Carmichaels Board Passes Budget

By Marcia Biddle, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — It was literally the eleventh hour before the Carmichaels Area School Board passed its 1983-84 budget Wednesday night. With only 2 1/2 hours to go before the deadline — midnight Thursday — the board passed a $3,789,532 which budget for a 7-mill property tax increase. The present rate is 70 mills.

The board managed to cut $141,475 from the tentative budget approved in April through several work sessions, including one of more than two hours Wednesday night. When the board convened the meeting at 10:15 p.m., Erma Jean Thomas moved that the budget be adopted, but the adoption process was delayed when board member Henry Bacan asserted his right to question the budget, line-by-line.

It was close to 11:30 p.m. before the vote was taken, and the budget was then adopted by a vote of 7-1, with Bacan casting the negative vote. After the meeting, Bacan explained his opposition to the 7-mill tax increase.

"We started at 13 mills and got it down to 10, to 7, and then to 5. Then tonight it went back up to 7. I felt we could get it to four and one half by cutting one item alone — the school board convention. We spent $7,600 last year and have $7,000 for it in the budget this year. Since the economy is the way it is, I feel we shouldn't travel and spend that money."

One mill of tax in the Carmichaels Area District brings in approximately $18,500.

Other board members pointed to increases in fixed costs, over which the board has no control, as being responsible for the tax increase. Examples cited were health and retirement benefits, which will increase by $50,000, and intersystem payments (to the Vo-Tech School, the Intermediate Unit, etc.), which are up by $47,639.

Board members also noted that instructional costs, including teachers' salaries and supplies, went up by 11 mills.

"We still were able to bring that down by four mills by cutting in other categories," they said.

After adoption of the budget, the board passed tax resolutions to support it, with Bacan voting against the real estate levy of 77 mills and the $15 per capita tax. Other taxes include a 1 percent real estate transfer tax, a 1 percent earned income tax and a $10 occupational privilege tax. These passed unanimously.

In salary matters, the board voted to award increases of $2,000 to four administrators. The salary of Dr. Dolores Zoldos, district superintendent, was raised to $39,000; those of elementary principals Terry Ganocy and Edward Zalar, to $28,250; and that of business manager Louis Pasuzzo; to $29,000.

No change was made in the $17,000 annual salary of high school principal William Harr, who recently received a settlement of $56,000 for four years of salary lost between his dismissal as principal in 1978 and his court-ordered reinstatement in 1982.

County Housing Authority Seeks Approval For Rent Subsidy Program

WAYNESBURG — A program which makes rent subsidies available to low income persons who reside in private housing may soon be available in Greene County.

The Greene County Housing Authority will submit an application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for Section 8 federal funding under the Existing Housing Program. If approved, it would empower the housing authority to enter into rent subsidy agreements with the owners of 25 one-bedroom apartments and five two-bedroom apartments.

Under the agreements, the owners would rent their units at HUD approved levels. Tenants with limited incomes would pay no more than 30 percent of their monthly incomes as rent and HUD would pay the balance.

Louis DeMola, housing authority executive director, said the program has worked well in other counties but has never been used in Greene County.

"We've made applications for it in the past but have never received approval," he said. "This time there should be a good chance since we are asking for a limited number of units. If it works well, we could probably get more units approved in the future."

DeMola said that apartments would have to meet HUD standards for sanitation and safety to be included in the program.

"We know of places where people with limited incomes are having a very difficult time in meeting their rent payments and where their landlords would hate to see them have to move," DeMola said. "This program would be ideal in cases like that."

Once the program is approved, both property owners and low-income renters from all parts of Greene County could apply to participate.

The county commissioners, at their meeting Thursday, agreed to endorse the housing authority's application.

Waynesburg Youth Will Go To Canada

Scout Chosen For World Jamboree

WAYNESBURG — Kevin Smouse, 14, has been selected to participate in the 15th annual World Scout Jamboree near Alberta, Canada, July 4-16. Kevin is the only boy scout in this area who will be attending the jamboree. He is the son of Carl and Bonnie Smouse of Waynesburg and belongs to Boy Scout Troop 1287 of Waynesburg.

It is expected that 15,000 scouts from 117 countries will be attending the jamboree, with 5,000 of them from the United States and 38 scouts and their leaders traveling from Pennsylvania.

The two-week stay in the Great Falls campsite in the Canadian Rockies will include a stop at the Calgary Stampede, a famous rodeo dating back to 1912. The jamboree is held every six to ten years. In 1981 Kevin attended the National Jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill, Va., which is held every four years.

Prior to the jamboree, Kevin left Thursday for a three-day tour of the western United States. Included in the trip were stops in Denver, Colo., Rapid City, S.D., and on to Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming. From there he will travel to Canada.

