Waynesburg College President Resigns

JOSEPH F. MARSH

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Dr. Joseph F. Marsh presented his resignation as president of Waynesburg College to the college board of trustees at its meeting Friday.

It is to be effective April 1, 1983, giving the board the six months notice dictated by the president's contract.

"It came as a complete surprise," Board Chairman Ewing B. Pollock said. "The resignation was accepted with regret and with our appreciation and thanks to Joe for his accomplishments and work during the more than eight years he has been at the college."

It was also confirmed Friday night that Dr. Richard Cowan has been appointed vice president for development, and that Dr. Wellington Friday has been named vice president for planning, a new position which combines the duties he presently holds in the areas of setting up new programs and in securing federal funds.

Cowan, who is presently chairman of the Business Administration and Economics Department, will replace Dr. Jerry L. Beasley, who will leave Oct. 1 to become vice president for development at West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Marsh stressed his action was taken for personal reasons and without any pressure from the board, either collectively or individually. It was presented to the board during its open meeting, with administrative and faculty representatives in attendance.

While he had been under fire from the faculty in the spring of this year, when a vote of "no confidence" in his leadership was adopted which had widespread repercussions, Marsh said it did not affect his decision.

"I sincerely believe that now is a propitious time for the board to plan for an orderly change in institutional leadership and for me to consider opportunities for professional service elsewhere — both being accomplished in an atmosphere of mutual good will and respect that will make for a smooth transition," Marsh said in his letter of resignation.

"During my remaining time in office, I assure the board that I will continue to exercise the duties and responsibilities of the presidency with vigor and dedication, and always with the best interests of the college a foremost consideration. However, in making decisions and in offering recommendations to the board, I shall be sensitive not to take actions that unnecessarily would limit the options of my successor."

Marsh, who is 57, was installed as the 13th president of Waynesburg College on April 17, 1974. He is a native of Charleston, W. Va., and served as president of Concord College in West Virginia from 1959 to 1973.

At the present time, he has no plans for what he will do after leaving Waynesburg. "I don't even have any resumes out yet," he said Friday night.

In his letter, the president expressed his appreciation "for the confidence and support I have received from the board and other constituencies of the college. "I am confident that Waynesburg will meet successfully the challenges of the future, will continue its progress and will move forward in keeping with its historic mission of providing high-quality educational opportunities as an independent, church-related institution of higher learning. There is a very warm spot in my heart for Waynesburg College and I wish for the institution every success and much prosperity in all the years ahead."

Pollock said that a committee will be appointed to seek a successor and will explore all possibilities, both inside and outside the college family.

Officials Ask Commissioners To Fix Salaries

WAYNESBURG — Eight of Greene County's elected officials presented a petition to the county commissioners Thursday asking them to fix salaries for officials who will be elected in 1983.

The action must be taken this year if the officials or their successors are to receive any salary increases during the next four-year term of office, running from Jan. 1, 1984, to Jan. 1, 1988.

The petition was presented by Clerk of Courts Al Darney and Sheriff Remo Bertugli. It also was signed by Register and Recorder Thomas M. Headlee, Prothonotary Charles Hogue, Treasurer Joseph R. Souders, Coroner Frank J. Behm and Jury Commissioners Margaret A. Perrin and Bernice Kuharcik.

Public Law 495, which became law in 1979, for the first time gave county commissioners the power to fix salaries of county officials. Prior to that, the power resided in the state Legislature.

Under the new law, the county commissioners have the right to provide annual salary increases on a percentage basis, applying equally to all elected officers. To do so, they must advertise and hold a public meeting at a central location in the county at sometime between 6 and 9 p.m. to give the public an opportunity to comment.

The meeting must be held prior to the election of the officials since the salaries must be fixed before they take office. And it can't be held in any year in which the commissioners themselves are to be elected. Since the Greene County commissioners are to be elected in 1983, it must therefore be held this year.

In response to the petition, the commissioners pointed out that officials elected in 1983 will already be receiving a pay hike when they take office in 1984.

"We've already voted to change the classification of the county from seventh class to sixth class and that will provide raises of $1,500 a year to most officeholders starting in 1984," Commission Chairman Joseph Pawlosky said. "We decided to do that rather than going with the percentage raises."

Darney and Bertugli noted, however, that the change in classification would freeze salaries at one level from 1984 through 1987, and that their suggestion could allow for annual percentage increases, perhaps starting in 1985.

"Washington County met recently and set annual increases of 7½ percent," Bertugli said. "We want you to schedule a public meeting so that we can talk about it."

The sheriff also pointed out that any action taken would not affect his office or those of the coroner and jury commissioners until 1986, since their terms are different from other offices and are not up for election until 1985.

"Whatever you do, we wouldn't get the benefit of it until our new term starts in 1986," he said.

At the present time, the commissioners, treasurer, sheriff, prothonotary and recorder are receiving $15,500 a year; the district attorney, clerk of courts and register and recorder $16,500 a year; the coroner, $6,500 a year, and the jury commissioners, $2,500 a year.

Starting in 1984, because of the change in classification, the commissioners will receive $19,000; the district attorney, clerk of courts and register and recorder, $18,000; and the treasurer and prothonotary, $17,000. Starting in 1986, the sheriff would receive $17,000; the coroner, $7,000, and the jury commissioners, $3,000.

The commissioners made no commitment to hold the public meeting but did agree to consider the request.

Also at the meeting, the commissioners executed an application for state funds on behalf of the Greene County Council on the Arts. It requests a 1982-83 appropriation of $5,000 from the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, which would be matched by a county grant of $5,000. Similar grants have been obtained for the past three years.

The commissioners were advised that John L. Reagan, executive director of the Greene County Conservation District, has submitted his resignation, effective Sept. 30, to accept a

Transportation System Called 'Success'

WAYNESBURG — Greene County's new "shared-ride, demand responsive" public transportation system appears to be well on its way to success.

"I couldn't be more pleased," program Director Ann Bargerstock told the Greene County commissioners Thursday. "Response from the public has been very good and is getting better as more and more people become aware that the service is available."

