County Schools Suffering A $2 Million Shortfall

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene Editor

WAYNESBURG — Greene County's five school district would receive an additional $2,180,470 during the 1982-83 school year if the state carried out its commitment to reimburse school districts a full 50 percent of their basic instructional costs.

The Pennsylvania State Educational Association sees the shortfall, which affects all districts in the state, as "the single most critical issue facing education today."

The teachers' organization claims it is the principal reason why valuable educational programs are being scrapped and teachers are being furloughed, while local property taxes continue to rise throughout Pennsylvania.

According to PSEA data, Greene County's five districts would receive basic instruction subsidy (BIS) of $10,179,537 during the school year which began on July 1 if the legislative mandate of 50 percent funding were carried out. Instead they will get an estimated $7,999,067.

"With most local budgets already adopted, taxpayers will be forced to pick up an unprecedented share of the school financial burden," it states.

When contacted, the administrators of the county's school districts agreed that the PSEA is pretty much correct, although several noted that the BIS is not the only source of state funding.

At the same time, they agreed that while the districts are getting a larger BIS payment than ever before, the rate of increase is not keeping pace with rising costs and the districts are falling further and further under the 50 percent level.

Southeastern Greene

"I would estimate that our payment is between 37 percent and 39 percent of our instructional costs," Gerald Marcinak, superintendent of the Southeastern Greene School District said. "They (Department of Education) are far from funding what they should be."

The PSEA data indicates that the shortfall has a bigger impact on the Southeastern Greene District than on any other in the county. Its estimated subsidy of $1,293,861 for 1982-83 is $60,000 more than the district received this year, but it still $378,239 below the 50 percent level. That it the equivalent of the revenue from more than 30 mills of local property taxes, since each mill there brings in just $12,000.

Marcinak estimates that contractual obligations to teachers and other staff members will cost the district some $105,000 more money during the coming year.

"And that it just one part of our costs. When you consider what inflation is doing to all facets of the educational program, it's easy to see that the $60,000 additional money we will be getting is less than we should receive."

When it adopted the 1982-83 budget last week, the Southeastern Greene Board was forced to increase the property tax levy by 14 mills. While conceding that part of the increase reflects a commitment to greatly expand the Penn Pitt Elementary School, Marcinak said that the bulk of it represents a need for more operating funds.

Jefferson-Morgan

In the Jefferson-Morgan District, a BIS of $1,303,237 is $407,160 short of 50 percent and is the equivalent of almost 23 mills of property tax.

"We'll be getting an additional $75,000 this year but I would estimate that we will fall another 1.5 percent below the 50 percent level," Superintendent Kenneth Macek said. "We would have needed $105,000 to keep even with where we were in 1981-82."

To avoid program cuts, the district was forced to increase its property

Zone Board Will Fine Homeowner

WAYNESBURG — The owner of a house at 83 South East Street will be fined $500 for putting four families in the dwelling after obtaining a conditional use which permitted him to convert it to a two-family apartment building.

The Waynesburg Zoning Hearing Board, at a meeting Wednesday, announced it was levying the fine against Gerald Manolas of Waynesburg because he violated terms of the conditional use permit which the board issued in November 1981. The permit was required because the house is in an R-1, or single family, zone.

At the last board meeting, a group of residents from the neighborhood presented a petition protesting the fact that four families were living in the house. The residents asked that the house be reverted to a one-family dwelling. Manolas, who was at that meeting, agreed to correct the situation and the board on Wednesday said all four families have since moved out.

Board Chairman Robert Romanosky said the board was not withdrawing the two-family permit because Manolas has agreed verbally to repaint and upgrade the property and to rent to people without children because their is no side yard and an extremely small backyard.

"It's a sort of give and take situation, but if Manolas agrees to abide by the conditions, we'll leave the two-family permit stand since it won't downgrade the neighborhood," the chairman said.

In the only other action at the brief meeting, the board granted a rear-yard variance to James Martin to permit him to build an addition to his house at 50 Woodland Avenue.

W. Greene Sues Over Uniforms

WAYNESBURG — The West Greene School District has filed suit in Greene County Court to recover the $20,647 it paid for new band uniforms two years ago.

Defendant is Fruhauf Uniforms, Inc., Wichita, Kas., which received the contract to provide the uniforms on the basis of a low bid submitted Feb. 20, 1980. The order included 98 band uniforms, one drum majorette uniform, one director's uniform, one drum major uniform, 100 rain parkas and 131 garment bags.

On July 28, 1980, a few weeks after the new uniforms were delivered, band members wore them to the Jacktown Fair parade, where they got caught in a rainstorm.

The complaint states that the royal blue color in the uniforms ran into other colors and onto undergarments of the members. It also states that the uniforms were made of poor quality wool and were of poor workmanship.

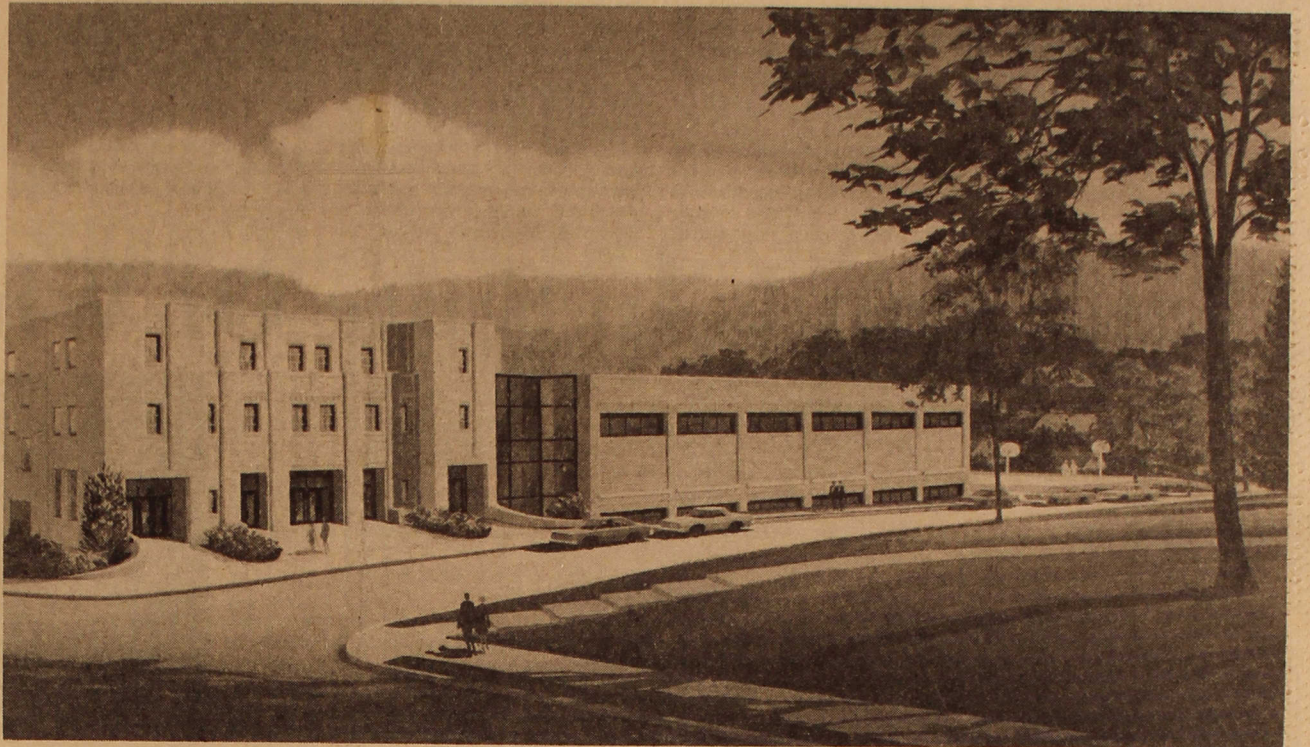

The claim for reimbursement is being made under a provision in the bidding documents which stipulated that "full satisfaction shall be guaranteed by the bidders."

call her brothers.