He was eligible to participate in the jamboree since he has received his first class badge. Kevin also serves as the Cobra Patrol Leader for Troop 1287. Scoutmaster for the troop is Robert Scott of Waynesburg.

Conservation Corps For Youth Proposed

HARRISBURG — Claiming "it's an idea whose time has come again," two Democratic lawmakers have introduced a plan based on the depression-era, Civilian Conservation Corps to put state youth to work preserving urban and rural environments.

The legislation, a revised version of a component of the PennPRIDE proposal, was sponsored by Reps. H. William DeWeese of Greene County and Chaka Fattah of Philadelphia.

Dubbed the Pennsylvania Conservation Corps (PCC), House Bill 1295 proposes creating a program to employ and train youths aged 18 to 25.

As originally presented as a part of the entire PennPRIDE package, $20 million in state funds would have been allocated to run the program. The figure was cut to $15 million and the allocation for the program included via House amendments to Senate Bill 527 which passed the House by a 103-100 vote.

DeWeese indicated the type of projects the PCC might undertake under its rural and urban divisions include: railroad and railroad bridge improvements, repair and improvements to public parks and recreation areas, waterfront and port improvements, energy conservation of public buildings, forest preservation, historic structure preservation and pollution controls.

According to Fattah, teenagers admitted to the program would be trained for a minimum of three months and a maximum of one year. Trainees would be provided with workmen's compensation coverage and instead of wages, a stipend.

Some program participants will be housed in camps where they will be provided with room, board and a clothing allowance. Trainees enrolled in a non-residential program will be given a transportation allowance.

"This program could simultaneously attack the problems of high youth unemployment and deteriorating public facilities," DeWeese said. "Politicians are always calling young people 'our greatest resource' — our hope for the future. I think it's high time we tapped into our greatest resource, put these kids to work and give them some self-respect and hope for their future."

Fattah agreed, citing the high rate of unemployment among minority youth in urban areas. "All of these teens would have an opportunity to do something tangible with their lives," he said. "If they can point to a housing project or a community center they helped restore, it will give them a sense of accomplishment which they may have never experienced before."

After the training period is over, participants will be evaluated to determine if they can be placed in jobs in the private sector, or need additional training or education. "We don't intend to use them as a cheap labor force to get our parks clean and then abandon these young people," DeWeese said. "The primary purpose of the program is to help the teenagers, if we can conserve our environment in the bargain — so much the better."

No Tax Increase In West Greene

ROGERSVILLE — Taxpayers in the West Greene School District will not have a tax increase this year.

The final 1983-84 budget adopted by the West Greene School Board at a special meeting Thursday night is $19,553 less than last year's and the real estate tax will remain at 44 mills.

Planned expenditures in the $4,676,261 budget are as follows: administration, $167,706; instruction, $1,826,515; pupil personnel services, $67,428; health services, $30,420; pupil transportation, $499,064; operation of plant, $445,373; fixed charges, $382,900; student body activities, $93,046; community services, $4,100; capital outlay, $31,979; debt service, $778,516; intersystem payments, $179,428; and budgetary reserve, $169,786.

In addition to the 44 mills, the board levied the five dollar per capita tax and the one-half of one percent wage and transfer tax.

A three-year contract with the district non-professionals was approved. The total increase for the 31 employees is $28,391. The old contract was due to expire Thursday night.

The board also approved, subject to a review by the solicitor, a three-year contract with bus contractors Ralph Conklin and Wayne Grim. Grim's contract calls for a charge of $1.50 a mile for the first year, $1.62 for the second, and $1.77 in the third. Conklin will receive $1.18 per mile in the first year, $1.22 the second and $1.26 the third. The contract also calls for the district to pay any additional equipment or modification of the buses as required by the state.

School board member Lawrence (Buzz) Headley submitted his resignation to the board since he will be moving out of state July 20. Headley said he is moving to Gainesville, Fla. and will be employed as a teacher for ROTC cadets. The board delayed acting on the resignation until the next board meeting. That meeting has been changed to July 18.

Approval was given to change the mailing address of the middle-high school to Waynesburg R.D.5. The address had been Rogersville but mail is not delivered to the school at that address.

Effective in the 1984-85 school year, instrumental music will be started at the sixth grade level rather than in fourth grade. Board member Roy Barnhart said such a move will give Ron Jesso more free time to work with elementary students on chorus and assemblies, as well as supplementing musical education given in the classroom.

The July 18 meeting and the August meeting will be held in the Graysville Elementary School. The September meeting will be held in the Springhill-New Freeport School and the October meeting in Aleppo. The meetings will all start at the regular time, 7:30 p.m.

In other business, the board:

- Agreed to advertise for four sections of bleachers for the football field.

- Awarded a bid of $10,500 for 200 student desks and chairs.

- Approved a request from Greene County Leisuretime Activities to conduct Adult Basic Education courses and leisure time activities at the high school beginning next fall at no cost to the district.

