Sewer Tap-In Issue Pressed

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Her house has no inside plumbing or electricity. She uses gas for light and heating, gets her water from a well, and has an outside toilet.

And yet Margaret Galloway faces arrest for failure to comply with a Franklin Township ordinance which requires all residents within reach of the new township sewer system to connect to it.

"Under the circumstances, I don't think what they are doing is right," one of her neighbors, Velda Prinkey, said.

"They" is the Franklin Township Sewer Authority, which says it is happening than do the neighbors.

"It's a very difficult situation," authority solicitor William Hook said. "The law does not permit selective enforcement and we've had complaints from people have been forced to comply about those who haven't. Members of the authority hope this will help the people who are interested in her to get her into public housing."

Local public housing officials say, however, that she is not eligible for housing under their rules, and even if she were she would be in a long waiting line.

George Scott, authority enforcement officer, confirmed that he filed charges against Mrs. Galloway and two other residents who are in similar circumstances before Magistrate Ruth Hughes. They were sent notices that they had 10 days in which to apply for a hearing and post bond, or to pay the fine of $150 prescribed by the ordinance. Failure to comply, they were told, would result in a warrant being issued for their arrest.

Mrs. Galloway did not respond and her 10 days were up Thursday. If the situation does not change, Magistrate Hughes said, the warrant will be issued. She conceded it could subject the defendant to possible jailing.

Mrs. Galloway's problem came to light this week when her neighbors became concerned about her whereabouts when she was not seen in or about her house in the Pickensville area just south of Waynesburg.

Genevieve Morrow, one of the county auditors, lives nearby.

"I made an appointment for her to see a Legal Aid attorney on Wednesday of last week. She kept the appointment but that was the last time she was seen," Mrs. Morrow said.

The neighbors, finding the house locked, feared that something had happened and on Monday called state police. It was finally determined through a member of her family that she had gone to visit a daughter in the state of Maine. When contacted Tuesday night, the daughter said her mother had left and planned to be back in Waynesburg by the end of the week.

Both Mrs. Morrow and Mrs. Prinkey said they felt that Mrs. Galloway, who is 59, had left town because of her problem with the sewage authority.

"She lives alone and is on assistance and just doesn't have the money to do what the authority wants her to do," Mrs. Morrow said. "I know she feels she is being harrassed and was afraid she would have to go to jail."

Mrs. Prinkey said she and other neighbors feel the same way, noting that the house in which she lives was owned by Mrs. Galloway's parents, the late William and Edith Thomas.

"She's been there a long time, and even though the house has never been modernized I don't know if she would want to move," she said. "Unfortunately, she is a person who is completely indigent."

The information against her, in fact, was made out against Ethel Thomas, in care of Margaret Galloway. George Scott said that was because the house was still in the name of her mother's estate, but that Mrs. Galloway, as occupant would be responsible for carrying out obligations prescribed by the ordinance.

While no estimate of cost has been made, compliance would require complete plumbing of the house, installation of an inside bathroom and connection to the sewer line, all of which would have to be done at Mrs. Galloway's expense. On top of that, she would be subject to the $750 tap-in fee when the line was connected to the house.

The authority has already placed a $2,300 lien against the property because Mrs. Galloway did not pay the front-foot assessment when the sewer main was laid.

Scott said that in some cases where a house was plumbed, the authority itself made the sewer connection and liened the property for the cost and the tap-in fee.

"That isn't possible here because the authority cannot install the necessary plumbing and facilities inside the house," he said. "We didn't want to file the charge, but we had no choice since we have to treat everyone the same under the ordinance."

Scott said that one of the other persons who was charged has already made arrangements to comply with the ordinance. The third involves another house with no running water which is occupied by a young man, Michael Farabee, who faces the same penalties as Mrs. Galloway.

Deborah Gilbert, an attorney with the Southwestern Pennsylvania Legal Aid Society, said she is aware of Mrs. Galloway's problem and has been trying to help her. She questions the legality of bringing charges against her when the property is still in an estate and she does not hold title to the house.

"She's just a little old lady who never hurt anybody and just wants to be let alone to live as she has been. She is very poor. There should be some provision in the township ordinance for people like her," she said.

She is not old enough, however, to qualify for admission to public housing.

Louis DeMola, director of the Greene County Housing Authority, said she would have to be 62 to qualify for housing for the elderly. Since she lives alone, she can't qualify for family housing.

The lawsuit also claims that Dunkard Mining owes Chess $530,000 under terms of an agreement dating back to Dec. 29, 1975, when Chess agreed to sell certain coal reserves, coal washing and loading equipment and mining equipment to Dunkard Mining for $1,837,330. The agreement was secured by a promissory note which was payable on Jan. 2, 1977.

Under terms of the agreement, it states, Chess was to be responsible for completing and equipping a washer plant at his expense, and if he failed to do so Dunkard was to be entitled to deduct $500,000 and a portion of interest charges from the purchase price.

Chess claims that he did complete the plant, but that Dunkard still deducted $500,000 in principal and $30,000 in interest from the payment.

The plaintiffs are asking the court to order Dunkard Mining to make a complete accounting for all coal mined since March 19, 1982, and to order payment of the $530,000 still due under the purchase agreement.

'82 Subdivision Starts Below Norm In County

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Presentation of a report on 1982 activities highlighted a meeting Monday night of the Greene County Planning Commission.

The report, prepared by County Planner Valerie Cole and Assistant Planner Linda A. Kolat, indicates that while general economic conditions slowed down the development of new housing subdivisions, other types of development throughout the county continued at a pace comparable to that of previous years.

Michael J. Lucas Jr. of Carmichaels was introduced as a new member of the board. He was appointed recently by the county commissioners to fill the vacancy created by the death of Claude Smith of Carmichaels.

The board discussed ways to overcome cuts in the $36,000 budget for 1983, cuts which were imposed by the county commissioners as part of an overall austerity program. Most concern was expressed over a cut in the travel allowance, which staff members believe will reduce their effectiveness in carrying out planning commission business. Panel President Robert Lang said he will contact the commissioners about the possibility of having the agency retain the small amount of fees it collects each year for processing applications under the subdivision regulations, since much of the travel involves visiting development sites.

The board voted to continue holding its regular meetings at 7:30 p.m. on the fourth Monday of each month. Meetings are held in the county commissioners' meeting room in the New County Office Building.

In their report on activities of the past year, Mrs. Cole and Miss Kolat said just three residential subdivisions, containing a total of 11 lots, were begun during the year, a figure well below the norm for recent years. The only commercial subdivision presented under the county subdivision was a four-lot addition to the Greene Plaza shopping center in Franklin Township.

At the same time, however, there were eight land development projects submitted for review under the county subdivision and land development ordinance, which was an increase over the preceding year.

They included the 76-unit Autumn Ridge townhouse complex in Cumberland Township, plans for two fast-food restaurants and two branch banks, an addition to Greene County Memorial Hospital, a new nursing home in Franklin Township and a new church in Franklin Township.

