Yellow Jackets Won't Be Intimidated

Observer-Reporter / Christie Molzon

Go, Go, Go

Waynesburg College point guard Ray Natili continues to shout instructions while taking a breather on the bench during Friday night's quarterfinal NAIA District 18 game against Behrend College. The Yellow Jackets won, 103-72, and will host the winner of tonight's Point Park and LaRoche College game in a semifinal game Monday night. Assistant Waynesburg Coach Rich Relich looks on in a relative calm.

By Tom Rose,

WAYNESBURG — With just nine seconds elapsed in the game, the Point Park game plan was evident. That's how long it took the Pioneers to block three Waynesburg College shots and to manhandle its point guard Ray Natili.

Some teams would shrink into the floor in the face of those intimidation tactics. But the Yellow Jackets aren't just some team.

In fact, they're just one victory from a plane ride to Kansas City, Mo., and the NAIA National Championship Tournament, thanks to staring intimidation in the face and beating it back with a 102-77 victory over Point Park here Monday night.

Waynesburg (now 22-5 overall) will host Westminster, a 70-67 winner over Pitt-Bradford in double overtime, Wednesday (7:30 p.m.) in the District 18 championship game. But the Jackets had to survive and rise above some humbling moments early in the game against Point Park in an intense and physically brutal basketball game.

"That's first on our scouting report, don't be intimidated by Point Park," an emotionally drained Waynesburg head coach Rudy Marisa said. "This game was a tense one and Larry (Marshall), Rich (Relich, both Waynesburg assistant coaches) and I toasted to an antacid before. This was tough."

The final score does not indicate the amount of effort spent by both teams while executing their game plans. Point Park's was to jam the ball inside offensively and ram Natili all over the court. It worked in the first nine seconds and in the first half, as the Jackets managed a slim 38-34 lead while succumbing to a pair of technical fouls and some suspect defense.

But Waynesburg, borrowing a page from a script written by its last district champion in 1981, unleashed its running game and beat the Pioneers at their own pace.

Paul Stanley, who finished with a game-high 25 points, and senior center Roosevelt Kirby, who added 19 points and 14 rebounds, helped the Jackets to a 14-4 spurt that opened up a 52-38 lead over Point Park. Meanwhile, Harold Hamlin (18 points) added a pair of rim-shaking dunks to provide some inspiration for the near-capacity crowd.

And Natili managed to shed his shadow to take charge of the game at the same time, something Point Park head coach Jerry Conboy feared most.

"Stanley was just super, no, fantastic," Conboy said, as Point Park lost its bid to defend its district title. "He was throwing those 20 to 25-footers in and those long bombs killed us. And Natili, I think, is the best player in the district, he controlled the game for them. Once they broke it open we were in trouble because we had to go man-to-man and that gave Natili the whole floor to play with."

Natili, who scored 11 of his 23 points from the foul line and 14 in the second half, expected Point Park to challenge him defensively but insisted the Jackets weren't going to be stopped by a few blocked shots.

"Two of those three blocks were mine," he said with a chuckle. "But we expect them to do that, Point Park gets an emotional high from blocking shots. But our game plan was to take them to the boards and I told their guys inside that we'd be back. I was going to throw up 15 or 20 of those shots, and they'd have to get them all."

Fred Myrick, who finished with 23 points, and Joe McMillan (16) were simply worn down by the Jackets' constant pressure at both ends. While Waynesburg's familiar sliding zone worked like a suction cup inside, the Jackets' fast-break offense, usually toned down against Point Park, was relentless.

"There was too much time left on the clock (for a delay game)," Kirby said, as Waynesburg fought off several Pioneer rallies, the last one cutting the Jackets' lead to 70-59 with 6:40 left to play. "We had the momentum going for us so we just decided to play the game like we do best, and that's to go right at them."

"They played just super," Conboy said. "We were four down at the half and we turned the ball over the first two times down the court which hurt, but we just didn't do a good job against their zone. Waynesburg is a very good team, they've gotten hot at the end of the year and that's the right time to catch it. That can mean everything in the end."

But it's not the end yet.

Robber's Jail Term Suspended

WAYNESBURG — A 39-year-old West Virginia woman who threatened to have a bank blown up if she was not given money pleaded guilty in Greene County Court Wednesday.

Under terms of a plea bargain accepted by Judge Glenn Toothman, Kay Allyn Mackley of Morgantown was given a 1-to-5 year jail sentence on a charge of bank robbery. It was suspended with the stipulation that she be placed on probation for the full five years.

Details of the robbery of the Gallatin Bank office in Mt. Morris on Oct. 24, 1983, were described as "bizarre" by both District Attorney Charles Morris and defense attorney John Stets.

On that afternoon, Stets said, Mrs. Mackley walked into the bank office and presented a teller with a note stating that she had four friends who were demolition experts and would blow up the bank unless she was given money.

"She waited around for 10 or 15 minutes while the teller went to talk to the bank manager," Stets said. "And then, after they gave her $886 in marked bills, she waited outside the bank for another 15 minutes or so until her husband picked her up in his car. People at the bank got the license plate number and called police."

Stets pointed out that her husband had no knowledge of what she had done until they got back to their home in Morgantown, when a member of the family told them police were looking for them. He then drove her to state police headquarters at Morgantown, where she gave herself up and returned all of the money with the exception of $40 she had already spent.

Mrs. Mackley, who has three grown children, told the court Wednesday that she had her husband drive her to Mt. Morris that day in an effort to collect $60 which two friends owed her because he was out of a job and they needed money. She asked her husband to pick her up in front of the bank, and when she could not locate her friends, she concocted the scheme to extort the money from the bank.

"There was no excuse for it, but we had more bills than there was money coming in," she told the court. "I'm sorry it happened. It's a mistake I'll never make again."

Court Dismisses Assault Charge

WAYNESBURG — A charge of simple assault brought against a Jefferson-Morgan High School teacher for allegedly striking a student was dismissed Friday by the Greene County Court.

Judge Glenn Toothman ruled that the disciplinary action taken by Alice M. Souders of Waynesburg fell within the guidelines of court rulings which hold that corporal punishment, when fairly and uniformly administered, is lawful.

Jerry R. Patterson of Jefferson R.D.1 brought the charge against Mrs. Souders, a veteran English teacher in the Jefferson-Morgan District. He charged that the teacher struck his daughter, Hydi Jo Patterson, 17, on the face with a book, causing bruises, and pulled her hair, causing neck injury and pulled muscles.

The incident happened Sept. 1, 1983, during a sophomore English class. In recounting the facts, Toothman noted it occurred after another student had given a "smart answer" to a question, generating laughter in which Miss Patterson joined.

Mrs. Souders, who had reprimanded the girl earlier in the same class, walked back to her desk and told her to pay attention, placing her hand upon her head.

"At that time, the defendant was holding an open book in her left hand and Hydi was also holding a book," the opinion states. "It is then claimed that the teacher struck her about the face with the book, causing the book in Hydi's hand to hit her face, bruising it. Thereafter, despite the fact that the teacher told her not to, Hydi ran out of the class, telling the teacher to 'shut up.'"

Toothman noted that the student was back in school the next day and that the only injury appeared to have been a bruise on her face. He cited a case in which the court held that slapping was corporal punishment.

In moving for dismissal of the charge, an attorney for the PSEA, argued that Mrs. Souders' action was justified under the section of the school code which gives a teacher the right to exercise such authority over the conduct of a student as might be exercised by the student's parents.

