County Asked To Solve Local Dumping Problem

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County commissioners have been asked to explore possible solutions to an increasing problem of roadside dumping in the county, particularly in the Waynesburg and Franklin Township areas.

Zone Status Unchanged In North Side

WAYNESBURG — In accord with the wishes of property owners in the neighborhood, the Waynesburg Zoning Board said Monday it will permit only the construction of single-family dwellings on a lot on the North Side now occupied by a former fraternity house.

"A multiple-family apartment is definitely out, but we would have the power to grant a variance for duplexes," board member Charles Berryhill said. "However, we have always gone along with the wishes of people in the neighborhood and because of this would not be willing to grant the variance."

The former Theta Chi house, which was closed in January 1982, is located at the corner of Second and Huffman streets, in a single-family (R-1) zone. The lot measures 90 by 165 feet, which would be sufficient for two single-family homes.

At its last meeting, the zoning board was asked by a potential purchaser, Robert Lee of Waynesburg, about the possibility of obtaining a variance to tear down the house and erect an eight-unit multiple dwelling in its place. Subsequently a petition signed by 13 property owners in the neighborhood was received objecting to the idea. Several of those property owners attended the meeting Monday.

In other developments, Zoning Inspector David Gregg announced that John McNay, owner of the former South Ward school building on West Lincoln Street, has agreed to clean up the property and board up all windows and other points of access within 30 days of March 25, the date on which he received formal notice to do so.

Gregg had cited the property with numerous violations in terms of hazardous and unsanitary conditions. "I have been assured that the building will be completely secured within the required time," Gregg said.

Action on a citation against Dr. Grover Phillippi for improper location of a swimming pool in the yard at his home on East Greene Street and for storage of vehicles on the property was again deferred when Gregg reported that Dr. Phillippi has been a patient in a hospital in Hawaii.

As a result, he said, he has been unable to serve the complaint. It demands that the property owner take corrective action or face possible fines.

Donald Keller of 549 North Porter Street, was granted permission to erect a new storage building in his back yard to replace an existing shed and chicken house.

County Hospital Offers Union A New Contract

WAYNESBURG — About 200 Greene County Memorial Hospital employees will meet later this week to consider a new contract offer made by the hospital during negotiations held Monday.

Mark Kesner, president of the hospital chapter of Local 585, Service Employees International Union, said tentative plans are to hold the meeting late Thursday afternoon.

"We've got an offer for a two-year contract which provides some increase in wages and we will take it back to the membership," Kesner said. "Members will make the decision on whether to accept or reject it."

Hospital Administrator Michael Flinn said there was "a mood of guarded optimism" on the part of the hospital at the conclusion of Monday's meeting.

Neither would spell out any details until members of the union have been given an opportunity to hear the proposal.

The former contract expired on March 31 and the union rejected a previous hospital proposal that a new contract incorporate a wage freeze

Rural Development Committee, presented at Thursday's commissioners meeting, suggested the formation of a task force which would include the Greene County Conservation District, Greene County Planning Commission and Association of Township Supervisors.

The Rural Development Committee is an informal organization made up of representatives of agencies which deal with the problems of rural areas. Its chairman is Karl M. Niederwerfer, local representative of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

The commissioners expressed concern over the problem and referred the matter to the planning commission for a recommendation. They pointed out, however, that townships have ordinances prohibiting unauthorized dumping and that the solution would probably come down to more stringent enforcement of those ordinances.

Niederwerfer said the problem has escalated in the areas surrounding Waynesburg since the closing of the Waynesburg landfill.

"We realize this problem has been studied before and that there are always some people who will contaminate properties regardless of how convenient any trash removal system might be," he said. "There remain people in Greene County who, for one reason or another, cannot or will not participate in the current trash dumping system. As the county grows, this problem becomes more widespread."

When contacted after the meeting,

Niederwerfer pointed to the Water Dam Road along Wisecarver Run, in Franklin Township, as a particularly bad example of an area being polluted by illegal dumping.

"The situation out there is terrible and it's time that it was looked into," he said.

County Agent William C. Brown said indiscriminate dumping can create problems other than that of ugliness.