In addition, the number of "lot splits" requested under the ordinance continued to increase, with 24 being reviewed and approved.

Continued activity in the field of public services also was experienced during the past year, as the planning commission was called upon to provide clearinghouse approvals on several grant applications for expansion of sewerage and water services in the county.

They came from the Carmichaels-Cumberland Joint Sewer Authority for development of a site for a pump station, the Brave Sewer and Water Authority for construction of a small community sewerage system, from the Mt. Morris Water and Sewer Authority for extension of its water lines, and from the Southeast Franklin Water Authority for development of two wells as sources of public water.

The Greene County Department of Parks and Recreation sought grants to correct drainage and erosion problems in community parks in Center, Gilmore, Morris and Richhill townships.

In conjunction with PennDOT, the planning commission identified high volume truck routes in the county as part of a study intended to pinpoint deficient bridges and roadways. The state's 12-year highway plan was revised as it applies to Greene County, and the planning commission was involved in exploring the most feasible way to eliminate the at-grade railroad crossing at the foot of Morgan Street in Waynesburg.

The staff also has been very involved with the Small Communities grant program through assisting a Uniontown consulting firm in its efforts to secure grants for three municipalities in the county. Still pending are a request from Clarksville borough for $623,000 to construct a storm sewer system, sidewalks and curbs and to rehabilitate streets; an application from Franklin Township for $1 million for a storm sewer and street rehabilitation program in West Waynesburg, and an application for $700,000 from Morgan Township for a new sewerage system for the Tpegarden Homes Authority.

West Greene School Addition Dedicated

ROGERSVILLE — Brief ceremonies officially dedicating a $5.2 million addition and renovation project for West Greene High School were held Sunday afternoon.

Ground for the project was broken in April 1981, and construction completed following the start of the 1982-83 school year. The project involved construction of a three-floor wing to the junior-senior high school to create a middle school addition and major renovation of the existing building including a new front entrance and lobby.

The three-floor addition containing 14,000 square feet of space increased the capacity of the building from 650 students to 900 students permitting establishment of the middle school for grades six through eight and conversion of the existing junior-senior high building to a senior high for grades nine through 12.

The first floor of the new building wing houses four additional classrooms and storage areas. The second floor provides expanded science laboratory areas, three regular classrooms, facilities for special education classes, and a completely reconstructed library. The third floor has an additional six classrooms, additional storage areas and student activities room.

Changes allowed by the addition wing and renovation of the existing building included a 3,500-square-foot auxiliary remedial gymnasium with expanded locker rooms and addition storage, redesigned cafeteria, expanded science rooms labs and music room, a students project and teacher planning room, arts and crafts room, and updated office and faculty rooms.

Forgery And Drug Charges Are Filed

WAYNESBURG — A Holbrook man has been arrested by borough police and charged with four counts of forgery and two counts of violating the controlled substance, drug, device and cosmetic act.

Gregory J. Schneider, 29, was lodged in the Greene County Jail in lieu of $20,000 bond following arraignment before Magistrate John Watson.

Police have charged Schneider with having presented two forged prescriptions at two separate drug stores in Waynesburg. He is also charged with attempting to obtain controlled drugs at one store and actually obtaining drugs at another store with a forged prescription.

Although construction did not begin until 1981, some type of construction of renovation project had been talked about for some 10 years.

"A dream begun in 1972 became a reality," acting superintendent Paul Polink told the small crowd gathered outside for the ceremony Sunday afternoon.

Since talk of the project began many years ago, Polink termed it as having been "maligned, stopped, started, and changed," but is now a "dream come true for a courageous and confident community."

Frank Blout, acting high school principal, also had high praise for the community and the new educational facilities saying it will allow the district to meet its goal to "educate to the best of our abilities the students of the West Greene School District."

Also taking part in the program was State Rep. H. William DeWeese who presented a flag to Kelley Yurt, junior class president, and Barry

Watson, senior class president. They then raised the flag in front of the school while senior band member Tim Keenan played "To The Colors."

In his brief remarks, DeWeese termed education as "the keystone to democracy."

The official ribbon cutting was done by class presidents Bryan Somerville, sixth grade; John Guthrie, seventh grade; Tim Crowley, eighth grade; Jerry School ninth grade; and Kathy Burns, tenth grade.

M. B. McMillen, representing West Greene residents, expressed appreciation for having the new facilities for the West Greene District.

Others taking part in the ceremonies were James Bashford, architect; the Rev. Robert E. Borland, of the West Greene United Presbyterian Parish; and Pastor Richard Hartman, of the West Greene Methodist Church.

Following the dedication tours of the building were conducted.

Suit Filed Over Coal Royalties

WAYNESBURG — A dispute between Greene County coal operators over royalties and payment for mining properties is the basis of a lawsuit filed Friday January 21, in Greene County Court.

The action was brought by Raymond N. Chess of Fayette County and Charles L. Cyphert of Monongalia County, W.Va., against Dunkard Mining Co., Dilliner R.D.1.

According to the complaint, the plaintiffs leased tracts of Sewickley

Coal in Dunkard Township to Dunkard Mining on March 29, 1976, with the lease providing a royalty of $1.50 for each ton of coal mined. The defendant, it claims, has refused to make any royalty payments since March 19, 1982, and owes the plaintiffs "at least $78,000."

At the center of the dispute, it states, is a claim by Dunkard Mining that Chess and Cyphert are responsible for the $1 per ton federal excise tax on coal sold by Dunkard, and for acres of land in connection with operation of the Blacksville mine.

The plaintiffs claim they were assured by the company land agent that no equipment would be located on the property, and that the "related facilities" referred to in the $1,000 agreement would be no more than a fence around the bore hole.

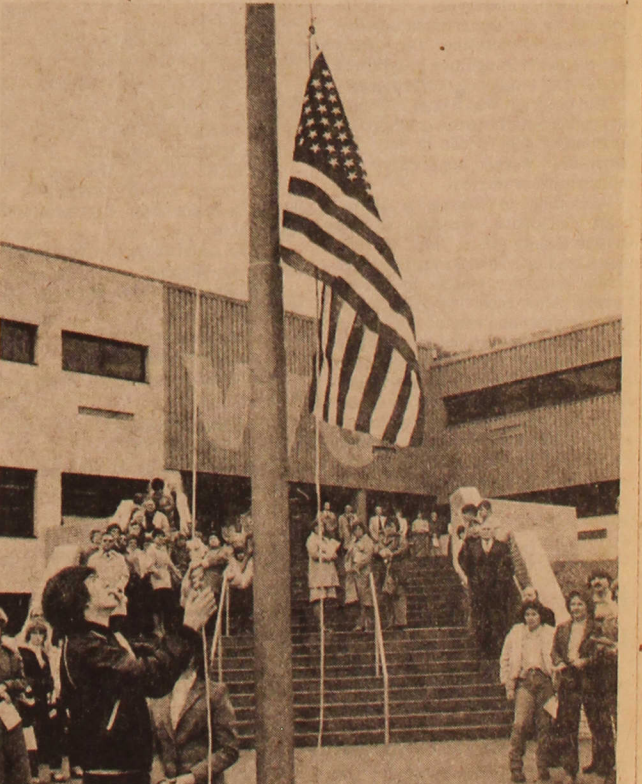

Since then, they state, Consolidation has installed engines, a pump, propane tank and other equipment at the site to stimulate the flow of gas from the coal mine.

