County To Fill EMS Coordinator Post Again

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County commissioners agreed Thursday to provide for the employment of an Emergency Medical Services coordinator for the county when they prepare the county's 1984 budget.

In other action at their meeting, the commissioners executed several employee union contracts, agreed to explore the possibility of having local municipalities assist on a pro-rata basis with the cost of operating the new 1911 emergency telephone system, and granted pay increases to two employees during a salary board meeting called by Prothonotary Charles Hogue.

The EMS coordinator position has been vacant since January, when it was eliminated as part of cost-cutting measures taken when the 1983 budget was adopted.

County EMS Council Chairman Randy Hunter of Waynesburg and Mabelle Ream of Rices Landing, its financial chairman, met with the commissioners to make the request to reactivate the job.

They said that while the county has continued to provide the council with an office, it has been staffed with volunteers who are unable to devote the time required to provide an efficient program.

"We are currently holding a class for 30 EMTs, but it is virtually impossible to provide all the emergency services and training programs we should have without a full-time person," Ream said.

She pointed out that Greene County is the only county in the 13-county region supervised by the Emergency Medical Services Institute in Pittsburgh which does not have a coordinator and, as a result, Greene County has not been eligible for the partial funding provided by the EMSI.

Hunter and Ream presented the commissioners with a proposed budget of $11,522 for the coming year, pointing out that part of the cost would be offset by the resumption of EMSI funding.

The EMS coordinator position was originally established under the CETA program, with the salary being paid from federal funds. When the CETA program was discontinued in 1981, the job was added to the county payroll.

Officers of the EMS Council, in addition to Hunter, are John Toth of Clarksville, vice chairman, and Sherill Barnhart of Clarksville, secretary-treasurer.

The commissioners executed a contract covering jail guards at the county jail who are members of Local 585, Service Employees International Union, and collective bargaining agreements covering three shift commanders at the jail and first level supervisors at Curry Memorial Home.

The jail personnel will receive hourly raises of 25 cents retroactive to July 1, 1983, another 30 cents on Jan. 1, 1984, and a final 15 cents on July 1, 1984. The Curry Home employees, who are employed on a salary basis, will receive monthly increases of $45.50 retroactive to July 1, another $45.50 on Jan. 1, 1984, and a final $38 on July 1, 1984.

The pay increases amount to raises of about 5 percent, the commissioners said.

Betty Morris and Thomas Makcen of Carmichaels Borough Council met with the commissioners to ask if their borough's annual assessment of $3,351 for the police radio communications system will be reduced now that the police radio system has been incorporated into the new 1911 emergency telephone system, which benefits all municipalities in the county.

At the present time, only the county, Carmichaels and Waynesburg boroughs, and Cumberland Township are paying for the cost of the service, with the two boroughs and township being the only municipalities in the county which provide local police services.

Mrs. Morris pointed out that with the 1911 system, all municipalities benefit from the radio service through its availability for all emergency services — police, fire and ambulance.

The commissioners said that the county 1911 committee has drawn up a proposal which would spread the municipal cost of $20,238 among all townships and boroughs, a proposal based on population which would reduce the Carmichaels share to $315.

"You have to understand that we have no power to force any municipality to contribute to the new system, but we are hoping they will cooperate since it is serving their people," commission Chairman Joseph Pawlosky said. He added that the 1911 committee will be asked to pursue the matter further in the hope that local munici-palties could provide some funding in their 1984 budgets.

The commissioners, meeting with Prothonotary Charles Hogue and Treasurer Joseph Souders as the county salary board, approved a two-increment salary raise for Cynthia H. Hull, who Hogue recently promoted from clerk-typist to second deputy. The increase raises her monthly salary by 16 percent to $784.

Hogue argued that she was entitled to the raise under the county job classification and salary schedule since the promotion moves her up on the scale by two steps. He also said his payroll will be decreased by about $100 a month, even with the raise.

Souders and Commissioner L.R. Santore voted against the motion, with Souders stating that he had been turned down on a raise for his chief deputy.

"This is a poor time to give pay raises," Santore said. "I know this is going to snowball and there will be others in asking for the same thing." He also noted that the commissioners have not as yet made good on their promise to increase the salary of the Curry Memorial Home administrator after she successfully took the state nursing home administrator's examination.

Commissioners Joseph Pawlosky and Richard Cowan joined with Hogue in approving the increase, with Cowan pointing out that it was justified by the increased responsibilities which went with the promotion and the fact that it was the salary called for by her new job.

Ex-Grenada Official Fears Impact Of Attack

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — Dr. Wellington R.L. Friday, institutional development coordinator at Waynesburg College, had more than a passing interest in the news that Grenada's prime minister had been shot and killed Wednesday.

Friday, until four years ago, was a high-ranking official in Grenada, and knew Prime Minister Maurice Bishop well.

Bishop was placed under house arrest a week ago, but was freed by a throng of his supporters earlier Wednesday. Bishop allegedly went to army headquarters where some of his supporters were being held. According to witnesses, troops fired on Bishop and the people around him.

Friday told the Observer-Reporter Thursday he has not been back to his native Grenada in four years and "has no interest" in returning in the near future.

He views the assassination of Bishop as a dangerous sign in the Caribbean. "The major external powers such as the United States, Canada and Venezuela should be mindful that the peace of the region will now be in doubt," he said. "This could have a major impact on the United States."

Speaking of Wednesday's attack by the military, Friday said the stage for this incident was set many years ago. He cited the current unemployment, harassment by government officials and the long-standing feud between workers and landowners.

Before leaving Grenada, Friday was himself a victim of the government. He said the family tomb was forced open by government troops searching for something and his home was entered on occasion.

Friday served as a senator for two terms, a minister of education and ambassador-at-large. He also served at the 32nd and 33rd regular sessions of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

At the time of the coup which resulted in the establishment of a revolutionary government four years ago, Friday was on a government mission to the United States.

Friday said the shooting incident was not reflective of the Grenada he knew. "This is not the usual custom, the country is not used to revolutionary activities."

He explained that varied political opinions were common but usually those involved would meet in a restaurant or bar and discuss the issues in a social atmosphere. "Grenada is a small country and everyone knows everyone else," he added.

Speaking of the slain prime minister, Friday said Bishop was a 39-year-old lawyer educated in London. Friday not only knew Bishop well, but all the others reported killed and wounded in the incident Wednesday.

Bishop failed to work on healing the social wounds of the country and this apparently played a role in the recent troubles.