When she did not come back, the mother called the boys, who said they had not seen their sister. They went to the pool immediately but did not see the child, so they went to look behind the house. When they went back to the pool a second time, they saw her in the water.

"She apparently went to the deck of the pool to call her brothers and fell in," Behm said, adding that she was probably in the water for no more than a few minutes.

Jefferson volunteer firemen administered CPR and oxygen while taking her to the hospital by ambulance, but all efforts to revive the child failed.

Architect's drawing of proposed Waynesburg College gymnasium and recreation complex

College To Begin Building Gym

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg College will start construction of its new gymnasium and recreation complex by late summer even though it still faces the job of raising funds to complete the project.

The college board of trustees, at a meeting on Thursday, authorized Carlson Associates of Boston, Mass., to proceed with erection of the building. Work is expected to be underway by the time students return to the campus for the fall semester.

"The board has decided to take a calculated risk because it strongly believes that the facility is badly needed to both retain and recruit students," Board Chairman Ewing B. Pollock said when contacted Monday. "It has been part of our development program for ten years, with the administration, faculty, students and alumni all agreeing that the complex must be built if the college is to remain competitive."

The overall project is expected to cost between $1.5 and $1.75 million. Funds on hand, including contributions and pledges, will permit planned renovations of the existing gymnasium and erection of the new building itself, but another $430,000 will be needed to complete the new structure and purchase needed equipment.

"The board feels that the solicitation of additional money will be much easier once work gets underway and people realize we really are going ahead with our plans," Pollock said. "A lot of people had been saying that we'd never get it built."

The new building will be erected as an intercollegiate gymnasium. The existing gymnasium, where work is expected to begin this week on renovation of the locker rooms, will be modernized.

Pollock said, for example, that the entrance lobby will be completely changed, with glass doors replacing the present steel doors on both the Wayne Street and Washington Street entrances. Windows on the Washington Street side will also be replaced.

A major consideration is the need for expanded facilities to accommodate the growth in women's sports and the intramural program, as well as to provide recreational facilities for the entire student body.

"At the present time there is constant pressure for use of the gym for practice by men's teams and women's teams," Pollock said. "Once the new facility is in place, we will be able to meet the needs of all of our teams. It should be something the entire college can be proud of."

School Renovation May Begin

By Christie Molzon, Staff Writer

MAPLETOWN — The Southeastern Greene School Board made arrangements to finance the $2.7 million renovation project for the Penn Pitt Elementary School Thursday night. Work could begin as early as the end of this month.

A resolution to purchase $2,470,000 in general obligation bonds to finance the school renovation project was approved by a 5-2 vote at the special meeting.

The total debt service will amount to $6,848,470 over a 20 year period. The average annual debt service payment for the project is $342,423.50. But, since the state will reimburse the district half of that amount, the local share amounts to $171,211.50 a year.

The figures are based on an interest of 12.75 percent. Bob Aumer, investment banker with Blyth, Eastman, Paine, Webber Inc., noted that in just the last three weeks interest rates have risen again.

Aumer, and two men representing Berkman, Ruslander, Pohl, Lieber and Engel of Pittsburgh, bond counsel, presented the resolution to the board.

Board members Floyd Hornick, Gary Mosier, Bob Watson, John Mason and Jim Minor voted yes. Mark Brozik and Adam Novak voted no.

After the vote attorney John Stets breathed a deep sigh of relief and said, "Well, it's only been eight years."

A July 23 closing date has been scheduled and work is expected to begin at the school soon after that.

With one mill generating close to $12,000 in the district, about 15 mills are needed to cover the local debt service each year. At Wednesday night's meeting to pass the 1982-83 budget, 14 mills were added to the real estate tax, making millage in the district now 71 mills. Also included in the project cost is $162,027.96 — or six percent of the final construction costs — for architect Robert T. Scheeren.

Although the school board's original plan was to upgrade all three elementary schools, the cost was prohibitive. It was then decided to remodel and add on to just the Penn

Parade To Open Jacktown Fair

WIND RIDGE — The annual Jacktown Fair parade will be held at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 3.

The parade will mark the opening of the annual fair which will continue through August 7.

Theme for this year's parade is "Nostalgia." Prizes will be awarded to winning entries.

The fair board has extended an invitation to any interested church, group, organization or individual to participate in the event. They should contact Dr. Meyer R. Sonneborn, parade chairman, at 428-4200 or 428-4205. Any band wishing to participate should contact Ronald Jesso at 627-3835.

Carmichaels Native Joins Police Force

WAYNESBURG — Bernard Bealko Jr., a native of Carmichaels, has begun his duties as a Waynesburg Borough patrolman with impressive credentials.

Bealko, a May graduate of California State College with a degree in criminology, recently completed the 12-week, state police training course at Greensburg. He graduated with an accumulative grade point average of 98.2, the highest in the 10-year history of the academy.

He also received the special American Legion Award after being selected the outstanding trainee by his classmates. He was secretary-treasurer of the training class.

A 1978 graduate of Carmichaels Area High School, the new patrolman worked last summer as a security guard at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh during the football and Pitt and Bobtown schools, increasing the size of Penn Pitt so that the Glassworks school could be closed and its students moved to Penn Pitt. The board wished to retain the "neighborhood school" concept by operating a school both in the Greensboro and Bobtown communities.

At the June 8 meeting, however, the board voted against renovating both Penn Pitt and the Bobtown school, again because the costs were too high. Upgrading both schools would cost about $5 million, or add another 35 mills to taxes. For that reason the green light was given only for work at the Penn Pitt school. Although the board still hopes to see the elementary school at Bobtown substantially upgraded, no one is saying when that project will be undertaken.

Also at last night's meeting the board agreed to submit sections G and H of the plan and construction procedures to the Department of Education.

The department's approval is needed before closing can be done on the bonds.

Sections G gives a summary of the project cost with a financial projection. Section H incorporates data on the bond issue.

