Landfill Proposal Drawn

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Plans for a proposed privately-operated landfill to serve the eastern part of the county were submitted to the Greene County Planning Commission at its meeting Monday.

The commission also was notified of proposed highway improvement projects, reviewed land purchases for a coal mine which is 10 or 12 years in the future, and elected its officers for 1984.

An application by Fred and Jerry Kois of Dilliner R.D.1 for a permit from the Department of Environmental Resources to establish and operate a landfill in Monongahela Township was forwarded to the planning commission for review by the DER's Bureau of Solid Waste Management.

The application was prepared by Fayette Engineers. It proposes to use 27 acres near Fieldson's Crossroads for a landfill which would provide a refuse disposal site for municipalities in eastern Greene County. Assuming it would serve 20,000 people, it could handle up to 14,600 tons of refuse a year and have a lifetime of 10 years.

County Planner Valerie Cole pointed out that the Greene County Soil Conservation District has indicated it cannot issue a statement of adequacy because the plan does not spell out provisions for erosion and sedimentation controls. Since this must be part of any planning commission review, she suggested that the plan be returned to the DER for the additional information which is needed to complete the review.

Mrs. Cole said that three Greene County road projects have been submitted for review by the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation.

Two of them would be resurfacing projects done under the Federal Aid Consolidated Primary System program, with the work probably being done in the coming summer. One involves paving 2.6 miles of Route 188 from Jefferson to Dry Tavern at a cost of $776,000 and the other repaving 2.5 miles of Route 21 from Khedive to Bailey's Crossroads at a cost of $700,000.

The third project provides $380,000 in engineering costs to draw up plans for rehabilitation of the decks on nine bridges on Interstate 79 within the county borders.

A representative of Consol Land Development Co. met with the commission to obtain permission for lot splits on four farms in Gilmore Township, near Pine Bank. He said the company is planning to purchase parts of the four farms totaling 205 acres in connection with the acquisition of land for a potential mine site.

He said he could give no details, stressing that the mine "is 10 or 12 years down the road."

Blaze Rages In Waynesburg Store

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg firemen were battling a fire late Friday night in a television and appliance store at the corner of Morgan and First streets.

Nelle Pollock, who occupies one of two apartments over Pat's Discount store, escaped without injury after calling firemen and the owner of the store, Pat McAndrews.

"I could hear stuff a-poppin', a-poppin' and a-poppin' under me, but I didn't know what it was, and then smoke started to come up through the vent," Mrs. Pollock said. "I was able to call Pat and the firemen before the smoke got so bad that I had to get out."

McAndrews, who opened the store 18 months ago, said he sells guns and the popping noise may have been bullets going off.

The fire, which was discovered at 10 p.m., was fairly well contained inside the two-story brick building which formerly was part of the Acklin Lumber Co. yard. It is owned by Mark G. Shultz and the Appalachian Pipeline Co.

The blaze poured dense smoke over most of Waynesburg's south side, making it difficult to breathe within a block of the scene. Jefferson firemen were called in to assist.

Mrs. Pollock said that another apartment over the store is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Weldell Loar and their small child. She said they were not at home.

Old County Building Closer To Sale

WAYNESBURG — The first step toward selling the old County Office Building was taken by the Greene County commissioners at their meeting Thursday.

As required by law, the commissioners adopted a resolution to have the building appraised by the county assessor and two independent, licensed real estate agents to establish a figure that would be the lowest amount the county could accept for the property.

"It's costing us more than $70,000 a year to maintain and operate the building," Commissioner Dan Bailey said. "We feel we can save a lot of that money if we get rid of it and make other arrangements for the county offices that are located there."

The six-story building on East High Street, across from the courthouse, was purchased by the county in 1950. Some of the county offices currently housed there would be moved into the new County Office Building, where the commissioners are creating new offices on the third floor, which has been vacant.

The possibility of remodeling the rear of the courthouse to provide additional space also is being explored. That part of the courthouse has been vacant since the county jail was moved to its new location on old Route 21.

County offices currently housed in the building are those of the district attorney, probation and parole, domestic relations, veteran's bureau, parks and recreation, children's services, emergency medical services and county solicitor.

Space also is provided as a county "in-kind service" to the Washington Greene Community Action Corp., Cooperative Extension Service, Red Cross, Greene County Industrial Developments and Waynesburg Area Chamber of Commerce.

The only rent-paying tenants are the county solicitor, Attorney W. Bertram Waychoff, and Greene County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. They pay a total of $4,800 a year in rent.

The commissioners noted that the cost of utilities is extremely high, the old, manually-operated elevator needs to be replaced, and a lot of work needs to be done. "We would like to see it go back on the tax rolls and make other provisions for our offices," Commissioner L.R. Santore said.

In other developments at the meeting, the commissioners promised to consider a complaint from owners of horses stabled at the fairgrounds about being forced to vacate their stalls during the annual Greene County Horse Show in May and the Greene County Fair in August.

Kenneth Willison Jr., as spokesman for the horse owners, said that there are currently 100 horses permanently stabled at the fairgrounds, while there are 215 stalls in the four horse barns, plus an additional 29 in the draft horse barn and another 154 spaces available in the livestock barn. He argued there would be plenty of empty stalls available to accommodate horses brought in for the horse show and the fair without forcing permanent tenants to vacate.

He also made the point that the county loses $3,150 in stall rents each year because of the rule forcing them to vacate, and that owners of the horses are forced to accept unnecessary inconvenience and cost in moving their animals.

The commissioners, while agreeing to consider the complaint, said they feel there is a great need for more cooperation among the various categories of horse owners using the barns and the track, citing conflicts among owners of pleasure horses, trotters and pacers, and running horses.

"It's impossible to go to the fairgrounds without hearing one group gripe about the other," Santore said. "We want to treat everyone fairly, but it seems to be impossible to please everybody."

More than $6,075. A family of two can have an income of $8,175; three persons, $10,275; four persons, $12,375; five persons, $14,475; six persons, $16,575; seven persons, $18,675; eight persons, $20,775. For each additional person in the family add $2,100.

The Housing Authority has a contract with the Bureau of Human Resources of the State Department of Community Affairs to operate the program, which uses federal funds. A total of $160,000 has been made available to the Greene County program under the initial contract — enough to take care of work on 160 houses.

The new program replaces a weatherization program formerly administered by the Community Action Corp. The established maximum grant of $1,000 per house is limited to $500 for materials and $500 for labor costs.

DeMola said that headquarters for the program will be in a building at 410 West George Street, Carmichaels, next to the new fire hall. Materials to be used in the program will be warehoused there.

Pat Smoggie of Waynesburg, who was involved in the former Community Action program, has been named program supervisor. The staff will also include Charles Orndoff of Wayneburg as warehouseman, Newton Brown of Waynesburg as estimator, and James Reed of Holbrook as crew chief. Two laborers will also be hired.

Weatherization of houses and mobile homes can include such things as storm windows, weather stripping of doors and windows, skirting, caulking cracks, replacing broken glass, insulating attics, wrapping heat pipes and ducts, and other items necessary to prevent heat loss.

To be eligible, a single person can have a gross annual income of no

College Students 'Sign' Up For Spring Cleanup

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — Thanks to an offer made by the Waynesburg Borough Police Department, spring cleaning started early on the Waynesburg College campus this week.

As a result, over 40 signs of various sizes, description and ownership are now being stored in the basement of the borough garage instead of gracing the walls of dormitories and fraternities.

It all began when borough Police Chief Tim Hawfield, himself a graduate of Waynesburg College, asked college officials, presidents of fraternities and resident directors of various dormitories to locate and return street and highway signs or other municipal items and "no questions would be asked."

Borough employees collected some $300 worth of signs Thursday and returned Friday to haul away another load. Total value of the recovered property has been placed at between $1,000 and $1,200.

Police got more than they bargained for.

They expected to find eight stop signs and six one-way signs. However, the construction cones, construction barricades and three park benches were somewhat of a surprise. Police are still trying to determine who owns the sign which warns, "Beware of Hitchhikers: Prison Area."

Also recovered were several PennDOT signs concerned with speed limits, village markers, mile markers and highway warnings. There were real estate signs and an Indiana State University sign and private property signs.

Another sign indicates the way to Black Rock Trail — wherever that may be.