- Gave approval to the administration to conduct summer school during the summer of 1984. This will be a self-supporting program and will accept students from other districts.

Funds Allocated To County For Transportation Program

WAYNESBURG — Greene County has been allocated $55,359 by the Department of Public Welfare to provide transportation for low income persons to needed medical services.

The grant, which is dependent on an appropriation of $11.2 million by the Legislature to fund the new program on a statewide basis, would cover the nine-month period from Oct. 1, 1983, through June 30, 1984.

At their meeting Thursday, the Greene County commissioners indicated they would accept the grant, with the understanding that the service could be provided by the rural transportation program already being operated by the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp.

Ann Bargerstock, director of the CAC transportation system, told the commissioners she has reviewed the guidelines for the new program and feels "it could easily be integrated into the existing transportation system to provide a really valuable service for the county."

The existing CAC service provides transportation for senior citizens and is available to the general public on a fare basis. It is funded primarily by the Department of Transportation out of state lottery funds.

Under the proposed Department of Welfare program, persons who are eligible for medical assistance would be provided with free transportation when they need medical service.

Counties are being given the opportunity to accept the Public Assistance Transportation Block Grants and provide the service. Where they do not accept the offer, the DPW will solicit bids from public and private organizations to deliver the service.

The commissioners delegated Mrs. Bargerstock to represent them at a regional meeting in Pittsburgh on July 12 at which the program will be described in more detail. Following that meeting, they will have until July 15 to formally accept the grant.

Grand Opening For Restored Barbershop

AVELLA — The grand opening of the restored Roseberry Barbershop, formerly located at Rices Landing but now a part of Meadowcroft Village, will be held from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday, July 17.

The event will be celebrated with music, barbershop quartets and food at the Country Kitchen—or pack your own picnic basket.

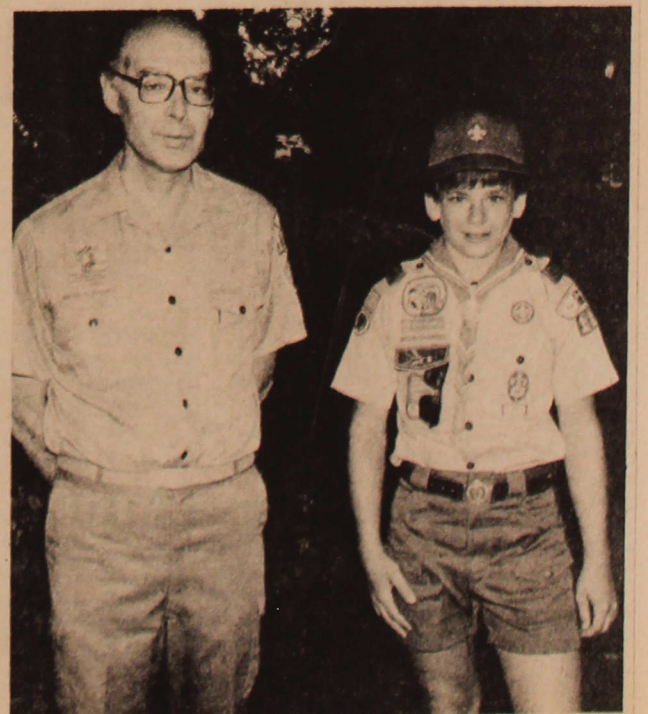

In honor of "Rices Landing Day," the Meadowcroft Foundation has extended free admission to all Rices Landing and Dry Tavern residents. Tickets will be distributed at the Rices Landing Fire Hall from 1 to 5 p.m. Friday, July 8, and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, July 9.

Bus transportation will be provided on a first-come, first-served basis at a cost of $5 per person.

The barbershop, with its original barber chairs, furniture and equipment, shaving mugs, hair tonic and talcum powder, was donated to the Village by the Roseberry family of Rices Landing.

The family included several musicians and there were many nights when the townspeople and other musicians gathered in the old barbershop for a "jam" session.

Meadowcroft officials hope to recreate this "down home" atmosphere at the grand opening.

Carmichaels Council Rejects PennDot's Recommendation

CARMICHAELS — Pending upcoming committee meetings, Carmichaels Borough Council postponed action on two matters of importance and took care of more routine business during its meeting Tuesday night.

A motion to change the yield signs in front of Edward's Department Store on South Market Street to a stop sign was defeated. PennDOT had advised the change be made for safety reasons, but council members stated that there had been no accidents at the intersection during the past year and felt that the change might create more traffic problems.

A motion was passed to study the need for a second parking space for wheelchair users with the installation of the handicapped parking space postponed until a need is shown. A motion was also passed to ticket utility company vehicles found parked at meters when utility personnel are not working in the immediate area.