The new program expands transportation services which have in the past been available only to senior citizens, and sets up a schedule of fares based on the distance travelled. Persons over the age of 65 ride for 25 percent of the public fare.

Vans are being used for "rural loop" runs through the county and station wagons for special trips. Residents can use the service for shopping trips, medical appointments or other reasons.

The key to its success, Mrs. Bargerstock said, is riders are picked up at and returned to their homes. Under an earlier program, which did not catch on, buses ran fixed routes and riders had to get to the bus stops.

Mrs. Bargerstock told commissioners to execute the budget for startup costs, which is to be sub-

Negotiators Blast Board

MAPLETOWN — Negotiators for the Southeastern Greene Education Association Thursday accused the school board of showing lack of interest in ending the teachers' walkout which has kept schools closed since Aug. 31.

The statement was made after the full teacher negotiating team and PSEA representative Don Peroni had met for 30 minutes Thursday afternoon with board negotiator John Stets in his Waynesburg office.

"We could get nothing done because not one member of the school board was present, despite the fact that the meeting was scheduled by state mediator August Turak," a SGEA spokesman said. He also charged that Board President James Minor had failed to notify the entire board that the meeting was scheduled.

"The board's failure to show up for good-faith negotiations called by the state mediator is evidence that they are not interested in settling this contract dispute and that they have no concern in getting the school year underway for children of the district," the spokesman said.

Prior to the scheduled session, Minor had informed the news media that the session was being canceled because most of the school board negotiating team members were working and could not attend an afternoon session. The teachers' association, however, said that no one had told them it was being called off.

"If he couldn't meet with us at one o'clock, why didn't he let us know and come up with an alternate date?" the spokesman asked.

mitted to the state Department of Transportation. The state department is providing $64,673 out of state lottery funds for capital expenditures.

The budget includes the purchase of a 15-passenger van, an eight-passenger station wagon, and hardware and software needed to connect the system into the computer operated by the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp.

The Area Agency on Aging is providing one new van and one station wagon, which eliminated the need to purchase two more vehicles with the state money and made funds available for the computer equipment, she said.

She also said that under a Community Action reorganization program, transportation services have been set up as a separate service and the Agency on Aging, which previously had made its computer available, will no longer be involved.

"We have to maintain our own records now and need the computer service," she said.

Anyone who wants to use the service can arrange to be picked up by calling the central dispatch number in Waynesburg, 627-6778.

In addition to the startup funds, the state will provide about $71,000 for operating costs through June of next year.

Fire In Ruff Creek Destroys Tractors, Garage-Workshop

RUFF CREEK — Damage has been estimated at some $160,000 in a fire which destroyed a garage-workshop at the farm of Ronald Cole located along Route 221 five miles west of Ruff Creek.

Cole was badly burned on the hands while attempting to extinguish the flames which broke out at about 7 p.m. Saturday.

Four volunteer fire companies including Waynesburg, Morris Township, Jefferson and Amwell Township were called to the scene. Waynesburg enlisted the aid of the other companies primarily to supply water.

Waynesburg volunteers were called back at 11:05 when the fire rekindled. Firemen were at the scene for over three hours.

Destroyed in the blaze were two farm tractors, one of them valued at some $60,000; a pickup truck owned by Kathy Reeves, assorted tools and several pieces of welding equipment.

According to Pete Walker, Waynesburg fire chief, Cole had just dismounted from a tractor when he heard a "puffing" noise and he then noticed the flames. "He grabbed a fire extinguisher and thought he had the blaze under control," Walker said.

Cole used one tractor in an attempt to push the other one out of the garage but heard another combustible sound. "There were more flames and the blaze was out of control," Walker said.

Walker said there could have been diesel fuel leaking and it was ignited by an electrical spark.

Cole declined to comment on the fire Sunday afternoon when contacted.

Cole was treated and released at Greene County Memorial Hospital for burns on both hands.

Generator Taken

State police are investigating the theft of a portable generator from a construction site along Route 18, one mile north of Sycamore.

Investigating officers said the red portable generator was valued at $2,000. It was taken sometime between 5 p.m. Friday and noon Monday from a construction site of W. P. Dickerson and Son Inc., of Youngwood, located near Sycamore.

Teachers Claim Pact Falls Short

By Christie Molzon, Staff Writer

MAPLETOWN — No further talks are scheduled in the Southeastern Greene School District following a negotiating session Monday night in which the latest board offer was rejected by the teachers' union.

At the meeting, the board raised its salary offer to $1,100 for the first year, $1,200 the second and $1,300 for the third year. Board President Jim Minor said the board had previously offered $1,025, $925 and $825.

But a statement released by the Southeastern Greene Education Association Tuesday charged the board's proposal falls "hundreds of dollars behind settlements attained or offered in any of the neighboring school districts."

The union further charged that "with the board's proposal, teachers in the Southeastern Greene School District would be the lowest paid teachers in Greene County."

"The negotiating meeting for Sept. 27 was called by state mediator August Turak," the statement reads.

"Although the entire session lasted approximately two hours, the two sides met in face-to-face negotiations for only approximately 20 minutes. The board spent most of the remaining time in a private work session. After their work session, the board did propose a three-year wage increase. But the board's proposal failed to mention fringe benefits, or any of the other unresolved economic issues."

Also included in the latest school board offer, according to Minor, was:

➤ That the administration may assign duties in place of the preparatory period as deemed necessary;

➤ Remove the head teachers' salaries from the contract and state they have the same authority as any administrator;

➤ No negotiating of facilities for teachers;

➤ For informational purposes when jobs are posted a copy of the notice will be sent to the association president;

➤ An in-service day is to be scheduled during American Education Week with the work day beginning at 11:30 a.m.;

➤ Payment for in-service days will be made only for actual attendance and participation. Emergencies, personal and/or sick days will not be recognized for payment.

The union's statement also reads: "Negotiations took a major step backwards in the area of non-economic issues. The board reneged on its past offer to withdraw changes it had proposed in non-economic language and failed to show any willingness to discuss various proposals suggested in this area." These non-economic issues include provisions for safe working conditions and a furlough process based on seniority.

