Home Health Care Helps

DONALD KUSHON

UNIONTOWN — Donald Kushon is a second year medical student at Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia. He was convinced he knew what his medical specialty would be upon graduation — until he spent six weeks under the preceptorship of Dr. Gertrude Blumenschein in Uniontown Hospital.

Dr. Blumenschein's program offered Kushon an opportunity to explore specialties within the hospital, as well as spend time with health care agencies such as the County Health Center and Greene County Memorial Hospital's Home Health Program.

On a recent round of home visits with Roxanne Andria RN, supervisor of the hospital's Uniontown Home Health Office, Kushon was able to see the scope of activities included in home care.

"I was impressed with the fact that the Home Health nurse must be everything to her patients because of their inaccessibility to the hospital," Kushon said. "The need is critical for Home Health care because the country, and particularly rural areas, is facing a growing geriatric population who live alone, are isolated and have lost access to society. The Home Health nurse is irreplaceable."

GCMH's Home Health program has operated in the Uniontown area for the past 15 months. By the first anniversary of the program, the patient load was well in excess of 100 patients.

Each patient who qualified for Home Health receives a wide range of services including skilled nursing, speech therapy, respiratory therapy, physical therapy, social services, enterostomal therapy, dietary instruction, laboratory testing and aid services. The Home Health nurse works in close cooperation with the patient's private physician. She is able to monitor patients to avoid unnecessary hospitalization, make sure patients take medication ordered by the physician and alert the physician about possible complications.

Kushon expressed his belief that the continuous care to patients because of the contact maintained by the Home Health nurse with the physician was the primary benefit to patients. He was also impressed with the preventive aspect of home care, maintaining that not only the patient but also the family benefits from patient education.

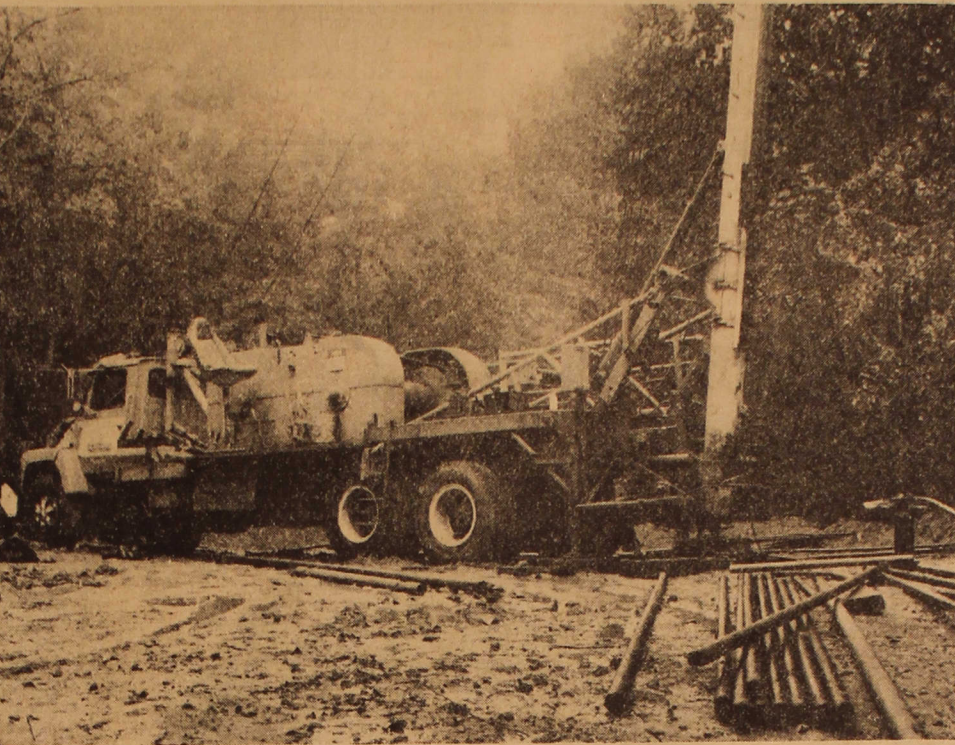

Uniontown Hospital has sponsored the program for medical students for the past 11 years, according to Dr. Blumenschein. The program exposes students from major medical schools to the rural hospital setting. Students spend time in ancillary and clinical areas to acquaint them with the overall workings of a hospital. "Students also pick up valuable experience through their contact with community health agencies," said Dr. Blumenschein.