Council President Betty Morris reported on her attendance at the conference of the Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs at Hershey where she studied "raising revenue and cutting costs." She also investigated the possibility of the borough applying for a Small Communities Grant for storm sewers and sidewalks.

The council president was not optimistic about the borough's chances since she was told that 192 such facilities grants were submitted this year and only seven were approved. In addition, Carmichaels Borough probably does not meet the income requirement for this program.

She said that a majority of borough residents must be classed as low income and "when you average out the income of our 630 borough residents, we are classified as affluent."

She suggested that a survey of borough needs might be conducted by Fayette Engineers to determine the cost of storm sewers and that the project might be done in small segments as borough funds permit.

Council approved the motion to investigate having the survey done rather than applying for a grant at this time.

Borough solicitor Charles Morris reported that a magistrate's hearing had been held about a problem of trash dumping, mostly old tires and metal, on the property of Margaret Conard, 323 North Market Street. He said that Mrs. Conard agreed to stop the dumping and that efforts are being made to obtain fill to cover the area.

A request from Sara L. Ruth for $300 to help the Chamber of Commerce defray the cost of Christmas lighting was referred to the finance committee. Also at her request, council agreed to cover the parking meters along the route of the Coal Show Parade on Aug. 27, and approved having one patrolman on duty for the bicycle and pet parades on Aug. 25 and 26.

Council will meet Wednesday, July 6, to discuss ideas for floor plans and construction of a new borough building. They will also meet July 18 to study police pensions and other police matters. These two meetings will be study sessions for council members with no action, if any, to be taken until their regular meeting on Monday, Aug. 1.

Apartment In Wayne Village Is Heavily Damaged By Fire

WAYNESBURG — A three-bedroom duplex apartment in the Wayne Village housing project in West Waynesburg was heavily damaged by fire Tuesday afternoon.

Although the fire gutted the second-floor bedroom where it started, Waynesburg firefighters were able to contain the fire and prevent it from burning into the ceiling where it would have threatened to spread to the other five duplex units in the block-long structure.

The apartment was occupied by Sylvanus and Marlene Bennett and their six children, ranging from 10 to 21 years of age. A daughter, Barbara, 17, was in the downstairs portion of the duplex when the fire was discovered and was able to get out unharmed. A son, Venie, 16, was reported to have been outside playing. Other members of the family were not at home when the fire was noticed about 4:15 p.m.

Waynesburg firefighters estimated damage to the bedroom and a downstairs sliding glass door at $5,000. Damage to the contents of the bedroom was estimated at $2,500. Smoke and water damage was said to have been minimal.

The fire is believed to have started in bedding.

The Bennett duplex was one of the end units in the six-unit building which fronts on Route 21 in West Waynesburg. Fearful the fire would spread, occupants of the other duplex units in the building began removing their furniture and other belongings.

A contractor replacing exterior bricks on the bottom portion of the building said a neighbor called his attention to the fire and he forced open the sliding glass door at the back of the apartment to get in. He said he thought maybe he could smother the fire but that the upstairs was full of smoke and he could see a mattress burning.

The building is owned by the Greene County Housing Authority.

The Wayne Village project was constructed in 1972 and contains 50 multiple-bedroom apartments in several buildings as well as several one apartment units and a community building. Extensive renovation work is currently being done on the buildings.

Makes Plans For Festival

Art Academy Officers Elected

CARMICHAELS — Walter Atalski has been elected president of the board of directors of the Greene Academy of Art.

William Cole was elected vice president, Thelma Callaghan, secretary, and Ira Brown, treasurer.

The Greene Academy, located near the Carmichaels Covered Bridge, will again sponsor activities at the span during the annual Covered Bridge Festival on Sept. 17-18.

A quilt display is planned along with craft displays and demonstrations, food and bake sales and musical performances. The highlight this year will be the appearance of Linda Zimmer, a puppeteer. In addition to three performances at the Greene Academy, she will give a workshop for children in puppet making at the Flenniken Memorial Library on Sept. 17.

Craftsmen who wish to take part in the festival should contact the academy or John Hopton, chairman.

The board agreed to present a program and tour of the restored building for the Elderhostel program at Waynesburg College.

Affiliate Artists Will Tour County Again

CARMICHAELS — Greene County Council on the Arts has been notified by the U.S. Steel Foundation that an affiliate artist will be sponsored again next year.

Scheduled for the 1983-84 season is Brad Liebl, a baritone who has performed in operatic roles in this country and in Europe. He will be in Greene County from Sept. 21 through Oct. 4. Also appearing will be Peter Phillips, an actor who has performed on Broadway and in such television series as "All My Children" and "The Guiding Light." Phillips will be here from Jan. 8 through Jan. 11, 1984.

Rachel Lampert, a dancer, will tour the county from May 13 through May 27, 1984. She is director of her own modern dance company which recently toured in Europe.

