Halomet Workers Ratify Contract

Employees are expected to return to work today at the Halomet Inc. magnetite processing plant following ratification of a one-year contract late Friday night to end a 10-week strike. The plant is located in Greene County off Route 21 near the Mason-town Bridge.

Following a meeting in Crucible Friday night to review the proposed agreement, 16 of the 22 striking Halomet workers voted 10-6 to ratify the tentative contract which, according to a UMW District 4 official, calls for a 45 percent wage increase.

Halomet workers went on strike July 25 claiming unfair labor practices after they had voted 17-3 on July 7 to have the UMWA as their collective bargaining agent. That action was certified on July 18 by the National Labor Relations Board. The following day four Halomet workers were dismissed and a fifth dismissed the next day. The negotiations for the new contract included having the five men reinstated.

Thomas Rabbit, UMW International Executive Board Member from District 4, said Friday night, following rank-and-file ratification of the Halomet contract, that seven employees will return to work Monday to prepare the plant for operation, with the remaining 15 to return within the next few weeks.

Rabbit also said that some 35 striking workers at the nearby L&J Equipment Co., a coal stripping firm based at Carmichaels, whose members shared the picket line with the Halomet workers, will not interfere with their return to work. L&J workers voted on Nov. 4, 1981, to join the UMWA and are also claiming unfair labor practices.

L&J, owned by James V. and Lawrence E. Filiaggi, of Uniontown, has a coal stripping operation near the Hatfield Ferry Power Plant and uses fly ash from the plant in its operation. Halomet is based at Syracuse, N.Y.

The one-year contract has been agreed to by Halomet according to Rabbit, but he said that it cannot be signed until accepted by the UMW International Executive Board. The IEB is expected to approve the contract when it meets in November.

Although Rabbit said the workers were not completely satisfied with the economic package because of what they were making as non-union workers, "it was a good contact." It calls for a pay increase of $2.50 per hour but includes hospitalization, safety rights and job security.

Hospitalization under the contract is 100 percent coverage with major medical benefits having a $50 deductible, according to Rabbit. He said the job security comes from clauses which prohibit the company from selling, leasing or assigning the company to anyone to evade the contract.

Also called for in the one-year pact are agreements on work jurisdiction for maintaining and operating of the plant, hauling of materials, and new job training programs, seniority rights for layoffs, and job bidding.

Other contract highlights, according to Rabbit, are grievance procedures for contract disputes, overtime for over eight hours, paid lunch periods, holidays, and shut-down notification for workers.

Zoning Issue Ends

WAYNESBURG — A Waynesburg Zoning Board case which fomented considerable controversy a year ago and eventually wound up in the Greene County Court has come to a quiet end. Monday night, the board granted permission to Dr. Michael Webb to maintain his chiropractic office at his home at 684 East Greene Street.

The conditional use permit was granted under the revised home occupation section of the zoning ordinance. It corrected action taken in August 1981 when the board granted the permission under the accessory use section of the ordinance. The permit was required because the house is in an R-1 (single family dwelling) zone.

The Greene County Court, which got the case on an appeal from one of the neighbors, Dr. Grover Phillippi, ruled recently that the zoning board had erred in acting under the accessory use clause. As part of Monday's meeting, a public hearing was held to receive comments about the revised application.

But while the original hearing attracted a number of residents from the neighborhood who objected to granting of the permit, Monday's hearing drew no attendance.

Webb's attorney, Kenneth Tompkins, pointed out that Webb has been treating patients at the house since the permit was granted last August, and that none of the problems which neighbors feared had developed. "There have been no problems with the neighbors, with parking or with traffic," he said.

Tompkins presented letters from the property owners on both sides stating they had found Webb and his family to be "good neighbors," and also quoted other home owners in the area to the effect that they had withdrawn their objections. Phillippi, who filed the lawsuit in an attempt to block the zoning board's original action, was not at the meeting.

In other action, the board granted permission for the establishment of a shelter residence for the elderly and infirm at 154 West High Street, with the understanding that the developer would provide at least six off-street parking spaces at the rear.

Pam Larson of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Area Agency on Aging said the AAA hopes to purchase the property from the Mary B. Scott estate to provide a home for as many as 13 older people who are ambulatory but who are infirm and have no one to care for them. The property consists of a three-story brick house on High Street and a smaller frame house at the rear. The facility would include apartments for three staff members.

Carrying out of the project depends on the success of Waynesburg Borough's application for a $750,000 grant from the Department of Community Affairs under the Small Communities Grant Program. The grant, if approved, would be administered by the Waynesburg Economic Redevelopment Commission, with renovation of the house for use by AAA being one of the proposed projects to be financed through the grant.

Bell's Wholesale Grocery received a permit to erect a loading dock on the side of its building on Elm Street.

Park Plans Made

WAYNESBURG — Development of the Mason-Dixon Historical Park on the West Virginia border near Mt. Morris will be given a boost by Consolidation Coal Co. through an agreement which permits the company to plug eight abandoned oil and gas wells within the 270-acre site.

Consolidation has agreed to build an access road into the park which will conform to the plan for development of the park prepared in the spring of this year by a group of landscape architectural students at West Virginia University. It will be used by the coal company in plugging the wells and will be left in an improved condition to serve as an entrance road into the park.

The agreement was approved Thursday by the Greene County commissioners upon presentation by the county Department of Parks and Recreation.

In addition, Consolidation will donate $5,000 to Mason-Dixon Historical Park, Inc., the non-profit corporation which is attempting to develop the park and to persuade the Department of the Interior to designate it as a national park.

The central attraction would be the final marker set up by Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, two 18th century English astronomers who were commissioned to establish the 253-mile-long line to settle a boundary dispute between the Penns of Pennsylvania and the Calverts of Maryland.

