Coder Upsets Incumbent Prothonotary Hogue

WAYNESBURG — The early favorites in the Greene County commissioner races all came through with victories in Tuesday's primary election, but not without knowing they had been in a fight.

The only incumbent to go down to defeat was two-term Prothonotary Charles Hogue of Waynesburg, who lost by a substantial majority to political newcomer Dave Coder of Greene Township, 5,415 to 3,902. Although the race had been predicted as close, Coder's feat in picking up 58 percent of the vote was a surprise.

In the Democratic commissioner race, incumbent Leonard R. (Butch) Santore was the top vote getter with 3,625 votes, giving him a step up toward a second term. The other nomination went to Dan Bailey with 3,420 votes.

Kelce Mosley was third with 2,656, followed by James M. Rizor with 2,344, Marian C. Rush with 1,590, former county treasurer T. William Barnes with 1,553, and W. Jack Whitlatch with 1,117.

The two Republican nominations went to incumbent Richard S. Cowan with 1,333 votes and John R. Gardner with 1,040, setting the stage for a rerun of their race of four years ago when Cowan edged Gardner by some 200 votes to win a second term.

Lloyd (Odie) Rohanna, making his first bid for public office, ran third with 781 votes, followed by Frances Tompkins with 571 and Joyce B. Peccon with 264.

In the Democrat commissioner race, Mosley built up an early lead and wound up carrying 17 precincts, but could not withstand the onslaught of votes from eastern Greene County and was swept out of contention by Santore and Bailey, each of whom carried 14 precincts.

Bailey, for example, polled 1,081 of his votes in Cumberland Township, his home municipality, while Santore got 737 and Mosley 347. On the other hand, while Mosley was able to carry his home area of Franklin Township with 421 votes, Santore and Bailey kept in reach with 394 and 290 votes, respectively.

Rizor, who entered the campaign as a political unknown, did surprisingly well in the view of most political observers.

While Hogue was upset in his bid for a third term, two other incumbent "row officers" were able to stave off challenges.

County Treasurer Joseph R. Souders garnered 55 percent of the vote in defeating Robert E. (Bob) Elliott, 5,270 to 4,250, and veteran Clerk of Courts Al Darney collected 60 percent of the vote to defeat Karen E. Sabo, 5,804 to 3,814.

Register and Recorder Thomas M. Headlee and District Attorney Charles J. Morris were top vote-getters in the Democratic primary with 8,502 and 8,329 votes, respectively. Neither was opposed.

Incumbent Democratic Auditors Betty June Long and Genevieve Morrow, with 5,800 and 5,285 votes, were also both assured of nomination.

In the Republican primary, Ann Clausner was unopposed for the clerk of courts nomination, receiving 1,439 votes, and Pauline Rice, who got 1,416 votes, was the only candidate for prothonotary.

The Republican nomination for treasurer, where there was no candidate, will remain up in the air until the official count has been completed. Unofficial returns indicated that Souders received 353 write-in votes while Elliott got 325.

Incumbent Viola G. Donovan and Joan Mason Spitznogle were unopposed for the two Republican county auditor nominations.

As had been expected, the vote was heavy.

Of the 13,237 registered Democrat voters, 9,288 went to the polls for a turnout of 70 percent. Republicans did even better, as 72 percent (2,495) of their 3,450 registered electors voted.

The three state judicial races, county voters, without exception, gave preference to candidates from western Pennsylvania.

In the Supreme Court contest, for example, Democrats gave Judge Nicholas P. Papadakos of Allegheny County 5,471 votes. The next closest was Lee Swartz of Daphn County with 640 votes.

Patrick R. Tamilia, Ronald Cooper, James R. McGregor and Joseph A. DeSole, all of Allegheny County, were heavily favored in the Superior Court race. Francis A. Barry of Allegheny County was top vote getter for the Commonwealth Court with 4,432 votes.

Incumbent Richhill Twp. Supervisor Loses In Upset

Probably the biggest news in the township races was the upset of Richhill Township Supervisor Paul Day who has been in office for over 20 years.

Day was defeated by former supervisor Ray Whipkey 127 to 67 in a five-way race. Whipkey will now face Republican nominee Rex Rohm who was unopposed.

Other township results were as follows:

ALEPPO

Gary Tedrow led six candidates for the Democrat nomination for supervisor by collecting 48 votes. He was followed by Fred Courtwright, 39; Earl Cook, 37; Wylie Cheek, 17; James Anderson, 14 and Gary Pierson, 9. Tedrow will be unopposed as he won the Republican nomination with 22 write-in votes against listed candidate Howard Laur who had 15 votes. Republican Elaine Scott will be unopposed for township auditor as will Alexia Inghram for the constable post.

CENTER

Ron Whipkey, a Democrat, won nomination for both parties in the supervisors race. He polled 119 as a Democrat and was followed by Gary Hughes, 84; Roy Inghram, 58 and Floyd Pettit, 49. For the GOP nomination, Whipkey had 38 write-in votes and Inghram had 29 votes.

Republican John Smith will be unopposed for auditor while Richard Burns will be unopposed for constable after getting 10 write-in votes on the GOP ticket.

