Money For Hospital

The Women's Auxiliary at Greene County Memorial Hospital held their annual awards and volunteers recognition luncheon Tuesday at First Presbyterian Church, Waynesburg. The auxiliary presented a $15,000 check for the hospital's "Essentials for Excellence" campaign, a $1.5 million fund-raising effort to help pay for a proposed $5.8 million expansion and modernization project. The donation represents proceeds from the auxiliary's Lobby Shop at the hospital and Cherry Door, a thrift shop located on South Morris Street, Waynesburg. Mrs. Ewing B. Pollock, auxiliary president, discusses the donation with Michael N.J. Flinn, hospital administrator.

Jefferson-Morgan Drops Tax Hike

By Stan Diamond, Staff Writer

JEFFERSON — In a move that stunned its administration, the Jefferson-Morgan School Board Monday night adopted its 1983-84 operating budget based on an 89-mill real estate levy, eliminating a proposed five-mill increase in the tentative budget approved last month.

Cutting the $83,255 the five mills of real estate tax would have generated in revenues was left up to the administration, which indicated it will probably have to come from equipment purchases proposed for the coming year since most other categories in the budget are fixed charges.

The no increase in real estate taxes may be happy news for district residents who would have faced real estate taxes of 94 mills in the tentative budget approved last month calling for total expenditures of $4,160,053. Based on the current 89-mill levy the final budget calls for total expenditures of $4,076,798.

A motion to adopt the budget based on real estate taxes of 94 mills and to include a $450 salary increase for the district's maintenance superintendent made by board member Floyd Haney died for lack of a second. A motion was then made by Robert Harry with a second by Robert Goslin to adopt the budget based on a real estate levy of 89 mills. It passed 6-2 with Haney and Karen Sabo voting against it. One board member was absent.

Superintendent Kenneth Macek and business manager Forest Cottle were both visibly surprised by the action.

In other action the board approved a one-year sabbatical leave beginning July 1 requested for medical reasons by Joseph A. Davis, junior-senior

County, Union Negotiating

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County commissioners reported Thursday that contract negotiations are in progress with county employees who are members of Local 585, Service Employees International Union.

The bargaining unit includes more than 100 employees at the Curry Memorial Home, who have been members of the unit for a number of years, and 50 commissioner-appointed and court-appointed employees, who voted in 1982 to join the union.

The employees agreed in January to abide by the wage freeze which the commissioners imposed in adopting the 1983 budget, with the understanding that salary adjustments would be considered in June, based on the county's fiscal experience during the first six months of the year.

Since the talks began earlier this month, the commissioners said at their meeting Thursday, the union has made a proposal and the county a counter-proposal. The commissioners added that they are hopeful that the negotiations can be completed by July 1.

Judge Gets Earful From Customers

WAYNESBURG — Over 50 persons attended a public hearing held in Buhl Hall Monday to air complaints against Mid-Penn Telephone Company.

Administrative Law Judge John K. Clements presided over the hearing while two separate citizens' groups and the state's Consumer Advocate's office were represented by attorneys who questioned the many witnesses during the four-hour hearing.

Representing the citizen groups were attorney Kenneth Tompkins of Waynesburg and attorney Randy Minor of Mt. Morris. Attorney Robert Haines represented the Consumer Advocate's office.

The consensus of the 15 witnesses who were sworn in and offered testimony, was that Mid-Penn has been making serious billing errors for years, the equipment has been malfunctioning for years and personnel have been rude to customers. About the only good thing said about the phone company was that its current supervisor, Gordon Curry, has been polite and helpful.

First on the stand was Mrs. Carol Webb of Waynesburg whose name headed the list of many petitioners from the Waynesburg area complaining about poor service. She complained of static on the lines and calls being disconnected in the middle of conversations. When asked about the attitude of the phone company when she registered complaints, Mrs. Webb said, "They were very, very short. Even nasty. They acted like you were bothering them. They would not return calls," she said of the Mid-Penn personnel.

Mrs. Webb, like others to testify, said a member of her family has quit trying to call her because of the difficulty with the phone service.

During cross examination by Mid-Penn attorney Mark Thomas, it was attempted to show the service has improved since new switching equipment was installed last October. Thomas, during the rest of the hearing, brought up this matter with almost every witness. Some said the service has been better but more said there appeared to be no difference in service.

Janice Milliken, who operates a beauty shop in Waynesburg, was next to be called and when asked about her treatment by Mid-Penn was quick to answer, "They are rude." After citing troubles with a particular call, she was asked by Thomas how she could be sure of the particular date. "As a result of that call, I broke my foot," Mrs. Milliken said. She explained that the business phone in her shop was not working and customers were calling on her home phone. When she left to shop to answer the phone in the house, she tripped and broke her foot.

