourth group of employees — people who work at the county jail.

The county has challenged the eligibility of three shift commanders to be included in the unit on the grounds that they are supervisory personnel. That unit's election will be held after the issue has been resolved.

In addition, the SEIU has petitioned the PLRB for an election involving a fifth unit made up of the seven registered nurses who work at the Curry Home. Registered nurses were not included in the Curry Home unit which already has union representation.

Reunion Solves Problem Of Where To Hold Wedding

GARARDS FORT — When Lee Ann Fordyce and Roger Peter Tubby were planning their wedding, one of the decisions they had to make was where it should be held.

Both were working in Washington, D.C., where they met, but their parents were on opposite sides of the United States — Warren and Phyllis Fordyce in Vashon, Wash., and Roger and Ann Tubby in Saranac Lake, N.Y. And their friends were scattered at many places in between.

The solution came out of the bride-to-be's interest in her family roots. They decided to hold it at the Corbly Memorial Baptist Church in Garards Fort.

The date selected was Saturday, June 26, so that they could stay over for one day — before leaving on a trip to the Adirondack Mountains — to attend the 51st annual reunion of descendants of the Rev. John Corbly, an affair which is always held at the church on the last Sunday in June.

"This is only the second reunion I've attended, but I've been to Garards Fort four times," Lee Ann said Sunday. "The first time was in 1956, when I was just a little girl. I was last here for the reunion in 1979 when I was still living in Cincinnati. It's fun to meet the people who come."

She explained that she is an eighth generation descendant of the Rev. Corbly and his first wife, Abigail Bull, whom he married in Virginia in 1752. When he moved west following his wife's death in 1768, the pioneer minister brought his four children with him. Lee Ann traces her line through his second daughter, Rachel, who married Justus Garard in 1773.

Since the Rev. Corbly had three wives and 17 children, 12 of whom lived to marry and raise families of their own, the

Choir To Sing

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Sunday School All-Church choir will perform Thursday, July 15, during the county convention at the First Baptist Church in Waynesburg.

Choir practice will be held in the church at 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 12. All churches in the county are urged to have representatives in the choir.

The choir will use the "Family of God" hymn book for special numbers, and those who have the hymnal are asked to take it to practice.

Mrs. Ralph L. Hoge of Waynesburg, a former director of the choir during the bicentennial presentation of "I Love America," will direct the choir and Robert Scott will be the accompanist.

clan is a big one. There were people from Maryland, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Washington, Florida, Virginia, Indiana and West Virginia at the reunion, and some of them were in the county early enough to attend the wedding at 3 p.m. Saturday.

At the request of the bride and bridegroom, the pastor, the Rev. Robert Barnes, welcomed guests to the church at the start of the marriage ceremony by presenting a brief outline of its history.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Ron (Ardean) Fox of Pomeroy, Wash., and the bridegroom by his daughters, Christina and Morgan Tubby. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Greene County Country Club. Prior to the ceremony, a brunch was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eichenlaub of Waynesburg, with Mrs. Jane Brewer assisting.

"My parents have always enjoyed attending the reunions when they got a chance to do so, and this gave them an opportunity to come back again and visit with their relatives in this area," the bride said. "We decided to ask the minister to give the little history of the church because we wanted Roger's parents and family and our friends to share our interest in it."

The bridegroom's father, who served as President Truman's press secretary and was later ambassador to Switzerland for seven years, is presently an economic advisor to the governor of New York.

"I think it was an excellent idea," he said. "It made a nice setting for the wedding and it gave us a chance to meet a lot of Lee Ann's relatives."

At the reunion on Sunday, the newlyweds were presented with a special gift by the reunion secretaries, Leota Murphy and Leola Sewell of Anderson, Ind., twin sisters who have not missed one of the get-togethers since 1960.

The bride is a graduate of Washington State University, where she received her BA degree in communications. She also has a master's degree from the University of Cincinnati, where she attended classes while working as an executive with the company which owns the Delta Queen and Mississippi Queen riverboats. She is now a consultant in marketing and sales in Washington, D.C.

The bridegroom, who attended schools in Switzerland, Choate Preparatory School and the University of Kansas, is a partner in K.N.R., a computer software design firm in Washington, D.C.

The couple will reside in Reston, Va.

The statue lady stands looking down at New York Harbor at America! She is looking over a nation which has still not cast off dissension... a nation of soul-searching, of division of all things that marked its revolutionary beginnings.

True, we are living in troubled times. But haven't times always been troubled? And since men and women are not saints, won't there always be problems and soul-searching and division?

But the important thing is that ultimately our unity has always transcended our differences... just as the unity of the Church has triumphed over even more difficult differences and division.

Our nation is over 200 years old. But it is merely a child compared to the age of the Church. In celebrating our nation's independence, isn't it a good time to turn to the Church and to everything for which it stands?

Planning Commission Approves Revised Highway Plan

By BOB EICHENLAUB
Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Planning Commission Monday approved the revised version of the Department of Transportation's 12 year highway program, as it applies to Greene County, and gave final approval to plans for the construction of a Hardee's Restaurant in Morrisville.

The highway plan, which is updated every two years, has been revised to reflect increased cost estimates and to substitute projects for those which have been completed since it was drawn up in 1980.

The Greene County plan, which was approved without change as it applies to state highway projects, projects the expenditure of $9.8 million in the county, virtually all of it on bridges.

