Commissioner Race Highlights Greene Election

WAYNESBURG — The county commissioner race will be the major contest on the ballot in next Tuesday's municipal election.

Since Commissioner Joseph Pawloski did not run for another term, at least one new commissioner will be selected.

Democratic candidates are L. R. (Butch) Santore of Greensboro, who is running for a second term, and Dan Bailey of Carmichaels. Incumbent Richard S. Cowan Jr. and John R. Gardner, both of Waynesburg, are the two Republican candidates, with Dr. Cowan seeking a third term.

Although he is not on the ballot, Kelce Mosley of Waynesburg, who was defeated in the Democratic primary in May, is making a bid for election via sticker and write-in votes.

Voters are permitted to vote for two of the candidates, with the top three vote-getters being elected.

A number of other county offices will be filled.

Al Darney of Carmichaels, veteran clerk of courts, is seeking reelection as the Democratic candidate for that office. His Republican opponent is Ann Clausner of Jefferson.

David Coder, who won the Democratic nomination for prothonotary by defeating incumbent Charles Hogue in the primary, is opposed this time around by Republican Pauline Rice.

The only county race is for auditor, where three of four candidates will be elected. Republican candidates are incumbent Viola G. Donovan of Carmichaels and Joan Mason Spitznogle of Waynesburg R.D. Democratic candidates, both incumbents, are Betty June Long of Carmichaels and Genevieve Morrow of Waynesburg.

The other three candidates for county office, all incumbents, have no opposition, having won nomination in both the Republican and Democratic primaries. They are District Attorney Charles J. Morris, Treasurer Joseph R. Souders and Register and Recorder Thomas M. Headlee.

Poling places in the county's 48 precincts will open at 7 a.m. Tuesday and close at 8 p.m. A total of 17,180 county residents are registered to vote, including 13,379 Democrats and 3,485 Republicans.

In addition to the county offices, a number of township and borough posts are to be filled Tuesday. School board seats will also be filled in all five of the school districts in the county.

Court Declares Bus Driver Guilty Of Traffic Violation

WAYNESBURG — On May 19, the driver of a tractor-trailer coal truck was seriously injured when his rig overturned as he swerved to avoid striking a bus at the Paisley intersection of Routes 21 and 88 near Carmichaels.

In Greene County Court Friday, the driver of the bus, which was transporting people to the Opportunity Center in West Waynesburg, was found guilty of going through a red light.

Charles L. Phillips, 69, Waynesburg R.D.5, who was employed by the Greene County Association for Retarded Citizens, testified he had three people on his bus when he approached the intersection on Route 88. He said he watched the light on Route 21 and that he was sure the signal was green in his direction before he moved.

"I saw it turn yellow (for opposing traffic) and counted three seconds," he said. "I knew it would stay on red both ways for six seconds, so I counted them out and then proceeded."

Phillips said he did not see the truck, which was moving west on Route 21, until it swerved to go behind his bus and overturned.

Gerald Elliott of Dunbar, driver of the coal truck, testified he had the green light and that the bus came across the east-bound lane and into the path of his vehicle. Elliott, who appeared in court in a back brace and testified standing rather than sitting, said he suffered a broken back and a neck injury in the accident.

A key witness was Nancy J. Moats of Dilliner, whose car was behind the bus at the intersection. She said the light was still red when Phillips drove into the intersection.

The case came before the court on an appeal by Phillips from a summary conviction in a magistrate's court.

Judge Glenn Toothman upheld the magistrate's decision and fined Phillips $25 for the traffic violation.

In the case of another appeal, Judge Toothman dismissed a charge of driving too fast for conditions brought against Frank K. Ugluk, 23, Masontown.

Ugluk was one of four drivers cited by state police following an accident which occurred on Aug. 7 during a dense fog. A truck operated by Charles A. Broadwater of Jefferson R.D.1 made a left turn across Ugluk's lane of traffic. He struck the truck broadside, and his truck was subsequently struck from behind by two other cars. Broadwater was cited for making an improper turn and the other three motorists were cited for driving too fast for conditions.

Ugluk conceded that he told a state police trooper that he was driving about 50 miles per hour when questioned while at the hospital for treatment of minor injuries. He said he did so, however, because he traveled the road every morning to get to work at the Emerald Mine, and that that was the speed he generally maintained.

"I didn't think about the foggy conditions when I talked to him and I told him what I usually do," he said. "I was going much slower that morning because of the fog."

Fire Causes $20,000 In Damage

CARMICHAELS — A house on the Ceylon Road near Carmichaels was extensively damaged by fire Sunday night.

Carmichaels-Cumberland Township Fire Chief Bill Groves estimated damage at approximately $20,000 to the home of John Riley in a fire reported at 9 p.m.

