Up In Smoke

Officials have yet to determine the cause of a fire that destroyed this mobile home near Jefferson late Tuesday morning. Jefferson Volunteer Fire Co. Chief Earl McMannus said the large mobile home was engulfed in flames when firefighters arrived. No loss estimate had been made Tuesday. The home was occupied by Glenn Adamson and his sons. Fire equipment from Waynesburg and Carmichaels were at the scene to provide an additional water supply. The fire was discovered at about 10:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Zoning Hearing Board Grants Variance For Building Home

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Zoning Hearing Board, at a meeting Monday, granted a side-yard variance to Robert McNay to permit the construction of a residence at the corner of College and Spring streets on the North Side.

Board Chairman Robert Romanosky said the application has been pending since 1977 and has been acted on favorably by prior hearing boards, but that the necessary permit had never been issued. He also said that the owner of the adjoining property has indicated he has no objections to granting of the variance.

Two council members from the North Side, Beverly Krill and Dr. Joseph Stewart, attended the meeting to inform council that they have had numerous complaints from neighbors about the installation of a home occupation by Tewell Refrigeration at the home of its owner at 245 First Avenue. They said it was the understanding of neighbors that the owner planned to use a garage on the property as a workshop and had remodeled it for that purpose.

The board said it has received an application only for permission to have a business telephone in the home, with no advertising sign or workshop on the premises.

Romanosky said a hearing in the matter has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 17, at which time all of the details will be aired. He said that any neighbors who have complaints should attend the hearing.

The board announced that it would be consulting its solicitor about action to be taken concerning what appears to be the construction of a base for a swimming pool at the home of Dr. Grover Phillippi on East Greene Street. Members said the action will be taken because the property owner has failed to obtain a necessary permit and has failed to respond to correspondence seeking information on the project.

Gerald Manolas of Waynesburg attended the meeting to pay a $500 fine levied against him some time ago for having developed a multi-family dwelling in a single-family residential zone. The board has since granted permission for a two-family dwelling and the house has been converted to that purpose.

Yearly Reorganization

Franklin Twp. Picks Engineer

WAYNESBURG — With the exception of appointing a new township engineer, the Franklin Township reorganization meeting resulted in no changes Monday.

Ralph Porter will continue as board chairman with Robert Morris serving as treasurer and building officer. T. Reed Kiger retains his position as road superintendent and Leslie Smith will act as secretary as a non-member of the board.

Attorney William Hook was retained as board solicitor and Charles Bryner as vacancy board chairman.

The board voted to contract the services of Huth Engineering, Waynesburg, for engineering to replace McDonald Associates, Charle-roi. The new firm will charge $30 per hour with no retainer. McDonald Associates had worked on a $125 per month retainer fee.

Selected as depositories were the Waynesburg branch of the First National Bank of Carmichaels, First Federal Savings & Loan, the Waynesburg branch of the First National Bank of Washington and Gallatin National Bank.

Board meetings will continue to be held at 4 p.m. on the second and fourth Monday of each month.

Central Tax Bureau was retained to collect earned income tax and occupational tax. Doris Engle, the elected tax collector, will be responsible for per capita and real estate taxes.

In other action, the board:

✓ Re-appointed James Rogers as sewage enforcement officer.

✓ Re-appointed James Winters to the Southeast Franklin Water Authority and Jerry P. Hardy to the Franklin Township Sewer Authority.

✓ Re-appointed Donald Chappel to the Franklin Township Recreation Board.

✓ Designated Robert Elliott as the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Company representative.

Gardner To Seek Commissioner Post

WAYNESBURG — John Gardner, 41, of Waynesburg, has announced his intention to seek the office of Greene County commissioner on the Republican ticket.

Gardner served as a commissioner for seven months in 1979 while filling the unexpired term of Ernest Lemley who died in office. Gardner was an unsuccessful candidate for the office in 1979.

Now employed by Keppo, Inc., Gardner was associated for many years with the J.M. Burns & Son store in Waynesburg.

He is a son of Mrs. Harry Gardner of Waynesburg and the late Dr. Harry Gardner, who for many years was an instructor at Waynesburg College. He and his wife, the former Judith Parkins, are the parents of four children, Susan, Beckie, John and David.

He was graduated from Waynesburg High School and, in 1961, Waynesburg College, where he has been the official movie photographer for football games for the past 18 years.

Also an active member of the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Company for the past 22 years, he has served in several official capacities including president and fire chief for two terms. He is a member and elder of the First Presbyterian Church and a member of the Waynesburg Rotary Club.

Now serving his second term as Republican state committeeman for Greene County, he is a member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers and has been active with the Yellow Jacket Boosters Club and the Red Raider Band Boosters, holding offices with both organizations.

Two Treated After Crash

WAYNESBURG — Two men were treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital and released Tuesday following a three-car accident at the intersection of PA 21 and PA 188 in Franklin Township.

Paul Clutter, 78, of Waynesburg R.D.6 was treated for shoulder and head injuries and Jesse R. Kiger, 21, of Garards Fort, was treated for head and leg injuries.

Clutter, attempting to turn from PA 21 to PA 188, crossed PA 21 and collided with Kiger, who was traveling west on PA 21, state police said. The impact then pushed Clutter's car into one owned by Jerry M. Bassett, 32, of Fairview, W.Va.

Bassett was stopped at the stop sign on PA 188, waiting to enter PA 21.

County Tacks An Additional Quarter Mill Onto '83 Budget

WAYNESBURG — An additional quarter mill was tacked onto the proposed four-mill increase in county property taxes when the Greene County commissioners met Thursday to officially adopt the county's $7.7 million budget for the coming year.

It will boost the levy from 15 mills to 19¼ mills. The additional $38,000 produced by the quarter mill was added to the allocation for the county retirement program to assure its solvency.

The commissioners explained that as part of the austerity policy carried out in preparing the budget, the amount earmarked for retirement payments had been cut from its 1982 level of $200,000 to $140,000.

"We have since promised employees that there will be no reduction in their retirement benefits, and the only way we can carry out that promise is to make sure that we have the money to make the required payments into the fund," Commission Chairman Joseph Pawlosky said.

As part of their benefits, the 250 employees have both a basic retirement program, to which they contribute, and a supplemental program which is paid entirely by the county.

Otherwise, there were no changes made in the budget which was first approved Dec. 9 — either in the general fund or in the revenue sharing fund.

It places a freeze on wages for all employees, eliminates or cuts back several programs, and cuts out grants which the county has customarily made to non-county agencies from its revenue sharing money.

Representatives of the Emergency Medical Services Council who attended the meeting were told that the commissioners were adhering to their decision to eliminate the salary of the EMS coordinator, which means that Sally Neer, the present coordinator, will be taken off the payroll on Dec. 31.

The commissioners did say, however, that the EMS office will continue to be made available to the council in the hope that it can be designated as an in-kind contribution. This would enable the council to continue to operate and receive an annual matching grant of $5,000 from the EMS Institute in Pittsburgh.

Revenue from all taxes is estimated at $2.9 million. In addition to the property tax, the county levies a $5 per capita tax, which produces about $92,000, and a four-mill tax on personal property, levied on certain stocks and bonds, which brings in $35,000.

