State Court Orders New Trial For Local Man

WAYNESBURG — The state Superior Court has ordered a new trial for a Waynesburg man accused of stealing four guns from a Blacksville residence in October 1981.

Malachi R. Vernon of Waynes-burg, who was sentenced to 10 to 20 years in Western Penitentiary in Pittsburgh for the crime, was granted a new trial based on the commonwealth's refusal to name confidential informants.

Vernon will remain in prison during the appeal because he is serving time for a conviction not related to the Blacksville burglary.

According to the Superior Court decision, Vernon is accused of helping Larry Huff burglarize the home of Robert Wise, Huff's uncle. Three rifles and a shotgun were stolen.

Testimony states that Vernon sold a gun to David Hopkins of Waynes-burg. A few days after the alleged sale, Vernon was arrested on charges of burglary and receiving stolen

Vernon had testified "he was the Vernon had testified he was the victim of a conspiracy between Larry Huff and David Hopkins," according to the Superior Court decision. Vernon accused Hopkins of being the accomplice in the burglary.

"He intended to prove that Hopkins either committed the crime for which (Vernon) was charged or was fully apprised of the details of the crime, including the identity of the actual felon," states the Superior Court decision.

That's where the identity of the informant becomes crucial to Ver-non's defense, according to Vernon's former attorney David Pollock. Pollock has since been replaced by attorney William Nalitz.

U.S. Steel's Ownership Of Coalbed Gas Affirmed By Court's Final Decree

WAYNESBURG - Acting in compliance with an order by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, the Greene County Court Tuesday issued a final decree which bars the recovery of methane gas from coal seams by anyone other than the owner of the Specifically, the decree affirms the ownership by U.S. Steel Corp. of methane gas imprisoned in Pittsburgh seam coal underlying tracts of Greene County land owned by Jessie Lee and Harvey C. Cowan, Mary Jo Hoge, and Harry A. and Donis A.

The case, which dates to 1978, commanded the attention of both the coal 'industry and the oil and gas industry because it was the first to question the ownership of coalbed

It was instituted by U.S. Steel to block Mary L. Cunningham, owner of Kinloch Development Corp., from extracting gas from its coal seam under a lease obtained from the owners of the surface land

In 1980, the Greene County Court rejected U.S. Steel's contention that methane was an integral part of the coal and therefore belonged to whom-ever owned the coal. It upheld the right of the surface owners to include methane in negotiating oil and gas

The Pennsylvania Superior Court subsequently sustained the position of the county court, but on Dec. 22, 1983, the Supreme Court reversed both the county court and the Superior Court, ruling that the gas belongs to the owner of the coal. It directed that the Greene County Court reverse its final

Central Greene Cafeteria Workers Receive Raise

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG - Prompted by a dramatic turnaround in the financial condition of the district's school lunch program, the Central Greene School Board Tuesday approved a 25-cent-an-hour pay increase for its food service employees, retroactive to Jan.

The raise for the seven full-time and 11 part-time employees comes nine months before the school district would have been required to negotiate with the employees under a wage reopener clause which was included in the contract negotiated last year with the Central Greene School Service Personnel Association.

At that time, when other service employees were given raises of 50 cents an hour, the food service em-ployees accepted a wage freeze beployees accepted a wage freeze be-cause of losses being sustained by the cafeteria program. They did so with the understanding they could nego-tiate for a raise to be effective with the start of the 1984-85 school year.

"The board felt it should show its appreciation to the employees for the good job they have done this year by giving them part of the raise at this time rather than waiting until fall," business manager Walter Stout said.

Under the agreement, the employees will receive another 25-cent-an-hour raise at the start of the fall term.

He said that under the leadership of Sue Woods, who was appointed food services director at the start of the current school year, the cafeteria program has turned around to the point where it is currently showing a $12,000 profit for the school year, as compared with a $33,000 loss experienced in the 1982-83 school year.

That was the first year the district initiated its new a la carte school lunch program after withdrawing from the federally-subsidized National School Lunch Program at the end of the 1981-82 school year. It did so because the district had experienced. because the district had experienced a program deficit of $90,000 in that year as a result of having to provide fixed-menu lunches which met federal guidelines.

ARA Food Services, which had a contract with the district to operate the cafeteria program, continued in that capacity in 1982-83. But with the start of the current school year, the district decided to operate its own program, at which time Mrs. Woods was named food services director.

