Borough Supports Ceremony For Missing Soldiers

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg Borough Council Monday night voted to proceed with condemnation of several dilapidated buildings, enforce a junk car ordinance, send a polite but firm letter to its wage tax collection agency about being polite and helpful, and support a proposed vigil for Vietnam POW/MIAs.

The vigil for the some 2,500 men and women still unaccounted for from the Vietnam War is being planned to be staged continuously from 7 p.m. Friday, May 20 through 2 p.m. Friday, May 22, within the borough. It is being sponsored by a group of Vietnam veterans from Ohio, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

Bill Davison, of Waynesburg, acting as local spokesman for the group said someone would be at the vigil site each and every minute of the two days and nights.

The site the group is seeking for its vigil is Monument Park, one of the group of Waynesburg Commons Parks which is administered by a Park Commission. Council gave its complete support to the vigil plan and even told Davison that should the park commission turn down the request because of original deed restrictions on use of the parks, it would see that some site in the borough was found.

Davison said that all that would be placed at the site would be a small information booth to provide literature about the POW/MIAs. People would also have the opportunity to sign a petition to be sent to the Socialist Republic of Vietnam requesting the immediate release of all POWs and information regarding the MIAs.

In his letter to council, Davison said, "Due to the seriousness and sensitivity of this matter, there will not be any problem with noise."

A place to park a small van to be used as a command post for the vigil was also requested. It was stressed that the vigil site would be kept clear of debris.

One suggestion for a site other than the park was in the area of the Greene County Courthouse, but council said the Greene County Commissioners would have to give their permission to use the courthouse area.

Once again council will begin a crackdown on both dilapidated structures and junk cars in the borough.

Council voted to begin condemnation proceedings on a former Waynesburg College fraternity house at the corner of Second and Ross streets on the northside; a large vacant house owned by Bob McNay located on South Washington Street on the south-side; the long abandoned A.M.E. Church on Franklin Street; a house on Wayne Street owned by Clyde R. McClellan, and another abandoned house located near the Waynesburg Moose Club on South Morgan Street.

The borough's junk car ordinance will also be more strictly enforced. It requires junked or abandoned cars to be removed from streets or yards.

A proposal from Donley Construction, of Waynesburg, to replace the roof on the digester building at the Waynesburg Sewerage Plant for $1,957 was accepted. Donley Construction had put the original roof on the building in 1956.

Bids to supply a flow meter at the sewerage plant were received from two firms and tabled until they can be reviewed by the plant superintendent. The bids were from B.I.F. Inc., of Lancaster, at $4,187, and from Connor Water and Water Equipment Co., of Pittsburgh, at $3,100. Neither bid included installation.

Council voted to send a letter to the Central Tax Bureau, which collects the borough's wage tax, after Steve Kleiner, of Walnut Street, handed council his wage tax return and said "here it is, I've had it with those people (Central Tax Bureau employees)."

Kleiner complained that the employees at the wage tax office, which is a privately operated tax collection agency, were impolite, not helpful, and non professional.

Several members of council said they have had similar experiences and have had other complaints.

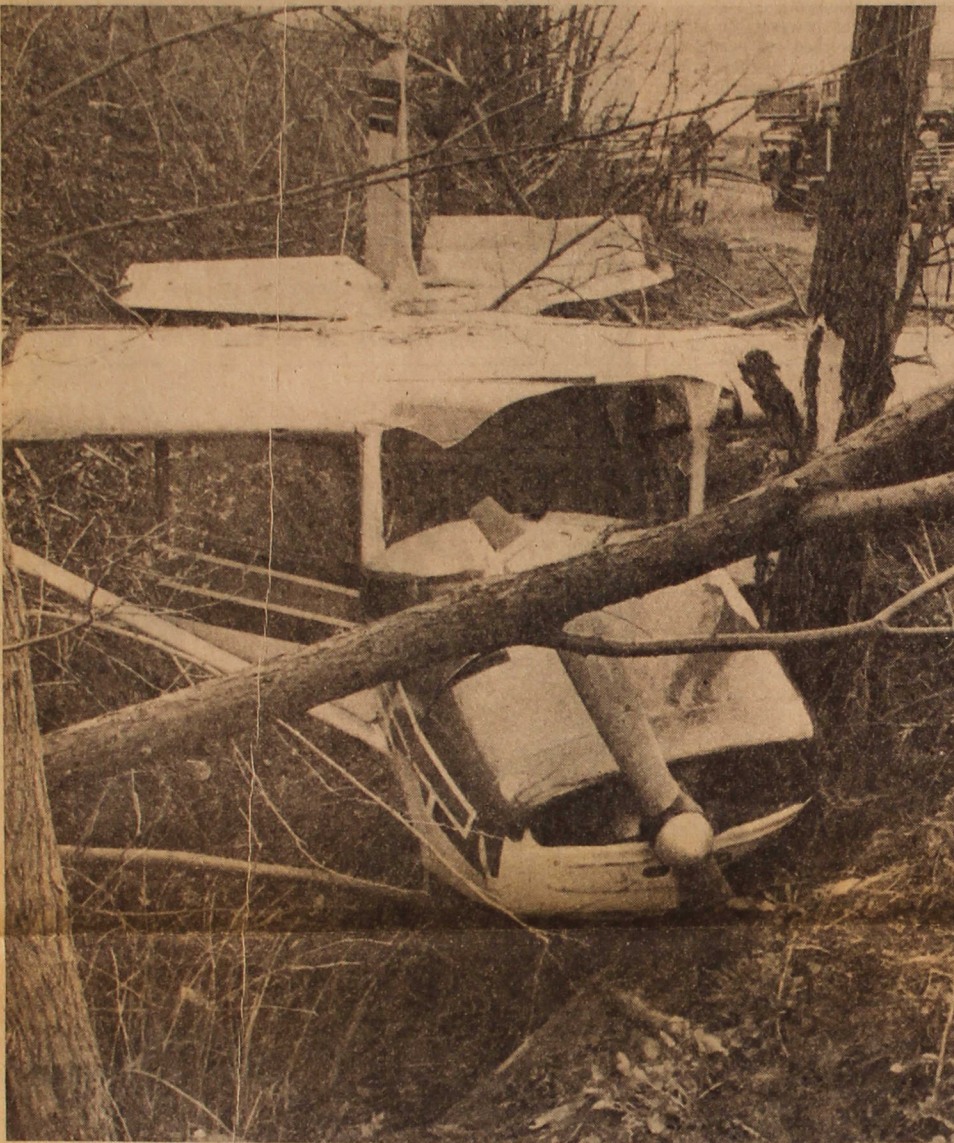

While one member of council wanted a strong letter of complaint sent to the agency, another thought a more polite letter should be sent. It was finally decided that a firm but polite letter be sent requesting that borough residents dealing with the agency be given courteous, professional treatment and helpful advice for filing their wage tax forms.

