Consol Tests Workers For Signs Of Radiation

WAYNESBURG (AP) — Eighteen workers exposed to radiation from a leak at a Greene County mine exploration site showed low-levels or no contamination, but a second group of 15 workers were being tested over the Labor Day weekend, a spokesman for Consolidation Coal Co. said Monday.

"Some showed low levels of contamination on boots and trousers," said Dennis O'Neil, vice president for public relations. "The chances are very remote that any of them (the second 15 workers) have any contamination," O'Neil said.

Besides the medical examinations, radiation experts monitored workers' washing machine tubs, construction boots, doorsteps and panels of pickup trucks.

"So far, there's been nothing serious with any of them," said Karl Abraham, a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in King of Prussia, Pa.

O'Neil said medical examination for the second group of workers will continue Tuesday and Wednesday.

"To exercise the greatest possible care and caution, we identified another group of people who may have been exposed off-site at our Library exploration office," O'Neil said. "Not wanting to take any chances, we've decided to screen them as well. We wanted to go that extra step."

The exploration site 25 miles southwest of Waynesburg was placed under guard following the leak Aug. 27, and the company is preparing clean-up plans, O'Neil said.

"It looks like a fairly routine clean-up," Abraham said.

The leak from two aspirin-size pellets occurred deep inside a mine exploration hole. A metal container housing radioactive Americium apparently broke inside the hole.

But some contaminated mud was raised to the surface, where the workers stepped in it, officials said.

Abraham said Americium, a synthetic element, emits fairly low-level radiation.

"You would have to be in direct contact with it, and then it's only a fairly low level of radiation," he said.

The incident occurred when the metal container housing the NRC-licensed radioactive material became lodged in the coal exploration drill hole.

The hole had been drilled to explore coal reserves. The pellets are used to measure how deep and dense a coal seam is.

In the retrieval effort, the metal container apparently was broken.

"In attempts to retrieve the device, some radioactivity was detected on the surface, indicating it was broken on the retrieval attempt," O'Neil said.

O'Neil said the contaminated equipment at the site will be decontaminated or stored in approved waste containers for disposal.

O'Neil quoted radiation experts as saying that the contamination levels are marginally above background levels, but he could not specify the levels.

He said the news media was notified because the company wanted to prevent scare rumors from circulating.

At least one of the security guards from a private agency pulling duty at the site has no fear of becoming contaminated from any radiation that may be emitted. "I was in the service at Bikini when they tested the Atom bomb and went in right after to check test animals," the guard said. "And I'm all right. Look at me. Nothing happened to me."

He was referring to the Bikini Atoll in the South Pacific where the United States conducted an atom bomb test in the early 1940s.

County Won't Foot Inmate Bills

WAYNESBURG — Greene County will no longer pay the medical expenses incurred by inmates who suffer self-inflicted wounds while in jail.

Greene County Prison Board, at a meeting Thursday afternoon, approved a policy which adds the medical expenses to the court costs.

Board members acted after a prisoner recently swallowed a razor blade, but only after he wrapped it in tape, and had to be taken to the hospital for X-rays. The prisoner was later placed in isolation, but banged his head against the wall and was taken again to the hospital for X-rays.

The prisoner is now a patient in Mayview Hospital.

In other action, the board approved a 90-day leave of absence for jail guard Robert Taylor. Board members made it clear the leave will be granted for the full 90-day period and no less because of a previous incident in which a guard requested to come back early.

Warden Andy Bystry informed the board that two guards are currently taking basic adult training classes at Camp Hill. Guards Irving Yoders and Elvin Henderson will finish classes later this month.

Negotiator Thinks Teachers Should Have Voted

JEFFERSON — Teachers in the Jefferson-Morgan School District, in electing to strike Wednesday, rejected an offer which would have given them salary increases of $1,600, $1,700 and $1,800 over the next three years, a school board spokesman said.

"While the offer was made at sidebar, we had the votes to give the teachers the raises and it still stands," board negotiator Forrest

(Bud) Cottle said. "We felt the teachers should at least have been given a chance to vote on it before the strike was called."

Cottle also said the teachers' negotiators, again at sidebar, indicated they would not take back, even for consideration, an offer of less than $1,700, $1,800 and $1,900.

"We went over backwards trying to get this thing solved," Cottle said. "We came up $100 a year and yet the teachers apparently felt this was not enough progress to carry out their commitment to remain on the job while fruitful negotiations continued."

He added that the board offer figures out to a raise of 9.3 percent in the first year and equates to increases of $1.17 an hour in the first year, $1.24 in the second year and $1.31 in the third year.

Bonnie Mylan, chief negotiator for the Jefferson-Morgan Education Association, saw it differently.

"Nothing was done last night except sidebarring and we felt that insufficient movement had been made," she said. An association statement issued Thursday said:

"Negotiations began on Jan. 8, 1982. Since that time, 23 sessions were held. Out of the 13 sessions, only one session had the entire board of education present, and that was on Aug. 30.

"Dr. Irving Goldaber, a well-known crisis management specialist of international affairs, offered his assistance and the board repudiated his offer. Dr. Goldaber helped the Greater Latrobe School District with its negotiations this past spring and its contract was settled on June 1, 1982.