Any organization that wishes to schedule a performance by one of the artists, is asked to call or write the local council.

In other business during the meeting, Marcia Biddle reported on her attendance at the Local Arts Services Advisory Panel meetings in Harrisburg earlier this month. The panel sets policies for the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts and makes decisions about the distribution of grants.

Mrs. Biddle also represented Greene County at the conference of the National Assembly of Local Arts Agencies in Philadelphia. About 300 arts administrators from across the United States attended.

One of the conference speakers was her brother, John McKenna, formerly of Waynesburg, who now serves as executive director of the Fort Wayne, Indiana Fine Arts Foundation. He also is president of the Indiana State Assembly of Local Art Agencies and is a member of the national board of directors of NALAA.

Catalogues for the 1983 Greene County Fair are now being mailed to livestock owners and other exhibitors.

Despite the urbanization of the area, there is still a fine supply of livestock and produce in all categories of competition.

In recent years, youth have taken an increasing role in the livestock departments through the excellent 4-H programs. Their friendly, spirited competitive nature has continued to make the local fair an excellent source of entertainment for the entire family.

The 118th annual Jacktown Fair, one of the oldest if not the oldest continuing fair in the United States, will kick off the local season on August 2 to be followed by the Greene County Fair the next week.

Offering a wide-variety of entertainment, the local fairs are one of the few places anymore where the entire family can attend and enjoy wholesome entertainment.

From cotton candy to major acts, the local fairs have something to please any member of the family. They also act as a reunion event for many who have left the county and but never fail to return for "the fair."

Like most public events, there is some commercialization but the local fairs have, for the most part, have escaped this 20th century evil. You can still find a shady spot to rest and just pass the time of day with a score of friends.

No one has ever determined the exact amount of people involved in the fairs but it's safe to say there is no other event in which more Greene County residents are directly involved. From the granges to the horse racing, thousands of local citizens find a part to play in this great American institution.

Budget Dilemmas Reflect Unhappiness Over Taxes

The difficulty which school boards have been having in reaching agreement on their 1983-84 budgets reflects the unhappiness of taxpayers over rising property taxes.

School boards are well aware of this mounting resentment and want to do everything they can to slow the tax escalation which goes hand-in-hand with rising educational costs. The same attitude was evident last fall in the hard-nosed approach which the boards took in negotiating teacher contracts.

Unfortunately, educational costs are continuing their rise, and there's not much that local boards can do about it. Their frustration stems from an insoluble dilemma. They can't hold the line on taxes, and at the same time provide the services which the state, parents and circumstances demand, without risking fiscal chaos.

One bright spot for Greene County taxpayers came last week when a State Tax Equalization Board study indicated that the county assessment office is doing a good job of assessing property. It showed that Greene is one of just seven counties in Pennsylvania where the average assessment is close to the proclaimed percentage of market value.

In fact, Greene County ranked fifth in the state among the 67 counties in this regard.

The importance of accurate assessments can't be overestimated because it is the only way of assuring that all property owners pay their fair share of taxes.

We might agree with the school boards that taxes are getting out of line, but at least we have the satisfaction of knowing that our neighbor must be just as unhappy about it as we are.

Sewer Authority Seeks Joint Effort On Sewer Problems

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Sewer Authority Tuesday night agreed to meet with Waynesburg Borough officials and discuss the possibility of working together in the future on sewer problems.

No date was scheduled but members of the Franklin authority said they would meet with three members of council.

The authority agreed to take over the sewer system in the Greene County Industrial Park. The system, constructed some 15 years ago, has been owned by the county and sewage was treated at a plant near the airport. However, when the new sewer system was constructed by the Franklin Township Sewer Authority, the commercial properties in the park were connected into the township system. It was an apparent oversight that the industrial park system was not absorbed earlier.

Authority engineer Art Hall told members that a review by the Environmental Protection Agency auditors has determined the local authority now owes $215,311 instead of $241,722 as previously reported for overpayments. Hall told the board he is determined the entire amount will eventually be accounted for to the satisfaction of EPA.

A spokesman for Mountainview Gardens has been invited to attend the August meeting of the sewer authority to again review an agreement between the authority, Waynesburg Borough, Franklin Township and the Mountainview developer for a cross-over valve to allow the project's sewage to flow into the township treatment plant.

The issue has been argued for over a year with the Mountainview developers balking on installation of the valve.

Mrs. Jerry Yost and daughter Tracy were holiday visitors at the home of their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Cosgray of East View. Mrs. Yost, Mrs. Cosgray and Tracy spent the previous week in North Carolina where Tracy attended a swimming and diving clinic.

William Hogue, national sales manager for Lantz and now a resident of Charlotte, N.C., visited friends and relatives over the Fourth of July including brothers Charles and Richard Hogue.