He cited one case where a county farmer lost two head of cattle after trash had been thrown over a fence into a pasture. "There were cans of pesticide among the trash and it was strongly suspected that the animals died after eating contaminated grass," he said.

Brown also said there is always danger if small pieces of metal are eaten by livestock that the animal can die of what is called "hardware disease."

A spokesman for Long Trucking Co., which has the franchise for hauling trash in Waynesburg and Franklin Township, agrees that the problem has increased since closing of the landfill which served the two communities. In addition to roadside dumping, the firm is experiencing problems with people who dispose of their refuse by illegally using dumpsters provided for commercial customers.

He said that even though the landfill is closed, there is a method provided for trash disposal by those who do not subscribe to the collection service.

New Borough Building Planned

Carmichaels Favors 2 Lots On George Street

By Marcia McKenna Biddle, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — Carmichaels Borough Council voted unanimously Monday to buy two lots on which to erect a new borough building.

They are located at the corner of George and Pine streets, near the American Legion post home, and are owned by Thomas Russell. Tentative asking price for the property is $18,000.

Council will ask for an independent appraisal before making the purchase. It decided to buy the lots rather than build on the site of the previous borough building, which burned down in 1978. The impossibility of obtaining a clear title to the land was cited as principal reason.

That property had been deeded to the Carmichaels Borough School District by Lydia Jennings, with the provision that it would revert to the Jennings family if it was no longer used for school purposes.

The school district deeded the old borough school to the borough in 1967, but that deed also restricted use of the property for non-profit municipal services. After the building burned down, the school district refused to give clear title to the property because of the restrictions imposed by its deed.

Council members also said that the Russell property would be more centralized located.

The borough has $30,000 remaining from insurance it received when the building burned. This money is being held in savings certificates and will be used to purchase the lot and to begin to pay for a new building.

Plans are to use volunteer labor in erecting the building and purchase materials only through bids.

In another major development, council approved a motion to begin procedures to reduce the number of council members from seven to five.

Council President Betty Morris said it is increasingly difficult to find seven people willing to serve, and that it would be easier to retain five good, working members.

Seven members are not required for boroughs with population of under 1,000. The population of Carmichaels is about 690.

Fire destroys the house north of Ruff Creek owned by Harry Good.

Observer-Reporter

Ruff Creek Home Burns

RUFF CREEK — The state police fire marshal will be asked to investigate a fire at 8 p.m. Saturday which destroyed a large frame house in Washington Township owned by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Good.

"There are definitely suspicious circumstances," Waynesburg Fire Chief Pete Walker said. He estimated the loss at $23,000.

It was the second fire of suspicious origin in the Ruff Creek area within a week. Arson is also suspected in a fire on Sunday, March 27, which destroyed a mobile home belonging to Edna Schrader of Prosperity R.D.2.

The Good house is located three miles north of Ruff Creek, within 100 yards of Interstate 79 and just south of the Washington County line. The blaze was spotted by a son and daughter-in-law, Thomas and Deborah Good, who live in a mobile home near the house which burned.

Deborah Good said her husband's parents had left for an auction shortly before the fire broke out.

Walker said the blaze started in an annex built on the side of the seven-room house. He also said that the house was "fully involved" when firemen arrived on the scene, with lack of water being a factor in fighting the blaze.

"We had to bring water by tanker from a stream a mile away," he said, adding that both the Amity and Lone Pine fire companies assisted in the firefighting efforts.

The house was still standing, but Walker said it had been completely gutted and all the contents lost.

Plan Legal Action Against Mountainview

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Sewer Authority Tuesday night expressed extreme displeasure with Mountainview Garden officials, promising to continue its legal battle to have a cross-over constructed by the housing complex owners.

The action came after a letter from the Mountainview attorney was read. The letter questioned the estimated cost of the project and the length of the agreement. Authority members loudly proclaimed that the agreement, which was signed almost two years ago, spelled out the length of the contract.

Authority members charged the housing complex owners with stalling and pointed to the fact the Mountainview solicitor waited beyond the 60-day period to answer the authority. One authority member went so far as to call the housing complex owners "liars."