"We gave up our federal subsidies when we dropped out of the national program, but it has worked out very position he now holds, but that the matter is still not finalized.

In other matters, the board named Howard Brunell as head coach of the boys' track team to succeed Don Roddy, whose resignation was accepted at the meeting.

The resignation of Barbara Ruschak as colorguard and majorette sponsor was accepted, effective at the end of the school year. A maternity leave was granted to Carol A. Yohe, effective April 12 and continuing to the end of the term.

The board also:

Was informed by state Sen.
Barry Stout that approval of Governor Thornburgh's budget in its present form would increase the district's basic subsidy payment by $159,000 to $3,063,710.

Rejected a grievance filed by the Central Greene Education Association following an executive session at which it was discussed, in-dicating that its contract with the teachers' association barred it from revealing the nature of the grievance.

Authorized the solicitation of bids for the property/liability/auto insurance package.

Greenway Growth Means Jobs

NEMACOLIN - Donmoor Corp., parent company of Greenway Manufacturing Co., has announced plans that could double the employment at its Nemacolin plant.

According to James Rush, regional manufacturing manager for Donmoor, the company will re-engi-neer the plant, train its employees and recall substantial numbers of operators.

"In response to improving sales for Donmoor," Rush said, "We're converting this 7,500-square-foot building from a small speciality woven goods operation to a higher-volume plant for stitching knitted goods. I'm happy to say we're shooting for as many as 80 employées at Nemacolin which could double the current number of jobs."

He added that present operators are being retrained as new equipment is moved into the plant. More operators will be recalled in the near future, both from Nemacolin and from nearby Waynesburg.

At this time last year, Greenway announced the first major layoff in the 35-year history of the firm in Greene County.

Blaze Destroys House: Two Firefighters Hurt

ROGERSVILLE — Two Center Township volunter firefighers were injured in an early morning fire Sunday that destroyed an eight-room frame house located along T-511 approximately one mile north of here.

Treated at Greene County Memo-rial Hospital were Randy Clark, 21, whose left shoulder was burned, and Doug Mitchell, whose feet were burned. Center Township Fire Chief Robert Crouse said Sunday that Clark's shoulder burns had blistered at the scene and that Mitchell's in-juries seemed less severe.

Crouse said the unoccupied house.

which was being remodeled by its owner Robert R. Stockdale, was engulfed in flames when they arrived.
The call was received at 4:10 a.m.

Stockdale, who lives nearby, no-ticed the fire when he was awakened by his dog barking, the fire chief said. Crouse said the fire will be in-vestigated to determine a cause.

No estimate of loss was made, but Crouse said it would probably be considerable since it was a large house and he was told by the owner using in the remodeling work and

Splits Cancer Blame By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

- A verdict which pleased none of the parties was returned by a Greene County Civil Court jury Thursday night in the medical malpractice suit brought by Mrs. Alyce Scattaregia of Prosperity R.D.2 (Ruff Creek) against two Waynesburg physicians, Dr. Shin Shen Wu and Dr. Thomas Mering.

WAYNESBURG

It found that negligence on the part of both the physicians and Mrs. Scat-taregia was responsible for the ninemonth delay she experienced in receiving treatment for a malignant breast tumor. They assessed damages at $25,000 and those of her husband, Joseph R. Scattaregia, at $5,000 - a verdict which attorneys on both sides considered to be a token

The case went to the jury of six men and six women at 11:30 a.m. Thursday following the charge by Judge Glenn Toothman. The verdict was returned shortly after 9 p.m. to conclude a trial which had lasted 10

The 57-year-old plaintiff contended that the two physicians had mis-diagnosed her breast tumor in May and July of 1980 and that as a result she did not undergo breast surgery until March of the following year after she had gone to another physician. She contended that the delay reduced her chances for successful treatment, with the result that the cancer spread throughout her body leaving her with a terminal illness Both physicians denied that Mrs. Scattaregia had ever complained of the ailment and both denied that she had ever asked them to examine her

In responding to the complex verdict form required in such cases, the jury found that negligence on the part of the two physicians and on the part of Mrs. Scattaregia was a substantial factor in the harm she suffered. They also found that Dr. Wu and Dr. Mer ing were each responsible for 25.5 percent of that harm and that 49 percent of the harm was attributable to Mrs. Scattaragia herself.