Teachers in the district have been on strike since Aug. 31.

No further negotiations are scheduled in the West Greene School District where teachers walked off the job Sept. 13. Anne Bower, who heads the board's negotiating team said Tuesday, "We are waiting on the call of the mediator."

No Progress Reported In J-M Contract Talks

JEFFERSON — No progress was made during a negotiation session Tuesday night in the Jefferson-Morgan School District where 70 teachers have been on strike since Sept. 2.

Meanwhile, a tentative negotiating session has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Southeastern Greene School District where its 61 teachers have been on strike since Aug. 31, and a meeting has been scheduled tonight for contract talks in the West Greene School District where 81 teachers have been on strike since Sept. 13.

The strikes keep a total of 3,850 students in the three school districts from their classrooms. In addition, some students in the county's other two school districts are being affected by a strike by Intermediate Unit 1 teachers.

In the Jefferson contract talks Tuesday night, teachers were officially notified of the board's return to its original offer of $1,400 salary increases in each year of a proposed three-year contract, while teachers indicated they were continuing to seek $1,700, $1,800 and $1,900 salary increases over the next three years.

The session was held at a neutral and undisclosed site because some 40 district residents picketed a negotiating session on Sept. 14 at the junior-senior high school, which both sides indicated hinders the contract talks.

The next negotiation session will be at the call of state mediator August Turak and will most likely be held at the Bureau of Mediation in Pittsburgh.

Forrest "Bud" Cottle, district business manager and chief negotiator for the board, understood Turak to say Tuesday night that future meetings would be held in Pittsburgh. Bonnie Mylan, chief negotiator for the teachers, said that was fine with her.

"I think it would be more conducive to negotiation," she said.

The board went back to its $1,400 a year salary increase offer following the Sept. 14 session after teachers turned down a three-year salary increase offer of $1,600, $1,700 and $1,800. The rejected offer included a vision package in trade for teachers' giving up one of their four personal days.

But Cottle said Wednesday the board's stand on its return to the previous offer was "mushy" and "negotiable."

Mylan said the teachers Tuesday night were ready to negotiate in several areas such as guidelines for personal days, but that the board indicated it would not negotiate in any areas.

According to Cottle, Turak felt that both sides were so firm on their stands Tuesday night that it would be fruitless to immediately schedule another session.

"Well, we've come down a little and the board has come up a little," Mylan said Wednesday. "But I guess we still have to find some middle ground somewhere."

President Resigns

He noted that at Marsh's request, a presidential evaluation study was begun more than a year ago with the assistance of a consultant and is currently nearing completion.

"It will evaluate all areas of the college — the administration, faculty and board of trustees — and should give us a pretty good idea of our strengths and weaknesses," he said. "We expect to utilize it in determining the qualities we should seek in a new president."

Pollock pointed out that under Marsh's leadership, the college reached the point where it had an operating surplus for four consecutive years and that year, for the first time, a deficit of $500,000 is being projected because of the decline in enrollment.

Both he and Marsh noted that the college has already taken initiatives to reverse the trend through making plans for new programs, and that these will be continued during the remainder of Marsh's term and on into the future.

A car driven by Byron Shultz of Waynesburg R.D. 2 hit an embankment. He was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital but refused to be treated.

Joseph L. Friend, 23, of Dilliner, was taken to West Virginia University Hospital following an accident at 10:20 p.m. Friday on Route 88 in Monongahela Township.

Franklin Twp. Board Joins Authority In Suit

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Supervisors Monday voted to join the Franklin Township Sewer Authority in suing Mountainview Gardens to force installation of a cross-over line which would divert sewage from the borough lines into the township lines for processing.

Mountainview officials signed a four-party agreement over a year ago with Waynesburg Borough, the township authority and the supervisors and promised to construct the cross-over. The project was approved by the Department of Environmental Resources (DER).

Mountainview apartments are in the township, but its sewer line was connected to the borough system despite an order from DER to the borough which forbids additional taps. Because of the order, Mountainview agreed to divert its sewage into the township lines.

Township officials claim a loss of $30,000 during the period Mountainview used borough facilities for sewage treatment. In the proposed law suit, the township bodies will seek reimbursement of the $30,000.

Although Mountainview has asked to be annexed into the borough, the DER and township officials are on record as saying this possibility is a separate issue and has nothing to do with the cross-over project.

A representative of the sewer authority was present for the township meeting Monday and said his group was 100 percent in favor of bringing the lawsuit. However, the sewer authority will not officially vote on the proposal until its next regular meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 5.

Supervisors tabled a request from a group of citizens requesting an anti-pornography ordinance.

Mrs. Richard Bortz, spokeswoman for the group, said some 1,000 signatures have been obtained on petitions requesting the action. She presented a model ordinance being used in Delmont for the supervisors' consideration. Mrs. Bortz was told the proposed ordinance would be reviewed and problems of enforcing such an ordinance discussed before any decision would be made.

A request to vacate 120 feet of Beech Alley in West Waynesburg was approved on the condition no problems with gas service lines would be created. The alley has not been used as a public roadway in anyone's memory. The vacation request was made by David Arnold who is purchasing the property from Virginia Scandale.

College Homecoming 'Mardi Gras' Theme

WAYNESBURG — A "Mardi Gras" theme has been planned for this year's Waynesburg College Homecoming celebration scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 16.

This year, merchants along the High Street parade route will be taking part in a window display contest during Homecoming. Window displays, based on the "Mardi Gras" theme, will be judged on the basis of originality, creativity and appearance. The merchant with the best display will be awarded a plaque.

The Homecoming Parade also will revolve around the Mardi Gras theme and the college Student Senate hopes the community will take part as well as students, alumni, faculty and staff. A number of high school and junior high school bands from the region have been invited to participate in the parade and spaces are still available for individuals or organizations wishing to take part.

As usual, elections for the Homecoming Court will take place during the week of Oct. 4 through Oct. 8, but with a different twist. In the past, the Homecoming Queen was announced Friday night at the pep rally. But this year the queen won't be announced until halftime at the football game, said Sam Swift, executive vice president of Student Senate and Homecoming chairman.