"In the case at hand, the act of the teacher in striking the student with a book was, in reality, considering that only slight force was involved, a slapping," Toothman's opinion states. "Considering that there is recognized authority under the school code for administering corporal punishment, we must conclude that the act on the part of the teacher was legally justified, and therefore not punishable under the criminal law."

"The defense of justification is an absolute defense so long as there is no evidence of malice in the act. In this instance, we cannot find the slightest basis from which to infer malice...."

"We do not suggest by this finding that this form of discipline should be regularly nor frequently utilized. But realizing that the student had failed the class the year before, had earlier in the same class period required reprimanding, and was, by her behavior at the time of this occurrence, attempting to hold the teacher up to embarrassment and ridicule... prompts a realization that the act was suddenly done without the ordinarily appropriate time for sober judgment and reflection to dissuade it.

"In whatever form the discipline in a school takes, whether by the route of the paddle, suspension from school, denial of privileges, transfer of classes, or other more subtle and sophisticated forms, one important conclusion has become increasingly apparent, that being that the vines of knowledge cannot thrive in the barren soil of disruption and disorder."

Vent Loses Post At Waynesburg

WAYNESBURG — The position of head football coach at Waynesburg Central Greene High School was declared "open and vacant" by the Central Greene School Board at a special meeting Tuesday evening.

Adoption of the resolution finalized a decision which had been pending for several months since the board announced that it planned to eliminate the part-time computer course which coach Thomas Vent is teaching this year at the Margaret Bell Miller Middle School.

The meeting lasted no more than 10 minutes and the action on Vent was taken without discussion. It brought no comment from a dozen or so members of the Waynesburg Quarterback Club who were present. The club and members of the high school football team have been urging the board for several months to try to work out a faculty assignment for Vent and retain him as football coach.

"I'm shocked," Vent said when contacted after the meeting. "They brought me here to be the football coach and I gave up a good job to come. My wife and I have bought a home in Waynesburg. I feel I have been treated very unfairly."

Vent was hired in 1981 as a permanent substitute for a middle school physical education teacher who was on sabbatical leave for that year. When the teacher returned the following year, Vent was assigned to two part-time jobs — one as a weight lifting trainer at the high school and the other as teacher of the new middle school computer course.

The prepared resolution said only that there would be a reduction in the professional staff at the middle school due to an alteration in programming. Following the meeting, Superintendent Nancy Davis explained that a decision has been made to incorporate the computer program into the regular curriculum rather than having it set up as a special program, thereby eliminating the need for the part-time teacher.

Head-On Crash Kills Former County Man

WOOSTER, Ohio — A former Greene County man was killed in a head-on collision near here Tuesday afternoon when a tractor-trailer crossed the center line and crashed into his pickup truck.

Clyde Cunningham, 67, of Holmesville, Ohio, was pronounced dead at Wooster Community Hospital at 2:58 p.m. Tuesday about an hour after the two-vehicle accident.

Cunningham, an employee of Buckeye Oil Company, was alone in his company truck. The driver of the tractor-trailer, from Finley, Ohio, escaped injury. The truck driver was not identified.

Cunningham lived in Greene County from 1935 to 1955 and was employed by Dun-Mar Oil Company. He also drove a school bus for many years.

New Policy Threatens Horse Show, Horsemen Claim

WAYNESBURG — The county's traditional horse show is threatened by a new policy governing the rental of horse stalls at the county fairgrounds, the Greene County commissioners were told Thursday.

Attorney Ewing B. Pollock, as spokesman for the Greene County Horsemen's Association, told the commissioners the horse show can be held only if stall holders are again required to vacate four barns one week before the beginning of the show, which is always held during Memorial Day weekend at the end of May.

"The association needs 300 stalls for its show, and they will not be available if the barns are not vacated," he said. "The decision on whether there is a 1984 horse show rests with the commissioners."

The association's appeal was prompted by the recent adoption of new policies on use of fairground facilities. As part of the change, it was decided that horse stall leases would no longer contain the requirement that they be vacated during the week of the horse show and during the week of the county fair in August.

The change was prompted by complaints from horsemen who keep their horses at the fairgrounds on a year-round basis, and on the basis of opinions that the 395 stalls which are available provide ample facilities for both the horse show and the fair without forcing regular tenants to move out.

The Horsemen's Association backed its appeal for full use of the fairgrounds for its show with petitions signed by several hundred county residents.

Pollock pointed out that the horse show has raised thousands of dollars for local charities in the 25 years it has been held and that it attracts horsemen from all sections of the country, benefitting the economy of the county.

"The Greene County Horse Show is recognized as one of the outstanding shows in western Pennsylvania," the spokesman said. He was accompanied to the meeting by Walter Christopher, William Minor and other long-time supporters of the horse show, all of whom agreed on the need for a return to the former stall leasing policy.

It was brought out during the discussion that occupants of one barn (the so-called green barn which is the newest on the grounds) have not been required to vacate, and that regular renters who take part in the horse show can remain on the grounds, with the provision that they pay the same $25 stall rent which the Horsemen's Association collects from all show participants who come from outside the county.

All three commissioners said that they recognize the value of the horse show and do not want to endanger its continuation.

"I resent the impression you have given that we are opposed to the horse show," Commissioner Daniel Bailey said. "Our decision was not a move against the horse show, but I don't think you can prove we have to move people out to give you enough stalls for the show."

L.R. Santore, chairman of the board of commissioners, said he feels it is time for all groups of horse owners at the fairgrounds to get together and attempt to work out their differences. He cited a long history of dispute among owners of harness horses, running horses and pleasure horses over use of the barns and track, pointing out that occupants of the green barn have been excused from the requirement to move their horses.

"We're not here to discriminate against any group, but whatever we do as a board there are always people who fight against it," he said.

In an attempt to resolve the issue, Santore said he will ask two representatives from each of the groups of horse owners to meet with the commissioners next week.

"They've been coming at us piecemeal. Maybe if we get them together at the same time, we can work something out," he said.

SPELLING WINNER — Jami Diamond was the winner in the Annual Spelling Bee held in the Carmichaels Area High School auditorium Thursday night. Miss Diamond, a sixth-grade student at Central Elementary, won by spelling "annihilation" and "apprentice" correctly. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Diamond of Carmichaels. Second place winner was Janet Baker, from eighth grade; third was Lisa McDowell, eighth grade; fourth was Diane Blasinsky, sixth grade; and alternate was Ross Burkett, eighth grade. The students will advance to the county Spelling Bee to be held March 20 in Jefferson.

Scholarships Available For Elderhostel

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg College will make six "hostelships" available to low-income senior citizens who are interested in attending one or both of the Elderhostel sessions to be held at the college this summer.

Dr. Bruce Barnett, director of Elderhostel programs, said each of the six hostelships will cover $150 of the $180 weekly tuition. The weekly tuition fee includes all fees, room charges and board.

"To be eligible for a hostelship, you must be at least 60 years old and have a limited income," Barnett said. "For example, individuals or couples whose income is primarily social security payments would qualify."

Applications for the hostelships are available at Waynesburg College and at area senior citizen centers. Applications must be submitted by July 4, but Barnett suggested candidates should apply as early as possible.