The additional revenue is required because the county will end 1982 with an estimated deficit of $481,000, due primarily to an unexpected reduction of $500,000 in federal Medical As-

Charges Filed In Illegal Kills

WAYNESBURG — Charges against a West Elizabeth couple for killing two deer and a gray fox out of season have been filed before Magistrate John Watson by Game Protector Steve Kleiner.

David and Eileen Grimes have been charged with killing an albino doe and its fawn on Oct. 10 in Aleppo Township. Game officials also found evidence of the couple taking a gray fox out of season.

Kleiner has accused the couple of firing an 8mm rifle from their vehicle at 1 a.m. to make the illegal kills. Charges were not brought until evidence was examined by the state crime lab.

Each of the accused face a separate $200 fine for unlawful taking, killing game out of season and possession of illegal game.

Waynesburg Cracking Down

DWI Won't Slip By Here

WAYNESBURG — Encouraged by tougher state laws, innovative techniques in determining drunken drivers and a growing concern by citizens, the Waynesburg Borough Police Department is coming down hard on drinking drivers.

During the first three days of the new year, borough officers have made four driving while intoxicated arrests.

Officers are now using the Alcotest field chemical kit to assist them in determining if a suspected drunken driver should be administered a breathalyzer test.

assistance funds the county receives for residents of the Curry Memorial Home. The deficit includes $350,000 which the county still owes on its 1982 tax anticipation loan, plus other unpaid bills and obligations which will be carried over into next year.

"This was a very difficult budget because of the need to exercise the greatest amount of economies possible," Pawlosky said. "We had to make some decisions to cut programs which we realize are worthwhile, but there was nothing else to do due to the financial position in which we find ourselves."

First Baby Of 1983

Adam Christopher Payton arrived New Year's Day to become the first baby born in 1983 in Greene County Memorial Hospital. Adam was born at 10:34 a.m., weighed nine pounds 12 ounces and is 22½ inches long. His parents are Walter and Vicky Payton of Waynesburg. Paternal grandparents are Walter and Karen Payton of Clarksville and maternal grandparents are Norma DuFrenne and Dick Wages. Adam will join a brother, Andrew, and a sister, Danielle, at home.

Carmichaels Chooses Solicitor For Borough

By Marcia M. Biddle, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — Carmichaels Borough Council named a new borough solicitor at its meeting Monday night.

By a vote of 3-2, Dennis Tanner of Waynesburg was elected to replace Robert Berryman on the basis of bids received. Tanner's charges will be $800 per year as a retainer, plus $30 an hour for additional work. His was the lowest of three bids.

Council voted to make Gooseberry Alley a one-way thoroughfare from the Carmichaels newsstand to the intersection with Walnut Alley. This section had been temporarily made two-way, but it was felt that this created a hazard.

It was decided that eight-hour parking meters, where they exist, will be replaced with regular meters which are set up to provide one hour of parking for ten cents. They will also eliminate the two free parking spaces on each side of Market Street at the post office. These spaces had been reserved for post office parking but will now be metered. The action was taken because the privilege was being abused.

Council voted to set a weight limit of 10 tons on all borough streets as a means of protecting them from heavy truck traffic.

The two part-time borough policeman were voted a $50 bonus. They had agreed to take a cut in wages in January of 1982 with the understanding it would be adjusted if borough finances permitted.

Council approved the purchase of new police uniforms for the three officers at a cost of $254.

The appointment of Doris Murphy

as a member of the borough audit committee was approved. She will replace Ruth Macera, who had previously resigned. Other members of the committee are Ed Deems and Dorothy Helmick.

Zoning Panel Reorganizes

CARMICHAELS — The Cumberland Township Zoning Hearing Board held its reorganizational meeting Monday.

Officers are Edward Commons, chairman; David Smith, vice chairman, and MaChelle Ream, secretary. Other board members are Mary Torok and Kenneth Krause.

Regular meetings were set for 7 p.m. on the first Monday of every month at the township building, 100 Municipal Road, Carmichaels.

The board has scheduled a public hearing for 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 7, to hear objections to the proposed Cedarwood housing project. A building permit for Cedarwood, a townhouse development to be located at 200 Nemaacolin Way, was issued Dec. 6 to A&R Builders, Pittsburgh. A group of adjacent property owners appealed on Dec. 24 the decision of zoning officer John Masuga to grant the permit.

Anyone interested in being a party to the hearing must give written notice to the zoning and hearing board secretary before the hearing date. In order to be heard as a third party in the hearing, an individual also must fill out forms which are available at the township building.

"We are going to use every possible means available to eliminate the drunk driver from the borough streets," Police Chief Timothy Hawfield said.

Hawfield, in an interview Tuesday, said the high rate of DWI arrests is not expected to continue but said he and his officers will do their part to make sure any drop in DWI arrests will be the result of the drinking driver avoiding the borough and not because officers are being lenient or lax in their duties.

"We owe it to the victims of drunk drivers and the friends and relatives of those victims to pursue arrest and prosecution of every drunk driver caught on a borough street," Hawfield said.

During 1980, borough police made 53 DWI arrests. There were only 34 arrests in 1981, and the figure dropped to 29 last year. However, there were fewer officers available in the department last year. But even at last year's rate, the local DWI arrest rate was higher than the national average.

Drinking drivers are the leading cause of highway deaths in the nation and about 46 percent of the highway deaths in Pennsylvania last year were caused by drinking drivers.

Five In Family On Honor Roll

WIND RIDGE — With all of life's diversions, it's hard to imagine five children in one family making the honor roll — especially without the benefits of "forced" study time.

But such is the case in the home of Kenneth and Judy Wojnarowski of Wind Ridge R.D.1.

They have five children attending West Greene Junior-Senior High School, and all five appeared on the most recent honor roll. Denise, 17, a senior, attained a 3.5 average; Donna, 16, a junior, 3.4 average; Darlene, 14, a freshman, 3.56 average; Ken Jr., 12, a seventh grader, 3.67 average, and Dyan, 11, a sixth grader, 3.62 average.

The Wojnarowski family left the South Park area of Pittsburgh five years ago to find peace and quite in rural Richhill Township. They said they have not regretted the move.

Life on their small farm, located near the West Virginia border, includes six horses, six cows, some chickens, a duck, cats and a dog.

The children insist there is no pressure at home to study during a certain period and take it upon themselves to study as much as necessary. Both their parents dropped out of high school in their sophomore year and now can see the value of a good education. The only rule about school is that no one will drop out.

Mr. Wojnarowski is a body man with a garage in Wheeling and Mrs. Wojnarowski is employed at a Wheeling tavern.

The three high school girls also find time for extracurricular activities, including the band. None of the children have any particular college plans and only Donna has a specific goal at this time. She wants to finish high school and enter the business world.

Should you think they ignore the television set to crack the books, forget it. They all watch as much television as they can and the rare family discord is usually about which program to watch.

Meeting 'The Nightingale Ideal' — The Total Needs Of Patients

By Marilyn A. Posner, Staff Writer

Nursing has always been considered a noble profession. For decades it was one of the few such professions open to women.