Rick Kalsey, a local insurance man, said many customers had made repeated attempts to call his office but the lines were busy. He said both business phones could not have been busy on several of those occasions. He also said the system had been working fine for the past two months but 20 minutes before he came the hearing, a phone call at his office was disconnected in the middle of the conversation.

Billing Protests

Mrs. Peg Stutler of Mt. Morris, leader of the second citizens' group to file a formal complaint against the phone company, was the next witness called.

Mrs. Stutler said she first became aware of the billing errors in 1975 but it wasn't until late in 1981 that she became angry enough to formally protest. Her main complaint was that the phone company was charging customers for busy signals or recorded messages.

She finally contacted the Public Utility Commission on two occasions and was eventually told to circulate petitions and file a formal complaint. She obtained over 200 signatures in the three communities where the troubles seemed to be centered. After waiting a month for a response and receiving a special invitation to tour the phone company facilities, she notified the Consumer Advocate's office.

The state agency hired a New York investigator who has submitted a report on his findings. The report charges the phone company has not completed regular maintenance checks and equipment frequently malfunctions. It also said the local company receives complaints at a rate six times higher than average.

The report was entered into evidence and the investigator will be cross-examined at a hearing to be held later — probably in Pittsburgh. Mrs. Stutler said many customers in Bobtown, Mt. Morris and Greensboro were experiencing the same billing problems and following media exposure many others have come forward.

In a final statement, Mrs. Stutler told the hearing, "I would like to see Mid-Penn clean up its act. I want to see Mid-Penn fined for its obnoxious

One Mill Slashed From Tax Increase

WAYNESBURG — A proposed real estate tax increase of 11 mills was cut to 10 mills with adoption Tuesday night of the Central Greene School District budget for 1983-84.

The increase, from 63 mills to 73 mills, is required to fund a budget which calls for expenditures of $8.8 million.

With board members Joanne Brookover and Warren Bowers absent, the budget was approved on a 5-2 vote. Lila Ayersman and Furman Wade voted against its adoption and approved the property tax levy.

Business Manager Walter Stout said that developments since preparation of the tentative budget last month resulted in a net decrease of $39,526 in anticipated expenditures, which made it possible to cut one mill from the property tax increase.

Most significant reductions were in the building operating and maintenance category, which was reduced by $44,802. Of that amount, $21,000 was realized when heating and ventilating system maintenance bids came in at $34,000 rather than the $55,000.

"There is no reduction in services," Stout said. "Changes which were made, primarily involve areas which were not finalized at the time the tentative budget was prepared."

The 10-mill tax increase will increase property tax revenues by $561,970, based on a 97 percent collection rate. Total revenues of $8,838,867 include an $80,000 beginning balance, $5,143,945 from local sources, $3,560,496 from state sources and $54,426 from federal sources.

In addition to the 73-mill property tax, the district has a 1 percent wage tax and 1 percent realty transfer tax which is shared with local municipalities and a $5 per capita tax.

A breakdown of budgeted expenditures, by category:

Administration, $315,311; instruction, $3,750,893; pupil personnel, $153,925; health services, $78,214; transportation, $913,170; operation and maintenance, $1,067,966; fixed charges, $930,682; student activities, $123,357; community services, $19,550; capital outlay, $59,113; debt service, $886,400; intersystem payments, $464,503; budgetary reserve, $75,000.

Several matters involving personnel and coaching assignments were handled at the board meeting.

The board accepted the resignations of Kathy L. Jeffries, music instructor at East Franklin School and Margaret Bell Miller Middle School; Beth Stiles, business teacher; and Wilma Paul, a teacher at East Franklin School, who is retiring after 20 years of service.

It also accepted the resignation of Charles Berryhill as majorette-colourguard sponsor and Bridget Wade as assistant band director.

Robert Kayla and George Messich were rehired as assistant varsity football coaches at annual salaries of $1,525 and John Coss was again hired as junior high football coach at a salary of $1,305.

Barbara Knight was appointed as a reading specialist at East Franklin School to fill a first-semester vacancy created by granting of a sabbatical leave to Glenna McIntyre.

Sue Woods, who has worked as an assistant food service director for 11 years, was appointed food service director at a salary of $14,000.

Dr. Prayan Chayapruks was named athletic physician for the coming sports season based on his offer of $11 for each athletic physical exam.

Waynesburg Denies Zoning Variances

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Borough Zoning Hearing Board Monday rejected petitions for variances from three persons who wanted to establish commercial operations in residential zones.

Paul C. Tomasetti had requested permission to establish a health spa on East Lincoln Street, Russell Raymond sought permission to build two "mini warehouses" on East High Street, and David Rush sought approval for an auto-body garage on North Porter Street.

Tomasetti proposed to initially set up his health spa in a two-level garage behind a house he owns at 142 East Lincoln Street. He proposed a future 600-square-foot addition to the garage to expand the health spa, and an eventual addition to the house to enable him to move the health spa into the first floor of the house. He also stated that he could provide 17 parking places on the property.