"It is our hope that some students will want to return to the rural area and establish a practice once they complete their medical training," she added.

School Classes Are Realigned

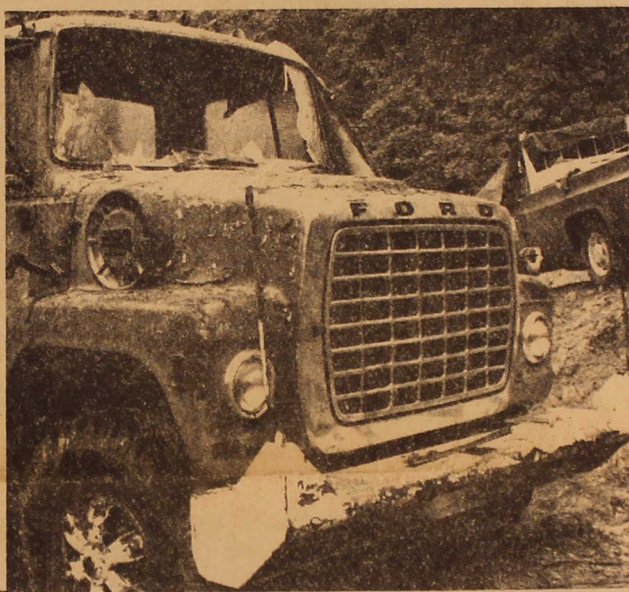

SPRAGGS — Classes in the Central Greene School District's Spraggs elementary school will be realigned, effective Tuesday, to eliminate overcrowding in the first grade.

The change is being made over the objections of a number of parents who have said they will take their case to

Water Authority Considering Rate Hike

JEFFERSON — The Southwestern Water Authority, which serves portions of Greene and Fayette counties, briefly discussed the possibility of a rate increase at a meeting Thursday of the authority board of directors.

Board Chairman Ben Parker said the rate increase is being recommended by the Bankson Engineering Co. in connection with adoption of the authority budget for the upcoming fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1. Board members were asked to review the budget proposal prior to the next meeting on Oct. 6, at which time it will be considered for final adoption.

It was brought out that the authority's last rate increase came on Jan. 1, 1981. There was no discussion about the size of the recommended rate hike since it is subject to review.

The board also discussed a recent incident in which a 20-year-old man from Bethel Park drowned at the Wisecarver Run dam and lake in West Waynesburg, which is owned by the authority.

The authority said that the 300 acres of property, including the lake, have been leased to the State Game Commission as a recreation and hunting area. They said the commission is responsible for policing the area and enforcing improper use of the land, including the ban on swimming in the lake.

At the time of the drowning, a Game Commission officer said that while the commission has the power to arrest people for littering and for driving four-wheeled vehicles on the property, it has no control over the lake itself and cannot arrest swimmers.

The board voted to accept a grant of $75,000 from the Department of Commerce toward a $200,000 project involving laying of a new 24-inch line from the Ronco filtration plant to serve customers in Fayette County. The new line will replace an existing 18-inch line.

Two officials of Nemaacolin, Inc., Chairman Mike Simkovic and Secretary Bob Schiffbauer, discussed procedures to be followed in having water service cut off to Southwestern customers who fail to pay their sewage and fire protection bills. They said some of the accounts are as much as two years in arrears.

The authority said required procedures include mailing of registered letters announcing that service would be cut off, posting of the property, and holding of a hearing to give the property owner an opportunity to respond.

After all of the requirements are met and certification is given to the authority, water service will be terminated, they were told.

Authority Manager John Simatic reported that 3.9 million gallons of water was furnished during the past month to customers in the Waynesburg area from the Waynesburg pump station, located on Ten Mile Creek at West Waynesburg. The plant there is used as a back-up source of water.

Simatic said that dry weather con-

Gas Well Explosion Burns Two

DEEP VALLEY — Two persons were critically burned in a natural gas explosion at a well-drilling site near Deep Valley Wednesday morning.

Treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital and then transferred by Life Flight helicopter to the burn unit of West Penn Hospital were Mary Dulaney, 24, of Aleppo R.D.1 and David Wilson, 22, believed to be from the Parkersburg, W. Va. area.

According to reports a pocket of natural gas ignited for a reason unknown at this time. The well site is owned by Green Ridge Oil Company of Cambridge, Ohio, and is located about five miles west of Deep Valley.

Wayne Gregg, local manager of the oil company, said Wednesday afternoon there were six or eight people in the area when the flash-explosion occurred shortly after 9 a.m.