A request from Waynesburg College to erect signs directing people to the college from both the east and west entrances to the borough was approved by council as long as the signs met PennDOT specifications.

Council voted patrolman Bernard J. Bealko Jr. as a permanent employee following completion of his six months probationary period.

A request from a northside resident to have a street opened near his property was turned over to the street committee for study and recommendation. The street is a paper street and has never been open.

Since paper work from a Civil Service Commission test for the lieutenant position on the police force has not been completed council adjourned its meeting until 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 18 to consider the commission's recommendation and to award the contract to supply a flow meter for the sewerage plant.

Other than a broken windshield, the passenger compartment of this plane was not damaged

2 Escape Serious Injury

WAYNESBURG — The operator of a Waynesburg flight school and his passenger escaped serious injury in a plane crash at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the Greene County Airport.

Thomas R. Shaffer, 40, Morgantown, W. Va., and Brent Blair, 38, 444 North Maiden Street, Waynesburg, were released after being treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital.

Shaffer, owner of Windsock Aviation Co., suffered multiple bruises. Blair, a commercial photographer, suffered facial lacerations.

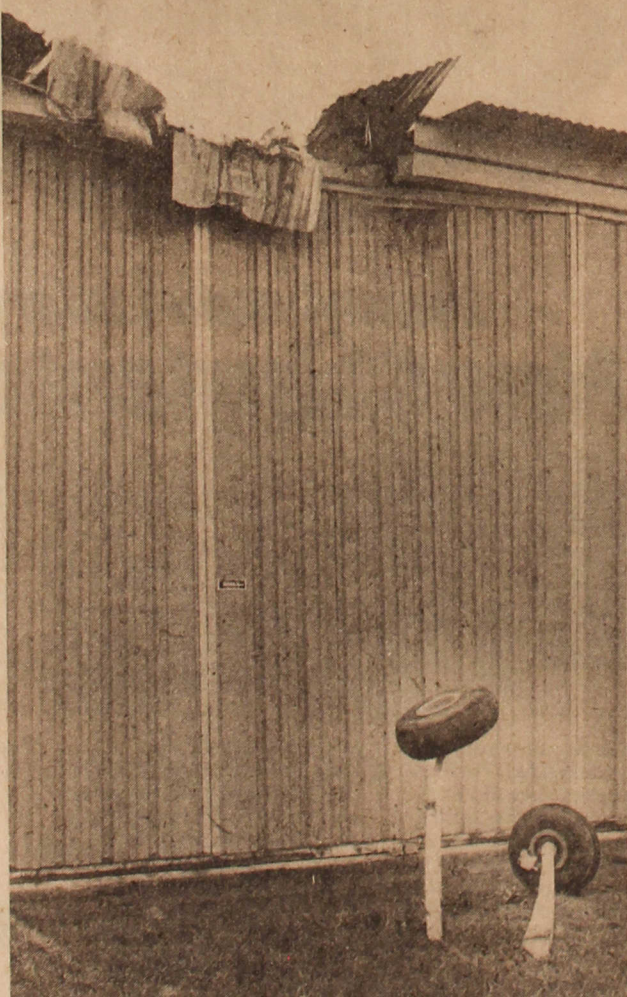

Airport Manager William Shultz said their plane apparently lost power on takeoff. It veered to the left, struck the top of a T-hangar, and then cartwheeled some 100 feet over an embankment and into a ditch close to Route 21.

"Shaffer told me he was up to about 300 feet when the motor quit," Shultz said. "They were very lucky they weren't killed or seriously injured."

Marion Clements and Frank Turko, investigators for the Federal Aviation Administration in Pittsburgh, said they suspected water in the gasoline tank as the cause for the power failure. Shultz said the tanks at the airport would be locked until Wednesday morning when the gasoline will be tested. The FAA investigators obtained samples from the tanks to be analyzed in Pittsburgh.

The plane, a two-seat, high-wing 1959 Cessna 150, was demolished.

Shaffer was taking off from east to west when the aircraft lost power. Veering south, it struck the top of the last T-hangar on the western end of the field. The nose wheel punched through the top of the metal hangar and landed on a plane owned by Herschel Gopen. The main landing gear also was torn off by the hangar.

Continuing over the top of the hangar, the plane tore out some small trees as it went over the embankment bordering Route 21 and came to rest against a tree, straddling a small brook. Both men were able to get out of the plane without help and walk away from the wreck.

Shaffer, a veteran pilot and instructor, obtained a lease to operate a flight school at the airport in March. Blair had engaged the plane to take aerial photographs for U.S. Steel of the Cumberland mine site in Kirby.

Shotgun Blast Claims Life Of Area Man, 19

WAYNESBURG — A 19-year-old Waynesburg R.D.4 man died early Thursday morning in Greene County Memorial Hospital of shotgun wounds received when he was shot by his mother's common-law husband at their home near Oak Forest.

Kenneth C. Halvin, a former resident of Canonsburg and Meadow Lands, was pronounced dead at 12:01 a.m. of internal bleeding from a massive wound to the lower left abdomen area.

William Milesky, 46, of Waynesburg R.D.4 is being held in the Greene County Jail on a charge of criminal homicide.

The victim and his mother reportedly had been living with Milesky since November when Milesky purchased the farm property.

The shooting took place at the Milesky residence on Township Route 487 in Center Township, about four miles west of Waynesburg at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Milesky, who owns the Sportsman's Bar in Finleyville, told state police he noticed a light in an unoccupied house located on his property about 50 yards from the main house.