Suit Filed Against Consolidation Coal

WAYNESBURG — A Gilmore Township couple have asked the Greene County Court to order Consolidation Coal Co. to remove mine ventilation equipment it has placed on their property.

The equity action was filed Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Jones Jr. of New Freeport R.D.1.

The complaint states that on Nov. 12, 1980, the plaintiffs signed an agreement to permit the coal company to drill a methane ventilation drainage bore hole on their three

Farewell To Church Pastor

CAMICHAELS — Over 200 people attended a farewell party last Saturday night at the Greene Valley Presbyterian Church for the Rev. Harold O. Kelley, who will be leaving after 18 years service as the church pastor, and his family.

Following a covered-dish dinner, the Kelley family was presented a combination refrigerator-freezer, money and other gifts during a program held in the sanctuary. Robert Stuck served as master of ceremonies.

The "surprise party" began with a solo by Kelley, who was accompanied by Betty Mae Waggett on the piano.

Church members presented an anthology flannel board, covering the 18 years in which Kelley served the local church. Several notable events were depicted, including the merger of five separate churches in the area; the purchase of a farm by the Kelleys and the many programs held there; and the formation of a teen choir which made a recording and toured five states and Canada and made numerous other appearances.

Six former members of the choir performed under Kelley's direction.

The Rev. Bernard Shuey spoke on Kelley's association with the Carmichaels Ministerium and how they had exchanged the presidency of the group for the past 12 years.

Inez Hall reflected on the "calling program" directed by Kelley and Connie Hall, a missionary member, and told how Kelley had inspired her to go first to the mission field in France and later to Sudan and Ethiopia.

Several of the small children sang, "Rev. Kelley Had A Farm."

Stuck told of the realization of one of Kelley's dreams — the starting of Westminster Academy, a Christian school, in 1973.

During his tenure at the Carmichaels church, Kelley also started a tape ministry of Sunday morning worship services. Special recording equipment, tapes and tape players were purchased for shut-ins. Also, a special recording room was erected at the rear of the sanctuary. A bus ministry became successful and an education building was constructed a few years ago.

Kelley steered the congregation through the separation from the United Presbyterian Church, the merger with the Reformed Presbyterian Church and this summer, a merger with the Presbyterian Church of America.

Biff Alexander spoke on "the discipleship program," directed by Pastor Kelley. Following remarks of appreciation for the program, Kelley heard one of his favorite hymns, "His Eye Is On The Sparrow," presented by Betty Mae Waggett.

The benediction was given by Shuey.

During the evening, Connie Hall took pictures to be placed in a scrapbook for the Kelley family.

Assistance Office Employee Honored

WAYNESBURG — Ester Kovach, a clerical supervisor II in the Greene County Assistance Office, has been cited by the Department of Public Welfare for outstanding service.

She is one of four county assistance office employees in the state selected by the Department's Office of Income Maintenance Operations Management Recognition program of outstanding employee performance.

The program was begun last year to recognize staff members who do an outstanding job in one of four job categories — worker, supervisory, administrative or clerical.

According to Norma J. Blackhurst, executive director of the Greene County office, "Mrs. Kovach took a leading role in the initial stages of the computer system in Greene County. After receiving video a display terminal and related training in Harrisburg, she worked diligently to design her own video training aids to effectively communicate her knowledge to others. Considered an expert on complicated budgeting and the use of the display terminal, she is often called upon by other counties for her suggestions and assistance."

Mrs. Kovach and the other three award winners will be honored during a February winter management meeting in Harrisburg.

First Aid, CPR Classes Slated

WAYNESBURG — The county Parks & Recreation Department will offer first aid and CPR classes beginning Tuesday, Feb. 1.

Classes will be held on Tuesdays and Fridays for two weeks from 10 a.m. to noon. The classes which are certified by the American Red Cross will be taught by Elizabeth Walker.

To register call 852-1171, extension 278, by Friday, Jan. 28.

Sharing the Abundant Life

There was plenty of gasoline during the blizzard. Yet we couldn't go anywhere. So we made the best of it, and tried to help one another.

Our society is changing today. We are learning to cope. To appreciate what we have in abundance. Make do with what's in short supply. Share!

The message of our churches has not changed. They have always reminded us that life should not be measured in terms of material possessions. Christ in his own way offered men an abundant life.

For the Christian believer and worshiper that abundant life is founded on spiritual conviction and commitment. It includes things that blizzards and gas crunches cannot take away.

Come worship this week and share in the abundant life.

Responsibility Ranks High In Carmichaels Students

CARMICHAELS — Being responsible citizens and demonstrating good health habits are two of the areas in which Carmichaels Area Junior and Senior High School students excel, according to the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

Reports were delivered this fall by a team from Harrisburg and the Intermediate Unit to report the findings of the school assessment program conducted last year in Carmichaels Area schools as part of the state's Educational Quality Assessment Program.

On March 5, eighth and 11th grade students completed questionnaires designed to measure the students' and ultimately the schools' status on the Twelve Goals of Quality Education. These goals were formally adopted as goals for schools in Pennsylvania by the State Board of Education in 1965 and revised in 1975.

These goals endorse the philosophy that a school's purpose goes beyond teaching the basic skills; that the school plays a part in developing the student's attitude toward self, others, the school and learning in general. Furthermore, the school has a responsibility to develop in each student desirable health habits, creativity, an appreciation of the cultural contribution of others, an awareness of the world of work and the ability to cope by being able to identify and solve problems.

Although the results of the elementary schools are based on the replies of fifth graders, they are used to represent the school, not what fifth grade teachers alone have contributed to their development. These students have been in the school for five years, so it is fairer to use the results as an assessment of the school.

All replies by students and teachers are anonymous so that both feel free to answer truthfully on attitudinal questions. Then there is no attempt to please the teacher. Since the purpose of the program is to assess the school, rather than individuals, it is not necessary to know who said what.

Each school in the district receives its own report. There is a great diversity of scores among the schools. Carmichaels with three elementary schools and one junior-senior high school receives five different reports. Each individual elementary school has differing results because of varying conditions in the school and because of different students, parents and teachers.

