Budget Adopted By J-M

By Stan Diamond, Staff Writer

JEFFERSON — A five-mill increase in real estate taxes is proposed in a tentative 1983-84 operating budget approved by the Jefferson-Morgan School Board Monday night.

The tentative budget calls for total expenditures of $4,168,638.

The proposed budget represents an increase of about 7.75 percent over this year's budget and by law, may be reduced, but not increased before its final adoption next month.

The district's current budget is based on an 89-mill real estate levy with a mill of tax bringing in about $16,600. The proposed five-mill real estate increase would bring in an additional $83,255. The district also receives income from a 1 percent realty transfer tax which it shares with two townships and three boroughs; a 1 percent wage tax; $5 per capita tax; $5 occupation privilege tax.

District Business Manager Forest Cottle cited increases in the coming year of salaries, medical benefits, utilities and retirement benefits along with federal fund cutbacks as reasons for the budget increase.

"A $60,000 increase alone in employee medical benefits pretty well takes care of the proposed millage increase," Cottle said.

The budget does have areas where it decreased from the current year with the largest being a $17,300 reduction in pupil transportation which Cottle said resulted from a four-year contract the board negotiated with the district's bus contractor. Other budget categories showing a decrease are food services with a $7,000, and a $50 decrease in community services.

The largest increase in the proposed budget is for instruction at $181,930. Cottle said that $119,000 of a $152,000 increase in capital outlay for 1983-84 reflects money currently being received from the sale of the district's Dry Tavern, Lippencott and Chartiers elementary buildings and had to be placed in that category for budget purposes.

A breakdown by major categories of the proposed budget based on a 94 real estate levy is as follows:

Administration, $161,827, up by $4,857; instruction, $1,726,089, up $181,930; pupil personnel services, $28,827, up $2,996; health services, $31,605, up $2,727; pupil transportation, $320,334, decreased by $17,300; operation and plant maintenance, $522,852, up $2,455; fixed charges, $437,075, up $78,947; food services, $15,000, decreased by $7,000; student activities, $102,144, up $15,450; capital outlay, $186,175, up $152,236; debt service, $415,550, decreased by $22,970; outgoing transfers, $218,810.

The district has 101 employees which includes both full- and part-time and operates a junior-senior high school and consolidated elementary school.

In other action, the board approved the proposed 1983-84 operating budget for Greene County Vocational-Technical School which calls for total expenditures of $729,034 with Jefferson-Morgan's share being $145,000.

The board authorized the administration to advertise for bids for a cafeteria service. Custom management currently operates the district's cafeteria. In asking the board for authorization to seek bids for cafeteria services, District Superintendent Kenneth Macek said the current operator is doing a good job, but feels the district's cafeteria operation should remain competitive along with good service and that the district should try to operate on a no-cost basis. Custom management has operated the cafeteria for the last two years.

In a related matter, the board set

...But Not Forgotten

Approximately 50 people attended a special candlelight service at midnight Saturday in Waynesburg to remember the 128 men from Pennsylvania unaccounted for since the Vietnam War. Candles for each of the Americans were lit as their names were read. Desi Larson bows in prayer during the service as an honor guard stands behind the candles on the Greene County Courthouse steps. The service was part of a weekend vigil to draw attention to the plight of the POW-MIAs.

Tentative School Budget OK'd

By Marcia M. Biddle, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Area School Board, at a meeting Thursday night, approved a tentative budget for 1983-84 which calls for total expenditures of $3,931,007.

There was no discussion of the proposed budget at the meeting and no tax levies were set, with Erma Jean Thomas, chairman of the finance committee, stating that committee meetings will be held during the coming week to finalize details.

The budget will be open for possible amendment until its adoption at the June meeting.

As approved, the budget provides for the following expenditures, by category:

Administration, $161,950; instructional costs, $1,913,575; pupil personnel services, $34,535; health services, $27,200; transportation, $311,178; operation and maintenance, $461,450; fixed charges, $469,315; athletic expenditures, $68,425; capital outlay, $23,600; debt service, $113,640; intersystem payments, $226,139; budgetary reserve, $120,000.

Revenues are estimated at $2,070,861 from local sources and $1,860,146 in state subsidies.

In other business, the board re-elected Zigmund Bokas as treasurer. Bokas said he will not be able to serve a full term since he did not run for reelection and will leave office in December. The First National Bank of Carmichaels was designated as depository.

The board was notified that the school district has been selected for a grant by the Washington-Greene Prevention Agency for a drug and alcohol program in the schools. The agency will work with the district during the summer to plan for implementation of the program next fall.

Dr. Dolores Zoldos, district superintendent, will apply for the state Department of Education for approval of eight early dismissals during the upcoming school year for the purpose of holding in-service meetings on curriculum revision and planning.

The board approved a high school graduation list of 105 students. Commencement will be held on Friday, June 3, at 7:15 p.m. at the athletic field, weather permitting. An orientation day will be held Aug. 24 for all students moving from the elementary grades to the junior high and for their parents.

The program of Release Time Bible Study for the coming year was again approved. The Rev. Roland Cadle, an assistant in the program, attended the meeting to request that he and Reba Miller be permitted five minutes in each class to recruit students for the program.

Dr. Zoldos explained that board policy prohibits any solicitation and distribution of literature by outsiders in the schools. She indicated the board would consider the request.

Several parents attended the meeting to discuss discipline problems which had occurred in the schools recently.