Milesky told police he grabbed a 12-gauge shotgun, and along with his common-law-wife, Barbara S. Whitfield, went to investigate. Milesky said he went to the second floor and forced open a door which opened into a dark room.

According to police, Milesky said he noticed a figure to his left and shoved the gun in that direction and then back to his right when he noticed another figure in the dark. It was then the gun fired accidentally.

It was later determined the other person in the room was Donald Cowser, 28, of Washington. The victim is the son of Barbara Whitfield by a previous marriage.

College Receives Generous Gift

Waynesburg College will use a $100,000 gift from the Vira I. Heinz Fund of The Pittsburgh Foundation to launch the third and final phase of the recreation center project.

The gift, one of the largest single gifts ever made to the college, was announced Monday by Dr. John P. Strange, interim president of Waynesburg College. He called the gift, "a major step on the final leg of a long trip" toward completing the recreation center.

"The board of trustees and everyone at the college have been working hard to secure funding for the third phase of the project," Dr. Strange said. "With the notification that Waynesburg College has received this most generous gift we will be letting contracts for the heating, ventilation and air conditioning in the new center."

Phase one and two of the project, including renovation of the original college gym and construction of the exterior shell of the new building have been completed and paid for without the college having to assume a long-term debt, Dr. Strange pointed out.

"We know that expanded recreational facilities is a priority need at Waynesburg College," he said, "but the board is firm in its decision not to saddle the college with a long-term financial commitment."

"With this gift from the Vira I. Heinz Fund and the support of alumni and friends of the college, we will be able to move ahead with interior finishing and equipping of the new facility," he said.

Dr. Strange, a member of the board of trustees, as well as interim president, noted that more than $1.6 million in gifts and pledges have been secured for the recreation center. He added, "We are completing this center without reducing our commitment to scholarship aid or academic excellence."

Furloughs 165

BLACKSVILLE, W. Va. — Consolidation Coal Company officials have announced a work force reduction at its Blacksville No. 1 Mine located near Wana, W. Va., and the closure of another mine at Coffin, Ill.

The cutback at Blacksville began officially at 12:01 Sunday, April 3, with 165 employees being furloughed.

Franklin Twp. Ordinance Deals With Pornography

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Supervisors Monday directed their solicitor to advertise an anti-pornography ordinance and indicated their desire to merge three separate sewer districts in the township.

Kathy Bortz, spokesperson for a local anti-pornography group, and attorney Floyd King were present to present their views on the proposed ordinance which they had requested last fall.

Following a lengthy discussion during which the supervisors said they did not want to be put into a position where they must pass judgment on various magazines, it was determined the proposed ordinance would be used mainly to prevent adult book stores and movies from locating in the township.

When questioned by the supervisors, Mrs. Bortz said her group has no particular complaint about what magazines are currently being sold in local stores but would prefer the merchants to keep adult books out of reach of minors.

The ordinance would allow the supervisors to judge what is pornographic and then to take a course of action through the magistrate's office or the county court.

The proposed ordinance will be available at the township office, the Observer-Reporter office and the court library for those who would care to review the document. Following the proper advertisement in the newspaper, the supervisors will be able to vote on the matter at their next regular meeting April 25.

In other action, the supervisors expressed their desire to have the West Waynesburg and Bonar Sewer districts absorbed by the Franklin Township Sewer Authority. A meeting between the authority and the supervisors will be arranged at a later date.

At the present time, the supervisors administer both the Bonar and West Waynesburg districts although the West Waynesburg district is controlled by its own authority. The supervisors feel the districts can better be served by one organization.

The township also approved legal action against Spagnol Enterprises, owner of an abandoned two-story home and former service station in the Morrisville section which have been in disrepair for several years. Spagnol will be given 30 days in which to raze and clear the property or the township will contract for the work and charge the owner.

Neighbors have complained for years about the property being an eyesore and a haven for rats.

Coal Sale To Raise Money

WAYNESBURG — The Wheeling Creek Watershed Commission will sell 204 acres of Pittsburgh seam coal to own to raise money for purchase of support coal and some of the land it needs for construction of the sixth and final dam needed to complete its flood control system.

The coal, located in Jackson Township, will be sold to the company or individual submitting the highest acceptable bid. Bids will be opened Monday, April 25, in the watershed commission office in Waynesburg.

Commission Executive Director Ann Bower said the coal was originally purchased in 1973 for $20,000. It was acquired with the idea of trading it for coal needed for support under flood control dams.

Because of the complexity of working out trades, the commission has decided to sell the coal and use the money to buy both support coal and needed surface land. A bid of $550 an acre — the market value which Greene County assigns to Pittsburgh coal for tax purposes — would yield $112,200, and Mrs. Bower said the commission is hoping for bids in excess of that amount. It sits in the middle of a field of coal held by Standard Oil of Ohio under a lease from Pennsylvania Power and Light. She said the commission expects to realize enough to cover the cost of purchasing 33 acres of support coal and 104 acres of the 360 acres of land needed for construction of Dam Pa-648 on the Enlow Fork of Wheeling Creek in Richhill Township, in the extreme northwestern corner of the county.

The coal is leased by Consolidation Coal Co. as part of the field for its new Baily mine being developed nearby at Enon. The 104 acres of surface is also owned by a Consolidation-related company.

"The commission has been dealing with Consolidation and anticipates no difficulty in acquiring the needed property," Mrs. Bower said.

The executive director anticipates that the coal sale also will produce sufficient funds to complete the purchase of 25.8 acres of coal which the watershed commission acquired by condemnation at the time it built a flood control dam on Robinson Run in southwestern Washington County.

Construction of Dam Pa-648 will complete a network of six water impoundments in Pennsylvania and West Virginia to control water runoff in the Wheeling Creek watershed and a means of substantially eliminating flooding of the creek at Wheeling.

Total cost of the project has been estimated at $8.2 million, with $7.2 million of it coming from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Unlike the other five dams in the system, it

Coach Named Man-Of-Year

NEW YORK — Claire Bee, a 1925 graduate of Waynesburg College, who went on to become one of the most successful college basketball coaches in history, was recently named Kodak/National Invitation Tournament Man-of-the Year during ceremonies in New York City.