Also last night, Stets asked the Fire Damage Estimated At $50,000

CARMICHAELS — John's Bicycle Shop located on Route 88, two miles south of Carmichaels, was extensively damaged by a fire which broke out at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Carmichaels Fire Chief William Groves estimated the loss at $50,000 to contents and $5,000 to the building — a two car frame garage which John Workman had converted into a shop where he sold new bicycles as well as restoring and repairing bikes for his customers.

"Firemen did an excellent job of containing the fire inside the building, but all of the bikes and Workman's tools and equipment were all destroyed," the fire chief said.

Workman's adjoining house and a barn, located on of Glade's Hill, were not damaged.

Groves said their was no one in the building when the fire broke out and the cause of the blaze was not immediately determined. "We'll be going back Friday to see if we can determine what happened," he said.

The Crucible Volunteer Fire Company assisted in fighting the fire.

Specter Plans Open House

WAYNESBURG — U.S. Senator Arlen Specter has announced that Zachary T. Davis, his field representative for Western Pennsylvania, will hold a citizen open house from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, July 13 in the commissioners' meeting room in the County Office Building.

Specter noted this visit is a demonstration of his commitment to the needs of Greene County and its citizens.

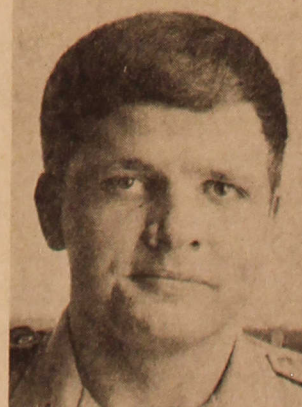

Davis will be available to aid citizens having problems with federal agencies including veterans administration, Social Security, etc. In addition, he will discuss problems, constituent opinions and present federal legislation.

Little Girl Drowns In Family Pool

WAYNESBURG — A 3½-year-old girl drowned Wednesday when she fell into the family swimming pool at the Y-Coff Mobile Home Park, Waynesburg R.D.1.

Greene County Coroner Frank Behm said Kelli Renee Stockdale, daughter of Teddy and Marcia Benamatti Stockdale, was pronounced dead at Greene County Memorial Hospital at 6:15 p.m., about two hours after the accident happened.

Behm said the family had been swimming in the above-ground pool during the afternoon and that Mrs. Stockdale took the child into the house to dress her for a trip into Waynesburg. She then told her to go out and tax by 10 mills when the budget was adopted in June. Each mill of tax brings in $16,000.

"If our student population was dropping you could understand it because that would affect the formula on which the BIS is calculated," Macek said. "But it isn't a fall off in students that is causing the problem. It lies with failure of the state to carry out its commitment. And I can't buy the argument that other forms of subsidy bring the funding level up to 50 percent, because that's not the way the law is written. The basic instructional subsidy is supposed to be 50 percent and the others are for supplemental services."

West Greene

Because of its solid assessment base, the West Greene District is in the best position of all districts in the county to absorb the shortfall in state funding.

Its BIS of $1,293,861 for 1982-83 is $356,902 short of the 50 percent level, and that equates out to just short of eight mills of property tax. Each mill there brings in $45,000, which is well above the level in the Southeastern Greene and Jefferson-Morgan Districts, although they are comparable in terms of student population.

And when the district adopted its budget on Tuesday of this week, it was able to do so without any increase in taxes.

Dr. Elliott LeFaiver, district superintendent, said that several factors contributed to the board's ability to hold the line on taxes. For one thing, the district has benefited by a "hold harmless" provision in state funding which dictates that no district shall receive less subsidy than in the previous year even if increases in the assessment base would normally dictate a drop in the BIS allocation. And this year the district received an additional $56,000 under the state's Equalized Supplement for Student Learning.

On top of this, the board has pared costs as far as possible to avoid a tax increase, with elimination of non-time kindergarten transportation, for example, saving $66,000.

"We haven't cut any programs, but the board is considering postponing the hiring of a second industrial arts teacher even though the new middle school program calls for the teacher, and has also deliberated on cutting back one home economics teacher," LeFaiver said. "If the instructional subsidy was where it should be, these things wouldn't be necessary."

Central Greene

Walter Stout, business manager for the Central Greene School District, estimates that the district's basic instructional subsidy will fall this year to between 40 and 41 percent of operating costs, even though the district will receive approximately $100,000 more than it got in 1981-82, when the BIS allocation took care of about 43 percent of costs.

The allocation of $2,665,983 is $629,859 short of the 50 percent level, which equates to more than 11 mills of property tax. Central Greene this year increased its local levy by 10 mills.

Stout pointed out, however, that if the money was provided by the state it would still be coming from the taxpayers.

"If they weren't paying it in higher local taxes they'd be paying for it in higher state taxes," he observed.

While Dr. Ronald Ferrari, district superintendent, was on vacation and could not be contacted, Stout said that the district has not cut back on any programs as a result of declining state financing.

"We had a reduction in our Title I program and we cut out our subsidized hot lunch program this year, but both of these programs are federally funded and not state funded," he said.

The cafeteria program was replaced with an a la carte lunch program because reduction in federal funding had reached the program where the cafeteria program was costing the district about $100,000 in local funding each year to make up operating deficits.

Carmichaels Area

In the Carmichaels Area District, PSEA figures indicate that a BIS payment of $1,486,710 is $408,310 short of meeting the 50 percent funding level. And that equates to almost 23 mills of property tax, since each mill brings in just $18,466.

But when the school board adopted its budget, it was able to get by with a two-mill tax increase, one of the smallest in the area, despite the fact that it has recalled three teachers who had been furloughed because of increases in class size.

Dr. Dolores Zoldos, district superintendent, said that the state subsidy for 1982-83 is $128,000 higher than was received in 1981-82. "It's an improvement over last year, but we're still falling short," she said, noting that an equalization supplement of $80,000 which was received from the state was of considerable help.

Plane Lands In Spite Of Wheel Problems

WAYNESBURG — A pilot and three passengers escaped injury in a "wheels up" landing at the Greene County Airport at about 9:15 p.m. Saturday.

Pilot James Mondik, 24, of 540 Fairway Drive, Washington, circled the airport for over two hours burning up fuel before calmly sitting the plane down on the grass adjacent to the concrete landing strip.

His passengers, 21-year-old twin brothers, Jim and John Connor of Pittsburgh and Gene Yost, 46, of Mt. Morris, praised the young commercial pilot for calm, professional manner during the emergency.

It was the first such incident in Mondik's flying career but the belly-landing was picture-perfect and the only damage to the Cessna 210 was a bent propeller and minor damage to the underside of the fuselage.

Jim Connor, himself a pilot, said, "It was a lot smoother than some landings I had with the wheels down."

Yost, a local driller, although praising the pilot said, "That's the last airplane ride I'll take." Yost said when the wheels would not come down hydraulically they attempted to use the hand-crank, but it too failed.

Yost said he was not overly concerned during the two-hour period it took for the plane to burn fuel down to a minimum for safety reasons but noticing the flashing red lights on emergency vehicles below caused some anguish.