A motion was made not to answer the letter from Mountainview's solicitor and to proceed with legal action.

Art Hall, the authority engineer, told board members he had been in contact with the Department of Environmental Resources concerning a recent audit of sewer construction costs. The independent audit questioned the expenditure of some $240,000 during and immediately following the construction phase of the project.

Hall told the authority that a recheck of all figures would indicate the authority could possibly receive an additional $66,000 in funding, but doubted the extra funds would be granted.

"I feel when all is said and done, the project will come out about even," Hall said.

Authority members were told that DER officials expressed doubt about the accuracy of the independent audit.

Waynesburg Man Dies Of Injuries

PITTSBURGH — R. Kenneth Crumrine, 74, of 180 Bonar Avenue, Waynesburg, died Monday in Allegheny General Hospital, Pittsburgh, of injuries received in an accident which claimed the life of his wife, Lulu, on March 25.

Crumrine, a former resident of Carmichaels, suffered multiple fractures in the accident which occurred on Route 255 near Du Bois. State police said Crumrine struck the rear of a car then veered across the two-lane highway into the path of a tractor-trailer.

Crumrine and his wife were flown to Allegheny General by Life-Flight helicopter. Mrs. Crumrine died the following morning.

The couple had been en route to Emporium to visit Mr. Crumrine's brother.

FAA Approves Airport Grant

WAYNESBURG — U.S. Rep. Austin J. Murphy notified the Greene County commissioners Thursday that the Federal Aviation Administration has approved a grant of $185,000 for extension of the taxiway at the county airport.

As was the case with an earlier grant being used to resurface the airport runway, the latest grant will provide 90 percent of the cost of the improvement. The state Bureau of Aviation and the county will each contribute five percent of the cost.

Commissioner L. R. Santore said extension of the taxiway will enable the county to construct an additional T-hangar during 1984 to help meet the demand from airplane owners.

"The hangars are a major source of airport revenues," Santore said, adding that the cost of building one can be recouped in about five years, from rentals. "In 1982 airport revenues came within $500 of meeting all operating costs, and this year we expect to do even better."

Congressman Murphy said the federal grant will come out of the Airport Construction Fund of the federal Department of Transportation.

Jail Escapee Is Recaptured

WAYNESBURG — A local man who escaped from the Greene County Jail almost three years ago has been captured in California and is awaiting extradition to Pennsylvania.

William E. Wine, 32, of Waynesburg R.D.5, along with Samuel E. Litton and the late Michael S. Eddy, fled the jail on May 25, 1980. He was facing charges of receiving stolen goods and falsification of vehicle registrations.

Wine was arrested by police in Los Angeles.

"Informational pickets" Don Karvan and Alice Wingard, members of the Service Employees International Union, distributed union material in front of the hospital on their day off Monday.

for at least six months. However, members did agree to continue working on a day-to-day basis as long as meaningful negotiations were being conducted, reserving the right to strike at any time they felt an impasse had been reached. Kesner said Monday's meeting lasted for almost four hours. He refused to speculate on what the outcome of the acceptance vote will be, but said that if members reject the new offer, the union will attempt to schedule another negotiating session.

Local 585 represents virtually all hospital employees with the exception of registered nurses and members of the administrative staff.

Building A Home

This is 601 Meadow Lane — someone's dreamhouse on the way to fulfillment. Yet the poet reminds us that no house becomes a home the minute a family moves in.

It takes a heap of livin'

And something more it takes. Our living needs the firm undergirding of faith in God. Our days require aim and purpose which religious conviction alone can inspire.

Down the hill is a vital center of this community. At the neighborhood church scores gather each week for worship, for spiritual renewal.

Central Greene Schools' Curriculum Development Explained To Rotarians

WAYNESBURG — Mrs. Nancy Davis, assistant superintendent of the Central Greene School District, gave Waynesburg Rotarians an insight into curriculum development in the district at their meeting Monday.

Her presentation was the third in a series, initiated several weeks ago by Superintendent Ronald Ferrari, dealing with the district's policies and procedures. Dr. Ferrari discussed evaluation systems used in the district last month. Later this spring, business manager Walter Stout will review the district's 1983-84 budget.