Chief Hawfield said the department has no intention of prosecuting at this point, assuming the signs have all been surrendered. "We will continue to monitor the situation and will obtain search warrants should we learn some signs have not been surrendered," he said.

Calling it a recovery program, Hawfield said in the future arrests would be made should someone be caught stealing signs.

Hawfield was quick to point out the sign problem is not unique to Waynesburg because most small towns with colleges face the same problem. "It has been going on for years and will probably continue for many years," he said.

Hearing On Animal Cruelty Postponed

CARMICHAELS — Steve Morris of Greensboro R.D.1, facing charges of cruelty to animals, was to have had a hearing before Magistrate Emil Bertugli Tuesday afternoon.

However, when Morris arrived he decided that perhaps he should be represented by an attorney, and Magistrate Bertugli agreed. The hearing has been rescheduled for 1:30 p.m. Monday, March 12. Morris will be seeking the services of the public defender's office.

The charges have been brought by Humane Society officials who found the carcasses of 29 animals on the Morris farm on Feb. 6. The dead animals included pigs, piglets, cows, chickens, turkeys and ducks. Many other animals were reportedly near death.

According to Sandy Thompson, Humane Society director, Morris had been forbidden by court order to house animals as the result of previous complaints from neighbors.

Investigation Continues Into Fatal Accident

FREDERICKTOWN — East Bethlehem Township police will continue their investigation of Wednesday's accident in which a Greene County man was killed on the state road from Fredericktown to Clarksville.

Patrick E. Impiccini, 27, of Rices Landing R.D.1, died at 9:14 p.m. in Brownsville Hospital of multiple injuries.

His car collided with a vehicle driven by Francis Ames, 52, of Coal Center. Ames, who later told police he did not remember being in the 7 p.m. accident, was not present at the scene when police arrived but had wandered to a nearby bar. According to police, someone at the bar told Ames there had been an accident, prompting him to return to the scene.

Ames was given a breathalyzer test at the state police barracks in Waynesburg where it was determined he had a .09 percent blood alcohol level. The legal limit is 10 percent. Ames was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital where he was treated and observed overnight in the emergency room. He was released Thursday.

East Bethlehem Township Fire Department rescue squad extricated Impiccini and Robert Deems of Clarksville, a passenger in Impiccini's car, from the wreckage.

Service Employees At College Agree To Wage Cuts

WAYNESBURG — Tentative agreement has been reached on a one-year contract extension for Waynesburg College employees who are members of Local 585, Service Employees International Union (SEIU).

It is subject to ratification by the college board of trustees at a meeting today, and to ratification by the union members at a meeting scheduled for Monday.

SEIU represents 45 secretaries, maintenance workers, security guards and custodians who have been working without a contract since Aug. 31, 1983. The agreement would extend the contract to Aug. 31 of this year.

Under the agreement, the employees would accept the 15 percent pay cut imposed by the college on Dec. 1, but their pension program would be improved to bring it into line with the program provided to faculty members and other non-union employees.

C.B. (Pete) Stoy, college financial vice president, said the SEIU members have had the option of contributing up to 6 percent of their earnings into a pension program, with the college matching their contribution. The new plan provides that the college will contribute an amount equal to 7 percent of earnings, with no requirement that the employee contribute.

"Most of the employees had been contributing the full 6 percent to the retirement program, but found they were unable to continue doing so after the 15 percent wage reduction was imposed," Stoy said. "We did not mean for that to happen since it meant a double loss for them. The change gives union employees the same pension benefits as other employees."

When the contract expired last August, negotiations stalled because the college demanded wage concessions, based on bids they received from private companies to provide maintenance, custodial and security services at a savings of more than $100,000, plus the fact that other employees had been subjected to a wage freeze at a time when the union members were receiving contracted wage increases.

On Dec. 1, after the union had agreed to accept concessions, the college imposed the 15 percent wage reduction.

In addition to reaching tentative agreement on the contract extension, the union and college have tentatively agreed to a novel program to increase enrollment at the college.

It provides that the SEIU recruit new students and establish a scholarship fund to which union members, both at the college and elsewhere, would contribute. The scholarships would go to the families of union members.

SEIU President Rosemary Trump said the scholarship program would be designed to encourage the sons and daughters of union members to attend the college, thus helping to overcome the decline in enrollment which created the financial problems which necessitated the wage cuts.

"Everyone, including our members, would benefit if the college income picture improves," the union president said.

Jury Clears Missouri Man In Theft Case

WAYNESBURG — A Missouri man convinced a Greene County criminal court jury Tuesday that he did not know that a truck he was helping to dismantle in Ruff Creek last December was a stolen vehicle.

The jury, which got the case shortly after noon following a one-day trial, deliberated for just over two hours before clearing Paul Albert Garrison, 22, of Carthage, Mo., on a charge of receiving stolen property.

Garrison and Dale Garber, 23, Rogersville, Mo., were arrested by state police Dec. 13, 1983, in a garage, owned by Edward (Sonny) Schrader, at a discount store on Route 19. Police, acting on a tip, found a dismantled 1978 Ford truck which had been stolen at 8:30 p.m. that same night at Mountaineer Mall, Morgantown.

Garber, who pleaded guilty Monday after the trial began, testified Monday that an unknown person had driven the truck into Schrader's service station and offered to sell it to him for $300. He said he accepted the offer because the truck was in good condition. He said the man ran up the road to where a car was waiting for him, after telling Garber that he would return with a title to the vehicle and collect his money.

It was brought out during the trial that Garrison had come to Greene County that day with Bill Schrader, brother of the owner of the business in Ruff Creek, and with Garber, who is Schrader's nephew.

He testified that he was a friend of Bill Schrader, but met Garber for the first time on the trip from Missouri. He admitted he had helped Garber remove the rear bumper and a camper top from the truck, but denied that he had any knowledge that the vehicle was stolen or that he stood to profit from the sale of parts from the truck.

He said that as soon as Edward Schrader expressed the feeling there was "something funny" about the truck, implying it might have been stolen, he left the garage and did no more work on it.

District Attorney Charles Morris, who characterized as "outrageous" Garber's story of how he acquired the truck, argued that Garrison would have to have been "incredibly naive" not to have known the truck was stolen and was being stripped for that reason.

Defense attorney John Hardisty, on the other hand, contended that the prosecution had failed to provide any testimony or proof that Garrison was aware that the truck was stolen or that he had any involvement other than in agreeing to help Garrison take off the bumper and camper top when asked to do so.

"There was no testimony that he possessed that truck at any time or that he stood to make a profit from it," Hardisty argued.

Says 'Thank You'

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Chapter of the American Red Cross has expressed its appreciation to the citizens of the area for their response following a tragic fire that claimed the lives of three children in the Davistown area.

The local chapter received aid from people in Uniontown, Carmichaels, Washington, Bentleyville, Jefferson, Clarksville, Pittsburgh and Waynesburg shortly after the fire, according to Marian C. Rush, executive secretary of the chapter.

They donated clothing, bedding, money and furniture to the Rowe family.

that the borough had not obtained necessary clearances.

Mrs. Cole said that it was an oversight which the borough quickly moved to correct and that all requirements have now been met.

In response to a question from Zigmund Bokar, a resident of Carmichaels, she said that the state and not the planning commission would have to pass on the adequacy of construction plans themselves. She also conceded that the planning commission could have moved to fine the borough for failure to submit its plans before it began construction, but said she felt that would not have been proper because complete cooperation was given once the oversight was brought to the attention of borough officials.

Fire Destroys Small Shed

WAYNESBURG — A shed fire in west Waynesburg and a field fire near Sycamore kept Waynesburg volunteer firefighters busy for a short time early Monday night.

Waynesburg Fire Chief David (Pete) Walker said children who were playing were apparently the cause of a fire that destroyed a small shed located in the west Waynesburg area of Franklin Township. The shed, reported by Walker to be owned by Mark G. Shultz of Waynesburg, was consumed by the fire by the time firefighters arrived. No damage estimate was made.