"Despite the teachers' effort to cooperate and negotiate in good faith, the teachers of Jefferson-Morgan must strike for the third consecutive time."

A major factor, Mylan said, is that Jefferson-Morgan teachers currently are at the bottom of the scale among Greene County's five school districts and feel this must be corrected.

As an example, she cited 12th-step salaries in the five districts which currently stand at $16,910 in Jefferson-Morgan, $17,200 in Carmichals Area, $17,300 in West Greene, $17,340 in Southeastern Greene and $17,625 in Central Greene.

Cottle said the board offer included individual vision care during the first year of the new contract and family vision care during the second and third years. He added that early in negotiations, the teachers had agreed to reduce the number of annual personal leave days from four to three days to help the district with a problem of scheduling substitutes, but has now said this concession is being withdrawn.

Mylan replied by saying the fourth personal day was obtained by negotiation six years ago in lieu of an additional $300 salary increase.

"We would consider giving one day in return for an improved economic situation to help with the substitute problem," she said.

The strike involves 70 teachers and 1,347 students. The teachers announced they voted on Aug. 18 to permit all extracurricular activities, such as football, band and cheerleaders, to continue in the event of a strike.

"The teachers thought that students' activities should not be curtailed due to a breakdown of negotiations," their statement said. "Therefore, as long as teachers feel there is a possibility of a settlement, extracurricular activities will continue under present conditions."

Vo-Tech Operates In Spite Of Strikes

WAYNESBURG — Teacher strikes in two Greene County school districts are affecting operations at the Greene County Vocational-Technical School, but not to the degree that might be expected, according to Norman Waldman, vo-tech school executive director.

"Sure it's having an impact since students have to find their own way to get to Waynesburg, but parents are generally doing a good job in getting their children to classes," he said.

There are 71 students from the Jefferson-Morgan District enrolled at the school, where they attend classes during the morning session. Of those, Waldman said, 33 were on hand for the first day of classes and the number has increased to the point where more than half are now attending on a regular basis.

In the Southeastern Greene District, where 82 students are enrolled for afternoon classes, attendance has increased to about 50 percent.

Ordinarily the school districts provide bus transportation to and from Waynesburg. But this service has been suspended until the teacher strikes within the district are over since vo-tech transportation is part of a district's overall transportation program.

"It's difficult for the parents since many of them have to drive a long way to get to Waynesburg and then either stay in town or make another trip in a few hours to pick them up again," Waldman said. "I'm surprised attendance has been as good as it has."

In some cases, he said, several students arrive in one car, although there seems to be no formal carpooling being done. "That will probably develop if the strikes drag on."

With regard to students who have been unable to get to class, Waldman said that they should be able to catch up if the walkouts don't last too long.

"Ours is a pretty unstructured program in which students to a large degree work at their own pace," he explained. "When all the students get back, they should be able to make up the time they have lost."

Contractor: Statue Should Be Replaced

WAYNESBURG — A Waynesburg contractor feels that the time has come for Greene County to have a new statue of General Nathaniel Greene.

The wooden figure, with its copper hat held aloft and a six-foot wooden sword hanging at its side, has stood in quiet dignity on top of the courthouse dome for 55 years.

But Miles Davin feels that it is in terminally bad condition and he would like to replace it with an identical statue, which he feels could be done for between $3,000 and $4,000.

"He's kind of tired and coming apart," Davin told the county commissioners at their meeting Thursday. "I would say he's reached the point where he could be a danger."

Davin should know. In 1972 he had a contract to repair and repaint the statue. Five years later he again climbed up to the dome to give it another coat of paint.

Ten years ago he found that the figure, made of laminated poplar, was badly deteriorated, primarily because rain had gotten into it and caused the wood to split. Part of the work Davin did at that time was to fill in the chest with cement, which he said added considerably to the 600 pound weight of the 10-foot-6-inch statue.

"That chest must be weighing pretty heavily on him by this time," he said.

The first figure of the Revolutionary War hero, for whom the county was named, was set in place when the courthouse was built in 1850. It was destroyed by wind-whipped sparks from the fire which destroyed the Downey House Hotel on Christmas Day, 1925.

The replacement statue was designed by John Pauley of Waynesburg and was carved from 350 board feet of yellow poplar by Albert Wise, at that time a carpenter employed at the Acklin Lumber Co.

Wise, who was proud of his achievement, frequently said that the most time-consuming details including braiding or plaiting (out of wood) the general's Colonial-style hairdo, fashioning the fingernails, and carving the uniform with its detailed buttons, lapels and epaulets. Finishing touches included sharpening the sword, setting in the black walnut eyes, forming the copper hat and inserting inch-thick iron rods from the hips through the bottom of the feet.

The hairdo, much like a thick pigtail, was attached to the back of the head and eventually was blown down and has disappeared. Otherwise, most of Wise's work still stands as it did when it was hoisted to the top of the dome on Nov. 17, 1927.

Early Morning Fire Damages Apartment

WAYNESBURG — Fire caused an estimated $1,100 damage to an apartment at Mountain View Gardens and damage was estimated at $150 to a car in two calls answered by Waynesburg volunteer firefighters on Sunday.

Damage to the apartment was estimated at $1,000 and another $100 damage to its contents was estimated in the fire which is believed to have started near the kitchen range. The apartment was occupied by Bill Davis.