Ruthalie Tenney said her son had suffered facial injuries in a fight at the junior high school and had been sent to the hospital by the school nurse. She asked if anything was being done about the problem.

Dr. Zoldos said the matter had been investigated by the high school staff, witnesses were questioned, and action had been taken to punish those involved. She offered to meet with Mrs. Tenney to discuss the matter further.

In response to questions from other parents, board member Edward Tekavec said, "I agree that even one such incident is too many. We have a new discipline code which needs to be better implemented."

Tekavec also explained that at the request of parents, the board had worked extensively on formulating more stringent policies in the management and control of students.

Rotary Club Members Hear About Hospital's Campaign

WAYNESBURG — Michael N.J. Flinn, administrator of Greene County Memorial Hospital, addressed the Waynesburg Rotary Club Monday and explained the current fund-raising campaign entitled, "Essentials for Excellence."

Using a film narrated by television personality Paul Long, Flinn explained the expansion-renovation plan in some detail, including a summary of "continuous developments in medicine which require us to move ahead with this project."

The campaign, according to Flinn, is an area-wide, fund-raising effort with a minimum goal of $1.5 million. William P. Thomas Jr., president of the board of trustees, recently stated that the campaign will go to the general public only after members of the hospital "family" have made their commitments.

The film opened with scenes of the original hospital in 1907 and followed the progression of buildings since then. The present structure, located in the Bonar Addition section of Franklin Township is a 120-bed general community hospital serving the 40,000 residents of Greene County and other areas.

The hospital provides the entire spectrum of quality medical care through the services of 59 members of the medical, dental and podiatry staff. They are supported by some 350 nurses, technicians, therapists, and ancillary and administrative personnel. Another 350 auxiliary volunteers contribute to the overall operation by offering over 9,000 hours of service.

Total cost of the project is $5,802,000 according to Flinn. The cost includes construction, materials, equipment and financing charges.

Phase One of the program is dubbed a "no frills" addition of 14,000 square feet of new space plus renovation

Lawsuit Filed Over Injuries

WAYNESBURG — Steve Fonner of Sycamore R.D.1 has filed a trespass suit in Greene County Court seeking damages in excess of $10,000 from Brian Griedel and his father, William, of Waynesburg R.D.2 as the result of an accident last fall on Route 221.

Fonner, who was operating a motorcycle, charges Brian Griedel with having pulled from a parked position along the highway into Fonner's motorcycle.

Fonner claims he suffered injuries to the shoulder and back, lost two rings valued in excess of $2,500, lost wages and the value of the motorcycle.

County To Cooperate With State On Bridges

WAYNESBURG — An agreement to participate in the state's six-year, billion-dollar bridge replacement and rehabilitation program was executed by the Greene County commissioners at their meeting Thursday.

The act, passed by the state Legislature in 1982, allocates up to $512,000 in state funds for the replacement of five county bridges which were pinpointed as being in poor repair through a federally funded bridge inspection and inventory program carried out two years ago. All of them are on rural township roads which are part of school bus routes.

Assistant County Planner Linda Kolat said total cost of the bridge replacement projects is $640,000, with the state allocation representing 80 percent of that amount. Under the agreement with the Department of Highways, the county would be responsible for providing the remaining 20 percent ($128,000) unless it is later determined that the jobs are eligible for funding, in which case the county share could be reduced to 5 percent, or even zero.

"None of the five bridges meets the federal criteria of carrying an average daily traffic volume of 500 or more vehicles, but there is a possibility that some of them could be considered for federal funds on the basis of economic impact, school bus usage or public safety," Miss Kolat said.

It also was brought out that the county could pay its share out of its annual allocations of state Liquid Fuels (gasoline) tax revenues, and that the agreement with the Highway Department can be rescinded if it is later determined that the county does not have the money available to pay its share.

"We feel it's a good program," Commission Chairman Joseph Pawlosky said. "There's no other way the county could afford to replace these bridges."

Miss Kolat said that while the program is set up to span six years, design work will begin in 1984 on three of the bridges, with a goal of awarding contracts in December of that year for their replacement. One spans Owen's Run in Richhill Township, a second spans Bates Fork in Morris Township, and the third is on Fish Creek in Freeport Township.

The other two bridges in the program, slated for later replacement, are on Grinage Run in Center Township and on Crayne's Run in Washington Township.

Miss Kolat explained that all are currently posted for weight, creating a problem for school buses and other heavy vehicles.

"Others in the county might be in equally bad or even worse condition, but these are the five which were selected for replacement in the state legislation," she said.

In other action at their meeting, the commissioners formally executed a contract with Local 585, Service Employees International Union (SEIU) covering employees appointed by the commissioners and by the court. It covers all conditions of employment with the exception of economic benefits, which are subject to negotiations scheduled to begin next month.

"When we froze wages in this year's budget because of economic conditions, we indicated that we would be willing to possibly reconsider our position after we had six months of experience with the budget," Pawlosky said. "We will be carrying out that commitment."

Big Tax Hike Proposed By S.E. Greene

MAPLETOWN — A $3.4 million tentative operating budget for the 1983-84 school year was approved by the Southeastern Greene School Board at a short meeting Tuesday night and district residents can expect a whopping tax increase.

The tentative budget calls for a 38-mill real estate tax increase which, if adopted next month without change, would raise the real estate millage to 109 mills.