Given those percentages, each of the physicians would be responsible for payment of $6.375 of the $25,000 in damages the jury felt she was entitled to receive as a result of the harm she The jury also awarded $5,000 to the plaintiff's husband, but it was unclear

Outstanding Student Makes College Proud

By Christie Molzon, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG - A Waynesburg College student, confined to a wheelchair since a car accident five years ago, has been named an "Outstanding Adult Student in Higher Education' in Pennsylvania

Rebecca Henderson of Carmichaels, who is a senior at Waynes-burg, is one of 10 students in the state to receive the award, given annually by the Pennsylvania Association for Adult Continuing Education.

Ms. Henderson was given the award at a luncheon held in her honor Friday in Benedum Hall and attended by a number of her friends, her daughter, Toni, teachers and administrative personnel from the college, and state Rep. Bill DeWeese.

Charles Beiter, director of the Act 101 program at the college, introduced Ms. Henderson and said he first became friends with her when she decided to attend Waynesburg College in the fall of 1977. Beiter noted at the time she was an older student in classes with mostly 18-year-olds, and also a single parent. "That in itself was a difficult task," Beiter said, "but she did very well that first

But in August 1978, her car ran off a road and struck a tree, leaving her without the use of her legs. She wanted to continue with her college education so, from Harmarville Re- major and has served as an English

A number of changes had to be made by the college in order for Ms. Henderson to attend classes. Special parking spaces for the handicapped were defined, ramps leading into the Buhl Humanities Building were built and changes made in the restrooms. If anyone dared to park in the handicapped space reserved for her, Beiter made it a point to "chew him out."

"There have been a whole series of small steps we have taken at this institution because of Becky," Beiter said. "But very quickly we found the rewards we got from Becky were far greater than what we could give to her. She has been very inspirational to the students.

Beiter noted any complaints from students about being overworked, or too tired, could always be answered with, "Look at Becky Henderson, she has a child at home, all the housework to do and she's in a wheelchair." On top of that, she has maintained a 3.7 grade point average.

In accepting the award, Ms. Henderson thanked her friends, teachers and fellow members of Avant Garde, an organization for non-traditional students, saying, "I couldn't have done it without you."

Stanley, Jackets Bounce Back

By John Barker, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG - As relief goes, Alliance College's basketball team ranks right along side Rolaids any day. The Eagles, 3-18 overall, provide just what most teams need — an easy, confidence-building win.

Waynesburg College, coming off a loss that snapped its 12-game winning streak, having three players leave the team and another one battling the flu, needed some relief. Alliance was the perfect prescription.

The Yellow Jackets crushed Alliance, 104-71, in a District 18 game Saturday afternoon at College Gym and by the looks of the result, all's well in Waynesburg.

Junior Paul Stanley, who was sick

Wednesday, snapped back into shape with a splendid game. The 6-5 Stanley scored 19 points and grabbed six re-bounds despite feeling drained after losing 15 pounds.

losing 15 pounds.

"I felt weak but I wasn't too worried because I felt all right in practice yesterday," Stanley said while dressing after the game. "I think losing the weight might have made me a little quicker but I did lose strength and reserve. I rested in bed all last week and that helped me a lot.

"I felt my timing was off a bit like when I got the couple walking calls. I really had to concentrate after that."

Stanley's concentration was in perfect form on a spectacular layup

Stanley dribbled down the left side of the lane, went up with the ball in his left hand and switched over to his right before dropping the ball over a defensive player for the score.

"I came on the left side to make the move and their guy cut me off," said Stanley, who is a natural lefthander. "I had to switch hands and I finger rolled the ball in. I've done it before so I wasn't surprised."

While Stanley wasn't surprised, Alliance seemed shell shocked. The Eagles trailed 20-8 early in the first half and watched Waynesburg build the lead to 49-32 at halftime on an array of breaks and dunks.

Waynesburg head coach Rudy

he said. "They could easily have said that only four teams can qualify."

the effort. Just last week freshmen Mark Starling and Owolabi Folami and junior Ernie Mills were dropped from the team. And with Stanley sick, the possibility of having just nine players faced Marisa. "It was a little hard to predict how we would play right after the loss and playing a team that's having their troubles winning," Marisa said after watching his team improve its record to 17-5 overall and 12-2 in the district. "I'm glad we played a crisp game.