Since coming to Waynesburg College four years ago, Friday has been responsible for several students from Grenada attending the local college. Presently, four students are enrolled here in the joint international medical program with St. George's University, School of Medicine.

Patrolman To Appeal His Firing

WAYNESBURG — Former Waynesburg Borough Patrolman Michael Fuller will appeal his recent firing in two separate courts later this week, according to the officer's attorney, Robert N. Clarke.

Clarke will file papers in federal court claiming Fuller was punished for something for which he has constitutional protection. "They are not going to make a scapegoat out of him," Clarke said.

Clarke also expects to file an appeal in Greene County Court later this week.

Clarke said Attorney Ewing Pollock, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, should have disqualified himself because his law partner, Attorney William Thomas, serves as the borough solicitor. However, during the Civil Service Commission hearing, Attorney Harry Cancelmi represented the borough.

Clarke, before the hearing, asked Pollock to step down but Pollock refused.

The Washington attorney also expressed anger over the fact that his client was not informed of the Civil Service Commission decision before the public was informed through the news media.

Fuller, a five-year veteran of the force, was relieved of duty by Mayor Roy Huffman in August on charges that he refused to obey an order by the police chief and a police lieutenant.

The suspension stemmed from an incident on Aug. 19 when Lt. Dave Clark overheard part of a conversation at the police station between Fuller, Patrolman Glenn Bates and a state police trooper. Clark said the officers were being critical of the police department to an outsider, which is in violation of a policy which prohibits public discussion of matters involving police department affairs.

Bates complied with an order to write a report about the subject matter and stated no matters of departmental policy were discussed. Fuller, who was off duty at the time, refused orders to submit a written report. Fuller told his superior officers it was a private conversation and the order violated his right to privacy.

Borough council, at a regular meeting Sept. 12, dismissed Fuller for disobeying orders. Fuller appealed council's decision to the Civil Service Commission, but the commission upheld council's decision.

The commission said, in part, "While a police officer does not lose his right to speak freely, this right is not a totally unfettered one. Public employees' statements about internal operations are not protected. When he assumed the position of a police officer he also agreed to refrain from public discussion of certain matters pertaining to police business."

College To Swear In New President

WAYNESBURG — Dr. J. Thomas Mills Jr. will be inaugurated Wednesday, Oct. 26, as the 13th president of Waynesburg College in formal ceremonies on the college campus.

Mills, who assumed his duties as president on July 1 after serving as dean of Financial and Administrative Services at Lord Fairfax Community College in Virginia, will be inaugurated in an 11 a.m. ceremony. The college also will host a community open house at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The college is extending an invitation to the entire community to attend both the inauguration and the open house.

The inauguration will include an academic procession, with delegates from other colleges and universities attending. As a part of the inauguration, greetings will be presented by the Rev. Donald Patchel, moderator of Washington Presbyterian, Alumni Association President Ronald R. Cochran, Professor John Holleran, senior Jeff Watson, president of the student senate and board President Ewing B. Pollock.

Pollock and Dr. John P. Strange, chairman of the inauguration committee, will handle the investiture of Mills. Following the investiture, which is the ceremonial transfer of leadership of the college, Mills will make an inaugural address.

The ceremony will be held on the college campus in front of Miller Hall. In case of inclement weather, the inauguration will be held in the college gymnasium.

The open house will be held in the Benedum Student Union from 7:30 to 9 p.m., when Mills will meet alumni and friends of the college.

DR. THOMAS MILLS

Mills is the 13th president of Waynesburg College. The first president was the Rev. Joshua Loughran, who served from 1849 to 1855.

The three presidents with the longest service to the college are the late Dr. Paul R. Stewart, who served as president from 1921 through 1963 and chancellor from 1963 until his death in 1974; the Rev. A.B. Miller who served from 1859 through 1899, and Dr. Bennett M. Rich, who served from 1963 through 1974.

Mills, who was selected following an extensive search that lasted more than six months, earned his bachelor's degree in economics from Randolph Macon College, his master's degree in business administration from the University of Richmond and his doctorate in education from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Strike Hearing Is Rescheduled

WAYNESBURG — A hearing which was scheduled in Greene County Court for Friday morning on separate petitions filed by the United Mine Workers and L&J Equipment Co. has been rescheduled to 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26.

The counter petitions involved incidents at the L&J strip mine site along Route 21 in Monongahela Township. L&J employees have been on strike since July 29, when contract negotiations between the UMW and L&J president James Filiaggi became deadlocked.

Attorneys for both the union and the company were in court Friday morning and met with Judge Glenn Toothman. At the opening of court, Judge Toothman announced that they had agreed to the continuance as long as no major incidents occur on the picket line. The jurist granted it "on condition that the parties on both sides keep the peace and abide by earlier orders made by the court."

In a petition filed last Friday, the UMW asked the court to stop L&J from hauling fly ash from the West Penn Power Co.'s Hatfield Ferry power station, which adjoins the strip mine site. The union contended that the continued operation invited violence and it cited an attempt to fire-bomb a shelter erected along Route 21 by pickets as an example of that violence.

L&J subsequently filed a counter-petition in which it asked the court to reduce from five to two the number of pickets permitted on a road under the Masontown bridge which is being used by the trucks hauling fly ash. It also asked the court to hold the union in contempt of court for violating orders which restricted picketing.

In support of its petition, the company cited incidents in which three company owned or operated vehicles were damaged by stones.

Mt. Morris Bank Robbed; Morgantown Woman Held

MT. MORRIS — A 44-year-old Morgantown, W.Va., woman was arrested Monday and charged with robbing the Mt. Morris Branch of Gallatin National Bank.

Lodged in the Monongalia County Jail is Kay A. Mackley, 44, of 75 East McCartney Avenue. Her bond will be set Tuesday morning by a circuit judge.

Mackley allegedly walked into the bank at 9:50 a.m. Monday and handed teller Ruth Renner, 42, a note demanding all the money in her cash drawer. The teller complied, and the suspect then left the bank and got into a waiting car which headed south on Route 19 toward the West Virginia border.