Each report is lengthy and com-

Dr. McCoy Promoted

BETHESDA, Md. — Dr. James L. McCoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan McCoy of Waynesburg R.D. 2 and an internationally recognized scientist in the field of immunology as it relates to the diagnosis and possible treatment of cancer, has been named director of the Division of Immunology and Cell Biology at Microbiological Associates.

Dr. McCoy, who earned his bachelor's, master's and doctor of philosophy degrees from West Virginia University, formerly headed the Test Management Section of the National Toxicology Program and was responsible for scientific administration of a multi-million dollar program of laboratory testing and monitoring of toxicology and carcinogenesis studies of chemical and environmental agents.

He previously served as an expert consultant at the Laboratory of Immunodiagnosis at the National Cancer Institute, where he performed studies related to developing early diagnostic and prognostic tests for human breast and lung cancer. His studies also included the evaluation of more than 500 cancer patients' immunological status during chemo and immunotherapy.

Tickets are $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students, with children under 4 years old admitted free. Those making reservations are asked to indicate the number of free admissions to be included to assure adequate seating.

plex. Included in the report are five different kinds of information:

- For each of the goals, a comparison of the school scores or all other schools in the state at that level (5, 8, 11).

- An expected score range for each goal based upon an analysis of the resources that particular school has at its disposal.

- The school's relative standing on each of those resources — teachers, students, money, community, home — used to calculate the expected range.

- The number of pupils with a positive attitude in the attitudinal goal areas.

- The number of students scoring high and low in the cognitive or basic skills areas.

The results of the Carmichaels Area Elementary Schools show that students scored in their predicted ranges in most areas. Areas that need to be investigated and improved are different for each school. Although within the predicted range, basic skills and societal responsibility will be studied to see if students can score even higher than predicted. Mathematics scores were generally higher than verbal, reading and writing skills.

In the junior high school, students scored well above the predicted range in societal responsibility, health and safety practices, and appreciating human accomplishments. Areas that are under study are reading, mathematics, knowledge of law and government.

Principals and teachers from each school are meeting to analyze the results and create a plan of action to improve scores.

Fact and Folklore
 John O'Hara

It has been confirmed beyond any doubt that the career of Burt Lancaster, the famous stage and movie star, had its inception in Greene County.

To be more exact, at the Jacktown Fair in Richhill Township in the early 1940's when he appeared as an aerialist in a "grandstand show" between harness races.

It has always been a matter beyond doubt for those who were connected with the fair at that time, but it was confirmed last week at the Pennsylvania State Fair Association's annual mid-winter meeting in Harrisburg.

Riley White, who has managed the harness race program at the Greene County Fair for several years, made it a point to look up Mrs. Peg Kaltanberg, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kline, operated a national booking firm through which performers were booked by an agency from Chicago.

During a long reminiscent chat at the meeting, White asked Mrs. Katalberg about Lancaster's visit to Greene County.

She assured him the story was true, and that Lancaster was booked to appear at the Jacktown Fair by her parents, both of whom are now deceased. They were also booking agents for the Greene County Fair.

Years ago her parents told this writer the same story, and said Lancaster had been eternally grateful for his chance to appear in public. The Klines said Lancaster was under the impression he was in West Virginia, which accounted for a statement he made on a TV show some years later that his first public appearance had been in that state. Mr. and Mrs. Kline said, however, that it definitely was at the Wind Ridge fair.

The Klines, who became nationally famous as agents for fairs and other public events, booked many of the top performers for the outdoor shows they worked. Both their son and daughter were graduated from college at Kent, Ohio. Their son became a businessman in the greater Cleveland area but Peggy and her husband took over the lucrative booking business her parents had created. They always look forward eagerly to bringing their acts into Greene County.

As youngsters they used to watch the shows from the grandstand at the Greene County Fair. Peggy told Mr. White she hopes to be back in Waynesburg for at least one more fair. She added that she would like to bring Lancaster along for a second look at the place where he began his career and to show him that according to the line drawn by two English surveyors (Mason and Dixon) many years ago, he truly was in Pennsylvania and not in West Virginia or Virginia.

Wage Freeze Acceptance Softens Blow Of Tax Hike

Although they are currently involved in contract negotiations with the county, three groups of Greene County employees have indicated they will go along with a decision by the county commissioners to place a freeze on all wages for 1983.

In doing so, people who work at the Curry Memorial Home and in various other offices and departments have agreed to confine their negotiations to non-economic issues dealing with job security and working conditions. In return, the commissioners have promised to once again review the county's financial position following the second quarter with a view to their ability to do something for the 250 people who hold county jobs.

The freeze follows many years in which employees could regularly expect to receive eight percent pay raises each year. It is just one part of an overall austerity program placed in effect when the county budget was adopted in December. It is aimed at eliminating a deficit of more than $500,000 which existed at the end of the year, created largely by cutbacks in federal programs which have shifted more of the cost of services back to local government.

Unions representing the employees were given an opportunity to examine the budget, and the fact that they have conceded to the wage freeze is the best possible indication that the financial pressure is real. The alternative to a freeze would have been a cutback in the work force, and neither the commissioners nor the employees wanted that to happen.

Without the cost-cutting measures, the 4 1/4 mill increase in the 1983 property tax would not have done the job. County employees deserve credit for their willingness to help out in a difficult situation.

Coder Seeks Nomination For County Prothonotary

Dave Coder of Carmichaels R.D.1 announced Wednesday he will seek the Democratic nomination for Greene County prothonotary in the May 17 primary election.

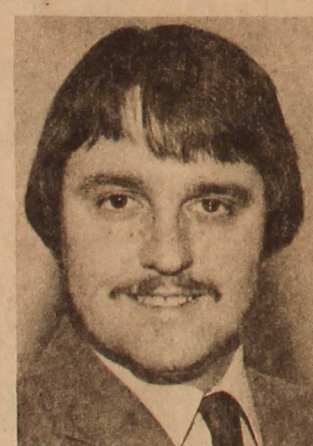

Coder, who is owner of the Greene County Coin Co. in Waynesburg, served four years in the U.S. Coast Guard as an electronics technician following graduation from Mapletown High School. Upon receiving his honorable discharge, he attended Waynesburg College, where he earned an associate degree in business administration.

Coder is an active member of the Democrat party. He serves on the Greene County Democrat Committee and worked as a coordinator in the Allen Ertel gubernatorial campaign last year.

Coder said his desire to work for the people of Greene County and his interest in politics prompted him to seek the office, adding that he plans to run a "grass roots" campaign.

"In this time when fiscal and social responsibility are important to the people of Greene County, I believe my business and educational background will enable me to be an effective and efficient prothonotary," he said.

Prothonotary Announces He Will Seek Re-Election

Greene County Prothonotary Charles T. Hogue of Waynesburg announced Thursday, January 20 that he is a candidate for re-election.

He will seek the Democratic nomination in the May 17 primary election as the first step toward holding a third term in the court-related office.

In announcing his candidacy, Hogue said that the post can no longer be regarded as a part-time, political position.