Groves said he will ask the state police fire marshal to investigate the cause of the fire, which is believed to have started in the living room of the frame house. The fire chief said the family apparently was not at home when the fire broke out.

Although the house is located along a residential road, Groves said an old car was blocking the driveway to the house preventing firefighters from reaching the residence with equipment until a four-wheel drive vehicle was able to pull the car from the driveway. Although it could not be confirmed, neighbors reported it was common for the car to be left in the driveway when the family was away.

Nemacolin and Crucible volunteer firefighters were called to assist in bringing water to the scene.

Shed Burns

JEFFERSON — Jefferson Fire Chief Earl McManus estimated damage at approximately $1,000 in a shed fire shortly which occurred shortly after midnight Friday.

McManus said the firefighters received the call to the Frank Largent home in Jefferson at 12:15 a.m. Saturday. Cause of the fire was not determined.

The Jefferson firefighters were called out for a field fire at approximately 7:45 p.m. Saturday. McManus said approximately 15 acres were burned over near the Waynesburg Beagle Club property in the Homeville area.

Information Project Started By Library

WAYNESBURG — What do you know about your library?

Perhaps a better question might be, what don't you know about the library that might be useful and interesting to you?

The Greene County Library System has just begun a year-long project to attempt to find answers to these questions.

At the Eva K. Bowby Library in Waynesburg and the Flenniken Memorial Library in Carmichaels, project librarian and data coordinator Lynn Mayer is working with the staffs to survey the resources of the library system and the library needs of county residents. The survey is being funded through a Library Services and Construction Act grant from the state.

"The answers can only come from people who use the library, or who might use it if they knew about all that it has to offer," Mayer said, adding:

"We will be talking to a lot of people asking a lot of questions and we hope that a lot of information on how the library is seen by residents of Greene County will be coming our way. Any comment, favorable or otherwise, and any constructive criticism will be most welcome. In return, we will try to develop a clearer picture of what the library can and will do for you."

Mayer is a graduate of Seton Hill College in Greensburg with a degree in English and holds a Master of Library Science degree from the University of Pittsburgh. She will be assisted in the study by Jacqueline Willis of Waynesburg as clerk-typist.

Information about the survey can be obtained by calling the Bowby Library at 627-9776 or 852-1878, or the Flenniken Library at 966-5263.

She also reminded library patrons that an open house will be held at the Bowby Library on Sunday, Nov. 13, to mark the library's 40th year and its 25th year at its present location at 311 North West Street.

Rumors About YDC Fate Denied — For Now

WAYNESBURG — Persistent rumors that the state plans to close the Waynesburg Youth Development Center, or radically alter the program housed there, were denied Monday by the Department of Welfare — but with qualifications.

"There are no plans to close the Waynesburg YDC at this time," a spokesman for the department's Bureau of Children, Youth and Families said.

But Gordon Blaine, a public relations officer for the department, would not make any commitment about what might happen in the weeks or months ahead.

"That's all I'm authorized to say at this time. We can't foresee the future," he said.

People who work at the YDC admit they are worried about the possibility although they have had no official information that anything is going on.

They feel that some sort of economy move is in the offing because the number of young people in YDCs throughout the state has been declining. They feel the Waynesburg institution might be vulnerable because other YDCs are located in areas with more political clout.

"We have nothing in print, but we've received feedback from sources we regard as reliable that some sort of change is being contemplated," said Robert Headlee, who supervises non-public school programs for Intermediate Unit 1. The intermediate unit operates the school at the YDC and has 23 staff people there.

"Whatever it is it seems to be top secret," he said. "We're afraid that at some point we will abruptly be told that our contract to operate the school is being canceled."

Gloria Gugliotta, who has been chief administrator of the YDC for many years, said she has had no official word but concedes that the rumors are circulating. She said there are currently 67 young men and women at the institution, which has a rated capacity of 88, and that the census has been as low as 59 or 60 within recent months.

Young people are assigned to the YDC by courts throughout the commonwealth, with the Waynesburg YDC being the first one where a successful program was inaugurated to accept both males and females.

The institution has a staff of 112 people, not including those who work at the school for the intermediate unit.

Mrs. Gugliotta concedes that the Department of Welfare could be feeling a budgetary pinch because of the low census in YDCs, a fact which she attributes to the increase in community based programs to provide services to young people who are adjudicated as being delinquent.

She pointed out that when a county places a young person in a YDC it is eligible for reimbursement of only 50 percent of the per diem cost. When it places them in a community-based program or private institution, it receives 75 percent reimbursement.