CUMBERLAND

Incumbent William Groves not only defeated his Democrat opponent but used a write-in campaign to defeat the GOP challenger as well in the supervisors race. Groves beat Democrat Tom Simkovic 1,321 to 559 and also collected 110 Republican votes to beat listed candidate Frank Walters who had 88.

Simkovic fared better in the auditor's race by collecting 683 votes to defeat Mitchell Brozik, 502 and Ronald Hanks, 544. Simkovic will be unopposed because there is no Republican candidate.

DUNKARD

Joseph E. Fell is assured of being a supervisor next year after defeating three Democrat opponents and winning the GOP nomination on a write-in decision. Fell collected 268 votes while Joseph McClure had 244, James W. Allum Jr., 138 and Tom Orban, 30. Fell had 23 GOP write-in votes.

Although there were no listed candidates for auditor, it appears Fred Titus will be the Democrat candidate on the basis of 150 write-in votes. Jim Abel garnered enough GOP write-in votes to take the nomination for the six year term. Jacalyn Malone will be unopposed for the two-year term as a Democrat.

FRANKLIN

Incumbent Ralph (Jake) Porter won the GOP nomination for supervisor by getting 134 votes to defeat Jim Winters, 114 and William Hopkins, 107. Porter will face Robert E. Anderson who won the Democrat nomination with 288 votes. Anderson beat Mark Morris, 248; Donald Zollars, 247; Jack Cummins, 138 and Hiram Watson, 133.

John Parker will be unopposed for auditor as he was the only Democrat candidate and the GOP failed to offer a candidate.

FREEPORT

Walter Grim won the Democrat nomination for supervisor by gaining 52 votes as opposed to only three for Ronald Turner. Robert Hull had 38 write-in votes as a Democrat and 13 for the GOP nomination which was enough to gain the nomination in the fall election.

Lillian Miller had 22 write-in votes for Democrat nomination as auditor. She will be unopposed because there were no GOP candidates.

GILMORE

In a razor-sharp race for supervisor, George W. Miller, a listed Democrat candidate had 15 votes as did write-in campaigner Ralph Weaver who won the GOP nomination with 11 votes by write-in. The apparent tie can be broken by an official count or the casting of lots at a later date. Betty Weaver, a Republican, won the auditor nomination and will be unopposed.

GRAY

Gregory Bedilion was unopposed for the supervisors post and got 38 votes. He will be opposed by GOP candidate Oakie Stagers who had 38 votes. Eugene Bruce, a Republican, will be unopposed for auditor (six year term) and GOP candidate Betty Hewitt will be unopposed for a four-year term as auditor.

GREENE

Grant Blaker, a listed GOP candidate for supervisor, easily won the race with 38 votes and also won the Democrat nomination with 14 write-in votes. There were no nominations for the vacant auditor's post.

JACKSON

In a close four-way race for supervisor on the Democrat ticket, Mark Gump had 33 votes to narrowly defeat Harold Cook, 32; Ralph Cook, 30 and Gary Ealy, 21. Gump will face GOP candidate Melvin Houston who had 44 votes.

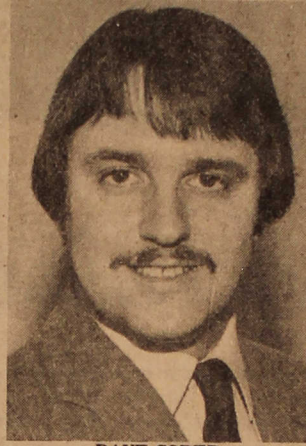

Leonard Udovich had 101 Democrat votes for auditor and will face GOP write-in nominee Judy Roberts who had 13 votes.

JEFFERSON

William L. White, a listed Democrat candidate for supervisor easily won a three-way race and also won the GOP nomination on a write-in campaign. White collected 455 votes to 234 for Patrick Murphy and 84 for James Fischer.

Forrest Cottle was unopposed for township auditor but will face competition in the fall from Patrick Murphy who won the GOP nomination

Central Greene OKs $8.9 Million Budget

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — A tentative 1983-84 budget of just under $8.9 million was approved by the Central Greene School Board at its meeting Tuesday.

It represents an increase of $631,010 (7.6 percent) over this year's budget, and calls for an 11-mill increase in the property tax levy, raising it to 74 mills.

Business Manager Walter Stout and members of the budget committee said there are several major reasons for the size of the tax increase.

➤ The fund balance at the end of the year will be $80,000 rather than the expected $180,000 because property tax revenues this year were about $66,000 less than expected and because anticipated sale of the former West Waynesburg School for $40,000 did not go through.

➤ With the drop in interest rates, the district will receive about $30,000 less in interest payments during the coming year.

➤ Although the state subsidy for 1983-84 will be $144,000 higher than the current year, this represents only 22 percent of the $631,010 budgetary increase.

Major areas of budgetary increases include teacher salaries, up by $223,105; other salaries, up by $90,054; transportation, up by $73,170; Blue Cross and Blue Shield, up by $68,900; vo-tech payment, up by $33,109, and retirement, up by $58,469.

The Central Greene District, with 2,850 students, employs 160 teachers, 70 service and clerical people, and nine administrators.