"The constant changes in rules and procedures require full-time attention and awareness to process the increased work load of civil court, equity and family matters," he said. "It also necessitates a close working relationship with the court and members of the bar of this county and other counties of the Commonwealth to keep the many hearings and jury trials current."

Hogue, who has served as prothonotary since 1976, is a former employee of Sutton Printing Co., Duquesne Light Co. and Warwick Mines.

"Battleground: The Autobiography of Margaret A. Haley." University of Illinois Press, 1982.

Margaret Haley was a wonder. A dynamo. Small, red-headed, with "blazing blue eyes," she called herself "fighting Irish," and proved it.

"I never wanted to fight," she started her autobiography. She wrote it in 1936, but nobody would publish it at the time and this University of Illinois printing seems to be the first time it's been made available to the public. Without it, the history of education in Illinois would not be complete.

Haley was born in 1861 and taught school for sixteen years. On her first job, she said, "After I had taught for some months in the school, I told the superintendent that I was worth five dollars a month more to the community. I was getting thirty-five. He agreed that I was, but he kept putting off making the actual arrangement. Finally I issued an ultimatum. If he didn't sign the contract to pay me the higher salary by noon of the first day of the fall term, I was not going back to the school. He didn't send me the contract, and I left the job."

She left for Chicago in 1882, and when the Chicago Teachers' Federation was organized in 1897, she was a member. Her fighting career, which was to last forty years, started when the Chicago Board of Education granted all city teachers a raise of $50, then refused to pay it. Citing lack of funds, the Board also closed the schools for two weeks, and considered closing them for two months.

When the Board offered to give the raise to the men teachers, but not the women, Haley said, "The schools flamed into protest. I think that the cause of women suffrage advanced further that day than it had gone in fifty years in Illinois. Sometimes the enemies of a cause do it far more good than do its friends."

But suffrage came later. First, were taxes. Haley discovered that many of Chicago's largest corporations were paying no taxes at all. But first she had to prove it. This tiny school teacher marched into the Cook County Courthouse and demanded to see the tax lists, and the report on assessments. "The clerk asked me who wanted the report. I told him the six thousand teachers of Chicago wanted it, and I thought of Ethan Allen demanding the surrender of Fort Ticonderoga in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress, which at that time had never met."

Haley didn't believe in pulling any punches. When the clerk asked why the teachers wanted the reports, "I said that we wanted to find out if it were true that the State Board of Equalization was allowing the Chicago corporations to evade their taxes." The stunned clerk finally gave her what she wanted, and she found the Pullman Company, the railroads, and many others to be notable by their absence. They not only were not being taxed, they were not even assessed. Obviously, somebody was being paid off, and Haley was infuriated to think that the schools had to be closed because the rich corporations were evading their taxes. She quit her job, and was hired by the Federation; she took the tax case to court, and won.

Hers is a great story, and one that should be read.

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

Although Spring is still more than a month away, the feel of that season is already in the air in Greene County possibly because of the absence of any prolonged cold spells this year.

Speaking of Spring recalls the old days when playing marbles was a big deal for grade school youngsters. Not anymore because most of the youngsters are glued to the television set if they're not on a chartered bus trip to Seven Springs.

In the immediate area of Waynesburg, many of the youngsters can now have winter time swimming at the indoor pool at Waynesburg Central High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Custer of South Richhill Street, Waynesburg, have returned home from Schenectady, N.Y., where they visited for several days with their son Charles who is a librarian for the state.

While there, they were caught in a 24-inch snow storm which swept the upper section of the state for several days. Mr. Custer is retired from West Penn Power Company.

Speaking of snow, there has been no snowfall to any extent in Greene County this winter much to the regret of youngsters who received new sleds for Christmas. However, the rural mail carriers and those with utilities to pay are just as glad.

What is generally conceded by most persons interested in such trivia, the highest shade tree in Waynesburg is being removed from the Mark Booth property on West Greene Street. It is the former home of the late Earl (Foxy) Baily, a co-founder of Ullom and Baily Drug Store in the early 1900s. The tree, some 200 feet high, was cut down under the supervision of Frank Jones, an experienced woodsman.

When Maurice (Mo) Scarry enrolled at Waynesburg College a few years before World War II, he was on a basketball scholarship. He was a walk-on football candidate who was destined to play professional football and become a coach of the super bowl Miami Dolphins.

Following a pro career with the Cleveland Browns, he coached a several major colleges and came back to Waynesburg as head coach before joining long time friend Otto Graham on the staff of the Washington Redskins. He joined coach Don Shula's staff several years ago.

Seeking Nomination

CARMICHAELS — Dan Bailey of 205 Sherman Avenue, Carmichaels, announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Greene County Commissioner in the spring primary election.

"I will work hand in hand with GCID, local townships, and state and federal offices to fulfill the job needs that face Greene County today," he told the reception crowd.

He also set a list of priorities should he be elected saying, "I will also establish office hours in the Carmichaels area one day a week, and I will help restore the EMS (emergency medical services) program, and assist fire companies financially in attending fire schools. These are vital human services that people must have in our county."

Bailey, 35, is a 1966 graduate of Carmichaels Area High School and a 1970 graduate of Salem College.

DAN BAILY

The son of Edward and Pearl Bailey of Carmichaels, he is married to the former Betsy McLaughlin of Nemacolin. They are the parents of two children, Jason, 13, and Janel, 9.

Treasurer's Nomination To Be Sought By Elliott

Robert E. Elliott of Waynesburg R.D.4 has announced he will run for the Democratic nomination for the office of Greene County treasurer in the spring primary.

A resident of Waynesburg since 1959, he has owned and operated service stations and garages for many years.

A veteran of the U.S. Air Force, he is a life-member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He currently owns and operates Elliott's Arco Service at 10 East Greene Street.

He and his wife, the former June Cheek are the parents of three daughters, Mrs. Jay (Penny) Buckhalter of Waynesburg, Mrs. James (Sheila) Barger of Brownsville and Mrs. Greg (Sherri) Reed of Garards Fort.

Headlee Seeks Re-Election As Register And Recorder

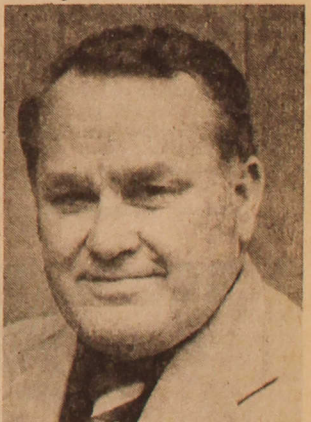

WAYNESBURG — Thomas M. Headlee of Rogersville has announced he is a candidate for re-election to the office of Greene County Register and Recorder.

Headlee, who was first elected to the office in 1975, will be running for a third term. He will be a Democrat candidate in the May 17 primary election.