The marker sits on the top of Brown's Hill, where the Mason-Dixon surveying crew was halted by Indians in 1767, while still 21.7 miles short of its goal. The line was not completed until 15 years later to its western terminus — what is now the southwestern corner of Greene County — by another group of surveyors. It extended it the full five degrees west from the Delaware River in accordance with the charter William Penn received from King Charles of England.

History buffs in Greene County and in Monongalia County, W.Va., have been working since 1976 to establish the park. They were successful in persuading the Consolidation Natural Gas Co. to deed the 270 acres over to the two counties. The property straddles the state line just north of Dunkard Creek, several miles west of Mt. Morris.

Consolidation Coal, which owns Pittsburgh Coal underlying the property, needs to plug the old, abandoned wells before it can mine its coal. Five of them are in Greene County, in and around Brown's Hill, and the other three are in Monongalia County, in the tableland area where most of the park development would occur.

The only facility presently in the park area is a log shelter erected by the Greene County Warrior Trail Association. It is on the Catawba Indian Trail, a hiking trail running from Rices Landing to the park.

Charles Snyder of Pentress, W.Va., is current president of the Mason-Dixon Historical Park Inc. W. Bertram Waychoff of Waynesburg is vice president. Other members of the non-profit corporation are from both Greene and Monongalia Counties.

Few Appeal Assessment On Property

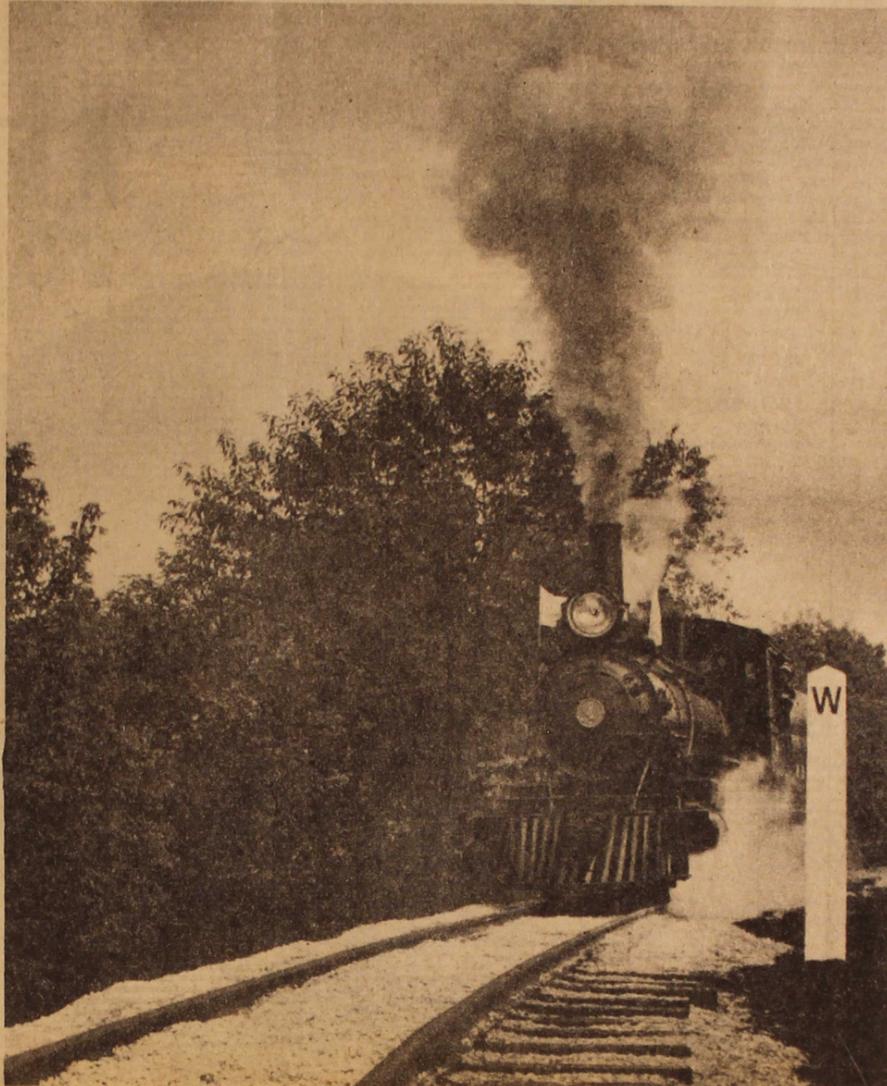

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County commissioners held hearings Tuesday on appeals filed against 1984 property assessments.

Chief Assessor Perry Bavera said the number of appeals filed this year — eight by owners of coal and nine by homeowners — was the lowest in many years.

"When you consider that the county has more than 26,000 taxable properties on the assessment rolls, 17 appeals is far less than you might expect to receive," he said.

The commissioners added that just three of the eight individuals who protested values placed on coal which they own appeared for their scheduled hearings Tuesday. Seven of the hearings on house and land valuations were heard, and two were rescheduled.

County response to each appeal will be made after information received at the hearings has been evaluated.

Fall Festival Special

Belching smoke from its stack and steam from its underside, the only remaining engine of the old narrow gauge Waynesburg and Washington Railroad came alive again this weekend for the annual Fall Festival at the Greene County Historical Museum. It's shown rounding a slight curve on its track recently extended an additional 150 feet. As in past years, large crowds were again on the museum grounds to see the many attractions at the two-day festival.

Officer Claims Chief's Order Illegal

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — For over three hours Wednesday, the Waynesburg Borough Civil Service Commission heard testimony during a hearing requested by fired Patrolman Michael J. Fuller.

Fuller, 27, a five-year veteran of the force, was suspended from duty last month by Mayor Roy Huffman and was dismissed from the force on Sept. 12 by action of borough council. Fuller was officially charged with failure to obey a direct order from his superiors.

The incident occurred Aug. 18 when Lt. David Clark entered the police station where Fuller, Patrolman Glenn Bates and state trooper Joseph Palmer were engaged in conversation. Clark felt the two patrolmen were discussing police matters with a person not a member of the department in violation of police policy.