Elderhostel includes three courses each week, plus a variety of extracurricular activities. Elderhostelers live in college residence halls and eat at Benedum dining hall. Local residents who commute can attend Elderhostel at a cost of $40 per week.

"Last year we had hostelships that were not used," Barnett said. "We hope that more people will apply this summer and take part in the program."

Braden Donley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Donley of Ogden, Utah, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Donley of Carmichaels, recently had a photographic show in the Union Gallery at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City.

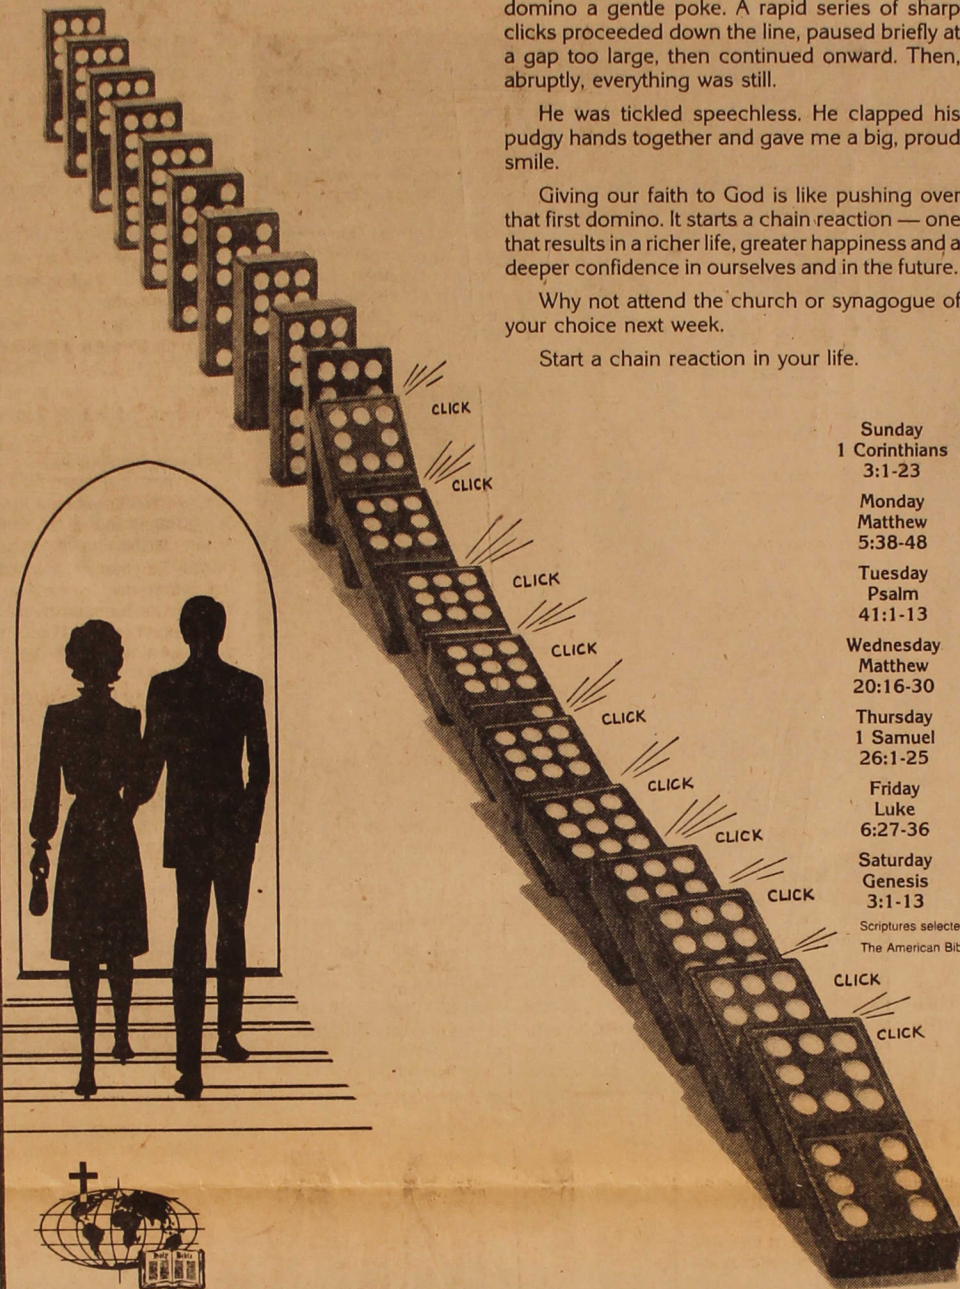

The show was entitled, "Panels," and featured 20 color prints of various window reflections.

He graduated from the University of Utah in December with a bachelor of fine arts degree with emphasis on photography. He also was an instructor for a class in photography at the college for three years.

COMPLETES BASIC — Marine Pvt. John M. Dains, son of Robert Dains of Waynesburg and Gae Trentinik of Clarksville, has successfully completed basic training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C. Dains is scheduled to take part in four weeks of advanced infantry training and an eight-week security guard course at Camp LeJeune, N.C. He is a 1983 graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School.

CHAIN REACTION

With great ceremony, the boy gave the lead domino a gentle poke. A rapid series of sharp clicks proceeded down the line, paused briefly at a gap too large, then continued onward. Then, abruptly, everything was still.

He was tickled speechless. He clapped his pudgy hands together and gave me a big, proud smile.

Giving our faith to God is like pushing over that first domino. It starts a chain reaction — one that results in a richer life, greater happiness and a deeper confidence in ourselves and in the future.

Why not attend the church or synagogue of your choice next week.

Start a chain reaction in your life.

Lions Honor Students Of The Month Country Music Show Benefits Cancer Unit

WAYNESBURG — Alexie Pavick and Richard Rush have been selected as Students of the Month for March at Waynesburg Central High School.

The Waynesburg Lions Club, which sponsors the student recognition program, honored the two high school seniors at its dinner meeting Thursday.

Miss Pavick is a daughter of Thomas and Sandra Pavick of Waynesburg R.D.3 and has a 3.8 grade point average. She is treasurer of the National Honor Society and a member of the concert and marching bands, French Club and volleyball team.

She received the French I award, National English Merit Award and track award and is a National Honor Society scholarship candidate. She is listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

Miss Pavick, who is a member of St. Marcellus Church in Jefferson, plans to major in history and French in college in preparation for a law career.

Richard Rush, who has a 4.0 grade point average, is a son of Dick and Barb Rush of Waynesburg R.D.1 and a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Churney and Mr. and Mrs. Cary Rush of Waynesburg.

ALEXIE PAVICK

RICHARD RUSH

He is a member of the National Honor Society and a former member of the Spanish Club. He was awarded the Spanish I and II awards, Biology I award, Earth and Space Science award, NEDT award and National English Merit award.

Rush is a member of the high school baseball team, has been a Senior League all-star, and is a member of the Mt. Morris Sportsman's Club.

He is a member of St. Ann Church in Waynesburg and plans to major in engineering at West Virginia University.

Dunkard Township Grange Meets

The Dunkard Township Grange met in regular session with Worthy Master Lawrence McClure presiding. Zelda Kozar was in charge of devotions.

The members voted to give a donation to the junior grange promotional fund.

Arrangements were made for the grange to visit the Curry Home.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday, March 14, and will include a birthday covered-dish supper. Dues will be paid at this meeting. Zelda Kozar will be in charge of devotions.