Puppets For Health

The FHA Club of West Greene Middle Senior High School is participating in a "Share the Health" contest sponsored by a national yeast company. The students have prepared a teaching unit and a puppet show, "The Enchanted Forest," to teach nutrition to their peer group. The puppet show was performed for students in the middle school Friday afternoon. The student production also was videotaped and will be cablecast over Channel 3 immediately following the Waynesburg College-Pitt-Bradford basketball game Saturday night. Pictured, from left, are Nikki Palmer, Tammy Hixenbaugh, Dorie Matcherz and Kris Lees, with Cindy McClellan and Mellinda Shumaker seated in front. Jessie Leidecker is the club sponsor.

'WITH HONORS' GRADUATE

Brenda Smith Lindsay, a graduate of Waynesburg High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Smith of Prosperity R.D.2, has completed requirements for graduation at Westminster College in New Wilmington. She will be recognized at the college's 130th annual commencement exercises in June.

Mrs. Lindsay earned a bachelor of arts degree cum laude (with honors) and a major in elementary education.

She is a member of Pi Sigma Pi, honorary scholastic society, Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, participated in the field experience/internship program and was a Dean's List student. Mrs. Lindsay now resides in Library with her husband, Theodore D. Lindsay.

55TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Polen of Wind Ridge were honored on the occasion of their 55th wedding anniversary at a dinner held Feb. 19 in Aleppo Grange Hall.

They have three children, Roger Polen of Avella, Margaret Bayard of Rices Landing and Richard Polen of Sycamore; eight grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

70TH BIRTHDAY

Audrey Stout celebrated her 70th birthday on Feb. 14 in Curry Memorial Home, Waynesburg.

A party in her honor was attended by 26 relatives including a daughter, Alma Franks of Bobtown.

College Employees' Union Delays Vote On Contract

WAYNESBURG — A ratification vote by union employees at Waynesburg College on a one-year extension of their contract has been postponed.

Pamela S. Brown, president of the college chapter of Local 585, Service Employees International Union, said the ratification meeting scheduled for Monday night was called off due to weather conditions in Pittsburgh which prevented SEIU officials from attending.

"It will probably be rescheduled for sometime next week," she said.

SEIU represents 45 secretaries, maintenance workers, security guards and custodians who have been working without a contract since Aug. 31, 1983.

The college board of trustees ratified the agreement at a meeting last Friday.

Vo-Tech School Hires Temporary Director

WAYNESBURG — Robert M. Sheba of Uniontown was hired Friday night to fill in for one year as director of the Greene County Vocational-Technical School on a unanimous vote of the school's five-member Joint Operating Committee.

He will fill the school's top job during the sabbatical leave, which began in January, of Norman W. Waldman.

Sheba's salary of $31,000 will be pro-rated to his actually beginning the job within two weeks. He will receive all benefits provided members of the administration and will also receive two weeks of vacation. He was hired to fill the position through Jan. 18, 1985.

He is currently employed as a training director for Pennsylvania House at Lewistown. A 1966 graduate of Redstone High School, in Republic, he received his bachelor of science degree in elementary education from California State College in 1969, and his master of science degree in vocational education from the University of Pittsburgh in 1974. He received certification in guidance counseling from Indiana University of Pennsylvania in 1976 and certification as a director of vocational-education from Penn State University in 1979. He is currently working towards his doctorate in vocational education from the University of Pittsburgh.

Sheba was a teacher of distributive education (marketing) and assistant vocational director at the Fayette County Vo-Tech School from 1972 to 1981 when he left to accept a position with the U.S. Steel Corp.

"I am very pleased to become part of the organization and look forward to beginning the job," Sheba said in thanking the committee following his hiring.

In other business, the committee granted the administration permission to prepare to advertise for bids to replace a large air compressor that serves at least four shop areas at the school.

In Band Festivals

Jefferson-Morgan High School band members Eric Barnett, left, and Bradley Bell, along with Tim Hardin, not pictured, participated in the Pennsylvania Music Educators Association District I Band Festival in January and have also been selected to represent their school as members of the Region I Band Festival to be held March 1, 2 and 3 at West Mifflin North High School. All three were also selected for the District I Orchestra held this month and will continue to the Western Region Orchestra at Fairview High School in Erie County on March 14 and 15. Barnett, a senior French hornist, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Barnett, of Waynesburg R.D.; Bell, a senior trumpet player, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell, of Dry Tavern; and Hardin, a junior percussionist, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hardin, of Mather.

Kenneth Macek, chief school administrator, told the committee that the air compressor has been repaired several times and is the original equipment installed when the school was built.

College Secretarial Students Gain Experience On The Job

WAYNESBURG — Three students in the secretarial science program at Waynesburg College are gaining practical on-the-job experience this semester through the internship program that is part of the secretarial science associate degree program at the college.

Billie Lee, a freshman from Carmichaels; Amy McMillian, a freshman from Waynesburg, and Lisa Rumble, a sophomore from Greensboro, are enrolled this semester in the internship course.

Dr. Margaret Cipic, who directs the secretarial science program at the college, believes the internship can be one of the most important components of the secretarial science program.

"Students working in internship programs have the opportunity to evaluate their career choices," Dr. Cipic said. They can decide if the option they chose, whether it was the legal, medical or executive secretary emphasis, really meets their career expectations. "Developing a professional attitude toward their career and about their learning experience is an important part of student programs."

Each intern has specific duties and their performances is evaluated by both the employer and a faculty member from the secretarial science program. The faculty member visits the employment site during the internship and communicates periodically with the intern and employer.

At the end of the internship period, each student must submit a paper that summarizes his or her duties and responsibilities during the internship and relates those duties to classroom preparation.

"Internships have led some of my students into their first jobs," Dr. Cipic said. "Many of them have retained their internship position as a permanent, paying position as a result of their performance as interns."

Billie Lee is working with Michael Conte at Target Industries in Carmi-chels. She said the most interesting part of her internship is "being responsible for the various office functions."

Amy McMillian is working in the Waynesburg College business office under the supervision of Jean Weaver, assistant business manager. Miss McMillian said, "I enjoy working at the college. This experience is valuable training for future employment."

Lisa Rumble, who is interning under the supervision of Mildred Wonderling at Eva K. Bowlby Library, added, "The internship is a pleasant transition exercise between the classroom and a career situation."

Waynesburg College offers a two-year associated degree in secretarial science, as well as a two-year associate degree in business administration. The secretarial science degree program is designed so that students can combine a mastery of office skills with study in business administration and other fields.

3 Senior Students Given DAR Awards

CARMICHAELS — Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) Good Citizen Awards were presented to three seniors from eastern Greene County high schools by the Greene Academy Chapter of the DAR, at a meeting Thursday night.

The students are Terry "Kent" Ganocy II of Greensboro, Bradley A. Bell of Dry Tavern and Carol Ann Masuga of Carmichaels. They were selected on the basis of dependability, service, leadership and patriotism.

They also had to answer a questionnaire and write a 500-word essay on "Our American Heritage and my Responsibility to Preserve it." Essays have been submitted for national DAR judging.

Terry "Kent" Ganocy II is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry K. Ganocy, and a senior at Mapletown High School. He ranks first in his class with a 4.0 average, is president of the National Honor Society, member of the Language Club, yearbook staff, Youth Education Association, marching, concert and stage bands, and was selected to All-County band for five years.

He also is a member of the varsity wrestling team, has a brown belt in karate, is a Red Cross Certified Life Guard, an amateur radio operator, and was recipient of the Bausch and Lomb Science Award.

If accepted in the U.S. Naval Academy he will major in engineering, or will attend Penn State University and major in biology.

Bradley A. Bell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell and a senior at Jefferson-Morgan Junior-Senior High School. He is a member of the National Honor Society, marching and concert bands, was selected to the Greene County All Star band for five years, to PMEA District I senior high band, senior high orchestra and to PMEA Region I band.

He is a member of the Long-Range Planning Committee for School Improvements, has a 4.0 average and ranks first in his class, was named to "Who's Who Among American High School Students," and is a member of the Varsity Club.

He is an assistant Sunday School superintendent and junior Deacon, serves as public relations director for

Students On Dean's List

INDIANA — Five students from Greene County were named to the dean's list at Indiana University of Pennsylvania for the first semester of the 1983-84 academic year.

Named were: Sandra L. Debolt of Mather; Susan Johnson, Jennifer L. Headlee, Matthew Majernik and Kristy Murdock, all of Waynesburg.

CAROL ANN MASUGA

Greene County Special Olympics, is bugler for American Legion and VFW posts in the area, a member of the Edward Martin Chapter of the Order of DeMolay.