The commission questioned the allocation of $4.2 million of the total for the rehabilitation of nine bridges on Interstate 79 between Mt. Morris and the Washington County line. County Planner explained that the money allocated to this work comes out of a special federal program and can be used only for interstate improvements.

On the basis of information furnished by commission member Floyd Hornick and a Bobtown resident, Eugene Dingle, the planning commission will strongly recommend that replacement of the bridge at the foot of the Bobtown hill, which is included in the 12-year program, be done as soon as possible.

"That bridge was supposed to be replaced in 1975 and we still have been unable to get anything done," Hornick said. "We've had help from our congressman and state representatives and have exhausted every politician in southwestern Pennsylvania trying to get something done."

Hornick, who is also a member of the Southeastern Greene School Board, explained that the bridge is on the main road into Bobtown and is posted with a five-ton weight limit so it can't be used by school buses.

"The buses have to travel back roads that add about 12 miles a day to the distance traveled by each bus and about 70 miles a day to our total transportation," he said. "And what is worse, it forces the buses to use back roads that are very dangerous."

PennDOT has said that it will upgrade the bridge this summer to increase its weight-carrying capacity to 15 tons, and has the span on the 12-year plan for total replacement in the 1984-88 period.

The planning commission will push for immediate replacement by contacting both district PennDOT officials and those in Harrisburg.

"It's foolish to spend money to repair it when it is an obsolete bridge and is going to be replaced anyway," Hornick said. "The people in Bobtown want it replaced now."

The planning commission also approved the addition of seven county bridges to the state's 12-year plan, with those selected being bridges which county engineer Vance DeCas has said are in worse condition. All are posted with four-ton weight limits or less, with their replacement cost being estimated at a total of $694,000.

Three representatives of Guardian Foods Inc. of South Carolina met with the commission to present revised plans for the Hardee's Restaurant the firm plans to erect on Route 21 in Morrisville, just east of the Foodland intersection.

Fred Dunston, Guardian vice president, presented required approvals from the Franklin Township supervisors, Greene County Soil Conservation Service and the necessary state highway entrance permits. Following a discussion of concerns over traffic movement within the restaurant parking area, the planning commission gave final approval to the plans.

Dunston said that if the company can promptly exercise its option to buy the property, which is at the corner of Route 21 and East Street (the road past the East Franklin School), it hopes to break ground in August.

Requests for approval of two subdivisions were presented on behalf of J. K. Willison of Waynesburg. Each are four-lot subdivisions involving 10 acres or more in each lot.

The commission deferred action on the Orange Subdivision in Dunkard Township, near Davistown, until the county planner can visit the site to resolve concerns about possible drainage problems.

The Idle Acres subdivision on a township road in Wayne Township was approved with the stipulation that the plan, when filed, contain notation of recommendations made by the Conservation Service concerning possible floodplain problems.

Former Countian Picked To Represent Jaycettes

CARMICHAELS — A former Carmichaels resident is serving as an Ohio representative to the national Jaycee convention in Phoenix, Ariz., following her selection as "Ohio Jaycee Woman."

Mrs. Nancy Long Turner of Sandusky, Ohio, won the state title over 65 competitors in the "Speak Up," which involves making a speech on a line of the Jaycee Creed.

Title of her speech was "believe in yourself," taken from the line of the creed that says "faith in God gives meaning and purpose to human life."

The national convention opened June 26 and runs through July 1. On June 27, Mrs. Turner gave her speech in competition against winners from every state, with results of the national competition still unknown.

Mrs. Turner is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Long of Carmichaels and is a graduate of Carmichaels Area High School and of West Virginia

NANCY LONG TURNER University, where she majored in drama. She is vice president of the Sandusky Jaycettes; a member of the Sandusky Jaycee Youth Foundation, and was named Jaycette of the Year in Sandusky.

Cumberland Twp. Board Adopts Official By-Laws

CARMICHAELS — The recently organized Cumberland Township Zoning Hearing Board met Monday night and adopted official by-laws.

An amendment was included stating the zoning officer, on behalf of the hearing board, shall refer copies of applications for variances, special uses and amendments to the Cumberland Township Planning Commission for its recommendations. The officer shall also notify the hearing board secretary at the same time, in writing, and submit the original application to the hearing board.

The first application submitted is for a special use permit for surface mining. The application was submitted by property owner Mary Rapchak of Carmichaels R.D. and strip mine operators Arthur J. Boyle and John C. Boyle of Greensburg. The property in question is in district A-1, designated agricultural.

The board passed a motion to hold a public hearing on the Rapchak-Boyle application at the Monday, Aug. 2 meeting.

The application was submitted to the township planning commission June 15 for recommendations. The commission has 30 days to present a recommendation to the hearing board.

All legal forms that will be in use by the zoning hearing board and zoning officer were presented by solicitor William Hook for review.

Acting chairman John Martin reported zoning officer John T. Masuga has issued eight permits to date and refused one.

The new board will meet for a work session in July to review procedures for public hearings.

Boy Drowns In Stream

The son of a former Waynesburg couple drowned Saturday when he fell into a flood-swollen stream near his home in Wichita, Kan.

The body of Jeff Nogy, 17, was recovered shortly after noon Monday, according to information received in Waynesburg by friends of the family.

The victim is a son of Michael and Frances (Timmy) Nogy, who resided in the Morrisville section of Waynesburg for several years before moving to Kansas in 1976. During that time, Mrs. Nogy, who is a registered nurse, was employed at Greene County Memorial Hospital. They have an older son, Christopher. The family is originally from Belle Vernon.