Both Bates and Fuller denied police matters were being discussed and said it was a private, general discussion. Clark ordered Bates to write a report about the subject matter which Bates, who was on duty, completed before his shift was over.

Nineveh Man Fined For Killing Eagle

WAYNESBURG — A Greene County man who mistakenly shot and killed a bald eagle in southwestern Pennsylvania last November has consented to pay a $1,000 federal fine and relinquish his hunting privileges for three years.

According to officers of the Pennsylvania Game Commission and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Thomas F. Moore of Nineveh shot the immature eagle while hunting turkeys in western Greene County during the 1982 fall season.

A violation of both state and federal wildlife laws, the act went undiscovered until early this year when the Pennsylvania Eagle Protection and Reward Fund was established by the game commission and several allied wildlife conservation organizations, namely: National Audubon Society, National and Pennsylvania Wildlife Federations, Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs and the Pennsylvania Forestry Association.

Fuller, who was off duty at the time, was ordered the following morning to also submit a report on the conversation. Fuller started to type the report but changed his mind and refused to do so saying it was a private conversation and not a police matter.

Fuller's attorney, Robert Clark told the three-member commission that no one denies refusing the order of Clark and Chief Tim Hawfield to type the report. "However, we feel the order was illegal," attorney Clark said.

Prior to taking testimony Clark asked Commission Chairman Ewing Pollock to disqualify himself because the borough solicitor and Pollock are law partners. Clark said this would constitute a conflict of interest.

Pollock refused to step down saying he had never discussed the case with his law partner and noted the fact that attorney Harry Cancemi would represent the borough at the hearing.

First to testify was Lt. David Clark who said he heard Patrolman Bates say, "I'm sick and tired . . ." Clark said he did not hear Fuller say anything but was suspicious the officers were talking about police matters. He went on to say that Fuller was told three times to type out the report and finally refused to do so.

Chief Hawfield was the next witness and described the scene in the police station on Aug. 19 when Fuller was ordered to make the report. Hawfield said he was concerned about morale and griping among the officers and felt the policy of no talking outside the department should be enforced.

Under cross-examination, Hawfield admitted that while a patrolman he had "his share of beefs." He said he agreed with the policy that patrolmen should not complain even among themselves about police matters. Hawfield also told the commission that he was largely responsible for the policy manual three years ago although the manual received the approval of the mayor and borough manager.

Patrolman Bates took the stand and told the board he submitted the requested report because he felt he had no other choice. During his testimony Bates said the felt Fuller was going to be punished even if he did submit a report.

Fuller took the stand and testified that Lt. Clark was hostile and shouted during the confrontation in the police station. Speaking the conversation the previous night, Fuller said, "I felt I had the right to have a private conversation." Fuller also told the court he was off duty at the time.

Discussing the next morning's talk with Hawfield and Clark, Fuller told the commission, "I felt I was being treated like dirt. I couldn't believe this was going on. I feel they don't have the right to investigate my private life."

Hawfield was called back to the stand and testified that in his opinion Clark was not hostile and screaming during his conversation with Fuller. When cross examined, Hawfield did say Clark "raised his voice."

In his closing argument, attorney Clark said the case has a "chilling effect" because no evidence was presented that Fuller was discussing police matters and the conversation was within his First Amendment rights.

The commission comprised of Pollock, Michael Mulholland and Kenneth Willison Sr. will have 15 days in which to reach a decision.

The commission can affirm council's action, disaffirm council's action or chose another type of punishment.

a radio telemetry transmitter. The radio equipment, along with yellow identification streamers, was found near the carcass which discarded over an embankment.

According to agent Marks, the eagle was less than a year old, having been brought to New York State from Alaska during the summer of 1982. In August of that year, authorities of the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation released the bird as part of their bald eagle recovery program.

Prior to release, the eagle has been fitted with a radio transmitter, yellow wing streamers and leg bands. New York records show the immature bird headed south in September in what would have been a natural migration pattern.

Marks, in a letter to Commission Executive Director Peter S. Duncan, noted, "exemplary performance" on the part of game protectors Kleiner and Senko, and other law enforcement personnel. Marks said, "Such mutual assistance is especially noteworthy in light of the numerous, recent shootings of eagle in Pennsylvania and other northeastern states. Such shootings can only serve to undermine the intensive and cooperative efforts of private, state and federal agencies to reestablish or increase eagle populations."

Moore, who admitted the shooting when confronted with the evidence, has agreed to pay a $1,000 civil penalty and will sign a consent agreement under which his Pennsylvania hunting and trapping privileges will be suspended for three years.

According to Commission Executive Director Duncan, arrangements are now underway to again contact the information and negotiate settlement of the reward, as provided for in the Eagle Protection and Reward Fund.

Nancy Jane King, daughter of Donald and Margaret Ann King of Fourth Ave. Extension, Waynesburg became the bride of Douglas Dale Walls, son of Dale and Marjorie Walls of Waynesburg R. D. 3.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 2 p.m. Aug. 20, 1983 in the Cloughton Chapel Methodist Church by the Rev. David Hackenberg who was assisted by the Rev. Henry A. Young, who had also married the bride's parents. Wynona Willison was the organist and Garnet Throckmorton the soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father. She wore her mother's wedding gown of antique

Commissioner Challenge Threatens Board Balance

Greene County's race for county commissioners will be worth watching this year.

Kelce Mosley of Waynesburg is hoping to take advantage of the county's overwhelming Democratic registration majority to get himself elected through a sticker campaign. If he can't beat either of the two Democrats who are on the ballot, he hopes to at least run ahead of the two Republican candidates, which would give him the minority seat on the board which the law requires.

It's a ploy which has never been tried, and if it works it would be a severe blow to the already hard-pressed Greene County Republican Committee, which must make do with just 3,450 of the county's 16,988 registered voters.