He plans to attend Washington and Jefferson College or Loyola College and major in business administration and minor in computer science.

Carol Ann Masuga is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Masuga and a senior at Carmichaels Area High School, where she is class president. She is a member of the National Honor Society, senior standing committee, marching band, yearbook staff where she is editor in chief, head colorguard, Drama Club treasurer, captain of the girl's basketball team, and vice-president of the Carmichaels 4-H Club.

She was the Civic Club's September Girl of the Month, is a United States National Leadership Merit Award winner, named to All County Band, January Athlete of the Month, National Honor Society Scholarship candidate, University of Pittsburgh merit scholar, American Legion award, algebra award, named to "Who's Who Among American High School Students," and the Society of Distinguished American High School students. She has won the 4-H Junior Achievement Award, was a member of the Horse Bowl quiz team which won first place in the state and fifth in nation, while she won tenth place in the nation as an individual.

She plans to attend Carnegie-Mellon University or the University of Pittsburgh and major in engineering or computer science.

A Colonial Tea concluded the awards presentation. Hostesses were Mrs. Frank Conway, assisted by Mrs. Herbert Lunden, Mrs. Thomas Croftcheck and Mrs. LeRoy Willis.

District Band

Two members of the Jefferson-Morgan Junior High Band have been selected to participate in the Pennsylvania Music Education Association District I Junior High Band. The band is composed of students from five counties. This year's District Junior High Band Festival will be hosted by Independence School, Bethel Park, on Friday, March 9. Conductor for the festival will be Dr. Ned Diehl, director of bands at Penn State. Chosen to represent Jefferson-Morgan have been Lori Schifko, an eighth grade clarinetist and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Schifko of Rices Landing R.D., and Tom Teegarden, a ninth grade percussionist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Teegarden of Rices Landing.

Mapletown Lists Announced

MAPLETOWN — William Paul Guappone, principal of Mapletown Junior-Senior High School, has announced the honor roll for the second nine-week period: SENIORS Highest Honors — Kent Ganocy, Carletta Hawk, Doug Miller, Bobbie Jo Morris, Machele Speicher.

1983 Nurse of Hope, Judy Graham, right, congratulates Leianne Fudala

Nurse Of Hope Named

WAYNESBURG — Leianne Fudala of Clarksville was selected Wednesday night as the 1984 Nurse of Hope for the Greene County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

She will graduate in March from the Licensed Practical Nursing program at Greene County Vocational-Technical School.

"I enjoy helping and caring for people who are ill," the new Nurse of Hope said. "I want to become a volunteer for the American Cancer Society to help educate the people in our community and cancer patients."

During the coming year, she will represent the Greene County Unit with public appearances and speaking engagements before health professionals and the general public.

She also will be helping with the Unit's Daffodil Days. "I'm especially looking forward to Daffodil Days which is set for March 20-24," Mrs. Fudala said. "Since we started the Daffodil Days here in Greene County, over $8,000 has been raised to help in our fight against cancer. This year, 10,000 flowers will be available for distribution.

Arrangements can be made for the Nurse of Hope to speak before any county organization or group by calling the Greene County Unit office at 627-5259.

ENGAGED — Ethel Richter of Waynesburg R.D.2 announced the engagement of her daughter Shirley Marie Dille of 30 East Wayne Street, Waynesburg, to James Edward Plock of 140 Bill George Drive, Waynesburg. A daughter of the late George Richter, she is a 1983 graduate of Waynesburg Central High School and the Greene County Vo-Tech School. She also attended Waynesburg College and is employed as a teacher's aide at the Warrior Trail School. Her fiancé, a son of Stanley S. Plock Sr. and the late Sophia Chubella Plock of Marianna, is a 1978 graduate of Beth-Center High School and is employed at the Fort Mason Machine Co. in Masontown. They plan to wed April 28, 1984.

ROGERSVILLE — Rebecca Hildreth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hildreth of Nineveh, and Vincent Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Woods of New Freeport, represented West Greene High School in the recent District I Chorus.

The festival was held Feb. 16-18 at Shaler Area Senior High School, with approximately 250 student chorus members from Greene, Washington, Fayette, Allegheny and Westmoreland counties participating.

Lawrence Edwards, director of the University Choir and Mens' Glee Club at West Virginia University, was the guest conductor.

Rita M. Sinko is vocal music director at West Greene High School.

GIRL OF MONTH — Nadine Kotch of Crucible was honored recently by the Carmichaels Area Women's Civic Club as the student of the month at Carmichaels Area High School. Miss Kotch is a cheerleader and a member of the Spanish Club, Senior Standing Committee and National Honor Society. She also is president of the high school chorus, band manager and member of the county chorus. She plans to attend Indiana University of Pennsylvania and major in business and computer science. She resides with her aunt, Doris Kotch.

A New Clownner

Marcus Victor Scheuer Zust, a foreign exchange student from Lima, Peru, was made an honorary member of the Koal Krackin' Klowns of Greene County during their meeting Wednesday night. Marcus, 16, is attending classes at Central Greene High School, majoring in computer science. He will leave for Peru on March 10, following a two-month stay in Waynesburg which was sponsored by the Waynesburg Lions Club. He has been staying with the Jack Beabout and Norman Waldman families. Marcus is pictured on top of the piano, with clowns, counterclockwise from him, Peachey Keene, president; Dizzy Lizzie, corresponding secretary; Big Daddy, president of the Junior Clowns; Sugar Pop, Junior Clowns vice president, and Raggedy Ann, treasurer.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

This picture of a Carmichaels baseball team was believed to have been taken around 1910. In front is Perry Myers. Fact and Folklore
 John O'Hara

It was just high noon on an overcast Sunday morning as a light drizzle fell over the winter-tarnished countryside. The scene seemed to be enveloped in a soft silence which lured the stroller into a pseudo-relaxed mood.

Just then, from high above the top of Duvall's Hill, came the piercing "caw caw" of a flock of crows appearing with their characteristic startling suddenness, as though coming from out of nowhere. There was no doubt about the overtones of defiance in their shrill shrieks.

It came like an ultimatum that Spring is just in the offing, that the long winter sleep of nature has practically ended and that it's time for outdoorsmen of every type to be astir at whatever sort of activity best suits their fancy.

The almost aggravating antagonism by which a crow can pierce an otherwise placid day is the polar opposite of the almost melancholy note of the doves, which seem to be associated more with fall and the dying summer.

All of which is by way of preface to say that among the first to answer the challenge of the crow will be the fishermen as they bestir themselves from the comfort of their fireside to the chilled waters of rushing streams and ice-fringed ponds.

Most of these, of course, will be the trout fishermen and the mingo sucker anglers — not counting the occasional ice anglers hereabouts.

All anglers, more or less, are a breed to themselves but none more so than the trout enthusiasts and the sucker fishermen.

Trout anglers will endure all sorts of physical discomfort to be out on the opening day of the season, which is now just about a month off. Many of them work indoors the rest of the year and wouldn't be caught dead walking to the office in a light drizzle, but will shiver and stand around half frozen from daylight to dark in an icy rain or wet snow on the first day of trout season.

They'll also fight overhanging bushes along the narrow streams, make like Liza crossing the ice in the old-time Uncle Tom's Cabin shows to get from one side of a near frozen stream to the other, and would rather lose their lunch than pass by a chance to land what they're sure is going to be "a big one."

Sucker fishermen around Greene County now tend to fall into two divisions.

In the early days they were mostly a more contemplative group who preferred to wait until milder weather and fish in comparative comfort, sitting on a bench dug out of the side of a creek bank with a cherry wood fire at their back if the weather is too nippy.

In recent years, however, the early birds among the sucker anglers want to take advantage of a spawning run when the big egg-laden females work their way up narrow streams to a large pond or dam. To do so, however, they must fish in generally colder weather and at any moment of the day or night — more often at night it seems to many — that a sudden storm sends water rushing down the smaller stream and the fish start biting like mad in search of the food being washed down the stream.

Fantastic numbers of fish can often be caught when an angler finds the right "pothole" where the schools of fish seem to congregate while the stream is still rising.

And as long as they continue to bite, no one seems to notice that the rain is still pelting down or some of those big mushroom sized wet snowflakes are slipping down the inside of their raincoat collar.