"We feel we run a very good program here and have a plant which is superior to most others," she said. "It is one of the top-rated programs in the state. If the rumors prove to be true and the YDC is closed, it would be a severe economic blow to the county in terms of jobs and in many other ways."

Several people at the YDC pointed out that on Oct. 13, a delegation from the state Department of Corrections visited the YDC, ostensibly to inspect the girls' "secure" section of the institution.

Area Group Against Drug Abuse Formed

WAYNESBURG — Greene County will form a Chemical Abuse Task Force to coordinate local response to the national Chemical People project which was launched with an "appeal to all Americans" on Thursday of this week.

The show, co-hosted by Michael Landon, featured reports on outreach activities and all else that is happening throughout the country in preparation for additional shows scheduled for November. It concluded with an appeal to all Americans delivered by First Lady Nancy Reagan, including a postscript from the President. Greene County Chemical People co-chairmen Bonny Roche and Linda Mosier, both employees at Greene County Memorial Hospital said, "citizens in all of southwestern Pennsylvania have become more and more aware of the growing epidemic of drug and alcohol abuse through the recent Chemical People Project and the task forces that have evolved as a result," they said.

The three upcoming programs will be shown from 8 to 9 p.m. on WQED, Channel 13.

"They came unannounced and while they were there they looked over the whole place," one person said. "In the dining room they asked if it was equipped to feed 150 people," one person said. That visit, he agreed, was in large part responsible for the rumor that the Department of Corrections would be taking it over for some unknown purpose.

Another person said he had talked to an official who was at a meeting of judges and Secretary of Welfare and the secretary of welfare at which closing of the YDC was commented upon. "The judges were opposed to it," he said.

The Waynesburg YDC dates back to 1960 when the state purchased the original building from the Greene County commissioners. It had been the former Greene County Children's Home, which was closed in 1956 when the county initiated a foster home program for dependent and neglected children, rather than placing them in an institution.

The final show on Wednesday, Nov. 9, is entitled "Community Answers" and will offer hope and guidance. Communities will be given guidelines on how to form a task force.

County residents who might be interested in serving as a member of the Greene County Task Force — Chemical People Project are invited to meet with Mosier and Roche at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9. The meeting will be held in the hospital cafeteria, located on the second floor.

Following a brief meeting for organizational purposes, the "Community Answers" program will be viewed, followed by discussion and preparation of tentative plans for future task force activities.

Both Mosier and Roche stressed they will be available to provide informational services to the group. They also said that Pat Jakiel of CARE, Inc. has expressed a willingness to serve as a consultant to the new organization.

Wall Rammed

Two Waynesburg area men escaped serious injury when their pickup truck was struck by a train at the foot of South Morgan Street in Waynesburg and rammed through the wall of a brick building. Borough police said David Glenn Tuttle, 33, Waynesburg R.D.3, was traveling north on Route 218 and was speaking to a passenger, Keith Stewart, Waynesburg R.D.4, and thus did not hear the train whistle or see the flashing light at the crossing. The train, which consisted of two locomotives, caught the right rear of the vehicle, throwing it out of control. It went about 100 feet and crashed through the wall of the planing mill building of the former Acklin Lumber Co., now owned by Mark Shultz of Waynesburg. Police said Tuttle the men had some minor facial lacerations but did not require immediate treatment. Engineer of the Monongahela Railroad Co. engine was W.R. Broadwater, 61, Uniontown R.D.2.

You can't help loving this little pup. Maybe it's because he seems so out of proportion. If he somehow were able to flop those ears he might fly away.

Perhaps there is a little fellow in your home who is "all ears" in another sense... a youngster who takes in everything that's said, including some things he isn't meant to hear.

Most children are eager to listen... hungry to learn. That is why the early years are so important in the molding of a child's character. The things he hears, whether right or wrong, make a deep impression on his mind. They are soon reflected in his actions and words.

Wise parents take advantage of the Church's program of religious education in implanting those early impressions. They know there is no surer builder of character than religious faith.

NOW... while your child is eager to hear and to learn, bring him to church... and support the Church in its great undertaking.

Janet Kay Hopkins And Robert Shipman Wed

WAYNESBURG — The First Baptist Church of Waynesburg was the setting for the October 15, 1983, wedding of Janet Kay Hopkins and Robert Allan Shipman. The Rev. Richard Visser officiated at the 3 p.m. double-ring ceremony. Clarketta Simpson was the organist and Joy Rush the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a full-length gown of white organza. The bodice featured a sheer yoke with Chantilly lace forming a vee and a Mandarin neckline of Chantilly lace enhanced with seed pearls. The full skirt extended into an all lace tiered chapel length train. A matching open brim picture hat trimmed with lace and silk flowers held an imported veil of illusion.