A petition signed by some 50 residents of the neighborhood, expressing their objections to the request, was presented to the hearing board.

Raymont sought permission to erect buildings on a lot on East High Street, opposite the First Baptist Church, to provide 24 units of warehouse space. The petition states he also owns the adjoining property and that a house trailer presently sits on the lot on which he proposed to build the warehouse.

Rush sought permission to erect a 16 by 20 feet building on property at 171 North Porter Street for use as an auto body shop.

In each case, the board rejected the requests on the grounds that the proposed uses are not permitted in a residential zone.

Larry A. Strobe was granted conditional approval of his request for a side-yard variance to build an addition to the back of his house at 93 South West Street after he stated that neither of his neighbors have any objections. The house is within three feet of the property line, so that a variance is required. The board indicated that final approval will be given as soon as Strobe has obtained the signatures of his neighbors to a waiver of the 10 foot side-yard requirement.

Robert Elliott was given permission to erect a 16-by-16-foot sign at his service station at the corner of South Washington and Greene Streets.

Considerable discussion was held about the proper procedure to be followed to force the upgrading or demolition of various vacant or substandard houses and other buildings which are considered hazardous.

Borough Council will be asked to consider revisions to an existing ordinance to make the procedure less time consuming.

Zoning officer David Gregg was directed to again inspect the former South Ward School building to determine if all necessary steps have been taken to keep it secure from intruders and to eliminate hazardous conditions. If they have not been taken, he was asked to begin legal proceedings to assess the fines which the ordinance prescribes.

Carmichaels Fails To Adopt Budget

CARMICHAELS — After a budget-cutting workshop of almost two hours, the Carmichaels Area School Board again failed to adopt the district budget for 1983-84.

The vote was 3-3 with two members absent. President Elaine Oros did not vote when it became obvious it would be impossible to get the required five affirmative votes.

The budget, as presented, amounted to $3,762,482, which was approximately $35,000 lower than the budget presented last week, when passage failed on a 4-4 vote. During the workshop, three mills were cut from the eight-mill real estate tax increase which was proposed last week.

Board member Henry Bacan said the millage hike could be reduced still further, and he was among those who voted against passage. Joining him were David Antonelli and Zigmund Bokat. Voting for adoption were Erma Jean Thomas, Edward Chess and Frank Andria.

"We originally started out with a 13-mill tax increase and we have reduced it to five mills," Bacan said. "I think we can get at least another half mill out of it."

The district currently has a 70-mill tax levy, with each mill producing $18,500 in revenue.

Mrs. Thomas said she believed additional cuts would result in deficit financing. "I will not vote for deficit budgeting," she said.

Arrangements for making the 1982-83 audit also remained undecided following the meeting.

Last week, the board indicated it would accept the low bid of Milinovich and Co. of Waynesburg, but on Tuesday a motion to offer that firm the contract failed to pass. A subsequent motion to engage McClure and Wolfe of Uniontown also failed.

The board announced that it will hold another special meeting on Wednesday, June 29, in an effort to adopt the budget prior to the June 30 deadline. A workshop will be held at 8 p.m., followed by the meeting at 9 p.m.

State Releasing Money For Home Repair Program

WAYNESBURG — Applications for housing rehabilitation grants in the West Waynesburg area of Franklin Township will be accepted beginning Thursday, June 30.

The home repair program is being funded by a $100,000 grant from the state Department of Community Affairs.

Franklin Township officials are making available to West Waynesburg residents a three-page fact sheet explaining the qualifications to become eligible. Should any resident not receive the fact sheet by Tuesday, June 28, they should call the township office at 852-1911.

The project has been designed to serve as many residents as possible during a six-month period. Assistance will range from outright grants to incentive grants and technical assistance. The program will be keyed to owner occupied residential dwellings.

Outright grants to low- and moderate-income owner occupants of single family residential properties are available for assistance up to $7,500. To be eligible however, the owner can not have more than $20,000 in liquid assets and the owner must agree to the procedures. They must also fall within the Section 8 income limitations and use the grant for housing deficiencies.

The basic grant is an unconditional grant and checks will be made payable to both the applicant and the contractor.

The income standards are as follows: one person family, $10,400 or less; two person family, $11,900 or less; three person family, $13,400 or less; four person, $14,900; five person, $15,850; six person, $16,750; seven person, $17,700 and eight person, $18,650 or less.

Applicants exceeding the income limitations may be eligible for an incentive grant providing the applicant agrees to bring the property to code standards and providing he can obtain his share of the cost.

The maximum incentive grant is 40 percent of the rehabilitation costs up to a maximum of $7,500. Fifty percent of the work must be to abate code deficiencies and the balance of the work may be for non-related health and safety deficiencies.

Prior to awarding the grant, the property owner must prove his ability to provide the 60 percent balance of the cost.