"The Homecoming Court will ride in the traditional Homecoming Parade but the queen will be formally announced at halftime of the Waynesburg vs. Frostburg football game," Swift said.

The Student Senate also has planned a buffet dinner in the Benedum Hall cafeteria for after the football game. This dinner is free to all students with alumni, parents and friends invited to attend at a cost of $3.75.

position with the Department of Welfare. The commissioners said they would ask the agency's board of directors to recommend a replacement for their consideration.

An application was executed requesting an allocation of state and federal funds totaling $852,178 for operation of Greene County Children and Youth Services, covering its operations for fiscal 1983-84 as well as placement costs of the county probation department.

Rupert Eder, executive director of the county agency, said the maximum available for the year is $1,849 less than in the preceding year. A budget for use of the money was submitted with the application, having been previously reviewed at a public hearing.

Money Raisers To Be Honored

JEFFERSON — The Jefferson-Morgan Professional Association has been notified by the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Citizens (PARC) that the local association was the top fundraising group in the state this year.

Jefferson-Morgan teachers were responsible for raising $6,650 during last summer's bike hike. The per capita total was the highest in the state. Bonnie Mylan, association president, was the second highest coordinator in the state association.

Both Mylan and the association will be honored at the PARC state convention to be held in Harrisburg Oct. 16.

Woman To Mark 100th Birthday

Levada Knopsnyder of Dilliner will celebrate her 100th birthday on Friday, Oct. 1 in the home of her daughter Mrs. Gladys Miller.

Born in Fayette County on Oct. 1, 1882, she is the last of her family of eight children. While health permitted, she attended the Assembly of God Church, Poland Mines.

She worked in the laundry at Connellsville Hospital for many years before her retirement.

Drum Majors Win

Calf Slaughtered

WIND RIDGE — State police are investigating the slaughter and theft of a Hereford calf from a field owned by William A. Campbell of West Finley.

The incident occurred sometime between 3 p.m. Saturday and 10:30 a.m. Sunday along Route 596 in Richhill Township. The animal was valued at $300.

Student's Tour Of Iceland Financed By Award Stipend

WAYNESBURG — Nadine Obermiller, a geology major at Waynesburg College, spent six weeks this summer touring Iceland as the 1982 recipient of the college's Vira L. Heinz Award.

"For a geologist, it is like a trip into the past in a time machine," said Mrs. Obermiller. "By studying the geological features of the island, it's possible to understand more about how the earth evolved to what it is now."

The recipient of the Vira L. Heinz Award receives a $2,500 stipend for study and travel abroad. It is given yearly to an outstanding junior woman at Waynesburg College. As a second semester junior majoring in geology, Mrs. Obermiller plans a career in geology upon graduation.

"I left Waynesburg during the third week of May and arrived in Iceland for one of the coldest springs the people could remember," she said. "We even had snow."

During her stay, Mrs. Obermiller studied with the Geology Department of the University of Iceland. Her experiences included field trips to different parts of Iceland and the study of geological literature and maps of the island.

Her first field trip was to the southern and eastern parts of Iceland. For seven days she explored the glaciers and rock compositions of that area. Her second field trip was a four-day stay in the northern section of the island where she examined the volcanoes located there. "The volcanoes are still active and I was able to walk on lava that was just setting," she said.

"The land is mostly open spaces but you can still get lost. Often you will see markers of stones and rocks showing the way across an open area. It's a barren country where long-haired sheep graze for moss among lumps of black lava."

Because most of the roads are made of lava, sand and pebbles, Mrs. Obermiller said it's dangerous to travel by car. Most tourists travel in special groups on buses and spend little time on their own. The best roads were in and around the major cities, such as Reykjavik, the parliamentary seat, and Akureyri in the Arctic Circle.

Mrs. Obermiller described the people as proud of their Viking history and their country. "I was able to celebrate their Independence Day on June 17 while I was there. During this time of year, Iceland has 24 hours of daylight and the people were dancing in the streets. Most of the townspeople spoke Icelandic, but the students and professors were able to speak English."

She described the people as very family-oriented, "almost like the United States was a generation or two ago."

Dr. Marsh Supports Staff Change

WAYNESBURG — Dr. Joseph F. Marsh, who resigned Friday as president of Waynesburg College effective April 1, 1983, has circulated letters to the faculty and administrative staff explaining his views on recent personnel changes.

Noting the board of trustees named Dr. Richard S. Cowan as vice president for development and Dr. Wellington R.L. Friday as vice president for institutional planning, research and program development, Marsh told faculty and staff he had suggested the moves prior to trustee approval. Marsh made it clear that he was the one to take the initiative in the personnel changes.

Marsh also explained in more detail the responsibilities of Cowan who will be in charge of planning, initiating, staffing and promoting a new masters program in business administration. Cowan will continue to teach through December and then be relieved of classroom work.

In the case of Friday, Marsh explained this is a change in title only and "reflects more accurately, the responsibilities he has had for some time and his status as a senior administrative officer of the college."

Current Sunshine Law Is Not Doing The Job

Greene County's Judge Glenn Toothman had some interesting comments to make about Pennsylvania's Sunshine Law during a recent presentation of arguments in a case in which the plaintiffs charge that Waynesburg Borough Council went behind closed doors to make a decision on awarding of a garbage contract.

The attorney for the company which lost out said council's vote to award the contract to the higher of two bidders was made without any discussion and without any explanation to the public for its action.

"The overwhelming inference where there is absolutely no public discussion is that substantial and important decisions were made in private meetings," he charged.

The attorney for the borough, while conceding that council may have exercised poor judgement in failing to publicly justify its decision, contended that the borough fathers had the discretion to meet privately to explore the area of bidder responsibility.

In commenting on the arguments, Judge Toothman said he could understand the dilemma which borough councils, school boards and township supervisors face when confronted with the Sunshine Law requirement that all decisions be made in public when they face what they feel to be sensitive issues.

"Open discussion of local issues seems to have decreased since the law was enacted," the Greene County jurist said. "It has been my experience that the Sunshine Law has had the opposite effect that that which was intended."