The register and recorder's office is responsible for recording deeds, mortgages, estates and other legal documents.

Headlee graduated from Mapletown High School in 1952 and received his B.S. degree from West Virginia University in 1956. He has resided at Rogersville since 1960 and served for 12 years as a Democratic committeeman in Center Township.

Headlee, who has been associated with the sawmill and lumber business for 24 years, is a member of the West Greene Area Lions Club, Center Township Volunteer Fire Company, Masonic Lodge and Scottish Rite, Greene County Historical Society, and the Waynesburg Elks and Moose lodges.

Bench Sparks Jackets Rockets Carry The Load

By John Barker, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — There is a major difference in the look of the Waynesburg College basketball team. It's called a nine-man team.

While a theory exists among District 18 coaches that the Yellow Jackets' starting five can play with any team in the district, the Waynesburg bench is suspect.

Waynesburg head coach Rudy Marisa is painfully aware of the fact but he can see his fears slowly eroding. Alliance College head coach and the district chairman, Ted Haluch, is aware of the fact too, but he can see the change.

The Yellow Jackets hosted Alliance here Saturday afternoon, and after a poor first half performance, the Jackets unleashed their running game and blew past the Eagles, 87-63.

But what particularly pleased Marisa was the fact that the suspect bench solidified themselves somewhat and provided a lot of the firepower in the comeback.

"We finally feel a lot better about our subs," said Marisa. "Nobody plays idealistically all the time but they are finally playing more consistent and I'm not so unsure about putting them in."

Junior Elgin Riggins is a perfect example of that new-found consistency. Riggins, a transfer from St. Bonaventure, played his best all-around game against the Eagles, pulling down a game-high nine rebounds while blocking seven shots. Last week against LaRoche, the 6-5 forward scored 14 points off the bench. And while two games isn't a season, it's the best performance and most consistency the Waynesburg bench has produced.

But Riggins isn't the only player on the bench playing well. Sophomore guard Craig Harris scored seven points, junior Ernie Mills added eight and freshman Keith Coleman scored seven in reserve.

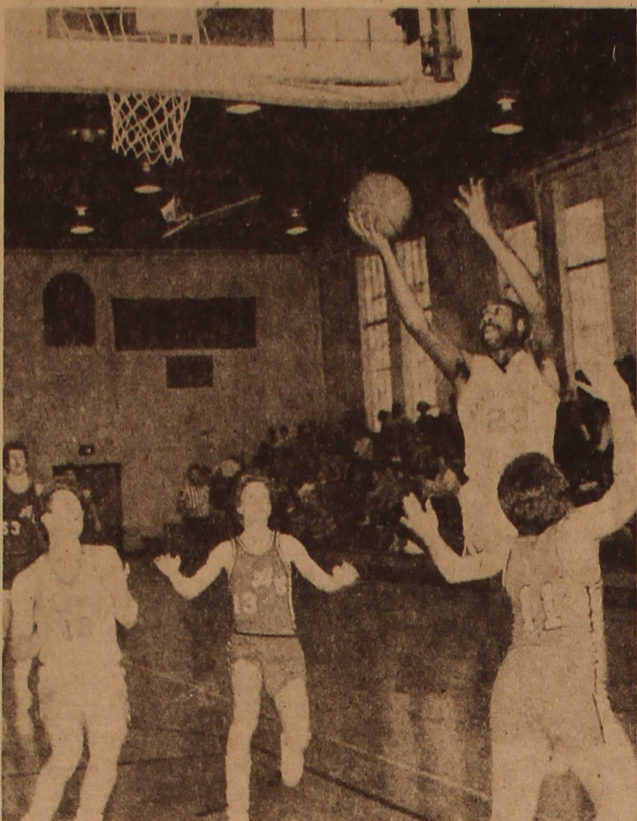

"They are all good ballplayers but they needed time to develop and get to know the system," said Marisa. "Their performance is crucial because we'll have to have them off the bench to be successful. Early in the season they weren't doing that and we suffered."

The Jackets will need more of those good performances, especially tonight when they host district opponent Point Park (8 p.m. tipoff). The Pioneers, now 6-2 in the district, defeated Westminster Saturday to move into second place behind District 18 leader, Pitt-Bradford (7-1). Waynesburg, now 4-3 in the district and 8-5 overall, held on to fifth place in the nine-team league. The game is crucial for the Jackets because four teams are above them and the top four teams will get homecourt advantage in the first round of the playoffs.

"We want to have the home court in the first round of the playoffs and that means we have to win the rest of our games," Marisa said. "It's that simple."

Waynesburg had its hands full with Alliance, trailing 39-38 at half-time. An eight point spurt with under a minute left in the first half pulled the Jackets close and changed the complexion of the game.

Alliance shot over 70 percent from the field in the first half and held leads of up to nine points three different times. Freshman Dow Misenhelter scored 14 points, 12 on long range jumpshots, to lead the Eagles in the first half.

Waynesburg regained the momentum it had at the end of the half and gradually took control of the game. The Jackets made their big move at 8:45 in the second half when they scored 11 unanswered points and raced to a 69-53 lead.

Ray Natili and Tim Walker led the Jackets with 19 points apiece while Paul Stanley recovered from a poor first half to end with 14 points. Walker now has 993 total points at Waynesburg and could reach the 1,000 point milestone tonight against Point Park.

Raiders Fall To C-M

CANONSBURG — It's difficult to think of a better way to prepare for a showdown than with a big win.

And that's exactly what Canon-Millan High School's wrestling team got Wednesday night, a 45-9 decision over Section 7-AAA opponent Waynesburg.

The victory, which raises the Big Macs' section record to 4-0 and overall record to 11-0-1, came with the help of eight wins in the first nine matches.

Jackets 43, Indians 5

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg College wrestling team improved its record to 4-3 Wednesday night with a convincing, 43-5 win over Indiana (Pa.) University.

The Yellow Jackets won all but one bout, receiving pins from Ed Shriver (134), Lonnie Barnes (150), Phil Gifford (190) and heavyweight Tim Mathias.

Dave Stewart (118), Garry Stralko (126), Rick Romeo (142), Steve Burchianti (158) and Brian Ross (177) won decisions for Waynesburg.

C-M received decisions by Ed Hartman at 132 pounds, Craig Dellorso (138), John Mansfield (145) and heavyweight Ray Phillips while Rich McClain (112), Harvey Nichols (155) and Rob Benjamin (185) registered pins. Steve McClain (98) and Matt Belfiore (105) won by forfeits.

Kevin Durkin (167) and John Throckmorton (126) were victorious for Waynesburg, which falls to 2-2 in the section and 8-3 overall. C-M's Ed Brown and Waynesburg's Greg Eddy battled to a 9-9 draw at 119 pounds.

Mikes 28, Colonials 27

MASONTOWN — Carmichaels High School's wrestling team built a 28-6 lead and had to hang on for dear life before taking a 28-27 Section 8-AA victory over Albert-Gallatin Wednesday.