Waynesburg firefighters received the call to the apartment complex located in Franklin Township just east of Waynesburg at 1:03 a.m. Sunday. Mountain View Gardens is a six-building complex consisting of 120 housing units.

A car owned by Karen Phillips, of Waynesburg R.D.3, caught fire while parked in the lot at Thompson Gardens located in the Bonar Addition of Franklin Township. Waynesburg firefighters were called at 7:50 p.m. Sunday but the fire was out on their arrival.

Firmen estimated damage at $150 and believe an electrical problem in the air conditioning unit of the car cause the fire.

Local Residents Fighting For Rules Against Porn

WAYNESBURG — A group of local citizens have requested to be on the agenda when Waynesburg Borough Council meets Monday, Sept. 13, to present a "model" ordinance which would prevent the sale of pornographic magazines and other material judged to be pornographic.

The group, comprised of members from various churches in the area, have been circulating petitions at churches to support their position. Between 400 and 500 signatures have been obtained.

Petitions are expected to be circulated door-to-door this week, a spokesman for the group said.

Although the Franklin Township supervisors have not been contacted, the group plans to approach the board with the proposed ordinance. The group has obtained a model ordinance from the Pennsylvania Association of Boroughs which was adopted in Delmont.

"We hope to go about this in a quiet way. We are not trying to start a battle within the community," the spokesman said Tuesday.

Members of the unnamed group have already contacted local busi-

No Contract In Sight For West Greene

ROGERSVILLE — No progress was made toward a teacher contract settlement in West Greene School district during a three-hour negotiating session Thursday evening.

Anne Bower, spokesperson for the school board, said the next meeting will be at the call of state mediator August Turak.

"We repeatedly asked for a counter-offer to our latest proposal but were unable to get one," she said. "We have made the last two offers and feel it is time for the teachers to make the next move."

She added that the teachers asked the board to agree to enter into a fact-finding proposal, but the request was turned down. Fact-finding can be used when an impasse is reached if both sides agree to the process. It binds to accept the decision of an outside arbitrator.

The board is on record as offering salary increases of $1,400 in each of the three years of a new contract. Mrs. Bower said this breaks down to an annual raise of $1.02 per hour.

Larry Marshall, chief negotiator for the West Greene Education Association, said he believes it is the board's obligation to make the next offer.

"They presented their $1,400, $1,400, $1,400 proposal as a final offer and asked us to take it back to the teachers. We did and it was overwhelmingly rejected. We feel that puts the ball in their court," he said.

He confirmed that the association had advanced the idea of submitting the matter to arbitration. "It would be handled by a disinterested person who would consider the district's ability to pay, other settlements in the area and related matters," he said. "The board rejected the proposal out of hand."

Piper declined to comment on what might happen in light of Thursday's developments with regard to the teachers' agreement to continue working so long as negotiations are progressing as being made.

He did say that arrangements will probably be made for a general meeting of the teachers to discuss the current situation.

Swarts UM Church Marks Anniversary

SWARTS — Members of the Swarts United Methodist Church will note the 125th anniversary of their church during special homecoming activities planned for Sunday, Sept. 12, according to the pastor, the Rev. William Maher.

Regular worship services will begin at 11:15 a.m. with a fellowship luncheon at 12:45 p.m. The Ambassadors, a local religious singing group, will entertain during the homecoming get-together from 2 to 4 p.m.

A former Methodist Episcopal Church, the church can trace its beginnings to 1816 when John Simpson, a local farmer, opened his home as a preaching place on the Greenfield Circuit. Services were held there for 40 years.

In 1856, a building known as Simpson's Chapel, was erected and services were held there for about 20 years until most of the neighbors moved to the village of Swart where there was a mill, post office and blacksmith shop.

In 1877, the building was carefully torn down and moved piece by piece and re-assembled at its present location on an acre of land donated by the Stephen C. Cary family.

In 1911, the balcony and two church school rooms were removed to provide more seating space in the sanctuary and a basement was added early in the 1940s.

Located along the old W&W Railroad line, it was the only church in the area that could boast of the time when its members could ride to church by train.

Since 1934, Swarts has been on the same circuit with the Nineveh Church.

Over the past several years, Swarts Church has become well-known throughout Greene County for its smorgasbords — a tradition since October 1955 — strawberry festivals and suppers.

NIP and TUCK

How I had dreaded cleaning the attic! But it was all worth it after I found the picture of Nip and Tuck when they were puppies. I sat down there and then in the cold, dusty room and recalled the day when Bob brought them home to Carol. How she laughed and loved them and flung her arms around both our necks in excited gratitude. How much fun we three had, watching the cunning antics of the canine infants.

Nip is gone now, duly mourned and buried under our apple tree, and Tuck, gray and crochety, limps if he moves too fast. Carol lives in Cincinnati in a happy home, of her own, and I carry roses to the cemetery on the hill.

What a wonderful gift is memory. My days are rich with remembrances of the good life Bob and I had. How glad I am that we shared, not only a home, but also a love for God and His Church so that though now I am lonely, yet I am not alone.

Business Fraternities Active

WAYNESBURG — Students at Waynesburg College who major in business administration or related courses have two business fraternities to assist them in exploring career decisions.