Bee, 87, coached Long Island University from 1931 to 1951 and was a fixture at national playoff games. With 410 wins against 86 losses, his 82.7 winning percentage remains the highest among major college coaches.

His LIU teams once had 139 consecutive home court victories and had winning streaks as long as 43 and 38 in a row. His teams won national championships in 1936, 1939 and 1941.

will be built as a "dry" dam, storing water only under flood conditions and then gradually releasing it downstream.

Even though there will be no permanent pool of water, all land to the "top-of-dam" elevation must be purchased outright or will be placed under a "conservation easement," since it cannot be developed in any way. Mrs. Bower has been negotiating with property owners and anticipates that all acquisitions will be completed by July.

"We are expecting to close one major purchase next week," she said.

Negotiations with Columbia Gas Co. are more difficult. The company has a large gas storage pool under the property and three of the access wells are located within the area of the flood pool.

"All three wells will have to be plugged and new wells drilled to replace them outside the project area," Mrs. Bower said. "In addition, transmission lines and access roads will have to be relocated."

She expects, however, an agreement to be worked out eventually, with no delay in the timetable, which calls for the start of construction in the spring of 1984.

Fire Damage

Observer-Reporter

This mobile home on Pine Street in Jefferson was gutted by fire at 12:15 p.m. Tuesday, leaving Lulu Shanel homeless. Mrs. Shanel was at the home of a neighbor, Cathy Henderson, when the blaze was spotted by David Henderson, Cathy's husband, who was working outside. Jefferson Fire Chief Earl McManus said the mobile home was owned by Noble Wine of Waynesburg. He estimated the loss at $15,000.

Board Doesn't Take Safety 'Light'ly

By Christie Molzon, Staff Writer

MAPLETOWN — Concern for student safety prompted the Southeastern Greene School Board to attempt to install flashing lights at two intersections and relocate part of a road on routes traveled by school buses.

For several years, the school board has tried to get help from elected officials and state Department of Transportation officials for the installation of lights at Fieldsons Crossroads and Mapletown Crossroads. The board also has sought assistance in getting a road-slide fixed on LR 30030 in Dunkard Township.

In a meeting April 5 between Business Manager Floyd Geho, Assistant Superintendent Charles Wyda and PennDOT officials, PennDOT said it would cost $3,000 to install a single flashing sign beacon on the northern advance to the intersection of Route 88 and LR 30068 (Fieldsons Crossroads), and $30 for monthly maintenance of the sign. An overhead flashing beacon at the intersection of T-708 and Route 88 (Mapletown Crossroads) would cost $5,000 for installation and $80 a month maintenance. Correction of a landslide at the entrance to the Gugliotta Coal Mine also was discussed.

The board agreed to send a letter to the Monongahela Township supervisors asking them to apply for the traffic lights and to send a letter to PennDOT asking they include money to correct the landslide in its budget. The cost to correct the landslide, by relocating the road, is $113,000.

The board also requested letters be sent to the county commissioners and state Sen. Barry Stout, alerting them to the problems.

It was noted that work on the Bobtown bridge is nearing completion and Wyda was asked to make plans to re-route school buses over it when it is finished.

A special meeting will be held Wednesday, April 20, at 7 p.m. to purchase bonds for the renovation of the Bobtown Elementary School. The closing date for the project is expected to come during the second week of May. After the meeting the board will meet with the bus contractors to discuss service costs.

Board President James Minor removed himself from the committee negotiating with non-professionals in the district whose contract will expire June 30. On the committee are Bob Watson, Floyd Hornick, John Mason, with Adam Novak as alternate.

Approval was given to apply for federal money to expand the microcomputer program for the elementary and secondary level. Superintendent Gerald Marcinak said the $12,396 grant will be used to purchase seven additional computers and related software and noted the district is considering starting a computer science program.

A request for a senior class trip to Busch

Gardens, Jamestown and Williamsburg, Va., for the weekend of May 21 was approved. The board also set Sunday, June 12, as the graduation date.

The board awarded a contract to H&H Water Pollution Controls to complete monthly water testing for $75 a month.

County Cancer Unit Presents Several Awards

WAYNESBURG — Presentation of a number of awards highlighted a dinner meeting of the Greene County Unit of the American Cancer Society, held Tuesday night at the Waynesburg fire hall.

The event was the first combination kick-off and awards dinner and featured an address by Arnold Morris of New Castle, a native of Waynesburg who is treasurer of the Pennsylvania Division.

William P. Mellars of Waynesburg, who served as county Cancer Crusade chairman in 1982, announced that voting for the William E. Gabler Memorial Award had ended in a tie, so a dual award will be made for the first time.

Recipients were Betty Evans, who has served as Crusade chairwoman in Aleppo for about 25 years, and to Susie Miller, crusade chairwoman in Jefferson for the past 20 years. They were recognized for consistency in reaching and exceeding their area goals.

The third annual Mary E. Ross Memorial Award, given in honor of a former executive director of the unit, went to Ann Jacobs, registered nurse, who served as Nurse of Hope in 1982. She was cited for her work as chairwoman of the Cancer Prevention Survey, in which she involved 51 volunteers. The survey had a quota of reaching 280 people, but actually reached 408.

Several special awards were given.

The unit Inspirational Award went to Harry S. Anderson of Waynesburg for his work with the unit over a period of 32 years. He was county Crusade Chairman in 1955, 1956 and 1958; served as unit president from 1962 to 1965 and again in 1974 and 1975; has served as state Crusade chairman, and for two years was chairman of the board of the Pennsylvania Division.

"Harry has inspired many people to become American Cancer Society volunteers," Albert D. Marriner said in presenting the award.

Anderson presented special awards to Mellars for his job as 1982 Crusade chairman and to Albert Marriner for his work as 1982 residential chairman.

Service awards, presented to volunteers in five-year increments, also were presented.

Thirty-year volunteers recognized were Verona Shahan of Whiteley Township, and Betty Shimet and Mildred Good, both of Teagarden Homes, Clarksville.

Receiving 25-year awards were Mrs. Michael Thomas of Bobtown and Mrs. John Holleran of Waynesburg. Susie Miller of Jefferson received a 20-year award.