Anticipated revenues of $8,798,394 includes $5,191,357 from local sources, $3,559,496 in state subsidies and $47,541 in federal payments.

The breakdown of expenditures, by categories: Administration, $314,461; instruction, $3,742,292; pupil personnel services, $153,926; health services, $78,600; transportation, $913,170; operation and maintenance, $1,112,768; fixed charges, $930,682; student activities, $119,132; community services, $19,550; capital outlay, $64,392; debt service, $886,400; intersystem payments, $468,003; budgetary reserve, $75,000.

Other than the real estate tax, the district levies a 1 percent wage tax, 1 percent realty transfer tax and $5 per capita tax. The budget is scheduled for adoption at the June meeting, and is subject to possible change until that time.

During the meeting, the board formally executed the new three-year contract with teachers which was ratified last month. Becoming effective in August, it provides salary increases of $1,700 in each of the three years, increases in payments for extra-curricular activities, and vision coverage starting in the second year.

The board approved Central Greene's share of the vocational-technical school budget for the coming year, amounting to $282,865 toward its operating costs and $71,000 toward its building payment. The district's share has been increased by 11.8 percent over the current year.

In matters involving personnel, the board accepted the resignations of Curtis Griffin as junior high head football coach and of James E. Boudreau as junior high assistant wrestling coach.

Glenn Kyle was hired as driver education instructor at Waynesburg Central High School. He has been substituting in the position for the past year and is head basketball coach.

Margie Bizup, who has been working in the district for the past year, was hired as permanent math instructor at the high school. Tenure was approved for three teachers, Mary Zollars, James Causro and Patricia Kazee.

Robin C. Shine, high school home economics teacher, was granted a sabbatical leave for the coming school year and Dianna L. Kayla was granted a maternity leave for the first semester of the upcoming year.

The resignation of Dr. Ronald Ferreri as district superintendent was formally accepted, with regret. He will be leaving June 30 to accept superintendency of the Avon-Grove School District in Chester County.

The schedule of course offerings at the high school was approved for the coming year. It reflects no changes in terms of programs, but it was noted projections indicate a decrease of 71 students in high school enrollment.

The board also:

➤ Received an apparent low bid of $22,031 from Design Space International, Charleston, W.Va., for a relocatable building to be placed at the Wayne Township School, Spraggs, to accommodate an overflow class.

➤ Voted to sell a 1977 Ford van to William C. Phillips of Waynesburg on the basis of his high bid of $575.

➤ Awarded contracts totaling $18,022 for athletic supplies and equipment and contracts totaling $43,347 for industrial arts supplies and equipment.

➤ Approved establishment of an Anthony Ames Memorial Scholarship to go each year to a high school student with an outstanding record in the math and science field. It is being established by the family of Anthony Ames, a Waynesburg Central graduate who became a scientist and was killed in a plane crash near Philadelphia last year.

➤ Voted to continue providing a la carte school lunches during the coming year, but decided to eliminate the management company which has been operating the program and return to self-operation.

➤ Designated all three Waynesburg banks as depositories for district funds and appointed Ralph J. Sommers Jr., executive vice president of the First National Bank of Carmichaels, as treasurer.

Way Out World

Here's one of those amazing pictures taken by our astronauts on the moon.

That's our Earth. Way out there! Seeing the world in such perspective, how small our problems seem—but how great our need for God's caring and concern.

This is the exciting message of religion: That the God who created a vast universe is concerned for every soul. That we can know Him in the outreach of our faith and serve Him in the bond of love. On this planet whirling through space we draw closer to Him and to one another as we gather each week in God's House.

Court Orders Man To Move Kennel

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Court has ordered a Franklin Township man to remove a kennel from his back yard because the dogs constitute a nuisance which a neighbor should not have to put up with.

The order, handed down Monday, notes that the home of John D'Eletto at 690 Sherman Avenue is in a residential area near Greene County Memorial Hospital and that even though Franklin Township does not have zoning regulations, the presence of the kennel constitutes a private nuisance.

The matter came before the court as an equity action filed by Constance M. Helms, whose property adjoins the rear of the D'Eletto property. She contended in a non-jury trial that barking and odors from the kennel interfered extensively with her life, to the point where lack of sleep forced her to give up a second job which she held.

The defendant, on the other hand, pointed out that the kennel was there when Ms. Helms purchased her house, and that members of the plaintiff's family had harassed the dogs to create the problem.

In the order in which he ruled in favor of the plaintiff, Judge Glenn Toothman said: "Even though the kennels were carefully constructed and the dogs are regularly cared for, they create a continuing invasion of the personal and property rights of the plaintiff. To have as a constant companion a pair of Brittany Spaniels within 21 feet of one of her bedrooms, with the resultant noises and odors, in a substantial residential area, is a nuisance which our objective judgment determines is unreasonable and intolerable

Fact and Folklore
 John O'Hara

Busy days back here in Waynesburg as the spring season races on toward the summer of 1983.

For an opener, Greene County residents opened their paper Monday to discover a new president has been selected at Waynesburg College. He is Dr. J. Thomas Mills, who has been dean of financial and administrative services at Lord Fairfax Community College in Winchester, Va.