I'm trusting my team more and more each day."
Senior forward Roosevelt Kirby led the Jackets with 21 points and 11 rebounds while freshman Harold Hamlin added 19 points and seven rebounds. Senior center Mark Dop-pelheuer played one his best games Saturday scoring 13 points and grab-bing seven rebounds. Point guard Ray Natili, who scored 11 points, dished out 17 assists while running the Jackets' fast break.

"We do use the fast break," Marisa said, "Today it fell together. It was certainly one of our top fastbreaking performances. The win came at a good time because we're approaching the playoffs and it's a good time to be feeling good about

Alliance, now 2-13 in the district, was eliminated from the playoffs with the loss. Forward Tom Malush led the Eagles with 23 points, Steve Stallone had 13, Tim Walker 12 and Dow Mis-

"They have too much firepower. they're too big. We got off on a poor start and they shot well. You name it," said Alliance head coach Ted Haluch. "We have to do everything right against them to win. We had turnovers, didn't shoot well and didn't box out. They have the horses.

Despite protests from coaches and officials, the NAIA has stood by its demand that District 18 grant seeded teams the home-court advantage throughout its upcoming basketball

The ruling means Waynesburg College could play as many as three post-season games, including the district championship, at College Gym. The Yellow Jackets clinched the regular-season title and No. 1 seed Mon-district's initial playoff proposal, which called for seeded teams to play home games only in the first round. The semifinals were to be played at Geneva College; the finals at a neutral site.

Because the change was ordered more than two months after the district submitted its original plan, district chairman Ted Haluch, basketball chairman Buzz Ridl and seven of the eight playoff-bound coaches asked that their original proposal be re-tained. But NAIA associate executive secretary Dr. Charles Morris said the financial advantages of holding play-off games at home sites make the

If there is a bright side to the change for those against it, Haluch said, it is that the NAIA did not alter the number of district teams that qualify for post-season play. There are nine schools in District 18, and

West Greene May Sell One-Room School

ROGERSVILLE — A one-room schoolhouse still owned by the West Greene School District, but unoccupied for 25 years, may be sold.
At its regular meeting Thursday night, the board agreed to seek bids for the sale and removal of the Crouse tween Waynesburg and Rogersville.

It is the board's understanding that the land the school sits on belongs to John McNay and, if the school is sold, that land will revert to the owner. Therefore the board agreed to advertise that the sale of the school will necessitate the buyer's removal of the building.

The possibility of having the building restored was raised and Byron Hughes, advisor to the school's FFA chapter, who noted the club had once discussed remodeling the school for its historical value. Twenty years ago the West Greene Lions Club had also made plans to renovate the school.

However, the board noted that previous efforts have not been lasting since the school is located on a busy road and is often vandalized.

The brick schoolhouse was built around 1900 and used until 1959 when the West Greene High School was constructed. The old classroom furniture has been removed from the building and one board member said it may have been donated to the local

YDC Center To Close June 30

WAYNESBURG — Although the Waynesburg Youth Development Center will continue operating until June 30, the person who has served as its administrator for almost 20 years has been relieved of her post.

Gloria Gugliotta confirmed Mon-day that she has been transferred to the Department of Welfare's western region office in Pittsburgh. She will serve temporarily as a consultant for the establishment of a program for girls at the New Castle YDC.

Girls who remain at the Waynesburg facility when it closes are sched-uled to be transferred to New Castle, which has always been a facility for

Robert Stefan, who at one time worked at the Warrendale YDC, has been transferred from the regional office to Waynesburg to serve as interim administrator.

The Welfare Department's Office of Children, Youth and Families, which has operated the Waynesburg YDC since 1960, announced several weeks ago that it will be necessary to close the facility in a move to consider the constant of the const solidate operations because of declin-ing YDC use throughout Pennsylvania. Plans are being made to turn over the property to the Department of Corrections, which will convert it into a facility for short-term adult

State officials, at that time, said the 112 employees at the YDC will be given an opportunity to participate in a Department of Corrections training program in the expectation that 123 people would be required to staff the adult correctional facility.

Employees said they expect to re-ceive formal furlough letters within the next week which will advise them of their options if they want to remain the Department of Welfare. Counselors and others on the professional staff are members of the Pennsylvania Social Service Union (PSSU). Secretaries, houseparents and service personnel are members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees

Also up in the air is the future of the 23 people who teach and work at the YDC school. They are employed ates the school under contract with the Department of Welfare.