Physicians viewed nurses as their handmaidens, doing their bidding in the care of the sick.

That was not Florence Nightingale's original concept of nursing, according to Dr. Nellie Abbott. She wants the return of the Nightingale ideal — uniting nursing practice, education and research. Dr. Abbott explained this idea to health care professionals at a recent conference of the Area Health Education Center in Pittsburgh.

Dr. Abbott is a nurse, the daughter of Mary Jewell of Khedive, Greene County, and the late Rev. Larry C. Jewell. She serves as the associate administrator of nursing service at the Hospital of University of Pennsylvania and as an associate dean of nursing practice at the University of Pennsylvania. Her career blends nursing practice and nursing education.

A list of her education and experience covers 12 pages. Her educational background is varied and reflects the development of nursing education.

She received her nursing diploma from West Penn Hospital School of Nursing, a bachelor of nursing degree from the now-defunct nursing program at Waynesburg College, a master of letters in nursing education from the University of Pittsburgh, and a Ph.D. in nursing from New York University. She has seen nursing education and practice from many angles and is trying to help determine nursing as it will be in the future.

Dr. Abbott said she believes Florence Nightingale's idea was that nurses should be educated in educational settings.

"But it didn't work that way," she said. "It grew up in hospital settings. Nursing became an apprentice program, mainly because nursing students became cheap labor."

After World War II, graduate education for nursing became more prominent. "In the last 15 years doctoral programs for nurses emerged with increasing emphasis," she added.

"In 1968, when I received my doctorate, there were about 600 persons who held doctorates in nursing. Now there are 2,000 with doctorates from among 1.5 million nurses."

She said the explosion of technology has done much in the development of health care.

"Nursing is changing," she said. "We have to deal with the total needs of a person, not just giving baths and medication."

"Nurses today need good scientific preparation, with technologic and interpersonal skills," she said. "That means we need better prepared nurses in leadership roles."

There are three routes to becoming nurses — associate degree, baccalaureate degree and diploma. Graduates from all three types of programs sit for the same licensing examination to obtain the R.N. (registered nurse), although Dr. Abbott said the education received from each program is vastly different.

She said that she doesn't believe a diploma education is enough for nurses any longer. "In Pennsylvania, there is a stronger commitment to diploma schools than in other states," primarily because of a strong lobby by hospital administrators in the state. She said the hospital administrators favor the diploma schools because hospitals can better recruit nurses from their own schools. She admits that diploma schools have been upgrading their education but still are not in the mainstream of higher education. Despite the strong support from hospital administrators, Dr. Abbott said the economy is killing off the diploma schools.

With the growing emphasis for better-educated nurses comes a frustration. She said it is very frustrating for a nurse who holds a nursing diploma to return to school for her nursing degree because many of them must work at the same time. That means a diploma nurse may spend three to five additional years getting her baccalaureate degree. It took 21 years for Dr. Abbott to earn her doctorate degree.

"Nursing is a science and an art. A diploma school emphasizes the art. College emphasizes the science. There must be a meeting of the minds," she said.

Dr. Abbott said that it can happen and she has seen it. While working at Rush University at the Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago, she served as chairman of surgical nursing and was an associate professor while practicing nursing. It was a multi-center hospital network of health care agencies linked with a medical school program, college of health science and college of nursing.

"The benefit is that teachers are practitioners and educators. The faculty also delivered care. That is different from many schools of nursing where courses are not taught by those with clinical expertise."

"By putting the faculty in a hospital setting, it improves the quality of care and serves as a good learning lab."

"Physicians have to be both practitioners and teachers. Now nursing emulates that medical model." The Area Health Education Center is trying to develop similar models in southwestern Pennsylvania.

Dr. Abbott said there needs to be more dialogue and understanding between physicians and nurses. "Nurses are complementary to doctors, not in competition with them. This can add different dimensions to nursing."

One new dimension is expansion in nursing research. "It is a growing field, even at the clinical level," she said. "It's a way of creating career ladders for nurses, to reward them while they stay at the bedside." Advanced training for nurses is allowing them to specialize in areas as cancer nursing or hospice care. This is an alternate route to advancement. Prior to that, the opportunities for advancement led only to administrative and educational positions.

Today, nurses are coming from varied backgrounds and are offered tuition benefits from hospitals to enhance their skills. Dr. Abbott said that 78 percent of the new nurses at her hospital at the University of Pennsylvania joined the staff for the additional educational benefits.

She wants to see more men and minorities as nurses. Nurses used to be paid so poorly that men would not enter the field. "Now nurses are being viewed more positively," she said. There is also an increase in the number of older nursing students. They may be women who have reared their families and are now ready to begin a career as a nurse. Others are people who hold degrees in other professions such as teaching who may be turning to nursing because there is less work available for them in their original field. Therefore, many new nurses entering the profession are better educated, she said.

"Nurses are no longer willing to be viewed as physicians' handmaidens," she said. "They are becoming more assertive."

Waynesburg Starts Program

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg College will soon have its first graduate program in modern times.

The new Master of Business Administration program will begin Monday, Jan. 10, and registration to date has been gratifying to college officials.

"We're very pleased with the initial response," said Dr. Richard S. Cowan, college vice president for development, who is serving as director of the new program. "It bears out our conviction that there is both a demand and a need for the program by people in the field of business administration."

Classes in the 36-hour course will be held in the evening to permit those who are working to enroll. All of the course offerings will be available between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

"An individual who wants to devote full time to the program can complete it in 11 months by taking a full load for two semesters and a summer session," Dr. Cowan said.

"It is also possible, through flexible scheduling, to complete it over a longer period by attending classes on a part-time basis." A comprehensive examination and a master's paper is required for graduation.

Individuals who have received an undergraduate degree from any recognized college or university will be accepted provided they have the requisite hours of undergraduate business courses.

Dr. Cowan said the Master of Business Administration degree "will build on the college's strong undergraduate tradition in business." It will concentrate on the functional areas of business — accounting, finance, management and marketing — and will stress technical, conceptual and theoretical skills.

Offerings and instructors for the semester starting Jan. 10 will be Financial Management, taught by Dr. Cowan; Applied Economics, taught by Dr. Boris Ivezic; Managerial Accounting and Control, taught by Professor Anthony L. Bocchini; Human Resources Management, taught by Dr. Thomas E. Andrews; Business Research Techniques, taught by Dr. Phillip Weinberger, and Statistical Methods, taught by Dr. Paul M. Perdue.

A candidate will be able to develop an area of specialization by taking three courses in the same field: accounting, finance, management and marketing, with electives being offered in federal taxation and planning, portfolio management, management information systems, human resources management, logistics, quantitative business analysis, international business and individual study.

"We have designed the program to make it as valuable and meaningful as possible," Dr. Cowan said.

He added that while enrollment to date has been more than sufficient to assure a successful beginning, applications will still be accepted until the start of the program on Jan. 10. Information can be obtained by calling the director of the M.B.A. program at 627-8191.