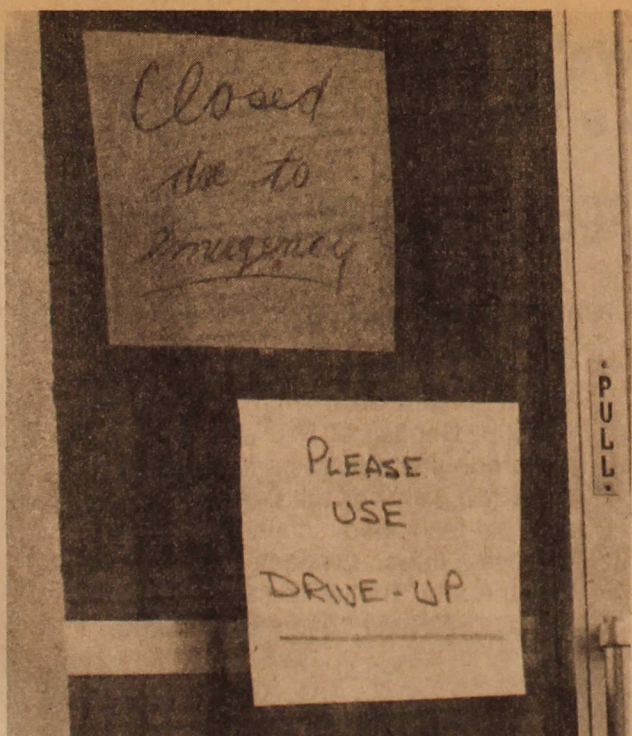

Neither bank officials nor state police would reveal the amount of money taken. According to police, no weapon was involved in the robbery.

According to reports, a witness got the license number of the getaway car which was traced to a Morgantown owner who said he loaned the car to someone a week ago.

Witnesses at the scene could not say if the getaway driver was a male or a female.

A search for the car began immediately with state police from West Virginia and Pennsylvania taking part.

Extradition proceedings were to begin Tuesday.

SE Greene Delays Meeting On Employee Contract

GREENSBORO — A special meeting of the Southeastern Greene School Board which was to have been held Tuesday night to decide the future of the district's cafeteria and custodial personnel was called off because all board members were unable to attend.

Solicitor John Stets said the meeting has been rescheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday.

"The board felt that all members should be present for this important meeting and some of them could not attend Tuesday," he said.

However, some members of the union, who showed up for the meeting last night because they were unaware that it had been canceled, charged the board with rescheduling the meeting only when it needed one member couldn't attend. That member, they charged, would have been the fifth vote to hire an outside management firm to provide custodial and cafeteria services.

The 21 employees, who are members of Local 669 of the Pennsylvania School Services Personnel Association have been working without a contract since June 30 and have been unable to reach a contract agreement with the board.

Tuesday's board meeting was called to consider the latest contract offer from the union and, if it was not acceptable, to consider the employment of an outside management firm.

The board is demanding concessions from the union employees based on offers it has received from three management firms on custodial services. Even if it accepted the highest of the three proposals, Stets said, the district could save $18,465 a year when compared with what its own employees received last year.

Stets said the board is asking the union to make concessions which bring salaries and benefits to the point where they would equal the highest cost proposal.

Ron Weaver, president of Local

669, has charged that the board's position "is an outright attempt to break our union."

At the last bargaining session, he said, he offered a wage freeze to the board but it asked the employees to accept a wage cut of $1 an hour, which was "flatly rejected" by the union members.

"The board wants our union to bear the burden of their supposed financial crisis while they freely spend money in other areas," he said.

He charged that the board has given salary increases to administrators, has paid $500 bonuses to head teachers, increased the salaries of non-union members, and has recently created a non-union position of maintenance supervisor with a substantial salary.

Stets said the board believes it is entirely a matter of economics. He added that the union has been provided with all of the district's financial records, including the proposals from the management companies, as evidence supporting the board's position.

Weaver said figures used to support the board's position do not take into account the number of employees who also are taxpayers. "If the board brings in a management firm, that firm could hire all outside help and take the tax money out of the county," he said, noting that 16 of the 21 union members are property owners in the Southeastern Greene School District.

Stets added that if the board does decide to hire an outside firm to provide the services, those who are now employed will be given first consideration for all jobs filled by the company.

If an outside firm is hired, the union local would be dissolved and the employees would have to reapply to the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board for union certification. Weaver said that process would take six months.

Farm Women Societies Meet Jointly

JEFFERSON — A combined meeting of the four Societies of Farm Women in Greene County was held at the Jefferson Baptist Church in observance of Farm Women's Day, hosted by the Morgan Township society.

Present at the signing were State President Marie Baughman, Franklin County; Naomi Bupp, York County, first vice president, and Edith Diehl, Cumberland County, second vice president.

The day was observed by the 3,967 members of societies in 17 counties.

A brief history of the founding of the Farm Women Societies was given by Dorothy Pyle, who is president of the Morgan Township society and who is currently serving as state secretary. The state treasurer is Francis Ross of Somerset County.

Mrs. Pyle said that the first society was founded Oct. 14, 1914 in Somerset County by Mrs. Frank S. Black. There is one living charter member of this society, Mrs. Ralph (Clara) Hay of Berlin.

W.Va. Man Jailed On Rape Charge

WAYNESBURG — Albert D. Rowan, 26, of Cassville, W.Va., was lodged in the Greene County Jail Tuesday after being charged with rape.

Rowan is accused of raping and assaulting a 19-year-old woman in a remote section of Perry Township on Sept. 4.

Following his arraignment before Magistrate Ruth Hughes, Rowan was taken to the Greene County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond. He will face a preliminary hearing at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 2.

Walton League Hears State DER Secretary

WAYNESBURG — Nicholas DeBenedictis, recently-appointed secretary of the state Department of Environmental Resources, was featured speaker at a dinner meeting of the Greene County Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of American held Wednesday evening at Waynesburg.

DeBenedictis was invited to discuss the various problems associated with coal mining and regulator legislation as they apply to Greene County. The discussion covered such areas as surface mine reclamation, danger to ground water, deep mining legislation, and protection from subsidence damage.

The DER secretary assured his audience that he would push for regulatory action guaranteeing landowners compensatory protection from subsidence damage, loss of well water and structural damage from

A Grenadian Exile Applauds Invasion

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Dr. Wellington R.L. Friday views Tuesday's military move into Grenada as "absolutely essential" if order is to be restored in the Caribbean.

"President Reagan will come under a lot of attack because of it, but this is a country that has been crying out for outside intervention," the Waynesburg College administrator said. "I applaud the president's response to the appeal from the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States. My concern is with the people of Grenada and what they have been suffering for the past four years."

Friday is a former senator, minister of education and ambassador-at-large of the small island nation of 110,000 people. He was in the United States on a government mission in 1979 when a Cuban-backed coup overthrew the government and resulted in the installation of Maurice Bishop as prime minister. Some of his fellow officials in the administration at that time were killed; others were jailed.

Friday has been unable to return to his country since that time and is now serving at Waynesburg College as vice president for institutional planning, research and program development.