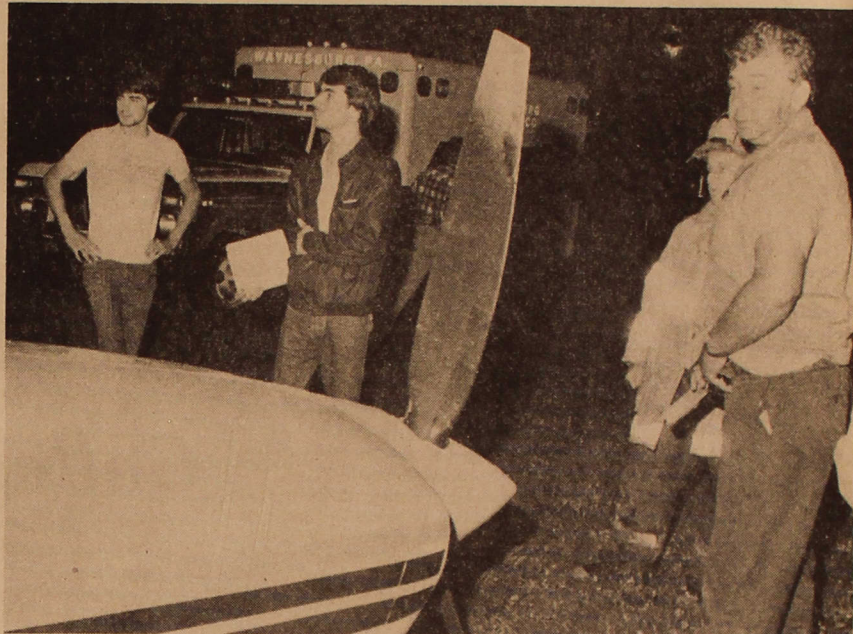

Ambulances and fire engines from the Waynesburg Fire Department were sent to the airport at about 9 p.m. when it was determined finally that the plane would have to land with its wheels up.

Scores of spectators, many of them apparently alerted by scanners, converged on the airport.

Mondik cut the power just as he was coming over the hill east of the airport. It was just getting dark and the plane was barely visible when it touched down on the rain-soaked turf just south of the runway. All four men quickly jumped out of the craft the second it stopped.

The plane was immediately secured by airport personnel pending an investigation of the incident.

The plane, a six-passenger Centurian model, is owned by Frank Chisler of Fairview, W.Va.

This Cessna 210, owned by Frank Chisler, suffered light damage Saturday night when the pilot James Mondik of Washington landed the aircraft with the wheels in the up position. Vehicle Damaged WAYNESBURG — State police are investigating an act of criminal mischief that occurred at 1 a.m. Thursday, July 1, on TR-506 in Franklin Township.

Police said someone dented the side of a vehicle owned by Christy A. Scott of 340 East Franklin Street, Waynesburg. No damage estimate was given.

Heinz Visits

WAYNESBURG — Senator John Heinz will visit the Waynesburg area on Monday, July 12, according to Leonard Frye, Greene County GOP chairman.

Sewage Treatment Plant Gets Clean Bill Of Health

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Sewer Authority was notified by its plant engineer Richard Kamerer that a spot inspection of the plant this week by the Department of Environmental Resources resulted in a clean bill of health for the facility.

Although there were no "official" statements made, it was indicated the borough treatment plant was actually the target for the inspection by four DER employees. The borough treatment plant was cited several months ago by DER and the borough was told not to allow additional tap-ins because the plant was over capacity.

The Authority discussed at length the necessity for two additional buildings at the plant. One would be for vehicles and another to shelter the sludge pit which freezes over during extreme cold periods. Specifications will be drawn up by the authority engineer for possible bidding later this summer.

In other action, the authority executed an agreement with Morris Insurance Agency for Public Officers Bonding and moved to begin possible prosecution against four homeowners who have storm drains connected to the sewer system.

Trunka Supporters Will Hold Picnic

Supporters of Richard Trunka as candidate for president of the United Mine Workers Union will sponsor a picnic Saturday, July 10, at St. Cecilia's Park, located off Route 119 north near Lemont Furnace in Fayette County.

Area local union members will participate in a softball game, and other games are being planned. Refreshments will be served.

High School Burglarized

MAPLETOWN — Stereo equipment valued at more than $800 was stolen Wednesday night from the Mapletown High School cafeteria.

State police said the theft was discovered at 7 a.m. Thursday. Burglars got into the building by breaking a window on a loading dock at the rear of the high school.

Stolen equipment included a Pioneer receiver and cassette player, turntable, two speakers, 70 volt transformer and glass-fronted stereo cabinet. Police said the equipment had been purchased out of student activities funds.

Emerald Mine Unveils Own Heliport

WAYNESBURG — Emerald Mine officials Wednesday officially unveiled their own heliport facility near the bathroom just off Route 218, south of Waynesburg.

In conjunction with the new heliport, personnel from "Life Flight" conducted a workshop with mine medical personnel and explained procedures that could be accomplished by mine rescue teams before the helicopter arrived.

Emerald is the first coal mine in the county to construct a special landing site for the "Life Flight" helicopters. The heliport is within 150 yards of the bathroom and is well lighted to direct the aircraft to the mine at night.

Pete Greenlaw, who recently moved to Greene County, was the pilot of the first flight to land at the new facility. Two specially trained nurses, the normal crew for a flight, explained the medical equipment aboard and the procedures during an emergency flight.

Life Flight, based at Allegheny General Hospital, operates seven days a week and 24 hours a day. The service was initiated in 1978 following two years of training.

The medical group has two helicopters available at all times and answers calls within a 130-mile radius of Pittsburgh. The group serves EMS agencies, hospitals and other public health care facilities, recreational areas, businesses and industries in Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Nurses aboard the helicopter are certified in advanced cardiac life support and each has completed a 160-hour course of study that includes a review of critical care nursing, pre-hospital care techniques, helicopter operations and use of the communications systems. Life Flight is equipped with about 250 pounds of sophisticated medical equipment necessary to provide advanced life support to adult and pediatric patients at the scene of an emergency or during transport between medical facilities.

POTATO LEAFHOPPER

The potato leafhopper is the most destructive insect pest to alfalfa in Pennsylvania. It reduces yields, lowers protein count and shortens stand life.

Adult leafhoppers are pale yellowish green, wedge-shaped, have wings and are about one-eighth of an inch long. Nymphs or younger stages also remove plant juices. They are yellow to cream in color, wedge-shaped and have no wings.

Leafhoppers do not winter in Pennsylvania; they move up from the south. They normally show up to damage the second cutting and later cuttings.

They are the most damaging to younger plants. If the average plant height in a field in three inches, then four leafhoppers caught in 20 sweeps of an insect net indicate a spray is needed. At six-inch average plant height, 10 need to be caught in 20 sweeps. At nine inches you need to catch an average of one per sweep and at 12 inches you need to catch two per sweep.

Several materials are recommended including Malathion 57EL or Methoxychlor 2E. See page 66 of the 1982 Penn State Agronomy Guide for details.

Gallatin Bank Opens New Office

WAYNESBURG — A new office of Gallatin National Bank will officially open for business in Greene County on Monday, July 12.