Toddy Greenlee, a member of the OR sales staff, visited her daughter and her family in Rockport, Mass. over the holiday weekend.

The dirt is flying in the Rolling Meadows section of Franklin Township. Construction of the First Church of the Nazarene has started on the former Ab Moore property along old Route 21. The old church on Greene Street in Waynesburg has been sold.

Phone Trouble Blamed On Storm

WAYNESBURG — Gordon Curry, manager of the Mid-Penn Telephone Co., has announced that troubles with making and receiving long distance calls between Friday, July 1, and Tuesday morning, July 5, were caused by disruptions in the Bell Telephone system.

Heavy storms in the area caused severe outages in the Bell system and were not related to the Mid-Penn system, according to Curry. He said all troubles with the Bell lines have been corrected.

Other new construction in the township includes a new headquarters building for Equitable Gas Company's Division H, a new state police barracks near the Greene Plaza and a 120-bed nursing home near the Charles Blair property.

It's hard to believe but only one major event was scheduled in Greene County during the past holiday—a river festival at Rices Landing. Aside from fireworks in Jefferson and at the Waynesburg Shopping Mall, no group planned a special event.

Downtown Waynesburg is getting a new face life and just in time for the expected large crowd during Rain Day. Many store fronts have been changed and the results are dramatic. The old-fashioned signs and lettering have greatly enhanced the community and will be a pleasant surprise for oldtimers coming back for a visit.

Besides fire alarms, I ran into a facilitator again in Harrisburg. I was afraid I would.

I don't know if you have ever met a facilitator, but if you do, my advice is to run the other way. Facilitators, by definition, I guess, preside over meetings. Another name for them would seem to be manipulators.

At the last "facilitated" meeting I went to, nobody in the audience knew what was going on, and nobody ever figured out what the facilitator was up to. He kept talking about the "base-line realities," which some of us thought were either a rock group or a basketball team. We weren't sure which.

The facilitator kept trying to get us to reach "an issue-oriented focus" through "beneficial interaction" and "break-out sessions." Unfortunately, we couldn't do it, since we didn't know what any of it was.

He also kept making lists on big sheets of newsprint. When one sheet got filled, he tore it off and taped it to the wall. By the time we were finished, or escaped, the walls were covered with lists of things like "ultimate goal," "overview of the constituency," "strategic planning," "revealed truth," "united input," and other nonsense. Our input was not only not united, it was diverse and totally confused.

The facilitator told us we were supposed to be a "categorizing-body" and wanted us to "articulate the legitimacy" of things like "areas of organizational development" and "sense of community" through "affinity groups" and "commonality of circumstantial response." That was the "bottom-line fact," but we still couldn't catch on to it. One person finally said, "This is all baloney," and got up and walked out. I wish I had done that.

After all that, I had a premonition

Town Prepares For Coal Show

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Chamber of Commerce has designated the week of Aug. 1 as Clean-Up Week for the Carmichaels-Cumberland Township area. During that week the town will be decorated for the Coal Show.

The action came during the chamber meeting Wednesday night and King Coal Association President Sara L. All businesses and individuals were also asked to decorate with bunting and flags for the Coal Show Aug. 20-27.

Plans were also made for the Chamber of Commerce float for the Coal Parade which will carry the Coal Queen and her court. A committee was named to plan a sidewalk sale to be held on Aug. 25 and 26 during the Coal Show.

Also at the meeting Miss Ruth was authorized to have four new signs erected at the entrances to town that read "Welcome to Carmichaels." She was authorized to pay up to $500 for each sign which will be four by eight feet.

At Miss Ruth's request, the chamber set Saturday, April 28, 1984, as the day for the 39th annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet.

Farmers Can Use Small Computers To Improve Management

By William C. Brown, County Agent

Development of the micro or personal computer has resulted in an explosion of business in the computer field. Small businesses and even some families can now afford to own a computer with considerable capability.

It is fascinating to listen to an expert in the field discuss the potential of these machines. However, one needs to maintain touch with reality. Computers do all these amazing things only after a human mind has developed the procedures and programmed them into the computer.

Only very sophisticated machines collect their own data. The computer is only as accurate as the person who programmed it and the person putting in the data.

There are many uses for this tool in agriculture but at present business analysis and record keeping are normally the first uses considered. The bigger the farm, the more valuable the computer will be to the operation. Two things to keep in mind:

Someone on the farm must be willing to spend the time required to learn how to use the computer. Any resource purchased and not used, even if it is needed, is a poor investment.

Computers will never replace good judgment and management or common sense. A computer excels at storing, manipulating and retrieving data. If a farmer puts in accurate data he can sharpen his management skills. Knowing actual production costs of crops and livestock on a farm and being able to get this information in a matter of seconds should result in sound management decisions.