Formal announcement of his selection was made at the Waynesburg College Commencement ceremonies Sunday afternoon by Atty. Ewing Pollock, chairman of the Board of Trustees at Waynesburg. Dr. Mills will assume his job July 1. He succeeds Dr. Joseph Marsh who resigned effective April 1.

In making the announcement of the change in leadership it was pointed out by Mr. Pollock that Dr. Mills brings to Waynesburg an extensive academic and administrative background.

"At Lord Fairfax College he had been involved in the development of all aspects of the college. He has experience working in planning, all financial and administrative functions of the college, and grants administration. The selection of Dr. Mills was made from an excellent field of candidates," Pollock said.

Dr. Mills earned his bachelor's degree in economics from Randolph Macon College, his master of science in business administration from the University of Richmond and his doctorate in education from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. He has served as a principal and a teacher for public schools and has also served as an athletic director and coach.

Coming up shortly in Waynesburg will be the annual Horse Show of the Greene County Horsemen's Association which, since its inception in the early 1920's, has generated thousands of dollars for a wide spectrum of county charities. It now is the only rated horse show — out of several that formerly existed — in the tri-state area with the exception of Rolling Rock in Westmorland County. It will run through Memorial Day and attract entries from the leading training stables in a five-state area, including highly skilled amateur and professional riders.

Other seasonal activities scheduled at this time of year include the opening of the two-county owned swimming pools at Waynesburg and Carmichaels and the many new playgrounds operated by the county bureau of Parks and Recreation and also the Ryerson Station State Park in Richhill Township.

and, for those whose favorite recreation is playing "sidewalk superintendent," there will be plenty of opportunity all summer long to watch construction of two railroad spurs from Richhill Township to Waynesburg.

New Chapter Beginning At Waynesburg College

Waynesburg College has gone through some difficult times during the past year.

A vote of "no confidence" which the faculty last fall gave to President Joseph Marsh, a drop in the fall enrollment, Marsh's subsequent resignation, and the dismissal of several faculty members, most of them incidental to a new thrust in course offerings, all combined to create an atmosphere of tension about the future course of the college.

Things have taken a turn for the better, however. The college's first master's program (in business administration), a planned new degree nursing program, and other new offerings hold promise for the future and an upswing in enrollment at midterm seems to indicate the worst is over.

It was fitting that the board of trustees' Presidential Search Committee, headed by Acting President John P. Strange and Board President Ewing B. Pollock, was able to announce at commencement last weekend that a new president had been selected.

Effective July 1, Dr. J. Thomas Mills will be chief administrator of the 132-year-old institution. He comes to Waynesburg from Lord Fairfax Community College at Winchester, Va., where he has been dean of financial and administrative services.

Pollock, in making the announcement, noted that he had been selected from a large field of qualified candidates because of his extensive academic and administrative background in all aspects of higher education.

The commencement exercises marked a new beginning for the 168 seniors who received degrees. The announcement that the college had selected the 14th president in its long history also marked a new chapter in a proud tradition of educational service to young people.

We wish Dr. Mills well and hope that Waynesburg College will continue to prosper under his guidance.

Building May Be Sold

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County commissioners were asked Thursday to consider sale of the Sayers-Hooper building on East High Street under an arrangement which would result in its restoration and preservation as a historic structure.

The proposal was made in a letter from John W. McCall, president of the Waynesburg Economic Revitalization Corp. (WERC), which is currently involved in rehabilitation of the central business district.

"Assuming the county has no future plans for this structure, we suggest it be sold through auction with the condition that the successful bidder restore it under the prescribed historical preservation guidelines," he stated.

"We believe there are local investors that would have reason, because of certain incentives, to bid on this facility."

The incentives would include a significant investment tax credit for historical preservation; Waynesburg's LERTA program, which makes property tax advantages available to businesses which improve their buildings, and the availability of low-interest construction loans to qualifying restoration projects.

WERC Executive Director Robert Lang, who attended the commissioners' meeting, said the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission is expected to act July 12 on the borough's application for establishment of historic preservation areas in the borough. Approval of the application, he explained, would provide the financial incentives which would make restoration of such structures as the Sayers-Hooper building attractive to investors.

He pointed out that the Sayers-Hooper building is one of the oldest in the downtown area. Once restored, it could again be used as a commercial building and would be restored to the tax rolls.

The two-story brick structure, located between the new County Office Building and the old County Office Building, dates back to the early 1800s. It was purchased by the county in 1974 and for several years the public defender's office was housed on the second floor, with two businesses occupying storerooms on the first floor. A third storeroom was housed in a one-story building which at some point had been added to the original structure. This small addition was torn down last year by the county.

In 1981, the commissioners petitioned the Greene County Court for permission to tear down the entire structure after receiving an architectural report that it was in dangerously poor structural condition and would require extensive renovation. Businesses moved out in anticipation of the building being razed, but the court declined to give permission for its demolition because of its historic value.

The commissioners conceded that the county has no present plans for the building and agreed to consider offering it for sale to the highest bidder under conditions outlined by the WERC officials.

