FFA Awards To Be Presented

WAYNESBURG — Dr. D. Paul Greenlee, retired Waynesburg surgeon, and Earl Cole, well-known Kugtown area livestock raiser, will receive honorary Future Farmer of America (FFA) Keystone Degree awards Wednesday at the State Farm Show in Harrisburg.

They were nominated for the awards by the FFA Chapter at West Greene High School for their continued work with FFA youth in Greene County.

Also to be awarded at the Farm Show on Thursday, will be a FFA Keystone Degree Agri-Business

Award to David Ziefel, a 1981 graduate of West Greene High School and former member of its FFA Chapter. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ziefel, of Graysville R.D.1, and is majoring in business and psychology at Waynesburg College.

While at West Greene High School and as FFA projects, Ziefel developed his own small engine repair shop and participated in the State Small Engine contest in 1981. He also raised a sheep as a FFA production project.

Dr. Greenlee has had a continued interest in working with members of FFA Chapters in Greene County and has provided his farm for student field trips. He has had an interest in new cattle breeds and their development and donated a Simmental calf to an outstanding member of the West Greene FFA Chapter.

Earl Cole has also had a continued interest in FFA youth and has helped to conduct the FFA sheep shearing school. Later this month he will accompany Matt Belding, a former Waynesburg Central High School FFA Chapter member, to Colorado where he will compete in the National Sheep Shearing contest.

School Board Refuses To Rebid School Project

By Christie R. Molzon, Staff Writer

MAPLETOWN — A motion to re-bid the renovation project for the Bobtown Elementary School failed by a 4-3 vote, with two members absent, at the Southeastern Greene School Board meeting Tuesday night.

The motion was made by Dave Bierer who, after the meeting, said he felt now is the time to start the project since interest rates are coming down. Bierer also said he would bring the matter up for a vote again at next month's meeting.

The board had originally planned to renovate and put an addition on to the Bobtown school when plans were made to renovate the Penn Pitt school. But in June of 1982 the board voted to proceed with construction at Penn Pitt only, due to the high cost of undertaking two construction projects. When bids were received in May, low bids for the Bobtown renovation project totaled $2.8 million with low bids for the Penn Pitt school totaling $2.1 million. Construction is currently underway at Penn Pitt and is expected to be completed this fall.

Voting to re-bid the project with Bierer were Adam Novak, Gary Mosier, and Mark Brozik with Bob Watson, John Mason and Jim Minor voting no. Five votes would be needed to approve the project. Emil Enoff and Floyd Hornick were absent from the meeting.

After the vote Novak noted that repairs are needed in the Bobtown school to the furnace and for electrical wiring. In a related matter, Assistant Superintendent Charles Wyda noted that sewerage problems that occurred before Christmas break have been corrected at that school.

Board President Jim Minor appointed Watson, Hornick and himself as members of a negotiating team to meet with a team from Local 585 of the Service Employees International Union in the district on their contract.

The board also set Jan. 24 to hold a workshop to discuss salary increases for three administrative secretaries, a security guard and administrative personnel.

Solicitor John Stets was directed to send a letter to the state Department of Transportation concerning road conditions along LR 30020 near Gugliotta's Mine and the need for a traffic light at Fieldson's Crossroads on LR 30068. The requests came from citizens attending last night's meeting.

Stets will also notify Zane Excavating Corp. of North Lima, Ohio, of recent problems with the sewerage system at the Mapletown High School. The school district has a maintenance and performance bond with the company that expires April 1.

Two merit raises of $200 each were given to Bob Semple, assistant wrestling coach, and Bernard Zuchelkowski, head girls softball coach. Robert Clites was named first assistant basketball coach for junior varsity.

In other business, the board:

✓ Granted use of the Mapletown High School gym for the Greene County Midget Wrestling Tournament on Jan. 22;

✓ Hired M. James Milinovich to conduct an audit of earned income tax from the Central Tax Bureau for a fee of $752;

✓ Approved dental exams by the Southeastern Greene Community Health Center at $3.75 per student;

✓ Approved a request by the Carmichaels Knights of Columbus to use the high school gym for a Basketball Free Throw Contest on Jan. 15;

✓ Gave permission for use of the high school gym to Greene County Parks and Recreation for a slim-nastics class from Feb. 15 to March 24.

Official Predicts Township Mergers

WAYNESBURG — William Groves, secretary-treasurer of the Cumberland Township board of supervisors, addressed the Waynesburg Rotary Club Monday and predicted a consolidation of townships within Greene County.

Speaking of the consolidation, Groves predicted that economic necessity may force the consolidation to the point where only six or eight townships exist in the future.

Termining the Cumberland Township board as "progressive," Groves told the Rotarians that operating a township has become a "big, complicated business calling for competent public officials and up-to-date methods in meeting the needs of the people at a grass-roots level."

In his wide-ranging talk, Groves touched on the county's largest federal grant to date, the $2.1 million public housing project in Crucible; the adoption of a zoning ordinance in Cumberland Township in 1982; adoption of a flood plain ordinance and the need for improved tax assessments at the county level.

In discussing what he called the need for improvement in tax assessments by the county, Groves said he feels the move is needed to "insure a more equitable tax burden for all our people. As it is now, a great many inequities do exist which are not fair to many people, usually those who can least afford heavy tax burdens."

As for the reduction in the number of townships, Groves noted that there are now 20 townships in the county, each owning or using the same type of equipment for road work, snow removal and so on. "This ends up in duplication of work, costs, and effort, most of which could be reduced greatly by consolidation of townships," he added.

Groves pointed to the reduction of more than 20 school districts in the county in 1962 to the five districts now caring for the educational needs of some 3,000 students as a basis for comparison in pursuing the township reduction concept.

Groves took note of Cumberland Township's progress in the past few years in the improvement of its "in-house" operations. "We now have a township building and maintenance barn adequate for our needs," he told the Rotarians, "and direct, immediate contact with our residents. If someone comes to us with a problem, we come up with an answer without delay."

Groves also made reference to the township's 24-hour police system in addition to fire protection.

Groves, who is also vice president of the Greene County Association of Township Supervisors, was introduced by Rotarian Michael Mulholland.