Like many Americans, he was glued to his television set Tuesday morning as fragmented reports came in on progress of the invasion. His satisfaction with the development was mixed with fear for his brother, other members of his family, and people from the former government who are still being held in prison.

"With the carnage of the past week, I don't know who has been killed," he said. "It's a very complex situation, and I don't exactly know what group of Grenadians is behind the killing of Prime Minister Bishop."

Friday said he was able to contact his brother, Dr. Angus Friday, by telephone last week, but was unable to reach him Tuesday. "There was no answer at his home so I can only hope he was at the hospital where he is a surgeon," he said.

His brother's son, Felix, is one of four students from Grenada who are currently enrolled at Waynesburg. Others are Anita and Amanda Radix and Michael Solomon. Friday's niece, Michelle, was at Waynesburg until last May and is now a student at St. George School of Medicine in Grenada.

The Radix sisters are cousins of Kendrick Radix, who was Bishop's law partner and became a member of his cabinet.

"Sometimes we hear Radix is dead; other times we hear he is in the hospital," Friday said. "It's very difficult to get any accurate information with the way things are."

Under an exchange program arranged by Friday, two Waynesburg College students are scheduled to enroll at the St. George School of Medicine in January. Both are Nigerian students who are currently undergraduates at Waynesburg.

Friday was well acquainted with Bishop and the others who were killed last week after Bishop was ousted in a move supported by his deputy.

King Coal Considering Organizational Changes

CARMICHAELS — The King Coal Association which plans, promotes and operates the annual Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal Show in Carmichaels, is considering a new internal concept.

The proposed change was presented by association Vice President Stephen McCann and was endorsed by association President Sarah Ruth at a meeting held recently.

The association is currently comprised of representatives from the Chamber of Commerce, the Nemaquin and Carmichaels-Cumberland Township fire companies, Carmichaels Area Jaycees and United Mine Workers of America, District 4. Each organization selects 15 members to serve as directors.

McCann said he has analyzed the internal organizational problems in the 30-year-old organization when he presented his proposal to the five organizations for consideration and recommendations.

As the operating structure now stands, KCA rents the Carmichaels fire company facilities, with two exceptions, for the show. The fire company operates and benefits from the fire hall kitchen and the Nemaquin and Carmichaels fire companies operate and benefit from the bingo games at the show.

McCann's proposals for the association include:

✓ KCA should rent all facilities from the local fire company for the eight days of the show. Profits from bingo and the kitchen could help pay for the rental costs.

✓ The association would no longer be a money-maker for itself, but work only for profits for the participating organizations.

✓ After operating expenses are paid each year, the profits would be divided equally among the participating organizations.

McCann also suggested operating KCA like a corporate structure. Each organization would select two representatives to sit on an executive board and a person from each of the organizations also would serve on each permanent standing committee.

If an organization now constituting KCA does not want to participate under the new concept, if it is adopted, the door will be open for other organizations to join. But McCann stressed the plan calls for the present sponsoring organizations to have first choice of remaining.

McCann said there are no easy solutions to the problems that have developed over the years; many problems have to be analyzed and solved, but, hopefully, the new concept will bring new answers to the old problems.

Fewer Miners On The Job

WAYNESBURG — There were only 2,977 coal miners working in Greene County last year, according to a publication released this week by the Keystone Bituminous Coal Association.

The figure includes 2,502 underground miners, 262 surface miners and 213 preparation plant employees. It also represents almost 1,000 fewer jobs than the previous year.

Although there were fewer jobs, those working managed to increase coal production in Greene County by almost 1.5 million tons. Miners produced 7,573,160 tons in 1981 and 9,035,692 tons in 1982. This includes both underground and surface coal.

It was also reported that Greene County has nearly four billion tons of coal in reserve.

4-H Council Presents Awards, Selects King, Queen

WAYNESBURG — Selection of a 4-H king and queen and presentation of a number of awards highlighted the annual 4-H Achievement Night program held Saturday evening at the Greene County Fairgrounds.

The program, held by the county 4-H Council, climaxed the 1983 club year for several hundred boys and girls who are members of various 4-H clubs in the county.

Jeff Mooney and Teresa Henry were selected as 4-H king and queen. Mooney is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mooney Sr. of Sycamore R.D.1 and is a 10-year 4-H member. He is involved with projects in dairy, baby beef and swine, where he holds many teen leadership responsibilities. He is a past president of the county council, has been active in numerous 4-H events including Club Congress and Teen Leader Retreat, and is an accomplished livestock and dairy judge who excels as a fitter and showman. He received the master fitter award at the 1983 district dairy show.

Miss Henry, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Henry of Sycamore R.D.1 and a freshman at Waynesburg College, has been in 4-H for eight years and is a leader in the Market Lamb and Baby Beef clubs. She exhibited the reserve grand champion steer in 1977, the champion lightweight steer in 1978, and the reserve middleweight champion in 1981.

Senior attendants to the king and queen were Amy Osso, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Osso of Mt. Morris Star Route, who is a teen leader and a member of the county council, and Jamie Thistlethwaite, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Thistlethwaite of Jefferson R.D.1, an active member of the Swine, Baby Beef and Market Lamb clubs and a member of county council.

Junior attendants were Amy Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randy Anderson of Waynesburg R.D.2, and Ryan Mooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Mooney Jr. of Sycamore R.D.1. Both are first-year 4-H members.

The Farm Credit plaques, which go to the outstanding 4-H boy and girl in the county each year, were awarded by County Agent William Brown to Lorna Varner and Jamie Henry.

Miss Varner is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Varner of Waynesburg R.D.3 and has carried projects in Market Lamb, Sheep Breeding, clothing and leadership and has excelled in all areas, Brown said. She exhibited the grand champion market lamb at the county fair in 1981 and has competed in the regional fashion revue for three years.

Henry, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Henry of Sycamore R.D.1, has been an active member of the livestock program and county council, where he has held many offices. Brown noted that he has assumed a major leadership role in the county agricultural program and "is one of the finest livestock judges to be involved in the 4-H program in recent years."

The Danforth "I Dare You" book awards were presented to Missy Hoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hoy of Spraggs R.D.1, and to Robbie Helphenstine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Helphenstine of Wind Ridge R.D.1.

Miss Hoy has been actively involved in the home economics and market seer clubs for four years and has assumed a leadership role in her local club.

The 4-H Alumni awards, presented each year to a former 4-H club member in recognition of outstanding contributions to the program, went to Barbara Varner Curry of Cameron, W.Va., and Lew Crouse of Graysville R.D.1.