County Names New Curry Home Administrator

WAYNESBURG — Greene County commissioners, at their meeting Thursday, appointed an administrator of the county nursing home, an assistant public defender and an executive director of the Greene County Conservation District.

Diane W. Piatt of Graysville was appointed administrator of the Curry Memorial Home. She has served as acting administrator of the 104-bed nursing home since Thomas Boyd resigned in February.

The appointment was made possible because Mrs. Piatt was licensed as a nursing home administrator after she successfully took the state licensing examination at Harrisburg on Oct. 28. No change was made in her annual salary of $19,900.

In speaking of the work involved in qualifying to take the examination, she said that she was grateful "to employees at the Curry Home and to members of my family and my friends for their support and encouragement."

She is a registered nurse who graduated from the Ohio Valley Medical Center School of Nursing in Wheeling, W. Va. She joined the staff at the Curry Home in 1977 and one year later was named director of nursing services, the position she held when Boyd resigned as administrator.

Waynesburg attorney Dennis Tanner was appointed assistant public defender at an annual salary of $6,500, with Public Defender John Stets agreeing to accept a cut in his salary from $15,000 to $9,000.

The commissioners explained that having a salaried assistant will virtually eliminate the need for paying court-appointed public defenders in cases where there is a conflict of interest or where there is more than one defendant in a criminal case. They said the change could mean a reduction of about $6,000 in the annual cost of providing public defender services, which has been budgeted at $25,866 for the coming year.

executive director of the Greene County Soil Conservation District at a starting salary of $8,292. The appointment fills a vacancy created on Oct. 1 through the resignation of John Reagan of Waynesburg.

Niveth graduated in 1974 from Washington & Jefferson College with a degree in biology and is currently working toward a master's degree in biology at California State College. His appointment is effective Jan. 1.

In other action, the commissioners again awarded the county's unemployment compensation insurance policy to Baily Insurance Co., Waynesburg, with the annual premium being $58,690.

William Morris of the Morris Insurance Agency, who attended the meeting, noted that while his proposal was about $500 higher than Baily's, the policy would be written with a company which has maintained an annual record of paying dividends, which could result in considerable savings.

"Going in, all proposals will be virtually identical, so it boils down to anticipated dividends," he said. "While it's true that no company can guarantee dividends, I think you should give consideration to the dividend records of the competing companies."

While the commissioners did not accept his proposal on unemployment compensation insurance, they did agree to consider his request that other county insurance coverage be submitted to bid prior to the February renewal date for the present policies.

Morris said, however, that a prompt decision will be necessary to provide time for the writing of specifications and preparation of bids.

During a salary board meeting, the commissioners took no action on a request by Prothonotary Charles Hogue that a clerk-typist in his office be reclassified as a secretary-bookkeeper, with a raise from $640 to $691 per month. He said he had made the same request two years ago and felt that the commissioners had been giving unfair preference to employees in other offices.

The commissioners said they would not act on the request at this time because of budgetary constraints and because the county was currently engaged in contract negotiations with employees.

They did say that they would consider Hoge's request for a part-time employee to replace a full-time employee who has resigned if earnings in the prothonotary's office provide sufficient revenue for the position.

Barbara Coccari, who coordinated the Greene County Food Bank program, reported that 750 families, most of them with four or more people in the family, had received Christmas food baskets this year, as compared with 150 families last year.

46 Species Seen In County During Annual Bird Count

WAYNESBURG — For only the second time in 29 years, a Whistling Swan was one of the species spotted in Greene County's annual Christmas Bird Count.

Ralph Bell of Clarksville, who has coordinated the Greene County count since it began in 1954 under auspices of the National Audubon Society, said 14 volunteers recorded 46 species and 3,791 individual birds during the count. It was held Dec. 26 in a 15-mile-diameter area, with Jefferson as the center.

"Because of a lack of snow cover, the number of species recorded was low again this year," Bell said. He explained that when there is snow on the ground, the birds are easier to spot and more of them come to feeders.

Despite this, three species were recorded in record numbers — the Mourning Dove with 291, Common Flicker with 21, and Red-bellied Woodpecker with 16.

"All woodpeckers seem to be rather common," the veteran bird watcher said.

The only other time a Whistling Swan was observed was in 1972, when three were noted on a flooded field near Carmichaels.

"The Whistling Swan is now called the Tundra Swan," Bell said. "Its breeding grounds lie in the arctic countries, to the north and west of Hudson Bay, and its regular winter range is the Atlantic coast, mainly in the Chesapeake Bay area. Each spring and fall they migrate over Pennsylvania, usually flying so high they are seldom seen."

Bell noted that the House Finch, which was seen in record numbers (149) in 1981, is still increasing even though the number spotted in the 1982 count was somewhat lower at 79. "Because of the mild weather, most of those recorded were found in the open country, away from back-yard feeding stations where they concentrate during cold, stormy weather," he explained.

Species noted in 1982 which were not seen the previous year were, in addition to the Whistling Swan, the Killdeer, 13; Horned Lark, 1; Chipping Sparrow, 2; and Swamp Sparrow, 2. On the other hand, species seen in 1981 but not this year were the Ring-necked Duck, Common Snipe, Winter Wren, Cedar Waxwing, Loggerhead Shrike, Brown-headed Cowbird and Evening Grosbeak.

"The Cedar Waxwing was noted in the count area during count week but not on count day," he said.

Results of the Greene County count will be sent to the National Audubon Society, which has been conducting the survey on an annual basis since 1900. They will be incorporated into a comprehensive report which the society publishes each year.

Last year, Bell said, the Panama Canal-Atlantic area had the top count with 303 species, while the high for the Continental United States was in Santa Barbara, Calif., with 212 species. The low was at North Star Island, Alaska. "Not a single bird was found but six Arctic Fox were seen."

Other species spotted in Greene County in the 1982 count:

Mallard, 59; Cooper's Hawk, 3; Red-tailed Hawk, 18; American Kestrel, 17; Ruffed Grouse, 3; Ring-necked Pheasant, 3; Rock Dove (common Pigeon), 214; Screech Owl, 2; Great Horned Owl, 2; Belted Kingfisher, 4; Pileated Woodpecker, 2; Hairy Woodpecker, 6; Downy Woodpecker, 34; Blue Jay, 42; American Crow, 796; Black-capped Chickadee, 20; Carolina Chickadee, 95; Tufted Titmouse, 72.

Mr. McCullough, the youngest son of George and Harriet McNeely McCullough, was employed for many years by Dunn Mar Oil and Gas Co. until his retirement in 1962.

Mrs. McCullough is the daughter of the late Joseph and Viola Evans Voorheis.

They had three children including Mrs. Eileen Smalley of Columbus, Ohio, Mrs. Edis Donahue of Moundsville, W. Va. and the late Mrs. Lena Strait. They also have five grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren and a great-great-granddaughter.

Discussion On Refuse Collection

KIRBY — The Whiteley Township board of supervisors has scheduled a public meeting for township residents to discuss the problem of refuse collection in the township.

It will be held at 7 p.m. Friday in the township building in Kirby.

Edward L. Conner, a member of the board, explained that the township landfill was shut down some time ago and a system of having residents take their refuse to dumpsters has not worked out satisfactorily.