Friends said they were told by Mr. Nogy that the youth and two other boys were along the edge of a stream at 6 p.m. Saturday when Jeff slipped.

Fischers Plans Fireworks Display

WAYNESBURG — Jim Hill, manager of Fischers Big Wheel in Waynesburg, has announced the store will again sponsor a fireworks display in the store parking lot Saturday, July 3.

The display will begin about 9:30 p.m. and will last for about 30 minutes. The George Zambelli Fireworks Co. of New Castle, a nationally known fireworks manufacturer, will stage the display.

Teen Hit By Car

George R. Patterson, 16, of Waynesburg R.D. 6, was only slightly injured when he rode his bicycle into an intersection in Franklin Township east of Waynesburg and was struck by a car.

School Board Membership Increasingly Complex Job

People who want to serve their communities by sitting on school board are learning that it involves a lot more than hiring a teacher or a football coach and keeping an eye on the way schools are being operated.

Running a school district has become big business, as anyone who searches through the complexity of increasingly large budgets will discover. School directors become involved in union negotiations, frequently tie into the difficulties of erecting large and expensive buildings, and routinely face tough decisions in which the desire to save hard-pressed taxpayers as much money as possible has to be balanced against their responsibility to provide children with a quality education.

New situations arise all the time. An example is the proposal currently being advanced in Greene County through which school boards can earn money by taking advantage of the high interest rates currently available in the money market.

It's a very complex thing, but in essence it involves using a district's power to borrow money through general obligation tax anticipation bonds at a relatively low rate of interest and then invest the money at a higher rate to earn substantial amounts of money.

Since the district's don't need the money to operate their schools, it goes against the grain of many conservative board members to take advantage of their unique situation, even through it's entirely legal and entirely safe.

Only the fact that the interest in most cases is the equivalent of a mill or more of property tax revenues persuades them to go along.

A lot of professional advice is available, but in the end it is the farmer, the housewife and the coal miner who sits on a board that has the final say. The open-minded attitude with which most approach a difficult job is a testimonial to the concept of citizen-run government.

Record Decision Signed

WAYNESBURG — The U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) has taken the final step leading to design and construction of sixth and final dam to control flood waters in the Wheeling Creek watershed.

Ann Bower, executive director of the Wheeling Creek Watershed Commission, said Tuesday that the SCS has officially signed the "record of decision" which was necessary before Dam PA-648 could be built on the Enlow Fork of Wheeling Creek in Richhill Township, just east of the West Virginia line in the northwestern corner of Greene County.

Mrs. Bower said it will take approximately a year for the SCS to complete engineering and design work for the dam. The timetable calls for obtaining of state and federal construction permits in the fall of 1983, allowing for solicitation of construction bids by the end of that year. Construction would begin in early 1984, with two construction seasons being required to complete the structure.

During the design period, the watershed commission will acquire land, relocate utilities and change roads. The long-range study of PA-648's impacts will begin.

The structure will cost an estimated $8.2 million, with $7.3 million coming from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the balance from the watershed commission. Purpose of the system of dams is to prevent flooding from Wheeling Creek at Wheeling, W. Va.

Unlike the other dams in the system, which have permanent pools of water, PA-648 will be built as a "dry dam," with no permanent pool. All land to the "top-of-dam" elevation will be purchased outright or will be placed under a "conservation easement" which effectively eliminates its use for any form of development.

The conduit through the earthen dam will be equivalent in size to six feet in diameter but will be designed in an oblong or rectangular shape to minimize restriction of the downstream flow of the Enlow Fork. Double deflectors will be placed in the stream bed above the dam to create pools and ripples for the benefit of the fish population of the stream.

Mrs. Bower said that a long-range study of the effect of PA-648 will be prepared by Dr. Bruce Barnett of Waynesburg College. "It will serve as both a valuable research tool and will also make recommendations to compensate for any adverse environmental effects," she said.

The watershed commission, in addition, will work with interested agencies and individuals to study additional land acquisition above the "top-of-dam" elevation. It will cooperate with state and other conservation and preservation groups to set up a program for management of the dam site by an appropriate public agency once the dam is completed.

Mrs. Bower said that signing of the record of decision followed many years of environmental review which included one report on alternatives, two draft environmental impact statements, one final environmental impact statement, and a great number of conferences, meetings, evaluations, compromises and project modifications.

It concludes that the project "uses all practicable means consistent with other essential considerations of the national policy to meet the goals established in the National Environmental Policy Act and will thus serve the overall public interest... and the project meets the needs of the project sponsors."

Faces From The Past — Do You Recognize Them?

The unidentified stone masons were working on the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument in the Waynesburg park. The monument was erected by S.A. Rinehart whose other projects included the residences of J.B.F. Rinehart, Dr. J.T. Ullom and C.W. Bowlby and the First Christian Church. Rinehart's marble and granite works were located on South Morgan Street.

McGilton Found Guilty

By JIM MOORE
Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — Paul A. McGilton of Waynesburg was found guilty Thursday of recklessly endangering and a reduced charge of simple assault following two days of non-jury testimony before Judge Glenn Toothman.

Bond was continued for McGilton who was charged following an incident at his 340 Fourth Avenue home last January that resulted in the fatal shooting of his wife by a Waynesburg patrolman.