The biggest increases in the budget are for instruction, up approximately $200,000, and debt service with an increase of $398,000 which reflects the district's current construction program. Other increases were in the fixed charges category reflecting a 33 1/2 percent increase in medical benefits for employees, and an increase of $28,000 in pupil transportation.

The board had a work session on the proposed budget for close to three hours before Tuesday night's meeting.

The tentative budget does, however, show decreased spending in the categories of operation and plant maintenance, intersystem payments, and student activities.

The proposed spending plan reflects an increase of $617,792 over the current year's budget.

A motion to award a three-year contract to bus contractor Skip Brumley was defeated. The motion called for the price to be negotiated.

Some board members indicated they were in favor of purchasing additional buses and not contract pupil transportation. Board member Bob Watson said it cost the district $1.69 per mile for contracted services and if the district owned its own buses it would only cost $1.13 per mile. The district currently operates two of its own buses.

The board voted to add a portable stage for the multi-purpose room for the Bobtown Elementary School renovation project. Earlier this month the board had defeated a similar motion. Cost of the stage is $17,500.

The Department of Education has informed the district that the reimbursement rate for the renovation project at the Bobtown school will be 51 percent.

Contracts were awarded to Kurtz Brothers of Clearfield for art items at $26,555; Weber Co. of Washington for athletic supplies at $9,539; Lafayette Co. of Uniontown for janitorial supplies at $7,042; West Elizabeth Co. for shop lumber at $1,665; and Brodhead Garrett of Cleveland, Ohio, for industrial arts supplies at $2,685.

The board approved a request from a Greensboro senior baseball league to use the baseball field at the Mapletown High School for practice from May 24 to July 13.

Planning Commission Reviews Aid Requests

By Jim L. Moore, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Planning Commission Monday night reviewed five grant applications from four townships seeking state aid for sewer, water and recreational facilities.

Financial aid of up to $50,000 is being sought from the Department of Commerce under the Community Facilities Act.

Richhill Township is seeking $6,300 to make improvements in Richhill Township Park located within the confines of the Jacktown Fairgrounds. Plans call for work to reduce erosion, improve vegetative cover and reduce maintenance problems.

Because of rising construction costs, the Cumberland Township supervisors are requesting $50,000 to be used along with a $78,000 grant from the Department of Community Affairs to install sewer lines, manholes and service connections in Crucible.

Plans call for 3,000 linear feet of eight-inch sewer lines, eight new manholes and 90 service connections.

At the present time, 60 percent of the community has sewer facilities and the additional state aid would assure each homeowner the opportunity to connect with the new system. A recent inspection by a Department of Environmental Resources official resulted in a report that stated, "the situation was one of the most hazardous of its kind in the state."

Dunkard Township is requesting $50,000 to help with a $114,400 project which calls for the replacement of 3,000 linear feet of eight-inch water line and the installation of six new fire hydrants. It also includes the re-connection of 105 service lines. East Dunkard Water Association would be responsible for $64,400 in costs.

The existing lines have become so constricted through the years that the eight-inch line is only open two inches in some areas. Inadequate fire protection has been cited as another reason for completion of the project.

The 50-year-old lines serve about 800 people in 250 housing units.

The Southeastern Franklin Water Authority is seeking $50,000 to develop two water well sites near Curry Memorial Home. Cost of the total project, which would lower water rates to $1.50 per 100 gallons, is expected to be $294,900.

The authority wants to include submersible pumps, a 50,000-gallon raw water tank, chlorination equipment, softening equipment, iron / manganese removal and pumping to a storage tank.

A qualified geologist has tested the site and provided evidence the proposed wells are the most suitable wells for long-term use in all of Greene County.

Southeastern obtains its water supply under a water purchase contract with Southwestern Water Authority with a 125,000-gallon per day limit. Southeastern officials said the contract is too restricting and does not allow for expansion in Franklin Township.

Franklin Township also is seeking $50,000 toward the cost of extending water lines to 20 homes on Route 21, west of Waynesburg. The additional $50,000 for the project will come from local sources.

Eventually, possibly through another grant, the township hopes to extend the water line to East View. A random check at six homes within the area revealed a high content of coliform bacteria.

In other action, the Planning Commission refused approval of a subdivision plan in Morgan Township for lack of an access road to all seven lots in the plan.

The plan was submitted by Robert Reinhardt and is located at the intersection of Routes 595 and 616.

Conditional final approval was given to the Vance Plan of lots in Dunkard Township. A report from the DER was not received resulting in the conditional status.

Located along Route 624, the plan contains four parcels ranging from 8½ acres to 22 acres.

Tentative approval also was granted for the Tom Hooke plan of lots in Franklin Township. It was noted the developer needs the signatures of the Franklin supervisors, a DER report and it was ruled the report from the Soil Conservation District must be attached to the plans.

Before You Start To Dig, Contact The SCS

One of the most popular land improvement practices over the years has been pond construction. Most landowners recognize the value of a quality pond for recreation, aesthetics, fish, wildlife, fire protection and livestock use.

The Greene County Conservation District refers about one request each month to the Soil Conservation Service concerning pond construction.

Karl Niederwerfer of the Soil Conservation Service says landowners are wise to seek technical assistance. He estimates more than 50 percent of the pond sites evaluated require a DER permit application. Most people are not even aware DER has regulations concerning pond construction. The intentions of permitting procedures are understandable. Failure of the dam could be hazardous to life and cause severe property damage.