In the old days the more daring, usually high school age kids, giggered the spawning minnows as they worked their way up the swift streams for an extra kick, always in the dead of night as it was still against the law.

Finally giggering was legalized and all of the zest of spearing fish was suddenly gone and the lure of that sort of "fishing" was as flat as a deflated balloon.

The motivations which send fishermen to every type of stream or lake from a farm brook or pond to the world's biggest ocean are as varied as there are fishermen. Some go strictly to catch fish for food, others just as rigidly for sport and pleasure. Some take their problems with them and try to solve them there. Others leave their problems at home with the hope that they can solve them when they get back home.

Others go for exercise, others for rest; some "just for the trip" and others to recapture a bit of their youth. But whatever the reason the challenge is out for all of Greene County's early season anglers to touch up their tackle as the crows will continue to caw high above the highest tree on the top of Duvall's Hill.

Saving Jobs Could Ease Trauma Of YDC Closing

Recent announcement by the Department of Welfare that it will close the Waynesburg Youth Development Center on June 30 of this year came as no great surprise.

Rumors had been circulating for months that the Greene County facility would be sacrificed as part of a program of consolidation in the face of declining utilization of YDCs by Pennsylvania jurists, who are opting for committing juvenile offenders to less expensive community-based correctional programs.

In a Catch 22 situation, the falloff in occupancy rates drove YDC per diem costs even higher until they reached the point where they were becoming prohibitive. The state's decision to boost occupancy and reduce costs by merging some of the institutions makes sense.

It's too bad, though, that the Waynesburg YDC got the ax. It was the only one in Pennsylvania designed primarily for female offenders and in the 30 years it operated it established a fine reputation for the success of its program. Once it is gone female offenders will have to be sent to YDCs which have been accepting only boys, with the potential for problems that can create.

The Department of Welfare said that the Waynesburg facilities will be turned over to the Department of Corrections for establishment of a minimum security prison for short-term adult female offenders. It also said that the new institution will require 123 staff members and that the 112 employees at the YDC will be given an opportunity to take part in a Department of Corrections training program to qualify them for jobs.

Professionals on the staff will probably also have a chance to accept positions at other YDCs if they wish to go through the personal upheaval that entails. Gloria Gugliotta, veteran administrator at Waynesburg, has already accepted a transfer to the departments regional headquarters at Pittsburgh as the only way to save her job and an interim administrator has been brought in to perform the difficult job of phasing out the institution.

It is to be hoped that the promises of jobs for present employees will be honored. It would go a long way toward making the changeover more palatable.

Pawlosky Endorsed For Assembly Seat

WAYNESBURG — Pennsylvanians For Effective Government, a group of community and business leaders who are concerned with increasing employment in the state, has given its endorsement to Joseph C. Pawlosky in his campaign for the 50th District seat in the General Assembly.

Pawlosky announced Thursday that he has accepted the endorsement, but has not accepted any contributions from the group.

"Pennsylvanians For Effective Government is 100 percent concerned with jobs and that should be the number one priority of any elected official in the 50th District," the former Greene County commissioner said.

"In the past, the endorsement has gone to the incumbent, (H. William) DeWeese, and he has received contributions from them," Pawlosky said, adding that Speaker of the House James Manderino also has received the endorsement of the group this year.

Pawlosky, who is campaigning against DeWeese for the Democratic nomination in the April 10 election, said the organization considered his record as a county commissioner in supporting the efforts of local industrial development agencies to attract new industry to this area.

"While other parts of the country are seeing a decline in their unemployment rates, we are experiencing an increase in our jobless rate," the candidate said. "There is no better way to help labor than to encourage business and industry to locate in the area."

Department of Environmental Resources now has the power to issue permits for diesel equipment if it feels conditions justify using the equipment, DeWeese explained. To date, however, it has been permitted in only one anthracite mine in the state.

DeWeese and other legislators held a public hearing on the two House bills in Waynesburg several months ago, at which time the United Mine Workers went on record as being strongly opposed to use of diesel equipment on the grounds of safety.

New Trial Asked For Victim

WAYNESBURG — Attorneys representing Alyce Scattaregia of Prosperity R.D.1 filed petitions in Greene County Court Friday asking for a complete new trial or, in the alternative, for a new trial on damages only.

A Greene County civil court jury last week awarded Mrs. Scattaregia and her husband, Joseph, damages totaling $30,000 in the medical malpractice suit they brought against two Waynesburg physicians, Dr. Shin Shen Wu and Dr. Thomas Mering.

Mrs. Scattaregia claimed that the two physicians misdiagnosed a malignant breast tumor.

Following a trial which lasted for more than a week, the jury last Friday found that both physicians and the plaintiff had been negligent. They assessed liability at 25 1/2 percent for each of the physicians and 49 percent for Mrs. Scattaregia.

Milton D. Rosenberg, in his new trial petition, contended that the court erred in permitting the jury to consider the issue of comparative negligence on the part of the plaintiff.

"The only possible issue of comparative negligence was whether or not the plaintiff, Alyce Scattaregia, delayed in seeking additional treatment," he said. "However all testimony and evidence indicated that the only reason for her delay was due to her reliance upon the original negligence of the defendant physicians in reaching the negligent conclusion that the breast tumor in question was not worthy of further treatment and by admonishing the plaintiff to ignore the same."

He also contended that the verdict was inadequate in that the jury had ignored testimony that the plaintiff had lost earning capacity of $2,256,233, medical costs in excess of $10,000, and had been subjected to great pain and suffering.

Rosenberg also filed a motion to have the jury verdict increased by $3,969 (10 percent) as provided in such cases where the defense fails to make any offer of damages.

In reply to the petitions, attorneys for Wu and Mering contended that the jury verdict "was an obvious compromise" between Mrs. Scattaregia's claims and those of the defendants, both of whom denied that they had ever been asked to check Mrs. Scattaregia's breast when she came to them for treatment for other ailments.

They also contended that the supplemental damages should be based on 10 percent of $15,300 rather than $30,000 on the grounds that $15,300 represents the 51 percent of the verdict for which the physicians are liable.

Either Robert Caro is independently wealthy or he has a very generous publisher. I mean, he spent seven years in research and writing for his big biography of Lyndon Johnson, "The Path to Power," and those years must have been incredibly expensive.

Wondering about it may seem crass, but it's only natural after reading his book, which is the first of two volumes, because so much of it is taken up with the subject of money — not having it, and then getting it. Lyndon Johnson grew up in a time and a part of the country in which nobody had any money at all; what he had to do to get enough together to run for Congress is a story that's revealing enough of American life and politics to haunt your sleep.

As fascinating as Johnson's story is, Caro's short account of his own research makes it more so. There is, he says, a lot of misinformation about Lyndon Johnson, much of it stemming from stories told by Johnson himself. Until Caro began digging in places nobody else had, he didn't know how many of the Johnson legends were either invented or exaggerated.

Caro's first example of this deals with Johnson's college days. All the published books and articles, he says, "portrayed Johnson as a popular, even charismatic, campus figure. The oral histories of his classmates collected by the Lyndon Johnson Library portray him in the same light."

"In the early stages of my research, I had no reason to think there was anything more to the story," Caro says. So, when one of Johnson's college classmates told him a different story, Caro thought it was probably just sour grapes and didn't even bother to type up his notes of the interview.

"Then, however, I began to interview other classmates."

But first he had to find them. The college, Southwest Texas State Teachers College at San Marcos, had not kept track of alumni and, "They seemed to be scattered, on lonely farms and ranches, all across Texas." When Caro would find one of them, he would be told "all the old anecdotes that had become part of the Johnson myth."

Approves Bill On Mine Equipment

HARRISBURG — Legislation which would prohibit the use of diesel-powered equipment in Pennsylvania coal mines passed the state House of Representatives Wednesday by a vote of 136 to 62. "I feel it was a significant vote," said Rep. H. William DeWeese of Waynesburg, prime sponsor of the bills.

The two bills, one covering bituminous mines and the other anthracite mines, will now go to the state Senate, where DeWeese feels chances of passage are much less promising.

"I would say chances of Senate approval are marginal at best," he said. While coal mines have always

Jackets Have Style Of Own

By Tom Rose

WAYNESBURG — It would be easy to take 20-win seasons from the Waynesburg College basketball program for granted. After all, the Yellow Jackets have accomplished the feat in five of the past six years.