The office is located in the Waynesburg Plaza in Morrisville. A grand opening celebration will be held Monday through Friday, July 12-16.

The new office increases the number of Gallatin's locations to 34, with seven of them being in Greene County, 20 in Fayette County, two in Washington County, two in Somerset County and three in Westmoreland County.

SOIL MOISTURE

Greene County weather conditions have fluctuated a great deal this year. Too dry, too wet, too dry again has put a great deal of stress on home garden and landscape plants. Using a mulch in garden and landscape plantings helps to soften the effect of extreme moisture fluctuation.

Mulch helps plants survive dry weather in two ways. First, it improves the rate of water infiltration into the soil so when you water the garden, or if it does rain, the water soaks in rather than running away. Second, it reduces the rate at which water evaporates from the soil, conserving the rainfall you do get and providing a more uniform moisture supply.

Mulches provide several other benefits. The most important of these is weed control. Herbicides can't be used in most home garden and landscape plantings because of the variety of plants grown in a relatively small area. Hoeing and rototilling may damage the plants through root pruning. Mulches will at least decrease the number of weed plants.

Mulches also help prevent soil erosion and splashing of soil up on buildings during hard rains. Some mulches can provide a very attractive background for landscape plantings.

Homeowners have several materials to choose from. In a vegetable garden, where appearance is not a major consideration, materials such as leaves, straw, marsh hay, corn cobs, or grass clippings can be used.

Materials such as pine or hardwood bark, wood chips, redwood bark chunks, cocoa bean hulls and pine needles fit in a landscape planting. All of these materials are organic and help improve the soil as they decompose.

Black plastic can be used on several vegetable garden crops, most particularly vine crops. It must be put down before the transplants are set. It should never be applied over dry soil.

State Withdraws Block Grant For Legal Aid

WAYNESBURG — Greene County won't be establishing its own legal aid office after all.

The county commissioners were notified at their meeting Thursday that the Department of Welfare has withdrawn its proposed supplemental adult services block grant of $29,824, which would have given the county the money to provide legal services for the poor during the coming fiscal year.

The commissioners, at their meeting on June 24, had voted to accept the grant and were exploring ways to best provide the service.

Welfare Secretary Helen B. O'Bannon said the withdrawal stems from a resolution passed by the General Assembly which directs that "the Department of Public Welfare shall provide for legal services by contract through the existing statewide system which administers and provides legal services for Title XX eligible persons."

As a result, Governor Thornburgh has decided to enter into a statewide contract with the Pennsylvania Legal Services Center for the provision of services during 1982-83.

The anticipated effect of the policy change will be that all legal services for the needy in Greene County will continue to be provided through the existing Legal Aid Society of Southwestern Pennsylvania, which has been operating in the county for the past 15 years.

In action at the meeting, the commissioners awarded a contract to Ohio Valley Steel Co., Wheeling, W. Va., to provide steel for construction of a new county bridge in Mt. Morris. Ohio Valley submitted the low bid of $15,314.

John Higgins, county maintenance manager, said the new span will replace an existing steel bridge over Wade's Run which is maintained by Perry Township. It is located on a road which is part of a school bus route.

Higgins said the bridge is in very bad condition. The county had hoped to replace it with the use of federal off-system highway aid money, but the road is not wide enough to qualify for the funding. As a result, the job will be done by county maintenance personnel using part of the county's allocation of state Liquid Fuels tax money.

Demolition of the present bridge will begin next week, Higgins said, and the road will be closed at that time and will remain closed until the job is completed. He estimated it will take from six weeks to two months to replace the span.

James Hopton and Marcia Biddle of the Greene County Council on the Arts met with the commissioners to outline plans for the preparation of an architectural survey of county houses and other buildings.

They said the council hopes to recruit volunteers in all parts of the county to seek out outstanding examples of the various styles of architecture which have been used by builders. Selected structures will then be photographed and described and the information will be published in a small book.

Mrs. Biddle reported that the council has received a $1,000 grant from the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts which it will match with an equal amount.

"That should be sufficient to take care of the cost of photography and printing, but we will be depending heavily on volunteers to collect the information," she said, adding that the Council on the Arts will hold a meeting at the Greene Academy building in Carmichaels next Thursday to make plans for carrying out the project.

A contract was entered into with the East Franklin Grange to enable the county to use the grange hall on Route 218, south of Waynesburg, as the polling place for the South Franklin precinct.

The Election Board will be permitted to use the junior grange room in the building at a charge of $50 per election. The polling place has been located in Clark Orndorff's machinery building.

Panel Slates Full-Scale Review Of GARC Programs

WAYNESBURG — A full-scale review of programs operated by the Greene County Association for Retarded Citizens will be undertaken by an ad hoc committee of the association's board of directors.

Board President Barbara J. Kisner of Waynesburg indicated that the "organizational review" committee will review personnel, staffing, budgets, services and all other facets of the program and will then report back to the full board.

The action was taken Tuesday at the first meeting of the board of directors which was elected in May when a large group of new GARC members attended the annual meeting to replace all but three members of the former board with a slate of their own.

At the same time, Vice President Kevin Maguire, who chaired most of the meeting because Mrs. Kisner was delayed in arriving, said the new board would "attempt to maintain maximum continuity in ongoing programs."

Most of the meeting dealt with routine matters presented for the board's consideration by GARC Executive Director Bonnie Pecjak.

They involved both of the major services offered by the organization — the Opportunity Center in West Waynesburg, which provides training for adults, and the Community Living Arrangements program, which provides homes for children.

Two matters were brought up relative to the change in the board, which was brought about through the efforts of Joseph W. Adler of Wind Ridge R.D.1, a former director of the Opportunity Center who was dismissed from his post last year.

Barbara Legal of Waynesburg R.D.4, board secretary and one of the three holdover members, said she believed Adler's position as a board member represented a conflict of interest since he has filed a complaint against the organization with the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission in connection with his dismissal from the staff.

"I feel he should either resign from the board or drop his complaint," Ms. Legal said.

In response, Adler said he believed there was no conflict so long as he did not vote in any matter relating to his complaint and said he "had no intention of resigning" from the board.

The issue was resolved when all parties agreed that the agency's solicitor be asked to make a ruling on the conflict question.

The only other reference was a request by Ms. Pecjak that she be given an opportunity to make a public response to statements made by Adler in a letter which he mailed to some 60 selected individuals prior to the annual meeting. In it he set forth some of the things about the organization which he felt needed correcting and urged those receiving the letters to attend the meeting and vote for changes in board membership.

Mrs. Pecjak said she wanted a chance to address the board on "factual inaccuracies contained in the letter." The board chairman indicated she would probably schedule a special meeting for that purpose sometime after the next regular meeting, which will be held at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 11.

The board approved a general fund budget for 1982-83 in the amount of $21,150, which includes $15,300 as a local match for the grant GARC has received from the Department of Welfare to erect a new building for its Opportunity Center.

It also reviewed its 1982-83 allocations from the Washington Greene Mental Health and Mental Retardation Agency, which will include $270,594 for operation of the Community Living Arrangements program and $155,000 for the Opportunity Center.