Property owners who meet the income limits may be eligible for an incentive grant in addition to the basic grant of $7,500. For every six dollars raised by the applicant, this program will supply four dollars up to a total of $1,000.

For example, if a home was found to need over $7,500 of work, the resident first would be eligible for a basic grant of $7,500. Then for every six dollars put into the improvement by the owner, the program would issue an incentive of four dollars.

Repairs eligible under this program will include roofing, plumbing, electrical, heating, insulation and windows. Other major structural defects will be considered however.

Applications will be taken on a first come, first served basis. The initial application period will take place at the Franklin Township Municipal Building from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, June 30, and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, July 1.

Homeowners who cannot come to the township building can reserve an application by phoning 852-1911.

attitude. That's all."

Mrs. Stutler also explained that some of the complaining customers received refunds and others did not. She also said some customers in Mt. Morris received a notification with their phone bill about refunds but the message was not clear.

Many Complain

A parade of witnesses were called during the afternoon and all complained about billing mistakes and malfunctions on their phone line. Many said they were reluctant to get involved with a protest because they felt it would do little good.

Hazel Muscavitch of Dry Tavern said she has been fighting billing errors since 1978 and is tired, "of doing bookkeeping for the phone company." She said her monthly bills have had as high as 12 billing errors. "Over the years I would estimate that I have had hundreds of billing mistakes," she stated.

The crux of the testimony offered by Mrs. Wanda Owens was the fact family members have trouble calling and one even quit trying. Speaking of Mid-Penn personnel, she said, "They get very rude. I never had anyone be nice to me."

Goldie Sulka of Mt. Morris said she had four long distance calls on one bill, three to Buffalo, N.Y., and one to San Diego, Calif., which were never made from her home. Kay Haines, also of Mt. Morris, said she had 12 errors on one bill.

Agatha Beach of Mt. Morris said she was billed for eight long distance calls to a sex shop in New York City during a two-month period. She said the phone company said she must pay and blamed the calls on someone in her home. Mrs. Beach said only she and her four-year-old child were at home at the time the calls were made. "Someone at the phone company said perhaps someone dialed the number for my four-year-old," she testified. She continues to refuse to pay for the calls.

Dorothy Dunning of Spraggs took the stand and complained her phone was out of order for three weeks despite five calls to the repair department. She refused to pay for the service during the disruption and said it took four months to get the bill settled.

Judge Clements said the public hearing for the company to answer charges will most likely be held in Waynesburg at a date to set. Because of the technical nature of the Consumer Advocate's report, that hearing would most likely be held in Pitts-

Bobtown Health Center Will Expand Services

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Plans for a pulmonary laboratory at the Bobtown Health Center, to begin in October, have been announced jointly by the Southeastern Greene Community Health Center and Monongalia General Hospital.

The pulmonary laboratory will provide screening, diagnosis, evaluation and recommendation for treatment for patients suffering from Black Lung disease, asthma, emphysema and other breathing difficulties.

It is being established as a satellite unit of Monongalia Hospital cardio-pulmonary rehabilitation program which was the first operation of its kind in the area when it opened in April 1982. The satellite will provide services locally for patients who now must travel to Pittsburgh, Wheeling or Morgantown.

The need for such a service has long been recognized. A federal study reveals that 31 percent of 178,000 active and inactive coal miners have some level of lung disease. This study also shows that the distance required to reach services is one of the reasons more miners do not seek help with breathing difficulties. The pulmonary services will be funded in part by the Coal Workers Respiratory Disease program of the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

Medical data gathered through tests on patients at Bobtown will be transmitted via a telephone/computer network to Monongalia, where it will be interpreted within 24 hours by Dr. Joseph J. Renn III, a physician who is board certified in pulmonary. Based upon this data, Dr. Renn will make suggestions to the referring physician regarding diagnosis and treatment.

A satellite arrangement with an existing program is a much more cost-effective method of providing needed services, compared with establishing an entirely new program, according to Laurie Duraney, administrator of the Southeastern Greene Community Health Center. Ms. Duraney emphasized that any physician may refer patients who are having breathing difficulties to the pulmonary laboratory at the Bobtown Health Center.

Monongalia's board of trustees has approved $18,000 for the purchase of equipment.

Mather Youth Is Poster Child

MATHER — Jason Gallentine, 10-year-old son of Gary and Darlene Gallentine of 5th Street, Mather, has been selected as the 1983 poster representative for the Western Pennsylvania Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

In this capacity, Jason who will be a fifth grade student at Jefferson-Morgan Elementary School in the fall, will be called upon to help with public education programs aimed at increasing awareness and understanding about Cystic Fibrosis. This includes helping to promote the chapter's upcoming "Battle of the Media Stars," scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 21 at Point State Park in Pittsburgh.

Jason is active in the Cub Scouts as a Webelo and plays for the Mather Legion's Little League team. He is also serving as the youth representative for the Allegheny Trails Council No. 527 and he is a member of the Mather Christian Church.