It would be easy... but head coach Rudy Marisa won't dare let you think so. Waynesburg concluded its regular season here Saturday night with its 20th win, an 80-76 victory over Pitt-Bradford. And while the Yellow Jackets were breathing heavily at the end after squandering a 19-point lead, the milestone was still appreciated.

"We sincerely exceeded our expectations during the regular season," Marisa said of the Jackets, who will take a 20-5 record into Friday night's (8 p.m.) NAIA District 18 playoff quarterfinals against Behrend at College Gym. "The fact that we won 20 games proves that we did come together as a team. But now we have to be perfect in our preparation and perfect in our execution during the playoffs or it may not be good enough."

NAIA DISTRICT 18 PLAYOFFS
Friday March 2
 Behrend at Waynesburg (8 p.m.)
 Pitt-Bradford at Geneva (7:30 p.m.)
Saturday March 3
 LaRoche at Point Park (7:30 p.m.)
 St. Vincent at Westminster (8 p.m.)

The Jackets were hardly the picture of perfection in the second half after roaring to a 43-29 lead at intermission. With 12:42 left to play and leading 61-42, Waynesburg appeared to be looking ahead to the playoffs.

And Pitt-Bradford, 7-9 in the district and 11-13 overall, made a spirited run.

The Panthers held Waynesburg to only 11 points over the next 11 minutes while cutting the bulge to four (72-68). But a missed one-and-one foul shot by reserve guard Tom Calcucci, one of 13 misses from the free throw line by UPB, proved costly as the Jackets regained their poise in the final 60 seconds.

"I felt we played spotty but from 12 minutes to go until the end we played just excellent basketball," Pitt-Bradford head coach Dick Danielson said. "It's more important to win but at the same time we played well and a comeback like this is just great."

"Our team is capable of knocking off a contender, anything can happen in the playoffs. Two years ago we were 24-6 and got knocked off by LaRoche. From painful memories, we know it can happen."

While Danielson was happy with the Panthers' final performance before Friday's playoff opener at Geneva, Marisa surprisingly wasn't dismayed with Waynesburg's second-half dry spell.

"I have a strange feeling about the end of the game," Marisa said. "I didn't look overly alarmed because I thought it would work against us to blow a team out. We have a week to prepare for the playoffs and I think their feet might not have been on the ground and not as interested in technique if we had blown them out."

"Playoff games are traditionally close, no matter who you're playing, so this game was more like the real world. This game prepared us for how close the playoffs will be. This game taught us that a flaw, a mistake, can kill us."

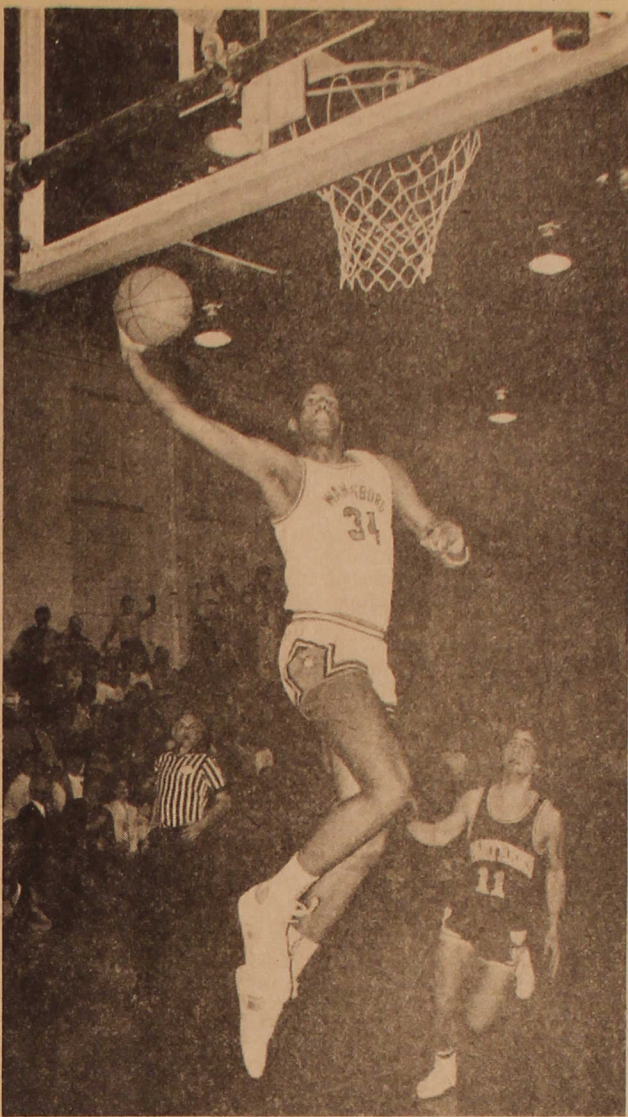

Senior point guard Ray Natili, who broke his own school record for most free throws in a season with 162, led Waynesburg with a game-high 28 points. Teammate Paul Stanley had 21, but 18 of those came in the first half when he hit eight of nine shots from the field.

Waynesburg freshman Harold Hamlin added 14 points while senior center Roosevelt Kirby had 10 points and 13 rebounds.

Sophomore center Jon Orr led Pitt-Bradford with 19 points while Greg Harris and Dave Woods added 14 each.

"It's kind of tough to come back from as far as we were against a team like Waynesburg but we played with a lot of spirit and I'm proud of our comeback," Danielson said. "I firmly believe, and I told Rudy this before the game, that player-for-player Waynesburg is the most talented team in the district. Others have one or two talented players but nobody has five like Waynesburg, and that's a credit to their team."

And that's something the Jackets will have to prove in the playoffs.

The Jackets' Harold Hamlin goes up for an easy layup.

Jackets Won't Be Fooled

By Tom Rose

WAYNESBURG — How does a basketball team self-destruct to a 3-22 record?

Davis & Elkins College gave a textbook illustration here Wednesday night.

The luckless D&E Senators, trailing NAIA District 18 power Waynesburg 31-26, decided to hold the ball and work for one shot with 1:57 left to play in the first half. It seemed like sound strategy in a hostile environment, and the Senators, winding the game clock down to just two seconds, worked what appeared to be the perfect play.

Austin Wilder grabbed an alley oop pass and had to only lay the ball in the basket to cut Waynesburg's lead to three points, but that was the stumbling block. Not only did Wilder miss the shot but teammate Keith Dixon fouled Waynesburg's Roosevelt Kirby.

And the best laid plans of the Senators were never the same, as Waynesburg assumed a seven-point halftime lead and rolled to a 77-59 exhibition victory.

"You can't just play this game with the body, you've got to play it between the ears," Davis & Elkins' head coach Joe Super said shaking his head side-to-side after the loss. "We never got our brains out of park. We run the play, we make the nice pass, the kid catches the ball and then he takes the apple on the layup. That was a four-point swing and as it turned out, the ballgame."

One of the high points of D&E's season, and there haven't been many of them, came Jan. 10 with a 64-54 victory over the Yellow Jackets. It was one of the five losses Waynesburg has suffered this season — all of them have occurred on the road — and marked the low point in the season.

Waynesburg junior Paul Stanley, who is recovering from a bout with a stubborn virus, shared scoring honors with Natili by adding 18 points while Roosevelt Kirby had 12 points and 11 rebounds and freshman Harold Hamlin added 10.

Mikes Fall Short Marisa, Natili Grab Honors

CALIFORNIA — It was all too plain to see, especially for the faithful who traveled here Tuesday night in blustery weather conditions.

Carmichaels High School's boys basketball team lived and died on the right hand of J.L. Lechner.

Only that right hand, which worked magic back in Section 19-A, couldn't carry the entire load when the opponent resembled something similar to a team that usually plays here at California University's Hamer Hall.

This was no longer typical Class A basketball. The opponent was Clairton, a team backed by a program rich in tradition. Carmichaels found that out quickly here in the second round of the WPIAL Class A playoffs, losing 61-40 to Clairton.

Lechner, who raced his team to 17 wins this season behind his better than 31 points a game, scored 21 against the Bears but his support was limited. The other four Mikes' starters totaled just 19 points.

"We shot about 20 percent from the field and you don't win many games like that," said Carmichaels' head coach Don Williams. "We needed somebody else to score. We got the shots but we didn't make them. Teams have off-shooting nights and ours was tonight."