She wore a cameo which belonged to her grandmother and pearl earrings. All bridal traditions were observed in her attire. She carried a cascading arrangement of tangerine roses, white daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath with white streamers.

Jonnie McCallister was the maid of honor and wore a peach colored gown with matching picture hat. The bridesmaids were Debbie Stephenson, Thelma Hopkins, Kim Celli of Carmichaels and Criss Morris. IU Approves Changes CALIFORNIA — Several changes took place on the Intermediate Unit I Board of Directors at its last meeting as municipal elections approach.

Jess Murray of the Connelville Area School District resigned as a member of the IU board because he did not run for re-election. A replacement may be named at the November meeting.

Janet Maxwell of the Uniontown Area School District attended the meeting as a replacement for George Smalley, also of Uniontown. Smalley had been vice president of the IU board. In his place, Keith B. Bricker, representing the Trinity Area School District on the IU board since 1978, was elected vice president.

Erma Jean Thomas of the Carmichaels Area School District sat at her first meeting replacing William Ziefel of the West Greene School District, who also resigned.

The IU also has changed the date of its meeting in November. It will be held the third Thursday of the month, Nov. 17.

The Youth Traffic Safety Council received the Governor's Traffic Safety Award during the 1982-83 school year. Robert Headlee is the adviser. Six high schools were selected by the adviser and consultants as being instrumental in the success of the program. High schools receiving plaques are California Area, Connelville Area, German, Jefferson-Morgan, Laurel Highlands and Mapletown.

The IU received a check for $2,315.71 from the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare for students residing at Western Center with out-of-state parents. It is the final payment due from the Welfare Department. The earlier payment totaled $296,219.31.

Payment of tuition for those students had been advanced by the state Department of Education and the board approved the return of those funds to the Education Department.

In other business, the board:
✓ Approved a child-rearing leave for Bonnie Hanlon and illness-disability leaves for Robyn Reihner and Sophie Racunas.

✓ Accepted the resignation of Mary Mikita as bus matron.

✓ Hired Wanita Woolery as a teacher-aide II at $6,900 for the "Hands and Mind" program at Western Area Vocation Technical School, which is paid for in part by the school districts.

✓ Approved a contract of $1,000 for a computer consultant for the Catholic schools of the IU.

✓ Approved advertisement for a frequency modulation auditory training system

Library Changes Policy

CARMICHAELS — Flenniken Library, beginning Tuesday, Nov. 1, will institute a new policy for handling overdue library books.

Because of the inconvenience excessively overdue books cause both the patrons and the library staff, a better system of control and collection will be established.

When a book is overdue in excess of two weeks the patron will receive written notice and, after another two-week period, the patron will be billed for the overdue books plus a service charge.

The average replacement cost of a book is now more than $20 and that makes it too expensive for libraries to try to replace all lost books without getting restitution from patrons with overdue books.

Today through Monday, Oct. 31, the library will be having fine-free days to allow patrons with long overdue books the opportunity to return their books before the new practice is instituted.

GARC Donation

Harold Hartger, executive director of the Greene County Association for Retarded Citizens, and Richard Machesky, director of safety for Emway Resources Inc., look over plans for the proposed GARC Opportunity Center. Machesky presented the GARC with a $500 check Wednesday for the association's building fund. Hartger said the GARC has been looking for a new building to house the opportunity center that would not only meet Department of Welfare regulations for handicapped accessibility, but would provide more room for expanding the program and for starting a vocational program. The GARC currently serves 40 people in the Opportunity Center in West Waynesburg.

County Sewerage Agency Sounds Like Good Idea

The Greene County Planning Commission has come up with a good idea in suggesting that a county-wide agency be set up to administer DER regulations governing on-lot sewerage systems.

At the present time, each individual municipality contracts with a licensed sewage engineer to issue permits for new septic systems and to investigate complaints about malfunctioning systems within their boundaries.

As a result there is a complete lack of uniformity in both permitting and enforcement. A few townships make no charge for permits; others charge as high as $200. Few of them take the trouble to do the paperwork which is needed to obtain state reimbursement. Many times the enforcement officers do not get out because they aren't sure of being paid.

County Planner Valerie Cole said the planning commission got the idea of a county-wide agency after her office began receiving a large number of complaints about malfunctioning septic systems. Commission Chairman Robert Lang pointed out that the DER is strengthening its regulations and is making a more concerted effort at enforcement, which puts an even greater burden on townships, which are held responsible for local administration of the law.

The planning commission is suggesting that the county agency be governed by a board made up of representatives of member municipalities. It would establish standardized permit fees and be responsible for keeping the records which are necessary to obtain state reimbursement, which would be available to offset as much as 50 percent of operational costs.