Both victims were standing near a pumper truck in a storage area when the explosion occurred. Two employees were on the drilling rig at the time but escaped injury.

According to officials at the West Penn Hospital, Ms. Dulaney suffered second degree burns over 54 percent of her body and Wilson suffered severe burns over 46 percent of his body.

Volunteer firemen from Hundred, W. Va., and New Freeport were called to the scene after employees ran to the home of Mrs. Alvena Miller about a half-mile from the scene of the explosion.

The explosion could be heard for about a mile from the well site.

Gregg said Ms. Dulaney was employed by her uncle, Melvin Dulaney, a private contractor, and was not a company employee. Wilson is employed by a firm from West Virginia but Gregg said he had no idea what services the firm may have been providing.

Green Ridge officials in Ohio said Wednesday afternoon they had no details about the explosion and referred questions to their field office in Aleppo.

Cumberland Twp. Accepts $50,000 Community Grant

CARMICHEALS — Cumberland Township Supervisors adopted a resolution Thursday night to accept a $50,000 Community Facilities Grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce.

The grant is to be used for sewage line construction in connection with a $2.1 million HUD Block Grant project for Crucible now in its second year. The larger grant is being used to construct a sewage treatment plant and related facilities in Crucible.

In addition, a possible 96 homes will be rehabilitated as part of the Crucible project. To date, 40 homes have been repaired and brought to HUD Section 8 standards. The supervisors noted that homes can be repaired under the grant only if residents request the service and that they are still accepting these home rehabilitation requests.

Township Secretary William

Groves announced that the township is amending the township zoning ordinance. He asked that any resident wishing to make a suggestion concerning the ordinance contact the supervisors or the township planning commission at the township building.

Supervisor William Schifko said township police have reported several traffic signs have been stolen recently. Schifko said these signs are expensive to replace and the police have been instructed to prosecute anyone found tampering with the signs.

Mike Simkovic of Nemaacolin Inc. reported to the supervisors that a water company had dug up a blacktop township road in Nemaacolin to install a line but have not repaired the road. The supervisors agreed to contact the water company concerning the problem.

the school board.

Following a meeting Friday with some 30 of the parents, Superintendent Nancy Davis said that the size of the first grade will be reduced from 37 students to 21 students through the creation of two combined classes, taking advantage of two small third-grade classes.

She said a majority of the parents had wanted the district to create a second first-grade class by hiring an additional teacher and using a mobile classroom now used for a federal reading program, which the district would have to purchase if it was used for a regular class.

"We don't feel the additional cost would be justified," Mrs. Davis said. "The two combined classes will be small and won't result in any educational disadvantage to the students."

Mrs. Davis said parents were offered the option of having students transported to either the East Franklin or Whiteley schools, but that they did not want them to leave the Spraggs building.

In addition to the first grade with 37 students, the school had a second grade with 21 students, two third grades with 16 and 18 students, respectively, and a fourth grade with 22 students.

Under the realignment, the first grade will have 28 students, a combination first and second grade will have 19 students (including nine first graders), a combination second and third grade will have 20 students (including 11 second graders), the third grade will have 25 students, and the fourth grade will remain unchanged with 22 students.

A spokesman for the parents said that while their first choice would have been creation of an additional first grade, they also suggested several other alternatives for solving the problem which would have avoided the creation of combined grades.

Chicago Firm Buys Property Of Former W&W Railroad

WAYNESBURG — The Royal Land Co. of Chicago, Ill., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of Ohio, has purchased all of the property and roadbed of the former Waynesburg and Washington Railroad in Washington and Greene counties.

According to a deed recorded this week, the company has purchased the land for $165,000 from successor companies to the W&W — United Railroad Corp., Penn Central Properties Inc., and Penn Central Corp.

A Sohio spokesman said Friday that the property has been acquired primarily to provide rail access to reserves of Pittsburgh seam coal in Washington County, located near Prosperity. Sohio is also one of the major owners of Pittsburgh coal in Greene County.

"We're looking ahead to the time when the coal will be developed and would require rail facilities," he said. He added, however, that the company has no timetable for such development.

The W&W holdings which have been acquired are in the city of Washington as well as in Amwell, Morris, North Franklin, South Franklin and South Strabane Townships in Washington County and in Morris, Washington and Franklin Townships in Greene County.

College Employees Working

WAYNESBURG — Service employees at Waynesburg College who are members of Local 585, Service Employees International Union, reported for work as usual Thursday morning despite expiration of their contract at midnight Wednesday.