Despite his 21 points, Lechner struggled against the taller and quicker Bears. The 6-1 senior shot just 10 of 31 from the field and dished off one assist.

The score was tied 12-12 after the first quarter.

WAYNESBURG — As awards go, this one was a long time coming.

Rudy Marisa, head basketball coach at Waynesburg College, was awarded the ultimate coaching compliment Sunday when his fellow NAIA District 18 coaches named him Coach of the Year. It was only the second time in his 15-year coaching career at Waynesburg that Marisa received the honor. He also won in 1974.

Marisa led the Yellow Jackets to a 20-5 overall record and a first-place 14-2 record in the district this season.

"I would call this a special season but there are several I would call special," said Marisa. "Why this one may be different is that we've won 15 out of our last 16 games; we're undefeated at home and I believe it's the first time ever at Waynesburg; and we secured first place in the district relatively early compared to the other teams which were battling later in the season for a high finish. All that makes this season special. Obviously I couldn't have done anything without the group of guys I have."

"I can't help but wonder, though, what my colleagues thought this year. We've won 20 games five of the last six years, including 23 wins in 1980 and 24 in 1981, and I didn't win the honor then."

Marisa isn't the only one grabbing the spotlight, however. Point guard Ray Natili, a graduate of Immaculate Conception High School, has been named first-team all-district.

Natili has been the pulse of the Yellow Jackets the past four years, running a team which is well known for its fastbreaks. And this year, the 6-0 Natili led the team in scoring with a 16.8 average.

"I've watched Raymond get better each of his four years here. That may sound difficult to understand because he came here talented and took us to Kansas City as our point guard," Marisa said. "I've watched him grow and it has been an experience. Raymond, being the quarterback of the team, can set the tone although we have other good players who are leaders."

Natili also shot 86 percent from the free throw line and ranked just out of the NAIA top 20 nationally.

Teammate Roosevelt Kirby, a 6-7 forward, was the only other Jacket to gain recognition. Kirby was 19th in the nation in rebounding last week and averaged nearly 16 points.

"We had only one person on the first team, none on the second and one honorable mention," said Marisa. "This is a contradiction to what Pitt-Bradford coach Dick Danielson said when he said we had four or five of the best athletes in the district. I don't know how the coaches could overlook the likes of Harold (Hamlin), Paul (Stanley) and Mark (Doppelheuer) and not put Roosevelt on, at least, the second team."

"I also want to give credit to my assistants," Marisa said. "Larry Marshall and Rich Relich do so much... they are my conscience, my advisors... they are a tremendous help."

Girls Basketball

SV 40, Sweet Wheats 38

CHARLEROI — It was a hole too deep and Waynesburg High School's girls basketball team couldn't get out.

The Sweet Wheats fell behind early, 12-0, and ended up on the short end of a 40-38 decision to Steel Valley Monday night at Charleroi High School in the first round of the WPIAL Class AAA playoffs.

"We were playing kind of mad in the beginning," said Waynesburg head coach Paul Swanson. "Once we calmed down, we were able to come back."

Waynesburg cut a 14-4 first quarter lead to 20-16 at halftime and trailed 28-22 after three quarters.

Tammy McIntire led the Sweet Wheats, who finished at 10-14 on the season, with 20 points while teammate Lori Trader added 10. McIntire also pulled down 16 rebounds.

"She's only a sophomore," Swanson said of McIntire. "I think she's the best player in the section."

Lions 65, Rockets 41

MORGAN — Yvonne Hutchinson scored 22 points and teammate Dana Lowe added 18 as South Fayette defeated Jefferson-Morgan, 65-41, in the first round of the WPIAL Class A playoffs.

The Lions led 28-18 at the half and outscored the Rockets in the second half to advance to the second round next week. South Fayette, now 8-15 overall, also had 12 points from Janet O'Rourke.

Tammy Bedillion scored 14 points and had eight rebounds for J-M, now 8-12 overall. Lisa Schamp had 11 rebounds for the Rockets.

Maples 52, Eagles 20

MAPLETOWN — Carol Zelina poured in 16 points to lead Mapletown High School to an easy 52-20 win over Avella in the first round of the WPIAL Class A playoffs here Thursday night.

The Maples, now 16-7 on the season, also received 13 points from Micky Sheranko.

Bowling Scores

Mary Hare grabbed the headlines during Monday Night Women's Bowling League play this week when she rolled a 229 single game leading her Cokettes to a win over the Mariner-Milliken Funeral Home.

She also had a 528 series to help the Cokettes win two and a half points. Leading the losing effort was Edith Haines who rolled a 180 single and 493 series.

Piper's Construction took three points from Trempus Insurance behind the 182 single and 514 series of Barb Morris. For Trempus, Janet Robinson rolled a 182 single and 466 series.

Hopkin's & Sons gained three points from Baily Insurance with Bonnie Kiger leading the way with a 159 single and 464 series. Joyce Watson had high game for the losers with a 215 and Betty Seamon had high series of 546.

Mankey Engineering and Fairmont split four points. Sue Musgrave rolled a 186 single and 484 series for Fairmont while Cathy Brooks tossed a 200 high single and Marilyn Whiting, a 501 series.

BOWLING RESULTS

Three of the four games in the Afternoon Tea League resulted in shutout victories this week.

The Challengers blanked the Cougars behind the efforts of Rhonda Stohon who rolled a 186 single and 508 series. Jean M. Barnhart rolled a 158 single and a 444 series for the losers.

The Horizons shutout the Dusters with Judy Reynolds leading the way with a 220 single and 489 series. Karen Tanner paced the losing effort with a 166 single and 427 series.

The Firebirds took four points from the Pacers behind Sophia Fahey's 180 single and Nancy Simmons' 460 series. Velma Wilson led the losing effort with a 160 single and 451 series.

The Citations took three points from the Charges behind the 175 single and 455 series of Erma Short. Edith Haines led the losers with a 178 single and 457 series.

BOWLING SCORES

Stockdale's Excavating shutout the Greenway team in Wednesday Night Ladies League play last week.

Janina Manteau led the winners with a 190 single and 460 series while Carolyn Brown paced the losers with a 183 single and 472 series.

Connie Vernon tossed a 190 single game and 498 series to help her Barnharts team to a three-point win over the Jury Box. Leading the losing effort were Sally Baird with a 167 single and Ronda Hall with a 433 series.

Moose 461 took three points from C&S Discount Tire behind the 194 single game of Connie Morris and 520 series of Barb Morris. Edith Haines was top roller for the losers with a 164 single and 441 series.

Triangle and Women of the Moose split four points with Nancy Simmons leading the way with a 213 single and 513 series. An Etta Black topped the Moose girls with a 192 single and 482 series.

Boys Basketball

CARMICHAELS — When things look bleak, Carmichaels High School has turned to high-scoring, guard-forward J.L. Lechner.

And Friday night was no different. With no time remaining in the game, Lechner hit two free throws to lift Carmichaels to a thrilling 63-62 win over Shannock Valley in the first round of the WPIAL Class A basketball playoffs.

The Mikes meet Clairton in the second round of the tournament.

Lechner, who had a game-high 39 points, was sent to the line when he was fouled at the buzzer attempting to hit a jump shot from the top of the key. He then calmly sank them both to help the Mikes to their 17th win in 22 games. Shannock Valley ends the season at 6-17.

SV had taken a 62-61 lead with seven seconds left to play on a shot by Chris Devido. But the Mikes got Lechner the ball and he was fouled by Bill Devido at the buzzer.

The Mikes led at halftime 30-29 and at the end of three quarters, 50-42, before Shannock Valley made a run in the fourth.

Brian Cree had 11 points for Carmichaels while Chris Devido had a team-high 20 and brother, Bill, added 16. Joe Hockendery also chipped in with 17 for SV.

Jaguars 80, Red Raiders 70

PITTSBURGH — All it took was a slight advantage in three quarters for Thomas Jefferson High School to down Waynesburg, 80-70, in the first round of the WPIAL Class AAA playoffs Friday night.

The Red Raiders, who finish the season with an 11-14 record, trailed by eight at the half, 40-32, before Thomas Jefferson extended that lead to 11, 59-48 after three quarters.