Defense attorney John A. Stets said he was disappointed with the verdict and will immediately appeal for a new trial, possibly with a jury brought in from another county.

"This case is not over, it may go on for years," Stets said, saying he was confident the Superior Court will upset the local verdict. McGilton was not sentenced because of the possibility of an appeal.

McGilton, 31, had been charged with recklessly endangering and aggravated assault. However, Toothman found him guilty of a lesser charge of simple assault. Both offenses of which McGilton was found guilty are considered misdemeanors.

Although Toothman could have deliberated for as long as 30 days before rendering judgment, he surprised several court observers by calling McGilton before the bench and finding him guilty.

The incident, which led to a jury finding a police officer guilty of involuntary manslaughter and McGilton guilty of two misdemeanors began Jan. 16.

On that day, patrolmen Michael J. Fuller and Timothy Stevenson received a call at central dispatch that "a crazy man was running around with a deer rifle." Both patrolmen entered the apartment building and said McGilton came to the door with a gun which he pointed at Stevenson. When Stevenson yelled that McGilton was armed and jumped backwards, Fuller fired two shots one of which penetrated the wall and hit Mrs. Celia McGilton in the heart. Mrs. McGilton was not in view of the officers at the time.

McGilton claimed he came to the door with a gun pointing upward and, after determining it was the police, placed the gun in a corner of the apartment and then returned to the doorway. It was then the shots were fired, McGilton testified.

District attorney Charles Morris maintained during the trial that McGilton should be found guilty of the charges because his actions recklessly endangered the life of Mrs. McGilton by creating the situation in the first place.

Attorney Stets, early in the trial, asked for dismissal of the charge of recklessly endangering citing a number of appellate court cases which hold that a charge of recklessly endangering cannot be sustained when a gun is not loaded since there is no threat to life. Toothman refused to dismiss the charges and the trial continued.

In a final summation which lasted about 30 minutes, Stets maintained five police officers testified and none could give evidence the gun was loaded. "In fact the prosecution never bothered to ask the question," Stets said.

"McGilton is guilty of drinking inside his home and of ordering a man to leave for insulting his wife."

He went on to say, "A jury has already ruled the causation of death was the police officers' actions."

Morris, in his final argument, told the court that the testimony of the police officers remained unchanged from the coroner's inquest to the present trial while McGilton had changed his story.

"In the final analysis, it's not unusual to hear two conflicting stories but I say two policemen are more credible witnesses," Morris said.

Morris told the court, "but for McGilton answering the door with a gun, Mrs. McGilton would not have been shot."

AROUND THE TOWN

By The Staff

Here's a "later than you think" item.

The annual Jacktown Fair at Wind Ridge is just a short way around the next few bends in the road. It will open Tuesday, Aug. 3 and has the distinction of being the oldest fair in the nation from the standpoint of continuous operation.

It will be followed one week later by the Greene County Fair at Waynesburg, which will again feature the Pennsylvania Sires Stakes harness racing sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Racing Commission as an incentive to create greater ownership of harness horses in the state.

Glenn K. Hughes of Mineral Ridge, Ohio, formerly of Waynesburg, is a patient in South Side Hospital, Youngstown, Ohio, where he is recuperating after major surgery. Mr. Hughes was employed by Columbia Gas Co. and was located at the compressor station in Waynesburg for several years prior to his retirement.

Miss Alexa Conklin of Greene County represented Greene County at the annual state convention of the Democratic Women's Association in Juniata County, where she took part in several conferences and group meetings.

Miss Conklin comes by her interest in politics naturally as her grandfather, the late John Conklin and a prominent oil and gas operator in Greene County, served one term as Greene County treasurer.

Miss Conklin and her father, Joseph Conklin, also visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kidd, who resided at Waynesburg when Mr. Kidd was golf professional at the Greene County Country Club, where both Joseph Conklin and his daughter are members.

Mr. Conklin and Mr. Kidd played several rounds at the Lost Creek course, where Mr. Kidd is now the club professional. After leaving Waynesburg, the Kidds were at a course in New Jersey for several years before moving to their present location.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Simmons of Sixth Street, Waynesburg, accompanied by their grandson, Nathan Simmons of Cincinnati, Ohio, spent the past week at Rehoboth Beach.

Del. with their daughter Joyce Simmons of Dover, Del. Enroute they visited in Harrisburg with Mrs. Simmons' sister, Doreen Christopher Dew.

Dr. A. Carl Walker, retired Waynesburg physician, and his daughter Suzanne, have returned from a visit with their son and brother, Stephen Walker of San Francisco, Calif. While there they enjoyed many places of interest.

Bonnie and Peter Petrosino have returned to their home at Harrisburg after spending some time with her sister, Mary Pettit of Swarts.

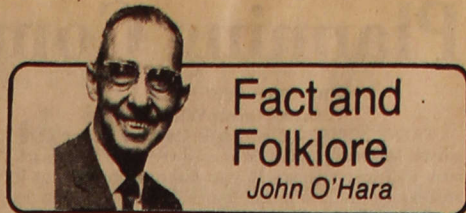

Former Greene Countians now living elsewhere who have not been back home for the past few years had better hurry if they want to get a few last glimpses of the community they used to know.

For instance, half-mile-long coal trains are running from northern West Virginia through town every day, and that's only a sample of what it will be when larger mines are opened near Wind Ridge.

The whole western end of town is ablaze every night from the long string of lights on the old Sayers farm just across Ten Mile Creek from Sowers Bottom.