They are Alpha Kappa Psi, which is open to all students in business-related major programs, and Phi Chi Theta, whose membership includes students majoring in business administration, economics, public service administration, computer science with a business minor, mine management and management science.

The objectives of Alpha Kappa Psi, which was established on the Waynesburg campus in 1956, are to further the welfare of its members, to foster scientific research and educate the public about the fields of commerce, and to promote programs in business administration.

These objectives are carried out through the various activities of the fraternity sponsors. The alumni-student buffet held each spring allows interested juniors and seniors to meet and talk with alumni working in several career fields. Visits to area business and meetings provide them with practical information.

"We attempt to let students know what is available to them after graduation," said Karen Slagle, vice president of membership. "It helps to talk to someone who is already working in an area in which you are interested."

Alpha Kappa Psi also sponsors visits by several speakers each semester. The programs, open to the community and campus, have featured representatives of Volkswagen of America, Parker Hunter, and the M.B.A. programs of the University of Pittsburgh and West Virginia University.

The local chapter, Delta Iota, offers career and resume services in cooperation with the national fraternity and also participates in a scholarship program sponsored by the fraternity alumni association.

Officers for 1982 are Michael Comstock, president; Steve Eddy, vice president of performance; Karen Slagle, vice president of membership; Richard Fuller, treasurer, and Lisa Monas, secretary. Alpha Kappa Psi currently has 27 members.

Phi Chi Theta's objectives include promoting the cause of higher business education and training for all women, fostering high ideas for women in business careers, and encouraging cooperation among women preparing for careers.

"When we visit a business or sponsor a speaker, we often attempt to find out how women work in the organization and the problems they may have experienced in association with their positions," President Reita Brown said.

The business fraternity promotes its objectives through various activities during the year, including resume writing and interview workshops, field trips to area business, speakers and the President's Forum. The Forum allows students to hear a respected business person from the area speak on a business-related subject.

The national fraternity sponsors the Phi Chi Theta Foundation Scholarship for eligible members and a professional writing contest that publishes winning entries in the fraternity's national publication, "The Iris."

Officers for 1982, in addition to Brown, are Karen Connolly, vice president; Sue Sotak, secretary, and Renee Carey, treasurer. Membership in the Gamma Phi chapter currently numbers 19.

Proposed Anti-Smut Law Poses Tough Problems

Waynesburg Borough Council will face a delicate issue Monday when it is asked to enact an anti-pornography ordinance.

The request is being made by a group of residents representing several churches in the area. They feel that certain magazines being sold in local stores are trash, offend Christian values, and have the potential to debase young people.

As part of its campaign, the group has obtained a "model" ordinance from the Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs. The ordinance was adopted in the Borough of Delmont and is intended to control the display and sale of material which goes beyond the limits of "prevailing community standards" which the Supreme Court has established as the flexible guideline for defining illegal pornography.

While Waynesburg has no sex shops, the group urging passage of the ordinance feels magazines such as Hustler, Playboy, Playgirl and Penthouse meet the Supreme Court test and should be banned in Waynesburg. Members have already approached store owners and have asked them to remove the magazines from their shelves, but feel they need the ordinance if they are required to take legal action to ban sale of the publications.

Most people would agree that many of the periodicals targeted by the group merit their description of "garbage." In other cases the line is not so clear. And where the line should be drawn undoubtedly depends on many things, including personal values.

Passage of the ordinance might be justified on the grounds that it should be in place if an effort is ever made to locate an out-and-out sex shop in the community. But if it is intended to be used as the basis of an indiscriminate smut hunt it could be a dangerous thing.

The imposition by law of values, however valid most people feel them to be, is always dangerous and deserves long and careful consideration.

Proves Mistaken Identity

WAYNESBURG — William H. Hewitt of Wind Ridge was lucky he was in Germany last winter and was able to prove it.

If he hadn't, he would have had a difficult time persuading the state Bureau of Traffic Safety that he was not the man stopped by police in Philadelphia for a traffic violation on Feb. 17, 1982.

"Apparently it was an unfortunate coincidence," Waynesburg attorney

William Davis said after he represented his client in Greene County Court Tuesday. "The man who was arrested was from New Jersey and had the same name and same birthdate."

Because the man who was arrested had no valid license, Davis speculated, a computer check was run and came up with Hewitt's name. Since he had resided in the Philadelphia area, the bureau apparently con-

Franklin Township Sewer Authority Raises Rates

WAYNESBURG — Customers of the Franklin Township Sewer Authority will be paying a substantial increase in rates beginning October 1.

The increase in rates was approved by the authority this week following a review of the budget for 1982-83.

Under the new rates, residential customers will be paying $16 for the first 1,000 gallons of water and $5 for each additional thousand. The previous rates were $6 for the first 1,000 gallons and $3 for each additional thousand gallons.

Users who have well water will be paying a flat rate of $24 per month in comparison to $16 under the old rate.

Under the old rates, the authority realized $170,000 annually. The increase is expected to bring in $230,000 annually.

The next payment on the new sewer system is $326,500. In addition to the $230,000 revenue from users, the authority expects to receive another $70,000 from interest and grants.