Steve Stuck paced the Red Raiders offense by scoring 18 points, while Mark Dukate had 15 and Ron Mills 12.

Mosier Honored By NAIA

MOORHEAD, Minn. — Frank Mosier, a Washington native, former Waynesburg College administrator, and two-time NAIA wrestling champion at Moorhead State University, will be inducted into the NAIA Wrestling Hall of Fame Wednesday, Feb. 29, in Edmond, Oklahoma.

The induction ceremonies will be in conjunction with the 1984 NAIA national championships.

Mosier, who enjoyed an outstanding career in football and wrestling at Trinity High School, won the NAIA 167-pound title in 1964, placed fourth in 1966 and captured the 177-pound title as a senior in 1967.

He earned a masters degree and was Dean of Students at Waynesburg before switching to a career in business. He now serves as director of agencies for State Farm Insurance Co. in the Eastern area of Pennsylvania.

Mosier will be joined in the Hall of Fame by his Moorhead State head coach Bill Garland, who has led the Dragons to 142 dual meet victories in 26 seasons and won the NAIA championship in 1964. He has coached 51 All-America wrestlers including Mosier and 10 other national champions.

Walters Gets 100th Win

ROGERSVILLE — Rikk Walters hasn't been stopped all year.

As a matter of fact, the West Greene High School senior hasn't been stopped much during his four-year career. Walters picked up his 100th career victory Wednesday night in an exhibition match against Avella.

Walters' 3-2 decision at 167 pounds also kept his perfect season record intact, extending it to 31-0.

Fire Destroys Store

An electrical malfunction is believed to be the cause of the fire that destroyed Pat's Discount TV and Appliance Store at the corner of First and South Morgan streets late Friday night. Waynesburg Assistant Fire Chief Ron Fox said no damage estimate has been made on the fire, but he noted the two apartments above the store suffered only smoke damage. Firemen from Jefferson were called for assistance in fighting the blaze that poured dense smoke over the south side of town.

Township Gets Praise Of Auditor

WAYNESBURG — In a brief regular meeting Monday afternoon the Franklin Township supervisors received a "well done" from auditor James Milnovich who said the 1983 audit reflected a healthy year.

"The township maintained a solid financial position and in so doing also hedged against future economic problems," Milnovich said. He also praised the bookkeeping of township secretary Leslie Smith saying she did a fine job especially considering the many changes in state procedures.

Supervisors briefly discussed a special ordinance concerned with holding tanks but tabled passage pending a meeting with the Franklin Township Sewer Authority.

The question of who would enforce the ordinance has not been determined. Such an ordinance could be enforced by either the township sewage enforcement officer or the authority.

She is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hart of Carmichaels and Ruth Fox of Jefferson.

Cumberland Twp. Board Holds Special Meeting

By Marcia Biddle, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — The Cumberland Township Zoning Hearing Board disposed of one of the two cases pending before it and set a new hearing date for the second case at a special meeting Tuesday night.

Hearings set for Feb. 15 and 17 which had to be postponed at the last minute because hearing notices had not been posted on the two properties in question as required by the zoning ordinance.

In the first case, the zoning hearing board voted that the application of Boyle Land and Fuel Co. for special use permit to strip mine was "deemed approved."

Board President David Smith explained that the zoning ordinance requires that a hearing be held within 60 days of the application to the board. Due to the cancellation of the hearing, the 60 days had expired. Since Boyle did not approve an extension of the time limit and no appeal had been filed against the application, the ordinance grants an automatic approval.

The second case involved an appeal filed by Zigmund Bokak against a decision by township zoning officer John Masuga. Masuga had granted a permit to Dennis Osborne for installation of a mobile home on lot 129 on the Hathaway Plan of Lots. Because of the delay in holding the hearing, the 60-day time limit also had expired in this case.

The appeal had been heard by the county planning commission which had recommended that the permit be revoked on grounds that it did not comply. The final decision in the case, however, is up to the township zoning hearing board. A lengthy decision of the matter centered on technical interpretation of the zoning ordinance and legal definition of terms.

Smith said that he had been advised by the Department of Community Affairs that because of the confused situation it would be best to set another date for the hearing. He stated his belief that since the problem stems from the action of the zoning officer in issuing the permit it would not be proper or equitable to allow the permit to stand because of the zoning officer's inaction in failing to post a hearing notice. The board set a new hearing date for March 27 at 7 p.m. which will allow time for proper advertising in compliance with the zoning ordinance.

Antique Glass Topic For Club Luncheon

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Library Club held its 81st anniversary luncheon last week in Benedum Hall on the Waynesburg College campus.

Program Chairman Dorothea Rinehart introduced Mrs. Calvin C. Rush, who presented an illustrated lecture on antique glass.

She explained that glass is one of the most popular categories of American antiques. Glassmaking dates back to the Egyptians in 1,500 B.C. and was known among the Phoenicians in 500 B.C.

Flint glass or lead glass is unsurpassed for its clarity, brilliance and resonance. The Boston Sandwich glass, made famous by Deming Jarvis, is a superb example of the pressed-pattern flint glass.

Well-known manufacturers included Albert Gallatin, with the New Geneva Glass; Duncan Miller, Bryce Company and the New England Glass Company. These glass makers produced patterns reflecting the historic events of the period.

Local collectors are especially entranced by the glass produced by the J.V. Thompson Glass Co. of Uniontown. In operation for three years, the company produced five different patterns which are quite rare. Favorites of collectors include Mary Gregory, Amberina, coin glass, milk glass, the harp glass pattern, mini-lamps and bread plates.

The local club began as the Thimble Club in 1903 and the name was changed to the Library Club in 1913.

Mrs. Frank Olmstead, president, announced the county meeting March 28-29 and the national convention in Las Vegas on June 10. The local meeting of the local club will be held March 15 at Robanna's.

Hostesses were Mrs. Raymond McCracken, Mrs. J. Wood Ganier, Maud Jenkins and Honore Ingrham.

West Penn Adds 2nd Gift To College Project

WAYNESBURG — A second leadership gift from West Penn Power Company has been presented to Waynesburg College to be used to support Phase Three of the recreation center project on the college campus.

Lois Hewitt, manager of the Jefferson Division of West Penn, presented the check to Dr. J. Thomas Mills, college president, and Dr. Richard S. Cowan, vice president for development. The gift completed a two-year pledge by West Penn.

In accepting the gift, Mills noted completion of the recreation center is now within reach.

"With the support of our business and industrial neighbors and the continued commitment of our alumni and friends, Waynesburg College will be able to finish this project," Mills said.

Phase Three of the recreation-center project includes the completion of the interior of the new recreation building and the purchase of equipment for the facility.

West Greene Volunteers For Assessment Program

ROGERSVILLE — West Greene schools will be participating in the statewide assessment program administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

"This statewide program," Superintendent Paul E. Polink said, "is provided as a service to the school district. We volunteered for the program so that we could get information for future decision making."

Students' performances on Pennsylvania's goals of quality education serve as the basis for the statewide assessment and presently include 14 areas, including:

Self-esteem, understanding others, reading, writing, mathematics, interest in school and learning, societal responsibility, knowledge of law/government, health and safety practices, creative activities, career awareness, appreciating human accomplishments, knowledge of human accomplishments and information usage. The data will be collected on Wednesday and Thursday.

West Greene is one of more than 150 school districts which has volunteered for the assessment this year and 900 plus schools will receive their results next fall.

Along with those from West Greene schools, about 120,000 students in the fifth, eighth and 11th grades will be completing questionnaires.

Berry Seminar Set For Growers

WAYNESBURG — Greene County residents who are interested in growing berries on a commercial scale are invited to attend a seminar to be held Tuesday, March 13, at The Meadows Racetrack in Washington County.

"Strawberries, raspberries and blueberries can bring the grower a good profit per acre," Assistant County Agent Roger Smith said. "Consumer demand for quality berries is always high, but profitable production is a specialized science. It requires a blend of good crop management and skillful marketing."

The seminar will begin at 9 a.m. and run until 4 p.m., with the $12 fee including lunch and morning coffee.

Topics covered will include fertilization, weed and insect control, disease control and tillage equipment. Commercial exhibitors will have displays and representatives at the meeting.

County residents can contact the Greene County Cooperative Extension office in Waynesburg for more information. The reservation deadline is Friday, March 9.