"Strangers" are popping up everywhere in the new stores that opening and all kinds of service enterprises. Jud Bell Jr., now living in Florida, and his brother from Ohio, who were back for Jud's high school 50th reunion last week, said they were sure glad they had returned for what could be their last look at the town as they used to know it.

And if you put off your planned trip back, don't say "nobody told me about it" if you wait a few more years and return to see a lot of changes.

Fact and Folklore
John O'Hara

Last Monday, July 28, the "hill field" on the farm of Paul and Mabel Kent in Franklin Township, three miles north of Waynesburg along Route 21, yielded its usual crop of good hay.

Separate from the highway by the Bates Fork Branch of Ten Mile Creek, just a few hundred feet east of Reese's Mill where Mr. Kent was born and raised, it has enjoyed a sort of special privacy from the busy highway travel by the stream that separates it from the road.

The annual job of harvesting the fine crop of hay which it has yielded for many generations of its numerous owners will no longer be done in the privacy it enjoyed during the many years since the old narrow gauge Waynesburg-Washington Narrow Gauge Railroad was abandoned in the late 1920s.

Now, however, the privacy and quiet content which Mr. and Mrs. Kent have enjoyed there since they purchased the farm from the Russo brothers many years ago will soon become nothing more than a pleasant memory.

It is the same story which will soon be enacted at many other farms in many other sections of Greene County.

It is the story of the long, long predicted approach of another era of Greene County—the coal mining industry.

Along with all the rest of rural Greene County, occupants of the Kent farm, they and their kin folk from various places in Greene County had the best of two worlds.

Good highways and automobiles eliminated the physical isolation, initially the radio networks and now television too, has eliminated the communications barriers. Lately, the frenzied search for energy, particularly coal, has scrambled the picture not for just one farm like the Kent acres but for many others like it in the western and northern ends of the county.

The right of way for one spur to new mines for Richhill Township will be within a hundred feet of the Kent home when the construction is completed.

The line that will run through the Kent bottom land will continue west to the edge of Sycamore then on to Nineveh before leaving the stream bed and climbing the hills to Richhill Township.

For those who would compare the presence of the new railroad and the former W&W, it can be said there will be practically none.

The W&W was a friendly sort of railroad which with its limited power and equipment served its patrons efficiently with an aura of friendliness which will be entirely missing from the powerful locomotives and mile-long strings of dull, black steel gondola cars laden with pulverized cargoes of coal. Each and everyone of them identical and monotonous as the other that seem to run on a constantly changing schedule to which no one living by its sides will every be able to identify with themselves.

They are noisy by day and twice that much during the nights as they snake their way through the darkness with only a signal light at the caboose car at the end of the string.

The privacy of the Kents, their friends and relatives including the Clossers, Phillips and Kalsey families living near them, will be shattered memories in the near future as the long line of gondolas shatter the calm of the early evenings and early mornings.

In many places, residents of the county are apprehensive of the possibilities of injuries where lighting conditions are poor or inadequate although they concede the accident rate has been light.

But the cozy one family homestead of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kent is a striking instance where almost constant grinding of steel wheels on steel tracks, locomotives pulling scores of loaded cars or even more empties will have no resemblance whatever to the placid content they have known for years.

Even though part of the Kent farm was so steep it seemed to lay on edge Mr. Kent's skill with a tractor made it look as well maintained as a yard in town. Kent's skill in sharpening knives of sheep shears brought him customers from all over the county and parts of West Virginia as did his skill in butchering cattle.

Mrs. Kent, the former Mabel Ross, has been one of the most active members of the Bates Fork Baptist Church in Sycamore and with her sisters traveled extensively visiting friends and places of scenic and historical interests, particularly that related to the Baptist Church.

And along with her husband Paul, one of their deepest interests can be found in the poem entitled, "Oh to live near the side of the road and be a friend to mankind," a genuine friendship which even a noisy railroad locomotive will never crowd out of their lives.

Receive Tentative Approval

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township supervisors Monday gave tentative approval to Guardian Corp. of Rocky Mount, N.C., to construct a Hardee's Restaurant on the site of the former Waynesburg Block Co. office in the Morrisville section.

The firm has already received permits from the state Department of Transportation, for curb cuts, and the Franklin Township Sewer Authority and Southwestern Pennsylvania Water Co.

The approval was "tentative" because the township engineer would like to see the drainage plans for the site.

A spokesman for Hardee's said once all approvals are received it would take between 45 and 60 days to erect the building.

Holds Tax At 44 Mills

GRAYSVILLE — At the end of a four hour board meeting Tuesday night, the West Greene School Board approved a no-tax increase budget for the 1982-83 school year. The $4.6 million budget calls for a 44-mill real estate tax levy, the same as the current rate.

It took at least six motions to approve the $4,695,814 budget and it passed only after $15,000 for hiring a business manager was deleted. The other tax levies, a $5 per capita tax, and one-half of a one percent wage tax, will remain the same. Because state subsidies were received this year, the district has a $122,000 beginning balance.

Next month's meeting has been advanced a week to Thursday, July 22. The board will again meet at the Graysville school at 7:30 p.m.

Because the teacher's contract expires today and negotiations are still continuing, the board voted to extend the current contract. Under the extension, all terms and conditions of employment in the current contract are extended, until a new contract is reached or until the teacher's association serves notice it will no longer work under the extension. Anne Bower, who is heading the board's negotiating team, reported that both sides have worked in a good atmosphere and plan to continue bargaining under the contract extension.