It would also maintain a list of available licensed sewerage inspection officers and would assign jobs to them, with payment at a standard rate for their services.

The planning commission anticipates that a one-time assessment on participating municipalities would be necessary to get the system into operation. After that, it feels, it would be self-supporting.

The planning commission hopes to hold a meeting with township supervisors later this month to obtain their authorization to proceed with the plan in the hope of having the new agency operable by the first of next year.

It would cost the townships little and would relieve supervisors of a lot of problems. Above all, it holds the promise of eliminating many of the on-lot sewerage problems which now plague county residents.

Drinking Drivers Concern Church Group

ROGERSVILLE — The Rev. Richard Hartman of Rogersville and members of the congregation of the Rogersville United Methodist Church are concerned over the number of drunken driving arrests in Greene County and the number of accidents involving drivers who had been drinking.

They plan to express that concern by placing a white cross at the side of the highway when anyone is killed in an accident in Greene County in which a drunken driver is involved.

They placed their first cross Monday along Route 21 near East View, where 16-year-old Michael Moore was killed in December of last year. Moore, a resident of Rogersville, was fatally injured when the car in which he was riding was struck headon by a motorist who subsequently pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and homicide by motor vehicle.

"That really brought home to us the tragic waste which drinking can cause," the minister said. "We don't want Mike's life to have gone in vain."

Hartman, who is pastor of the West Greene United Methodist Parish, said their concern was brought into focus with the announcement Friday that Greene County will form a Chemical Abuse Task Force to coordinate local response to the national Chemical People project.

"Alcohol and all kinds of drugs seem to be readily available to young people, and we are particularly worried about the number of teenagers who have access to them," he said. "In Mike's case it was an adult who was the abuser, but that does not lessen our fears for our youth."

He said that while he and the others involved have no intention of going back into the records to determine where there have been other fatal accidents involving drunken drivers, "we very definitely are going

County Man Is Credited With Saving More Lives

VIRGIN ISLANDS — For the second time in two years, Blair Albert of Waynesburg has been credited with saving lives while sailing in the Caribbean.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. George Albert, Blair is a former air traffic controller and is now captain of a charter boat operating out of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The latest incident occurred last May but was only made known to local residents this month.

Albert's boat was anchored in Elephant Bay in the Virgin Islands. He noticed a fire aboard a seaplane and immediately pulled alongside the burning craft.

The first person he helped to safety was Juan Luis, governor of the island commonwealth. Albert and other seamen ferried three loads of people to the shore and Blair returned to tow the disabled plane to shore.

Two years ago, Albert was involved in the rescue of two Puerto Rican fishermen in the vicinity of the Virgin Islands.

to place a cross by the roadside when any happen in the future."

The minister pointed out that in many states it is common practice to do so as a reminder to motorists about what excessive drinking can cause.

"We hope this will be the last cross we have to put up," he said.

Scouts Prepare For Expo

WAYNESBURG — Area scouts will be participating in the Allegheny Trails Council's Expo's which will be held November 12 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the David L. Lawrence Convention Center located in the Golden Triangle of Pittsburgh.

Tickets are being sold by several scout troops in the areas.

This year, Troop 1287 from Waynesburg will represent local area scouts at the Expo '83. Leader of the group is Bob Scott.

It should be recognized that monies to defray the costs of the troop's booth and display has been donated by Waynesburg College.

Tickets for the expo are available from the following scout units: Troop 1287, Waynesburg; Cub and Scout Troop 1262, Carmichaels and Troop 1168, Rices Landing, or by calling Frank Weiss at 627-6977. Cost of the tickets are $2 per family.

Election Will Result In Major Changes In Makeup Of County's School Boards

WAYNESBURG — Greene County school boards will undergo major realignment as a result of next Tuesday's municipal election.

With 33 of the 45 school board posts in the county's five school districts to be filled, there are just 12 incumbents on the ballot. The other 21 present board members either did not choose to run for re-election or were defeated in the spring primary.

One of the confusing things about the election is the fact that in some districts there are candidates who were nominated for both four-year and two-year terms. Should they be elected to both offices, they would have to opt for the term they want and the other office would be declared vacant. It would then be filled by the new school board which takes office in December.

In addition, a number of candidates who cross-filed in the spring primary won both Democratic and Republican nominations. The dual nomination gives them the advantage of getting all straight party votes, both Democratic and Republican.

A breakdown of the election lineup in each of the five districts:

CARMICHAELS AREA

Eight directors are to be elected in the Carmichaels Area School District, five for four-year terms and three for two-year terms.

There are seven candidates for the four-year terms, including incumbents Henry L. Bacon, Edward T. Tekavec and Erna Jean Thomas, each of whom won both Democratic and Republican nominations. Other candidates are James C. Hathaway, who also has both a Democratic and Republican nomination; Democrat David Carl Stuvek, and Republicans James M. Clovis and James Diamond.