He is probably correct, since questionable legal interpretations and maneuvers to sidestep the obvious intent of the legislation have become commonplace.

Consider what took place at a recent meeting of the Central Greene School Board when it was scheduled to elect a new board member to fill a vacancy.

A number of people submitted applications. The board apparently received a recommendation during a full-board committee meeting it regularly holds before all official meetings.

At any rate, when the public meeting was held the person who was elected unanimously was on hand to be sworn in and a photographer was present to take his picture for the school district newsletter. Under the circumstances, it would be difficult for the board to claim it had not made its decision well before it took the official vote. Significantly, the names of the other candidates were never revealed.

Legislation is being considered which hopefully would eliminate many of the abuses the current law has spawned. It should be passed.

Local Residents' Views Part Of Hospital Study

WAYNESBURG — In conjunction with a proposed $4.2 million Greene County Memorial Hospital expansion, a representative of American City Bureau/Beaver Association will be in the county area for the next several days interviewing local residents.

The interviews are a part of a study to determine if the proposed campaign fund is economically feasible. Tom Miller, who will be making the study, recently completed the feasibility and developmental study on Canonsburg General Hospital and headed the fund drive there.

A proposed $4.2 million expansion project has been submitted for review and comment to the Health Systems Agency and the Division of Need Review of the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

According to hospital administrator Michael Flinn, "This project will provide much-needed expansion in the laboratory, radiology, physical therapy and emergency/outpatient areas both to accommodate patients and their families as they wait as well as to provide needed space to perform the tests and treatments required for quality health care."

When first chartered in 1907 as Waynesburg Hospital, it was located in the Blair Building on East High Street. It was later relocated in Walton Hall on the Waynesburg College campus and moved to its present location in 1937.

Greene County Memorial Hospital recently added such services as family and teen health care, family-centered maternity care, patient education, home health and child development.

In addition, the hospital sponsors a medical explorer post for youth ages 14-20, an annual health fair, clinical experience for college students, programs and activities for senior citizens and CPR classes.

These programs and services operate in conjunction with the range of other services provided by the hospital such as 24-hour emergency room care, radiology, social service department, respiratory therapy, physical therapists, automated laboratory, pharmacy and anesthesiology.

Fact & Folklore

John O'Hara

This is the second of a two-part Fact and Folklore Column of excerpts from the excellent history of the development of the telephone industry in Greene County written by Ralph Scott who spent his career as an executive of the South Penn Telephone Co., and whose father, the late J. N. Scott, was one of its founders.

Because of being more isolated and rural than the eastern part of the county the telephone industry did not develop as rapidly west of Waynesburg as it did in the eastern end.

However, before going to the western end of the county and the men who developed the industry there, one more reference must be made to the problem of bridging the Monongahela River with its first lines and how some of the equipment was placed in the top of a large tree on the Greene County side of the stream.

When adjustments had to be made to the equipment that was placed at the top of the tree, Ike Stickle, who was widely known for his ability in climbing, was paid an entire day's wages to do just that one chore.

Among the first companies in the central and western parts of the county was the South Penn Company at Waynesburg. Shortly after the Waynesburg, Bluff and Cameron Telephone Companies built many lines in the western end of the county and on into West Virginia. In 1899, E. B.

Throckmorton headed the firm and later bought out his partners.

Its business flourished and a new corporation was formed by Throckmorton and his brother, James. It was called the South Penn Telephone Company. Later other members of the firm included M. B. Travis, W. E. Scott, J. W. Closser, F. M. Wise, E. B. Throckmorton, W. H. Baily, B. N. Freeland, and Col. Thomas S. Crago who later served several terms as a Congressman and Congressman at large from Pennsylvania.

South Penn Purchased the smaller Standard Telephone Co. for $85,000 and spread its wings to a number of villages and small towns in Greene and Washington Counties including those of VanBuran, Zollarsville, Dunns Station, Claysville, and Elm Grove, and Spraggs and Oak Forest in Greene County.

The firm's new business office was located in Waynesburg. A new switchboard and associated equipment was added. The business office was located in the former Downey House Hotel Building.

The company had an extremely loyal group of employees and business flourished as a tin mill, a shovel factory, and smaller firms were gradually opened and the oil and gas drilling boom continued to grow until after World War I.

They build a line to Carmichaels by way of the village of Lippencott, Jefferson Borough, and Rices Landing Borough. The office and switchboard was moved to the Ledwith Building at Waynesburg.

Two or three other firms in the same area were also organized and in 1907 all were merged under the name of the Greene County Telephone Company. Its directors were James Hamilton, Tom Hughes, Eli G. Baily, Sealey Byard, Charles Randolph, W. S. Scott, Challen W. Waychoff, W. H. Baily, and its President Jesse N. Scott.

According to research which by Ralph Scott and his father, J. N. Scott, a Mrs. Billingsky was the first appointed Bell telephone operator appointed in Greene County in 1892. Her son was a Bell Co. official in Harrisburg throughout his professional career.

The old time party line may have been the butt of many jokes by city slickers but it provided a very useful service in the remote rural areas of Greene County when a doctor was needed in the middle of a cold night or another type emergency arose and help was needed.

The telephone played a big part in the lives of Greene County residents of that day, just as it continues to do today with the county's much larger population.

Judge Approves Service To Mine

HARRISBURG (AP) — An administrative law judge has approved West Penn Power Co.'s application to build a 12.5 mile transmission line to serve coal mines in Greene County, the Public Utility Commission announced Thursday.

The $3.8 million line will be paid for by Consol Pennsylvania Coal Co., which is constructing two mines in the area. The cost will be recovered through partial bill refunds over the next six to 11 years, West Penn said.

The ruling by Judge John Clements is final unless the parties or at least two commissioners call for review by the PUC.

Area College Student On Mission Team

WAYNESBURG — A Waynesburg College student spent part of the summer in eastern Kentucky working with a Catholic mission team of college students who volunteer to work in regions of Appalachia and the South.

Patrick O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. O'Brien of Amity, contributed his services through Glenmary Home Missioners, Cincinnati, Ohio.