After the next payment, the authority will be paying $192,000 each year until 2018 according to project figures.

Much of the rate increase resulted from the current economic problems which have prevented expanded building plans in the township. Rates were based on a survey taken in 1976-77 which projected a high growth rate; however, expansion has not taken place.

Carmichaels Fills Seat

CARMICHAELS — Carmichaels Borough Council elected Betty Hudson to fill the vacant seat created by the resignation in August of Councilman David Klimek.

She was chosen for the council seat on a vote of 3 to 1, with Paul Connor voting against the appointment and John Yurick abstaining. Mrs. Hudson was immediately sworn into office by Mayor Robert Dobbins.

Council discussed the current reduction in police hours, which is due to budgetary problems. Still working full-time is Chief Robert Aramesh. Sgt. David Patterson and Patrolman Richard Owens are working part-time.

Officer Richard Clark has been laid off but is attending the police academy in Pittsburgh on a part-time basis. Council voted not to continue sponsoring Clark, but later rescinded the vote at the request of Aramesh, who cited a new development. Although council members were concerned about liability insurance in sponsoring the former employee, ball.

After spending the two years raising the quality of Waynesburg football to that of other small college teams in southwestern Pennsylvania, he went to Williamson, (W.Va.) High School as its first coach, and in three years his team won the state championship.

After several expensive experiences with former All American Red Roberts from the famous Centre College Colonels, and former All American Brit Patterson from nearby Washington and Jefferson and Stan Keck from Princeton, Waynesburg rehired Wolf.

He was induced to return for another try in 1928, just before the depression era and when money was scarce. Small schools such as Waynesburg had to take the "leftovers" in the scramble for football players from the talent-rich high schools of western Pennsylvania, competing against such well-heeled schools as Pitt, Penn State and Carnegie Tech.

Wolf could counter the advantage enjoyed by the big universities by offering prospects a chance to attend a college with a low financial profile and a president and faculty with a dedicated interest in the approximately 300 students who were enrolled at that time.

Besides making a mark among schools of their own size, Wolf's teams quickly gained a regional reputation among major schools who wanted a real test in early season games. Waynesburg, with an enrollment still far under 500, was in constant demand by some of Jock Sutherland's bone-crushing single winglers, by neighboring West Virginia University, and also by Duquesne University during the brief period in which it ranked as a national power.

They also had a brief series with Georgetown and ultimately with Fordham during its short sojourn into high power football.

As a result, Waynesburg shared the distinction with Fordham of being in the first game ever seen on television. And Bobby Brooks, a shifty Yellow Jacket halfback, had the distinction of scoring the first touchdown ever recorded on the tube. His teammate John Stefanic of Jefferson kicked the first televised conversion point.

At that junction, Fordham power runner Len Eshmont was turned loose and Waynesburg remained scoreless thereafter as the Rams surged to an easy triumph.

The Wolf program gave impetus to a Waynesburg football program which has remained among the leaders for small colleges in the tri-state area of southwestern Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and northern West Virginia — capped perhaps with winning of the national NAIA championship in 1966 by a team composed of players coached by Carl DePasqua. Most of the team had been recruited by Mo Scary, who left just prior to the championship season to join the coaching staff of the Miami Dolphins, where he has had a long career in professional football.

These are just a few of the highlights of the story of Waynesburg football and the "Wolfmen."

There are a thousand and one stories of the relationship of a generation of students who found inspiration at Waynesburg from their long-time president, Dr. Paul R. Stewart, a sympathetic faculty, and townspeople who helped them overcome the adversity of the Depression years to play their appropriate roles in the life of their country.

Regardless of whether their last journey back to their alma mater for a formal reunion, it will be a glorious day of renewal for members of Wolf's teams when the 1982 college squad classes with their oldest rival, Geneva College, at 1:15 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18.

May the best team (Waynesburg, of course) be the winner.

Commissioners Are Concerned Over New Welfare Regulations

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County commissioners expressed concern Thursday over new regulations by the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare which they feel will have a major impact on funding of the Curry Memorial Home.

In doing so, they echoed the opinion of the Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners, which says that the new rules "will have a devastating financial impact on reimbursements to counties for the operation of their nursing homes," forcing them to either curtail nursing home operations or abandon them altogether.

The major impact would come through redefinition of intermediate care standards which would result in the transfer of many patients from skilled care to intermediate care status, depriving the counties of much of the additional reimbursement they receive for providing skilled care.

The change, which became effective on Sept. 1, was made by the Department of Welfare at the insistence of the federal government, which has demanded that the Medicare definition of skilled nursing care be used for reimbursement purposes.

As a result, the county commissioners have joined with the state association in calling for a moratorium on the proposed changes in funding until such time as a mecha-

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

There has been great Indian summer weather in Greene County for the past couple of weeks and as the people along Main Street say, "How nice that would be to enjoy all winter and then have it warm up a bit for spring." Too bad the Indians didn't get a patent on making that kind of weather and they wouldn't need all that money.

Waynesburgers who enjoy doing a bit of sidewalk supervising on jobs with noisy, clanging power equipment can have a field day on the Greene Street reconstruction project. Noise from daylight to dark is disturbing the late sleepers.