There are five candidates for the two-year terms. Paul (Jerry) Fortney has both Democratic and Republican nominations. Henry L. Bacon and Edward T. Tekavec are Democratic candidates, while James C. Hathaway and Robert H. Shea are Republican candidates.

CENTRAL GREENE

The Central Greene School District, which elects its board members on a regional basis, will elect six directors, five for four-year terms and one for a two-year term. It has four incumbents who are candidates — the largest number of any district in the county.

In Franklin and Washington townships, Vonnie M. Teagarden and Archie Trader are unopposed for two seats carrying four-year terms, having both Democratic and Republican nominations. Both will be new board members.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

Many of the important offices in Greene County will be at stake in next Tuesday's election, including those of commissioners and various court offices.

Professional politicians might claim it's all a formality because of the three-to-one predominance of Democrats in the county. They might feel that the election was actually held in the spring primary, when party candidates were chosen.

But be that as it may, a political election if never absolutely decided until the last votes are cast and the official count becomes inscribed on county records and final recording in the state archives in Harrisburg.

Then and then only does it become a reality, although in actual working of the system the competency of most election officials are such that seldom are they ever subject to any significant correction.

The many safeguards built into the election system have been refined and double checked for so long that post-election appeals seldom have to be resorted to do settle an occasional squabble.

The election of those holding county offices is much more important than most of the public realizes. Looking in from the outside, it's difficult to evaluate the important role played by such people as the clerk of courts, who must keep all the records of the criminal court; the prothonotary, his counterpart for the civil courts, and the register and recorder, who is responsible for the recording of deeds, mortgages and many other official documents.

All of them bear a heavy burden of responsibility and must be competent people. If they aren't, the courts could be fouled up within a matter of weeks.

And there is no doubt about the importance of county commissioners if the county is to have progressive and responsible government.

As a daily observer — almost — of the county government process, it has been my experience that most of the elected officials and the people they have appointed to work with them have been just that — able and competent. This has been true particularly since passage of the legislation many years ago which equalized women with men, not only in voting but in holding public office.

In many ways the first women appointed to clerkships or deputies in courthouse jobs not only performed their duties with competence, but did it better than many of the men who had preceded them.

Some of those in the "outside public" seem hooked on the idea that just because it is a government job, either elected or appointive, it is a gravy train. The truth is that such jobs demand the same competence, diligence, responsibility, good judgment and honesty that positions in the private sector demand.

Without these people, no court system could function and the most silver-tongued of attorneys would be laboring for naught.

It therefore behoves all of us to go to the polls next Tuesday and elect the best people possible for these important positions.

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

Two of our readers, Mr. and Mrs. Max Beall of Hermitage, Pa., report that their son, Dr. Charles Beall of Sharon, has called an interesting article to their attention from an issue of "Yankee Magazine."

The article, written by the magazine's real estate reporter, speaks about an authentic log cabin he visited near Conway, N.H. — a cabin which was reported to have been built about 1800. To quote:

"As it turned out, the cabin was built from trees that once grew in Waynesburg, Pa. That's where this long cabin was originally built at the time John Adams was president of the United States.

"The builder and original owner was a John Villers who raised 16 children in it. Then in 1979, a sixth-generation descendant of John Villers, present owner Richard Haven, bought it, disassembled it, and re-constructed it about a mile and a half from the Madison, N.H. post office.

"While Richard Haven did a considerable amount of restoration work on it at the time of reassembly, it still has the original log beams, stairs, paneling, cupboards and flooring."

The writer noted that the cabin had a large living room with fieldstone fireplace, a modern kitchen with stove, refrigerator, two bedrooms upstairs, a downstairs bathroom, a full bathroom and six acres of land. The asking price, incidentally, was $63,000, but, as the writer pointed out, there aren't too many authentic 1800 log cabins around.

Mr. and Mrs. Beall not they have been residing at Hermitage for five years. Both were born and reared in Greene County — Mr. Beall at Davistown and Mrs. Beall near Greensboro.

Now that Halloween is out of the way, with all of its little trick or treaters and costume parades, county residents will be getting ready for Thanksgiving. And then Christmas is not far behind. Waynesburg will be holding its annual Christmas parade on Saturday, Nov. 26.

Incidentally, the Greene Academy at Carmichaels will be holding its annual Christmas craft show on Saturday, Nov. 19. It's always a nice affair.

The inauguration of Dr. Thomas Mills as president of Waynesburg College was held last week and was a very nice affair.

The new president continues to impress and from all we hear things are really beginning to turn around at the college. It's obvious that everyone in the college family and in the community wishes him well.