Also at Tuesday's meeting the board agreed to finance repairs up to $1,500 to a trailer for use as a concession stand at the football field. The current booth was turned over to the band boosters with the understanding that they would remove the building from district property in a couple of weeks.

William Devore and Michael McCullough were approved as assistant football coaches. The board agreed to post the athletic director position for the 1982-83 year. Frank Blout currently serves in that position, but it was noted that since he is also an assistant principal, he should devote his energies to that position, especially the first year the middle school is open.

Bus routes for activity and extra-curricular events were approved. Wayne Grim was awarded the extra-curricular routes at a cost of $1.25 per mile with a gas escalator clause. Ralph Conklin was awarded the activity bus route at $39 a bus.

Judy A. Murphy Weds Kenneth E. Swauger

CARMICHAELS — On Saturday, June 5, nuptial vows were exchanged in the First Christian Church in Carmichaels uniting in marriage Judy Ann Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel L. Murphy of Carmichaels and Kenneth Eugene Swauger, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Swauger of Rices Landing.

Pastor Domenick Sgro and the Very Rev. Francis A. Nazimek heard the double exchange of vows at a 3 p.m. ceremony before an altar of baskets of white mums and white carnations.

Organist Mabel Fletcher presented a recital of nuptial music while Don Fogelburg sang, "Longer" and Robert Cowell Jr. sang, "The Wedding Song."

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, appeared in a full-length gown of white Chantilly lace featuring a fitted bodice styled with tapered sleeves and a teardrop neckline trimmed in the Chantilly lace. The skirt was styled in layers of ruffles which extended into a six-foot train trimmed with the Chantilly lace. A cap of lace and seed pearls held her mantilla style veil of illusion in place which fell to elbow length and was trimmed in lace. She wore a single strand of cream colored pearls with earrings to match and carried a teardrop bouquet of white, silk roses.

Maid of honor was Joanne Jacobs of Carmichaels. Bridesmaids were Joanna Katusa, Cassandra Nickler, Joetta Katusa, all of Carmichaels and Kim Krause of Crucible and Beverly Swauger of Rices Landing, sister of the bridegroom.

All attendants were attired in identically styled gowns with high Victorian collars, fitted waists and A-line skirts in pastel shades of rose, pink, lavender, yellow and green. They each carried white, silk carnations and sweetheart roses to match their gowns.

Serving as best man was Brad Kline of Rices Landing. Ushers were Pete Swauger, Pittsburgh; Joseph Swauger, Tampa, Fla., brothers of the bridegroom; Randy Bayard, MRS. KENNETH SWAUGER Pittsburgh; Michael Journic, Carmichaels and Randy Koratich, Pittsburgh.

The mother of the bride wore an apricot, floor-length gown with a silk apricot carnation wristlet while the bridegroom's mother chose a mint green, floor-length gown with a coverage of silk, mint-green carnations.

A reception was held in the Waynesburg VFW with out-of-town guests from Florida, Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia. Music for dancing was furnished by the Polish Hill Group.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Carmichaels Area High School and a 1981 graduate of the West Virginia Career College and is presently employed as a medical assistant at the Bobtown Health Center in Bobtown.

The bridegroom is a 1979 graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School and is employed by the U.S. Corps of Engineers at Lock and Dam No. 7 in Greensboro.

Following a short honeymoon trip to the Mt. Summit Inn, the couple will reside in Rices Landing.

Margaret E. Christopher, Joseph M. Lapkowitz Wed

A wedding trip to the Bahamas followed the June 12, 1982, ceremony which united in marriage Margaret Eileen Christopher and Joseph Michael Lapkowitz.

The Rev. Ralph Stack heard the double exchange of vows in St. Hugh Roman Catholic Church, Carmichaels. Stan Ferek of Carmichaels was the organist and Betty Mae Waggett, also of Carmichaels, was the soloist.

The bride is the daughter of the late Clarence and Isobel Schandel Christopher. The bridegroom is the son of Victor and Julia Lapkowitz of 113 Schroyers Lane, Carmichaels.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Kenneth Christopher of Carmichaels. She wore a full length gown of white chiffon featuring a blouson bodice with a high neckline on a sheer yoke with three-quarter length sheer sleeves. Embroidered Schiffler lace accented the yoke, sleeves and edged the A-line skirt which ended in a chapel train.

Nancy L. Bailey of Pittsburgh attended as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Ingrid Schmidt of Pittsburgh, Christine Moredock of Pittsburgh and Sharon M. Sitter of Erie, cousins of the bride, Shelly Bryan of Masontown and Kathy Angelini of Washington.

Victor W. Lapkowitz of Waynes-

MRS. LAPKOWICZ burg attended his brother as best man. The ushers were Tom Lapkowitz of Harrisburg, brother of the bridegroom, Robert McCabe of Washington, Ken Christopher of Carmichaels, brother of the bride, Robert Bosco and Mark Angelini of Washington.

The bride, a 1976 graduate of Carmichaels Area High School, is employed by Dr. Victor Lapkowitz in Dry Tavern.

Mr. and Mrs. Lapkowitz are residing in Waynesburg.

Waynesburg and Center Township firefighters battle a barn blaze near East View.