"Everyone came in as scheduled and it seems to be business as usual," C.B. (Pete) Stoy, college vice president for business and finance, said.

The 44 employees, including custodial, maintenance and security personnel, secretaries and house-keeping people, have offered the college a new contract based on existing wage scales. The college, on the other hand, is demanding concessions since the faculty and non-union employees, after having a wage freeze for two years, were given a 7 percent salary cut this year.

Stoy said the union personnel will continue to be paid at their existing levels, at least for the time being.

"We will honor the contract and expect that the union will agree to sit down with us and talk about concessions. If they do not, and probably fairly quickly, we will have to think about what we are going to do," Stoy said.

Contest Open To Youth Groups

CARMICHAELS — Youth groups in Cumberland Township are being asked to enter a statewide community service contest through the township supervisors.

The Milt Delancey Award of $100 will be given to 55 youth groups in communities throughout the state such as 4-H clubs, scout troops, school and other youth organizations. The nominations of these groups for the awards must be sponsored by either township supervisors or county officials. The winners will be selected by the Publications-Public Relations Committee of the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors.

The community service projects performed by the group being nominated must have been rendered between Oct. 1, 1982, and Sept. 30, 1983. Deadline for nominations is Oct. 21.

Becky is a water baby — one part mermaid, three parts fish. We took her to the lake this summer, and she splashed and tumbled in the water joyously. I had to watch her every minute. I finally had to take her out by force — much to her consternation and objection. It took some doing to distract her.

Actually, it's relatively simple to comfort a small child whose wishes have been thwarted. A toy, a cookie, sometimes a loving hug will turn the trick.

But how about grown-up frustrations? When sick with disappointment, heartbroken or dejected by a bad turn of events, where can an adult turn for consolation and support?

God's Church is the mainstay to every situation. Radiating God's goodness, it offers reassurance and relief to the baffled and the hopeless. Men turning toward its promise find new confidence and faith and hope recovered.

But why?

County Asked To Provide Jobs

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County commissioners were asked Thursday to provide jobs for able-bodied public assistance recipients who must work off their welfare grants.

A representative of the Greene County office of the Public Welfare Department said the Welfare Reform Law of 1982 requires such recipients to participate in public works projects as a means of retaining their welfare eligibility.

Local governments are being asked to cooperate by making work available to these individuals. The representative suggested the county consider providing jobs in its maintenance department.

If it does so, the county would be responsible for payment of workmen's compensation and up to $25 a month to cover job expenses for each participant. Those taking part would be credited for time worked at the minimum wage rate until they have sufficient hours on the job to equal their assistance grant.

The commissioners agreed to consider the request and will meet with the county maintenance superintendent to determine if the county could effectively take part in the program.

In light of a Greene County Court decision last week, the commissioners said they will be considering an appropriate way to sell 150 acres of county-owned Pittsburgh coal to the highest bidder.

The court order dismissed a lawsuit brought by a group of individuals in an effort to force the county to accept their offer of $91,050 for the coal, which is located under the former county farm property east of Waynesburg.

As part of the opinion, the court pointed out that the commissioners have a duty "to obtain the highest and best price" if the coal is sold.

The commissioners said that as soon as the court order becomes final (it is subject to possible appeal) they will work out a method for selling the coal at the highest possible price.

In action at the meeting, the commissioners approved the employment of two caseworker trainees by Greene County Children and Youth Services.

Arthur LaNoue of Sycamore R.D.1, a graduate of Waynesburg College, and Joni M. Kisinko of Greensburg, a graduate of Indiana University of Pennsylvania, will be employed at the trainee salary of $10,905 to fill vacancies created by the resignation of two caseworkers, David Wilson and Cindy Moore.

Rupert Eder, executive director of the county agency, said the two trainees being hired were at the top of the civil service list of eligible applicants, with LaNoue being the only Greene County resident on the list.

Affirms $6,000 Award To Property Owners

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Court has affirmed an award of $6,000 to the owners of a Greene County farm who brought suit against former tenants on the farm.