Historical Society Board Accepts Resignations

WAYNESBURG — The resigna-tions of three board members of the Greene County Historical Society were accepted, with regret, at a meeting of the board Monday night.

However, no action was taken on the Jan. 31 resignations of the administrator and the assistant administrator. Those resignations had been referred to the board's executive

Raymond McCracken, president of the historical society, had sub-mitted his resignation for health reasons. His resignation, along with that of Myers Crane, second vice-president, and James Caldwell, a board member, were accepted. At the meeting board members noted it was their understanding that McCracken and Crane had resigned from their re-spective offices but were not resign-ing as members of the historical soci-

Approval was sought to use Title I, Chapter I monies for computer equipment in the remedial math and reading programs on the elementary level. Elementary Principal Bill Throckmorton said there is $165,490 allocated for the program and the money must be spent by March 31.

Board President Rick Barnhart said he objected to purchasing computers for the elementary school and that the board had previously agreed to confine its computer program to the secondary level only. After it was noted the equipment would be only for the remedial programs, the program was approved. In a related matter, the board noted it would continue its investigation into the district's com-puter classes at a workshop meeting next Thursday evening.

The following people were added to the substitute list: Linda Correll of Holbrook R.D.1, public school nurse certification; Penny Hughes of Holbrook, custodian and cafeteria aide; Elizabeth Vellenoweth of Wind Ridge R.D.1, English; Debbie Tustin of Waynesburg, elementary educa-tion and librarian; Lester Richardson of Holbrook R.D.1, custodian. Brenda Marling was added to the list of substitute bus drivers. An unpaid leave of absence for 30 days was approved for Suzanne Swinchock, due to illness.

Biscuits Are Served

Hardee's Restaurant in Waynesburg each day donates biscuits to the Eldercare Center in Waynesburg. Betsy Lucas, director of Eldercare, said the biscuits are served in the morning with coffee and jam and the clients, many who live alone, also are given some to take home. Pictured, from left, are Anna Hiller of Waynesburg and Betty Jean Thomas of Jefferson, both with Eldercare, Larry Blankenship, district manager for Hardee's, and Rebecca Lingis, breakfast supervisor. The Eldercare center is located in the basement of the new county office building and is open from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Local Professor Has Gun Makers In His Sights

ten history is hard, if not impossible, to find, there once were almost two dozen practicing gun makers in Greene County during the 18th and 19th centuries.

Thanks to the efforts of a West Virginia University professor, at least the names of these artisans are now available.

James B. Whisker, professor of political science, is the author of a new book which identifies gunsmiths and gun makers in West Virginia from frontier days through the 19th century. The work was done over a six-year period and required an exhaustive search of state census and county tax records.

His earlier works include a book on gunsmiths in western Pennsylvania and another volume covers gun-smiths in Bedford County.

The volume covering western Pennsylvania lists scores of gunsmiths in Washington and Greene counties.

'I make no claim to completeness," Whisker said. "Census records do not list occupations of individuals until 1850 ... courthouse records are sadly lacking ... and the drive for economy in the 1930s led many courthouses to toss many records ' he said.

Whisker said his books will serve as an addendum to a more comprehensive work by Harold B. Gill Jr., "The Gunsmith in Colonial Virginia," distributed by the University

Whisker said gunsmiths tended to center arund areas where there was available iron because transportation costs were so terribly high. "It wasn't uncommon for an individual who practiced gunsmithing to farm in the summer," he added.

Although the majority of gunsmiths in this area practiced their trade along the National Pike because it was so well traveled, there were many skilled tradesmen in Greene Probably the most recognized name among the Greene County gun-smiths would be Thomas Hughes, who the greatest hunters in county history. He made guns in Waynesburg in 1808 and 1809.

Another was Asa McClelland, who practiced his trade in Franklin Town-ship from 1810 to 1821 and was a prime mover in building new schools. P.T. (Pat) Lilly, a member of a large family of gunsmiths dating back to frontier Virginia, was another news

Whisker found information that Lilly practiced gunmaking in Carmi-chaels beginning around 1850, but suddenly left the area after being identified as a southern sympathizer.

Other gunmakers, where they trade and the years are as follows: Aaron Wright, Richhill Township, 1832-51; Lewis Williams, Greene and Monongahela townships, 1817-1833; Levi Williams, Greene, Morgan and