Mrs. Pecjak said CLA staff members had moved to 1981 pay schedule as of July 1, after operating for the past year on the 1980 pay schedule. Opportunity Center staff, she said, had moved up to the 1981 schedule last year.

The director was authorized to explore the feasibility of setting up a semi-independent adult CLA program in which retarded individuals would live in the community with a minimum of supervision. She said MH/MR has approved the program if it can be provided within the current budget. Plans for the program will be submitted to the board at its next meeting.

The question of continued membership in the Greene County United Way program was discussed, with Mrs. Pecjak indicating that GARC would probably receive no more than $2,500 during the coming year through the program because of reduction in United Way income due to coal mine unemployment. The agency had been allocated $5,000 during the current year.

The principal question to be resolved is whether United Way would permit GARC to continue to hold its annual bike-hike, which is a major source of revenue for the agency, bring in more than $12,000 this year.

Mrs. Pecjak pointed out that the post of Opportunity Center director has never been filled and that possible elimination of the Green Thumb federal program could result in the need for the agency to "pick up" the wages of three members of the Opportunity Center staff.

The board president indicated she will appoint a personnel committee to study these matters and other questions which came up involving staff members.

Mid-Penn To Test New Equipment

WAYNESBURG — Officials of Mid-Penn Telephone Corp. have announced they will be testing new equipment beginning Tuesday, July 6, and continuing through October 16.

Employees, who will immediately identify themselves, will be required to call every subscriber on the 627 and 852 exchanges. In some cases, customers will be asked to call back to test the line.

The testing is in preparation for digital switching by October 16.

Gordon Curry, manager of the Mid-Penn office, said he hopes the subscriber will cooperate fully in this latest modernization of phone service.

Eagle Scout Ceremonies

Robert A. Scott, Scoutmaster of Waynesburg Boy Scout Troop 1287, reads a description of Lighting of the Eagle Trail as Charles T. George lights the top candle in his advancement to an Eagle Scout while his parents, John and Sarah George, look on. The Eagle Scout is the highest award that can be attained by a scouter. The ceremonies were held Wednesday night at the First Presbyterian Church in Waynesburg. Troop 1287, sponsored by the church, has had 10 of its members advance to Eagle Scout since it was formed in 1970.

Grade Crossing Action

It came as welcome news to residents of Waynesburg when the Department of Transportation announced last week that it has taken a first step toward eliminating the on-grade railroad crossing at the foot of South Morgan Street.

It has employed a consultant to study various alternatives and recommend the best and most economical method of providing a grade separation which would take the railroad over the street or the street over the railroad.

The crossing has been a bone of contention since before the Waynesburg Southern Railroad was built in 1967 to move coal from new mines which at that time were being built at Blacksville, W.Va.

Waynesburg Borough Council petitioned the Public Utilities Commission for the grade separation before the railroad was built, but the PUC permitted the on-grade crossing to go in. Since then, the borough, Franklin Township supervisors, Central Greene School Board have repeatedly renewed their appeals on the grounds that the street (Route 218) is the only access from Waynesburg to a large area south of town.

Their contention, which is valid, is that the 100-unit trains frequently block the crossing for long periods, on occasions for as much as a half hour, which could create a serious situation if an ambulance or fire truck was blocked while on an emergency run.

Over the years, the assistance of state representatives, congressmen and even U. S. Senators has been obtained in an effort to get action, but always without success when the Department of Transportation pleaded poverty. The last cost estimate for a grade separation, made in 1980, was $2.5 million.

Funding of the state study does not mean the grade crossing will be eliminated, but at least it indicates that the Highway Department recognizes that there is a problem.

And it's a problem which will get worse within the next few years.

The railroad line now carries trains moving coal from Blacksville and from the Emerald Mine in West Waynesburg. It will also connect with the new railroad which will be constructed to serve the mine under construction at Enon in Richhill Township — the first of at least two and perhaps as many as five which eventually will be developed there.

Having the trains run through town is bad enough. Residents should not have to put up with the very real hazards posed by the Morgan Street grade crossing.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

Once upon a very special time in Greene County's history, a special thing will happen to Route 188.

A lot of strange things will happen when the state Department of Transportation begins a face-lifting operation for the first time since the highway was constructed in the 1920s and became the longest stretch of concrete highway in the county.

From the day it was built it had a special identification which has remained unruffled to this day. The road, the railroad and Ten Mile Creek all meandered a few feet apart.

Beginning at Morrisville, the road skirts the Morrisville Methodist Church and heads east past the Greene County Fairgrounds and over Ten Mile Creek. Over Mack Coal Company Hill and past the Youth Development Center, the road crosses Ruff Creek and passes the historic Harry farm and the Greene County Country Club.

Through Jefferson and past the Stockdale stretch where thoroughbred horses were raised for years, Route 188 goes by an area where Daniel Boone reportedly camped and had a trading post for a time. This was a period before he moved on to Kentucky and entered the history books.

Route 188, the Jefferson Road, was the county's first authentic all-season highway. Previously, a three-mile stretch of brick road south of Waynesburg, a short stretch of blacktop near the Minor Farm in Dunkard Township and the old macadam road from Waynesburg to Rogersville were the only improved roads.

The Jefferson Road was built to coincide with the opening of the Mather Mine by the Pickland Mather Corp. of Cleveland and Canada.

For many years residents lived in company-owned houses and the "bosses" lived in larger dwellings.

The concrete road from Waynesburg to Jefferson and connecting road to Mather (through an old fashioned pin type covered bridge many years before) were all a big boom to Waynesburg businessmen but a hoped for building boom of houses along the road between Waynesburg and Mather has never materialized to this day.

The road to Mather was built by a Washington firm headed by a man named Freitag. A work camp for the workers was built on the Harry Farm across the road from the Greene County Country Club and portions of some of the buildings are still visible behind the present Harry residence.

There was also a Goslin farm nearby and the intersection of its road and the present Route 188 originally known as Goslin's Crossroads and it was a wise secretary for attorneys, doctors and businessmen who knew to advise callers that their boss would not be into the office because of having an appointment at Goslin's Crossroads, then considered a considerable distance out of town.

General Public Can Now Ride
On The Senior Citizens Vans

WAYNESBURG — Effective today, vans which provide transportation to Greene County senior citizens will be opened to the public on a fare-paying basis.

Pamela Knapp, director of senior services for the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp., said the development is part of a plan to expand existing senior citizen transportation services through a grant obtained from the Department of Transportation.

At the present time, five "loop" runs are being operated on a daily basis, between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Four of them operate in and out of Waynesburg — one loop to the Jefferson-Mather area, another to the Nineveh-Sycamore area, a third to the Wind Ridge-Graysville area, and a fourth to the Brave-Spraggs area. The fifth operates between Carmichaels and the Greensboro area.

The new program will not affect the right of senior citizens (60 and over) to use the service without charge. It opens it to those who are not senior citizens. They will be

2 Members May Lose Seats
On Carmichaels Council

By Thelma Callahan, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — Carmichaels Borough Council will notify two council members this week that their seats may be declared vacant because that they have not been attending meetings.