An inherited and chronic disease, cystic fibrosis affects the respiratory and digestive systems of children and young adults. While there is currently no cure for this disease, nor any way to identify who carriers are, the Western Pennsylvania Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation remains committed to providing support for the development of better patient care and continuing research for finding a cure and a way to identify carriers through public education and fund raising campaigns.

Leadership Award

Esther Kovach of Rices Landing, clerical supervisor in the Greene County Assistance office, is shown with Pennsylvania Secretary of Public Welfare Walter Cohen after she received a top award for outstanding service to the Department. The award, given to only four county assistance office employees throughout the state this year, cited Mrs. Kovach for contributions and leadership in implementation of a computer system linking county assistance officers throughout the state with Harrisburg. Mrs. Kovach, who has worked at the Greene County office for 28 years, received the award during a luncheon meeting in Harrisburg.

Nurse During The Week, Rodeo Rider On Weekends

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — Carolyn Gross of Fairmont, W.Va., looks like the nurse she is when she's wearing her starched, white uniform, but on weekends she dons her boots and cowboy hat and becomes the leading barrel racer on the Rodeo Cowboys of America circuit.

She will be appearing here Sunday, on the third day of the Diamond World Championship Rodeo to be held at the Greene County Fairgrounds under the auspices of Hospice of Greene County.

Not only is it unusual to find a nurse riding on the rodeo circuit, but when one considers she rides a 16-year-old borrowed horse from Greene County, it staggers the mind.

During the week Carolyn is the quality assurance coordinator at the United Hospital Center in Clarksburg, W.Va. On the weekends, she and "Moon Sid" can be found riding in a rodeo somewhere on the east coast.

A five-year veteran of the rodeo circuit, Carolyn has another tie to Greene County. She competed several times in the Waynesburg Horse Show which she still considers one of the top shows in the nation. However, the blue ribbons and trophies no longer paid the expenses so she decided to compete for the "big" money in the rodeos.

Actually, when she was a small girl, Carolyn wanted to be a horse. She soon realized that was impossible and decided to become a cowboy instead. It wasn't long before she found that an impossible dream also. The next best thing was becoming a cowgirl, and she has been quite successful.

Following graduation from high school, she attended Fairmont State College for three years before dropping out after deciding she didn't want to become a teacher. A few years later she decided she would return to college for a nursing degree.

Her love of horses brought her to the rodeo scene five years ago and the possibility of winning several hundred dollars for a less-than-a-minute ride helped too.

This weekend Carolyn will be competing in Manassas, Va., on Friday night; in Butler on Saturday and in Waynesburg Sunday afternoon. Since she started the current season in Chattanooga, Tenn., back in January, she has won $1,300 and, at one dollar for one point, she leads the association with 1,300 points.

Two years ago, her mount fell during an event in Virginia and was badly injured. One of those in the audience was Mrs. Ray Anderson of West Finley who told her husband about the accident. Ray contacted Carolyn later and said she was welcome to use one of his horses which had retired to pasture two years earlier. She was assured there were still five years of competition left in "Moon Sid."

Carolyn jumped at the chance and has never been sorry. The relationship between Carolyn and her borrowed quarter horse has reached the point where they can communicate.

"Sid knows when he has run a good race because he will come to a sliding halt at the exit gate and whinny after the race," Carolyn said. "When he whinnies, I know we are in the money."

Running the barrel race seems to be Sid's only interest in life, Carolyn said. During a recent pleasure ride, Carolyn dismounted to check the stirrups and Sid decided to go home. "He left me two miles from home, and when I got back to the house, he was standing at the hitching post with a contented look," Carolyn said.

Carolyn's "ranch" near Fairmont consists of four acres and four horses, but with the nursing career and rodeo career she sees little of it most of the year.

She is a member of four rodeo associations and consistently wins money in all four. "I'm not getting rich, but it pays the expenses and there is still some profit," she concluded.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

This was the scene in Jefferson on Feb. 9, 1951, shortly after three separate sewer gas explosions demolished six homes killing two and injuring eight.

In the "old days," when men were women and women did the housework, it was truly a different world for women in particular and for everyone in general.

"Women knew what their place was in those days" was the cry of masculine die-hards as women made their first ventures into the world beyond the kitchen and pantry and espoused other goals than keeping house, rearing children, and depending on the "menfolk" for all sorts of counseling and personal advice on subjects which, in many cases, they had as much expertise as any man.

Regardless of what their individual abilities and skills may have been, it's pretty plain, in retrospect, that in many ways the so-called stronger sex, as men proclaimed themselves to be, had as many collective shortcomings as women. But they hid behind their traditional roles as fathers and breadwinners.

Thus the myth was handed down from generation to generation that men, because they were generally larger and stronger, were physically superior to women. But that was in the days before physical training became available to girls as well as to boys.