"We are trying to work out a better arrangement and want to suit everybody," he said. "We're holding the meeting Friday to give all residents an opportunity to make their suggestions."

Rotary Club Speaker Is Exchange Student

WAYNESBURG — Nathalie Cavois spoke on her native country at a meeting Monday of the Waynesburg Rotary Club.

The 17-year-old girl, a native of the Normandy region of France, has been enrolled as a senior at Waynesburg Central High School since August when she arrived in Waynesburg for a year's stay through the Rotary International's Youth Exchange program. She is residing with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Goodwin of Waynesburg.

Miss Cavois described the school system in France, noting that both private and public schools are available. She is enrolled in a private Catholic school, where, she said, the emphasis is on academic studies with no extra-curricular activities or sports to interrupt them.

To graduate from high school, a student must pass examinations in such "core subjects" as mathematics, science and languages.

She showed club members several photographs of the Normandy area, familiar to many Americans who saw military service in France during World War II. The photos included her grandparents' home, which escaped destruction even though the fighting was heavy in the area when the Allies invaded Normandy in 1944.

She said her father is mayor of their home town and her mother owns a dress shop.

Miss Cavois will return to France in June and will continue her studies in the fall.

'George Field' Proposal Long Overdue Recognition

There is something particularly sad about posthumous recognition when one considers those being honored should have been around to enjoy the accolades.

It is sadder still when others see fit to honor "one of our own" before we ourselves realize our procrastination. There is an old saying, "You are never a hero in your own hometown." A perfect example can be found in the lack of recognition given the late Bill George in his hometown of Waynesburg.

The National Football League recognized the contributions of Bill George by inducting him into the Hall of Fame during impressive ceremonies in 1974. Players, teammates and opponents alike elected him to the all-pro teams for eight years and Chicago residents, year after year, elected him one of the most popular citizens of the city.

Over the years, he was honored by a small circle of friends but there has never been a community effort to honor the George family.

Supervisors in Franklin Township, where Bill was born, have taken the first step in what should become a community effort to correct an oversight. Franklin officials have named a street in Bill's honor and plan an informal ceremony on Saturday, Jan. 15. Tentative plans call for Bill's sister, Mary; his two sons and brother Nick to attend the ceremonies.

It shouldn't stop there. The community should do more. Members of the Central Greene School Board will be asked to name the football stadium at Waynesburg Central High School "George Field." This would not only recognize Bill's long career in the National Football League but also the fact Nick George was named an all-America guard at Waynesburg College.

After all, how many Greene County families can claim two all-America football players.

Assistance Centers Help Unemployed

WAYNESBURG — Individuals and families in Greene County who are caught up in the problems which result from unemployment have been given a place to turn to for help with the establishment of four "Assistance Centers for the Unemployed" in the county.

The assistance centers have been established as part of a joint effort by the Greene and Washington County boards of commissioners, utilizing funds made available through an adult services block grant.

The centers are located in Waynesburg, Carmichaels, Brave and Greensboro. They do not provide cash grants or jobs, but they can tell people where to go for any help which might be available.

Donna J. Miller, a community services worker who is coordinating the program, said the services are available to individuals between the ages of 18 and 64 who are unemployed, regardless of whether they are receiving public assistance, social security, veterans' benefits or unemployment benefits.

She said that information is available on education loans and grants, housing rights and responsibilities, health services, rights and responsibilities involving the payment of utility bills, emergency resources available for food and clothing, and training on looking for jobs.

Staff members also provide assistance in making application for such social service programs as food stamps and energy assistance.

Ms. Miller is in charge of the center at Waynesburg, which is operated by the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp. It serves residents of Waynesburg Borough and Center, Franklin, Morris, Washington and Whiteley townships. The telephone number is 852-2893.

The center in Brave is located in the community building and is operated by Barbara Coccari of the Social and Community Services of the Diocese of Pittsburgh. The telephone number is 627-9784. The center serves residents of Aleppo, Freeport, Gray, Gilmore, Jackson, Perry, Richhill, Springhill and Wayne townships.

The Carmichaels center is located in the Carmichaels Clinic on Route 21 and is operated by Centerville Clinics Inc., with Mary Ann Gidden in charge. The telephone number is 966-5081. It serves residents of Carmichaels, Clarksville, Jefferson and Rices Landing boroughs and Cumberland, Jefferson and Morgan townships.

The center at Greensboro is located in the Southeastern Greene Health Center, with Cindy Taudy in charge. The telephone number is 943-3363. It serves residents of Greensboro Borough and Dunkard, Greene and Monongahela townships.

734 Families Receive Help From Food Bank

WAYNESBURG — Thanks to the efforts of several civic, church and fraternal organizations and a few individuals, the Greene County Community Food Bank provided 734 local families with vouchers and food baskets during the holidays.

Food bank officials coordinated the efforts of the Salvation Army of Waynesburg, Carmichaels, Rices Landing and Jefferson as well as several church groups which are members of the food bank. Food valued at $4,598 was distributed.

Other organizations, such as the Elks, Lions and Jefferson Legion, also distributed baskets but only after cross-checking with others to prevent duplication of services.

According to Barbara Coccari, food bank coordinator with the Social & Community Services of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, "We had to refuse some applicants who had a higher monthly income than the normal or average. This was distressing as we believe that anyone who applied was expressing a need, but we were operating on a limited budget and had to set limits somewhere. We will, of course, be continuing to serve the needy throughout the year and hope those who assisted at Christmas will continue to be helpful in the coming months."

Food baskets, vouchers and other aid were donated by the following:

Bates Fork, Aleppo Bretheran Church, Aleppo Head Start, Bobtown Methodist, Brave Family Service Committee, Covenant Love Fellowship, Fairdale Free Methodist, Fairview Methodist, First Baptist, Jefferson United Methodist, New Freeport/Garrison Community Group, Salvation Army East, Social and Community Service, Valley Chapel of Holbrook and West Greene Parrish.

Also, Carmichaels United Methodist, Central Greene United Methodist Larger Parish, Greene Valley Presbyterian, Lady Clark Rebekahs, Rosary Altar Society of Greensboro, Greene County Society of Registered Nurses, United Way, First Federal Savings and Loan, First National Bank of Washington, Amelia and Donnis Clovis, Sophia Albert and the American Legion.

Individual aid was given by Vern Smith, Mary Parkinson, Eleanor Smith, and J.K. Willison.

AROUND TOWN

By The Staff

"Had enough televised football games yet?" has become a common expression in Waynesburg this week after the many games New Year's Day and more scheduled this month. As someone along the courthouse square quipped the other day, "they won't forget this year until the baseball teams will be heading south for spring training."

Michael Stephens, former Waynesburger now living in Austin, Tx., has returned home after spending the Christmas holidays visiting his mother, Mrs. Frances Stephens, who lives on West Elm Street. He became attracted to Texas while serving in the army after graduating from Waynesburg Central High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Marx of Albuquerque, N.M., announce the birth of their first child, a son, Brandon Christopher, born Dec. 11, 1982, in Albuquerque Hospital. Paternal grandparents are Dr. Elmer Marx and Mrs. Kathryn Marx.