Waynesburg Council Arranges $90,000 Tax Anticipation Loan

WAYNESBURG — Arrangements for securing a tax anticipation loan of $90,000 were made by Waynesburg Borough Council at its meeting Monday evening.

The money will be borrowed from the Waynesburg office of the First National Bank of Washington at the municipal prime interest rate, which amounts to 54 percent of the current bank prime rate. The interest rate will fluctuate as the prime varies and the loan will be subject to repayment before the end of the year.

In other matters incidental to the start of a new year, council again appointed William P. Thomas as borough solicitor, R.A. Gwennap Associates as borough auditor and the First National Bank as treasurer and depository.

Council President Glenn Richards named himself, Frank VanCleve and Kenneth Fox to a new administrative committee to work closely with office personnel and department heads in the absence of a borough manager. Other committee appointments are:

✓ Public Safety, VanCleve, Charles Berryhill and Kenneth Fox;

✓ Finance, Dr. Joseph Stewart,

Berryhill and Paul Salosky;

✓ Streets, Fox, Charles Meacci and Beverly Krill;

✓ Public Utilities, Salosky, Tom Brown and Berryhill, and ✓ Municipal Relations, Krill, Dr. Stewart and Meacci.

Council accepted a proposal from Milinovich and Co. to audit 1982 accounts of the Central Tax Bureau, the earned income tax collector, at a fee of $483. The public accounting firm will make the audit in conjunction with its audit for the Central Greene School District.

Lloyd Bedillion of 295 Bridge Street was appointed to a five-year term on the Waynesburg Planning Commission to succeed Peter Jabour, whose term expired Dec. 31. A letter of appreciation will be sent to Jabour thanking him for his many years of service on the commission.

Council agreed to lease the storeroom in the borough building to Mr. and Mrs. John Humble as new owners of Meighen's Shoe Store. Council was told they are in the process of purchasing the business from Joseph Meighen and Charles Reed.

Joseph A. Main of Waynesburg R.D.5 has been appointed to the post by UMW President Rich Trumka. He replaces Joe Taylor.

Main first joined the UMW in 1974 as an assistant to President Arnold Miller and was chairman of the committee which that year negotiated the national UMW construction contract. He then remained on the staff as a special consultant to the president and in 1975, as a specialist on safety, was named to the Mine Health and Safety Committee and international representative on mine construction. He was subsequently appointed to the International Safety Inspection Committee and assistant mine safety director.

Prior to joining the United Mine Workers staff, he was employed by the Williamson Shaft Co. and was involved in both underground mine construction and mine repair work. Main, who served as Trumka's campaign coordinator in District 31 in northern West Virginia, has been in Washington, D.C. since November as a member of the Trumka transition staff.

Under a reorganizational plan, the three areas of mine safety, occupational health and safety training will be consolidated under the new Department of Safety and Health, with Main being responsible for the overall administration of the department, which operates throughout the United States and Canada.

"We're looking for a new approach to mine health and safety and feel that some of the changes we will be making will bring about the improvements we want," he said Thursday.

The new UMW administrator is a son of Joseph M. and Clarice Main, also of Waynesburg R.D.5, and is married to the former Karen Williams. He and his wife have five children, Tracy, 15, Christi, 13, Amy, 12, Joseph, 9, and Benji, 5. Main has been active in youth athletics, particularly as a Little League baseball coach.

Mrs. Main and the children plan to continue residing in their home near Oak Forest until sometime this spring, when they will move to Washington, D.C.

Two Waynesburg Youths Injured

WAYNESBURG — Two Waynesburg youths were treated for minor injuries at Greene County Memorial Hospital following a one-car accident at 10 p.m. Monday on Route 19, just north of the Waynesburg Borough line.

State police said David L. Barrett Jr., 16, of 299 North West Street, lost control of his car on the turn at the top of the hill coming into town, swerved off an embankment and struck a culvert. He and a passenger, Craig P. Erhard, 15, of 75 Sherman Avenue, were taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Police said the car was demolished.

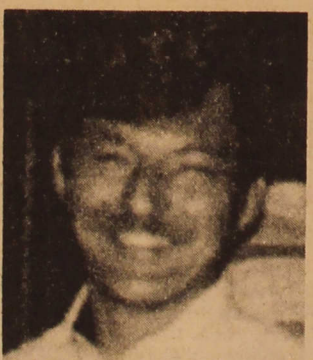

Waynesburg Area Resident Appointed To UMW Post

WAYNESBURG — A Greene County resident who has been involved in the field of mine safety for a number of years has been named administrator of the newly-reorganized Department of Safety and Health of the United Mine Workers.

Joseph A. Main of Waynesburg R.D.5 has been appointed to the post by UMW President Rich Trumka. He replaces Joe Taylor.

Main first joined the UMW in 1974 as an assistant to President Arnold Miller and was chairman of the committee which that year negotiated the national UMW construction contract. Property Values Up For 1983

WAYNESBURG — Taxable property in Greene County — land, buildings and minerals — will carry an assessed value of just over $154 million for 1983.

The new total of $154,372,285 is $1,290,415 higher than the valuation in effect for 1982. The increase reflects $1,973,885 in new construction, which more than offset a drop of $725,940 in coal valuations.

Compilation of the new figures has been completed by the Greene County Assessment Department to provide the county and each of its 20 townships and six boroughs with the information they need to implement their 1983 budgets.

Since property in Greene County is assessed at 30 percent of market value, the $154 million figure indicates that the assessment office has calculated the worth of all taxable property at $511 million.

The assessed value of surface property is $85.8 million, with $23 million of that being land and the other $62.8 million representing buildings.

Coal is assessed at $68,105,495, which represents 44 percent of the $154 million total.

Oil and gas is assessed at $413,100, which is an increase of $54,810 over 1982.

Coal is broken down into separate seams which carry different valuations. Pittsburgh Coal, the major seam in the county, is assessed at $166.50 an acre for a total valuation of $49 million. Freeport coal, assessed at $135 per acre, has a total valuation of $5.6 million, with most of it being centered in Morgan, Jefferson, Franklin, Washington and Cumberland townships.

Sewickley (Mapletown) Coal is assessed at $102.50 per acre, with the seam carrying a total assessment of $13.3 million.

In general, townships in the western part of the county benefit most from coal assessments since they contain the bulk of the reserve Pittsburgh seam coal.