Firemen Save Home From Fire

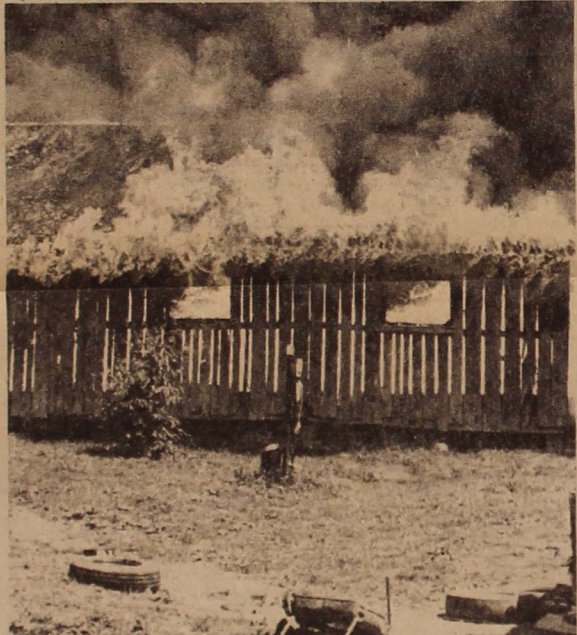

EAST VIEW — Quick response by Waynesburg volunteer firefighters is credited with saving a mobile home located near East View when a large barn only a few feet away was destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon.

The barn, a 30-by-40-foot weathered wood structure, was engulfed in flames and thick clouds of black smoke was billowing into the air when firefighters arrived. They were able to use the pressured water from fire hoses to push the fire away from the corner of a mobile home located only 10 feet from the burning structure. The intense heat had begun to ignite and melt the siding of the home which is owned and occupied by Steve Jessee, his wife and children. They were all at home when the fire broke out.

The barn as well as the property on which the Jessee home and another mobile home are located is owned by John McNay of Waynesburg R.D.A.

Waynesburg firemen received the call at 2:53 p.m. Wednesday. They were assisted by members of the Center Township Volunteer Fire Co. in Rogersville. Firemen said the barn was destroyed but placed no monetary value to the loss. Damage to the Jessee home was estimated at $1,500. Firemen said the fire is believed to have started at an electrical box on the barn.

Jack Smith of Waynesburg said he was driving along Route 21 just west of East View when he noticed smoke coming from the barn which was located behind two mobile homes. Smith said he and another motorist stopped to alert the mobile home residents of the fire.

He said he saw Jessee outside and was told firemen had already been called.

Smith said he helped Jessee place some tin against the mobile home in an attempt to keep it from catching fire.

"But once the fire really got going it just sucked it (the tin) away," Smith said.

"When I first saw it," Smith said, "there was just some smoke coming from the back of the building. Then the fire seemed to catch and just came along the roof."

According to Smith, Jessee had attempted to hook up a hose and start to fight the fire while firemen were en route.

But "there just wasn't enough water," Smith said, describing Jessee's attempt.

McGilton Appeal Filed

WAYNESBURG — Motions for arrest of judgment and for a new trial were filed in Greene County Court Wednesday on behalf of Paul A. McGilton of Waynesburg, who was convicted last week on charges of recklessly endangering and simple assault.

Public Defender John Stets based his appeal on the contention that the verdict by Judge Glenn Toothman was against the law and the evidence. He asked for permission to file more specific pleadings after the transcript of testimony presented in the non-jury trial has been completed.

McGilton was charged following an incident at his apartment at 340 Fourth Avenue last January in which his wife, Celia McGilton, was accidentally shot and killed by a Waynesburg police officer who was investigating a "man with a gun" complaint.

Alarm Triggered

WAYNESBURG — Plaster dust which got into a heat and smoke alarm sensor triggered a false alarm at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Curry Memorial Home.

Mrs. Piatt said the alarm was triggered in a basement room where maintenance people had been sanding plaster walls.

Meyer, Rich To Wed

Catherine Ann Rich and Robert Thomas Meyer will be united in marriage in an "open church" ceremony at 2 p.m. Saturday, July 3, 1982 in the First Presbyterian Church of Waynesburg.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Rich of Waynesburg. Parents of her fiancé are Mr. and Mrs. O.C. Meyer of Santa Rosa, Calif.

All friends and relatives are invited to attend the ceremony and reception which will follow in College Park, weather permitting, or in the social hall of the church.

Talent Grows Best At Home

By Denise Bachman, O-R Sports Staff

Sam Church had to look no further than his own back yard. For just a few miles away at Waynesburg High School, the Waynesburg College wrestling coach found exactly what he was looking for to bolster the Yellow Jackets' program.

His discovery was doubly satisfying, because not only did he obtain one talented prospect, but two in Todd Eddy and Ed Shriver.

"Being a small college, we have to attract the local kids to be strong," Church said. "We don't have to go anywhere because we know how good western Pennsylvania wrestlers are. We just have to get the great wrestlers."

"Todd and Ed are real gentlemen and hard workers. Both are really going to help us. They have the qualities that you need to help give you a team effort."

Both Eddy and Shriver proved that with the Red Raiders. They were instrumental in leading Waynesburg to a first-place finish in Section 8 with an unscathed 9-0 record and a second-place finish in the WPIAL Class AA Team Championships.

Individually, Eddy posted a 24-2 overall mark, including three victories en route to being crowned the 132-pound runnerup at the PIAA Championships.

And it was that taste of competition that lured Eddy to the collegiate level. Up to that point he was convinced his wrestling career would be history.