The Soil Conservation Service can offer complete assistance from planning and design through the completion of construction. However, ponds take a lot of time and SCS is taking a close look at assistance it is willing to provide, especially in the case of permitted ponds since they now require full-time inspection.

Landowners should be careful about judging the suitability of their pond site. Such things as watershed size, stream grade, soils, bedrock, property line and the size of the site are only some of the factors involved. The Soil Conservation Service also advises people to beware of having contractors evaluate a site for potential construction. Many contractors are not aware of DER requirements and cannot determine some considerations such as watershed area, pipe size needed and emergency spillway specifications. Ponds are a specialty item and contractors that have followed plans using current specifications are not easy to find.

Improper design and construction could result in leakage, fluctuating water elevations and even washout. If the watershed is too large or has severe erosion problems, the pond may silt prematurely. This problem even occurs in larger lakes as is the case with Ryerson Station State Park lake.

The Soil Conservation Service also advises that ponds are much more expensive to construct than most people think. The days are about gone when a ¼-acre fish pond can be completed for $1,500. Under current costs, a ¼-acre pond could easily cost $5,000 depending on the amount of fill and pipe needed.

So if thoughts of having a pond have crossed your mind, it is advisable to do a little research. The Soil Conservation Service has a few tools to help. They can determine your watershed size and discuss your objectives. A 51-page publication is available, titled "Ponds — Planning, Design, Construction," at the SCS office, 60 West High Street, Waynesburg. It is advisable to do your homework. It may make the difference between a pond being an enjoyable asset or a liability to your land.

Art Exhibit Sponsored

CARMICHAELS — The Greene County Council on the Arts and the Greene Academy of Art sponsored an art exhibit and musical program at the Greene Academy building Tuesday evening.

The paintings of Barbara Deynzer, well-known Greene County artist, were featured in a one-woman exhibition.

A musical program was presented by Allen Krantz, U.S. Steel affiliate artist. Krantz, a classical guitarist, is spending two weeks in the county.

During a brief business meeting conducted by Greene Academy President William Cole, five persons were elected to the Greene Academy board of directors. They are Larry Mecera, Charles I. Donley, Hester Porter, Bess Honsaker and William Cole.

Tennis Tournament For Singles Only

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Department of Parks and Recreation has announced plans for a tennis tournament to be held Tuesday through Monday, May 31-June 6, at the county courts on Route 21, opposite the county fairgrounds.

The tournament will feature both men and women's divisions in singles only. There will be no doubles competition. Winners will be determined by best-of-three sets, with a 12-point tiebreaker.

Round robin eliminations will be held if there are seven or less participants. Single elimination will be held if there are eight or more participants. First and second-place winners will receive a trophy.

Entry deadline for the event is Thursday, May 26, with the tournament being open to all interested persons. There is a $10 entry fee, with tennis balls being provided. Checks are to be made payable to Greene County Parks and Recreation. U.S. Tennis Association rules and regulations will govern play.

Garden Space Is Offered

WAYNESBURG — Senior citizens 60 years of age or older who want to plant a garden but do not have the land available will be eligible for garden space being offered through the Senior Services program of the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp.

Bernice Stutchick, center services coordinator, said the soil will be prepared in advance and all a senior citizen will have to do is plant the garden, weed it and harvest it. Transportation to the garden site can be arranged. She also said beds are still available at a cost of $1 for eight packs.

Persons interested in the project are asked to call the center services coordinator at 852-2893 for information on the location nearest their home.

The project is partly funded under a contract with the Pennsylvania Department of Aging.

He also stated he plans to meet with the county negotiator as soon as possible to conclude an agreement covering jail guards and first level supervisors.

A low bid of $9,650 was received from Universal Restaurant Equipment Co., Pittsburgh, for a new commercial dishwasher at the Curry Memorial Home. It and a bid from another company for $13,250 were referred to the county solicitor for evaluation.

The commissioners said the present dishwasher is more than 20 years old and uses steam, creating a major heat problem in the kitchen at the nursing home.

"The new dishwasher will be electric and should cut our heat problem by 80 percent," Pawlosky said. "In addition, it will take up only one-third as much space."

Eleanor Miller of Carmichaels was reappointed as a county representative on the Advisory Council of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Area Agency on Aging.

Track Meet Winners

PITTSBURGH — Three members of the Greene County Miners Track Club recently won blue ribbons at an eight-club meet held in South Park near Pittsburg.

Carrie Bedilion, 12, took first place in the 1,500-meter racewalk and placed second in the 400-meter dash. Tammy Bedilion, 16, won first place in the 1,500-meter racewalk, placed second in the 400-meter dash and placed fourth in the long jump. John Giubileo, 16, won the discus event and placed second in the shot put.

Other second place finishers included Stacy Ankney, 1,500-meter racewalk, and Jackie Bedilion, shot put.

Court Clears Way For Mine Damages

WAYNESBURG — Four Cumberland Township property owners who filed suit almost nine years ago to recover damages for mine subsidence may finally be in a position to receive compensation.

The Greene County Court Thursday made final its order of Feb. 14 in which damages totaling $44,736 were awarded to owners of the four houses on Route 88, south of Carmichaels.

In doing so, Judge Glenn Toothman dismissed objections by Buckeye Coal Co., defendant in the lawsuit, which contended that awards were excessive and were unfounded on the basis of evidence produced during the many hearings which have been held since the actions were initiated on Feb. 1, 1974.