Greene County had a classic example of the nonsense built into the myth made clear as the sun on a bright morning of early Spring when it was announced that Miss Elizabeth Walker, from Johnstown, was to be director and head instructor at Waynesburg's first swimming pool. That happen long enough ago that it engendered a lot of remarks about the fitness of the appointment, especially from people who had no experience in teaching swimming or keeping a pool.

The wisdom of the appointment quickly became clear.

The horse play which had become a definite safety hazard went first, and as completely as though it had never existed. And the little of candy wrappers and other debris vanished as completely as though it had never been, and has never returned to this day, more than a quarter century later.

In fact, both the quality of the swimming instruction and the sanitary condition of the pool and its grounds were of such excellence that it prompted such people as the late Bill George, a Waynesburg native who became a well-known professional football player, to bring all his children "back home" for their instruction not only in swimming but in the proper behavior which has become a valuable side benefit of Miss Walker's discipline.

The valuable role that women have played in the community can be found in the rolls of Sunday School teachers, the roster of granges and other organizations, and in virtually every aspect of community endeavor.

The myth which held that women were inferior to men in many of life's endeavors has been pretty well exploded, and we're all better for it.

Highway Parking Ban Badly Needed For Fair

Many people who attend the Greene County Fair have been in the habit for years of parking their cars along Route 21.

It is a dangerous practice, and the fact that it has become a custom does not make it any safer. This was proven last year when an elderly man was hit and killed as he walked from between two parked cars while trying to cross the busy four-lane highway.

While the 1983 fair is still almost two months away, the subject is timely because the Franklin Township supervisors have little enough time to do something about it before the first ferris wheel turns.

Two members of the Greene County Fair Board have already asked the supervisors to adopt an ordinance prohibiting parking on both sides of the highway during fair week. They pointed out that parking facilities are available on the fairgrounds, and that there are plenty of other free parking places along side in the immediate area.

The township supervisors, who considered highway parking restrictions a few years ago, raised the same question of enforcement when the idea was again proposed last week. The township has no police force and state police will not enforce parking regulations.

One possible answer which comes to mind would be to empower special police who patrol the fairgrounds during fair week to ticket cars which park along the highway.

At any rate, passage of a parking ordinance would make it possible to post the roadside with signs advising fairgoers that parking is not permitted. Most people observe such restrictions, and if not eliminated completely, the hazard would certainly be alleviated.

The parking ban is needed, and the Franklin Township supervisors should act promptly to enact the necessary ordinance so it is ready for this year's county fair.

Carmichaels Board Approves Back Pay

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Area School Board approved a settlement of approximately $56,000 in back pay for high school Principal William Harr during its meeting Thursday evening.

The settlement will enable the school district to withdraw the action for declaratory judgment it filed 18 months ago in Greene County Court to obtain a determination of the amount of back salary it owed in light of earnings Harr might have had during the four years he was fighting his dismissal.

Harr was dismissed as high school principal in March 1978 following a school board hearing into allegations that he had improperly used money from the student activity fund to purchase several items for his personal use.

Harr appealed the board's action to the State Secretary of Education, who ruled that the dismissal was improper because there were no regulations governing use of the activity fund. The secretary sustained Harr's contention that the items — a clock, stereo and tray — had been purchased for school use and merely stored at his home.

The school board appealed the ruling to the State Commonwealth Court, which dismissed the appeal on the grounds that the secretary was "the ultimate fact finder in cases of this nature," and that the secretary, not the board, "had the final power to determine the credibility of witnesses, the weight of their testimony, and the inferences to be drawn."

The district then appealed to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, based on the contention that the Commonwealth Court had erred in failing to find that a local school board is the ultimate fact finder in such cases.

The Supreme Court, however, refused on two occasions to consider the appeal. Harr was then reinstated as principal on Jan. 12, 1982, at the same $17,000 annual salary he was receiving at the time he was fired.

Solicitor John Stets said the settlement, in addition to back salary, included retroactive payments on Social Security and retirement benefits.

Visit By Congressmen

CLARKSVILLE — A delegation of visiting congressmen was told in Clarksville Saturday that the surface mining industry is a vital part of the nation's energy complex and could use help in several areas.

The House Subcommittee on Energy and the Environment, headed by U.S. Rep. Morris Udall (D-Ariz.) visited several strip mines near Clarksville Saturday morning during a helicopter tour of surface mining sites in western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

The tour of active, reclaimed and abandoned sites was designed to give them first-hand information on effectiveness of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act. The subcommittee is scheduled to hold oversight hearings on the act on June 21 and 23.

Three Army helicopters were used to transport the congressmen and others in the delegation. Other members of the subcommittee on the tour were Rep. Austin J. Murphy (D-Pa.), Rep. Nick Rahall (D-W.Va.) and Rep. John Seiberling (D-Ohio). They were accompanied by James Harris, director of the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement.