GOP Women Reorganize

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Council of Republican Women elected Millie Rohanna as the group's president during a reorganizational meeting held in the Gallatin Bank community room last week.

Also elected were Jacqualeene E. Hall, vice president; Donna F. Porterfield, corresponding secretary; Judith Gardner, recording secretary; and Shelvajan Orndoff Baysinger, treasurer.

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Unit of the American Cancer Society will present a country-western music show on Sunday, April 15, at Waynesburg Central High School.

Featured in the show will be Kenny Price, who appears regularly on "Hee Haw" and also Angie Tucker, the Brower Brothers and Jack Ripley, the stuttering comedian.

There will be three performances beginning at 1, 5 and 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $7 for adults, $12.50 for couples and $16.50 for a family comprised of two adults and two children or three adults.

All proceeds from ticket sales will benefit the American Cancer Society's programs of research, education, service and rehabilitation.

Patrons are reminded they may purchase tickets to be donated to senior citizens or handicapped children.

Persons who have already received tickets are reminded to send their checks, together with the number of their tickets, to the American Cancer Society Show Fund, 90 East High Street, Waynesburg, Pa. 15370.

Marianna Area Woman Records First Album

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

LONE PINE — Jody Majesky, 20, of Marianna R.D.1, is breaking new ground for her family.

The daughter of Stan and Dolores Ames Majesky, Jody has been pretty much in the background as far as the public is concerned. Her father was a standout athlete at Waynesburg College and a member of several world-class softball teams in the area and sister Lisa, 17, is a three-sport star at Immaculate Conception High School in Washington. Another sister, 12-year-old Beth Ann could possibly be an outstanding athlete as well.

For Jody, blind since birth, the stage may be her vehicle for adding stories to the family scrapbook.

Jody recently recorded an album entitled, "Do You Know About Jesus?" at the studios of Ron King Productions in Washington. The album has 10 popular favorites including, "One Day At A Time," and "He Touched Me."

Ron King, owner of the studios, has agreed to be her manager and will handle future appearances through his office at 208 Verona Drive, Washington.

Since her album was released last week, Jody has performed at the Full Gospel Men's Association banquet in the George Washington last Friday and was well received. She will appear at the Highland Brethren Church near Marianna at 7 p.m. Sunday, March 11.

Jody attended the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind in Pittsburgh from 1967 through 1983. Following graduation she accepted a position at the Association for the Blind in Washington.

She makes the trip Monday through Friday with her father, who is a supervisor at the Bureau Of Employment Security.

Jody first became interested in gospel music at her grandmother's knee when she listened to many hymns. She began listening to records before she was three years old and could, at one time, sing along with Polish songs on the records given to her by family friend Ed Zeglin.

She started playing the piano when she went to school and continues to practice about every day.

ENGAGED — Bernice Tustin of Waynesburg R.D.5 and Robert E. Shriver of Waynesburg R.D.3 announce the engagement of their daughter, Pamela Lynne Shriver, to Daniel Earl Fuller, son of Samuel Earl and Vivian Jo Ann Fuller of Waynesburg R.D.2. The bride-elect is a senior at Waynesburg Central High School and her fiancé is a 1981 graduate of the same school. He is serving with the U.S. Navy and is stationed in Oceana, Va. A June 2 wedding is planned.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. Rush of Waynesburg announce the engagement of their daughter, Tammy Lea Rush, to Melvin Carl Headlee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Headlee of Waynesburg. Miss Rush is a 1979 graduate of Burgettstown High School and is employed by Watson's Wholesale Meats as a secretary. Her fiancé is a 1975 graduate of Dean Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh with an associate degree in electrical technology. He is employed by Carnegie Gas Co. They will be wed April 28, 1984.

TO WED — Mr. and Mrs. Stoy Clutter of Waynesburg announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol, to Jeffrey Kerr, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kerr of Waynesburg. The bride-elect is a 1981 graduate of Waynesburg Central High School and is employed as a secretary for Greene County Memorial Park. Her fiancé is a 1979 Waynesburg Central graduate and is employed by the Belot-Hoy Co., Waynesburg. Wedding plans are incomplete.

Finds A Second Home

CHARLESTON, S.C. — When David W. Hixon left his home in Greene County in 1981, he thought he was leaving his family behind.

He wasn't. The 20-year-old son of Joseph and Dorothy Hixon of Clarksville said he has found a second family in the Navy, one which is 208 years old.

"My father was also a sailor and I've found the Navy welcomes and helps you," he said. "It's given me experience and responsibility."

Hixon is a Navy quartermaster who holds the rank of petty officer third class. He is responsible for keeping the ship on a safe, accurate course when it is under way. He uses navigation charts, satellite navigation equipment, a sextant and other sophisticated equipment in doing his job.

"Using the sextant is challenging," he said. "You have to be accurate, a miscalculation in plotting the stars to establish our position could send us off course by miles."

A sextant is a navigational instrument that measures the angular distance between the horizon and a celestial body. Hixon said he chose to be a navigator because he enjoys working with charts.

"I've found its a job that puts me in the middle of everything," he said. "I'm one of the first people to know where and when we're scheduled to pull into a port."

For the past two years, the 1981 Jefferson-Morgan High School graduate has been serving aboard the ocean minesweeper USS Illusive, which is based in Charleston, S.C. He was recently transferred to the guided missile destroyer USS MacDonough, also homeported in Charleston.

Navy minesweepers are wooden so they don't attract magnetic mines, which are activated when they make contact with metal-hulled ships.

"During minesweeping operations I was responsible for driving the ship," Hixon said. "It's an operation that demands smooth handling and is difficult because of the sensitivity of today's mines. Too much vibration can trigger a mine. It can also be triggered by contact or changes in water pressure."

He explained that minesweepers rely on two types of sweeping equipment — mechanical and influence.

Mechanical gear is designed to sever moored mines from their anchors, causing them to float to the surface where they can be destroyed by gunfire.

Influence gear is towed behind a minesweeper, where it generates magnetic patterns and machinery noises similar to those produced by steel-hulled ships. The signals are magnified so the mines explode at a safe distance from the minesweeper.

"I felt like Christopher Columbus on that ship," he said. "It demanded a great deal of work to keep it looking good — and it rode like a cork."

While aboard the Illusive, Hixon visited Europe and several Caribbean islands. He is looking forward to new experiences in his new assignment on the MacDonough.

"It's not like being at home, but it's like having a second family in a very real sense," he said.

Court Grants Divorce

WAYNESBURG — Herschel E. Moore of Waynesburg R.D.4 was granted a divorce from Norine Jean Kreicher Moore of Waynesburg R.D.1 in a final decree handed down Tuesday by the Greene County Court.

They were married Dec. 10, 1981. There are no children.