Total cost of most systems will probably be $5,000 to $7,000. More expensive systems are available but not necessary for the average family farm. Computers are eligible for investment tax credit and depreciation.

The computer system has three separate parts:

1) The computer. The unit should have a memory capacity of least 64,000 words to be fairly sure you can run all the programs you need. Smaller units can be purchased for under $200. It may be wise to try one of these first if you're not sure how you and the computer might get along. This would be better than buying part of a larger system.

2) Hardware. This term is applied to the additional equipment needed to run the system. A flexible system should have two disk drives for loading programs and storing data, a video screen and a printer. A telephone modem to connect your computer with another one may be helpful but is not necessary to begin with.

3) Software or programs. Selecting the program for your computer may be the most difficult part of establishing a system. Some things to keep in mind:

The most basic consideration is be sure your computer can use the program. Some programs are specific to one make of computer or perhaps to one particular model.

A high price doesn't necessarily mean it's a good program. Do not be misled by titles. Have the salesperson demonstrate the program to be sure it will provide the information you want.

Programs written for business accounting will not work for farmers. Farm accounts are normally on a cash basis. Few business accounts are kept in this fashion. Electronic spread sheets like Visicalc are available for most computers and have uses such as cash flow, budget analysis and record keeping which are adaptable to farm situations.

Finally, consider the service network for the computer you wish to buy. How far must you go to receive quality repair service? Is there a "hot line" number to call for advice if you have a problem you can't solve? Several companies also provide the opportunity for training sessions on use of their equipment.

Most of us are already using computers. People involved with DHIA, PFA or Agway farm records programs are purchasing computer time through these programs. Many of us will find this as close as we ever want to get to computers.

As progress in the field continues, there may be a time when the farmer views his computer as one of the most important pieces of farm equipment he owns.

Gas Company Seeks Right-Of-Way For New Line Across Fairgrounds

WAYNESBURG — Carnegie Natural Gas Co. is seeking a right-of-way from the Greene County commissioners to lay a new 16-inch gas transmission line across the county fairgrounds from its Waynesburg compressing station on Route 188.

Louis Orndoff, representing the company, told the commissioners at their meeting Thursday that the new line would replace one which has been in place since 1901. "The relocation will get the line away from the grandstand," he said.

After crossing the fairgrounds, the line would cross Route 21 and go through county-owned property adjoining the tennis courts and through the Lions Park.

Orndoff said the line would avoid all buildings in the fairgrounds. Holes would be drilled under the race track and new horse ring to avoid disturbing the surface in those areas.

The commissioners indicated they have no objection to the work, which would be done after the county fair has been held. They will ask maintenance superintendent John Higgins to review the company's plans to make sure the line would not interfere with any future plans for the fairgrounds.

The commissioners appointed Greene County's three representatives on the Washington-Greene Private Industry Council which will oversee a new federal job training program which will begin Oct. 1.

They are Gordon Curry, manager of the Waynesburg Division of Mid-Penn Telephone Corp., Theresa Ficara, manager of the Waynesburg McDonald's Restaurant, and the Rev. John Corbett, pastor of St. Ann Church in Waynesburg.

Washington and Greene counties have been designated as a "service delivery area" under the new Job Training Partnership Act, which will replace the existing CETA program. It will focus on job training and re-training programs, with none of the public service employment or work experience programs which were a large part of CETA.

The Washington County Employment and Training Agency, directed by Lou Lignelli, has been designated by the commissioners of both counties as the agency responsible for administration of the two-county program.