Connie Teagarden of Waynesburg and Carolyn Mitchell of Carmichaels were recognized for 15 years of service. Ten-year awards went to Sally Shriver of Rogersville, Peggy Morgan of Franklin Township, Mrs. Walter Hunt of Rices Landing and Helen Herrington of Whiteley Township.

Recognized for five years of service were Helen Pallai, Rebecca Lemley and Jackie Terlesky, all of Mt. Morris; Mrs. William Ferrari of Rices Landing, Rhea Phillips of Waynesburg, Sarah Williamson of Franklin Township, Sarah Yost and Regina Grim of Davistown, Elizabeth Dingle of Bobtown and Norma Jean Phillips of Teagarden Homes, Clarksville.

Mrs. Richard Hamilton of Center Township was recognized for having doubled her quota in the 1982 Crusade. Eleven other community chairmen were recognized for exceeding their goal by more than $50, and 11 chairmen were recognized for exceeding their quotas.

Heavy Rain Tests Twp. Sewer System

CARMICHAELS — The Cumberland Township sewer system performed well last week despite the 1.95 inches of rain which fell Thursday through Saturday.

Plant Manager Edgar Harris reported to the sewer authority board Tuesday that all equipment had worked well, with no backup even in the Route 88 area.

"Two years ago, such a rain would have required days of pumping out basements," he said. "With the improvements made in the system since that time, there was no problem with basements."

Harris also reported that riser rings have been ordered for the manholes on the Old Waynesburg Road at a total cost of $1,300. The township plans to resurface that road during the first week of May. As the blacktop is laid, the rings will be installed to raise the lids to the new road level.

The board agreed to meet next week with a representative of the authority employees' union, Laborers District Council of Western Pennsylvania to discuss contract negotiations. The union, which was recognized several months ago, expects to have a contract effective Oct. 1, when the authority fiscal year begins.

Five sites will be stocked during the week of May 8. Officials will stock 1,950 in Enlow Fork, 750 in Templeton Fork, 875 in Ten Mile Creek, 2,100 in Ryerson Station Lake and 1,900 in Dunkard Fork of Wheeling Creek.

The Land Down Under Rated Tops

By Christie R. Molzon, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — Theresa Lacava of Waynesburg had always had a desire to visit Australia and last year she got her chance.

As part of the Rotary International Graduate Fellowship program, Miss Lacava spent a year at the University of Queensland in Brisbane studying bio-chemistry. The daughter of Louis and Jean Lacava, she is the first student the Waynesburg Rotary Club has had take part in this program.

A 1981 graduate of Waynesburg College, Miss Lacava majored in chemistry and first learned of the Rotary program through one of her professors. To qualify, students must have received their B.A. or B.S. degree and live on the university campus. All tuition, books, plane fare and living expenses are paid by the Rotary club. While in Australia, Miss Lacava was assigned to a Rotary club and kept in touch with her advisor weekly.

In many ways, life on the island continent is similar to the United States, although Miss Lacava found the pace somewhat slower. Stores close early on weekends, movies are not shown after 8 p.m. and even clubs close by 11 p.m. since bands quit playing soon after 9:30. She was pleased to learn she could call ahead to a movie theater and reserve a seat, but was surprised that advertisements are shown for an hour prior to the feature.

The adventurous type, Miss Lacava took a number of small trips to see other areas of the country. She spent a week camping in a rural area where it was common to see kangaroos. She stayed with a family on a large cattle ranch and, because she wanted to see a ghetto area, had her Rotary advisor drive her through Kings Cross, a noted "red light" district in the country. She especially liked the large, clean beaches which are always open, free of charge, to the public. Rarely did she see any litter.

Australians are the outdoor type and love sports, but they are sports participants rather than spectators. Most adult men belong to a cricket team and a large number enjoy surfing. The winters are mild and there is no central heating or air conditioning in homes.

There are many reminders throughout the country of Australia's involvement in World War II — each town has a memorial to the war. Miss Lacava said towns the size of Ruff Creek would have one. She heard that one-third of the male population of that country died in the war and every year they remember their war dead on Anzac Day, similar to our Memorial Day.

Miss Lacava stayed in a dormitory at the University of Queensland which has a student population of 20,000. She did not have a roommate since Australians believe such an arrangement would be an invasion of privacy. About half of the students in her dormitory were from other countries.

She did not find the coursework any more difficult than in America, except that exams are only given at the end of each semester. Following 13 weeks of lecture there is a week for study followed by exams, which are all two-hour essay tests. The exam period lasts for two or three weeks. "By the end of that month I was very tired," she said.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

This photo was taken from the extensive John O'Hara collection. Unfortunately, there was no identification but it's apparent it is a Waynesburg High School football team many years ago. Perhaps, the photo will bring back memories for some readers.

Fact and Folklore
 John O'Hara

WAYNESBURG — The boysuddled around the hot stove were talking the other day about the career of Harold Moore, whose career in the automotive industry spanned generations and an almost unbelievable amount of progress.

Harold, whose father the late Leander Moore was a partner in the first Ford agency in Waynesburg, learned a great deal about cars being around his father's garage. He was to end his career many years later with an association with the Rolls Royce—from puddle jumper to the elite.

Harold and his family came to Waynesburg from West Virginia. Leander and his brother-in-law soon became well known for their musical ability and both played the bass horn in the town band. They were immediately successful with their Ford agency as the cars practically sold themselves.

Their greatest pleasure came from the Saturday night concerts on the courthouse plaza.

Both of Leander's sons, Harold and Albert fell into the routine of the auto business as naturally as a farmer's son would learn to pitch hay, cultivate corn or spread manure.

Eventually, Harold, the older son, moved to larger fields and became a well known mechanic along Pittsburgh's automobile row in the East End Section of the city.

His particular skills eventually came to the attention of the Pittsburgh firm which sold the famous Rolls Royce. He then worked on the car which is most preferred by millionaires. Harold, who recently celebrated his 80th birthday, never went back to the Fords and remained a Rolls Royce mechanic for the remainder of his career.

Albert, the younger brother, spent most of his working life with Equitable Gas Company and is now retired and living in Waynesburg.