Arthur Boyle, operator of the Bushta site at Clarksville, where the tour kicked off, said that a principal concern for small operators such as he is the 60-day deadline for restoring a site after mining operations have been completed.

"With the amount of equipment we have, there is just no way we can meet the deadline," he told the committee members and state Sens. Barry Stout and James Kelley. "Twelve months would be a much more realistic requirement."

He presented the delegation with a fact sheet indicating he has 34 employees with total operating costs of close to $3 million at the three sites, including federal and state taxes, payroll and benefits. In addition, he hires seven truck contractors.

Incumbent L.R. (Butch) Santore, who was the top vote-getter in the commissioner race, reported expenditures of $2,538.28 and contributions of $2,891.25, leaving him a net balance at the end of the campaign of $352.97.

James M. Rizor was the only other Democratic commissioner candidate to file a final expense account by Thursday's deadline. He reported expenditures of $4,200 and no contributions. Final accounts have not been filed by T. William Barnes, Marian C. Rush or W. Jack Whitlatch.

Cowan reported expenditures of $895.55 and a $100 contribution, and John Gardner reported expenditures of $1,298.93 and contributions of $125. Lloyd (Odie) Rohanna reported expenditures of $1,243.63 and no contributions.

Treasurer Joseph Souders spent $3,740.25 and listed contributions of $50. His Democratic opponent, Robert Elliott, has not filed a final account.

Affidavits attesting to expenditures of less than $250 were filed by the four candidates for county auditor and by District Attorney Charles Morris and Register and Recorder Thomas Headlee, neither of whom had any opposition.

The Rev. George Shultzabarger will retire.

Magistrates Refuse To Accept Personnel Cuts

WAYNESBURG — Despite a recent rebuff by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, two of Greene County's three district magistrates are continuing their legal battle to have set aside a Greene County Court order which limits the number of secretaries they can employ in their offices.

On Friday, Ruth Hughes and John C. Watson filed an equity action in Greene County Court against Judge Glenn Toothman, contending that his administrative order of Jan. 27, 1983 is invalid because the county court "does not have jurisdiction over the appointment, dismissal and duties of the plaintiffs' necessary personal staffs."

The court order dictating the number of people Mrs. Hughes and Watson can employ was based on a study by the Administrative Office of Pennsylvania Courts of staffing levels in district justice offices throughout the state.

In light of statistics produced by this report, Judge Toothman reduced staffing to one full-time secretary in Watson's office, and one full-time and one part-time secretary in Mrs.

Hughes' office, effective March 1. Prior to that, each had employed two full-time secretaries.

The magistrates complied with order, but they filed a petition with the Pennsylvania Supreme Court asking that the order be set aside. The appellate court, last month, dismissed the petition, without setting forth its reasons for doing so.

The equity action, filed Friday by attorney Mark E. Mascara of Washington, claims that Anthony Ransom of the Administrative Office of the Pennsylvania Courts spent 45 minutes studying the plaintiffs' offices, and that his report was "in no way an accurate evaluation."

It adds that the reduction in staff has "resulted in a backlog of cases and resulted in a general reduction in the number of cases processed, slower and possible inaccurate reporting, and a slower processing of claims, thereby resulting in a great disservice to the citizens of Greene County."

The complaint also claims that while the Administrative Office made suggestions to Judge Toothman on staffing of the offices, it "did not grant the defendant jurisdiction to determine the necessary personal staff of the plaintiffs."

It claims that the act creating the magisterial system gave magistrates the power to appoint, discharge and fix the duties of their necessary personal staff, and that the county court therefore does not have the jurisdiction to assume those responsibilities.

When contacted Friday, Mascara said the lawsuit is important because it is an issue of first impression which could affect magistrates throughout Pennsylvania by establishing a precedent.

While the court order of Jan. 27 also affected staffing in the office of Magistrate Emil Bertugli of Carmichaels, he has not joined in the legal efforts to have it set aside.

Watson is magistrate for Waynesburg and western Greene County. Mrs. Hughes, with an office in Franklin Township, has jurisdiction over the central part of the county. Bertugli's office serves the eastern part of the county.

WAYNESBURG — Chartiers-Houston High School's Tim Gump has announced that he will attend Waynesburg College in the fall to pursue his wrestling career.

Gump will take an impressive list of high school credentials with him. The Bucs' 126-pounder captured third in the WPIAL championships, besides taking first in the Seneca Valley, Mt. Lebanon and California State College tournaments.

He finished the 1983 season with a 34-3-1 record, while compiling a career record of 58-11-2. Of Gump's 34 wins in 1983, 21 were by fall.

Michael Buckiso of Thomas Jefferson will also wrestle for the Yellow Jackets in the fall. He recorded a 27-3-1 mark last season.

"They are fine young men with great wrestling potential," Waynesburg coach Sam Church said. "They are very hard workers and super recruits."