With one exception, there have always been two Democrats and one Republican on the board of commissioners. The exception came in 1975, when Republicans Richard Cowan and the late Ernest C. Lemley upset the apple cart by running first and third, respectively, in the four-way race to relegate a Democrat to the minority seat.

This year, L. R. Santore and Dan Bailey are the two Democratic candidates and Cowan and John Gardner are the Republican candidates. Barring an upset of 1975 proportions, the race on Nov. 8 figured to be between Cowan and Gardner for the traditional Republican seat.

But should Mosley prevail, there could be three registered Democrats on the board, even though one of them would be classified as minority commissioner.

Mosley, one of the prime movers in the Concerned Citizen movement in the county several years ago, ran third behind Santore and Bailey in the Democratic primary last spring. Since he came within 800 votes of beating Bailey and got twice as many votes as Cowan, who was top vote getter in the Republican primary, he likes his chances of running at least third, even though he must rely on sticker or write-in votes to get the job done.

There is a big difference between a primary and a general election, however. Electors aren't restricted to voting for their party candidates in November, and in the past Republican commissioner candidates have always drawn a substantial number of Democrat votes in the fall election.

If they do so again this year, Mosley's chances won't be very good.

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

Once again, residents of Greene County and many visitors from throughout the tri-state area showed it takes more than a mere threat of rain, or even a few scattered drops, to keep them away from the annual Fall Festival at the Historical Society museum.

The museum, which was first brought to life more than 25 years ago by a small group of local historians, has grown steadily since it was moved to the former "poor farm" building on old Route 21 (known to older residents at the Muddy Creek road). Its displays are outstanding and it has come to be recognized as one of the better museums of its kind in Pennsylvania.

The 12th annual Fall Festival seemed to be the biggest ever and certainly attracted one of the largest crowds. As usual, operation of the last engine from the historic Waynesburg and Washington narrow gauge railroad was one of the most popular attractions.

With the renewed interest in the W&W generated by the locomotive at the museum and the publication of a new book on the railroad, more and more people seem to be discussing the possibility of acquiring the railroad's old terminal building at Friday Street in Waynesburg. It is now being used for storage, but if something isn't done soon to preserve it it will be too late.

It was from that spot that thousands of earlier county residents started on train rides to Washington. The building has a lot of possibilities, but it will take imagination to realize its potential.

Just as the last paragraph was completed, a mile-long coal train passed behind the old station and crossed the new railroad bridge on the former Jesse Hill farm at the foot of South Richhill Street, on its way to pick up a load of coal at Blacksville. P.S. No, the boy's don't swim in Ten Mile Creek anymore.

Hundreds of Waynesburg men who used to enjoy a good card game of most any sort lost one of their companions last week with the death of Thomas "Tom" Grable, a long-time Waynesburg resident. He was a familiar figure in card-playing circles in Pittsburgh, Washington, Wheeling and other cities and towns.

He was a man of good intellect and keen insight into the psychology of playing. Many of his playing companions were prominent business and professional men who liked the battle of wits to be found in a game of poker, and the stories he could tell about his experiences were a never-ending source of fascination.

Prothonotary's Deputy May Lose Salary Raise

WAYNESBURG — The second deputy in the Greene County prothonotary's office resigned recently to accept another job.

Prothonotary Charles T. Hogue then appointed Cynthia Hull to the vacant position on Sept. 1 and Mrs. Hull received a paycheck reflecting the promotion and salary hike.

However, when her next check did not include the raise, Hogue went to the commissioners meeting to check on the matter.

Hogue was told he must have salary board approval for Mrs. Hull to receive the pay increase. The salary board is comprised of all three commissioners and county Treasurer Joseph Souders.

Just as the salary board started to discuss the matter, Souders produced a copy of the county code which states the prothonotary's office in a county this size does not rate a second deputy.

With this, Commissioner Joseph

Pawlosky recommended Hogue meet with his office's solicitor on the matter.

Hogue went back to his office and again read the paper submitted by Souders and noticed it also said the prothonotary's office is not entitled to a solicitor either.

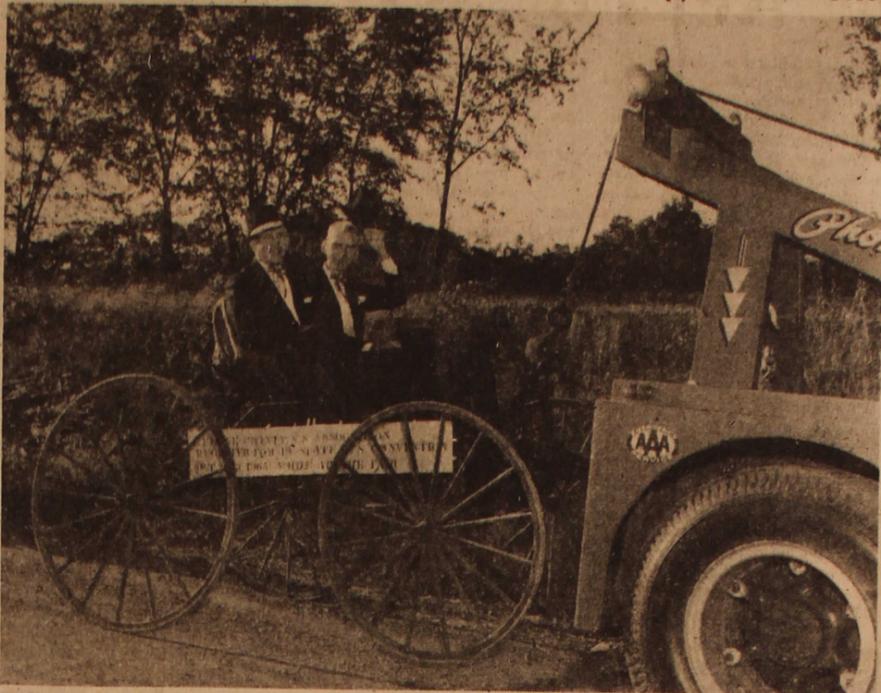

The post of second deputy was created by the state Legislature in 1955, but the law was repealed on April 28, 1978.