At a meeting Tuesday night, solicitor Robert Berryman told council the state code requires that before council can declare a seat vacant for members missing two consecutive meetings without an excuse, the absent members must be notified by mail and given an opportunity to present a defense at a hearing.

Ted Blasinsky, who has been serving as council president, and member Paul Connor will be asked to meet with council as a committee of the whole on Monday, July 26 to present a defense for not attending meetings and having their seats declared vacant. If necessary, council will then take appropriate action to declare the two seats vacant at their regular meeting on Aug. 2.

Betty Morris, who conducted Tuesday night's meeting as vice president, is also chairman of the finance committee and reported that budget categories for part-time police officers, police vehicles and administration, had exceeded their allotted funds for the past few months. She also asked for a directive from council as to the disposition of a $30,000 money-market certificate that is due. The interest of $1,808 will be placed in the general fund and the council voted to reinvest the $30,000 in increments of $10,000 each for six months in order that one certificate could be cashed if needed without affecting interest on the remaining funds.

Robert Boyle, John Yurick and Luella Galatic have been named to a committee to research permanent housing for council which has been meeting in the Clarichick building at the corner of South and Market Streets for the past year.

Council approved sending officer Richard Clark to the police academy at Greensburg for training for certification. Part of the cost of the required training is reimbursed by the state. In response to a question, Police Chief Robert Arameish stated that policy of the borough requires a certified officer to sign an agreement to serve in the borough for at least one year following completion of training. Street committee chairman, Luella Galatic reported that four CETA employees are working in the borough and that another CETA employee will be added this month. They are cleaning streets, painting signs, making repairs and will be repairing curbs and completing painting of street parking places and curbs.

Council voted to notify the owner of the Ruth Watson house on East Greene Street, which was gutted by fire last year, that the house must be boarded up, the swimming pool drained and the property completely fenced in or council will take action against the owner under a new ordinance.

Mayor Robert Dobbins reported that letters will be sent to owners of cars that have been junked in the borough. He also reported that a new public telephone booth is to be installed this month by Mid Penn Telephone Co.

The insurance package for the borough that is due in September will be put out for bids.

Tom Beglin, of T&B Disposal Service, reported that his collection of trash from street trash cans in the borough is complicated by residents using the cans for household garbage.

Court Awards Ninevah Man

WAYNESBURG — A Nineveh area resident was awarded $150,000 damages in Greene County Court Monday for injuries he suffered in a highway accident last year. The defendant sat in court as a spectator at the hearing, taking no part in the proceedings.

Judge Glenn Toothman granted a petition by Gary Orum, 25, Sycamore R.D.1, for a default judgment to cover $45,602 in medical costs plus damages for loss of earnings. Judge Toothman set the amount of damages at $150,000.

Unknown to the court and to Orum's attorney, David Faldowski of Washington, the defendant in the civil case, Lonnie E. Howard Jr. of Metz, W.Va., sat in court throughout the hearing.

"We had never seen him and didn't know who he was until he came up after court had adjourned and told us he was Lonnie Howard," Faldowski said. "He said he couldn't pay because he didn't have a job or any assets."

The accident happened April 3, 1981, on Route 21 east of Waynesburg, near East View. Howard, driving a pick-up truck, crossed the center line of the highway and struck Orum's oncoming motorcycle and another vehicle.

Orum testified at the hearing that he suffered multiple fractures of the left leg and left arm and fractures of the face and nose. His leg was amputated below the hip and he has pins in his left arm. At the time of the accident he was working as a machinist and earning $8.75 an hour. He is currently receiving a disability allowance through social security.

Faldowski told the court that Howard had received notice of the lawsuit and all subsequent legal actions, included scheduling of Tuesday's hearing, by registered mail but had never responded and had entered no defense. He said that Howard had no insurance and noted that West Virginia has no compulsory insurance law.

Judge Toothman directed that the Street Dance

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a Fifth Annual Street Dance for opening day of the Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal Show on Saturday, Aug. 21. It will be held from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. on the town square.

Joyce Peccon is the chamber chairwoman for the street dance. The chamber also will operate all food concessions at the dance.

Members of the chamber at its meeting Wednesday night in the Greene Academy building agreed to operate an information booth in the exhibit hall for the annual coal show. A new booklet listing all members and businesses of the chamber will be prepared for distribution.

President John Brodak reported that welcome signs on the three entry roads to Carmichaels are being repaired and painted by Dan Bailey and Mitch Brozik.

The second addition of "Chamber Report" will be distributed this week. There will be 1,500 copies of this edition.

Edward Minder, chamber traffic chairman, discussed the placement of "no right turn on red" signs at the traffic light at the intersection of Route 88 and Ceylon Road. Carmichaels Borough Council will be contacted to see if it is feasible to have the signs placed at the intersection.

Don Berkebile reported the recent Father's Day weekend sidewalk sale was very successful.

judgment be submitted to the West Virginia Bureau of Highways. "It will be a claim against anything he (Howard) might have in the future," Faldowski said. Orum's expenses will be covered by the uninsured motorist provision of Pennsylvania's no-fault insurance law.

AROUND TOWN

By The Staff

One of Waynesburg's long time and most esteemed residents moved from the community this week. She is Mrs. Bertha Zahniser Cummings who lived at the corner of West Greene and South West Street on the south side. Now 92 years old, she will become a resident at the Hibbs Nursing Home near Masontown in Fayette County. Her husband, the late LeRoy Cummings, with his brothers, Harry and Raymond, were owners of the former Fort Jackson Barber Shop. Her father, the late John Zahniser along with his brother, the late William Zahniser, came to Waynesburg and established the Zahniser Machine Shop when the oil and gas boom started in Greene County at the turn of the century. She was one of the founders and officers of St. George Episcopal Church at Waynesburg and for years was active in many social and community organizations.

Waynesburg's July 29th Rain Day is still a few weeks away but a former mailman from Carnegie near Pittsburgh who now lives in West Point, Calif., has contacted his long time friend from Greene County, Vernon Wells of Holbrook, for the Rain Day record of hits and misses. He requested the record of Rain Day so he can pass it along to a television station in Oakland, Calif., prior to the date of the long record of rain falls on that date in Waynesburg.

Mrs. Ida Haight, of Waynesburg, was honored on her 90th birthday with party at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Chester and Louise Hall of Oak Street, Waynesburg. A total of 63 friends and relatives attended the affair.

Laura Lynn Clark And James H. Kick Are Wed

The First Methodist Church of Waynesburg was the setting for the wedding of Laura Lynn Clark and James Harold Kick on Saturday, June 5, 1982.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin R. Clark of 800 Bonar Avenue, Waynesburg, are parents of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kick of Gibsonia are the groom's parents.

The Rev. William Lofgren officiated at the double ring ceremony. Robert Scott was organist and Gerald Manolas the soloist.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white gown of silk organza and silk venise lace. It featured a scoop neckline, short puffed sleeves and a natural waistline with a full A-line skirt. The bodice, sleeves and skirt were appliqued in venise lace and pink lace rosebuds. The skirt held her attached chapel length train. Her headpiece was a matching lace camelot with walking length mantilla. The bride carried a dozen pink roses.