In the nine townships which make up the West Greene School District, 67 percent of the total assessed value of $46.5 million consists of coal. Coal makes up 45 percent of the $50.7 million assessed value of property in the Central Greene School District, 31 percent of the $17.7 million assessment in the Jefferson-Morgan District, 31 percent of the $12.6 million assessment in the Southeastern Greene

District and 12 percent of the $18.5 million assessment in the Carmichaels Area District.

Among the townships themselves, coal valuations range from 80 percent of the total in Gilmore Township to 12 percent in Monongahela Township.

The assessment department figures indicate that properties with a total assessed value of $20 million are on the rolls as being tax free, with $3 million of it being in Waynesburg borough.

The largest percentage of this property, $15.6 million worth, is tax-free real estate representing both local and state government property, school property, church property, etc. Land owned by the State Game Commission has an assessed value of $390,000, while land and buildings owned by utilities accounts for $4.2 million of the total.

Utility property is exempt from the payment of local property taxes because it is subject to special state taxation, with the state, in turn, rebating part of the tax revenue to local governments.

A breakdown of the new assessment valuations for property in each of the county's 20 townships and six boroughs is set forth in the accompanying table.

Interim Pastor Appointed For Baptist Church

WAYNESBURG — The Rev. Alan S. Williams, a missionary to Thailand for the past eight years, has been named interim pastor of the First Baptist Church in Waynesburg to replace the Rev. Paul Kubik, who has accepted a position in Illinois.

Williams has served as pastor of the Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Wolcott, Ill., and the Allendale Baptist Church in North Providence, R.I., and served as interim pastor at the Grace Baptist Church in the Bronx, N.Y.

Williams holds degrees from Up-land College, Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, Union Seminary and the University of Pittsburgh.

He and his wife Diana worked in Thailand under the Karen Baptist Convention in the areas of evangelism and education. He was an assistant to the administration at the United Village School, an elementary school for hill tribe children.

Mrs. Williams served as an English teacher as well as teaching Bible studies. They have three children, Donald, 15; Lynne, 13 and Kathy, 12.

On Top Of The World

A little child doesn't understand bigness. Nor does he understand height and depth and length or any other proportions. But he knows love. He has trust.

Nestled in Mother's arms or held in Father's strong hands, he knows complete faith and security.

Man lives his span of life trusting, believing, hoping. Otherwise, he is no different than a stone—his life is empty.

Why must we have faith? Because it gives us reason for living. Faith in the Creator who fashioned us in His own image is increased by prayer and meditation. What better place to find love and understanding—and hope for a better life—than in the church or synagogue of your choice?

"Improbable Fiction, the Life of Mary Roberts Rinehart," by Jan Cohn. University of Pittsburgh Press.

Mary Roberts Rinehart may have been "America's first female Horatio Alger," says this author. "Rags to riches" may be stretching it, but Mrs. Rinehart certainly did very well for herself, becoming one of the most successful writers in the country.

To start with the local angle, Mrs. Rinehart's ancestors settled in Washington County before 1800. The Roberts men were ministers and teachers here, but her grandfather moved to Pittsburgh around 1850. Mary was born in Allegheny, now the North Side, and lived there until she started making a fortune with her writing. Earlier, she decided to go into nurses' training, to the shock of her mother. That was in 1893, when she was only sixteen, but it was there she met her future husband, Dr. Stanley Rinehart.

Cohn's theme for the biography is that of a "Mary Roberts Rinehart myth" which was promoted by Mrs. Rinehart herself. The author believes that Mrs. Rinehart, as a young wife and mother of three sons, felt she had to justify her desire to write. It wasn't the thing, in 1900, for a mother to have ambitions of her own.

She claimed to the end of her long life that she wrote only to help her family, that they needed the money. "Only as a wife and mother whose writing was undertaken for the good of the family, could Mary defy the Victorian culture into which she had been born. Without a doubt she felt enormous guilt; ambition and energy overrode that guilt most of the time, but only under the protective cloak the myth provided."

Mrs. Rinehart was also hurt by the fact that she was never considered a "serious" writer, never listed by critics to be in the category of Willa Cather, for instance, who also lived in Pittsburgh for a time. Willa Cather taught Mrs. Rinehart to revise and rewrite, but Rinehart was always considered a "commercial" writer, despite her efforts to fight that tag.

By 1912, she had become one of the "Saturday Evening Post's" major contributors, with light, humorous stories. Many of her books were first published as serials in popular magazines, which made them even more profitable. The first one of these was "The Man in Lower 10," a wonderful mystery story written in 1905. Much of the action takes place on a train between Pittsburgh and Washington, D.C., with a deserted mystery house at Cresson adding to the suspense.

Her humorous mystery novel, "The Circular Staircase," in 1908, made her famous. It enabled her to buy a big touring car and a house in Sewickley. She was asked to interview kings and queens and became the friend of president and literary giants. But the knowledge that her attempts at "serious" novels were never as successful as her mysteries always nagged at her.

So did her husband, who once took her stories to reporter friends of his in Pittsburgh. They advised: "Tell her to stick to her housework; she was no literary ability."

Wrong. Although she is not considered a major American writer, she was a very successful and popular one, and her life story is just as interesting as the ones she invented.

School Board Members Must Be Elected This Year

WAYNESBURG — Due to a combination of circumstances, the terms of all but 12 of the 45 individuals who serve as school directors in Greene County will be expiring this year.

"It's been many years since we've had as many as 33 school directors to be elected, but that seems to be what will be happening this year," said Mrs. Betty Ray, chief clerk of the county registration office. "It's a very confusing situation."

The situation was brought about primarily by action of the State Legislature two years ago in changing the terms of school directors from six years to four years. This threw off the normal rotation in which three of the nine members of each school board in Greene County were elected every other year to six year terms. With the shortening of the term, it set up a rotation in which six of the nine would be elected in the same year, starting in 1983.

To correct this, the State Legislature a month ago amended the school code to change the turnover rate so that five directors and four directors would be elected in alternating years. This amendment will require a one-time adjustment which will be made this year.