Hogue will leave office on Dec. 31 after being defeated in the Democratic primary last spring.

Obviously upset by what he called a political move, Hogue drafted a letter to the board of commissioners Friday in which he referred to County Solicitor Joseph Souders. Hogue told the board he would not appear before the board of county commissioners on this matter again.

"Take whatever action the board deems fit, proper and necessary to resolve this matter," he wrote.

between the bookends

by marcia mckenna biddle

The feud between Stella and me is still on.

I have threatened to sue her many times for trying to get me fired, but still she persists. This year, she is at it again.

Stella is, of course, the Observer-Reporter's resident astrologer. Through her column, "Your Birthday, by Stella," she dispenses good cheer and encouragement on every day of the year, except one. On that day, my birthday, she turns vicious. Sitting in her little cave, out the south branch of Muddy Creek, she stirs her cauldron, chases bats, and conjures up new ways to insult me in her column.

These attacks began in 1966 and continue unabated, every September 29th. The first thing she told me back then was, "You have great difficulty expressing yourself in such a way that others understand you. Develop a stronger sense of articulation." I could only interpret that as a direct attack upon this column.

But when this column did not disappear under her assault, Stella wheeled out her big guns and commenced firing. The next year she said, "You often do not know when to stop or when you've had enough of a good thing. In time, however, you should LEARN WHEN TO QUIT!"

In succeeding years, she called me a "mysterious character," one who is "prone to be more dominating and demanding than is good for you, if the accumulation of friends and admirers is one of your aims."

Another year, she was back to her warnings: "You waste a great deal of time and energy on a lost cause. Learn to know when, finally, to GIVE UP!"

I have to admit that this constant harassment on each birthday makes me a little nervous. But as Stella becomes more and more shrill in her determination that I should give up, I only become more stubborn.

Still, as my birthday approached this year, I began watching her column closely, to find out what she was saying to those with birthdays preceding mine. To those born on Sept. 26, Stella said, "Your ability to adjust keeps you moving in a profitable, productive direction."

I knew better than to hope that Stella would commend me for going in anything like a productive direction. If you were born on Sept. 27, Stella told you that, "The more competition you have, the more you are spurred to a good performance." If Stella saw anything approaching a good performance in my future, I would be very surprised.

Still, she seemed to be in a good mood this year. Maybe she would take it easy on me, too, for a change, like she did for those born on Sept. 28. They "always take the direct, positive approach to problems, to personal relationships, and to life in general."

Would I receive a positive approach from Stella? Hardly. For Sept. 29, my horoscope reads, "Inclined to be temperamental and further inclined to show your responses, holding back nothing of either your positive or your negative reactions, you may for some years lead an up-and-down personal life that sees friendships made and broken at a great rate."

I guess that is a pretty good description of my relationship with Stella over the years. And while predicting wholesale desertions of friends is not very nice, it fits in with her general poison pen campaign. It's about on a par with calling me a "mysterious character," and this column "a lost cause."

This year she didn't exactly tell me again that I should give up, quit, or take to the hills. What she said was that I ought to stay home and stick to my housework. "Women born on this date are capable of a domestic and a commercial career. However, they will very probably prefer home-making to policy making."

She couldn't resist a final slap at my writing, either. "Get to the point more quickly," she concluded. All right, I'll get to the point, and if Stella will call her lawyer, she will hear about it.

W. Greene School Buses Compile Envious Record

By Christie R. Molzon, Staff Writer

ROGERSVILLE — Although many people may not be aware of it, Gov. Dick Thornburgh has designated Oct. 2-8 as School Bus Safety Week.

The West Greene School District hasn't made any plans to celebrate this week in a big way, but Superintendent Paul Polink did send the district's bus contractors (Wayne Grim and Ralph Conklin are the two major contractors) letters of appreciation for their safety records.

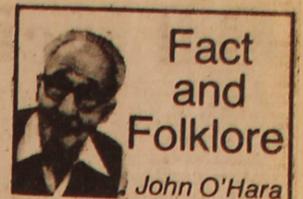

That safety record is cause for celebration when you consider the West Greene School District buses students more miles than any other district in the county and is also one of the largest districts in the state — it covers 256 square miles. The 25 buses cover 2,000 miles each school day and those aren't 2,000 miles of straight and level road. There are students who live on some of the highest hills and most rural of roads in the county. In fact, there are students who board buses at 6:40 a.m. and don't get home until after 5 p.m.

Polink said there has never been a serious bus accident in the 13 years he has been with the district and other administrators said there hasn't been one since the high school was built — over 20 years ago.

What is involved in the safe busing of students comes down to a number of things.

Start with the state regulations that cover school buses and bus operators. Buses are inspected every year prior to the beginning of the school year by the state police.

Drivers must take a physical and be certified by a doctor to drive. This year the state has made the health requirements for drivers even more rigid. For example, drivers with any history of heart problems or diabetes taking insulin are not allowed to oper-

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

The smell of ripe apples was in the air and the early Autumn sky was picture-perfect this past weekend for the annual Fall Festival at the Greene County Historical Museum.

Mortal man could not have asked for a more beautiful day to be enjoyed by the hundreds who tramped over the grounds.

Museum officials and all those connected with the festival were responsible for a thoroughly enjoyable weekend. "See you next year," was heard frequently as the patrons headed for their cars Sunday afternoon.

There are a dozen reasons for having made the statement. The scene itself was reason enough.

One of the top attractions was the train ride aboard the old W&W engine. Patrons also enjoyed the arts and crafts, food, music and battle scenes and of course, the many exhibits inside the museum.

The Fall Festival is rapidly approaching the point where the event will join the Greene County Fair, Jacktown Fair and Rain Day as a top tourist attraction which draws hundreds if not thousands of out-of-county visitors.