People who are interested in library services in Greene County will soon have an opportunity to take part in a survey designed to pinpoint ways in which those services can be improved. The year-long study is being funded through a Library Services and Construction grant from the state.

The Bowlby Library at Waynesburg will be marking its 40th anniversary and the 25 anniversary of its move to its present location in the former Bowlby mansion with an open house on Sunday, Nov. 13.

County Plans To Spend State Grant On Food

WAYNESBURG — A tentative plan for use of a $36,187 grant which Greene County will receive to purchase food for the unemployed and other needy persons was presented to the county commissioners at their meeting Thursday.

The grant from the state Department of Agriculture represents the county's share of $8 million appropriated by the General Assembly for fiscal 1983-84.

Following state guidelines, Greene County would allocate 57 percent of the purchased food for distribution to the estimated 2,200 unemployed county residents and their families, and 38 percent to non-cash-grant food stamp recipients and Medical Assistance recipients. A maximum of five percent of the grant would be used for transportation and storage of food which is purchased.

Herbert A. Cox, chief clerk to the commissioners, and Barbara Coccarri, coordinator of the Greene County Food Bank, will coordinate the program, being responsible for its design, approval of all expenditures, and assurance of proper documentation and food storage and delivery.

A local advisory committee comprised of representatives from the Salvation Army, Red Cross, Greene County Ministry, Catholic Conference, Community Action and United Way would define "needy" and establish eligibility for receipt of the food.

As now planned, the distribution would be handled through centers throughout the county which are now being used for the distribution to the unemployed of government surplus food.

The county plan will be submitted to the Department of Agriculture for its approval. Cox said the county has not yet been notified on when the program will get underway.

The commissioners were also notified that a new program which will provide homemaking services to eligible clients over the age of 18 will get underway in the near future, funded by a grant of $24,000 by the Department of Welfare.

It is intended primarily to provide in-home care for elderly individuals following their discharge from hospitals.

The county program will be administered by the Washington-Greene Community Action Corp. and is titled "In-Home Services - Demonstration Project." Bob Mt. Joy, CAC senior services manager, has scheduled a meeting for Wednesday, Nov. 9, to outline the program in detail to representatives of various agencies which have clients which could use the service.

William Morris of Waynesburg was appointed by the commissioners to serve as a private industry representative on the Washington-Greene Human Services Advisory Commission. An insurance agent, he will replace Frank Bogan, a West Penn Power Co. official who was recently transferred from Greene County.

The advisory commission works with Henry R. Fiumelli, Washington County director of human services, who is responsible for administration of the federal adult services block grant in the two counties. The grant is used to operate information and service centers for the unemployed.

Waynesburg College's New President Inaugurated

WAYNESBURG — Dr. J. Thomas Mills Jr. dedicated himself to the future of Waynesburg College at his inauguration Wednesday as the 13th president of the 135-year-old institution.

The outdoor ceremony was held in front of Miller Hall before a large audience including members of his family, administration and faculty, trustees, alumni, students, representatives of other colleges and residents of the community.

"My mission here is to provide the leadership necessary to identify, plan for, implement and evaluate that portion of the broad spectrum of higher education Waynesburg College can do best, and to pursue that course with vigor and determination to assure a viable institution in which there is an attitude and atmosphere conducive to teaching and learning, and which provides the quality education which challenges students to excellence and to reach their highest potential," he said.

"I pray to God for the strength and wisdom to do just that, and I ask you to join me in this mission through your help and your prayers and your support."

Mills assumed the office of president on July 1, coming to Waynesburg College from Lord Fairfax Community College in Virginia, where he was dean of financial and administrative services.

He was formally invested as president by Ewing B. Pollock, chairman of the board of trustees, and Dr. John P. Strange, chairman of the inauguration committee.

Expressions of support were given by the Rev. Donald Patchel, moderator of the Washington Presbytery; Ronald R. Cochran, president of the Alumni Association; Joy McClurg, executive vice president of Student Senate, speaking for students; John S. Holleran, professor of history, on behalf of the faculty; and Pollock, speaking for the board of trustees.

Mills briefly reviewed the history of the college and observed that it has frequently weathered difficult times.

"Some would say Waynesburg and other small, independent colleges can look forward to even more hard times," he said. "But Waynesburg has had a habit of surviving, and it is my guess that it will not only continue to survive, but will prosper."

He pointed out that the college experienced an 11 percent increase in enrollment this year and said that he feels a student body of 1,100 students is an appropriate enrollment goal — a goal which he is asking trustees, alumni and friends of the college to help achieve.