Close to 400 West Penn Power Co. customers in Waynesburg were without power for a half an hour Tuesday because of a blown fuse. The incident occurred at the electrical company's South Richhill substation in Waynesburg. The loss of power at three local downtown banks caused some problems for those persons trying to cash checks after the holiday.

Airman Randy A. Ball, son of Sonia C. Ball of Waynesburg R.D.1, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force aircraft maintenance training course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas. He will now serve at Carwell Air Force Base, Texas with the 7th Field Maintenance Squadron. He is a 1981 graduate of Jefferson Morgan High School.

Russell J. Caldwell, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Caldwell of Waynesburg, is a patient in Children's Hospital, 25 DeSoto Street, Pittsburgh, where he is undergoing observation and treatment.

It seems like it was a long time since Waynesburgers have needed to use a lawnmower, but someone was advertising them for sale in the paper a few days ago. Perhaps with this good weather, now might just be the right time to purchase one.

The death of Mrs. Helen Wood Scott of Waynesburg on Monday meant the loss of another of the "old guard" graduates from Waynesburg College. Mrs. Scott had attended Waynesburg College alumni banquets virtually every year during the commencement season as did her sister, the late Miss Mary Wood of Waynesburg.

Martha Moore Barnett of Waynesburg was admitted Sunday to Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh where she is scheduled to undergo spinal surgery. Mrs. Barnett is on leave from her position as secretary to Greene County Solicitor A.J. Marion.

Danny Anderson of the Hiram G. Andrews Center in Johnstown, spent the holidays with his mother, Maxine Anderson of Waynesburg R.D.3.

Dog licenses have increased this year; but if your pet has been neutered you'll get a bit of a break. Licenses for male and female dogs are $5, but for a neutered pet they are $3. For senior citizens (age 65 and over) the cost will be $1.75 for neutered males and spayed females and $2.75 for all other dogs.

The 1983 Pennsylvania Farm Show will have one of the oldest exhibitors in the United States when it opens next week. Charles B. Orndorff of Smith Creek, three miles south of Waynesburg, is expected to attend with his son, Clark. Orndorff's ancestors came from the Rhine River Valley in Germany. They were skilled farmers, were strong and rugged with great physical strength, resourceful and inventive. They were among the first to come on west over the Alleghenies and acquired large farms in both West Virginia and western Pennsylvania. Orndorff was reared on the farm of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Corby Orndorff. Charles still lives there as does his son, Clark, and the latter's wife and children. Charles' father was one of the founders of the state farm show association and both father and son attended the first state show in Harrisburg and most of them ever since. The Orndorff farm is best known for its fine Belgium horses, many of which have been exhibited in big horse shows all over the country and in Canada. The son-father team of exhibitors will be in Harrisburg with many of their horses for the week-long show in their quest for more blue ribbons.

Reporting Network Will Help Fight Against Drunk Drivers

WAYNESBURG — The local fight against drunk drivers will soon be bolstered by a state program that has been in existence for a few years but has heretofore been unused in Greene County.

County probation officials are gearing-up to make use of the Court Reporting Network (CRN) which serves a two-fold purpose.

Previously, persons arrested for drunk driving could request they be placed in the Accelerated Rehabilitative Disposition (ARD) if it was their first offense. After a year of probation, their record would be clean.

The possibility existed that a motorist could be in the ARD program in several counties although a person is allowed in the program only once. There was little chance officials in Greene County would know if a person was on ARD in another county.

Under the CRN procedure, the local probation official waits until after the accused is arraigned and then has the accused fill out a written form.

The form asks many questions which are evaluated by computer. From the report, recommendations are made as to possible treatment for the drinking driver. The state report also notifies local officials if the accused has been placed on ARD in another county.

The report gives the district attorney valuable information on which to base his recommendation to the court for disposition of the case.

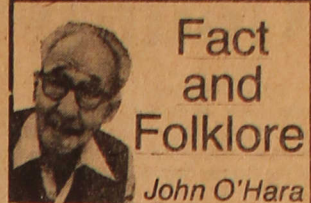

State personnel plan to be in Greene County this month to explain the procedures to the district attorney, judge and probation officers who administer the program.

Use of the CRN is a part of a general crackdown against drunk drivers in the county according to John Graham, county probation officer.

Graham noted that, across the nation, one in 2,000 drinking drivers are ever arrested compared to a much lower rate in Pennsylvania where only one in 6,000 drinking drivers are ever caught and charged.

When the recently enacted drunk driving law goes into effect next week, more arrests and convictions are expected.

Graham said other programs are being studied to combat drunk drivers and meetings with various police officials in the county are planned for

Fact and Folklore
John O'Hara

Sometime in the not too distant future, inhabitants of this planet Earth will through histories of the 20th century read the history of the coal mining industry and be shocked into disbelief that there actually was a time when human beings worked hundreds of feet below the surface to mine coal.

Their shock will be even greater when they read on to learn that billions of tons of such an energy-rich mineral had been wastefully squandered as a household fuel.

Scientists of some 40 years ago were aware of this fact in a rather general way, as indicated by "coal tree" sketches in textbooks as early as the 1920s that depicted the many by-products to be held from coal even at that time, which are now much enlarged and more thoroughly researched.

The late Dr. Cecil O. Riggs, a native of the panhandle section of West Virginia and a graduate and postgraduate student of science at West Virginia University in Morgantown, was one of the first researchers who implored his students to preach the gospel of coal conservation.

Away back at that time — the early 1920s — his voice was one of the few that deplored the lack of research into coal as a source of precious by-products.

In 1983 it is being more ignored than followed, according to many sources from the research laboratories and market places, where the policies of government and the coal industry's paths often cross.

Dr. Riggs was an individual of extraordinary intellect, but his observations about coal as a source of truly Aladdin's lamp dimensions are still being largely ignored.

But it is still not too late for a chiol with extraordinary background in scientific research to be given the recognition it deserves and greater opportunity to play a more comprehensive role in the future of an industry that can help bring a new type of industrial revolution to American life. But it should be done before such a treasure trove is wantonly wasted, ignoring its potential for multiple uses in medicine, resource and countless other fields of exploration.

In fact, one of Waynesburg's own graduates, John O'Brochta, has already done highly significant research in this field, initially for the world-famous Mellon Research Laboratories in Pittsburgh and later for his own firm that he operated until he took an early retirement to enjoy his well-deserved pleasure of unraveling the melodious intricacies of the violin in his Pittsburgh home.

Dr. O'Brochta's multiplicity of talents first attracted the attention of his high school teacher, W. Walter Montgomery, a 1927 graduate of Waynesburg College who also coached the football team at Jefferson High School. Dr. O'Brochta also worked a full night shift at the Mather mine, where his father was a foreman. The identities of this father-son duo is mentioned here as possible leaders in what might lend some momentum to getting the worth of one of God's greatest gifts to mankind — the vast bituminous coal fields of Pennsylvania.

It is made with full recognition that in both the coal, steel and other related industries there are many highly-qualified experts working on all phases of the by-products of coal.