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

Well, did the election suit you? For those sincerely concerned about the type of government by which the United States is ruled, the election rate an A-plus for the concern and interest shown by the voters of Greene County. There have been a few times in the immediate past that there was as much sincere effort to win nominations by so many persons at the county level.

There was a certain element of good weather that was a factor in the turnout by members of both parties. It was perfect "Indian Summer" weather for the entire day that helped get the voters to the polls and the fact that local offices were up for grabs this year.

One of the most dismal commencement days in several years prevailed at last Sunday's Waynesburg College commencement — it was cold and rainy. But, the attendance was excellent and the ceremonies were marked by the traditional pomp in the spacious college gymnasium.

One of Waynesburg's most noted graduates from the depression era, Sol Levine, who is now chief engineer of the U.S. Navy, made his customary appearance at both the alumni dinner and commencement. As usual, he found many friends. Now recognized as one of the nation's noted mathematicians, he laid his foundation for the important roles he played in the "behind the scenes" role of the first and all subsequent flights to the moon and worked on a personal relationship with all the astronauts.

The next county-wide, public event will be the annual Waynesburg Horse Show to be held starting Wednesday, May 25 with afternoon and evening sessions daily through Memorial Day.

Ralph E. Moore and James Watson, retired members of the Waynesburg Borough Police Department, were recently honored at special ceremonies held by the Mon Valley Fraternal Order of Police at Monessen. Mr. Moore is a patient in Greene County Memorial Hospital for observation and treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Statler of Fifth Avenue, Waynesburg, who have spent their winters in Ft. Myers, Fla. for ten years, flew to New York April 18 with their friends, the Forrest Colliers, to join a tour group from Johnstown to the Holy Land, Jordan, Egypt and Greece. The Statler's swam in the Sea of Galilee, planted a tree at the Balfour Forrester in Israel, rode a camel to the pyramids and visited the Acropolis in Athens. The Statler's said the trip gave them a great feeling to walk and pray in the places where Jesus lived and taught and to see, firsthand, the places they had read about in the Bible.

County Hospital Names Fund Raising Chairman

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Memorial Hospital has announced the appointment of William P. Thomas Jr. of Waynesburg as general chairman of "Essentials for Excellence," a major fund-raising effort with a minimum goal of $1.5 million.

According to Thomas, "The funds will be used to complete the financing package for the $5,802,000 capital expansion and renovation program the hospital is about to initiate."

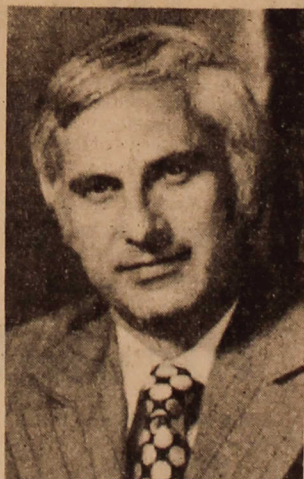

A senior partner in the law firm of Pollock, Pollock and Thomas in Waynesburg, Thomas joined the hospital board in 1968. He has been president of the board since 1972.

Thomas is a native of Columbus, Ohio. He earned his bachelor's degree from Waynesburg College and received his law degree from the University of Pittsburgh. He is a member of the American and Pennsylvania Bar Associations and is past president of the Greene County Bar Association.

The campaign chairman is a former director of the Greene County Redevelopment Authority, the Waynesburg Chamber of Commerce and is a past director and past president of the board of the Greene County office, Department of Public Assistance.

He is active with the Waynesburg College Alumni Association, having served as a director, and has been finance chairman of the local council of the Boy Scouts. He is a ruling elder in the First Presbyterian Church.

Thomas is married to the former Florida Pollock of Waynesburg. They are the parents of three sons and a daughter.

Library Requests Micro-Computers

WAYNESBURG — The May meeting of the Bowlby Public Library board of directors focused on improving services for users of the library system.

In keeping with this goal, head librarian Marjorie Johnston reported she was requesting two micro-computers. One will be used for Bowlby and one for Flenniken Library in Carmichaels. The computers will be used on a part-time basis for internal library use and by the public.

Venue Change Sought

WAYNESBURG — The attorney representing a Greene County couple who have brought suit on behalf of their son for alleged brain damage suffered during surgery at Greene County Memorial Hospital has petitioned for a change of venue.

Attorney Dennis C. Harrington, representing Edward and Margaret Franks of Bobtown, points out that 24 of the 26 potential jurors impaneled on May 2 reported that they had received some services at the hospital, which militates against the possibility of an impartial trial.

Defendants in the case, which is scheduled for trial on June 6, are Greene Memorial Hospital; two Waynesburg physicians, Dr. Trinidad Cruz and Dr. Alice Cruz, and three members of the operating staff when the surgery was performed on May

"Why Me," by Donald E. Westlake. Viking, $13.50.

Well, everything went wrong. Here was John A. Dortmund, just "trying to make a modest living at his chosen profession," which was burglary, breaking and entering, etc. But nothing violent.