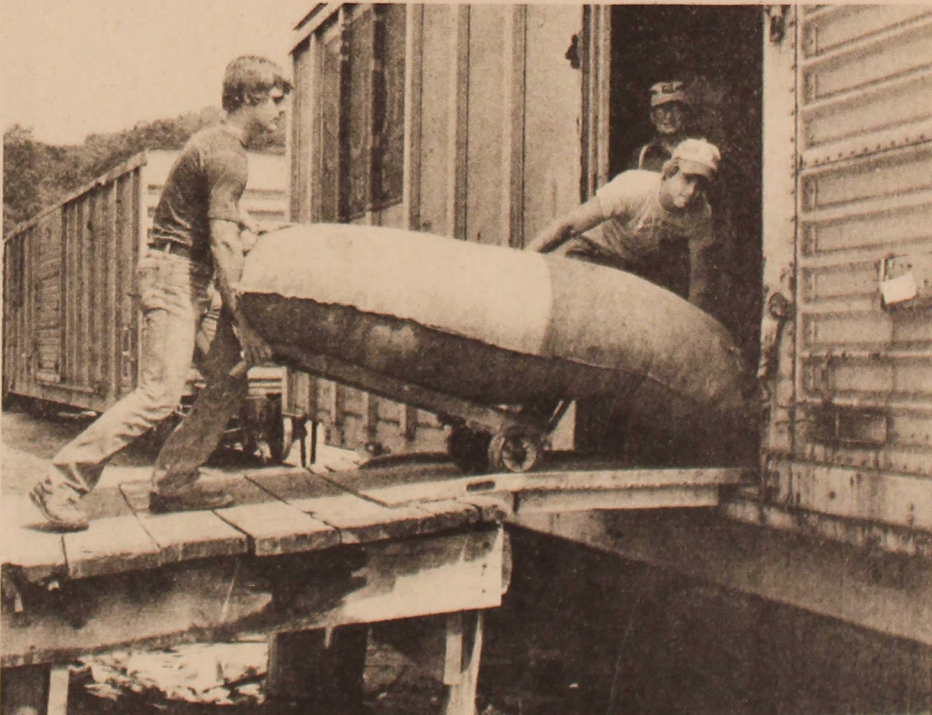

It was announced that Jesse Sanner of Carmichaels and the Rev. Mary Elizabeth Zook of Waynesburg have been elected as county representatives on the Area Agency on Aging Advisory Council. Ann Lucas of Mt. Morris and James Abel of Greensboro have been elected to the AAA Nutrition Advisory Council.

Parks Department Schedules Several Events For July

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Parks and Recreation Department has announced several events to be held in July.

Applications are still being accepted for the baseball camp to be held July 11-15 for youngsters 8 to 18. Cost of the camp is $25 and there will be no late fee.

The department will sponsor a football camp July 25-29 at the Waynesburg College practice field on Purman Run for youths aged 8 to 18. Primarily, the course will cover offensive and defensive skills and strategies, the kicking game and non-contact drills.

A railroad car is loaded Friday with sacks of area-produced wool.

Wool Grown In County Sold

WAYNESBURG — Over 84,000 pounds of wool were collected Thursday and Friday by the Monongalia County (W.Va.) Wool Pool in Waynesburg.

Over 80 local consignors, many of them members of the Greene County Sheep and Wool Growers Association, took part in the pool. The wool has already been purchased by Santee River Wool Combing Co. of Jamestown, S.C.

Ralph Adamson of Waynesburg was the largest local grower, having sold 3,625 pounds of wool.

Local growers were paid $48.90 per pound for medium grade; $66.50 per pound for fine grade; $57 for half-blood and $36.69 for rejected lamb.

The West Virginia co-op took over the wool pool four years ago and now

Greene County growers work through the Monongalia County group.

No pool was held last year because of the low prices offered. However, in 1981, there were only 63,000 pounds consigned.

Local growers produced 150,000 pounds 13 years ago. Despite the lower production, Greene County remains the largest wool producing county in the state.

College Receiving More Applications

WAYNESBURG — Figures released by the office of admissions and financial aid at Waynesburg College show that applications for the fall term are running more than 30 percent ahead of last year.

Ronald L. Shunk, dean of admissions and financial aid, said more than 560 applications have been received, a 31 percent increase from the same period last year. In addition, the number of deposits paid for the fall term is up 27 percent.

These recent figures mark the sixth consecutive month that applications for admissions and deposits paid by new students were higher than at a comparable time in 1982.

Shunk said the proposed baccalaureate degree in nursing, as well as the new program in visual communication and renewed interest in several other programs at the college were responsible in a large part for the increases.

"We are most encouraged by the results of the past several months," Shunk said. "We hope the improvement in student enrollment for the fall will be part of a renewed strengthening of the college."

During the late 1970s, Waynesburg College experienced five consecutive years of enrollment increases. During that time, most other small, independent colleges experienced declines.

Paving Firm Has Problems On County Airport Project

WAYNESBURG — The company which has the contract to resurface the runaway at the Greene County Airport is having problems getting the job done.

According to George K. Stennett, county development director, Blacktop Paving Co. of Washington has so far been unable to lay a sample strip of blacktop which meets Federal Aviation Administration requirements for 98 percent compaction. "They've put down three or four strips so far (each measuring 200 by 25 feet) and the best compaction they've been able to get is 96.4 percent," Stennett told the county commissioners Thursday. "Something's wrong, but we're not sure what it is."

He pointed out that the contractor had 14 days to complete the work, with the deadline being midnight Monday, July 4. After that time, the penalty clause of the contract goes into effect, calling for a penalty of $700 a day.

"Blacktop Paving has spent a lot of money on the sample strips, but the FAA won't relax its compaction requirement," he said. "It won't take long to do the job once it begins, but the contractor can't start until this problem is solved."

The project calls for laying a two-inch overlay of blacktop on the runway, which is 3,500 feet long and 75 feet wide. Blacktop Paving was awarded on the contract on the basis of its low bid of $147,670.

The FFA will pay 90 percent of the cost. The county and state Bureau of Aviation will each pay five percent, or $9,430.