Someday, experts say, the wide range of by-products from coal will far outweigh its use as a heating and industrial fuel. Hopefully some part of Greene County's large deposits of the mineral will still be available when it happens.

WAYNESBURG — Five members of the board of directors will be elected at the regular meeting of the Greater Waynesburg Area Chamber of Commerce to be held at noon Wednesday, Jan. 12, at the Elks Club.

The terms of John Barna, Ryan Hartley, John Loeper, Rebecca Smitley and Pat Wachter have expired. Nominated to fill the vacancies are Randy Bittner, Gordon Curry, John Loeper, Betty Long, Joe Ottoviani, Jean Scott, Jack Smith and Ken Willison.

Voting will be done by ballot of those present at the meeting.

Raiders Can't Hold On

MONESSEN — Waynesburg High School held a 26-22 halftime edge over Monessen but the Greyhounds came back for a 58-56 win Tuesday in Section 12-AA basketball action.

Monessen, led by 21 points by Craig Nard and 19 by Jim Steppoli, tied the score at 38-38 after three quarters and outscored the Raiders 20-18 in the last eight minutes.

John Wion scored 18 points and Kirk King 17 for the Raiders.

Rockets 33, Pioneers 12

JEFFERSON — This was the match that has given Tony Barbetta a nervous stomach for weeks. But after Wednesday night Barbetta, Jefferson-Morgan High School's head wrestling coach, can take a long breath and a sigh of relief.

The Rockets edged West Greene here 33-12 in a crucial Section 8-AA match to raise their league record to 2-0.

"I've been worried about this match for over a week. It ruined my whole holidays," Barbetta said after the victory. "I've been a nervous wreck because I knew this would be a tough match for us. But our lightweights did a great job and helped pull out a great win for us."

The teams traded three points in the first two bouts as the Pioneers' Scott Durbin decided freshman Jeff Jento 11-8 while Jento's older brother John returned the favor at 105 by edging Jeff Hartzell 5-4.

"Jeff is only a ninth grader and was wrestling hurt and I want the whole world to know it," Barbetta said. "In fact we had a little signal worked out that if he couldn't go on we'd call the match. His back and neck have really been bothering him. But he never once gave that signal. And I really think that fired his brother up, he came back and wrestled strong."

John Jento's victory was the start of a six match sweep for Jeff-Morgan and it all but decided the outcome of the meet. Dan Basinger (112) scored a fall while Lee Nelson (119), Alan Yanick (126), Dave Gamble (132) and Jerry Nelson (138) all filled in with decision wins.

West Greene, now 2-1 in the section, came back with a fall from Rikk Walters (145) and a decision win by Arleigh Closser (167), but the Rockets closed the Pioneers out with a victory by default by heavyweight Clay Behm and decision wins by Bob Knight (155) and Tim Starostanko (185).

Buddogs 32, Mikes 27

FREDERICKTOWN — Beth-Center won six bouts Wednesday night to record a 32-27 WPIAL Section 8-AA wrestling victory over Carmichaels.

Buddogs Mark Bartolomucci (119), Sam Zets (145), Pete Keruskin (167) and heavyweight Mike Blazus all won by falls. Teammates Don Johnston (132) and Scott McGrady (138) won by decision.

Carmichaels received victories from Dave McWilliams (98), Melvin Boone (112), Gary Railey (126) and Rob Cutright (155). McWilliams won by forfeit while Railey won by fall.

Maples 39, York Runners 27

MAPLETOWN — Mapletown High School won the first five bouts of its match against Fairchance-Georges Wednesday night on the way to a 39-27 WPIAL Section 8-AA wrestling victory.

The Maples (5-2 overall and 3-0 in the section) jumped out to 27-0 lead with victories by Bill Fowden (98), Jim Griffin (105), Ron Dills (112), Rick Griffin (119) and Bruno Mandarano (126). The latter three all won by fall.

Mapletown's other two victories were recorded by Roger Hartley (155) and Chris Homistek (185). Both won by fall.

Pioneers 63, Rockets 28

ROGERSVILLE — Nick Pablonis and Joe Jacobs combined for 30 points to lead West Greene High School's boys basketball team to a 63-28 Section 16-A win over Jefferson-Morgan Tuesday night.

Pablonis scored 16 and Jacobs added 14 to give the Pioneers their first section victory. They are now 1-4 in the section and 2-6 overall.

Nobody was in double figures for Jeff-Morgan, which falls to 0-5 in the section and 0-8 overall.

New Wrestling Playoffs

By Joe Tuscano, O-R Sports Staff

The recent realignments in the WPIAL wrestling sections have led to much more than expansion. It's caused the birth of a new playoff format which will send an extra wrestler in each weight class from sectionals to regionals in two of the seven Class AAA sections and include two wild card teams in the team tournament.

Under last year's system, the top three wrestlers from each of the six Triple-A sections advanced to the regional tournament. When the enrollment redvisions increased by 10 the number of new Triple-A teams, a new system was assembled.

Triple-A wrestling expanded to seven sections this season and the number of wrestlers who would advance from sectionals to regionals was cut to two. But that leaves 14 wrestlers to fill a 16-spot bracket. In the past, either pigtail matches or byes were used to fill the brackets in the individual and team tournaments.

But the WPIAL Wrestling Steering Committee wanted to devise a new system.

"We're going to try this for a year," said WPIAL executive secretary Chuck Heberling. "No matter what system you try to devise, there will be holes in it. But rather than have those two byes, it's better to try something and give two more kids a chance in each weight class."

The extra wrestler for each weight class will be awarded to the sections which send a third-place team into the WPIAL Team Tournament. For example, if Chartiers-Houston finishes third in Section 7 and acquires enough points to become a wild card entry in the team tourney, one extra wrestler in each weight class of that section will be taken from sectionals to regionals.

"We have seven sections in Triple-A, so we take two out of each section," Heberling said. "In order to fill the bracket up, we're taking two additional wrestlers. Out of the seven sections, we're going to take the wrestler out of the section that supplies the teams in the team championship. Whatever sections they (the wild card teams) come out of, that's where the individual comes out of as well."

"The rationale is that that's the 15th and 16th team in and those sections should technically have the best wrestlers. That's not foolproof by a long shot but we have to have a starting point."

Under the WPIAL guidelines for selecting a wild card entrant, a team must finish in third place. A wild card team receives points during the regular

4-H Horse, Pony Clubs Fence In New Show Ring

WAYNESBURG — Members of Greene County's six 4-H Horse and Pony clubs presented the county commissioners with a check for $500 Thursday to cover the cost of fencing a new horse show ring being developed at the county fairgrounds.

County Commissioner L.R. Santore, who accepted the check on behalf of the county, said county maintenance employees are currently grading land adjoining the present horse show ring for the new facility, which is expected to be ready for use by spring.

"The county won't have any money involved in the project now that the 4-H clubs have taken care of building the fence," he said. Santore also said the fence will be installed in such a way that ground inside the ring can still be used for parking during the county fair.

Associate County Agent Roger Smith, who serves as advisor to the 4-H clubs, said availability of a second show ring will enable Greene County to host the annual district horse show.