"There remains the strong legal conclusion that there was subsidence damage, that it was caused by the defendant, and that the measure of damages was appropriately applied," his opinion states.

The Feb. 14 order awarded damages of $8,505 to Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Miller, $7,710 to Mr. and Mrs. Carol M. Wright, $10,599 to Mr. and Mrs. Angela DeLuca, and $17,922 to Mr. and Mrs. Mike Watona.

junior-senior high school building. The payment was being withheld until the contractor completed some work to the satisfaction of the board.

Vicki Monas, elementary school principal, reported completion of special class sessions for fourth-, fifth- and sixth-grade students on calculator and computers and drug and alcohol abuse. She said the drug and alcohol abuse classes were conducted by Mary Jo Simms of the Washington-Greene Prevention Agency and stressed coping, self esteem and decision making.

Horse Show Has Long Tradition In County

WAYNESBURG — Final plans have been made for the 28th annual Waynesburg Horse Show to be held May 27-30 at the Greene County Fairgrounds with sessions to be held each day at noon and 7 p.m.

The show is a member of the American Horse Show Associations, the West Virginia Horseman's Association and the Inter-State Horse Show Association.

Walter Christopher of Waynesburg will again serve as manager of the show with Mrs. Carolyn Morris of Waynesburg serving as show secretary.

Show steward will be Donald Sheldon of Hyde Park, N.Y., with James Ragsdale of Cummings, Ga. serving as judge of saddle seat, equitation, parade and roadster competition.

The Waynesburg Horse Show Association is an offshoot of an informal group of horse enthusiasts that ranged from old fashioned teamsters to millionaire coal owners.

The local group's first show was held on the fairground race track but has long since expanded with a show ring, stables and other facilities to the point where the show is one of the most attended in the tri-state area.

Greene County's tradition of fine horsemanship dates back to the first settlers who came here on foot and with pack horses. They slowly grubbed out their land claims and built a cabin and stable.

In the rural sections, much of that tradition still exists and between that heritage from the pioneers and the 4-H clubs for horses, the horse is still a part of the area's lifestyle.

As early Greene County residents advance in the art of riding, the fame of local horses spread far beyond their own communities.

For instance, Albert Long, whose farm was on the original Waynesburg-Carmichaels stagecoach road, gained such fame that he was lured to Kentucky to train the show horses of the Fisher Body Co. Other local trainers including Eli Long, Albert Keener and Ross Long followed suit and took their talents to other states.

ANGELA JONES

College Honors Two Scholars

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg College has awarded full tuition Outstanding Scholars awards to a senior from Mapletown High School in Greensboro and a senior from Chartiers-Houston High School.

Angela Marie Jones, daughter of Mrs. Anna M. Jones of Greensboro, and Judith L. Lesso, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Lesso of Canonsburg, received the prestigious awards this year. The Outstanding Scholars awards were given for the first time in 1980.

Recipients of the awards are selected on the basis of their high school records, scholastic aptitude test (SAT) scores, written essays, and interviews with a committee of faculty and staff members at the college. This year's recipients were selected from more than 13 candidates.

The award is offered to each of the two top students in the incoming freshman class, based on their achievements and potential. The award covers the cost of their tuition for their four years at Waynesburg College and increases to meet any tuition increases.

Miss Jones is an honor student at Mapletown High School and a member of the National Honor Society. She has been a member of the Student Council and served as business editor for the Mon-O-Leaf Yearbook. During her junior year, she was awarded first place in the Future Business Leaders of America public speaking contest.

Miss Jones also is a member of the Young Ladies Sodality and is a volunteer third grade Catechism teacher for the Holy Family Roman Catholic Church in Greensboro. She plans to major in nursing.

Miss Lesso, an honor student at Chartiers-Houston High School, is a member of the National Honor Society, Chemistry and Drama Clubs. She is a member of the marching and concert bands and participated in the District Band Festival this year.

Miss Lesso is a volunteer aide at the Chartiers-Houston Community Library during the children's summer reading program and as an aide for the Vacation Bible School at the Canonsburg United Presbyterian Church.

The Outstanding Scholars program is one of three honor scholarship programs at the college in which awards are made on the basis of academic achievement and potential, regardless of financial need.

The college also administers a financial aid program of grants, loans and work opportunities totaling nearly $3 million annually. More than 90 percent of the students at the college received financial aid during the 1982-83 year.

To be eligible for the Outstanding Scholars award, a student must rank in the top five percent of his high school class and score well on the SAT. In 1982, Connie Kendrick of Washington and Karl Jarek of Waynesburg received the awards.

The college also offers a Presidential Honor Scholarship consisting of $1,500 to students who rank in the top 10 percent of their high school class and have a combined score of 1100 on the SAT. Students who meet these same standards are eligible for the $750 Waynesburg Honor Scholarship.

Both the Presidential Honor Scholarship and the Waynesburg Honor Scholarship are renewable for each of the four years that the recipient attends the college and maintains the required academic point average.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

Death, as it does to all men, came to Clair F. Bee on Friday, May 20, 1983. The 87-year-old former basketball coach died after a long illness and was buried in Fairview Park, Ohio near Cleveland.

Born and raised in the neighboring northwestern corner of West Virginia, Bee brought fame and great renown to both his alma mater of Waynesburg College and his hometown of Grafton, W.Va. through his outstanding achievements as a basketball coach and also for his inspirational fiction of Chip Hilton for high school age youngsters.