He said that while the college is excited about the continued strength of its traditional programs, it is particularly pleased with response to the new Master of Business Education program, a degree program in nursing which was approved Tuesday by the faculty and which will be submitted to the State Board of Nurse

Examiners in November, and relatively new programs in communication arts and media studies and visual communications.

Mills said he feels there is an urgent need for an increase in endowment and total fund-raising efforts, adding that plans are being developed to launch a five-year effort to add $9 million to the college endowment fund. He said that Dr. Bennett M. Rich, a former president of the college, has agreed to serve on the endowment fund steering committee.

Other goals he has set:

- Improvements to college buildings and facilities and increased attention to maintenance and upkeep.
- Increased participation of alumni in college activities, recruiting and financial support.
- Improved relations with, and support from, the church.
- Appropriate salaries and benefits for faculty, staff and support personnel — something, he noted, which the college has been unable to address in the past few years.
- Development of a long-range plan which would include evaluation of policies, mission, curriculum and personnel on a regular basis to assure quality education and efficiency.
- A total college effort to strengthen the relationship between the college and the Waynesburg community.

"None of these objectives can be accomplished without a sense of mission, a constructive and positive attitude, self expectation, hard work and an active desire to be dis-tingutive," he said.

The inauguration ceremony was followed by a luncheon. An open house and reception were held Wednesday evening.

Mills was selected as president following an extensive search that lasted for more than six months.

Waynesburg College Adds To Nursing Department Faculty

WAYNESBURG — Dr. Sue Reitz, an assistant professor in the Duquesne University School of Nursing since 1981, has joined the Waynesburg College faculty in its newly-created Department of Nursing.

Dr. Catherine Malloy, director of nursing at Waynesburg College, announced the appointment Thursday, noting that Dr. Reitz has a great deal of practical experience in the field of nursing as well as outstanding academic credentials.

"Dr. Reitz has taught for several years in a university setting and has worked as a staff nurse and a supervisor," Dr. Malloy said. "With her background, she will help students at in the college Department of Nursing to focus on their career goals."

Dr. Reitz, who earned her doctoral degree in education and curriculum supervision from the University of Pittsburgh in 1982, has been working on the development of curriculum for the program being developed at

Action On Contract Delayed

By Christie R. Molzon, Staff Writer.

MAPLETOWN — The Southeastern Greene School Board bowed to pressure Monday night and agreed to delay any action on the non-professional contract until the December meeting when a new board will be seated.

That decision came at a special meeting called to consider the future of 21 members of Local 669 of the Pennsylvania Schools Services Personnel Association (PSSPA) who have been working without a contract since June 30.

The board had been considering contracting out the cafeteria and custodial services and had offers from three firms. Representatives from those firms attended the meeting as did members of the non-professional union, members of the teacher's union, candidates for the school board and other concerned citizens.

The meeting lasted close to two hours and often became heated, with members of the non-professional union accusing some board members of being anti-union and directing sharp words at those who belong to the UMWA.

What the board finally agreed to do was what Robert Headlee, a former board member and one who is running for the position now, asked it to consider early in the evening — to wait until the new board got organized and let it look at the situation.

Agreeing with him was Terry Ganocy, who is also running for school director. "We're asking a small favor compared to what you asked the board when you took over," he said, referring to when the school board of 1977 was enjoined from making any decision on construction of a new elementary school until the men against the proposed school came on the board.

Responding to charges, board member Floyd Hornick said the board was not trying to break up the union or get rid of just a few individuals but to try and save the district some money. "If you want a contract you meet our concessions and you've got it," he said. "Stop trying to stall until the new board comes on."

PSSPA Field Representative Mary Jane Tretinik said the union wants to continue bargaining and is requesting a mediator be present. She reiterated the local's offer to consent to a wage freeze. However, the board said it had not received the new proposal of a wage freeze and was still working off the one presented in September.

Speaker Explains Rotary's Code

WAYNESBURG — The Rotary International Code of Conduct for Rotarians throughout the world was the topic of the Waynesburg Rotary Club meeting Monday presented by the Rev. Richard Visser, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Waynesburg.

"The Rotary ethical code, known as the four-way-test," Visser said, "is comprised of four questions which, when answered by the individual Rotarian, cover the key elements of Christian living as espoused by the apostles themselves in the earliest days of Christianity."

Is it fair to all concerned? Will it build good will and better friendship? Is it the truth? Will it be beneficial to all concerned? Visser commented on the relationship with Biblical teachings, particularly as noted in the writings of the Apostle James.

"There can be no doubt that these questions, known as the Four-Way Test, provide each Rotarian a personal conduct guide, both in our business or profession and in our social circles enriching our own lives and the lives of those around us," he said.

Pastor of the First Baptist Church since April, Visser is a native of the Boston area.