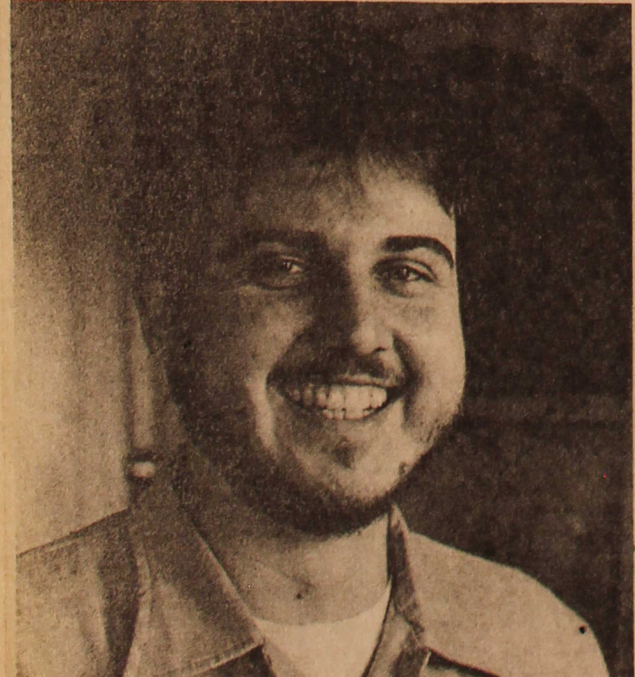

Daffodil Days Are Coming

WAYNESBURG — Daffodil days are just around the corner and volunteers for the Greene County Unit of the American Cancer Society are prepared to distribute 10,000 daffodils from March 20 through 24.

"This year we are hoping to raise over $2,000 to aid in the programs of the American Cancer Society," said Leianna Fudala, Greene County's Nurse of Hope.

She added, "The daffodil, which the American Cancer Society terms as the 'flower of hope' symbolizes hope in the fight against cancer."

It's the first flower of spring and the rebirth of Mother Nature, according to Ms. Fudala.

The Suttles home in Waynesburg was a resting place for slaves transported along the "Underground Railroad" through Greene County during the Civil War. Many of the slaves came across the Mason-Dixon line at Mt. Morris.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

All of the attention being given to Bill DeWeese's campaign for re-election to the House of Representatives brings to mind the time in 1966 when he and another Waynesburg High School sophomore, Mike Dewey made a 15-mile canoe trip on Ten Mile Creek from Waynesburg to Millsboro. DeWeese, who was 16 at the time, said then that it was something he'd never forget.

"We kept singing all the way down," he and Mike said following that spring trek. They saw only a few people — some men fishing who waived cheerful greetings as they passed by. They had only one portage to make on the entire trip at a point near Jefferson.

The DeWeese and Dewey trip did nothing, however, to revive a time when boating was common, not only for townspeople but for many farm dwellers whose land bordered on larger creeks such as Ten Mile and Dunkard. They generally had a skiff or some other type of flat-bottomed boat around for use in getting across the stream or hauling feed.

Right around Waynesburg one of the first — and best — "boughten" boats was a canoe owned by the late Judge A. H. (Hal) Sayers.

It was an Olde Towne canoe, which at that time was one of the most famous name brands in boating. The trade name was a commonplace among most men and boys of the community as the Cadillac is today as a symbol of fine craftsmanship and quality product.

It was bought some few years before World War I and quite a bit of excitement around the town. Mr. Sayers, then a busy practicing attorney, handled his craft well. He was always a vigorous individual and had a lot of power in his arms and shoulders needed to handle a boat of that sort against a swift current.

One of the early day focal points of boating pleasure around Waynesburg, according to oldtimers of 20 years ago, was the historic Ross dam, located about midway between the present Crawford bridge and the former old covered double bridge which was located at the site of the railroad overhead crossing above Route 19 in Morrisville.

After the old dam was blown out to permit control of the water level during construction of the Crawford Bridge, the center of boating interest moved to the J. Warren Jacobs birdhouse plant just west of the Smith Creek bridge.

Mr. Jacobs was unsurpassed in craftsmanship of various sorts, including boat and canoe construction. They were equivalent to the best and surpassed many that were made in far away factories.

Hundreds of Waynesburg youngsters in the World War I era had a once-in-a-lifetime thrill of their first boat ride in one of his fine canoes.

The rides were always under the watchful eye of Mr. Jacobs or one of his two older sons, Ben or Bill. Kids in those days just naturally learned to row a boat and paddle a canoe the same way they learned to walk, ride a bicycle, skip rope, skate all that sort of thing.

By the same token, almost every man was almost expected to be able to man the oars of a skiff something like it is taken for granted now that almost all men can drive a car or a truck for pleasure or work.

For years a skiff was always kept in a high, dry spot at the Waynesburg Water Works in West Waynesburg as a means of escape should the engineer be trapped by rising waters.

Years ago there used to be a story kicked around the banks of Ten Mile Creek at the foot of South Richhill Street that the original portion of a one-story frame house in which Mrs. Helen Clark Moore and her sister, Mrs. Margaret Clark White resided was originally the cabin of a small version of steam boat used in an experimental trip from Clarksville to Waynesburg.

The hazy version of that story is that it was to have been a pleasure craft and that the late George E. Hoge, who operated a fashionable men's clothing store in what is now occupied by Greene County Equipment Co., was the owner of part owner of the boat.

Also that it was wrecked when hit by heavy logs during a big flood.

At all events, it never got far away from Ten Mile Creek as it has been standing for years almost on the very edge of the stream between the creek and the old W&W railroad tracks just around the bend past the former electric light plant.

The late Frank and Bess Maple live in it for many years as did the Willis Sines family before it was bought by Mrs. Moore.

Go-It-Along Food Program Shows Dramatic Success

Two years ago, the Central Greene School District took a drastic step to reduce mounting losses in its cafeteria program.

Goed by the need to contribute $100,000 in local tax dollars to subsidize the program in the 1981-82 school year, the school board decided to withdraw from the national School Lunch Program, thereby giving up all federal and state food subsidies. It replaced the traditional "Class A" lunch with an ala carte program in which students are able to buy the type of food they want on a per item basis, at a price determined by what it costs the district to prepare and serve the food.

The decision was not an easy one, because it meant the district could no longer offer free and reduced-price lunches to students from families with limited incomes. But it felt it could both increase participation in the cafeteria program and at the same time eliminate the waste which was inherent in a program that required the district to offer full servings of five items in a fixed menu.

In its first year, the new program did not achieve its goal of reaching the break-even point, as the district experienced a $33,000 loss. As a result, cafeteria employees accepted a wage freeze while other members of their union were given raises of 50 cents an hour. In addition, the district cancelled its contract with a firm which had been managing the food program and appointed one of its own people as food services director.

It worked. As of now, the cafeteria program has turned around to the point where it is showing a $12,000 profit for the 1983-84 school year.

Although the school board was under no obligation to do so, it showed its appreciation to the district's food service employees by giving them a raise of 25 cents an hour retroactive to Jan. 12, and agreed to give them another 25 cents an hour at the start of the 1984-85 school year.

The dramatic financial reversal is certain to catch the attention of a lot of other school districts which are facing increasing problems in operating their cafeterias on a break-even basis in the face of rising labor and food costs and falling state and federal subsidies.

Team Really 'Digs' The Find At Local Farm

WAYNESBURG — When a team of state archaeologists wound up a summer dig on the Richard Foley farm in Greene County last fall, they believed they were on the verge of uncovering significant clues to the mysterious disappearance of the Monongahela Indians.

They would like to return this year to complete their study of the Indians, who occupied southwestern Pennsylvania before white men appeared on the scene, but unless they can find a sponsor (or sponsors) it won't happen.

Foley, a resident of Pittsburgh who owns the farm near the small village of Delphene in western Greene County, said the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission (PHMC) has allocated $8,500 to continue the excavation. But it can only be used if matching funds are obtained.

"They (the archaeologists) are in a difficult position," Foley said. "They cannot go out and solicit funds and must rely on others to do it for them."