Mrs. Curry, who was in the 4-H program for 11 years, organized and continues to conduct the Ladies Lead class at the Greene County fair. She won the Farm Credit award as the outstanding 4-H girl, was the Greene County and Pennsylvania wool queen in 1978, was recipient of the livestock scholarship in 1979 and was 4-H queen in 1980.

Crouse, who showed a champion and reserve champion lamb in each of the five years he was involved in the market lamb and sheep breeding projects, is now a sheep producer raising registered Suffolk and Merino sheep.

Recognition was also given to 4-H members for their achievements during the past year at the county, district and state levels, including Anna Barchiesi, who was a member of the Washington-Greene Dairy Bowl team which won national honors in Norfolk, Va.; Tammy Cree, who was crowned in Harrisburg as Pennsylvania Dairy Princess for 1983-84; Lorna Varner, the 1984 Greene County wool queen; Rainey Rizer, who received the outstanding junior member award of the Market Lamb Club; Pam Sheets and Carol Masuga, who will be on the horse bowl team which will compete for national honors during the Keystone Livestock Exposition in Harrisburg in November; and horse and pony club members who won awards at the state horse show.

The Rev. Dan Glover officiated at the ceremony, with the Rev. Bernard Shuey pronouncing the couple as husband and wife. George Gopen was the organist and Mark and Tammy Wohlman of Morgantown were the vocalists.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wiltrott of Bobtown. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Wade of Hagans, W.Va.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

Fact and Folklore
 John O'Hara

It wasn't the most pleasant afternoon of this autumn when the Waynesburg College football team was host to the warriors of Westmoreland College on Saturday.

The weather was rainy, the field was a sea of mud, and the outcome, at least for Yellow Jacket fans, left a lot to be desired.

But it was, as always, a hard-fought game, one which was worthy of the long rivalry which exists between these two small liberal arts colleges, both of which are church related (Presbyterian), where the doors are open to young men and women of all denominations.

Both schools have a tradition rooted in the hardships faced by the pioneers who settled southwestern Pennsylvania and the values which led them to found institutions of higher learning so their children could benefit their lot.

From the very first, sports have played an important role at both colleges, and it showed again Saturday as students in the stands sang their alma maters and showed their support for their teams.

The play showed the endless hours of drudgery which must be expended on the practice field to produce the exhibition of running, passing, tackling and kicking which the teams exhibited on the game field — practice done week after week during America's fall months of almost endless beauty.

But while it is hard work, it is the crucible through which, combined with academics, young men can prepare themselves for the challenges they will face after they leave the classroom and the playing field.

For the record, Westminster won the game with the usual combination of skill and crucial turning points which makes football the fascinating game it is. Most importantly, both teams showed the courage, dedication and perseverance which have made games in the Westminster-Waynesburg rivalry something for alumni of both school to look forward to.

Memorial For Ron Duke Well-Deserved Tribute

The late Ronald J. Duke of Waynesburg received an unprecedented but well-deserved honor when the lake at Ryerson Station State Park at Wind Ridge was renamed in his memory.

Secretary Nicholas DeBenedictis of the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, who presided at the rededication ceremony last week, said that Duke was one of the best park superintendents in history of the DER.

William C. Forrey, director of the DER's Bureau of State Parks, pointed out it marked the first time a state park facility had been named in honor of a superintendent.

Duke was in his eighth year as superintendent when he suffered a fatal heart attack on March 4 while in the park office. His accomplishments during that relatively brief tenure were many.

Because of his concern, handicapped persons have complete use of the facility through special walkways, swimming pool equipment and even a special hunting area for people in wheelchairs. He was instrumental in organizing the Greene County Chapter of Open Doors for the Handicapped and was an active participant in the Handicapped Camp-O-Thon at Gifford Pinchot State Park in York County.

He was an avid promoter of alternate forms of energy who made gasohol at the park to operate its mowers and other equipment. He heated both the park equipment building and his home with solar energy, and conducted many workshops on use of various alternate fuels.

When the Department of Welfare initiated its Community Work Experience program to provide employment to welfare recipients, Duke was one of the first in the state to make jobs available, anticipating by more than two weeks an announcement by DeBenedictis that the park system would participate.

Ron Duke was a special man, and it is fitting that his memory will be perpetuated at the park he served so well.

It made the news last week that Penn State had sold the stadium seats usually reserved for the visiting band, and therefore West Virginia could not take its marching band to the big football game. It was causing no end of trouble.

But few people remember that, in 1973, Pitt was informed that West Virginia needed Pitt's band seats for its fans, and therefore Pitt's band was not allowed to go to Morgantown. It caused no end of trouble. The trouble escalated, in fact, to the point of an angry exchange of letters between the heads of the two universities.

Johnny Majors, of course, used it to his advantage. It was his first year as head coach of the Pitt Panthers football team, and he needed every advantage he could find. Pitt had not had a winning season in ten years, and had finished with one win and ten losses in 1972. But in 1973, Tony Dorsett was a freshman. He had gained 265 yards rushing against Northwestern, but Pitt had lost to Baylor and Tulane after tying Georgia.

West Virginia, under Coach Bobby Bowden, had won three and lost one, and the Mountaineers were favored to beat Pitt.

Naturally, Majors mentioned the Pitt band's problem to the team — over, and over, and over... He had West Virginia's fight song blaring on the loudspeakers all week, and warned the team about the hostile noise they would face in old Mountaineer Field. "Have poise for the noise," is what he said.

On the trip to Morgantown, the Pitt team was, uh, fired up... angry... and mean. And then something made them meaner.

Still muttering about the absence of their band, the Pitt team charged through the tunnel to the field... and stopped short as they fell over the players in front of them, the Pitt team saw that the tunnel was blocked. The Mountaineer band was standing in front of the entrance. More anger. Growls. Curses.

The team had to wait, watching the whitewash peeling off the old tunnel walls, until the band decided to move on. As they waited, they had to listen to West Virginia cheers, including, "Pitt, Pitt, go back to the woods. Your coach is a farmer and your team is no good." And other cheers not printable. But even something as mild as calling their coach a farmer was inflammatory, especially coming from Mountaineers, Pitt thought.

By the time they were able to get on the field, the Panthers had more than enough of what Johnny Majors liked to call, politely, "incentive."

By the end of the first half, Pitt was leading 14-7. The Mountaineers had suffered three costly penalties — two for interfering with a fair catch, and one for illegal motion, which caused a long pass to be called back. According to the papers at the time, "The sell-out crowd moaned and booed at length when the officials called the penalties." The Pitt band was of course not there to cheer and bang the drums, a fact duly noted by the Pitt team, again.