Speaking of fall, something has been missing from the Greene County scene ever since the dairy industry invented silage and there was no reason to husk the corn by hand and making corn shocks. The old husking bees are long gone and with it the friendliness of neighbors working together.

Work continues on the new lights for night football at Waynesburg Central High School. Meanwhile, games are starting at 5 p.m. but may have to move up as dusk gets earlier. Greene County's two public swimming pools were closed over the holiday weekend but few cared in view of the cooler weather.

And speaking of things around town, the localized functions of the old South Penn Telephone Co. are gradually being reduced prior to the transfer of all operations to the Mid-Penn Telephone facilities in Altoona and Kittanning. Local residents will miss the personal voices of the telephone operators in Waynesburg.

For Waynesburg College sports fans from the Frank Wolf era of the 1930s and 1940s who will be in town October 18 there will be many former players around to recall old memories including Harry Anderson, Don Avery, Mike Baker, Don Blatchley, Mark Booth, Ed Bouldin, Martin Dembo, Henry Dembo, Henry Furrie, Dick Hathaway, Tom Holland, Joe Jefferson, Dale Kenney, Sol Levine, Bill McCracken, Joe McCune, Bill McClumphy and many others.

Former Local Man Gets Promotion

DENVER — Lt. Col. Tom Parkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Parkinson of Waynesburg, recently received two U.S. Air Force promotions.

He was promoted to colonel and named director of the Retired Pay Directorate at the U.S. Air Force Accounting and Finance Center located in Denver, Colo.

As director, he is responsible for paying the more than 500,000 Air Force retirees and annuitants located throughout the world.

Col. Parkinson is a 1958 graduate of Waynesburg High School and received his commission in the Air Force after receiving his degree in business administration from Penn State University in 1962.

He entered the Air Force in Sept., 1962, and is a veteran of 19 years having served as an administration officer, accounting and finance officer, a missile combat crew commander and instructor and a controller.

He has served as Amarillo AFB in Texas, Karamursel Air Station in Turkey, Malmstrom AFB in Montana, Langley AFB in Virginia, Fairchild AFB in Washington, Offutt AFB in Nebraska and Lowry AFB in Colorado.

His Air Force awards and decorations include the Meritorious Service Medal with two Oak Leaf clusters and the Commendation Medal.

Col. Parkinson is married to the former Marian McAdoo of Amarillo, Texas and they have two daughters, Lynne 12, and Kathryn, 9, and live in Englewood, Colo.

nism has been developed which recognizes the increased costs of providing care to the newly-defined intermediate patients.

The commissioners indicated they would contact both state Sen. Barry Stout and state Rep. William DeWiese and ask them to contact Welfare Secretary Helen O'Bannon with regard to granting of the moratorium.

"Counties have traditionally accepted responsibility for the care of the medically needy indigent," the commissioners said. "Our concern lies with our ability to continue this service to residents of Greene County."

WAYNESBURG — The 4th annual Coca Cola Bestball Tournament will be held Saturday, Sept. 18, at Rohanna's Golf Course, two miles east of Waynesburg. A top prize of $700 is guaranteed.

Youths Employed In Summer Program

WAYNESBURG — Ninety-four students in the county were gainfully employed this summer thanks to the Summer Youth Program.

Bernice Stitichick, the program's coordinator through the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp., noted there were a number of reasons for the program — to train economically disadvantaged youth to do different jobs, give them a job with a meaningful experience, give them money to start school with, and teach them good work habits. "It was not created to take a job away from anyone," she emphasized.

The Summer Youth Program, a non-profit organization, is part of the old Neighborhood Youth Corps program. Paychecks for the students came from CETA. Students were placed in local day care centers, senior citizens centers, libraries, at Mon View Park, and worked in township and borough offices. Some girls were even hired to work on road crews.

The program ran from June 1 to Sept. 1 and youths aged 16 to 21 were eligible.

Three of the students employed through the program are pictured here. They are:

Charles Fox, who will be attending Temple University this year, and spent his summer working at the day care center at the First Presbyterian Church in Waynesburg.

Mark Ross, a senior at Penn State, worked as activities coordinator for the Clarksville Senior Citizens Center, scheduling trips, games, picnics and other social activities.

Valerie Bennett spent her third summer employed at the Greene County Historical Society's Museum where she gave tours in addition to a number of other duties. She is a June graduate of Waynesburg Central High School.

All three expressed their gratitude that summer jobs were available to them through the program — especially at a time when jobs are hard to come by.

Distances Pose No Problem For Runnin' Joe

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

ASBURY PARK, N.J. — The very thought of making a 1,200-mile trip would upset many people but a former Crucible resident is looking forward to it — and he's going to run the entire distance.

Joe Ersagovich, a former Crucible postmaster and a former Amity tavern owner in Amity, hopes to begin his long trek next month from Long Beach Township in New Jersey to Miami, Fla. In doing so, he hopes to raise money for the Deborah Heart and Lung Center in Pemberton Township, N.J.