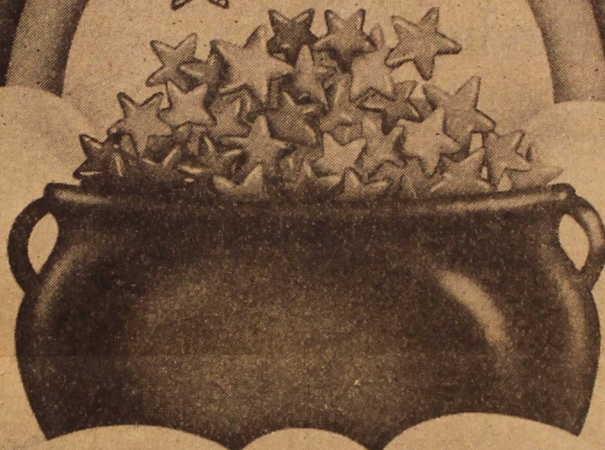

In an order handed down Friday, Judge Glenn Toothman dismissed exceptions filed by Doyle and Linda Ketterman of Waynesburg R.D.1 to an April 28 court order in which Robert P. and Dale R. Newman of Bradford Woods were awarded $3,500 in back rent and $2,500 to cover damages to their house. The award was made following a non-jury trial.

The Newmans leased the 190-acre farm and six-room house in Washington Township to Mr. and Mrs. Ketterman on Nov. 30, 1980. They claimed that even though the Kettermans' lease expired in November 1982, they refused to move out until February 1983.

The Kettermans filed a counter-suit in which they denied damaging the house. They also sought damages on the grounds that the landlords had failed to provide repair money and the free gas which was promised. The counter-suit was dismissed.

Drowning At Water Dam Shows Need For Controls

Responsibility in the recent drowning at the Waynesburg water dam in Franklin Township ultimately lies with the victim — a young man from Bethel Park.

However, the incident should spur some action by the Southwestern Pennsylvania Water Authority, which owns the property; Franklin Township, within whose jurisdiction the property lies, and the Pennsylvania Game Commission, which leases the property.

For years the huge lake on the property has drawn swimmers from as far away as 50 miles. The property has long been a place for young people to hold drinking parties.

Although swimming is not allowed it is impossible for police and game commission patrols to see the shore line because of the heavy growth of trees and bushes. Also, the property is poorly posted with the exception of "no dumping" signs, which have been of little use in preventing littering.

Should someone erect a swimming pool in the township, ordinances require the construction of a fence around the pool to prevent possible tragedies. Should less be required of lakes, ponds or other bodies of water which naturally attract swimmers?

Southwestern should be required to clear the brush to allow patrols to see the area and chase trespassers from the property. The property in its present condition would require foot patrols to search in a jungle-like setting to even find the young people.

On any given warm weekend, scores of youngsters from as far away as Pittsburgh find their way to the water dam. The combination of unsupervised swimming and drinking created a dangerous situation which unfortunately turned into tragedy.

Everything possible should be done to prevent a further death.

National Guard Names New Brigade Commander

Lt. Col. John V. Aleandri of Greensburg, a veteran with over 35 years experience with the Pennsylvania Army National Guard, has assumed command of Second Brigade, 28th Infantry Division, with headquarters at the Goodridge Armory at Washington County Airport.

Aleandri succeeds Brig. Gen. Kenneth R. Craig of West Alexander who recently retired from military service. Craig was promoted to his new rank of brigadier general at retirement ceremonies last month.

Aleandri joined the Guard in 1947 as an enlisted man and served on active duty when the 28th Division was called for service during the Korean Conflict. He rejoined the Guard when the division was reorganized back in Pennsylvania in 1954 and attended Officer's Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga., receiving a commission as a second lieutenant in 1959. Since then he has served as a platoon leader, company commander, operations officer, executive officer and battalion commander in both infantry and artillery organizations. His most recent assignment was that of commander of 1st Battalion, 110th Infantry, with headquarters in Scottsdale.

Craig was not only promoted on the retired list of the Pennsylvania Army National Guard, but was also awarded the Legion of Merit for service rendered to the Guard.

Attending the retirement ceremony were Maj. Gen. Richard M. Scott, the adjutant general for Pennsylvania; Maj. Gen. Harold J. Lavell, commanding general of the 28th Infantry Division; Lt. Col. Michel E. Hess, Army advisor of the Second Brigade; and Aleandri. Craig's family also was present and Mrs. Craig and Scott presented the new general officer with his stars.

Craig started his military career in 1947 as an enlisted man and served with the 28th Division in Germany during the Korean Conflict. On his return to the United States, he reenlisted as a master sergeant and served until August 1954, when he was discharged to accept a commission as a second lieutenant.

During his military career he served in various capacities with both the Second Battalion, 110th Infantry; the Second Battalion, 103rd Armor (medium tank); and with the First Battalion, 110th Infantry.