The W&W exhibit alone is worth the trip to the festival for the "older" generation because it remains a highly visible link to the county's past. The track was extended recently and came as a surprise to returning visitors.

Clarksville also benefitted from the beautiful day and Mother Nature played a major role in the success of the community's annual Pumpkin Festival.

Despite the Pitt-West Virginia football game, festivals were the headline attractions this past weekend—at least in Greene County.

ate a school bus. Polink had to take two drivers off the list of qualified operators because of the new requirements.

Next, consider the district's own regulations governing those students who are bused to and from school. In the West Greene School District, students must follow a discipline code. Anyone who violates the code is issued a ticket by the driver. The student is then responsible for finding his or her own way to school for three days on the first offense, ten days on the second offense and faces permanent suspension on the third offense. The code calls the bus trip an extension of the school day — drivers have the same jurisdiction over the behavior of students on their buses as the teachers have in the classroom.

Finally, and most importantly, are those people — the drivers, teachers, staff members and administrators — who see to it that the students make it to school and get home safely each day.

"We have some very responsible people who are concerned with the safety of the children," Polink said and he singled out the efforts of George Phillips who helps to load and unload students at the high school each day. "He gives of his own time and he's there early in the morning and after school," Polink said. "He even knows which student rides which bus."

School transportation, Polink noted, is a privilege. School district are not required by law to bus students to school. Any district that does bus has to pay a hefty bill. Transportation in the West Greene district, for example, costs half a million dollars a year.

But, in a district the size of West Greene, it's easy to see why it is an expensive necessity. The fact that it is done safely is even more important.

Grant From EPA Makes Sewer System Possible

BRAVE — The Brave Water and Sewer Authority has received a $250,700 grant from the Environmental Protection Agency to be used toward construction of a sewer system in Wayne Township village.

According to the Carol McCann of Chester Engineers, total cost of the new system has been estimated at $310,565.

Plans call for the installation of 1,050 feet of new line, a pump station, tank, sand filters and chlorinator. The system will serve 39 customers in the community.

Voters Must Be Registered

WAYNESBURG — Greene County residents who are not registered to vote have one more week to do so if they want to vote in the general election Nov. 8.

Betty Ray, chief registration clerk, said that registrations will be accepted until 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 11. The office, located in the new county office building at Waynesburg, is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Mrs. Ray also said that registered voters who will be out of the county on Nov. 8, or who will be unable to go to their regular polling place for some other reason, can obtain an absentee ballot by contacting the office.

Balancing Act For WHS

By John Barker, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — Guy Montecalvo was right.

After stressing for the past four weeks that his team is not one-dimensional, the Washington High School head football coach got a chance to prove his point here Friday night.

For a change, the Little Presidents didn't rely so much on the powerful strides of running back Brian Davis. Instead, they counted on the strong arm of senior quarterback Mark Wise and the running of two talented tailbacks.

Wise, who played only the first half, connected on all seven passes for 122 yards and a touchdown, and led Wash High to a 41-0 rout of Waynesburg in a Section 4-AA game here.

Wise's performance outshined Davis, who gained just 36 yards on seven carries. Harry Booker and Joe Barnes picked up the slack, though, and gained 40 and 43 yards respectively.

"As I've said all year, we have a balanced football team," said Montecalvo. "It kind of gets upsetting sometimes when people think we're one-dimensional, and more specifically, a one-person football team."

"We've got several good backs who can carry the football and what I feel is a super quarterback and some great receivers. We can throw the football when we have to and that's what we wanted to get done tonight."

Remarkably, Wise wasn't even slated to start because of a shoulder injury. He still managed to pass the Red Raiders silly in the first half, including a 41-yard strike wide receiver Jamie LeMon on Washington's third play from scrimmage. LeMon finished with 79 yards on five catches.

"Going into tonight we had only thrown the ball 38 times but he had 24 completions," said Montecalvo of Wise. "And now add that seven and that's close to a 75 percent completion percentage. He's a heck of a quarterback."

Two plays after the pass to LeMon, Booker plowed in from the one-yard line and the Little Presidents led, 7-0.

"I still think we have a good defense and feel they did good job," said Waynesburg head coach Tom Vent. "Washington's defense was a good defense and they did good job." "I still think we have a good defense and feel they did good job," said Waynesburg head coach Tom Vent, whose Raiders fell to 2-3 overall and 0-2 in the section. "They didn't surprise me with their passing. LeMon is a great receiver and we had some special games trying to stop him. We had double coverage on him but we didn't get it done. They have a nice ballclub."

Washington, now 5-0 and 2-0 in the section, scored again on Waynesburg's first offensive series when Davis picked off a pass from quarterback Terry Jackovic, and raced 25 yards for a touchdown and a 14-0 lead.

After an unsuccessful drive by Waynesburg, the Little Presidents cranked up the offense again. Wash

High marched 43 yards and scored when Davis rammed in from one yard to take a 20-0 lead late in the first quarter.

"The first half, they totally intimidated us," said Vent. "We just didn't come to play."

The Washington scoring barrage continued after Jackovic fumbled the ball on Waynesburg's 33 and Barnes recovered it on the 18. Two plays later, Booker scored from the five and Wash High led 28-0, with 1:13 left in the first quarter.

"They have a very good high school football team," said Vent. "I haven't seen Charleroi and I haven't seen Beth-Center but Brian Davis is a great running back; no doubt about that. They've got good skill people."

Wash High added a touchdown in the second quarter when Wise passed six yards to Barnes for a 34-0 lead. A 25-yard fumble return by David Gatling finished out the scoring for the Little Presidents.

"They ganged up on the run on us and we threw the quick outs," said Montecalvo. "We hit the little hitch pass time and time again."

"We were co-champs last year and we would like to win it outright this year."

The Wash High defense was equally impressive, holding Waynesburg to just 10 yards passing and minus-17 rushing. Lippencott completed just two of six passes.