Dave Williams, at 98 pounds, Pete Pratt (105), Melvin Boone (112), Gary Wiley (126), Jim Zaler (132), Ed Smith (138) and Rob Cutwright (145) notched wins to help build the Mikes' lead.

A-G captured the final four matches but it wasn't enough.

By Denise Bachman, O-R Sports Staff

JEFFERSON — Jefferson-Morgan High School's wrestling team is carrying a lot of weight in Section 8-AA these days.

The proof lies in the Rockets' 32-29 victory over Beth-Center Wednesday night before a standing-room-only crowd at the Jeff-Morgan gym.

For it took a strong comeback from Jeff-Morgan in the upper weights to pin a loss on the Bulldogs and, in turn, put the Rockets in the driver's seat in section competition.

The Rockets, who are in a first-place tie with Washington in the O-R's WPIAL Coaches Poll, began to chip away at the Bulldogs' 23-15 lead when Brian Virgin picked up a 15-1 superior decision over Bill Antonio at 155 pounds.

Then Jeff-Morgan's Robbie Knight (167) and Tim Starostanko (185) put together back-to-back second-period falls over Kevin Stotka and Pete Keruskin, respectively, to put the Rockets in the lead for the first time and dash any hopes the Bulldogs had of dealing the Rockets their first section loss.

The win undoubtedly places the Rockets, who are now 5-0 in league action and 11-1 overall, and head coach Tony Barbetta in a very comfortable position.

"That team was one I was worried about more than anything," Barbetta said. "I was worried all year about Beth-Center because of the way we go head-to-head. I'm relieved now because we have to lose two (to lose the section title).

"The kids at 55, 67 and 85 went out and did the job. They picked up for the mistakes the lightweights made."

And even in defeat, Beth-Center head coach Dick Caputo found promise for the Bulldogs, a team that until last night's match was forfeiting 18 points each match. Against the Rockets, Beth-Center, which falls to 4-2 in the section and 7-8 overall, was forced to forfeit just one match (112) after Caputo shuffled the top of his lineup.

"This is the first time I'm happy in a loss," Caputo said. "The kids in the upper weights, you have to understand that our 167-pounder usually wrestles at 155 and the kid at 185 wrestles 167. But rather than give six points away, we decided to move them up and see what would happen."

"There was nothing else we could have done (to win). Our kids wrestled the best they could. Jeff-Morgan is a great team, they just beat us."

Early in the match, however, it appeared as though the Bulldogs were in position to pick up the win. Outside of the forfeit at 112, they were in total command as Scott Rhodes (98) and Dave Nelson (105) recorded pins before Marc Bartolomucci (119) captured a 17-3 superior decision to give the Bulldogs a 17-4 lead.

"I knew it would be a big match at 98 and I thought if we could win that we had a shot," Caputo said. "If we get lucky enough, I hope we're in the team tournament. The way we wrestled tonight, we gave the top team in the section a heck of a match."

Jeff-Morgan's home match against Uniontown Friday night has been canceled.

Jackets Top St. Vincent, Snap Slump

LATROBE — Waynesburg College, loser of four of its last six basketball games, snapped out of its slump Wednesday by defeating St. Vincent College, 55-50.

The Yellow Jackets, now 9-6 overall, are 5-4 in NAIA District 18 competition. The Bearcats (8-9 overall) drop to 3-5 in the district.

After suffering a convincing, 83-66 defeat at the hands of Point Park Monday at College Gym, Waynesburg used a 29-for-35 performance at the foul line to jump back in the win column.

Junior guard Ray Natili and sophomore forward Paul Stanley led the Yellow Jackets' attack with 16 points each. Senior forward Tim Walker chipped in 11 points.

Other Yellow Jacket scorers included Craig Harris (five), Keith Coleman (four) and senior guard Tim Tyler (three).

Walker's Plateau Tainted

By Tom Rose, O-R Sports Editor

WAYNESBURG — This was supposed to be a night to remember in Tim Walker's collegiate basketball career.

Instead it was one that frankly, he'd rather forget.

Walker, Waynesburg College's likeable 6-4 senior forward, joined the school's 1,000 career point club here Monday night. His 16 points raise his career total to 1,009.

But while he was his team's high scorer, he was at a low point following the Jackets' 83-66 loss to NAIA District 18 rival Point Park.

"Right now it just doesn't matter to me whether I've scored 1,000 points or 200," Walker said in a soft voice while slowly dressing. "When you're not winning or your team is like a rollercoaster it really doesn't matter. "It really doesn't feel good."

Walker's lukewarm reaction doesn't come as a surprise to Waynesburg head coach Rudy Marisa. While the Jacket coach had few compliments about his team's play following the lopsided loss, he didn't spare his affections for his hard working co-captain.

"I can tell you unequivocally that I've never enjoyed working more with a ballplayer than Tim Walker," Marisa said. "He's very misleading. When you first look at him you can see he has a lot of talent but he looks difficult to coach. But he's surprised every new person who's come into the program. He's probably one of the most coachable guys I've ever had.

"He cares about the team more than anyone I've ever had."

Walker reached the 1,000-point milestone in memorable fashion. Shortly after missing a chance for his 1,000th point after bouncing a free throw off the rim of the basket, he made a nifty steal in the Point Park foul lane.

Walker then took off toward his basket, driving through two defenders for a layup with 12:21 left in the second half.

And despite Waynesburg's predicament, the Jackets trailed 56-39 after that basket, the appreciative College Gym crowd gave him a standing ovation.

Ex-Waynesburg Coach Promoted

CLARION — Gene Sobolewski, former defensive coordinator at Waynesburg College from 1968-70, has been named head football coach at Clarion State College where he has been an assistant since 1971.

Sobolewski, a Freeport native, was a defensive end at University of Pittsburgh and a starter during the 1962 and 1963 season. Pitt's only loss in 10 games in 1963 was to Navy. In that game, Sobolewski sacked Navy quarterback Roger Staubach seven times.

Following graduation from Pitt, Sobolewski coached at Ellwood City and Beaver before coming to Waynesburg under head coach Darrel Lewis.

Jackets Lose Dual

WAYNESBURG — The dual meet came down to the heavyweight match for Waynesburg's College wrestling team, but thanks to Ashland's Dave Mariona, the Jackets came up short here last Friday night.

Mariona (Hvy) secured the win for Ashland by scoring a fall at 3:06 of the heavyweight bout to give Ashland a 24-21 victory over the Jackets.

Todd Eddy recorded a pin for the Yellow Jackets, now 3-4.

Waynesburg's Ed Shriver (134), Brian Ross (177) and Phil Gifford (190) scored major decisions and Washington High School graduate Lonnie Barnes (150) scored a 10-5 win.