On the West Virginia 19-yard line, Pitt quarterback Bill Daniels was hit after going out of bounds, and a penalty put the ball on the 10, a 9-yard penalty I suppose somebody understood. Daniels then ran it in for the first Pitt touchdown. At the end of the half, West Virginia was on the Pitt eight, but Pitt then sacked the quarterback for a 13-yard loss, and recovered the ensuing fumble. It was said to be the turning point of the game.

After the half, Tony Dorsett took off for three touchdowns and Pitt won the game, 35-7. The Pittsburgh papers, not being entirely unbiased, reported that, "The West Virginia dressing room looked like a morgue." Coach Bowden was reported as saying, "Penalties killed us."

In the Pitt locker room, the players poured Mountain Dew over Johnny Majors' head as he repeated to reporters that his players had had incentive. Pitt Assistant Coach Bob Matey later told me the whole story, and explained more bluntly that, "They had a better team that day than we did that day. But they shouldn't have made us mad," he said.

I don't think West Virginia actually accused their band of losing the game, but Pitt legend has it that the bands were a factor. Whether or not history repeats itself, by the time this column appears you will know which band won the football game at Penn State.

Waynesburg Borough Celebrates Anniversary

WAYNESBURG — This month marks the 60th anniversary of the "new" Waynesburg Borough and the demise of East Waynesburg Borough — an incorporated municipality which existed for less than a quarter of a century.

Early in 1923, the Waynesburg Chamber of Commerce and several leading citizens campaigned to merge East Waynesburg with Waynesburg.

They apparently had little trouble and on July 17, the citizens of both boroughs overwhelmingly voted in favor of the merger. Citizens in Waynesburg voted 508 to 64 in favor of the move and citizens in East Waynesburg voted 212 to 54 in favor.

J.P. Donley, the burgess (as small town mayors were formerly called) of Waynesburg, called a meeting of both councils in September and the charter was signed, to become effective Oct. 1. Serving on the Waynesburg Council were C.H. Bowly, Harvey Burge and Harry Cummins from the North Ward, and J.E. DeBolt (president), John Clark and W.R. Rinehart serving South Ward.

East Waynesburg was represented by Crawford Stewart (president), Ed Tharp, John Roberts, Don Hampson, Joseph Thomas, T.F. Rinehart, Worthy K. Scott and former burgess J.M.

Weimer.

The consolidation also brought the East Waynesburg School (now East Ward School) into the borough school system as it merged the two school districts as well as the boroughs.

The merger increased Waynesburg's population from 3,600 to around 4,500, just a little less than where it stands today.

At the time of the merger, the boundary between the two municipalities was Porter Street, Liberty Street and the Purman Run road. The consolidation extended the borough limits to its present western line along Woodland Avenue. The voting precincts were realigned, with the area comprising what had been East Waynesburg being designated as Ward III in the borough.

The councils of both boroughs were correct in thinking that the timing was right for the merger when they agreed to put it before the voters, since tax levies were comparable and other factors pretty much conformed to the six-to-one ratio.

Waynesburg had $3 million in assessed valuation; East Waynesburg $500,000. Waynesburg had a borough indebtedness of $137,920 and East Waynesburg had $17,860 of indebtedness. The Waynesburg school district had a debt of $30,000, while East Waynesburg had had a school debt of $16,900. It was also noted that their streets and sewer systems were in comparable condition.

East Waynesburg had been chartered as a borough on June 17, 1901 by order of the Greene County Court on the strength of a petition presented by a majority of the residents of communities which were then called Hookstown, the Wise Addition and the Luse Addition, all in Franklin Township.

The first election in the borough was held on June 29, 1901, with Richard Phillips being elected burgess. Council members elected were Paul Kendall, Enlo Patterson, Charles Yoders, Frank Acklin, C.S. Manning, Henry Clayton and William Wilson. School board members elected were F. O. Rinehart, J. R. Pipes, William Randolph, Elza Spragg, Joseph Ingram and J. W. Iams.

The borough building was a small brick structure next to the East Ward School and is still standing.

Following the consolidation, the councils and school boards of the new Waynesburg Borough were gradually reduced through the expiration of terms, and East Waynesburg passed into history.

Planner Suggests Agency To Monitor DER's Rules

By Christie Molzon, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — The possibility of establishing a countywide sewage agency was raised at the Greene County Planning Commission meeting Monday night.

County Planner Valerie Cole said the idea for an agency to monitor DER regulations came about after her office started receiving a large number of complaints regarding sewerage about six months ago.

After an initial investigation into the matter, a meeting was held with township supervisors and 18 of the 24 local municipalities indicated a willingness to support such an agency.

Mrs. Cole said to start such a program would involve a one-time only assessment of the townships with the sewage agency supporting itself from then on. Much of the work done would be eligible for 50 percent reimbursement by DER.

Planning Commission Chairman Robert Lang said DER regulations are getting more stringent at the same time DER is making a concerted effort to enforce them. The county, he noted, needs some township supervisors familiar with DER's rules.

"What the township supervisors don't realize is that they are responsible for every septic system that doesn't operate in their township," Lang said.

Linda Kolat, assistant planner, noted that townships now are losing money by not applying for reimbursements for the sewage permits. Such an agency, she said, would also standardize permit costs and be responsible for keeping proper records. "The sewage enforcement officers aren't getting out because they aren't getting paid," she said.

Although the planning commission stressed it is only a vehicle to move the idea forward at this point and not to serve as a governing body, it did note the agency could be set up as a branch of the planning commission, with the board made up of representatives of each participating municipi-pality or from different areas of the county. The board would set its own by-laws and set its own meeting dates. In addition to hiring the sewage enforcement officers, the board would hire an administrator to set up an office to funnel the requests for sewage permits.

Mrs. Cole said she is hoping to start the project by the first of the year and will schedule a meeting in November to meet with the township supervisors again.

Also at the meeting the planning commission granted final approval to the Cedarwood Acres project in

Parade Planned

GREENSBORO — The Greensboro Volunteer Fire Company will hold a Halloween parade for children of the Greensboro area on Monday, Oct. 31.

Children are asked to assemble at the fire hall at 6:30 p.m. Following the parade through town, they will return to the fire hall for treats and the presentation of costume prizes.