Waynesburg quarterback Terry Jackovic gets pressure from Washington's Chad Fleissner (78).

Jackets Win

By John Barker, O-R Sports Staff

PITTSBURGH — Maybe it's time for the doubters to become believers.

But who would have imagined the Waynesburg College football team would win three consecutive games after a dismal, 0-1-1 start this season?

The Yellow Jackets made believers out of Duquesne University Saturday night on the AstroTurf of South High Stadium. Waynesburg rolled over the Dukes, 23-6, rather easily.

Relying on a defense that bends but doesn't break and a pair of big-play passes, the Jackets improved their record to 3-1-1 while dominating the Dukes.

"The defense played real well tonight and they played exceptional, heads-up football," said Waynesburg head coach Bill Tornabene. "We bent a few times, but still, the bottom line is that there's just six points on the board."

"Offensively, at times we struggled. We wanted to drive and we tried to go without doing our work."

And Waynesburg's defense made its presence known after Duquesne drove 50 yards on its opening drive to the Jackets' 15-yard line. The Dukes' Pedro Bowman fumbled a pitchout and Steve Burchianti recovered to stop the threat.

The Dukes, now 2-3, flaunted their defense after Waynesburg drove right back the field to the Duquesne four-yard line. Fullback Pete Long rammed the line on a fourth-down run but did not score.

The Jackets' defense rose to the occasion again when Duquesne took over. Bowman fumbled for a second time and defensive tackle Jeff Standish recovered it in the endzone for a Waynesburg touchdown and a 7-0 lead.

"We just had too many turnovers," said Duquesne head coach Dan McCann. "We had fumbles and penalties and they took advantage of them."

"We ended up with four interceptions and two fumbles that we lost, and you can't do that and expect to win. We actually had six fumbles. Every time we got something going, we got a breakdown."

Hunting Day Was 'Perfect'

WAYNESBURG — Greene County game protectors reported a good day Saturday for the opening of archery deer season with many hunters in the field and no accidents or major violations.

It was a perfect hunting day, reported Robert Shaffer of Carmichaels, game official for the eastern half of the county. Steve Kleiner, western county game protector, said there were no problems in his area of the county but only one hunter reported getting a deer.

Kleiner blamed the still heavy ground cover for difficult hunting and said hunters will have a better chance later in the archery season which ends Oct. 28.

Both game protectors said the deer herd in the county is large and in excellent shape with many fine animals for the taking. Shaffer said he heard of some deer kills in his area but said reporting in archery season is generally rather slow.

Rifle Shoot Planned

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Department of Parks & Recreation will hold its fourth annual rifle shoot on Sunday, Oct. 16.

For details, pre-registration and additional information contact the office at 852-1171, extension 278, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Despite Duquesne's two first-quarter fumbles by Bowman, a fumble and an interception in the second quarter, the Dukes stayed close. They finally scored when backup quarterback Scott Henson, a freshman from Ringgold High School, threw a beautifully-executed, 79-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jim Radermacher. A missed extra point by Dave Vento left the Dukes trailing, 7-6, late in the second quarter.

Waynesburg bounced back when Doug Storck returned the ensuing kickoff to the Jackets' 46. After three running plays and a penalty, quarterback Tim Garry threw a pass toward wide receiver Matt Toney that was tipped; Toney managed to catch the tip for a 47-yard touchdown, giving the Yellow Jackets a 13-6 lead.

"I'm not disappointed because I think we're as good as Waynesburg, although the score may not indicate that," said McCann. "That pass to Toney was a big break for them."

The second half was scoreless until the Yellow Jackets extended their lead to 16-6 in the fourth quarter on a 31-yard field goal by Mike Zeglen.

Waynesburg's defense bent again early in the fourth quarter when the Dukes drove to the Jackets' 40. The drive stalled when Bowman, the junior sensation who has gained at least 100 yards in each of Duquesne's five games this season, was stopped on a fourth-and-four. The All-America candidate did manage 105 yards rushing, but 47 came on a long run.

"I certainly have to admire the kid for his hard running," said Tornabene. "They mixed it up well and they gave us a pretty good ballgame. It's a tribute to us that our kids fought back when they had to."

Waynesburg put the game out of reach when Garry hit tight end Dave Zilli with a 52-yard pass over the middle. Zilli, who has played fullback most of this season, caught the ball near the 25 and ran past two defenders for the score.

"I only saw one of the defenders and I just took off," said Zilli. "It's just great to win and our conditioning helped us in our second half play."

"David made a tremendous run on that last touchdown," said Tornabene. "We were able to score from all angles, like when we sent Dave inside instead of outside for that pass."

FLAK JACKETS — Garry completed 14 of 26 passes for 270 yards and two touchdowns. Trace Bocan, the Dukes' starting quarterback, hit only four of 11 passes for 52 yards and one interception. Henson completed just three of 16 passes for 91 yards and three interceptions. Burchianti had two interceptions while teammates Craig Harris and Bob Abbiatici had one each.

Birds Released On Game Lands

WAYNESBURG — The Pennsylvania Game Commission released 1,490 male pheasants in western Greene County Thursday.

Scholastic Football Roundup

By Bob Grove, O-R Sports Staff

ELLSWORTH — All Joe Malinsky needed Friday night was a little motivation. So Mapletown High School football coach Fred Answine provided it.

"I got on him at halftime," Answine said. "He wasn't playing football. And I just shook him up and told him that if he wanted to play football... maybe it helped. I don't know."

It helped. With one minute remaining to play, or roughly one hour after Answine's verbal kick in the pants, Patterson Realty took 2½ points from the Waynesburg Milling team behind a 192 single by Louise Cooley and a 492 series by Gloria Sanner. Joyce Watson rolled a 187 single and 485 series for the milling team.

Malinsky caught the 10-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Ed Pekar that enabled the Maples (4-1) to defeat Bentworth (3-2), 8-3, here Friday night.

The victory gives Mapletown a 3-1 WPIAL Section 4-A record while Bentworth drops to 2-2.