Richard E. Anderson, commissioner of the state Bureau of Commissions, Elections and Legislation, has advised school boards and the county Election Bureau that school boards must select, by lot, one of the six four-year vacancies to be filled for two years only. The determination must be made before Feb. 15, which is the first day on which candidates can circulate and file nominating petitions for the May primary election.

"This adjustment will implement the five and four member turnover rates in alternating elections, as required by the Act, and will have particular impact where school board members are elected in regions rather than at-large," he wrote. "Procedures for conducting the adjustment lottery should be determined by each school board."

Officials of the county's five school districts indicated they will probably take care of the matter at their January meetings to be sure to meet the deadline.

The situation in two school districts is further complicated by the fact that appointments have been made during the past year to fill vacancies created by resignations. Where that has happened, the person who was appointed must be elected in 1983 for the balance of the unexpired term if he or she is to remain in office.

CARMICHAELS AREA

Due to appointments, the terms of eight of the nine school directors expire this year, with Edward Chess being the only member with two years remaining on his term. Terms expiring are those of Zigmund Bokot, Elaine Oros, Frank Andria, David Antolenni, Henry Bacan, Arthur Jones, Edward Tekavec and Irma Jean Thomas.

It is anticipated that there will be five four-terms and three two-year terms to be filled.

CENTRAL GREENE

In the Central Greene School District, the terms of six directors expire this year. They are Furman Wade and Robert Stephenson, who represent Franklin and Washington townships; Warren Bowers and Herman Osso, who represent Perry, Wayne and Whiteley townships, and Gerald Matthews and Francis Fox, who represent Waynesburg Borough.

Lots will be cast to determine which of the three areas will have one four-year term and one two-year term.

The three directors whose terms run for two more years are Lila Ayersman, Franklin and Washington townships; Joanne Brookover, Perry, Wayne and Whiteley townships, and Gary White, Waynesburg Borough.

JEFFERSON-MORGAN

The terms of six directors — Stanley Fowler, Paul D'Antonio, Robert Goslin, Louis Baniecki, Robert Harry and Floyd Haney — are expiring this year. Charles Ferencak, Dr. Stanley E.L. Falor and Karen Sabo will remain in office for two more years.

In the election, five directors will be elected to four-year terms and one to a two-year term, with lots to be cast to determine whose seat will be the two-year term.

SOUTHEASTERN GREENE

The Southeastern Greene District, which also elects its directors on an at-large basis rather than by regions, will also elect six directors this year, one of them to a two-year term.

Terms expiring are those of David Bierer, Emil Enoff, Floyd Hornick, James Minor, John Mason and Robert Watson. The terms of Adam Novak, Gary Mosier and Mark Brozik run for another two years.

WEST GREENE

In the West Greene District, where directors are also elected by region, there will be seven directors elected this year — six because of rotation and one because of an appointment. Five will be elected to four-year terms and two to two-year terms.

One of the two-year terms will be in the region made up of Gray, Jackson and Richhill townships, where the terms of Lawrence Headlee, James Helphenstine and John Berdine expire. The other two-year term will be determined by lot.

In the area comprising Center and Morris Townships, the terms of William Ziefel and Frank Johnston expire, with Ann Bower remaining on the board. In the area made up of Aleppo, Freeport, Gilmore and Springhill townships, terms expiring are those of Rick Barnhart and Thomas Braddock. Roy Barnhart remains on the board.

Franklin Twp. Awards Bids

WAYNESBURG — Franklin Township Supervisors, in a brief meeting Monday afternoon, awarded bids to furnish bonds for the township secretary and treasurer, merged two fire hydrant districts and appointed an auditor for the earned income tax.

Huffman Insurance was selected to furnish a $100,000 bond for the treasurer and a $25,000 bond for the secretary at a yearly premium of $220. Other bidders were Baily Insurance at $249 and Morris Agency, $296.

The supervisors decided to merge the Woodland Estates fire hydrant district with the Bonar district. It was noted there are only two hydrants in the Woodland Estates district and keeping a separate account was unnecessary.

Milnovich & Co. of Waynesburg was hired to audit the earned income tax account which is collected by Central Tax Bureau.

Fact and Folklore John O'Hara

Last Sunday, millions of Americans, either in person or by way of the modern Ailadin's Lamp of television, focused untold numbers of hours of attention on playoff games for the professional football league championship. And yet much of it will be forgotten by many people long before the winter season has thawed into spring.

The intensity of interest in a sport which has rich rewards for those skilled in competitive sports is exceeded or equaled only by the unit which has always crystallized the populace in time of war, when the lives of its youth and the prosperity of its adults are threatened by a potential invader.

Tabulation of the estimated number of viewers via the tube is regarded by sociologists as a reliable indicator of the unities which still exists in one of the world's largest nations, which has grown from a vigorous rootstock of 13 original colonies stretched tightly along the Atlantic Ocean to reach across two mountain ranges and the wide plains of the midwest to reach its western boundary at the Pacific Ocean.

Pondering on the intensity which people focus on the efforts of groups of 11 men to carry the inflated bladder of a dead pig from one end of a hundred yards of "bottom ground" to the other, some skeptics might have shaken their heads and walked on by the jammed stadiums where the play-off games were in progress.

A visitor from some other planet might receive the mistaken idea that the entire populace was hanging on each word which fell from the excited narrator's voice. And it did seem that the entire United States was listening to and identifying with every part of the performance as they watched the marvelous skills relayed by the media of television.

But in the western end of Greene County, there was a small group of outdoor enthusiasts who were strolling at a deliberate gait in the bright sunshine and the crisp air of early winter along the historic Warrior Trail. It traces a small segment of one of many such trails used by Indians in their migrations, hunting trips and war activities.

Now in a more peaceful era, the footpath known as the Warrior Trail is a pathway to peace and beauty — an escape hatch from the intensities of modern urban life, and play-off games for the championship of a game known as football.

Football filberts would have thought them crazy to desert the tube for a three or four hour stroll in the bright and invigorating weather of last Sunday, but they doubtless felt that anyone who stayed indoors on a day such as we had was acting irrationally.

Among those making the trek on the well-maintained trail was Neri Hart, an 87-year-old farm dweller from the Carmichaels area who has tramped the entire distance over the trail on other occasions. Also in the party was former district attorney W. Bertram Waychoff, grandson of Andrew J. Waychoff Sr., one of the county's most noted historians. With them were Robert Carnets, Marie Taylor, Luci Pitcock, Lucille Phillips, Jean Powell and Earl and Sally Acheson, who came from Avella to make the hike.