Craig was assigned as executive officer of the Second Brigade in April 1975, and assumed command of the brigade on June 11, 1978. He was a full-time technician with the Pennsylvania Army National Guard and worked in that capacity as administrative officer while with the brigade.

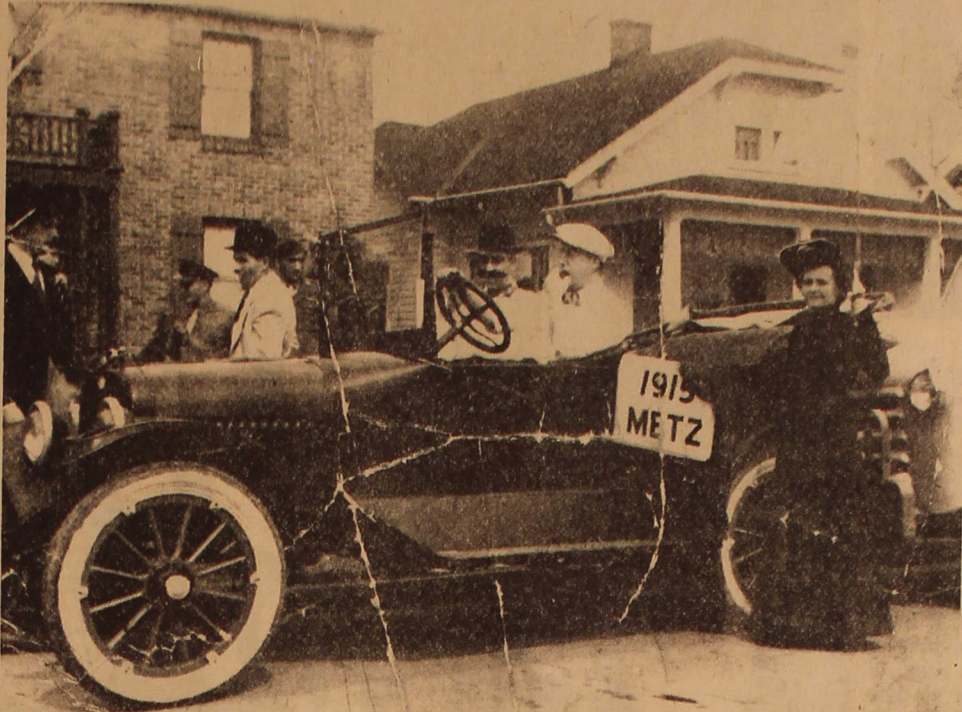

Craig is married to the former Barbara C. Crawford. They have a son, Bradley, and three daughters, Carla, Lisa and Laura.

In civilian life, Aleandri has been with the U. S. Postal Service since 1952 and is currently the postmaster in Connellsville.

The new brigade commander lives in Greensburg with his wife, Nancy.

Major units of the Second Brigade are First Battalion, 110th Infantry, Scottsdale; Second Battalion, 110th Infantry, Butler; and First Battalion, 112th Infantry, Erie. Area units of these organizations include Company B, 1/110th in Canonsburg and Finleyville, and Company C, 2/110th in Waynesburg.

Miss Denny Is Honored On Birthday

WAYNESBURG — Nearly 300 people attended a garden party at the home of Miss Josephine Denny Saturday evening to honor her on her 90th birthday.

Among those paying tribute to Miss Denny were representatives from Waynesburg College and the Greene County Historical Society, acknowledging her many contributions to her alma mater and to the Historical Society.

Dr. J. Thomas Mills, president of the college, read a resolution adopted by the college board of trustees recognizing Miss Denny as a distinguished alumna, commending her for her inspiration and leadership to the Greene County Historical Museum and for her contributions to charities throughout the area. Along with a plaque inscribed with the resolution, Mills and Board of Trustees President Ewing Pollock, presented Miss Denny with a Waynesburg College rocking chair.

Miss Denny also received a gold mantle clock for her birthday from the Historical Society. Raymond McCracken, president of the society, made the presentation.

Farley Toothman read a brief description of Miss Denny's life, pointing out the many changes that have occurred in the town since she was born August 31, 1893.

Miss Denny received her bachelor's degree in 1915 from Waynesburg College and later studied in France at the University of Besancon.

She taught in private schools in Long Island and Chicago, and in the public school system in Waynesburg, teaching at the high school from 1936 to 1942.