"The men share themselves with others and enjoy doing it out of love for God, in the true sense of being helpers," said the Rev. John Garvey, director of vocations for the home mission society.

Glenmary Home Missioners, which was founded in 1939 to serve the poor in rural America, has been conducting the summer volunteer programs for 28 years.

"The mission areas are largely unchurched, but no attempt is made by the volunteers to convert or change the thinking of the people," Garvey said. "The volunteers' activity is simply to represent Catholic friendship in action."

The group in eastern Kentucky, where O'Brien worked, provided most of its volunteer contribution in the form of manual labor. Assignments included painting, roofing,

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

The Greene County Historical Society's 11th annual fall festival will be bigger and better than any yet presented by the group which is dedicated to the preservation of the county's colorful past and a projection of what is yet to come.

It is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, October 16-17 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day at the beautiful museum located three miles east of Waynesburg on the old Waynesburg-Greensburg Pike. The highway is now a part of the PennDOT system but originally was a stage coach road which at that time was one of Greene County's links to the Monongahela River from where goods would go by steamboat to Pittsburgh or Morgantown.

The majestic stone house, now located on county owned land, was erected for use as a farm house. Later it was purchased by Greene County for use as a poor farm.

Last year, hundreds of visitors from throughout the tri-state area and many other states toured the large museum.

A locomotive from the historic Waynesburg and Washington narrow gauge railroad that suspended operations in the mid-1930s will again make the short demonstration runs. It was rehabilitated by two Pittsburgh railroad buffs.

This year's festival will include many innovations along with the pioneer music, amusements such as square dances, old time fiddlers who were the main source of live music in days gone by and craft and bake sales.

Food specialists will include Greene County mutton sandwiches, just-picked vegetables grown right on the farm, less than ten paces from the barbecue and roasting pits.

All can be washed down with apple cider also made on the spot. Music will include the historic mountain harpsicords, dulcimers, etc. There will also be old-fashioned square dancing.

Greene County has one of the richest heritages of colonial lore of any area north of the Mason-Dixon line. It was settled principally by families from the eastern part of Virginia, especially from the Winchester section and also from Delaware and portions of New Jersey.

Among them were the Wykoffs as their name was spelled when it first members moved south from the Viking country to settle in what is now Long Island, N.Y. and from there to what is now Eastern Pennsylvania.

By horse and on foot, the settlers carried their sparse belongings into what is now Greene County. The family name was changed to Waychoff. The long-time president of Waynesburg College, Dr. Paul R. Stewart's mother was the former Lanna Waychoff.

Dr. Stewart is generally credited by historians as having been the savior of Waynesburg College when its enrollment in 1921 dropped to 60 students. He inspired enough students that it gradually became the fully-accredited institution it is today.

Both Dr. Stewart and his uncle, the late Prof. Andrew Waychoff were also noted as scientists and historians that gave the principal impetus to formation of the present historical society.

electrifying or repairing electrical systems, insulating, plumbing and miscellaneous carpentry.

O'Brien is a senior at Waynesburg College, where he is president of the Student Senate.

Final Date To Register

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Election Board reminds county residents that Monday, Oct. 4, is the final date to register for the Nov. 2 general election.

It is also the deadline for filing a change of address if a registered voter has moved to a new voting precinct.

The county registration office, located in the New County Office Building at Waynesburg, is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Student Impressed With Health Care Here

ARTHUR ANDROKITES

WAYNESBURG — Arthur Androkites is entering his second year at Thomas Jefferson Medical School in Philadelphia.

He recently spent a day with Roxanne Andria, RN, in charge of Greene County Memorial Hospital's Home Health Office in Uniontown. The day was part of an eight-week program spent under the preceptorship of Dr. Gertrude Blumenschein at Uniontown Hospital.

Miss Andria conducted six home visits with patients of the Home Health Program. Androkites had the opportunity to accompany Miss Andria and to view the range of services and care available to patients in their own homes.

"I found out how important this service can be since many people lack the transportation to see their physician on a routine basis. The Home Health nurse is a vital link between the physician and the patient, monitoring the patient's health status and making sure the patient sees the physician when necessary," Androkites said.

The visits also gave the student an insight into the importance of support from the family in the treatment process. "The family support isn't as visible in a hospital setting," he commented, "but patients with lots of support were obviously doing better than ones who seemed to be a burden to the family."

Home Health has a wide range of patients in the Uniontown area from women in their 80s to children. Each patient who qualifies for Home Health care is followed regularly by the Home Health nurse in cooperation with the patient's physician. Services such as skilled nursing, speech therapy, respiratory therapy, physical therapy, social services, enterostomal therapy, dietary instruction, laboratory testing, and aide services are all supplied through the Home Health program.

"The role of the Home Health nurse is essential for many patients who need some reminder about taking their medication, or reassurance about their condition, or to simply know that someone cares," concluded Androkites.

Androkites reported that he was impressed with the services of Greene County Memorial Hospital's Home Health program and staff. He was also grateful to be included in the eight-week program sponsored by Uniontown Hospital.

The hospital has offered its program for about 10 years, according to Dr. Blumenschein. The program offers students from major medical schools an opportunity to see how medicine is practiced in the small hospital setting.

"Students get to spend time in all clinical and ancillary areas of the hospital, as well as spend time in administration to understand hospital finances. They also become familiar with public health agencies and health care services available in a small community," Dr. Blumenschein said.

"One objective of the program is to provide some exposure to a rural area in the hopes that medical students will locate a practice there," the doctor added.

While Androkites did not promise to return to Uniontown upon completion of his education, the young student was impressed with medical practice in the Uniontown Hospital and with the programs such as Home Health that he had had an opportunity to view first hand.

Forbes Solidifies Jackets' QB Slot

By Denise Bachman, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — There is finally a feeling of stability on the Waynesburg College football team.

No longer are the Yellow Jackets forced to juggle quarterbacks like they would oranges and apples.