In addition to her position as assistant superintendent, Mrs. Davis is director of instruction and development for the school district, a post she has held since 1978.

In 1980, she said, the district established a Council of Curriculum Development which has the responsibility of providing "efficient and effective communication in curriculum throughout the district," as well as "provide a forum for the total review of the curriculum, kindergarten through twelfth grade, including articulation of subject matter, correlation among subject matter areas and implementation of curriculum development."

The Curriculum Council, made up of 22 people assembled from all grade levels, principals and administrators, is also required to advise the school board and administration on recommendations for curriculum development, evaluation and revision.

Mrs. Davis said the Schedule of Curriculum Development is a phased progression of steps designed to help the district meet educational goals adopted several years ago. They include communications skills, mathematics, self-esteem, analytical thinking, understanding others, citizenship, arts and humanities, science and technology, work, family living, health and environment.

The five-year program, implemented in 1980-81, sets up "target areas" which are assigned to subcommittees to ascertain the strengths and weaknesses in course offerings as they relate to the educational goals. Their recommendations are given to the Curriculum Council for study, review and action.

Mrs. Davis distributed a chart which depicts the current five-year program and outlines progress to be made each year toward implementation.

The evaluation program for science and business education is currently in its second year, the program for social studies and foreign languages is in its second year and the evaluation of the language arts program is in its first year. Evaluation of special education and physical education and health programs are due to begin this fall, while evaluation of mathematics and unified arts will start in 1984-85.

Once the council has completed this five year schedule in 1989, or possibly sooner, it will start on a new cycle.

"The schedule may sound cumbersome, but we feel it is the most effective way to determine which courses should be offered," Mrs. Davis said. She explained that committees meet frequently and are constantly reviewing all courses in terms of the relevancy.

During the third year, she said, a planned course of study is prepared for each course, a step which is mandated. As implementation begins in the fourth year, information is distributed to teachers, parents and the public through in-service days, conferences, news letters and school board meetings.

"This includes texts selected for each course from kindergarten through the twelfth grade, plus methods of testing and a great deal of other information relating to each course of instruction," she said.

Mrs. Davis was introduced by Dr. Ferrari, a member of the Rotary Club.

News Photographer Joins College Staff

WAYNESBURG — A news photographer who was first runner-up for a Pulitzer Prize for spot-news photography has joined the Waynesburg College faculty as program developer for the new visual communications (VICOM) program at the college.

Robert Gay, a news photographer for more than five years, will be responsible for designing and implementing new courses in visual communications, for developing the new Graphic Arts-Center at the college, and for marketing the new program.

Gay, a graduate of West Virginia University, gained national attention in 1979 when, as a photographer for the Charleston (W. Va.) Daily Mail, he became involved in a hostage crisis — as a hostage.

"This guy was a Vietnam veteran who was upset with the way the U.S. government treated vets," Gay said. "One morning he took a church full of people hostage and demanded to broadcast a message on live television."

Gay was the first newsman to arrive on the scene and he worked a trade with the gunman — himself for some of the hostages. "I negotiated with him, along with some other people, and he let me photograph him," Gay recalled. "He couldn't go on television because no one in the area had the facilities so we got him to agree to go on radio."

"The worst part of it was when the police came to handcuff him and he used me as a shield and put his gun to my head. It was tough, but I got a good piece of work out of it. The Daily Mail ran a big spread and I wrote an article with it. Everything turned out pretty well."

Another thing Gay believes will turn out well is Waynesburg's VICOM program.

"I'm really excited about it," he said. "This is an up-to-date program where students will get a lot of practical experience."

The VICOM program will include classes in photography, graphic design, art and television.

"One of the major parts of the program is the pre-press practicum, which stresses hands-on experience for the students," Gay said. "Through this, students will be able to produce materials for brochures or slide shows and do many other things. We'll be able to do everything for a publication, up to printing."

"Waynesburg is a great environment for learning. With the small classes, students get to work one on one, which provides for a better learning experience than being in a class with 90 or 100 people."