"Up until this time the only fairgrounds in the district with the necessary two rings has been Beaver County, so the show is being held there each year," he said. "Now that we have a second ring we'll be able to invite the show to Greene County."

The new ring also will expedite the annual Greene County 4-H Horse Show and will be available for use by other horsemen's associations in the county for both practice and shows.

Horse and Pony clubs participating in raising the $500 were Carmichaels, Eastern Greene, Mt. Morris, Golden Gait, Waynesburg and Ruff Creek. Smith said the money was raised through various events held by club members.

Familiar Tune For Bucs

By Denise Bachman, O-R Sports Staff

CALIFORNIA — For Chartiers-Houston High School's wrestling team, it's become a habit.

But unlike most habits, it's one the Bucs can be proud of. It's called winning.

And this time the Bucs did it Thursday night at the California State College Holiday Wrestling Tournament where they crowned three individual champions en route to capturing the team title as well with 168 1/2 points, far ahead of runnerup Hempfield with 136 points.

"You're never satisfied until you have all 12, but everybody gave a good effort; there were no real disappointments," Chartiers-Houston head coach Tim Mousetis said. "This was pretty positive. It was a team effort. The kids learned what it takes to go through a tournament with good, hard competition and intense wrestling in a short amount of time. We're gearing up for the end of the year."

Raiders 54, Rams 9

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg High School wrestling team made a successful debut in the Class AAA ranks here Wednesday night with a 54-9 victory over Ringgold in a Section 7-AAA match.

The Red Raiders, now 5-0 overall, had falls by Jim Scritchfield (98), Greg Eddy (119), Jim Hughes (126), John Throckmorton (132), Doug Higgins (155), Brian Popp (167) and Mark Brewer (185). Jeff Lapping (112) and heavyweight Doug Henderson were forfeit winners.

Ringgold's Lonnie Seighman (138) scored a fall while Steve Davis (145) added a decision win. Ringgold is now 1-6 overall.

Mike Eddy, Van Speers and Becky Braun all fired a 298 to pace the local shooters. Barry Trew added a 297 score and Earl Taylor a 294 to complete the Waynesburg team.

He is a 1982 graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School.

Getting a head start for the Bucs were Phil Mary at 119 pounds, Chris Mary (126) and Tim Gump (132), all of whom grabbed individual titles. Besides the title, Phil Mary was also voted the outstanding wrestler of the tournament by the coaches.

Other place finishers for the Bucs were Don Clendaniel (112), third; Patsy Vulcano (138), third; Rob Castelli (185), third and Barre Bell (105), sixth.

Of the three champions, however, it was Chris Mary who turned in perhaps the most impressive performance in the finals. After Uniontown's Jim Jenkins scored a quick takedown, Chris took command of the remainder of the match. He flirted with a fall for most of the second and third periods before notching a 21-2 superior decision.

For Chris, it was a happy ending to a rather dismal beginning. "I really wanted the title," Chris said. "I felt a lot better today. Yesterday and the other day I wasn't feeling too good. I really had to get myself up. It was more mental."

"I had a bye (in the opening round) which hurt me. I didn't work out the first day and I didn't have my wind (Wednesday). It really affected me."

But Chris made a strong comeback the rest of the way.

"That first takedown had me worried," Chris said. "I've been taken down twice in this tournament right away. But I have more confidence this year. Last year I was just a sophomore going against seniors. This year I'm not worried about getting beat; I'm worried about beating the heck out of the other guy."

And last night's match against Jenkins was in typical Chris Mary style according to Mousetis.

"Chris does what he does very well, better than most," Mousetis said. "He doesn't slow down for a second. This year he has sharpened up his technique, become more diversified and a lot more aggressive."

Chris' win was sandwiched be-between a 7-2 decision by brother Phil over Connellsville's Tom Dolde and an 8-6 victory by Gump over Waynesburg's John Throckmorton.

Gump's win took on an added meaning for it was this tournament that the 132-pounder came into the wrestling limelight when he captured the title at 126 pounds last year.

"It was real good to come back," Gump said. "But I can't say it means more to me this time. It was just like any other tournament."

But it wasn't just like any other match. This match featured two local wrestlers pitted against each other in a rather see-saw battle. The two traded reversals three times late in the first period as Gump jumped out to a 6-4 lead and hung on for the win.

"The only thing that beat him was that real quick takedown," Waynesburg head coach Joe Ayersman said, referring to Gump's takedown 13 seconds into the match. "Gump did a real good job. John had to do a lot of wrestling in that match."

Throckmorton was the Red Raiders' first of two second-place finishers. Kevin Durkin (167) lost 5-2 in overtime to Connellsville's Steve Peperak, who salvaged a 7-7 tie in regulation when Durkin was penalized for delay of the match. In the team standings, Waynesburg finished sixth with 98 points.

"We're pleased," Ayersman said. "The bad thing is we didn't have any other wrestlers do anything outside of the five in the semifinals, which shows we don't have any balance."

"But this gives us a pretty good idea of what we have to work on. We figured on getting five in. Of course, you like one or two winners."

Other local wrestlers in the top six were Canon-McMillan's Rich Dami (105), fourth; Paul Warhol (112), fourth and Fred Barbaryka (185), fifth; Waynesburg's Jeff Lapping (105), third; Gregg Eddy (119), fifth and Bill Gerace (145), fourth and Mapletown's Chris Homistek (185), fourth.

Five Trojans scored in double figures, Joe Callihan leading the way with 12 points. Tom Molenda scored 11 points while teammates Tom Callihan, Eric Perry and Dave Danko each added 10.

Senior guard Kirk King scored a game-high 25 points to lead the Red Raiders (6-5 overall), who won one of three games at the tournament. Sophomore center John Wion pitched in 11 points for Waynesburg.

2,101 County Residents May Lose Voting Rights

WAYNESBURG — More than 12 percent of Greene County's 17,190 registered voters stand to lose their voting privileges for failure to go to the polls during the last two years.

The county registration office will soon be mailing voter cancellation notices to 2,101 residents who have failed to meet the legal requirement of voting at least once every two years to keep their registration active.

Included with the notice will be a postal card which, if filled out and returned to the registration office in Waynesburg, will serve to keep the registration active. The card can also be used to indicate a change of address.

Those who fail to return the card will be required to sign up again to get back on the voter rolls.

Mrs. Betty Ray, chief registration clerk, said the number of potential cancellations is the highest in many years. Last year, for example, the notices were sent to 1,021 individuals.

"One of the big factors is probably that it has been two years since the presidential election," Mrs. Ray said. "Some people seem to vote only in that election."

This year the total includes 1,453 Democrats (11 percent of that party's registration), 480 Republicans (13 percent), and 166 Independents (44 percent). The Citizens Party stands to lose the only Greene County resident registered in that party, and the Constitutional Party could lose one of its two county members.

Gordon Curry, manager of the Waynesburg District of the Mid-Penn Telephone Corp., said the fire in McClellandtown burned a Bell Telephone Corp. toll cable, interrupting service from 1:40 a.m. to 9:40 a.m.

While Greene County residents could make direct long-distance calls, they were unable to reach an operator to make any operator-assisted calls.