In a report made last fall, James T. Herbstritt, collection manager for the Division of Archaeology of the PHMC, said the Indian village found on the Foley farm may have been occupied as late as 1620 — just a few years before the Monongahela people ceased to exist.

"We now have a site that we can study and perhaps find out what these people ate, how they lived, and what was responsible for their ultimate demise," he said.

Even though less than an acre of a potential 13-acre site has been uncovered, significant findings have been made, including the trace remains of 15 lodges and the graves of 11 children, most of them between the ages of 2½ and 3. Their remains were found in graves dug in the floors of the circular dwelling huts and then covered with large stones.

"We have no idea why the children were buried in the huts, and so far we haven't found one adult burial," he said. "If and when we do we might find some of the answers we are looking for."

While the Monongahela people never came into contact with white men, European trade beads and other trade items indicate the Monongahelas traded with Indian tribes who had contact with early European settlers along the eastern coast. One theory is that this indirect contact may have subjected them to diseases against which they had no natural protection.

Herbstritt said he believes that about 200 people occupied the village in Greene County at the height of its development, and is confident that further excavation will go a long way to understanding Indian culture of the late 17th century.

Foley said he hopes that a private foundation or some other combination of private funding will be forthcoming.

"I want them to come back," he said. "It would be a crime if this work couldn't be completed. They've barely scratched the surface and it's important for posterity to know what happened to these people."

Union Employees Give College More Time

WAYNESBURG — Union employees at Waynesburg College voted Wednesday to accept a memorandum of understanding which extends their contract with the college for one year, to Aug. 31, 1984.

Pamela S. Brown, president of the college chapter of Local 585, Service Employees International Union, said 36 of the 43 members of the unit participated. They ratified the agreement by a vote of 21-15.

The local represents secretaries and custodial, maintenance, security and housekeeping personnel.

year after they were unable to reach agreement with the union. Concession demands were made in the face of an operating deficit and on the grounds that faculty and other staff members had accepted salary freezes and cuts over a period of several years.

The agreement, however, does call for improvement in the retirement benefits of union employees to bring them into line with those of non-union employees.

The agreement stipulates that the college will "make every reasonable effort to restore the 15 percent wage cut" and provides that the college will begin negotiations for a new contract no later than Aug. 1, 1984.

Workmen Find Old Postcard

WAYNESBURG — Workmen dismantling an old house near Enon last week found an unusual souvenir from the centennial celebration held in Washington the week of Oct. 2, 1910.

What appears to be, at first glance, a wooden postcard has an engraved picture of the Washington Courthouse, the date of the celebration and the name of the sponsoring company, Vester, Stewart and Russell of 5161 South Street, a contracting and building firm.

The souvenir was found by James Hughes and Dean Cady when they pulled down a mantle in the old house owned by George Horr.

The centennial celebrated the 100th year of the founding of Washington as a borough in 1810.

The plaque, although nearly 75 years old, remains in remarkably good condition.

C-M On The Rebound

By Joe Tuscano, O-R Sports Staff

CANONSBURG — After falling one match short of capturing the WPIAL Class AAA Team Tournament a week ago, Canon-McMillan High School's wrestling team was left with a hollow feeling.

The stinging defeat left a small hole in the list of accomplishments the Big Macs made at the beginning of the season.

Saturday night at Canonsburg Junior High School, however, C-M rebounded and rebuilt some of that confidence lost last week by advancing 10 of 12 wrestlers from the Section 7-AAA Tournament, six as section champions.

"I'm pleased with all the kids," said Dave Cook, the Big Macs' head coach. "They all wrestled well. A lot of people thought there would be a letdown after the team tournament but now it's an individual thing."

Doing their individual thing for the Big Macs were Ron Rothka, at 98 pounds, Rich McClain (112), Ed Hartman (138), Harvey Nichols (145), John Pinson (185) and heavyweight Rob Benjamin.

They were joined by Trinity's Rob Provenzano (112), Tom Haight (132) and Leland Ferrari (167); Darrell Urbanic (119) and Chris Mary (126) of Chartiers-Houston; and Upper St. Clair's Kevin Krulutz (155) as the section's best. McClain, Mary, Nichols and Benjamin all made a successful defense of their titles.

Trinity had eight wrestlers advance while Chartiers-Houston managed six, Peters Township four, Upper St. Clair three, McGuffey and Waynesburg two each and Ringgold one.

The WPIAL Regional Tournament will begin Thursday night at Chartiers Valley High School and 36 wrestlers from Section 7 will move on to the next plateau, one away from the PIAA Championships in Hershey.

Via Chartiers-Houston's wild card berth in the team playoffs, Section 7 was awarded a third qualifier from each weight class. The top four wrestlers from each weight class in the regional tournament earn a spot in Hershey.

There were some pleasant surprises for the Big Macs, the most satisfying coming at 98, where Tim Rothka took USC's Mike Dinardo into overtime before succeeding, 7-0.

"Tim won this one for his brother," said Cook. "I took Ron out of the lineup because I won't allow brothers to eliminate each other."

Tim and Ron began the season at 105 and 98, respectively. When Tim moved down to 98, McClain dropped from 112 to 105, leaving no room for Ron. McClain pinned Waynesburg's Dave McWilliams at 5:10 to win at 105.

C-M received expected wins at 145, where Nichols took an 11-1 win over Joe Rozanc of Chartiers-Houston; and at heavyweight, where Benjamin pinned Trinity's John Klimkowski at 1:15.

Hartman (138) and Pinson (185) were pleasant surprises for the Big Macs. Hartman managed a takedown with one second left for a 6-4 decision over No. 1 seed Mike King of Trinity and Pinson ducked Peters Township's Scott Duckworth, 12-3, to raise his record to 8-14.

"The story was John Pinson at 185," Cook said. "C-M assistant coach Jim Neuman took Pinson and Jimmy Saunders aside and did a heck of a job. It took us all season to find out John was good on his feet."

The Big Macs lost a chance for another section title when Dave Ainscough was forced to default against Upper St. Clair's Krulutz at 155 pounds.

Trinity's Haight, coming from a third-seeded position, fought for a 2-0 decision over top-seeded Patsy Vulcano of Chartiers-Houston at 132. Provenzano had an easier time at 119, taking a 4-0 win from McGuffey's John Caster while Ferrari claimed 167 with a convincing 7-3 decision over C-H's Dave Patterson.

"Rob has been wrestling better than he has in his whole career," said Hiller head coach John Abajace. "I pick him to win the WPIAL. It will take a heck of a wrestler to stay with him."