Mike Forbes made sure of that after guiding the Yellow Jackets to a stunning 48-18 victory over Geneva to put an end to the quarterback mystery which had haunted them in their first two games. Those two games saw four quarterbacks try in vain to establish some offense in 20-7 losses to Glenville State and Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

But, then again, in those two games Forbes was injured. Against Geneva, in his first starting assignment of the season, Forbes was in perfect health.

"I didn't think there was any pressure on me," Forbes said. "I felt that as soon as I was healthy I would start. It never entered my mind that I wouldn't."

Nine days before the season opener, Forbes, who has been the Yellow Jackets' starting quarterback for the past two seasons, pulled his hamstring. So Casey Cavanaugh got the starting nod, although Forbes did see considerable action in the game.

But Forbes was sidelined for the entire game against Indiana when he reinjured the hamstring in practice, and after the game head coach Hayden Buckley said the starting role was up for grabs.

And it was Forbes who grabbed it for keeps, displaying the leadership and ability to move the offense.

"A quarterback must be able to step in the huddle and get things going," Buckley said. "He has to have an electricity to him. Mike made some great adjustments and decisions against Geneva."

Forbes' main weapon was the option, which he executed to perfection. And ironically, he didn't run it once either the previous week in practice or before the game in an attempt to decrease the chances of pulling the hamstring again.

Although Buckley was determined to run the option, he admitted that Forbes' lack of practice with it caused him some concern.

"It scared me," Buckley said. "The other quarterbacks ran it in practice and Mike wasn't running. We tried to keep him out of as much running as possible.

"We didn't even let him run it on the sidelines because we didn't want it to pop right before the game. That would've been very demoralizing to the rest of the team."

As it turned out, any doubts were unfounded.

"We can do more things with Mike in there," Buckley said, "and Mike ran the option better than any quarterback I've ever had. He was utterly outstanding on the option."

Forbes, a 6-1, 197-pound senior from Shadyside, Ohio, said that despite his limited playing time this season he felt very confident when he took the field.

"I didn't run the option but I was passing and running the other base plays in practice," Forbes said. "Mentally I didn't feel rusty in terms of missing practice, but physically I didn't know how well I could run the option. But I always did like running the ball."

Forbes not only ran the ball well, but he also turned in a fine passing performance. Despite attempting just seven passes, he completed four for 105 yards, including touchdown tosses of 52 and 32 yards.

And a win is just what Buckley ordered to get the Yellow Jackets back on track.

"We lacked consistency in the first two games," Forbes said. "Everybody would go through the motions once we're down 14-zip. We got the big play against Geneva and the gates opened up."

Get Ready For Deer Season

Antlerless deer license applications will be accepted from Pennsylvania resident hunters beginning Monday, Oct. 4.

Greene County has been allocated 7,500 licenses this year and they will be issued by County Treasurer Joe Souders.

Washington County has 9,300 antlerless licenses which will be issued by the office of County Treasurer John F. Yoney.

According to law, the licenses shall be issued without restriction or regard to the county residence of the state applicant.

Hunters are reminded that when applying for a doe license, the hunter must mail the application to the county treasurer. The lone exceptions will be for applications in Potter and Elk counties.

Hunters are also reminded:

- Only the original doe license application form issued with the hunter's license will be accepted under any circumstances.

- No person is permitted to apply for more than one doe license under any circumstances.

- The application cannot be transferred by the person receiving it or used by any other person to apply for a license.

- County treasurers may accept applications by standard first class mail delivered through and by the U.S. Postal Service beginning Monday, Oct. 4.

Applications must conform to the following regulations:

- The form must be legibly completed in its entirety in accordance with printed instructions.

- The application(s) must be mailed only in the official yellow envelope.

- Not more than three applications may be submitted per envelope.

- The appropriate pre-printed number on the outside of the envelope, indicating the number of applications enclosed, must be circled in ink.

- The first and last name and legal home address of any one of the applicants must be printed on the front top left corner of the envelope.

The green "return" envelope, with first class postage affixed and self-addressed to any one of the applicants, must be enclosed with the application(s).

Remittance, at $3.35 for each application, must be in the form of a negotiable check or money order payable to "County Treasurer," or to the Pennsylvania Game Commission for Potter and Elk county doe licenses.

When more than one application is mailed in the same envelope, if any one of the applications fails to comply with regulations, all applications will be rejected.

Applications rejected for failure to enclose the self-addressed, stamped green envelope will be put in a "dead letter" file and may be reclaimed only by contacting the county treasurer.

Doe licenses will not be issued by county treasurers before Oct. 13. All licenses will be mailed to successful applicants no later than Nov. 12.

A county treasurer may elect to conduct a public drawing Oct. 6 to select doe license recipients. County treasurers are to return all unsuccessful applications at the earliest possible date, but in any event no later than Friday, Oct. 15, so the applicant may re-apply to another county where licenses are still available.

Any hunter whose application has been returned may change the county designation where he or she wishes to hunt and re-apply there if unsold licenses are still available.

When re-applying to another county, new official envelopes must be used and may be obtained from any hunting license issuing agent.

County treasurers may not accept or approve applications from non-residents prior to 30 days before the opening of the doe season in a particular county or special regulation area.

Alien residents of Pennsylvania are defined as residents, while alien non-residents are considered non-residents.

Police Report Thefts, Wreck

WAYNESBURG — Danny Beabout, 26, Nineveh, suffered minor injuries in an accident at 4:45 p.m. Friday on Route 21 in West Waynesburg. He was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital, where he was released after being treated.

While state police had not completed their report late Friday night, it was reported at the scene that Beabout's vehicle had struck several parked cars.

State police said they are investigating two thefts which occurred within the past two days.

Property valued at $152 was stolen at a home in Morgan Township, four miles north of Clarksville, sometime Thursday night. Police said thieves broke into a garage and camper owned by James O. Horn of Washington and stole two 5-gallon cans of gasoline, a 22-caliber rifle and a 20-gauge shotgun.

On Wednesday night, a battery and 15 gallons of gasoline, valued at $93, were stolen from the Rohanna Iron and Metal scrap yard on Route 21 in Franklin Township.