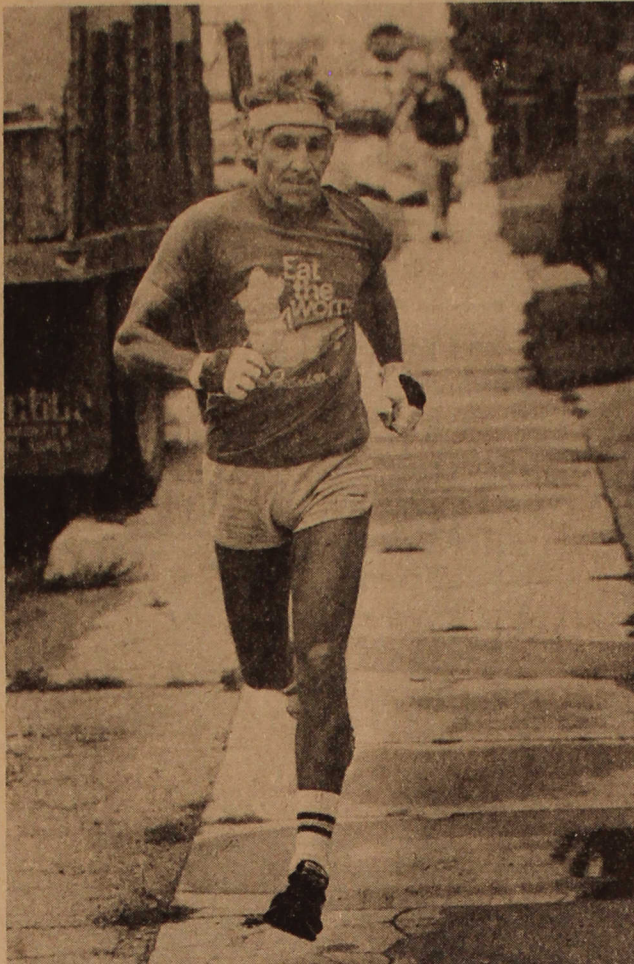

It will be the second attempt for the 61-year-old bartender. On Sept. 29, 1981, he started running to Miami and was making 40 to 50 miles each day until Oct. 25, when he stepped off a curb in Jacksonville, Fla. and injured his leg.

He continued another 30 miles against the advice of a doctor but in St. Augustine, he had to quit. His leg was swollen and he had only $400 left. He stayed in St. Augustine rebuilding air compressors during the winter.

He ran alone with only a small backpack filled with two changes of running clothes, toilet articles, vitamins and nutrients. "The heat is the worst enemy. I got a lot of heat in Georgia," he recalled.

A former coal miner, Ersagovich hasn't had a car for the past 10 years.

Joe Ersagovich keeping in shape

"I started running in the 60s by running races with kids and I liked it. I liked the high you get from it, both physical and mental when you hit the wall (the point where a runner feels he cannot go on), then the mental takes over," he said.

Known as "Running Joe" in the neighborhood, he works part-time as a bartender.

His concern for the medical center can be attributed to the fact he lost his father, uncle and brother Frank to heart-related diseases. "These things I couldn't understand. I looked into it and found their diets had a lot of red meats," he said.

Ersagovich is now a vegetarian whose diet consists of vegetables (usually raw), fruits, wheat germ, vitamins, nutritional supplements and occasionally some fish.

Eventually he hopes to write a book telling people how to live well after they are 60 years old. His advice will include "Get with it, go for it. Don't sit around and watch television."

"I get better as I get older. I wouldn't have thought to run to Florida when I was in my 20s. I don't think I could have done it then," he said.

Ersagovich was born Feb. 27, 1921, and lived the first years of his life in Burgettstown. In 1927, after his mother had died in childbirth and his father remarried, the family moved to Crucible where his father worked in the mines.

"Things were tough, very tough. I don't know if you've read stories about the coal mining era. It was like that," Ersagovich said.

He served five years in the U.S. Navy as a boilermaker before receiving a medical discharge when the U.S.S. Langley was attacked in the Philippine Straits and he suffered a severe concussion.

It was then doctors found he had a weakened heart from a boyhood case of rheumatic fever, a condition he said was not hampered by his physical activities.

His wife, the former Doris Roth of Rices Landing who died 12 years ago, once told him to always treat people well and not prejudice them. He continues to heed that advice. He and his wife owned and operated a tavern near Amity for 17 years before selling the business in 1972.

His stepmother Frances still resides in Crucible.

Rockets Win

By John Barker, D-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — It was the debut for two first-year Greene County high school football coaches on opening day in scholastic football Friday afternoon.

One coach opened his 1982 act with an impressive win that put a conservative smile on his face. The other coach came away just plain frustrated.

Jefferson-Morgan High School pounded Waynesburg, 26-3, at Waynesburg Central High School Field and the smile was coming from the face of Rocket head coach John Bayer.

The former Serra Catholic coach opened up a high-powered offense, featuring a pinpoint passing game, against Waynesburg and blew the Raiders away in such fashion that should convince him that the 1982 season has promise.

"Yes, this was a good game in some respects," said Bayer. "I'm happy with the outcome of the game but I don't think we played well. We did okay but we'll have to keep improving, this was encouraging, though."

The man with the problems is Red Raider head coach Tom Vent. He was supposed to rescue a program which sported a 2-5-2 record last year, but he now knows his work is cut out for him.

If there's such a thing as opening day jitters, the Raiders were full of them Friday. They fumbled and bumbled all over the field and simply didn't execute against the hard-hitting Rockets.