Until he accidentally steals a big ruby ring. Dortmund has been having a run of bad luck, and this time it's the worst. He doesn't know it, but the ring has a name—the Byzantine Fire—and it's mixed up in government business, foreign policy, and religious feuds. The U.S. government had planned to present it to the government of Turkey, which claimed it, but "in fact had never owned it."

Ownership was also claimed by several other countries, a few of which have sent terrorist groups to claim it. When it disappears, all groups are very angry. Terrorists begin to join forces with the F.B.I., and all the thieves in New York City make their own pact with the city police. Due to the ring's disappearance, the police are arresting every known criminal in the city—a very large group, it appears. So the criminals are hunting the thief, it take the heat off themselves.

This sounds confusing, but Donald E. Westlake is such a funny writer and draws his characters so vividly that it all seems to make perfect sense. Here's his F.B.I. man: "Micolm Zachary loved being an F.B.I. man. It gave a certain meaningful tension to everything he did. When he got out of a car and slammed the door, he didn't do it like just anybody, he did it like an F.B.I. man: step, swing, slam, a fluid motion, flex of muscle, solid and determined, graceful in a manly sort of way."

He also talks like an F.B.I. man, or more likely like Damon Runyon would have said an F.B.I. man talks. Suspecting, of course, that the Russians have the ruby, he says, "In support of this theory is the fact that the USSR Mission to the United Nations has already denied Russian complicity in the events of last evening. However, a third potentialism would be a transactage by a dissident factor within the Turkish populace."

Chief Inspector Mologna of the New York City police hates F.B.I. men and cuts through the jargon. "Your terrorists and dissidents aid all them types don't know how to quiet a burglar alarm or ease open a safe. All they know is machine guns and Molotov cocktails and a lot of noise and fuss and blood. It's a nice New York hometown burglar is what we're looking for, and I tell you right now I'll find him. My boy'll toss this entire city, we'll pick up every grifter and second-story man in town, we'll shake em all by the heels, and when you hear a plink, that'll be the ring fallin out of somebody's pocket." It is a difference of style and philosophy of the two branches of law enforcement are facing. But Dortmund is facing obliteration, at the hands of whatever group finds out about him first.

Westlake lets Dortmund stew for a long time, as a master comic writer should, and lets the laugh fly off in all directions from every page. In Chapter 34, which is dedicated to Joan Rivers, for some reason, the city hoods are meeting to cross-examine each other about any knowledge of the jewel heist. The chapter begins: "The back room of the O.J. looked like one of those paintings from the Russian Revolution—the storming of the Winter Palace—or, perhaps more appropriately, from the Revolution of the French; a Jacobin trail during the Terror." "Menace and pitiless self-interest glistened on the planes of every face, the slouch of every shoulder, the bend of every knee."

The gangsters are of various types: "Tiny Butcher's ball-bearing eyes rolled infinitely in their sockets." "Benjy Klopzik placed his dirty-nailed hands between his bony knees and sat very alertly, like a dog who can do tricks."

Well, there isn't any moral to the story—at least not one to teach to schoolchildren. But it is funny. I predict Dustin Hoffman for the lead in the movie.

Waynesburg College Has A New President

DR. J. THOMAS MILLS

WAYNESBURG — Dr. J. Thomas Mills, dean of financial and administrative services at Lord Fairfax Community College, Winchester, Va., has been selected as the 14th president of Waynesburg College.

His appointment was announced during commencement exercises Sunday afternoon by Ewing B. Pollock, chairman of the college's board of trustees. The appointment becomes effective July 1. He was recognized from his seat in the audience when the announcement was made.

Mills succeeds Joseph F. Marsh, whose resignation last September became effective April 1. Since April, Dr. John P. Strange, a member of the board of trustees, has been interim president. He has also been chief executive officer and chairman of a four-member Board of Trustees Presidential Transition Committee since last December. Marsh had been president of the college for the past nine years.

"Dr. Mills brings to the presidency at Waynesburg College an extensive academic and administrative background," Pollock said in making the announcement. "At Lord Fairfax Community College, he had been involved in the development of all aspects of the college."

"He has experience working in planning, all financial and administrative functions of the college, and grants administration. The selection of Dr. Mills was made from an excellent field of candidates," Pollock said.

Mills, 53, earned his bachelor's degree in economics from Randolph Macon College, his master's degree in business administration from the University of Richmond, and his doctorate in education from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Prior to joining Lord Fairfax Community College in 1970, he spent two years as personnel officer for the Virginia Community College System, Richmond. During his tenure as personnel officer, he wrote and directed the first request for Educational Professional Development Act funds to help finance a statewide and local staff and faculty development program in the Virginia system. In addition to his duties as dean of financial and administrative services, he has experience in the area of student personnel administration, student recruitment, admission, financial aid, educational and career counseling, placement, and related areas.

He also taught courses at the community college.

Mills also served as a principal at the then new R.C. Longan Elementary School from 1965 to 1968, principal of Crestview Elementary School from 1962 through 1965, and assistant principal of Brookland Junior High School from 1959 to 1962. He also taught in the public schools, was an athletic director and coach, and was also a caseworker. The recipient of a Kellogg Foundation Fellowship at Florida State University, he has earned numerous awards and honors for his efforts in education and administration. He also is a member of numerous professional organizations dealing with management and planning of educational programs in Virginia.