Ross Gives DJ's Split

Pitcher Brian Ross smacked two home runs in the second game to lead Daddy Jim's to a split of its doubleheader against Triangle Hotel in Greene County men's softball league action Monday night.

After dropping the opener 7-1, Daddy Jim's rebounded with a 5-4 victory in game two to maintain first place in the league with a 24-4 record, two games in front of second-place

Pappy's. John Buchanan was tagged with the loss in the second game after being credited with the win in game one, helping his own cause with a home run.

In the first game, Ron Headley and Keith Watson doubled for Triangle, which brought its season record to 15-13.

A Winner By Any Name

The name has changed, but the propensity for winning softball games — lots of softball games — remains.

The Dellovade team of the Girls Community Softball League may well be the hottest softball commodity in the Washington-Greene County area. The numbers say so.

Known as Prosperity last year, it went 68-11, finishing second at the Amateur Softball Association's state tournament in New Castle and placing fourth at the ASA Eastern Regionals in York.

Sponsored this season by the McMurray-based A.C. Dellovade Construction Co., it is 22-4. That's a current, two-year record of 90-15, which means it wins 85.7 percent of the time.

Eighty-five point seven. Though comprised of girls 15 years of age and younger, Dellovade competes in the 18-and-under division of the Girls Community Softball League. Prosperity won the league's 15-and-under championship last season in 17-0 fashion.

Seventeen and nothing, naught, zip, zero, nil.

State Certifies Vo-Tech School

WAYNESBURG — Officials at Greene County Vo-Tech School have received word from the state Department of Education that the local program has received an approval certificate.

The awarding of this certificate is based upon the successful completion of an on-site evaluation by a team assigned by the Division of Vocational Educational Planning and Financial Management of the Department of Education.

This certificate is awarded only to those vocational technical schools which meet the requirements set by the state Board of Education.

Every vocational technical school that has been approved is subject to periodic evaluation of its program for continuing approval. Local school districts, however, are encouraged to offer educational programs which exceed the required minimum.

Club Members Qualify

LATROBE — Several members of Greene County Miners Track Club recently qualified for the TAC Junior Olympics to be held at Baldwin July 9-10.

In addition to the local team, 11 other track teams competed in Latrobe.

Those qualifying were Jackie Bedilion, 8, who placed third in the 1,500-meter race walk and fourth in the shot put; Kelly Robinson, 13, who was fourth in the 400-meter dash; Carrie Bedilion, 12, who won a first in the 1,500-meter race walk, third in the shot put and fourth in the 400-meter dash; Tammy Bedilion, 16, who won first in the 3,000-meter race walk; Lee Robinson, 11, second in the 400-meter dash and third in the 200-meter dash; Danny Litton, 9, fourth in the shot put; Cyndee Bedilion, 12, fourth in the shot put, and Debbie Bedilion, 9, second in the 1,500-meter race walk and third in the shot put.

About the only thing this team doesn't have is an ASA state title. Last year it finished second to York Barbell, which eventually finished 13th in the nation, and this year it finished second to... well, Mother Nature.

"We were playing the (York) Crusaders and we had the bases loaded and nobody out in the first inning when it started raining," says league vice president Bill Regan, who helps coach the team along with Harry Humphreys and manager Jim Armstrong. "As a result, both of us were awarded second place and Economy was given first because they were undefeated at the time. The tournament rules provide for that."

"But it was tough to tell the kids, 'Hey, you're not going to get a chance.'"

Tough because Dellovade had just won five consecutive games in the tournament's losers' bracket, tough because it had not lost to Economy in two years.

But the team is regrouping, setting its sites on the ASA Eastern Regionals July 23-24 at Richmond, Va., and the ASA National Tournament later this summer in Tifton, Ga.

In the meantime, the team will practice a lot, enter as many tournaments as possible and generally beat up on people.

"We work with them an awful lot. We drill fundamentals into them; we stress fundamentals both mentally and physically until it's coming out their ears," Regan says. "They're all above-average athletes, they're coachable and they can accept constructive criticism."

The team began practicing in April this season, and will spend countless hours on the road playing tournaments in addition to showing up for its regular-season games here.

"Actually, we take up their whole summer," Armstrong says. "Their dedication is unbelievable."

If you're thinking most 13-, 14- and 15-year-old girls would not sacrifice their summers to play softball, you're probably right. But then again, this is not your normal bunch of teen-age girls.

"Almost without exception, they are above-average or excellent students," Humphreys says, "and they excel at more than one sport. This is beyond the funnies stuff. They want the competition, they want the personal accolades and the trophies. I don't think there's one parent pushing them. They want to do it."

Which probably explains their success rate. The team won the last four tournaments it entered last season and has won two more this season, the New Wilmington Invitational and the Marietta, Ohio, Invitational. Dellovade went through both undefeated, and the latter was a tournament for girls aged 18-and-under.