West Penn Power Makes A Policy Of Conservation

WAYNESBURG — The dual themes of energy conservation and load management dominate West Penn Power Company policies, and will continue to do so for many years, Frank Bogan, Jefferson District division manager, told the Waynesburg Rotary Club at its noon meeting Monday.

Bogan made the comments during a talk titled, "West Penn Power Company in the '80s," giving the Rotarians an insight into the utilities' attitudes on electric power in the recent past as well as a forecast of "that which lies ahead in so far as projections can be made with any certainty."

Referring to West Penn's past attitudes, he said the theme was to promote the "use, and more use, of kilowatt hours; use more energy" as a means of growth for the company and the public at large. Conservation of energy was not a concern in the past.

"All of that changed," however, Bogan said, "some 10 years ago when conservation of all our natural resources became a household word. It certainly became a matter of grave concern to West Penn then and continues to merit our attention today and the rest of the 1980s, well into the '90s."

"In order to insure that residential industrial and commercial users will have electricity, we must bring about an enormous change in the public climate on the use of energy," Bogan continued.

"The problems which utility companies face are really wrapped in a single word — money. The amount of money required today to produce one kilowatt of electricity, when compared to that same unit cost of 10 years ago is astronomical," he said. Using charts to emphasize key points in his talk, Bogan said inflation and environmental regulations have driven up the cost of producing energy throughout the electric power industry.

Bogan said West Penn wants clean air as much as anyone else, but the cost to install scrubbers and other equipment for clean air purposes is exceedingly high. This one fact alone adds significantly to the unit cost of electricity.

The cost to construct a power station in 1950 was $8.7 million; the cost then rose steadily to $744 million for a station built in 1980, he said.

"We have an increase of 647 percent in the cost-per-ton of coal we use," Bogan continued, "spending $4.35 a ton in 1950 but an average of $39.50 per ton in 1982."

"West Penn has plans for a future power station to be built north of Kittanning," Bogan told the Rotarians, "and a price tag of $2.75 billion has been placed on that particular facility. Another good example of the high cost of producing electricity."

It also was brought out that West Penn does not plan to include nuclear energy in its power plant systems.

Bogan also commented on future growth predictions. "From 1982 to 1990," he said, "West Penn foresees a modest growth of not over 2 1/2 percent. Obviously even this moderate increase will depend on many factors such as money supply, economic growth and the amount of use among our customers."

In concluding his talk, Bogan returned to the theme of energy conservation and load management.

West Penn will send an energy consultant to survey a home, he said, for a modest fee, to ascertain where heating costs can be reduced through insulation, stripping and other conservation measures. West Penn urges the use of thermal covering for hot water heaters for example as one useful type of conservation measure available to the home.

"This is a challenge for everybody: the public, industry, power companies, government. We all must find ways to conserve energy or 'instant comfort,' which we have known for so long, may some day be a thing of the past," he concluded.

Fire Destroys Mobile Home

CRUCIBLE — Fire destroyed a mobile home and all its contents late Sunday evening in Crucible despite the efforts to two volunteer fire companies.

No damage estimate was available but a spokesman for the Crucible firefighters said there was little left to be salvaged. "The heat was so intense, it melted a water glass on a table in the opposite end of the mobile home from where the fire started," he said.

Henry Kuhns and his son live in the home but neither were at home when the fire started in a bedroom. Firemen believe the fire started in a fuse box.

Neighbors called the Crucible firemen who in turn called for assistance from the Rices Landing firemen.

Professor Writes Reference Guide

WAYNESBURG — Dr. William L. Sipple, professor of English and chairman of the English Department at Waynesburg College, has completed a book, "A Reference Guide to Edmund Spenser, 1900-36," for G.K. Hall Publishing Company.

The work is an annotated bibliography of all criticism on English poet Edmund Spenser from 1900-36. The book contains 1400 entries.

The reason for the 1936 cutoff, according to Sipple, is that "the book is to provide a companion volume to the bibliography done by professors Foster Provost and Waldo F. McNeir, which covers Spenser criticism from 1937-1972. My reference guide puts all twentieth century scholarship on Spenser into two volumes.

"This book is an extension of my doctoral work, which was done on Spenser. My research associate, Dr. Bernard J. Vondersmith, also did his doctoral dissertation on Spenser. The book can be read as a history of early twentieth century Spenser criticism and can be used by an undergraduate student with ease," said Sipple.

While this book will be out by September 1983, Dr. Sipple is talking with his publishers about two more books, one on Eugene O'Neill, and another on some aspect of film criticism.

Sipple also has plans to attend the Modern Language Association Conference in Los Angeles in December to present a paper on O'Neill. The paper will focus on films adapted from O'Neill's works, specifically "Long Days Journey into Night" and "The Long Voyage Home." Also, he has tentative plans to attend the Annual Medieval Institute Conference at Western Michigan University in May, where he will present a paper on Spenser. The Spenser paper will demonstrate the relevance of early twentieth century criticism to current Spenser scholarship.

FEATURING THE OHMS FAMILY

INSULATE YOUR ELECTRIC WATER HEATER AND SAVE!

BUT FLO, I'M NOT THE INSECURE TYPE.

SO WHY DO YOU HAVE THIS THING ABOUT BLACK CATS, LIGHTNING AND BANK FAILURES?

EVERYONE WORRIES ABOUT SOMETHING, BUT I SURE DON'T WORRY ABOUT THE MONEY WE PAID FOR THAT WATER HEATER INSULATING KIT.

IT'LL SAVE US ABOUT $2 A MONTH ON OUR ELECTRIC BILLS SO THE KIT WILL PAY FOR ITSELF IN 7 OR 8 MONTHS.

AFTER THAT, IT'S MONEY IN OUR POCKETS... MONTH AFTER MONTH... THANKS TO LOWER WATER HEATING COSTS.

JUST THE THOUGHT OF SAVING MONEY MAKES ME FEEL SECURE. UH, FLO... COULD WE SLEEP WITH THE LIGHT ON?

You can reduce electric water heating costs $1.50 to $3 a month with a quality water-heater-insulating kit that has an R-5 or R-6 insulating value. Such kits are easy to install and include diagrammed, easy-to-follow instructions.