Carol Ann Wilson of West Alexander, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Maid of honor was Aura Waite of Pittsburgh and bridesmaids were Diana Wion of Mt. Morris, Karen Hebrank of Greensburg, and Linda and Audrey Truglio of Delran, N.J. Anissa Crago of Pittsburgh was junior bridesmaid.

Scott Kick of Gibsonia served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Darren Clark of Waynesburg, Rick Rezzetano, Scott Heinhauer, Tim Heim, Bob Salvatora and Shawn Crago, all of Pittsburgh.

A reception was held at the Lone Pine Country Club. Ellen Winters of

MRS. JAMES H. KICK

Waynesburg took charge of the guest book.

Following a wedding trip to North Carolina, the couple will reside in Indianapolis, Indiana.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Waynesburg Central High School. She attended Thiel College and plans to complete her B.A. degree at Marion College in Indianapolis.

The groom is a 1978 graduate of Richland High School and a 1982 graduate of Thiel College with a degree in business administration. He is employed in the office of Schneider Sheet Metal in Indianapolis.

Mums Presented

Christine Bendig, Scott Andrews Wed

Christine Ann Bendig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Bendig of Greenville, was married Saturday, June 26, 1982, to Scott Hamilton Andrews. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Andrews of Waynesburg.

The double-ring ceremony was performed at 2:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church of Waynesburg with the Rev. Robert E. Borland officiating. Organist was Larry H. Marietta and soloist was Allen Emerick. The flute was played by Carolyn Budinger.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza with Alencon lace and pearls and spaghetti straps, covered with a matching lace and pearl overlay capelet featuring a high neckline and a wateau back sweeping into a chapel train. She wore a matching side-brimmed picture hat of Alencon lace and pearls which was enhanced by a back pouf of silk illusion and fingertip veil. She wore pearl solitaire earrings and a pearl necklace, gifts from the groom. She carried a colonial cascade of white and pink roses, purple statice, stephanotis and ivy.

Matron of honor for her college roommate was Anna R. Wallace of Greensburg. Attendants were Christie R. Molzon of Waynesburg, Kate S. Gorman of Westerville, Ohio, and Wendi Rourke of Pine Hill, N.J. They wore pink gowns with matching ruffled jackets and carried flower baskets.

Flowergirls were Brenda and Tracy Greaves of Pittsburgh, cousins of the bride.

Serving as best man was William Molzon Jr. of Waynesburg. Ushers were Theodore J. Maleska of Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y., Stephen J. Bendig of Baton Rouge, La., brother of the bride, and Tom and Mark Andrews of Waynesburg, brothers of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception for 200 guests was held at the Lone Pine Country Club. Ann Marie Bendig, sister of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

After a wedding trip to the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn., and through

MRS. SCOTT ANDREWS

Virginia, the couple will reside in Waynesburg.

Mrs. Andrews is a 1974 graduate of Greenville High School and a 1978 graduate of Waynesburg College. She is employed as an admissions counselor at Waynesburg College. The groom, a 1976 graduate of Waynesburg Central High School, is a 1980 graduate of Waynesburg College.

Wool Queen Contest In Offing

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Sheep and Wool Growers Association is seeking contestants to vie for the title of 1982-83 Greene County Lamb and Wool Queen.

The contest will be held in conjunction with the Leadline Contest at the Greene County Fair on Tuesday evening, Aug. 10.

Contestants must be residents of Greene County and either from a family raising sheep or actively participating in a 4-H or FFA sheep project. The applicant can be 16 years old, but must reach her 17th birthday by Oct. 1, 1982, and cannot have reached her 21st birthday by the same date.

The person selected to represent the sheep industry in Greene County during the coming year will be selected on the basis of appearance, poise and personality. The new queen will have the opportunity to compete for the title of Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen during the Keystone International Livestock Exposition held in Harrisburg.

Judy Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henderson of Waynesburg R.D.2, is the reigning queen. She competed for the state title, participated in Greene County Sheep Field Day and other promotional events, and has competed in area leadline contests.

Applications for the queen contest can be obtained at the Cooperative Extension Service office, 102 Old County Office Building, Waynesburg. Application forms should be returned to Barbara Curry, R.D.5, Box 609, Cameron, W.Va., 26033, by Aug. 6.

Tax Notices Were Mailed June 1

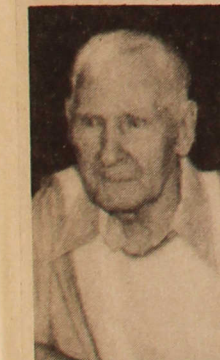

WAYNESBURG — Greene County residents who have not received their 1982 county real estate tax notices or 1982 per capita tax notices are asked to notify the county assessment or country treasurer's office as soon as possible.

County Treasurer Joseph Souders said the notices were mailed on June 1. Property owners are subject to the real estate tax and all residents 18 years of age and older are subject to the per capita tax.

"Failure to receive the notice does not relieve you of the obligation to pay the tax," Souders said.

Those who pay the taxes during June and July receive a discount and those who pay in August and September pay at the face value of the tax. A penalty is added for payment after Sept. 30.

Both the assessment office and the treasurer's office are located in the New County Office Building, Waynesburg.

92ND BIRTHDAY — Harry (Nick) O. Roupe, formerly of Brave, celebrated his 92nd birthday on June 29 at the Curry Memorial Home. Out-of-town guests included Martha Gump of Newcomerstown, Ohio; Louise Miller of East Liverpool, Ohio and Laura Anderson of Washington.

Community Health Centers Adds New Member To Staff

BOBTOWN — Dennis Frederick, a 1982 graduate of Alderson-Broaddus College with a bachelor of medical science degree, will be joining the Southeastern Greene Community Health Centers Inc. staff as a physician's assistant.

He will serve at the Bobtown Health Center for three days each week on a permanent basis and at the Greensboro Health Center for one day each week during July and August. He will be supervised by Dr. Patrick Tiedeken at the Bobtown Center and Dr. Eileen Treppel at the Greensboro Center.

Frederick is also a registered nurse and was employed as a staff nurse for five years at the Muhlenberg Medical Center in Bethlehem and the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center in Hershey and at Broadus Hospital in Phillipi, W.Va.

In the physician assistant training program at Alderson-Broaddus College, Frederick was specially trained to carry out many of the functions that a physician would traditionally perform, which will allow Dr. Tiedeken to devote more time to the complicated medical problems that only he is qualified to handle.

Frederick will be performing physical examinations, taking medical histories, performing routine laboratory tests, performing health education and counseling, performing developmental screening examinations on children and performing routine procedures, such as care of minor lacerations and electrocardiograms.

A native of Center Valley, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Frederick of Center Valley and is married to Cynthia Alice Frederick of Central City.

He will be at the Bobtown Health Center on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Thursdays from 1 to 8 p.m. Call 839-7420 for an appointment. He will be at the Greensboro Health Center on Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call 943-3308 to make an appointment.