Sweet Wheats 59, Highlanders 47

WAYNESBURG — Lori Trader poured in 25 points to lead Waynesburg Central High School's girls basketball team to an easy 59-47 exhibition victory over McGuffey Monday night.

Trader and the Sweet Wheats were aided by Jerilyn Miller who pumped in 14 points and Bertie Zollars who added 10 points. Tammy McIntyre led the Sweet Wheats' attack on the boards, grabbing 16 rebounds.

The win extends the Sweet Wheats' overall record to 12-6.

Becky Hutson scored 18 points, while teammate Sherrie Zappi added 12 points in the losing cause for the Highlanders.

Red Raiders, 98-54

WAYNESBURG — Tom Jackovic pumped in 16 points as Waynesburg Central High School's boys basketball team breezed to an easy 98-54 exhibition triumph over McGuffey Tuesday night.

Aiding the Red Raiders' cause were Andy Krutko and Kirk King who added 14 and 13 points, respectively, and Democrat Mills with 11.

Rue Strohecker poured in 21 points and Scott Weiss 19 in the losing cause for the Highlanders, who fall to 1-15 overall.

The win extended the Red Raiders' overall mark to 7-12.

And it was a fitting gesture, not just for the 999 points he had already scored, but for the memorable moments he had helped to bring to this program and community.

Unfortunately, the schedule is working against him. Tim Walker's basketball career is rapidly drawing to a close, and he wants so desperately for it to end on a happy note.

"It's been hitting me for the last couple of games that the end is coming," Walker said.

St. Francis Tops Raiders

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Mark Mancinelli poured in 24 points to lead St. Francis High School of Morgantown, W.Va., to a 77-63 exhibition victory over Waynesburg last Saturday.

Geibel opened a 13-4 first-quarter lead and stretched it to 35-14 at half-time. Jeff-Morgan was outscored 26-16 in the final eight minutes.

Debbie Novak had 12 points for Jeff-Morgan, which falls to 0-8 in the section and 0-11 overall with the loss.

Mikes 48, Rockets 36

CARMICHAELS — Carol Magusa scored 17 points to lead Carmichaels High School's girls basketball team to a 48-36 Section 17-A victory over Jeff-Morgan Monday.

Rivalry Grows Despite Shift

By Joe Tuscano, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — As in the past, the near-capacity crowd was there and cheering for the two teams with equal enthusiasm. The bouts were intense, sometimes taking on a brawl-like atmosphere.

However, things have changed slightly in this dual meet series between these two Greene County rivals. Instead of this being a hard-fought Section 8-AA match, it was a hard-fought exhibition match, one in which Waynesburg won 37-17 over West Greene here Friday.

The win extends Waynesburg's overall record to 8-2 while West Greene falls to 6-3.

In recent years, Waynesburg was the darling of the section, coming away with the title while leaving Jeff-Morgan and West Greene to battle for second place. When the new WPIAL alignments kicked the Red Raiders up to Triple-A this season, the section race was left wide open for anyone to claim.

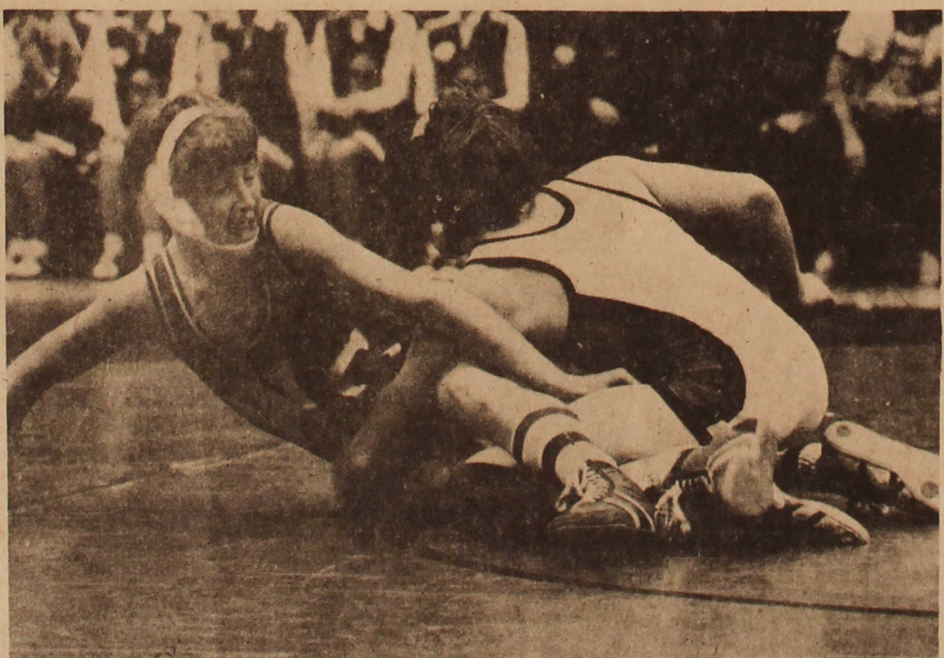

But Waynesburg head coach Joe Ayersman feels someone forgot to tell West Greene that the Red Raiders are out of the section.

"It's still a great rivalry," he said. "I think it will always be because now that we're gone (from the section), they're the hot-shots in Double-A."

And while there was a 20-point difference in the final score, the Pioneers never lost intensity. But as West Greene head coach Buzz Walters found out, intensity is no match for a slight edge in ability.

"Waynesburg still has a good team," he said. "I'm glad they're out of the section but I'm glad they're still wrestling them. They're the best team we've wrestled this year and I'm happy we're in there."

after the Raiders forfeited at 98 pounds. Waynesburg's Jeff Lapping (105) and Jim Scritchfield (112) quickly made up the difference, and then some, with pins at 2:48 and 2:39, respectively. A narrow 7-5 decision by Greg Eddy (119) and a 14-2 superior decision by John Throckmorton (126) spread the Waynesburg lead to 20-6.

"With our veterans, they (Waynesburg) didn't have an easy time," said Walters. "But we got three freshmen and a sophomore in there. Still, I don't want to make excuses. If we get beat, I'll take the loss."

from the stands, an injured elbow keeping him from action.

"If we beat Waynesburg, that makes our season," Walters said. "If they beat us, it makes their season."

Pat Headley finally broke the Pioneer scoring drought with an 11-6 decision over Chuck Shriver (132) and Alvie Bedillion took a 14-6 major win from Waynesburg's Doug Higgins (155).

But the two matches which really hurt involved Walters' sons, Rikk and John. Rikk, a top 145-pounder, could manage but a 1-1 draw with Dan Lemley. John was given a disqualification at 185 pounds when referee Tom Bailey called him for a slam against Tom Garber at 3:17.

Four training programs are being proposed — a 15-week course in light construction technology for 25 trainees, a six-week course in building maintenance for 20 trainees, a 10-week course in small engine repairs for 20 trainees, and a 15-week course in computer science for 20 trainees.