Both still hold a special place in their hearts for the old Model T and remain convinced you couldn't beat the old Ford for getting through the mud on Saturday nights.

The Cast Is Different But The Battle Goes On

It has a familiar ring. Carmichaels Mayor Luella A. Galatic is voicing strong objections to a proposal by Carmichaels Borough Council to purchase two lots near the center of town as the location for a new borough building.

She feels it would be an unjustified expenditure of $18,000 when the borough has just $36,000 remaining from a $95,000 insurance payment it received five years ago after the former borough building burned down.

She feels if council can't get clear title to land on which the former building stood, it should utilize part of adjoining property which was donated to the town by Consolidation Coal Co. for erection of the structure.

Mrs. Galatic discounts council's argument that the former coal company lots are remote from the center of town, pointing out they are within some 1,000 feet of the property council wants to buy. She also points out that saving of the $18,000 would leave that much more money available for the purchase of building materials, reducing indebtedness and therefore lightening the burden on taxpayers.

The mayor says she had intended to voice her opinion at the meeting at which council voted to buy the new property, but was prevented from doing so when the president of council gavelled the meeting to a close.

It's easy to remember the years-long feud which former Mayor Paul Connor had with citizens then serving on council over plans for a new borough building.

Both he and the council members he fought are all out of office. But though the faces have changed, the battle seems far from being over.

Hospital Union Votes Again

WAYNESBURG — Report last Friday of a contract settlement between Greene County Memorial Hospital and Local 585, Service Employees International Union (SEIU), proved to be premature.

But negotiations Tuesday produced a final settlement which Rosemary Trump, head of the Pittsburgh-based union, said will give the hospital's 204 union employees an 80-cent-an-hour increase in base wages over the next 18 months.

The union reported Friday that employees had agreed to a 5 1/2 percent raise retroactive to April 1, and an additional 5 percent increase on April 1, 1984. The ratification vote was subsequently disavowed, however, because only 79 members had voted to accept the offer, while 55 voted to reject the offer but continue working and 32 voted to reject the proposal and go on strike, making a total of 87 who had voted to turn down the offer.

Following negotiations Tuesday, employees voted by a 113 to 59 majority to accept a proposal calling for a raise of 25 cents an hour retroactive to April 1, another 15 cents an hour on Oct. 1 of this year, an additional 25 cents an hour on April 1, 1984, and a final 15 cents an hour on Oct. 1, 1984.

In addition, the agreement provides that laid-off employees will retain their seniority for up to one year rather than six months, and that licensed practical nurses who are team leaders will, for the first time, receive a wage differential of 25 cents an hour.

Miss Trump said the wage settlement was substantially the same as the offer which was voted on last Friday.

"We felt there was not a clear majority for acceptance of the former offer, and we had been given to understand there might be more money available for an additional increase," Miss Trump said. "During negotiations today (Tuesday), however, we learned that the report on the availability of more money was a false rumor and felt we got the best offer available without a strike."

Hospital Administrator Michael Flinn said the offer accepted Tuesday was the same in terms of economic impact as the one proposed last week.

The former contract expired on March 31 and employees had been working on a day-to-day basis since that time. The 204 union members include all hospital employees with the exception of registered nurses and administrative personnel.

Energy Options There's More Than Oil And Gas

WAYNESBURG — There are numerous ways to bypass conventional heating sources such as oil, gas or electricity to heat or cool a house and many people in Greene County have made good use of these alternative energy sources in their homes.

People who are interested in exploring these alternative energy uses will have an opportunity to see some of them during the Energy Options House Tour scheduled for Sunday, April 17.

There are 13 houses on the tour which encompasses both Washington and Greene counties, and individuals may stop at as many of them as they want between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. The tour is being sponsored by the League of Women Voters in Washington County in conjunction with a number of other agencies.

One of the homes on the tour in Greene County is owned by Art and Deb LaNoue of Sycamore R.D.1. Another is one that built by Paul and Ruth Ann Medency of Prosperity R.D.2. Both families have realized savings in home heating costs since employing passive and active solar heating systems and both burn only wood for heat. The LaNoue home is 150 years old while the Medency's built their house less than three years ago.

In the Medency home, double-pane windows stretch along one wall facing south. During the day, sunlight streams into the home, falling on ceramic tiles on the floor which help to trap the heat in the concrete flooring beneath it. At night, insulated and tight-fitting window quilts are drawn to keep out the cold.

The Medency's burn only wood in their Buck Stove downstairs. The house is open enough throughout that the heat rises into the bedrooms upstairs. A roof overhang prevents overheating in the summer. The north side of the house is buffered with storage areas and is earth-bermed.

Wood also is the only source of heat in the LaNoue home. Mrs. LaNoue prefers cooking on her wood stove to her electric range.

Last summer the LaNoues installed a solar collector for the hot water tank. The collector cost about $200 to build in two days and the family is saving about $20 a month with it. Gravity-fed water from the well thermosyphons into the electric hot water tank, heating the water above 212 degrees. There are no pumps or wires involved in this active solar system.