In 1982 she was named "Outstanding Woman of the Year" by the Waynesburg branch of the American Association of University Women. At that time, her work in bringing the AAUW to this area was recognized.

Miss Denny has also belonged to the Women's Auxiliary of the Greene County Memorial Hospital and helped to establish the Cherry Door. She is a member of the Waynesburg Women's Club, an elder in the First Presbyterian Church and belongs to a number of historical and genealogical societies.

One of her largest contributions has been to the Greene County His-

New Boiler

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Jail Warden Andy Bystry reported to the prison board Thursday that one of the two new gas-fired boilers at the jail has been installed.

The boilers will replace the oil-burning boilers installed when the jail was built three years ago. Natural gas was not available at that time, forcing the county to use the oil-burning boilers.

52-room museum is furnished with colonial and mid-Victorian artifacts and contains an extensive library of genealogical and historical volumes. It was named one of the "Top Twenty Tourist Attractions" in the state by the Tourist Industry Advisory Council.

Miss Denny's service in the work of the historical society was recognized by the Pennsylvania State Society of Colonial Dames Seventeenth Century which presented her with a state award.

After the presentations, those attending sang "Happy Birthday" to Miss Denny. The Jack Purcell Orchestra from Pittsburgh furnished music during the party.

Fact and Folklore
 John O'Hara

As their Indian predecessor may have also done, residents of most sections of Greene County up to the 1930s accepted stream pollution as one of the facts of life and put up with it as being more or less inevitable.

In the latter part of the 1920s, however, a group of Waynesburg residents and other Greene Countians decided to throw that yoke off their backs and that of the community.

Waynesburg's sewage was routinely dumped or pumped into Ten Mile Creek as it passed through town on its journey to the Monongahela River. It was a neat and unnoticed method of disposal that was endurable so long as water was high enough to keep the stream flowing. But when a long dry spell came along in June the stench to those living near the stream was nothing less than terrible, and it was a definite threat to public health.

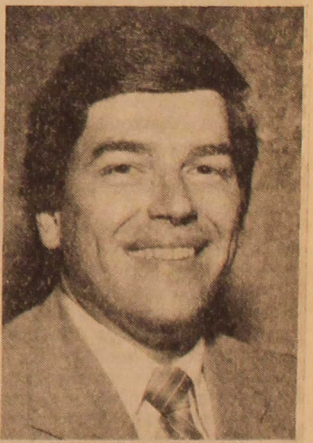

The worst of such instances came in the early 1930s and stirred up action. Under the guidance of a number of borough councilmen, an ordinance was passed to create a modern (for that time) disposal system.

While forward-looking citizens cheered and others denounced the decision, plans which had been laying around for years were brought to the surface. After much opposition from the conservative wing, a contract for a disposal plant and collection system was awarded and work was begun.

Fortunately for the progressive wing, it was a hot, dry summer — one which took its toll of livestock and crops of all kind. Ten Mile Creek dried up except for a few deeper pools and the stench from dead fish and other refuse was worse than normal. At any rate, it hastened construction of the disposal plant and dried up most of the opposition to what was considered by many to be an extravagant expenditure for an unnecessary luxury.

Both the plant and the system of collector lines were built mostly with so called "relief labor" provided through the Works Project Administration (WPA) — an agency which produced many worthwhile projects while providing a lot of people with jobs until the economic crisis labeled "The Depression" eventually ended.

The Waynesburg system is still functioning to this day, although it has been expanded upon and improved during the past half-century. In this age it's hard to appreciate that there are still communities which suffer through summer conditions of this kind, but there are. And as occurred back then, one of the biggest stumbling blocks to getting modern disposal facilities is the conservatism of people who feel that the cost will be too great, even with the substantial government grants which now take the place of WPA labor.

A Former County Man Wins Porsche Cup Championship

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

Members of the Waynesburg High School class of 1973 met at the Elks Club for their 10-year reunion this weekend and, as could be expected, there were many tales to be told.

However, Glenn R. Liska had a good one but apparently told no one. At least we couldn't find a former classmate who knew of the story.

According to a press release mailed to the Observer-Reporter office, Liska recently won the Porsche Cup, the first time in 12 years the championship has been won by an American.

Liska, president of Creative Motorsport Inc. in Dublin, Ohio, was leading the championship series going into the race at Hohenheim, Germany, and needed only a victory at Hohenheim or Dijon, France, to sew up the championship.

Liska drove his Porsche RSR to a first-place finish and won the coveted title. Liska is sponsored by Swiss industrialist J.D. Moglia.