Students In Chancel Drama

The a chancel drama, "Celebrate Life," to be presented Sunday, April 10, at Westminster College's Wallace Memorial Chapel, will include two students from Waynesburg.

Timothy R. Cahn, a junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Cahn, of Waynesburg R.D.5, will be a member of the cast, and Karen M. Jones, a sophomore, daughter of Marilyn K. Jones, of Waynesburg, will be one of the musicians for the drama.

The one-hour presentation is a drama about the life of Christ as told by four Gospel writers, covering the period before his birth through the Resurrection.

In Competition

Five students from West Greene High School will compete in final auditions Sunday at Mt. Lebanon High School for scholarships to the Governor's School of the Arts, a six-week summer study program held at Bucknell University that gives the students a chance to study under renowned artists to develop their talents and explore career options in the arts. Those selected from West Greene include, from the left, Vincent Woods, auditioning for theatre-vocal; Sue Burns and Kim Preston, both piano; and Helen Patrick, theatre. Not pictured is Amy McClelland, to audition for dance.

Council Should Consider Trash Collection Option

It is becoming more and more evident that Waynesburg Borough Council should give serious consideration to the idea of mandatory refuse collection.

Problems with the present voluntary program have been multiplying ever since the Waynesburg landfill was closed, depriving non-participants of a place to readily haul their trash. The franchised collector, Long's Trucking Service, is using a landfill at McClellandtown in Fayette County, but it's obvious that private citizens are going to look for a much more convenient way than that to get rid of their garbage and rubbish.

Apparently a lot of them are doing so by dumping trash along roadsides and onto private land. The Greene County Rural Development Committee has become so concerned about the increase of illegal dumping that it last week asked the county commissioners to consider the establishment of a task force to study the problem.

Others are sneaking their trash into dumpsters the franchised hauler rents to commercial customers in the borough, increasing the amount which they must pay for service.

Some of these customers have reached the point where they are placing locks on their containers.

According to the 1980 census, there are 1,836 housing units in Waynesburg. Long has contracts to haul trash from just about half that many.

Mandatory service could be implemented with the passage of an ordinance requiring that all households have the service, and making owners of the property responsible for payment of the fee.

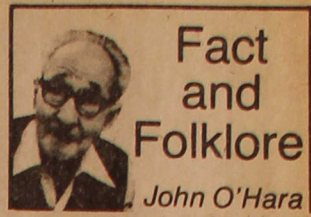

One of the side benefits would be stabilization of the program by making it possible for a contractor to make a bid based on knowledge of just how many customers he could expect to have, rather than having to guess what his annual revenues might be. With everyone participating, the present monthly collection fee of $6.50 for curbside collection could probably be reduced substantially.

The borough faces the definite possibility of having to rebid its refuse collection contract because of the lawsuit brought over awarding of the present franchise. Before that is done, council should consider the advantage of taking bids based on mandatory participation by all households.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

This picture of the Cumberland Township High School baseball team was taken in the late 1940s and there was no identification listed. However, the first player on the left in the back row is easily recognized as Steve Korcheck who later caught for the Washington Senators.

Fact and Folklore
John O'Hara

There was a time, away back when, in the early 1900s that a girl would no more have been caught riding on a motorcycle than to have walked up Main Street in her barefeet.

That, of course, was long, long before the "flapper" revolution of the early 1920s when they suddenly abandoned stockings and wore many other types of unconventional attire as compared to their rigid standards up to that time.

Neither would they have ever been induced to ride on the back seat of a motorcycle whizzing around Greene County's sharp curves and steep hills.

Neither would anyone of them listen to a fantastic tale that in this year of 1983 they would belong to a club called "Abate" and ride for hundreds of miles with their boyfriend to attend a swap meet.

It would be a meeting with all the free food and beer you could handle and where the language is strange to the average man on the street.

Interest in the annual affair is held together by their interest in the latest models of motor bikes that put wings on the feet of young Americans in less than a decade.

The swapping of equipment among bike owners in a sort of modern version of the old time horse traders from coast-to-coast.