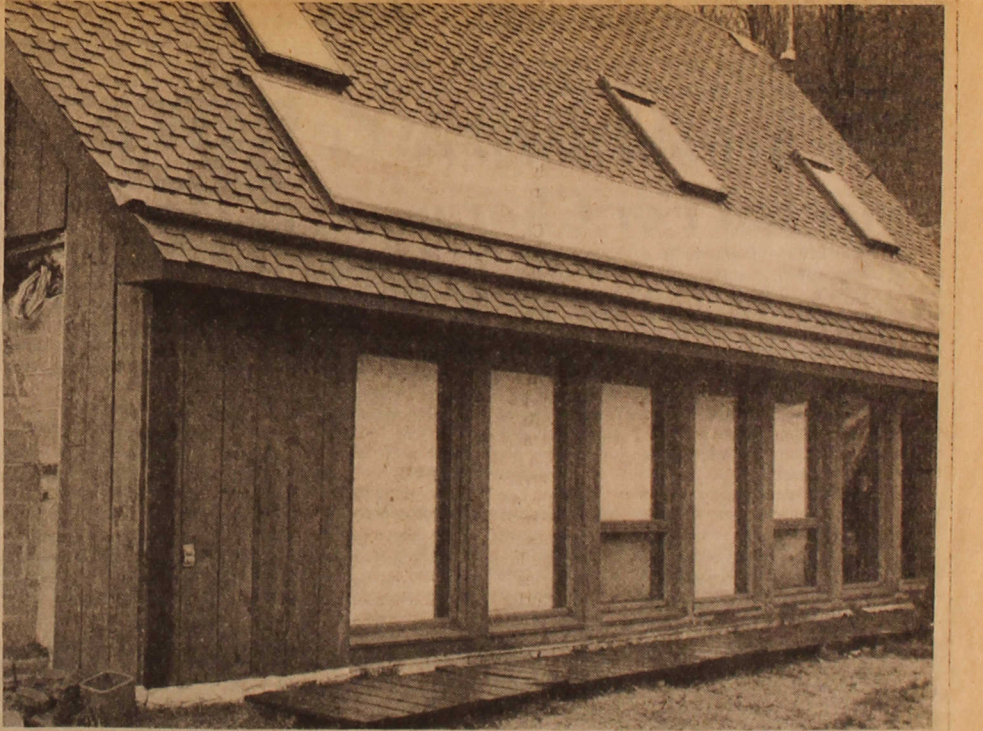

The LaNoues also built a food drier in their backyard from plans they had seen in a book on solar energy. Using a similar solar collector, the warm air travels up into the drier and out a chimney. They use their food drier to preserve fruits and vegetables and it cost them about $50.

Of the 13 homes on the tour, six are located in Washington County and seven in Greene County. Maps and explanations of the different energy sources of heating or cooling are available to participants. Cost of the tour is $3 per person and $5 a couple.

Co-sponsoring the event along with the Washington County League of Women Voters are Citizens Library of Washington, Peters Township Library, Flenniken Memorial Library of Carmichaels, the Washington-Greene County Tourist Promotion Agency, Washington-Greene Community Action Corp. and the Pennsylvania Energy Center for the region. Tickets are available from each agency.

The tour is dedicated to the memory of Ronald Duke, the late superintendent of Ryerson Station State Park, for the example he set in using renewable energy sources.

Double-pane windows on the south side of the Medency home let the sun heat the house.

'82 Wool Payments Lower

WAYNESBURG — Checks totaling $23,829, covering 1982 wool incentive payments, were mailed Friday to 185 Greene County sheep raisers by the county Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) office in Waynesburg.

Office Manager Paul Loar said the total amount being paid is substantially lower than the previous year because of the low price brought by wool in 1982.

The producers are receiving 96.3 cents for every dollar they received when they sold their wool last year. Those who sold unshorn lambs are receiving $2.54 for each 100 pounds sold.

The average price of wool fell to 35 cents in 1982, as compared to 92 cents in 1981, Loar said.

"The price was so low that many producers did not sell," he said, noting that the number of producers sharing in the distribution this year is lower than usual.

The wool incentive program is one of the federal farm programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is designed to encourage farmers to maintain the production of sheep.

Bill and Pat Davis with champion Davis' Pac Man

Showing Fox Hound Is Rewarding Hobby

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — Pac Man is more than a noisy character on a quarter-gulping machine to Bill and Pat Davis of Waynesburg R.D.3.

Breeders of nationally known fox hounds, the Davis family recently returned from Pensacola Beach, Fla., where their 18-month-old Davis' Pac Man was judged "best in show" at the Florida International American Fox Hound Club Show.

Pac Man's sire was Taylor's Golden Crest, a champion hound from Virginia and the dam was national champion Top Hill Cleopatra, raised by the Davis family.

The silver punchbowl set awarded for the top prize will be placed with a growing collection of trophies that has filled the Davis home and garage. It has reached the point where Bill gives away many trophies to friends and organizations.

Over 7,000 hounds were entered in the Florida show held at the Hilton Hotel. Dog owners from 10 states were represented.

Prestigious awards are nothing new for the retired construction equipment operator who has been handling fox hounds for the past two decades. A Davis family hound won the national championship in 1972, 1975 and 1976.

Past accomplishments in the raising of fox hounds have resulted in both Bill and Pat being named to responsible positions in the National Fox Hunters Association. Bill is currently serving on the executive board of the national director's association and Pat serves as a judge at shows all over the eastern United States. Both have been active with the Greene County Fox Hunters Association for many years with Bill having served many terms as president.

On any given day, there will be nine or 10 prize animals in the well-kept kennel behind their home. Retired champions live in luxury after winning the top prize because they are no longer eligible to compete after winning the national title.

Breeding their own dogs is not only a personal satisfaction, it's a good economical move also. It's not unusual to pay $400 or $500 for a good puppy, according to Davis. He said a friend recently paid $2,000 for a hound.

A native of West Virginia, Davis said his father got him interested in the hounds many years ago. Since moving to Greene County, Bill has been associated with neighbor Frank Higgins in all phases of breeding and hunting fox hounds. Wife Pat, who runs the laboratory at Greene County Memorial Hospital, also became active and now does most of the grooming.

Bill and Pat say the best thing about their hobby is the many nice people they have met from the East Coast to the Mississippi River.

Jackets Fall Bucs Crush Bucs Rout Two Times West Greene JM Rockets

CORAOPOLIS — Waynesburg College dropped a doubleheader to Robert Morris Wednesday in its first action of the season. The Yellow Jackets lost the first game 3-2 and the nightcap 5-3.

In the first game, Mark Schmidt cracked an RBI double in the third and Chuck MacAfee knocked in the game winner with a single in the sixth. Kevin Jozwiakowski drove in Waynesburg's two run in the first on a single.

In the second game, Tom Giser limited the Jackets to five hits to pick up the win.

HOUSTON — Jim Hall won four individual events and Bob Arnold three Tuesday to help Chartiers-Houston High School defeat West Greene, 111-38, in WPIAL track and field competition.

Hall finished first in the 100-yard dash (11.0), 440-yard run (56.0), 220-yard dash (25.1) and high jump (5'10") while Arnold won first place in the long jump (19'2"), triple jump (38'5 1/2") and javelin (132'6").

In addition, Ed Sasek won the mile run (5:06) and 880-yard run (2:20) for the Bucs (4-0). West Greene is now 0-1.