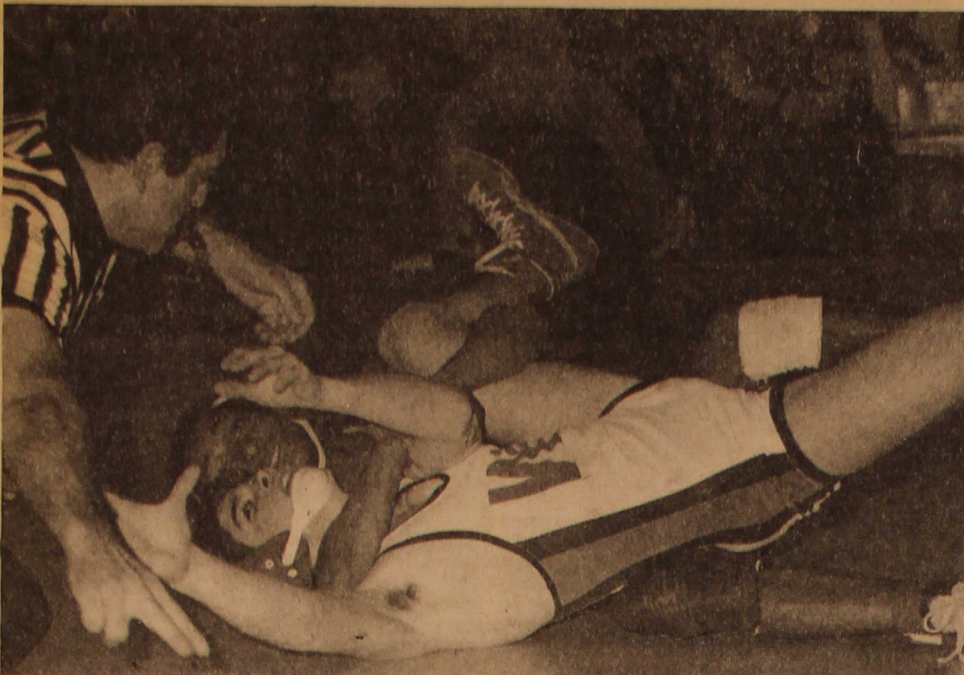

"Leland wrestled a good, controlled match. Whoever goes out against Leland has to be prepared to wrestle six strong minutes. He has to be one of the most improved kids on the team."

The Bucs' Mary looked intimidating as ever, tossing McGuffey's Doug King around the mat for a 23-6 decision. His teammate, Urbanic, took a 5-1 win over C-M's Rich Dami for the 119-pound title.

"Chris is a tough, aggressive wrestler," said C-H head coach Tim Moussetis. "That's the way we want him to wrestle. It's his nature."

Along with Urbanic, Moussetis praised the wrestling of Joe Congie, who finished third at 98.

Congie joins Canon-McMillan's Paul Warchol (112) and Tom Dobbins (132); Trinity's Jim Winters (155), Tim Bigler (105) and Dan Lobozzo (185); Upper St. Clair's Phil Pruener (167); Ringgold's Jeff Esper (119); Chuck Shriver (138) of Waynesburg; and PT's John Mizia (126), Damon Skiles (145) and heavyweight Jon Boyles as third-place qualifiers.

Bowling

Connie Vernon blistered the lanes in Wednesday Night Ladies League action last week when she rolled a 236 single game to pace her Barnhart's team to a shutout over Triangle.

Ruth Ann Blair claimed the high series, however, with a 606. Leading the losing effort was Nancy Simmons who rolled a 163 high game and 444 high series.

Greenway blanked the C&S Discount Tire team via a forfeit. In the roll for average, Melinda Walters tossed a 196 high single and 459 high series for the winners.

Loyal Order of Moose took three points from Stockdale Excavating behind the 201 single and 583 series of Karen Hull. Betty Stockdale was leading bowler for the losers with a 157 single and 435 series.

The Jury Box took three points from the Women of the Moose with Lydia Morris tossing a 176 high single and 495 high series for the winners. Chris Pfeninger led the losers with a 199 single and 479 series.

Pioneers Flip as B-C Trips

By Bob Grove, O-R Sports Staff

MCCLELLANDTOWN — On this night, when the front-runners ran out of momentum, Alvie Bedilion felt good saying it. Guys like him in places like Bentleyville, Jefferson and Carmichaels had been chasing Beth-Center all winter, and Saturday some of them got close enough to sneer.

"They think they've got a better team than we do, and I don't think they do," he said. It was an emotional kind of night for West Greene High School.

The Pioneers won three titles during the WPIAL Section 8-AA Tournament here at German Township High School, which was as many as Beth-Center could manage. The Bulldogs will take twice as many wrestlers to the WPIAL Championships this week, but somehow that fact got lost in the wash Saturday.

"I'm real happy with the way we wrestled in the finals," Pioneers' coach Buzz Walters understated after son Rikk pinned Mapletown's George Chory in 48 seconds to claim the 155-pound title. "We wrestled tough — we moved, we got the points when we had to, stayed off our backs when we had to. . . I don't think I could ask any more of them. The guys they had were tough cookies, and if we hadn't wrestled that way the scores would have been reversed."

In addition to Walters (35-0), a senior who won last year at 145, senior Kurt Jones (35-3) won at 132 and Bedilion (28-2), a senior, won at 145. Jones and Bedilion won 8-7 and 15-8 decisions, respectively, over Beth-Center seniors Don Johnston and Scott McGrady, and that made it all the more fun.

Bedilion's victory was marked by a shouting match between Buzz Walters and a few of the Beth-Center faithful.

"I thought some of them were getting on my kids unfairly," Walters said. "They were blaming us for paying the referees. . . my kids are working out there. I think fans are all right and they have a right to say what they want to, but I'm not going to stay there and take that."

On a night when 10 top-seeded wrestlers won titles, West Greene went three-for-three in the finals. Beth-Center went a disappointing three-for-eight, and two of its five losers were top-seeded.

"This afternoon, we wrestled outstanding," Bulldogs' coach Dick Caputo said. "We won about three or four close matches. That was the difference. Tonight we lost three close matches, at 98, 132 and 138. If we had wrestled tonight like we did this afternoon, we'd have three more champs. I would have liked to have won a couple of those three close ones."

As it was, Beth-Center settled for consecutive championships at 105, 112 and 119 pounds. After sophomore Dave Kriebel lost a 7-4 decision to German Township junior Dave Lowry (23-2), who was seeded fourth at 98, sophomores Scott Rhodes (31-4) and Dave Nelson (18-6-1) and senior Marc Bartolomucci (33-0) delivered victories. Rhodes pinned Charleroi's Gordie Watkins in 5:29; Nelson, who won last year at 105, d. Bedilion Mapletown's Ron Dils, 9-4; and Bartolomucci, the defending WPIAL champion at 119, pinned Carmichaels'

ALVIE BEDILION

Melvin Boone in 3:49.

"That's the way it usually is," Caputo said. "We usually win the first four matches, or we win three of the first four. It was the same way tonight."

Mapletown senior Chris Homistek (26-2) won his second 185-pound title in as many years by pinning the Bulldogs' Pete Keruskin in 3:02. "He wasn't psyched up for it, though," Maples' coach Mike McWilliams said. "He knew the kid was going to be aggressive, he knew he would have to wrestle. Still, he wasn't psyched up for it. He will be next week, though."

In addition to Kriebel, Keruskin, Johnston and McGrady, senior Sam

Zets fell in the finals, losing a 7-5 decision to Albert Gallatin senior Sam Hanon (17-2), seeded second at 138.