Chairman of the Council on Higher Education for the Synod of the Virginia of the Presbyterian Church, Mills also is a ruling elder and past chairman of the Board of Deacons of the First Presbyterian Church. He served as moderator of the Shenandoah Presbytery and has been involved in many civic and church organizations and activities.

Waynesburg College Awards 172 Degrees

WAYNESBURG — Henry G. Hager, president pro tempore of the state Senate, in his commencement address at Waynesburg College Sunday, urged the graduating class not to get stuck in a life's work that is boring.

A day-long rain forced the 132nd afternoon commencement exercises as well as the morning baccalaureate services to be held indoors. Four honorary degrees, 150 bachelor's degrees and 18 associate degrees were awarded.

The Rev. James E. Long Jr., pastor of the Beulah United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, delivered the baccalaureate sermon. During commencement exercises he was honored with an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree. Also recognized with honorary degrees were Sen. Hager, Doctor of Public Service; Louis Elliott Waller, president of the McAnallen Corp. in Washington, Doctor of Humane Letters; and Jay D. Aldridge, executive director of Penn's Southwest Association, Doctor of Laws degree.

Valedictorian Judith Kalafsky, of Greensboro, in her valedictory to the college said that the small size and friendly atmosphere of Waynesburg College provides a good environment in which to study and has taught the class to open its mind. "We are indeed, well prepared to face tomorrow, she said and thanked not only the college and faculty but the community as well for facilities its has provided for students at the college.

In his relatively brief commencement address peppered with light remarks, Hager wove a strong message for the graduating class — not to remain in a job if it seems boring or appears not to offer a future.

"If you find yourself bored with your job, you will not be any good," he said. "Look at what your boss is doing and what his superior is doing and if that is what you want."

"Don't become clock watchers," he told the graduating class. "No way you can get through life watching a clock for the time when you can spend a few hours away from your work. Take a hard look at the opportunities that come your way," the state senator said.

He likened his own life with his message to the class by saying he had been bored with his life as an attorney and took the opportunity to go into politics. He is no longer a clock watcher, although the commencement program was slightly altered to allow Hager to receive his honorary degree a little early in the program so he could begin a five hour drive back to his home at Williamsport to play trumpet with a symphony Sunday night.

Vo-Tech Budget Doesn't Include Spending Areas

By Stan Diamond, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — In an unusual move Thursday night, the Joint Operating Committee of the Greene County Vocational-Technical School approved its tentative 1983-84 operating budget in a lump sum amount without budgeted spending categories.

The action came following an executive session during which the amount for the tentative general operating budget was apparently cut by $5,000 to $729,034. The amount of the proposed budget listed on the committee's agenda for Thursday night was $734,034, the same amount listed when the committee tabled action on the budget during its April meeting.

Norman Waldman, school director, said the tentative budget was an open budget and that at this point no spending categories had been made. He said he couldn't comment on the apparent $5,000 cut in the proposed budget. He did say, however, that the proposed budget was an increase of approximately 13 percent over the current year's budget.

The tentative budget was approved on a 3-1 vote of the five-member committee with one member absent. Voting no was Thomas Brad-dock, representative from the West Greene School District. Voting for the budget were Lila Ayersman, Central Greene School District representative; Louie Baniecki, Jefferson-Morgan representative; and Zigmond Bokat, Carmichaels Area representative. Absent was Adam Novak, Southeastern Greene School District representative.

The budget must now be approved by school boards of at least three of the five participating school districts before it can receive final adoption by the vo-tech committee. Cost of the budget is shared by the five participating school districts.

Unanimous tentative approval was given to the school's 1983-84 licensed practical nursing budget in the amount of $82,637. The LPN budget, however, is paid by tuition and state subsidies.

In other action the committee re-elected Jean Ingram, non committee member, as committee secretary for a four year term.

A CETA health assistant summer program with a budget of $8,860 was approved. It will operate from June 6 through August 6. Hired for the program were Mrs. Sharon Hall, of Waynesburg, as coordinator-instructor; Mrs. Prudence Harris, of Pine Bank Star Route, as secretary; and Mrs. Suzanne Pushey, of Waynesburg R.D.2, as clinical instructor.

Renamed as school depositories for the 1983-84 fiscal year were the Gallatin National Bank for the general fund and payroll account, and the First National Bank of Carmichaels for the practical nursing account.

A motion to adopt a 1983-84 school calendar fail for lack of a second. The proposed calendar called for the first day of school on Aug. 29 and the last day on June 1. Prior to the motion the committee had a general discussion on why schools should open before the Labor Day holiday.

A one year sabbatical for health reasons requested by Daniel Winger, an auto mechanics instructor, was granted. The committee request the administration to advertise for a long term substitute for Winger.

The committee also instructed the administration to advertise for a drafting instructor for the 1983-84 school year.

A Youth Development Center summer program for classes to be held at the school in building trades and welding was approved. The classes would be three hours a day, five day a week starting July 11.