HOUSTON — Jefferson-Morgan's Lincoln Robinson won four events but Chartiers-Houston High School had too much overall strength Thursday when the Bucs scored a 106-44 victory to increase their record to 3-0 in boys track and field competition.

Robinson captured the 100 meter and 440 meter dashes, in addition to the long jump and triple jump.

The Bucs' only double winner was Art DiGiovanni in the 120 and 330 meter hurdles.

Verdicts Still Out For Jackets

By Denise Bachman, O-R Sports Staff

Wait and wonder. That's about all Hayden Buckley can do these days. But for Buckley, that has become routine around this time every year.

The Waynesburg College football coach has laid the groundwork for his 1983 recruiting season, contacting numerous prospects and showing them the Yellow Jackets' facilities. With the final decision resting on the recruits and a few more planning to visit the campus, Buckley is now in limbo.

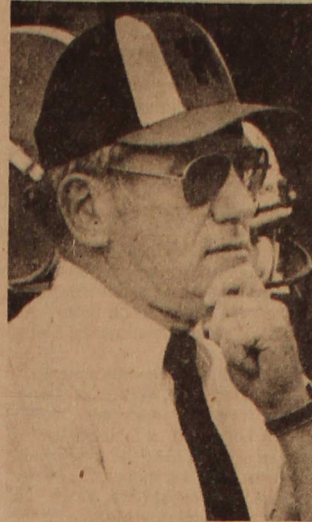

But, according to Buckley, there's no cause for panic.

"We anticipate a good year," says Buckley, who is entering his 11th year as the Yellow Jackets' head coach. "We've had 82 kids visit, plus many more who are planning to visit. We'll get our share.

"Sometimes you think you're not doing anything worth a toot (in recruiting), but the next time you look you could be doing great."

And Buckley says the Yellow Jackets' primary concern is signing quality athletes, not athletes to fill specific positions.

"We've got people returning at all positions," he says. "We just need a few guys to add some spark to what we have.

"We've built our program by getting as many athletes as we can. We've formed a pretty good program by doing that."

The Yellow Jackets, who are coming off a 4-4-1 season, have a few obvious vacancies to fill, beginning at quarterback where they need to find a replacement for three-year starter Mike Forbes. In contention for the starting role are junior Kent Marisa and seniors Casey Cavanaugh and Kevin Stover, all of whom saw some action last year.

Also gone from the offense are runningback Keith Davis, guard Ron Johnston and center Stu McCaw. But some notable veterans returning on offense are tailback Otto Birkhead and fullback Pete Long, who is recovering from off-season leg surgery, and receivers Cline Hunt, Matt Toney and Dave Zilli.

Consequently, with quarterback the only position in question on offense, it's understandable why Buckley is quite optimistic.

"We pretty much have our offensive line back from last season," Buckley says. "We have a more solid bunch returning on offense than we do on defense. We need to find backup people on offense.

"One of our big concerns is finding a kid who can make the long snap. Stu (McCaw) did a fantastic job for us. If there was anybody who was ever letter perfect, it was him."

Although Buckley isn't exactly rattled about the defense, it does pose a few more problems for the Yellow Jackets. They've lost five key players, including end Kevin Davis, tackle Dan Pepock and Jan Jesso, Ted Rodavich and Matt Rodriguez in the secondary.

But the nucleus that returns on defense is very sound, which has given Buckley the reason to smile. The defensive unit will be spearheaded by linemen Joe Persichetti and Jeff Standish, linebacker Fremont Catlin and safety Steve Burchianti.

"We need to find various people on defense," Buckley says. "We need to find a defensive end, a couple of down linemen and a couple in the secondary to really do it."

And at this point, Buckley doesn't doubt the Yellow Jackets will find the combinations they need.

"We usually end up getting 30, 35 freshmen, and if we can get our 35 we'll be all right," he says. "The program and the school sell themselves."

Riggle Sets Hiller Mark

Cindy Riggle broke her own mark in the 800-meter run Thursday en route to a 100-40 Trinity High School girls track win over Waynesburg.

WPIAL Easily Sweetens Pot

By Denise Bachman, O-R Sports Staff

PITTSBURGH — Maybe it wasn't a PIAA championship, but it was the best way to say goodbye to their high school wrestling careers.

After finishing their senior seasons three weeks ago at the PIAA Wrestling Championships with one goal unfulfilled, four local wrestlers capped brilliant high school careers with impressive victories at the Ninth Annual Wrestling Classic at the Pitt Field House Saturday night.

Washington's Randy Agnew, Trinity's Kevin Holley and Waynesburg's John Throckmorton and Kevin

Durkin accounted for 24 points en route to leading the WPIAL to a stunning 43-7 win over Oklahoma.

And Holley, the Hillers' outstanding heavyweight, was doubly lauded for his efforts as he was named the Most Valuable Wrestler for the WPIAL. Holley threw a tight headlock on Oklahoma standout James Welch and took him to his back at 1:26.

Also giving Holley a boost was the surprising domination his WPIAL teammates displayed in eight of the 11 other bouts which saw four Oklahoma state champions lose. Agnew, who wrestled at 112 pounds, and Durkin (185) joined Holley in notching the only falls for the WPIAL. Agnew pinned Oklahoma's Mark Lehanbaur at 3:10 and Durkin secured a fall at 2:54 over Clint Colson.

Meanwhile, Throckmorton won by default over Quad-A state champion Tim Stingley, who was suffering from an injured shoulder. At the time of the default (3:59), Throckmorton was leading 8-4.

Saturday night's victories were perhaps most satisfying for Throckmorton and Durkin, who both bowed out of the PIAA tournament in the first round.

"I definitely rather, would have taken states, but this makes up a little," Throckmorton said. "I figured this was my last match in high school, so I just went out to wrestle."

"I didn't want to win by default. I didn't realize it at first. I just thought we were getting back up to wrestle."

Durkin, who wrestled at 167 during most of the regular season, took a very relaxed approach to the Classic and was thrilled with the results.

"After choking at states, this was sweet revenge," he said. "I was extremely relaxed. If I had been this relaxed at states, I would've done a lot better."