They are inheritors of the long tradition of attention to the outdoors and to local history which has been part of Greene County for many years. Not only did they enjoy themselves, but they didn't have to sit through the disappointment of seeing the Pittsburgh Steelers self-destruct, as we more sedentary mortals did.

Duplicate Tax Collectors Headache For Taxpayers

While it might not be quite as painful as paying taxes, filling out the returns which go with paying taxes has to rank high on most people's list of personal irritations.

Only a masochist, or maybe a certified public accountant, could look forward to wading through the obscurities of a complicated tax form.

Residents and employers in Carmichaels Borough probably didn't cheer therefore when the Carmichaels Area School District decided to change the firm it employs to collect its earned income tax, while the borough itself elected to stick with the former collector.

It means that employers will have to make returns on the taxes it withholds from employees to two companies, while residents will have to file annual returns to the same two companies.

The situation arose when the school board decided to switch from the Central Tax Bureau, which has always collected all of the earned income taxes levied by Greene County municipalities. It gave its contract for the coming year to Pennsylvania Municipal Services, which is making a play for the Greene County business.

Cumberland Township, which also shares revenue from the earned income tax with the school district, decided to go along with the school board's decision and also hired PMS. The supervisors did so primarily to avoid the confusion of having two collectors working in the township, thus avoiding the situation which has arisen in the borough.

The one percent earned income tax is almost always shared between a school district and the municipalities which make up the district.

If any other school district is contemplating such a change, it should first make sure that its component municipalities would be willing to hire the same company.

Taxpayers would be sure to appreciate it.

Retired YDC Officer Will Be Candidate

WAYNESBURG — "I always felt I would like to serve as a county commissioner and now that I am retired I'm in a position to run for the office," Marian C. Rush of Waynesburg said Tuesday.

She will be a candidate in the May 17 primary election for one of the two Democratic nominations for the position.

Mrs. Rush, who is 67, retired in January of last year after working for 20 years at the Waynesburg Youth Development Center, where she was an administrative officer and purchasing agent. She is a member of the Greene County Planning Commission, being the only woman ever to serve on the commission.

"I feel my work for the state gives me a good background for the office," she said. "I have handled contracts and bids and am familiar with the state budgeting process. I was also in charge of all warehousing at the YDC."

Prior to joining the YDC staff, she was office manager at the Bischoff Creamery in Waynesburg.

Mrs. Rush, who resides at 253 Second Avenue, is a member of the First Baptist Church of Waynesburg, where she is chairman of both the board of deaconesses and the pulpit committee. She is currently serving her third term on the board of deaconesses and is also a member of the finance and pastoral relations committee.

She has been active for many years in the Daughters of America and has held all offices in Wayne

She is also a member of Lady Greene Rebekah Lodge 385 at Waynesburg and is currently serving as district deputy for Greene County.

Mrs. Rush is the widow of Ernest J. Rush. She has a daughter, Barbara Policz of Waynesburg and three sons, Ernest Rush Jr. of Venetia and James A., and Charles (Buck) Rush, both of Waynesburg. She has 21 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Former County Treasurer Seeks Commissioner's Post

WAYNESBURG — Former county treasurer T. William Barnes announced Saturday that he is a candidate for Greene County commissioner.

He will seek one of the two Democratic nominations in the May 17 primary.

Barnes, who has been active in Democratic politics in the county for many years, said that he decided to run for commissioner primarily because he feels "the cost of county government is getting out of hand."

"As county treasurer, I had an opportunity to examine many county budgets and I feel there should have been a way to avoid the four-mill tax increase in county taxes which we are getting this year."

Barnes served three terms as county treasurer, holding the office from 1968 through 1979. He is 57 and a resident of Waynesburg

Until recently, it has been mild but winter struck this week finally.

Local residents were disappointed when the Pittsburgh Steelers lost to San Diego last Sunday but for the most part are already looking ahead to next year and a fifth Super Bowl title.

Regardless of the weather, the work of building a new railroad to the Enon coal mine continues. A railbed is plainly visible from Waynesburg to Sycamore.

Looks like the spring election will be one of the most active in years especially with all the commissioner candidates announcing. Most recent entries include former county treasurer Bill Barnes, Mrs. Marian Rush, a former purchasing agent at YDC; Lloyd Rohanna, a former UMW of-

District Files Suit

WAYNESBURG — The South-eastern Greene School District has filed suit in Greene County Court to seek payment for mine subsidence damage at Mapletown High School.

The action was instituted Wednesday against Duquesne Light Co., asking for compensation "in excess of $10,000."

According to the complaint, Duquesne Light mined Sewickley coal from under the building starting in 1945, and Pittsburgh coal starting in 1975. Resultant ground subsidence, it states, has damaged the gymnasium walls, both inside and outside; caused stairwells to separate from walls, and has caused the ceiling of the lower locker room to separate from the walls.

Duquesne Light, the complaint states, has refused to acknowledge liability for the damage.

Three Brothers Robbed

WAYNESBURG — Three brothers were robbed at gunpoint by two men who broke into their home near Rogersville Sunday evening.

State police said an undetermined amount of money was taken from James Fields, 64; Arthur Fields, 61, and Donald Fields, 52. Their two sisters, Sarabelle and Virginia, who also were in the house, were not robbed. No one was injured.

The family lives in a farmhouse in a fairly remote section of Center Township, two miles south of Rogersville. Police said the two white males entered the house at 5:30 p.m. Sunday and forced the brothers to give them all of their money. They cut the telephone line before they left.

The robbery was reported Monday morning when Donald Fields walked to Rogersville and asked that police be called.

Mosely Candidate For Commissioner

WAYNESBURG — Kelce Mosley Jr. of Waynesburg has announced his candidacy for Greene County commissioner.

A Waynesburg businessman for the past 30 years, he owns M&G Television at 66 East High Street and Mosley's Trailer Park.

He is a veteran of World War II, a member of the American Legion and does some farming.

Mosley was one of the original organizers of the Concerned Citizens for Responsive Government and is presently serving as vice president of that organization.