Although most widely known as a coach, the real story of Bee's life was the inspirational influence he had on teenagers both through his writing of sports fiction and his direction of summer camps where all attending were inspired to do their best in any physical endeavor in both their personal and later professional lives.

He had a zest and enthusiasm for life and competitive effort surpassed by none and equalled by few.

Bee came to Waynesburg after World War I service with the U.S. Army and just after completing his business education training in New York State. As a result, he had a dual identity at Waynesburg as a teacher of business skills, and an undergraduate in academic courses both of which he excelled. A football injury prevented him from playing but he was possibly the only football scout in history with both playing experience and an expert in taking shorthand notes for word-by-word descriptions of the "enemy's" plays.

He drove himself relentlessly both in the classroom and in any formal or informal extracurricular activities in which he played a part. He was one of the most diligent students in Waynesburg's history and completed his four year course in three years by attending summer sessions.

Through the excellent courses in business skills he taught and which he had studied before enrolling here, he was able to help many Waynesburg women who were working as domestics or store clerks by personally teaching night courses in shorthand, typing and bookkeeping to help them improve their financial standing. These courses were taught with the same sincerity and intensity as he taught sports skills to youngsters.

From Waynesburg he went to Rider College in New Jersey and a few years later became a teacher and basketball coach at Long Island University. In 1937 his team was involved in a historic game at New York City's Madison Square Garden against Stanford University.

Bee retired in 1954 from LIU after 31 years as a college coach with a career record of 410-86. He continued his work on the 23-volume Chip Hilton series for boys and directed the sports summer camps in upstate New York, not far from where he lived in the Catskill Mountains. He was elected to the Basketball Hall of Fame in 1968.

Although he had known the famous in all types and levels of sports for many years, Bee's greatest praise was always reserved for the one man and his wife who made his college education possible — Dr. and Mrs. Paul R. (Prexy) Stewart. Prexy and his wife, Dessie, held Waynesburg College together during its darkest hours from becoming extinct so that it was possible for thousands of others to get a college education in a near perfect place to get it.

The feeling was mutual as Waynesburg College, during Commencement Exercises in 1981, awarded Bee an honorary doctorate. A tribute to the man who has now joined them and others in Waynesburg's particular place in the afterworld.

Let's Enforce Election Laws

With another election recently behind us, perhaps it's time to review the laws that govern activities around a polling place.

Because of the many local candidates, there were more than the usual number of poll watchers and candidate "helpers" milling about with cards and last minute pleas for a vote.

There is little doubt the average voter considers the practice a bothersome activity and often times will drive past the polling place without voting.

One can't help but wonder how much good it does the candidate. Perhaps a candidate may obtain a vote now and again as the result of a card pressed into someone's hand while entering the polling place. But how many votes are lost because a voter has to practically fight his way to the polling place?

Some candidates go even further and place signs in the yard at the polling place. They campaign personally at polling places other than their own — a violation of the voting laws.

It's a rare occasion when a constable uses his authority to enforce the election laws around a polling place. If it's matter of ignorance of the laws, perhaps the constables should be called together in a group and informed of the laws prior to an election.

Something should be done soon or the so-called "helpers" will next be following voters in the booth.

AROUND TOWN

Entries continue to flow in for this year's horse show sponsored by the Greene County Horsemen's Association. The show begins today and will continue through Memorial Day with sessions beginning at noon and 7 p.m.

The entry list will approximate more than 500 horses ranging from children's ponies to the high-priced hunters, jumpers and fancy-stepping pleasure animals many of which cost thousands of dollars.

Riders, trainers and owners from a five-state area will be at the Greene County Fairgrounds during the four-day event. The riders include 4-H youngsters and millionaire businessmen all with a common love of good horses.

The rains have been so heavy in Greene County during the past several weeks that local residents are ready to deport the weather man.

Several members of the the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Company did an about face last Sunday when they deliberately started a fire which destroyed the three-story, red brick homestead at Reese's Mill. The sturdy house, with three layers of brick, was razed to make way for the new railroad. It was constructed nearly a century ago and was most recently owned by Robert Reese, a civil engineer now living in State College.

Getting back to the horse show, two excellent announcers will be at the microphone. Riley White of Waynesburg and Dave White of Claysville, veteran horsemen, are reported to exist on a diet of oats and hay during the show because they never leave the fairgrounds. Riley's father was one of the founders of the show many years ago.

Patients in the Greene County Memorial Hospital this week included George Moore, former manager of the Potter-McCune Co. and Hudson

Jewelry Store in Waynesburg and Carter Funk, who for many years taught school at the South Ward School in Waynesburg.

Claire Bee, a Waynesburg College graduate who went on to fame as the basketball coach at Long Island, was buried this week in Ohio. Bee was also known as the author of the 23-volume Chip Hilton series. He was inducted into the college basketball Hall of Fame several years back.

A few days ago, I heard a high official state that Machiavelli is a better guide to administration (of government, corporations, universities) than is the Harvard Business School. Hmmm, I thought, have I run into satire on the hoof? Was he kidding? And, was he right?

Suppose a man is elected President and turns to Machiavelli for guidance. What happens? He learns the dangers of trying anything new, for one thing. "There is nothing more difficult to carry out, nor more doubtful of success, nor more dangerous to handle, than to initiate a new order of things," warned Machiavelli in "The Prince."