Two federal projects were approved for the coming school year. They were a handicapped program for introduction vocational skills taught by Joseph Walko with a $5,800 budget, and a communications skills program for the disadvantaged taught by James Walters with a budget of $10,600.

The committee approved Susan Gilbert, a DECA Club student, and her advisor, Mrs. Denise Roddy, to attend the National DECA Competition to be held June 25-30 at New Orleans, La. Miss Gilbert, an 11th grade student from the West Greene School District, placed third in state DECA competition. The DECA Club is for students enrolled in the distributive education (marketing) classes at the school.

A stipend of $250 each was approved for the following club advisors, Mrs. Denise Roddy, DECA Club; Mrs. Kathryn Bamberger, HOSA Club; and Ms. Diane Marciniak and Mrs. Carol Tanner, VICA Club advisors.

Man Of The Year

Carmichaels Lions Honor Bell

CARMICHAELS — Isaac "Ike" Bell was honored as the Carmichaels Man of the Year by the Carmichaels Area Lions Club during a banquet Friday night in the Greene Valley United Presbyterian Church.

Bell accepted the award by expressing his appreciation to all those who had worked with him in many areas of community service. A resident of Carmichaels since 1960, Bell said the people of Carmichaels had made it the kind of community in which he had wanted to raise his three children — Marc, now a professor at Brown University; Leigh Anne, operations and personnel supervisor for Rainier National Bank in the state of Washington; and Douglas, a columnist and copy editor for the Springfield Daily News in Missouri.

Banquet speaker Frank J. Behm, membership of 900,000 men. "All of these clubs and men are united in the ideal of service for which Rotary has become renowned," he said.

Thomas Milinovich, who will become governor of Rotary District 733 in July, explained the four "avenues of service" which comprise the basis of every club. They include club, community, vocational and international areas of activity in which every club is expected to engage.

International service, Milinovich said, is highlighted by the Rotary International Foundation, which makes education awards available for study in foreign schools.

"The awards are now worth $15,000 each and have become as prestigious as the Rhodes Scholar and Fulbright awards," he said.

Other activities which Rotary pursues on an international basis include the Group Study Exchange and the Youth Exchange programs.

Archie Trader concluded the induction with comments relating to procedural matters.

A brief report was given by David Cumberland and James Willison on the annual District 733 conference held April 29 and 30 at Seven Springs.

Howard Swarm, public relations for West Penn Power Co., attended the meeting as a prospective member.

Jefferson Woman Given Commission

Susan Barno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barno of Jefferson, was commissioned April 30 as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force Nurse Corps.

Lt. Barno was selected for a special internship program comprised of 68 of the top nursing graduates in all 50 states.

She is scheduled to attend a two-week orientation course, beginning Aug. 17, at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, prior to reporting for duty at the U.S. Air Force hospital at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

Busy Bee Board

The Busy Bee Board held its first monthly meeting in its new conference room Monday. Other board members include Lucille Faulkner, Clara Easley, Pat Phillips, Peggy Phillips, Ann Loughman, Linda Headlee, Ida May Poellot, Lillian Grinage, Bernice Anderson and Ronald Evans.

Arbitrators Find Fault With Bridgeville Firm

WAYNESBURG — A Greene County arbitration board has ruled in favor of two couples who were sued by Ionics, Inc., of Bridgeville when they refused to pay for water conditioners purchased from the firm.

The lawsuits were brought against Charles and Sharon Balazick of Jefferson R.D.1 for $2,263 and against Robert and Linda Jenkins of Waynesburg R.D.1 for $2,701.

In each case, attorneys making up the arbitration board placed costs of the cases on Ionics, and in the Jenkins case awarded $1,800 to the defendants for loss of wages and expense they incurred in defending the action.

Mr. and Mrs. Balazick stated they purchased the conditioner on Nov. 30, 1981, after being assured they could return the equipment and receive a full refund if it was not satisfactory.

They claimed that despite a number of service calls, the equipment continued to malfunction and they finally removed it from their house and delivered it to the Ionics office.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins testified that they were told by the salesman that they would receive a 60-day free trial period when they purchased their water conditioner on Sept. 9, 1982, but that when they tried to return the equipment, the company repudiated the offer and demanded payment in full.

A similar case also is pending on an appeal by Ionics from a judgment entered by a magistrate in favor of George and Julia Rice of Cumberland Village, Carmichaels. Ionics on Friday filed a notice of appeal to the court.

County Court Refuses To Suppress DWI Case

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Court Monday dismissed a motion for suppression in a case involving a charge of driving while intoxicated brought against George A. Morris of Waynesburg R.D.3.

Morris, 52, was arrested by Waynesburg Borough police on Feb. 13, 1983, following a minor accident on East Lincoln Street. His attorney, Robert Keener, contended that the police officer did not have "probable cause" to make the arrest since he had not witnessed the accident and administered no field sobriety test. He therefore asked that results of a subsequent breathalyzer test be suppressed.

Dr. Robert B. LaCount, chairman of the Chemistry Department, said, "We look forward to giving high school students a realistic view of a college chemistry program. The visitation may help students decide whether chemistry is the right field for them."

LaCount said the program is designed to give students a better idea of what kinds of course work they can expect in a typical college program.