In announcing his candidacy, Mosley said he is concerned about the more than 50 percent raise in taxes during the past three years. He also questioned why surrounding counties have held the line on taxes and in some cases have had a surplus.

"Our county has a $470,000 deficit and county employees have not received a raise, (while) other counties have granted pay raises," Mosley said. "It's poor management," he said.

WILLIAM C. HANEY AND WHITNEY ANN FRANCIS

Ingold has set his goals to own his own dairy business. In addition to some beef cattle, Greg has 25 dairy heifers and is an official artificial inseminator for cattle in Greene County. In addition, he works night for a large grocery store and on a partial basis for another dairy farmer.

He was also a member of the Pennsylvania FFA livestock judging team that received a Silver Award in poultry judging in 1981 and dairy judging in 1982 during the National Contests held in Kansas City, Kan.

In production agriculture, he began raising hogs on his home farm as a freshman, changing to beef and dairy cattle his junior year.

Wash High Back On Track

By Denise Bachman, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — Two days before the match, the outcome had no bearing on either team's season. But after Chartiers-Houston High School's wrestling team dealt Washington a devastating 43-3 loss Friday night, Saturday's exhibition match between the Little Presidents and Waynesburg took on added importance.

Wash High head coach Bill Solominsky made no secret of that, plotting his strategy throughout the match very carefully even though there was neither a section title nor a WPIAL championship on the line.

And it paid off as Wash High held off the Red Raiders 30-27 in a preliminary match to the University of Pittsburgh-Missouri match.

"After last night (Friday), it became important for us to win," said Solominsky, who prior to Friday's defeat was treating the Waynesburg match no different from any other exhibition match. "We had to get the right mental attitude and get our confidence back."

"We're not that bad of a team. It was just one of those things that happen."

Chartiers-Houston's victory had a direct effect on the Red Raiders, too, for this year they are in the same section (7-AAA) as the Bucs.

"I still feel this (match) is important if we're going to do any good in Triple-A," Waynesburg head coach Joe Ayersman said. "Chartiers-Houston beat Washington 43-3, so..."

Ayersman failed to finish the statement, but the implications were clear. After all, this was the fifth time in three years the Little Presidents have handled Waynesburg, twice before in section competition and twice in the WPIAL team championships.

The Little Presidents (5-2 overall) took a quick 6-0 lead when Jim Hugus won by forfeit at 98 pounds. But Waynesburg (5-1 overall) knotted the score after Jeff Lapping (105) recorded a pin 54 seconds into the bout over Rod Fuqua.

Mike D'Alessandro (112) gave Wash High a little more breathing room, however, notching a fall over Greg Eddy at 3:31. But Jim Hughes (119) and John Throckmorton (126) tied the score once again for Waynesburg, taking a 4-2 decision over Terry Garrison and a 9-2 win over Randy Agnew, respectively.

But that was the closest the Red Raiders came as Jeff Frazier (138),

Waynesburg In Easy Romp

By Bob Grove, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — The rap against teams like Alderson-Broadus, which brought a 91.7 points-per-game scoring average here Thursday night, is that they only play basketball at one end of the floor. It's a rap the Battlers, at least, deserve.

Waynesburg College breezed past Alderson-Broadus and its non-existent defense, 100-80, to make Rudy Marisa the winningest coach in the school's history. The victory was Marisa's 209th at Waynesburg, pushing him past Frank Wolfe to the top of the Yellow Jacket record book.

"They make it look like they're playing defense, but after you move the ball a few times they fall right out of it," said Waynesburg junior center Mark Doppelheuer, who pulled down a game-high 17 rebounds and scored eight points. "All they do is try to outscore you — that's their whole game plan. They don't worry about defense."

Battlers' coach Dave Barksdale, who watched his team fall to 2-8 on the season, is worried about something. He refused comment on the game.

The Yellow Jackets (6-2), led by junior guard Ray Natili's 23 points, mixed their productive fast breaks with offensive patience to unnerve Alderson-Broadus.

"I didn't ask for the ultimate in patience, but I told them we had to have some to let them (the Battlers) break down," Marisa said. "We were very patient considering we thought we could really take it to their defense. Their strategy is clearly to outshoot you... their defense breaks down after a few passes."

The Yellow Jackets took their biggest lead of the first half in its closing seconds. After establishing an eight-point lead with just more than nine minutes remaining, Waynesburg scored seven points in the final 23 seconds of the half to take a 46-32 halftime lead.

Senior forward Tim Walker scored 13 points, Natili 11 and sophomore forward Paul Stanley 10 in the game's opening 20 minutes.

"I told our guys at halftime that maybe they (Alderson-Broadus) were lulled into that defensive passiveness by our patience," Marisa said. "The advice we were getting was, 'Don't even take the eight-foot jumpers — take the layups.' But we figured they would break down."

The Yellow Jackets took whatever they wanted. Natili added 12 more points — eight from the foul line — in the second half while Stanley chipped in 11 to help Waynesburg establish a 24-point lead, 71-47.

Battlers' guard Leon Childs led all scorers with 29 points, but the Yellow Jackets held high-scoring forward Willie Stewart to just 12 points. Forward Bruce Smith pitched in 18 points for Alderson-Broadus, which produced its fourth-lowest point total of the season.

Stanley finished the game with 21 points while Walker scored 21 points and grabbed 16 rebounds. Sophomore guard Craig Harris scored 13 points, nine in the second half.

Rockets 32, Eagles 22

JEFFERSON — Jefferson-Morgan High School defeated Avella 32-22 in an exhibition wrestling match here Friday night.

The Rockets started right at the top with John Jenko (98) scoring a pin and raising his record to 11-0. Junior varsity wrestler Del Niswarner filled in nicely at the 105 spot scoring a 5-2 decision. Dan Basinger (112) scored a 5-2 decision while Lee Nelson (119) and Rich Harris of Avella battled to a 2-2 tie.

Scoring falls for the Rockets were Alan Yanek (126) and heavyweight Clay Behm, who raises his overall record to 10-0. Dave Gambel (132) and Brian Virgin (167) added decision wins.

The Eagles received a fall from Dave Simonelli (138) while Randy Loughry (145) won by default. Mark Taggart (155) and Mike Zimm (185) added decision victories.