"For the reformer has enemies in all those who profit by the old order," and everybody else will be only lukewarm about any change, since men "do not truly believe in anything new until they have had actual experience of it."

So, the reformer is attacked by opponents "with the zeal of partisans," while "the other defend him half-heartedly, so that between them he runs great danger."

Finley Peter Dunne (Chicago, 1900) agreed with Machiavelli (Italy, 1513). Dunne wrote, "A man that'd expect to train lobsters to fly in a year is called a loonytic; but a man that thinks men can be turned into angels by an election is called a rayformer an' remains at large."

Both writers discussed the honesty and integrity of rulers, more or less. "A prudent ruler ought not to keep faith when by so doing it would be against his interest," Machiavelli said. You don't need to be actually honest, he explained, but you should seem to be. "It is necessary to be a great feigner and dissembler," since men are so simple "that one who deceives will always find those who allow themselves to be deceived."

Dunne said the same thing, in his Irish brogue: "A man ought to be honest to start with an' after that he ought to be crafty. A pollytician who's only honest is jus' th' same as bein' out in a winter storm without any clothing on."

But said Machiavelli, "The character of peoples varies, and it is easy to persuade them of a thing, but difficult to keep them in that persuasion."

Dunne knew the fate of crusading reformers, too. If you look at a reform movement as a 5-mile race, he said, "Th' trouble is th' crusade don't last after th' first sprint. Th' crusaders drops out iv th' procession to take a drink or put a little money on th' ace an' be th' time th' end iv th' live iv march is reached th' boss crusader is alone in th' job an' his former followers is hurlin' bricks at 'im fr'm th' windows iv bettin' shops. The boss crusader always gets th' double cross."

Therefore, said Machiavelli, "It is necessary to order things so that when men no longer believe, they can be made to believe by force." (I don't know whether Harvard teaches that or not, but it wouldn't surprise me.)

But the use of force can be tricky, he explained at length. Better to do it at once, set an example, and then you won't have to keep it up. As an example, Machiavelli cited Agathocles the Sicilian, son of a potter, who became ruler of Syracuse. On becoming king, he called the senators and all the rich men of the republic together, as if for a meeting, then ordered his soldiers to kill them all. Machiavelli explained, rather unnecessarily, that, "After their death, Agathocles occupied and held rule over the city without any civil strife." I'll bet he did.

Machiavelli concluded that, for a ruler, "It is much safer to be feared than loved, for it may be said of men in general that they are ungrateful, voluble, dissemblers, anxious to avoid danger, and covetous of gain; as long as you benefit them, they are entirely yours." And one of the greatest benefits, of course, is not having your head cut off, even for the honor of setting an example.

As Machiavelli said, a successful prince (leader, president) "must be a fox to recognize traps, and a lion to frighten wolves."

And as Dunne said, "Trust ivrybody—but cut th' ca-ards."

This cynicism does not seem fitting for a great leader, though. Let's just call it realism. But would you want your sister to marry one of those guys?

Franklin Twp. Seeking $50,000 In State Aid

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Supervisors adopted a resolution seeking $50,000 in state aid at their meeting Monday. The funds would be used to help pay for extending water service to about 20 homes on Route 21 about a mile west of the West Waynesburg limits.

The proposed project would include 4,000 feet of new line and fire hydrants at a cost of $100,000. Costs over and above a state grant would be paid from local sources, including possible aid from businesses which would be served by the extension.

The supervisors said they hope the water line can be extended to East View in the near future.

A random survey by the Department of Environmental Resources recently revealed that many homes on Route 21 are drawing water from private wells which are producing coliform bacteria. In view of the survey, the DER has given support to the grant application.

The state aid is being made available through the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Appalachian Development and State Grants as part of the Community Facilities program.

The supervisors approved a housing development site owned by Rohanna Iron & Metal. The 2.3-acre site is on TR 112 (Old Route 21) across from the golf course and would contain five building lots. The area would be known as the Crabapple Plan.

In other action, the supervisors adopted a policy calling for a $20 fee for portable toilets, with construction sites and events lasting less than three days being excluded.

VFW To Honor WWI Veterans

WAYNESBURG — World War I veterans and Gold Star Mothers will be honored by members of Waynesburg VFW Post 4793 during Memorial Day services at the post home on Lincoln Street.

The services will begin at 11 a.m. Monday. The veterans and Gold Star Mothers and their spouses will be guests of the VFW following the ceremonies. Those planning to attend are asked to call the post at 627-3720 before Saturday. Transportation will be provided if needed.

Donation Is Given

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Rotary Club recently made the largest contribution to a single organization in its seven-year history of giving to health care organizations by giving $2,000 to Greene County Memorial Hospital.