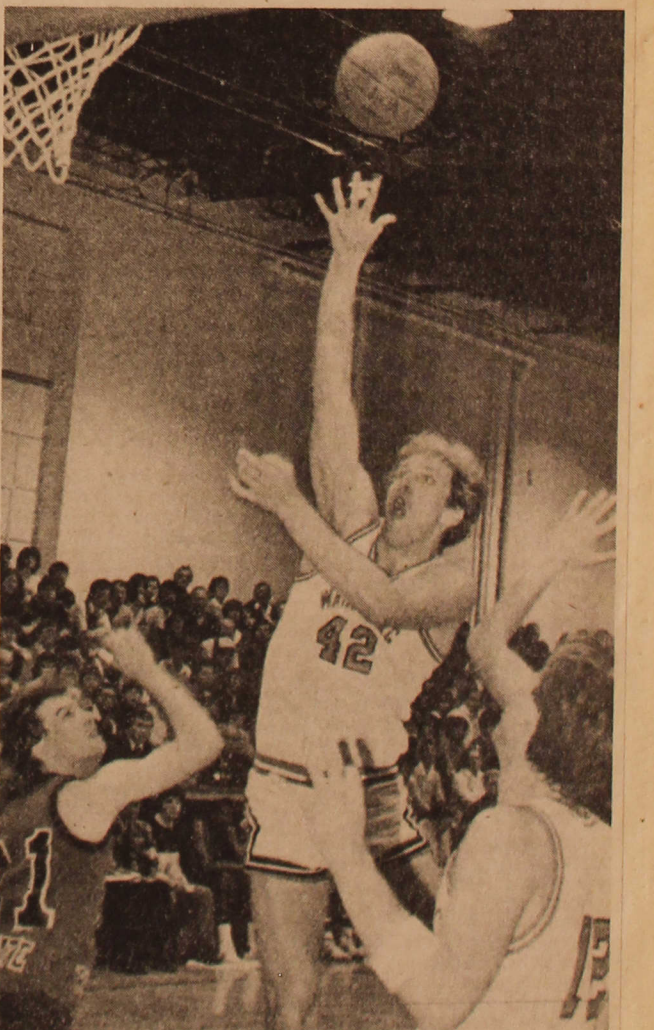

"It's the same old thing — nobody really likes a winner," said Bartolomucci, part of a team that went 9-0 in the section and claimed the WPIAL Team Championship with a resounding victory over Fort Cherry. "If you're on top, they're looking for you to get beat. Everybody is shooting for Beth-Center; it doesn't matter who it is out there. They're going to try to get them, and that's exactly what they did."

Lowry, who ended a seven-year skid in which German Township failed to produce a section champion, was joined in the parade of champions by senior heavyweight Joe Louis (23-8), who pinned Mapletown's Bryan Smith in 4:22.

The only other school to grab a pair of titles was Bentworth. Freshman Dom Snyder (15-3) pinned Delbert Williams of German Township in 4:47 to win the 126-pound title while junior Kevin Myers (15-1) won at 167 by winning a major decision over Tim Starostanko of Jefferson-Morgan, 8-0.

"I think that's the first time we've had two section champions in one year," said Bearcats' coach Tom Teagarden. "Kevin wrestled that boy early in the year and just dominated him. What can I say about Dom? He's a ninth-grader and he did a nice job. He was very aggressive. I debated whether or not to pull him up — he can still wrestle junior high — but I didn't think he could get any experience there. I'm glad I made the move."

Jefferson-Morgan was blanked for the second consecutive year.

Waynesburg's Mark Doppelheuer rises above the crowd for two points.

3 Seats Open On Zoning Board

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Zoning Hearing Board is interested in hearing from people who would like to serve on the board.

At its meeting Monday, the board announced that it would like to expand from three members to five members. In addition, Charles Beryhill plans to resign because of his recent election as president of Waynesburg Borough Council.

"We will be appointing three new members and are asking that any borough resident who would like to serve on the board let us know," Board President Stephen Lauer said. They can contact Lauer at 627-5804 or the third board member, Lisa Schwartz, at 627-8504.

In action at the meeting, the board granted parking variances which will permit utilization of two buildings for businesses.

But the board took no action on a request for permission to convert a house on East Greene Street for use as a dental office.

Paul Tomasetti was granted a permit to enclose the porch on a four-unit apartment building at 36 South Morris Street for use as a beauty salon. The parking variance was granted because of the near proximity of a public parking lot. The building is in a section of the borough which is zoned for business.

Tomasetti also was given a side-and-front-yard variance for conversion of a house at 146 West Lincoln Street into a two-family apartment house through construction of an addition to the side of the house.

Joseph Balaban was granted a permit to use a garage building at the corner of Cherry and Wood alley for an auto repair and inspection shop and a stereo installation business. He presented a letter from the owner of neighboring property permitting him to use it for parking.

Building Firm Acquires Housing Subdivision Lots

WAYNESBURG — Development of a residential subdivision in Franklin Township which has been at a standstill for four years will be reactivated by a Waynesburg building firm.

Robert Cowell and Sons, Inc., 768 East High Street, completed a transaction Wednesday to acquire the 60 some acres included in the Colonial Place Plan of Lots, located off old Route 21 east of Waynesburg.

The property was purchased for $135,000 from the First National Bank and Trust Co. of Washington, which acquired it in 1980 when the original developer, Bender Associates of Morgantown, W.Va., encountered financial difficulties.

Bender began the development in 1977 and 16 houses were built and sold before he was forced to abandon his plans. Close to 90 lots are still available.

Cowell said Wednesday that the entire property has city water and sewerage service, with blacktop streets having been built in the section where Bender was building. He said 12 additional lots are immediately available in that section. As other sections are developed, additional streets will be built.

Cowell said T. J. Mankey, the Waynesburg engineer who drew up plans for the development, will be working with him in completing the project.

Donald A. Dunst, First National Bank senior vice president, and Joseph Ottoviani, manager of the bank's Waynesburg office, completed the transaction with Cowell.

Dunst said the bank is pleased because reactivation of the development will have a positive effect on the community through making additional building lots available in a prime residential section in the Waynesburg area. The site is located to the west of the Dark Hollow Road.

OKs Hauling Agreement

CARMICHAELS — Cumberland Township Supervisors approved Thursday night a heavy hauling agreement with Oliverio Coal Co. of Maestown for use of a 30-foot strip of township road 449 near Pailsey.

The coal company, which operates a strip mine in the area, will be using the road for crossing only. The agreement carries a $2,500 bond and states that the company must maintain the road during the time it uses it and must rebuild it to township specifications if any damage is done. The supervisors said they have made this type of agreement a standard practice when heavy hauling is done on township roads and that it has resulted in improved roads after the strip mining is completed.

At the request of Boyle Land and Fuel Co. its heavy hauling agreement was amended. For safety reasons Boyle had agreed not to haul on township road 662 near Crucible and Rices Landing for 15 minutes each morning and afternoon to permit a school bus to pass. Boyle asked permission to haul as soon as the bus had passed rather than wait the entire 15 minutes. A letter also was received from Bailey's Garage, school bus owner, which stated the owner found no reason for the trucks to wait once the bus had passed. Bailey's said they would still like to have the trucks off the narrow road when the bus passes, but that the coal trucks had passed the bus only once during the months they have been hauling. A radio will be installed in the bus so the driver can notify the truck drivers that he has passed their location and they can resume their runs.

The motion to amend the agreement passed with Supervisor William Groves abstaining. Groves did not comment on his abstention.

The supervisors also received notice that the township agreement with Kimball Computer Consultants had been approved by their solicitor. The company compiles and sends out township tax notices. The final agreement included a negotiated savings of $515 in printing costs.

Mike Simkovic of Nemaacolin asked the supervisors if they could do anything about garbage being dumped in the area of the old Nemaacolin swimming pool. The supervisors said they would look into the matter and have the township police check the area.