A member of the track team and student council while in high school, Liska has won six of the nine races on the championship tour this season. He was on the sidelines with mechanical problems in the three races he did not win. He did finish high enough to gain valuable points in the three races he did not finish.

A racing veteran of nine years, Liska has won seven international divisional titles and two European championships prior to winning this year's Porsche Cup.

The son of Robert and Helen Liska who moved to the Waynesburg area in 1969 from Boulder, Colo., Liska attended all four years at Waynesburg High School and then, along with classmate Bruce Wermingler, went on to Adrian College in Michigan.

Asked whether he would now go on to Dijon and race for the "fun of it" Glenn responded, "In a sense, you always race for the fun of it, but having sewn up the championship in no way detracts from our effort at Dijon. The Dijon course is laid out so that the smaller cars will have a great opportunity of running with the larger, faster cars and we think we have an opportunity to qualify up near the front and win the entire race. No, having won the Porsche Cup championship only means we will drive harder in France."

Liska said, "I am fortunate to have put together an absolutely outstanding sponsor and crew. They have worked tirelessly for the past three months to assure that this not-so-new car was always race-ready. Most people don't realize the hours of hard work and extreme dedication it takes to get ready to go racing."

Jackets Salvage Tie

By John Barker, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — There's a new captain on this boat but the crew has remained pretty much the same.

The Waynesburg College football team, under the leadership of first-year head coach Bill Tornabene, steered a little off course Saturday and started the season slowly.

The final score however, a 7-7 tie against Glenville State, was an improvement over last year when Glenville won, 20-7.

"We played what I would describe as jittery in the first half," said Tornabene. "We were a little tenuous in our actions because we haven't had real game-like situations. We were a little unsure of what we could do."

"Once we realized we were capable of playing good football I think we began to execute and get the job done."

Waynesburg started slowly and trailed, 7-0, at halftime as Glenville dominated the first half.

"I was real happy with the way our team responded under pressure," said Tornabene. "We were down seven points at the half and we knew we had to score in the second half to be able to win the game. We were still in the ballgame at the game's end. In fact, I would believe because of our conditioning, that we were able to actually dominate play in the second half from the standpoint of just physically being more into the game than they were."

"We lost the first half and we won the second. We've got to be able to put both of those together."

The Jackets' offense was held in check by the Pioneers and scored only when first-year starter Tim Garry drilled a 22-yard touchdown pass to Matt Toney in the fourth quarter.

Tailback Otto Birkhead, trying to regain the magic of his freshman season, when he tore through defenses, managed only 80 yards on 23 carries. Garry, a senior transfer from California University, hit 17 of 38 passes for 117 yards.

The strong point for Waynesburg, then, was defense. While Tornabene admitted the defense bent, giving up 306 yards in total offense to Glenville, the key was that it didn't break.

Byron Brooks, the Pioneers' flashy tailback, zipped for 117 yards rushing but couldn't score against the Jackets.

Fumbles Foil Rockets

By John Barker, O-R Sports Staff

JEFFERSON — Some formidable foes faced Jefferson-Morgan High School's football team Friday night.

There were three in particular. Turnovers and mistakes were two and an opportunistic Waynesburg Central team was the third and decisive one.

The Red Raiders took advantage of five Jeff-Morgan turnovers and trounced the Rockets, 26-0, here in the opening game of the regular season for both teams.

It was only a non-conference game on the schedule but the win meant a lot more to Waynesburg. The two teams battle for the bragging rights in Greene County and the Red Raiders claimed them this time.

"We're trying to start a tradition here and maybe this is a start," said Waynesburg head coach Tom Vent. "We're turning things around and this was really a total team effort. The big plays really made the difference because Jeff-Morgan has a hell of a football team.

"I think we scored more points tonight than we did all year last season so I'm pleased. It's been like a lifetime for me waiting for this game, I couldn't wait."

"This is a positive start and we want to build on it and get on a roll. A team like A-G (Albert-Gallatin) has won now for 15 years and we want to be like that someday."

Emergency System Is Now In Service

WAYNESBURG — Members of the 1911 emergency telephone committee issued a reminder over the Labor Day weekend that the system is now in operation for any police, fire or ambulance emergency.

It was stressed that for any calls of a non-emergency nature, persons should use telephone numbers of fire companies, ambulance services or police departments listed in the telephone directory.

The 1911 emergency telephone number is for emergency calls in Greene County within the Mid-Penn Telephone Co. service area only.