County Native Elected Mayor In Tennessee

DICKSON, Tenn. — Tom Waychoff, son of former Waynesburg residents Ralph and Edna Waychoff, was elected mayor of Dickson, Tenn., last month by a wide margin over three opponents.

The new mayor, a councilman and furniture store partner in the community of 7,040, attended Waynesburg High School for two years and graduated from Dickson High School.

He is the grandson of Hazel Broadwater of Jefferson and nephew of Edward and Sara Edgar of Jefferson. A native of Lippencott, he is married and the father of a son, Doug.

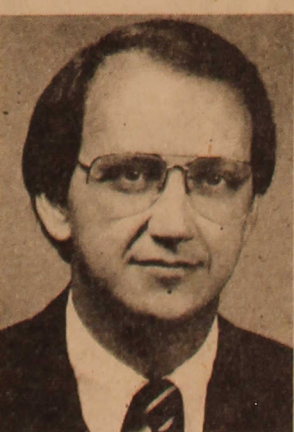

Waychoff received 877 votes as opposed to the second place candidate

Cumberland Township. Miss Kolat said the plan was initially rejected by the Cumberland Township supervisors when it created a substandard sized lot according to township zoning regulations. The plans were changed for a new lot line but the change does not affect the buildings. She also noted approval was given from the county Conservation District.

Raymond McCracken of Waynesburg, Thomas Headlee of Rogersville and Paul Boord of Carmichaels were the three nominees for the Committee for Urban Directors. Their names will be submitted to the county commissioners.

Lang and commission member Terry Grimes were appointed to serve on the board of directors of Greene County Industrial Developments Inc.

Variations were granted for Robert Newman to sell an additional 25 acres in Washington Township to Keith Martin and to Charles England for an additional one-half acre in Cumberland Township to Harry Lucas.

TOM WAYCHOFF who received 462. He was sworn into office on Monday, Oct. 3.

Plan Weekend Show At Airport

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Airmen's Association is planning a "Get To Know Your Airport" day for Saturday, Nov. 5, with Sunday, Nov. 6, as the rain date. The show will start at 1:30 p.m. and continue through the afternoon.

Members of the association are being asked to make their planes available for public inspection and to be on hand to answer questions.

"A lot of people have the opinion that the Greene County Airport is no more than a playground for a few people," association Secretary Carolyn McClure said. "We would like to change that opinion by showing the diversification of aviation."

In addition to inviting those with planes based at the airport to participate, the association expects to have others who fly into the airport on a regular basis to show off their planes.

Weather, Titans Halt Waynesburg's Hopes

By Joe Tuscano, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — The rain pelted the field incessantly, turning it into a quagmire.

The conditions deteriorated throughout the day and retaining good footing became as much an accomplishment as a long drive. The players were drenched and caked with mud and didn't at all appear very happy to be playing football in this mess.

But there was one man who smiled while all around him were rained on. Joe Fusco doesn't particularly dislike rain. In fact, he feels the rain is a personal friend, of sorts.

Fusco, the head coach of Westminster College, which by the way has one of the top defenses in the NAIA, can add real well. He knows rain, a damp field and poor footing adds up to zero offensive movement by opponents.

And when you have a defense like the Titans', well you tend not to care about a little water on the field as long, of course, as you can get a lead.

The Titans did, and used all those other factors to pick up their sixth consecutive win, a 20-2 decision over a hardy Waynesburg Saturday afternoon at College Field.

"The field conditions deteriorated as the game went on and we took advantage of that," said Fusco. "When you get a game like this, you might say Westminster played well and Waynesburg not that good, but that's just not true."

Westminster took its second-rated team and the fourth-best defense in the NAIA Division II into Saturday's game and let nature and its own talent take its course. Waynesburg, 5-2-1 overall, jumped out in front early in the second quarter when the Titans fumbled the ball at their own two-yard line. A scramble ensued and the ball was knocked into the end zone, where Westminster's Dave Martin recovered it for a safety.

"It changed hands a couple times," said Jacket head coach Bill Tornabene. "We would have liked to have had the ball where they recovered it. The big thing was, we couldn't get the score after the safety."

Waynesburg didn't get any other points after that. Westminster, on the other hand, grabbed the lead on a three-yard run by quarterback Rich Edders, which culminated a 68-yard, 10-play drive. The Titans also scored on a one-yard run by Tim Kaiser in the third quarter and a two-yard run by Ed Daley in the fourth. But it was that first score which loomed so important.

"When a team gets behind on us, they have to throw," said Fusco. "And our defense plays very well."

And Waynesburg did pass, often. Quarterback Tim Garry launched a team-record 51 passes, but only 22 found their mark for 262 yards. Four others found Westminster defenders.

"We really stopped ourselves," said Garry. "We moved the ball but we couldn't get it in. Westminster had a good defense. They're ranked in the nation but we moved the ball ourselves. The weather didn't help much."