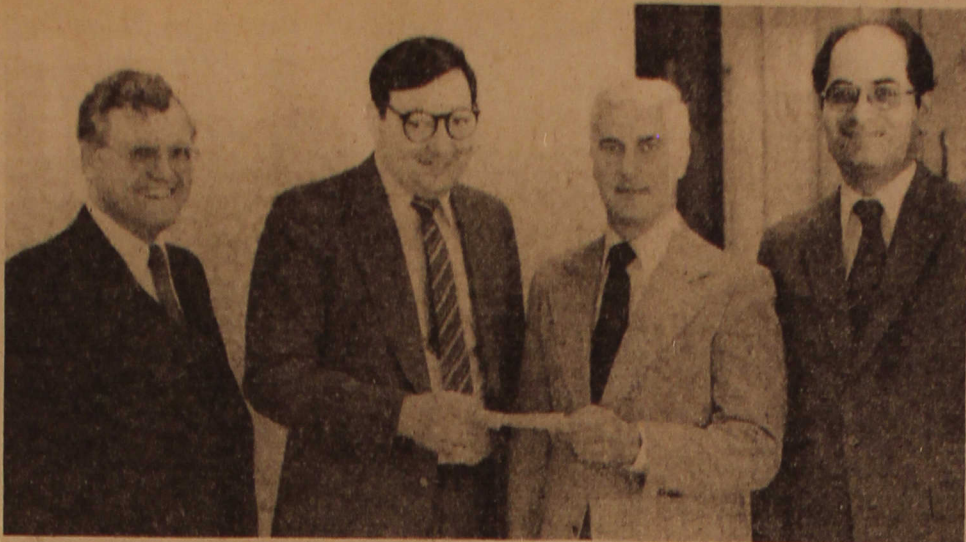

The money will be used in the "Essentials for Excellence" fund-raising campaign currently under way at the hospital.

Harry J. Cancelmi, president of the Rotary Club and Thomas S. Milinovich, chairman of the blood testing program, presented the gift to William P. Thomas Jr., hospital board president, and Michael N.J. Flinn, hospital administrator. Contributions are made from funds raised by the Rotary Club's annual blood testing program.

Previous Rotary gifts have been made to Hospice of Greene County, the American Cancer Society and Easter Seals.

All gifts are given to health care groups and organizations, based on their needs and for new projects only, reported Milinovich.

"This year, since the hospital is kicking off its fund-raising campaign for additional space, our organization feels it was most in need," Cancelmi said.

Hospital Drive Leaders Announced

WAYNESBURG — William P. Thomas Jr., campaign general chairman, has announced family division leaders for the "Essentials for Excellence" capital fund-raising campaign being conducted by Greene County Memorial Hospital.

The campaign is a $1.5 million public-subscription effort that is a key part of the financing package for the $5,802,000 expansion and modernization program being undertaken by the hospital.

Heading the family division are: Charles R. Moore, board of trustees chairman; Dr. Charles R. Huffman, medical staff chairman, and Michael N.J. Flinn, administration and staff chairman. John W. Orndoff is campaign treasurer.

Moore, a member of the hospital board, is a retired vice president of First National Bank of Washington, while Huffman is a member of the medical staff. Flinn is hospital administrator.

Thomas said the solicitation of the family division represents the first phase of the campaign.

The expansion and modernization project will address pressing space needs within the hospital. It includes construction of a new special care unit and ambulatory care center, as well as additional space for radiology, clinical laboratories and physical therapy.

The program, which has been designed to accommodate future expansion, includes construction of a three-story addition that will extend westward from the 1961 wing and adjoin the 1976 addition to present a pleasing facade that compliments the surrounding residential neighborhood.

A drive-through entrance will offer access to an enhanced lobby and community room to provide space for conferences and community programming activities.

Hospital Stages Mock Disaster

WAYNESBURG — What many people thought was a bad accident in Morrisville about noon Sunday morning turned out to be a routine drill.

The accident certainly looked bad enough. A bus had overturned into Ten Mile Creek near Meadowlark Park and ten people were seriously injured.

But the accident was really a mock disaster drill for Greene County Memorial Hospital. The hospital sponsors two such drills a year to meet the accreditation standards required by the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals by the American Medical Association and the American Hospital Association.

The Greene County Emergency Medical Services Council, under the direction of Chairman Randy Hunter, and local fire companies also participated in the drill.

The "victims" were all students with the Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) class. Those with serious injuries were transported by ambulances from Waynesburg, Rices Landing and Jefferson fire companies to Greene County Memorial Hospital where they were "treated" in the emergency room.

The drill lasted from about 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and those involved with it termed it a successful drill. Hunter said the EMS Council hopes to sponsor other such drills in the future to prepare EMT's in the event of a real emergency.

Library Hours Announced

An Early Harvest Is Advised For Hay

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was prepared by Karl Niederwerfer of the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

If you are a landowner who harvests any of the 35,000 acres of hay in Greene County, now is the time to be thinking about making the first cutting.

Quality hay should be made around Memorial Day for most orchard grass. The Penn State Agronomy Guide recommends the first cutting of grass hay to be made when heads emerge from the boot. Heads can already be seen in many orchard grass stands. Legumes should be harvested before they are in 1/4 bloom for most species but it is best to refer to the Agronomy Guide for specifics.

First cutting hay unfortunately is not done at the right time by many growers. Reasons used include poor drying conditions due to cool or wet weather. However, it has been shown that hay that is cut the last week in May and rained on two or three times has much better quality than hay harvested mid-June to mid-July with no harvesting problems.

Another advantage to harvesting now is that a quality second cutting can be taken about the first week in July when traditional first cuttings are made.

Speaking of quality, if you get two cuttings between now and July 10 instead of making your first cutting on July 10 you may have twice the protein value in the two cuttings as compared to just one. This can make the difference in the cost of grain during winter months that is needed to make up that extra protein.

Good management means healthier forage and healthier forage protects the soil as well.

Naturally, there are difficulties in making two or more cuttings throughout the year including labor, wear and tear on equipment, equipment availability and energy costs. However, the extra tonnage and value of the crop and savings of supplements generally outweighs the disadvantages of the "traditional" late harvest hay.