Malinsky's catch capped an 18-play, 88-yard drive that began after the Maples recovered a Bentworth fumble at their own 12-yard line with 6:26 to play. An illegal block on the drive's first play pushed the ball back to the Maples' six-yard line, and Pekar then drove his team 94 yards for the winning touchdown.

Malinsky, a senior tight end, was the key to the drive, catching three passes for 34 yards before hauling in the touchdown on first-and-10 from the Bentworth 10-yard line. Two of those three catches came on third-and-10.

The touchdown pass erased a 3-0 lead the Bearcats held after junior Chris Dziak's 26-yard field goal with nine seconds remaining in the first half.

Perhaps the most impressive thing about the Maples' win Friday was the fact they did it without senior fullback Bill Watson, the largest part of their offense.

Runners 14, Mikes 8

CARMICHAELS — Bob Kessinger scored from 10 yards out with 5:40 remaining in the game to lead Fairchance-Georges High School to a 14-8 Section 4-A victory over Carmichaels Friday afternoon.

The loss gives Carmichaels a 1-3 section record and a 1-4 overall mark while F-G goes to 1-3 in the section and 2-3 overall.

The Mikes took a 6-0 lead on the second play of the second half. J.L. Lechner, who snagged three passes for 58 yards, took a 23-yard toss from quarterback Rich Hrobak for a touchdown.

The Runners tied the game when Ted Copas, who had 100 yards on 22 carries, ran over from the two-yard line.

Pine Grove 16, Pioneers 6

After a scoreless first half, Pine Grove Valley High School's football team scored two touchdowns to take a 16-6 win over West Greene Friday night.

Pine Grove opened the scoring on a 10-yard run by Doug Nolan in the third quarter. The two-point conversion was good to give Pine Grove an 8-0 lead.

Spartans 15, Rockets 7

JEFFERSON — Junior fullback Chuck Hillman rushed for two touchdowns Friday night to help Mon Valley Catholic overcome an early, 7-0 deficit and defeat Jefferson-Morgan High School, 15-7, in a WPIAL Section 4-A football game.

Hillman, who rushed 12 times for 50 yards on the night, scored on a three-yard run in the second quarter to help the Spartans (4-1) take an 8-7 lead. Then, in the third quarter, he rambled two yards into the end zone to give MV Catholic its third win in four section games.

State Sends PURTA Payments To County

WAYNESBURG — Local government units in Greene County have received $212,607 as their share of nearly $70 million in Public Utility Realty Tax Act (PURTA) payments distributed last week by the state Department of Revenue.

Revenue Secretary James Scheiner said the payments are for the 1982 tax year, made from taxes which the commonwealth collects from public utility companies on property holdings within Pennsylvania. A complex statutory formula, which takes into account population, assessed property valuations and local tax effort, is used to return the money to counties, municipalities and school districts which take the necessary steps to participate in the program.

The program is designed to provide an equitable method of revenue sharing since real estate owned by public utilities is not subject to taxation by local government units or school districts.

Scheiner said the nearly $70 million mailed out last week is the largest single distribution under the PURTA program since its inception in 1970, and brings the total amount of money distributed to nearly $470 million to date.

Of the 3,317 political subdivisions and school districts in the state, 3,097 are participating in the program this year, including all those in Greene County.

The county itself received $36,704 of the $212,607 distributed, but the largest share, $59,977, went to the Central Greene School District. Payments to other school districts were Carmichaels Area, $19,117; Jefferson-Morgan, $22,287; Southeastern Greene, $12,631, and West Greene, $29,177.

Street Lamps To Decorate Downtown

WAYNESBURG — The final phase of the downtown revitalization project is expected to begin this fall, and bids will be accepted until Wednesday, Oct. 19, for lighting installation.

Plans call for the installation of 22 decorative street lamps between the two-block area of Morgan and Morris streets. The unique plan also calls for the merchants to pay the monthly electric bill which is expected to average about $3 monthly.

The underground electrical service will be installed from the curb line to the business place. At the same time, the project calls for the installation of depressed curbs.

The aluminum street lamps will have cast-iron bases and will contain 150-watt bulbs which can last up to five years before replacement. Maintenance of the lights will be the responsibility of Waynesburg Borough.

The high-pressure sodium lamps are cost efficient, according to Robert Lang, director of Waynesburg Economic Revitalization Corp. which is in charge of the federal and state-aided project.

Lamps currently in place in front of the First National Bank and First Federal Savings and Loan Association will be replaced by the new lamps. Two of the new lamps will be installed in front of the county courthouse.

Construction is expected to begin by mid-November when the lamps will be delivered.

Bound Over For Court

WAYNESBURG — Daniel A. Fisher, 28, of Waynesburg R.D.3, a former counselor for the Greene County Association of Retarded Citizens (GARC), was bound over to court Friday following a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Ruth Hughes.

Fisher is charged with nine counts of sexual abuse involving three teenage boys living in a home near Waynesburg under the Community Living Arrangements program administered by GARC.

A former counselor at the Youth Development Center for a short time, Fisher has been charged by the state police with four counts of involuntary deviate sexual intercourse, three counts of indecent assault and two counts of indecent exposure.

Four witnesses were asked to testify Friday, including the youths involved and state police officer Kenneth Morosky.

When the first youth called to give testimony became emotionally upset in the crowded hearing room, prosecuting attorney Mary Pruss who was representing the district attorney's office, requested the hearing room be cleared.

Magistrate Ruth Hughes agreed and the hearing continued. It took about two hours for the boys to give testimony and Trooper Morosky was on the stand for a short period during the "open" session of the hearing.

Attorney David Pollock, representing Fisher, made a motion the four counts of involuntary deviate sexual intercourse be dismissed because no evidence was presented to substantiate the charge.

Hughes denied the motion and ruled a prima facie case had been presented.

Fisher will remain free after posting a percentage of his $50,000 bond.