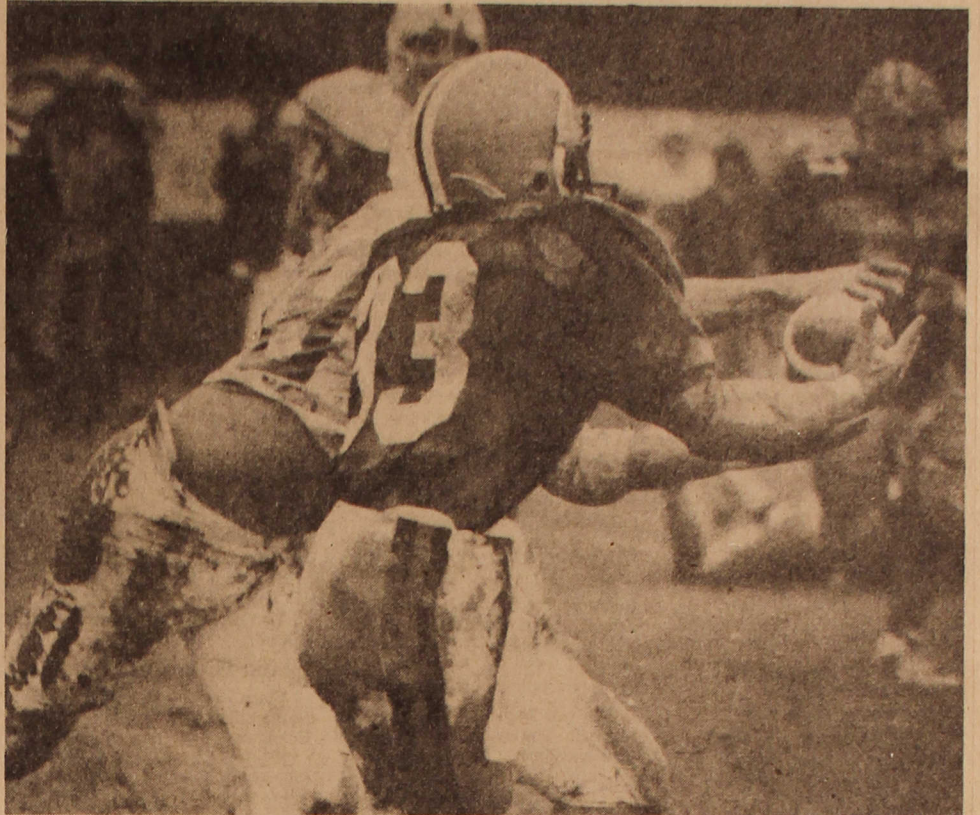

The turning point of the game came late in the third quarter with the Yellow Jackets trailing 13-2 and in control at the Titan five-yard line. On a fourth-and-goal play, Garry rolled out and tried to hit Cline Hunt in the end zone. Hunt was sandwiched between two defenders and Westminster's Tony Brown intercepted.

"It was a flood route," Garry said. "Hunt was running a sideline. . . came back inside and I was getting pressured. I just didn't have enough on it."

Waynesburg, which was ranked 20th prior to the game, could manage just 40 yards rushing and finished with 302 total yards. The Jacket defense, however, held Westminster to 292 total yards.

Otto Birkhead, the Jackets' leading running threat, was held to just 37 yards on 11 carries but caught seven passes for 79 yards. Hunt hauled in eight for 92 yards.

"I don't think we played a bad game," Tornabene said. "We just made the critical mistakes. I'm disappointed with the loss but our kids played hard. There's no loss of respect in this loss."

Otto Birkhead (33) tries to catch the ball despite efforts by a Westminster defender.

Jackets Find Selves, Success

WAYNESBURG — In the beginning, there was reason to be concerned. After all, this was a football team which would baptize a new coach as well as several inexperienced players for the 1983 season.

And at the outset, things didn't go real well for Waynesburg College. But somewhere along the line, the Yellow Jackets struck a mutual chord within themselves and have pulled themselves up by their bootstraps.

The new head coach is doing fine and he's developing talent as well as injecting a new spirit into the program. The fruits of this toil came in the form of being ranked 20th in the NAIA Division II poll prior to Saturday's 20-2 loss to Westminster, which happened to be ranked second in that same poll.

"The win over Fairmont brought this team together," said Jacket head coach Bill Tornabene, when asked to pick the turning point of the season. "It was a combined effort and that win was the jelling factor."

The Yellow Jackets took a shaky first step in the season when they tied Glenville State, 7-7. Things didn't exactly go uphill the following week as Waynesburg dropped a 21-0 verdict to Indiana (Pa.) University.

But in a tight game against Fairmont, the Yellow Jackets reached inside themselves and possibly saved the season. Down 13-0 after two quarters to the favored Falcons, Waynesburg snapped back for two touchdowns, the final one coming late in the fourth quarter.

In that game, quarterback Tim Garry established himself, hitting 17 of 27 passes for 174 yards and two touchdowns. He also completed the two-point conversion pass which sewed up the win.

"It takes time to get settled in at school and the way we play football here," said Tornabene of the California University transfer. "Now, Garry has done that."

Yet the senior quarterback is just one part of a nucleus, which has clicked for five wins, two losses and one tie to date, not to mention the ranking in the poll.

joe tuscano

"It's an accomplishment to be ranked," Tornabene says. "We've been able to achieve that and anytime you achieve a national ranking, it's a credit to the team."

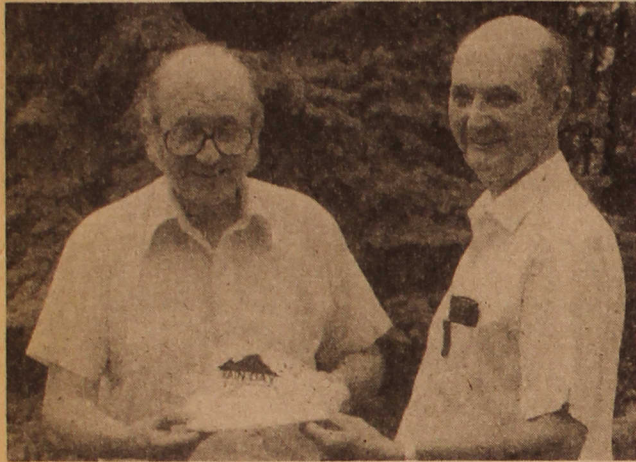

The progression of running back Otto Birkhead, split end Cline Hunt and both the offensive and defensive line has greatly improved the Jackets in a relatively short time.

"The feeling on this team is that no one is better than the other," Tornabene said. "I'm no magician or healer. I can't put my finger on just one thing. When you win, winning begets winning. Each little success here builds on itself."

While an outstanding Westminster team side-tracked the Yellow Jackets Saturday, Tornabene feels recovery will come quickly, something he may not have been so sure of earlier in the year.

"We've worked hard together and we've come together," he said. "This team has decided they want to win and they've worked hard to get there. We've taken the approach that we want to play well each week. We're disappointed in the loss but we'll be back and ready to go on Monday."

Council members, however, suggested 1984 revenue sharing funds might be used for the purchase of a pick-up truck for the borough or for furnishings needed in the proposed new borough building.

Council President Betty Morris stated that $7,238 is anticipated in 1984 revenue sharing funds, which in 1983 were used for police protection, including new police uniforms; administration, which included the purchase of a copying machine and typewriter, and support for the Fleniken Memorial Library. And $2,789 was placed in a money-market account for use in the building fund for the new municipal building.

Mrs. Morris also reported that except for the ditching, excavating for the building was completed Wednesday. The work was done by volunteers. She also said that lumber to frame the slab, electrical wiring and equipment, and all the nails needed for the building have been donated.

At the regular council meeting following the hearing, Mrs. Morris reported that the borough now has $1,615 in the general fund with no debts pending and $31,000 in money-market funds. She said work is continuing on the 1984 budget and that she wanted to clarify council's action last month when it voted to cut the mayor's salary from the 1984 budget.

She said previous councils had paid the mayor $25 per month but that payment was made incorrectly. "That must be done by ordinance," she said, "and no such ordinance exists."

She emphasized that Mayor Luella Galatic will continue to be paid until January 1, 1984, under the 1983 budget.