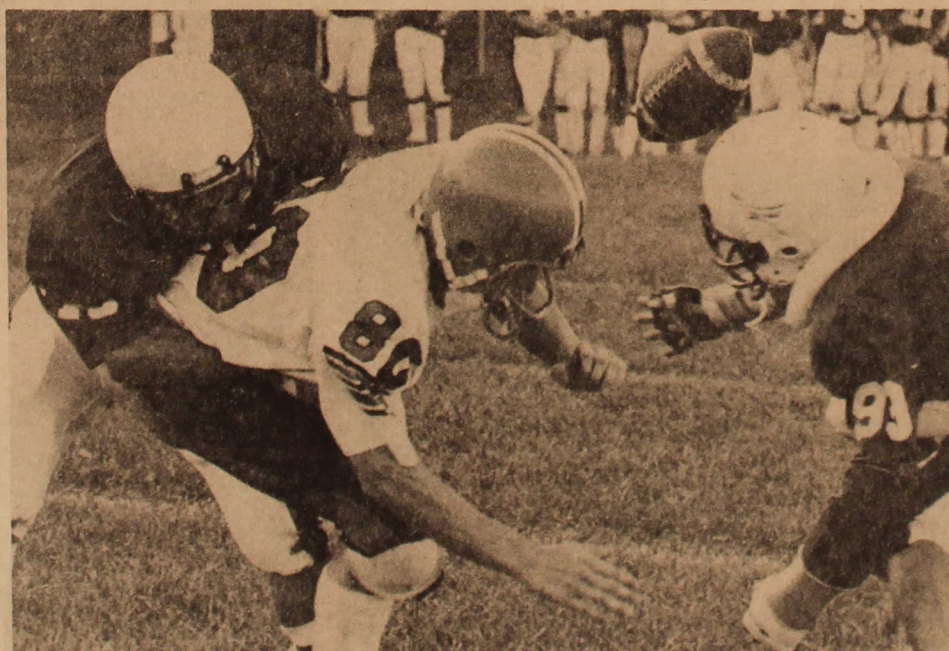

"We were terrible," said Vent. "I blame this one on poor coaching. They looked better prepared and they just kicked our butts. We have to get some character because we looked weak today."

The first mistake came in the opening quarter when the Raiders fumbled near midfield and Jeff-Morgan's Tim Starastanko recovered, giving the Rockets excellent field position.

Jeff-Morgan took little time capitalizing on the mistake, scoring on a one-yard keeper by quarterback Brian Virgin on the seventh play of the 50-yard drive. The extra point attempt was blocked by Jeff-Morgan was on top early, 6-0.

"We messed up right off the bat with that fumble," said Vent. "We should have held them but they shoved it down our throats and jumped on top."

Waynesburg came back with its only real offensive threat in the second quarter when it marched 43 yards before the drive stalled at the 13-yard line. The Red Raiders had to settle for a 30-yard field goal by Jim Eckerd, closing the score to 6-3.

Jeff-Morgan's Dave Bates (80) fumbles the ball when he is hit by a Waynesburg defender. Robert Evans (right) closes in on the play.

Jackets Fall

WAYNESBURG — Byron Brooks is one name the Waynesburg College football team might never forget.

The sophomore tailback from Glenville State College carried the ball 20 times throughout Saturday's game against the Yellow Jackets, but just three of those carries netted 164 yards and three touchdowns.

The 5-10, 180-pound Jeannette native busted through a porous Waynesburg defense three times in particular and sprinted for three touchdowns that helped the Raiders sting the Jackets, 20-7, at College Field.

"That was a very poor impersonation of a football team," said Waynesburg head coach Hayden Buckley. "We didn't look ready and we didn't execute; what else can you say. We played poor all the way around."

And if the loss was a major disappointment to the Jackets, it was a big boost for the Raiders. It was the first time in nine years Glenville won an opener and Pioneer head coach Frank Vincent was thrilled.

"We beat a good team here today," said Vincent. "Maybe they underestimated us because of the young players we had and last year's poor record, but we were up. The guys felt like we were playing Notre Dame — this was our big game before conference play."

The young team Vincent alluded to includes an entire backfield of underclassmen and 40 freshmen on the varsity roster.

Glenville dominated the line of scrimmage and held the entire game and held the Jackets' tailback, Otto Birkhead, to only 23 yards on 13 carries.

"We didn't have the offensive line blocking well and the backs didn't have the holes," said Buckley. "They controlled the line both ways; we didn't have much push on offense."

Quarterback Mike Forbes salvaged a poor first-half performance and ended the game with impressive statistics (8-16, 152 yards) thanks to a 97-yard touchdown pass. With the ball on the Jackets' three-yard line, Forbes tossed a short pass to flanker Ted Rodavich, who faked the defensive back and sprinted down the sideline for the score. The scoring play established a new school record for the longest touchdown pass.

Brooks, who finished with 210 yards, broke the first run in the second quarter when he swept around right end and sprinted 51 yards for the touchdown, giving Glenville a 7-0 lead. Just a little more than five minutes later, Brooks ran up the middle and broke through, racing 56 yards to give the Raiders a 13-0 halftime lead.

Waynesburg rallied with its touchdown on its first possession of the second half and looked like it may come back.