Jeff-Morgan is now 7-1 while Avella falls to 3-5.

Along with his 30 points, Costantino pulled down 16 rebounds as Charleroi raised its section record to 1-2 and overall record to 9-6. Waynesburg is 0-4 in the section and 6-8 overall.

lead and could come no closer than two points very early in the game.

A sensational, 42-point effort by Randy Wade, who made 17 baskets and all of his eight free throws, sparked the Panthers.

Winning A Way Of Life For Rudy Marisa

"You wonder about what other things you are capable of doing. You wonder if you will miss it. And you wonder how long it will take for any of your accomplishments to be forgotten."

—Rudy Marisa

By Bob Grove, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — Like most of us, Waynesburg College basketball

Observer-Reporter

Being inquisitive has substantially furthered Rudy Marisa's college coaching career. . .

Gym gave Marisa his 209th triumph at Waynesburg and made him the winningest coach in the school's history.

It took him less than 14 seasons to erase a mark set over 17 seasons by Frank Wolfe. Neither is Wolfe forgotten.

"My first interview in the athletic director's office, I was aware of a big photograph of Frank Wolfe and I asked who he was," Marisa remembers. "At that moment, some 14 years ago, I became aware that he had been important in the history of Waynesburg College. Since then, it has been called to my attention that he was somebody that was pretty well admired by players, fans and historians. That he demanded a lot seems to be the consistent description I get of him. That's said of most coaches who succeed."

And so it will be said of Rudy Marisa.

Under him, the Yellow Jackets have won 209 of 320 games. They have established themselves as perennial contenders in NAIA District 18, coming within four victories of a national title in 1981.

But as Marisa remembers, Waynesburg wasn't always so competitive.

"The program was as sad as history said it was. They won four games a year over 19 years," he said. "I personally counted 25 people in the stands during one ballgame against Frostburg. Nobody cared about it — it was drab and disinteresting as far as the spectators were concerned."

"The players had no commitment and thought I was unreal in my expectations. As a result, six lettermen from the year before decided not to play for the new coach. That's bad enough."

When he was named the Yellow Jackets' coach Thursday, April 17, 1969, Marisa was unassuming.

"I appreciated it first and foremost as a job that would help me feed my family," he says. "There were no glamour attachments; no delusions of grandeur. I was just happy to have a salary. I was very confident in myself. Frankly, I realize 14 years later that there was a lot I was still learning. It would cover the broad spectrum of strategic things... each win and each loss left me with some form of education.

"I've learned from everyone I've ever come into contact with. As a young man, I was all eyes and ears. I've learned from assistant coaches, players and opponents. I never, ever felt too proud to learn from somebody else. I welcomed the opportunity to learn what they know."

And he learned well. Marisa became a successful coach without ever having dreamed of it. His dreams, he says, "stopped before that."

"I got a certain amount of satisfaction from the very first time the basketball went through the hoop. Believe it or not, I can still remember that — it happened in a homeroom game back in eighth grade. I said, 'Gee, that's a pretty good feeling. It's like hitting a home run.'"

"I was discouraged by my parents... the amount of time I spent with the basketball," he said. "Wasn't I wasting my time, they asked. I made my own set of dreams to get to Penn State and play. I did it on determination and drive, like most kids say they want to or are going to. Only I was one that did."

Marisa played on two NCAA tournament teams at Penn State in 1954 and 1955 after graduating from Beth-Center High School in 1952. He had, in effect, hit a grand slam.

"They were drives that were derived growing up," Marisa said of the things that took him to State College. "I could be typified as the boy from the other side of the tracks who didn't have very much and who had to scrap to get everything. I had no business playing major college basketball — I didn't have that much talent. A trainer at Penn State said I was the least-talented athlete ever to go to Penn State and play. But I outworked the city boys."

"In my heart, I felt I didn't have a lot. I got pushed around a little bit. But I had some innate drives and determinations. But that's where my dreams ended. As far as coaching, things just sort of developed. I never said, 'I want to break this record or go here or do that.'

... which began back in April of 1969.

"Because it appeared to be inevitable going into this season, needing only five wins, I didn't really have to think about it very much," he said of Wolfe's record. "However, it's like any record. I'm just glad that it finally took place. Let's get it out of the way and concentrate on the day-to-day routine."

The day-to-day routine, the sound of the whistle in a nearly-empty gym, the sound of the basketball on hardwood — these are the things Marisa knows best. They have molded him into a dreamer, an athlete, and now a philosopher.

"Philosophy is everything a person feels, does or says. It's every facet of him; that's his being," he says. "It's not just a spoken word. This sounds like so much rhetoric, but I won't go along with a boy at all, I won't work with him, if he's not basically a good person. He has to be a reasonably sincere and caring person."

"You start with that and hope he ends up being a successful man in life. Basketball is just the interlude in between this caring, sincere person and the end result, where he is a successful man. If you have that first part, if you end up with that third part, in between is usually a successful athlete."

Rudy Marisa should know. He's been all three.

Hydroelectric Plant Study

GREENSBORO — The possibility that a hydroelectric plant will be constructed on the Monongahela River, near Lock and Dam 7 at Greensboro, has been raised by the filing of an application for a study permit.

Energenics Systems Inc. of Washington, D.C. has filed for a preliminary permit to study factors involved in building a plant containing two generating units with a total capacity of 13.5 megawatts.

George Cingle, chief of the planning branch of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers office in Pittsburgh, said Energenics lists the West Penn Power Co. as its most likely customer, although Duquesne Light would be another possibility. He said the plant would generate a relatively small amount of power compared to West Penn's existing steam/electric generators.

Waynesburg Chamber Elects 6 Members

WAYNESBURG — Despite major budget cuts and an outlook for continuing adverse economic conditions, George K. Stennett, executive director of Greene County Industrial Developments Inc. (GCID), predicted a not too bleak development picture for Greene County in 1983.

Stennett was guest speaker Wednesday for a luncheon meeting of the Greater Waynesburg Area Chamber of Commerce which included the election of six members to the chamber's 15-member board of directors.