For the newcomers to "Abate," it's another world with a language of its own as the riders and owners just can't resist trading for tradings sake and have a built in compulsion to trade for anything. Newcomers could hang around all day and have to come back for several more sessions before they could unravel the jargon of motorcycle parts.

Those people at last Saturday's conclave came principally from the Pittsburgh, Washington and Fayette County areas. A member doesn't have to know how to ride or repair a bike. Experts are readily available.

The association has raised over $13,000 for charity in the past few years and continually stresses safety for motorcycle owners.

Members of the local group are currently planning a trip to the west coast this summer.

Unemployed Learn New Job Skills

WAYNESBURG — Twelve unemployed women are learning secretarial and office skills through a training program being held in Greene County by the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp.

The 13-week course began March 28 and will run through June 24, with classes being held Monday through Friday. A second session for an additional 12 trainees will begin June 27 and run through Sept. 23.

Joan Owens, CAC assistant director, said the trainees spend half the day at Waynesburg College, where they are taught typing, shorthand, business English and business math by Linda Pool Lawson. During the afternoons, they are instructed in office practice, business machine, telephone techniques and other general matters by Mary Bealko.

Mrs. Owens said that arrangements are being made with non-profit agencies to have the trainees spend Friday afternoons in their offices to obtain practical experience. Agencies willing to participate are asked to contact Ms. Bealko at 852-2893.

Applications from potential students are made to the Bureau of Employment Service office in Waynesburg, which will also have a role in attempting to place students after they have completed the course.

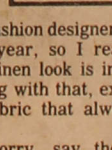

Mrs. Owens said the program is being financed with federal CETA funds.

I see the fashion designers are at it again. This year, so I read in the papers, the linen look is in. There's nothing wrong with that, except that linen is a fabric that always looks wrinkled.

Not to worry, say the fashion writers. With the linen look, "the wrinkled look is in as well."

This is good news. Since my clothes always seem to have that rumpled look, no matter what they are made of, I will finally be in style.

Even better, the fashion writers say that you shouldn't worry about ironing your new linen clothes, since it won't matter. If you press something for half an hour before you put it on, they say, it will still look wrinkled. Therefore, you can tell people that you spend hours over the ironing board but this new linen style just wrinkles as soon as you put it on.

A more realistic idea is not to iron it at all, and say you did. That would suit me fine.

It also suits the "purists," says the writer. "Purists" are "the people who feel that wrinkles are worth it in order to be attired in the real thing, which means a natural linen fiber."

The purists also "glory in appearing wrinkled because it makes a positive statement about their preference." I have been making a positive statement for years, and didn't know it. Now I can wear something that's fallen to the bottom of the closet without worrying about how it looks. And without feeling guilty about it. I can even brag that the wrinkled

Commission Changes Trout Management

WAYNESBURG — Greene County fishermen may find conditions quite different on the upcoming opening day of trout season, according to the Pennsylvania Fish Commission's regional biologist Blake Weirich.

Under the Commission's Operation Future, trout fishing will be managed for the first time based on the resource itself rather than arbitrary social constraints such as county lines.

"Our new management program addresses the fact that there are two types of anglers out there," Weirich said. "One that wants to creek trout and another that prefers wild trout fishing and the quality and solitude it provides. Operation Future offers both. We are not about to nor should we make a judgment on what kind of fishing constitutes enjoyment to the angling public," Weirich continued. "Rather, Operation Future is designed to offer a variety of fishing to as many anglers as possible."

How will Operation Future affect Greene County fishermen?

According to local waterways patrolman Gary Deiger, Ryerson Station Lake North Fork, Wheeling Creek and Dunkard Fork are good bets this year for anglers who prefer to fish over stocked trout.

These streams are all scheduled to receive increases in their stocking rates or have proven to be fish producers over the years. "These streams would also good fishing into mid-June at least, said Deiger, "an anglers interested in trout for the frying pay should give them a try."

The new program is one that offers a greater variety of trout fishing in the Keystone State than ever before. It provides for quality wild trout as well as an excellent stocking program. But best of all, it manages Pennsylvania's fishery for the long term benefit of the resource.