"After coming so close at states, I wondered what it would be like if I would've won," Eddy said. "I'm happy to be going to Waynesburg. It's close to home and I have a good chance of making the varsity."

For Shriver, who compiled a 27-5-1 overall record and advanced to the quarterfinals of the state tournament before losing a 10-4 decision, there was never much doubt he wanted to continue wrestling.

"I did better than I thought I would at states," Shriver said. "I kind of wanted (to continue) to wrestle before, but I didn't realize what I could do until states."

Church, on the other hand, was well aware of the duo's talents before they reached the state tournament, especially Eddy's, whom Church expects will make an immediate contribution to the Yellow Jackets this season.

"Todd will certainly come in and help us right away," Church said. "He had a good season last year. His closest match was seven points and he beat some solid kids."

According to Church, Eddy's most impressive trait is his height. The deceiving nature of his 6½-foot frame enables Eddy to use his height to his advantage.

"He looks like a big crowbar. He is much stronger than he looks," Church said. "He has the strength you don't expect."

Shriver will have a more difficult time cracking the varsity lineup, mainly because he will be up against more competition at 126 pounds.

"He's going to have his hands full," Church said. "But I expect that he can help us."

Although both wrestlers considered attending Slippery Rock, among other colleges, they had their hearts set on wrestling at Waynesburg.

"The program is starting to come along and there won't be a lot of people going out, so the coach can work with you on a one-on-one basis," said Shriver, who plans to major in accounting.

"Being NAIA it provides some tough competition. I won't be totally dominated like I would at a Pitt or Penn State. I'm going to get beat, but I won't get beat like I would at a major college."

Eddy based his decision on practically the same reasoning as Shriver. "I'd rather stick with NAIA," Eddy said. "It's not on as big a level but the competition is almost as good. At least I'll be able to win some matches at a small school."

At least there's no doubt in the mind of Red Raider head coach Joe Ayersman. Ayersman, who wrestled collegiately at Waynesburg, is confident both Eddy and Shriver will make a positive impact on the Yellow Jackets' program.

Leaders Split Doubleheader Bobtown Church Plans Food Bank

Horseshoe Bar, leading the Greene County Men's Softball League, split Monday's feature doubleheader with Pappy's, winning the first game 9-2 and losing the second 13-5.

In the opener, Rick Tekavec and Pete Pratt doubled for Horseshoe. Rob Cole homered and Bob Valenica tripled for Pappy's.

In the second game, Pappy's had doubles by Ken Murray, Ken Titus and Tom McCombs. Dennis Garrett doubled for Horseshoe.

Pappy's Ken Humble went six-for-seven in the doubleheader.

Horseshoe has a 26-4 record and Pappy's is 23-9.

BOBTOWN — The Bobtown United Methodist Church has taken steps to set up a Food Bank to provide food for people in emergencies.

Marie Ellenberger, who was named chairman of a church committee charged with establishment of the program, said that the assistance, at least initially, may be limited to church members.

"We are going to hold a meeting on Wednesday, July 7, to set up guidelines and priorities," she said. "We're just getting into the program and have a lot to learn and a lot of decisions to make."

Mrs. Ellenberger said church program will be affiliated with the Greene County Food Bank and will also solicit contributions of foodstuff and funds on its own. Purpose of the program is to have food available for people who face emergencies, and "not to supplement grocery budgets."

The Rev. Dan Glover and his wife Kathy will be contact persons for the program. Others on the committee, in addition to Mrs. Ellenberger, are Joseph Fell, treasurer; Cathy Ealy, secretary; Carol Wilson, Helen Latanation, Woody Wilson and Patty Dragovich.

The program will be operated for one year on a trial basis, and will be continued if it works well, Mrs. Ellenberger said.

Dentist On Staff

GREENSBORO — The Southeastern Greene Community Health Center, Inc. has announced Dr. Richard A. Barnes will join the center's health care staff as a dentist at the Bobtown Health Center until the arrival of the permanent assignee.

Dr. Barnes is a 1981 graduate of the University of Pittsburgh School of Dental Medicine.

Counties Join Adult Services

WAYNESBURG — A plan for Greene and Washington counties to join forces in using more than $150,000 in adult services block grants has been approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare.

Greene County Commissioners, at their meeting Thursday, said approval clears the way for the preparation of a study on how the money can best be used to serve the needs of eligible people in the two counties. Preparation of the study will be supervised by Henry Fiumelli, Washington County director of human services.

Greene County, which has never had a human services division, has been invited to appoint three members to the Washington County Human Services Commission, which will be expanded into a bi-county agency. The commissioners said they will make the appointments within the next few weeks.

Funding will come from $31,135 which Greene County will receive and $120,715 which Washington County will receive from the Department of Welfare under provisions of Gov. Richard Thornburg's budget for fiscal 1983. The commissioners decided in May that a two-county approach would be feasible since the counties are already joined in providing many other social service programs through the Community Action Corp., Mental Health and Mental Retardation Association and Drug and Alcohol Abuse Association.

The block grant, consisting of federal Title XX and state funds must be used to provide social services to low income adults between the ages of 18 and 59 who are not eligible for assistance.

Services could include adult day care, adult placement, counseling, home-delivered meals, homemaker services, housing information and referral services, protective services and others.

The money cannot be used to purchase equipment, for capital expenditures, or to provide institutional services. Neither can it be used to supplement other federal, state or county funds currently being spent on human services.