Five of those elected to three-year terms as directors were to fill expiring terms while the sixth was to fill a vacancy created by a resignation. Elected to full terms were Randy Bittner, Gallatin National Bank; Gordon Curry, Mid-Penn Telephone Corp.; Betty Long, Greene County Memorial Hospital; Joe Ottoviani, Waynesburg Branch of the First National Bank and Trust Co. of Washington; Jack Smith, Morris Insurance Agency. John Loeper, WANB Radio, was elected to a vacancy created by the resignation of Ron Fox, Fox Auto Inc.

Directors whose terms expired were John Barna, Barna Furniture and Appliance; Frank Gressly, Greene County Vocational-Technical School; Ryan Hartley, Gallatin National Bank; Rebecca Smitley, Rebecca Wilson School of Dance; and Pat Wachter, former Garden Spot.

Other directors are Teresa Ficara, McDonalds Restaurant; Larry McCollum, Heritage Realty; Peter Rogers, Democrat Messenger; and Lavina Pennington, Main Street Gallery.

Officers for 1983 will be elected during a board of directors meeting to be held Wednesday, Jan. 26. Current officers are Walter Christie, president, Love's

Interior Decoration; John Mariner, vice president, First Federal Savings and Loan Association; Maria Tedrow, secretary, Waynesburg Branch of First National Bank and Trust Co.; and Dana Filer, treasurer, Office of Employment Security.

In other business the chamber members took no immediate action on an offer from The Committee of 5,000, a division of the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce to hold a seminar concerning workers compensation reform. Barbara Loeper, the chamber's executive director, said the seminar would be similar to an unemployment compensation seminar sponsored early by the chamber.

Ceremony Marks George Street

WAYNESBURG — Franklin Township Supervisors will formally recognize Bill George Street at a ceremony to be held Saturday at 1:15 p.m. near the site of the late football star's boyhood home.

Signs will be placed at each end of the street, located between Route 188, where the George family operated a grocery store for many years, and the traffic island along Route 19.

Special guests at the ceremony will include Mary George and Nick George, sister and brother of the former linebacker for the Chicago Bears and Los Angeles Rams who died in an auto accident near Chicago last fall.

Also on hand will be George's son, Leo, who remains associated with his father's business in Illinois.

Local Man Hunts Only With Camera

WAYNESBURG — Donald J. Titus of 49 Sayers Avenue, Waynesburg, has his picture in every post office across the United States.

He is not on the FBI wanted list. Actually, it's not even a picture of him but of a ruffed grouse.

Titus' picture of the elusive state bird was selected for the 60-page "Birds and Flowers of the Fifty States." The publication includes stamps commemorating all 50 states and sells for $17 at post offices.

The official bird and flower for each state is presented in color and the ruffed grouse picture is one taken by Titus in Greene County several months ago. Although it is not the favorite of the many pictures he sent for consideration, Titus can be satisfied in knowing his drumming grouse will be seen by thousands of citizens across the nation.

There was a time several years ago when Titus would hunt grouse with a gun but there came a time when he could no longer kill the beautiful bird. He still hunts the grouse but he uses a camera with a 400 millimeter lens.

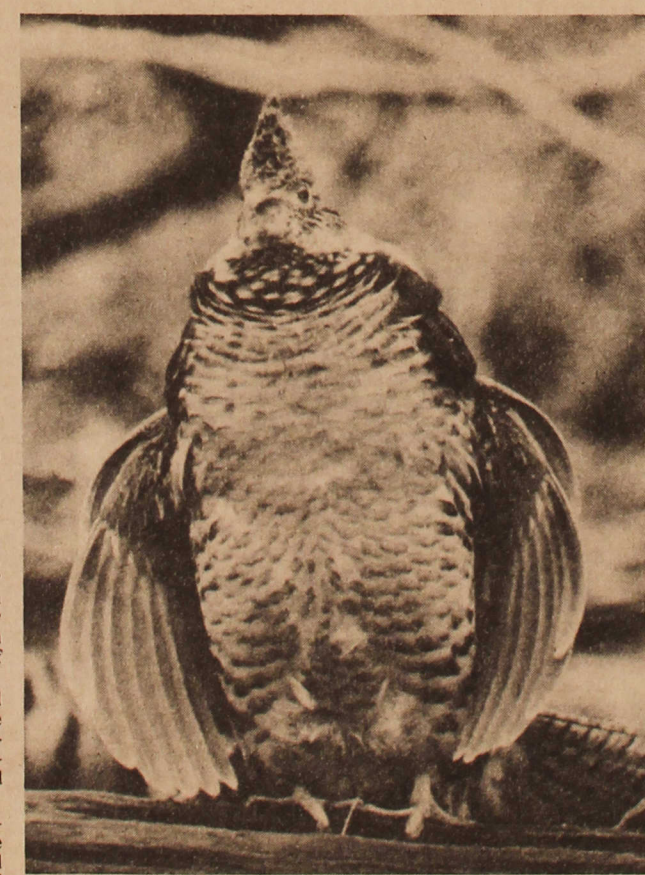

His pictures of the state bird have graced several national publications, including the cover of "Orvis" a hunting equipment catalog out of Vermont. He has spent countless hours in a blind waiting for just the right instant to snap the shutter of his inexpensive Olympia camera.

Although the grouse is his favorite subject, he has had pictures of ducks, chipmunks and turkeys published in national publications. Other pictures, of a prize-winning variety but never submitted for publication, include an albino deer, a horned owl, four deer grazing and deer standing in front of a setting sun would make the heart of any outdoorsman skip a beat.

His pictures have been published in Gray's Sporting Journal on more than one occasion, the National Wildlife Federation's publication of "Gardening with Wildlife" and Upland Birds.

When asked about "people" pictures, Titus revealed his one picture of a human — it was that of a local businessman that combined light and shadow in a portrait that rivals any studio work.

In prior years, Titus was a constant winner in the annual Pittsburgh Press Roto contest but he has not submitted any pictures to the contest lately. His work has been exhibited at Waynesburg College and during a meeting of a local ladies group but he shuns publicity and has no commercial interests when it comes to his photos.

This picture taken by Don Titus of Waynesburg was chosen for publication in the U.S. Postal Service book recently released. The official flower and bird for each of the 50 states are included.

A retired agent for Blue Cross, he has found more time to pursue his "game" in the wooded areas of Greene County and keeps adding to his work of wildlife artistry.
