Carmichaels Mayor, 3 Members Quit

By Marcia M. Biddle, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — The mayor of Carmichaels, the president of its Borough Council and two council members resigned Wednesday night, saying they had been receiving threats.

At the close of the council meeting Mayor Dorothy Helmick submitted her letter of resignation, as did Council President Betty Morris, and members Betty Hudson and Patricia Frankenberry.

Mrs. Helmick, Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Hudson cited harassment as their reasons for resigning. They said they had been receiving anonymous phone calls threatening them with bodily harm, and some callers said their homes would be set on fire. Mrs. Frankenberry, who did not attend the meeting, cited personal reasons, in her letter of resignation.

Mrs. Morris said when she took a seat on council in January 1982, the borough was heavily in debt. Since she has been finance chairman and later president, the borough is now out of debt for the first time in 17 years. "I don't want to be patted on the back. I was on council only for the good of the community and I don't have to take harassment and I don't plan to," she said. "We have been trying to work together on council and then people on the street make threats against us."

When questioned if there was one specific incident that prompted her resignation, she declined to answer. But the other women council members at the meeting made the same harassment charges.

"We have to take abuse and criticism, but the people who criticize won't come to council meetings with their complaints," Mrs. Hudson said. The male council members came to the defense of the women members and asked them to reconsider their resignations.

Council member Joseph Baker said, "I understand that people have disturbed you but I think you should reconsider your resignations."

John Yurick said, "I think the women are doing a good job," and Robert Boyle said, "It could be that the ones criticizing don't know what they're talking about."

Letters of intent to apply for Mrs. Frankenberry's place on council had been submitted earlier by Greg Peccon, Albert Yelinek, and Chris Watson. With a 3-3 vote between Peccon and Yelinek, Mrs. Helmick broke the tie to elect Peccon.

Before the resignations, council took care of a number of business matters.

Chris Watson attended the meeting to complain that council had appointed three borough auditors even though he had been elected as an auditor on a write-in vote. He was told he had not filed his ethics statement with council and that he could be sworn in as soon as it is taken care of.

Mrs. Morris announced that the borough solicitor had given the borough a copy of the game machine ordinance which had been previously approved and carries a $50 fee per machine per year.

Council had received requests for a fire hydrant on South Pine Street and a bid of $4,100 for the installation was received from the Carmichaels Water Authority. Since this cost was thought to be too high for the borough, council agreed to contact property owners about whether they might share in the cost. It would amount to a minimum of $241 each.

Council also agreed to explore the possibility of using the vacant lot at the corner of South Street and South Pine Street for a municipal parking lot as proposed by Zigmond Bokot.

Fire Breaks Out In Auto Center

WAYNESBURG — Damage was estimated at $50,000 in a fire of undetermined origin at the Waynesburg Auto Center on Bill George Drive in the Morrisville section of Franklin Township early Monday morning.

The auto repair firm is located in a two-story, brick structure which formerly housed the Puglia Buick dealership.

Firemen were called out at 1:10 a.m. when Robert Simpson, a shipper for Nickles Bakery, noticed flames shooting out the front window.

Speculation Centers Around Resignations In Carmichaels

CARMICHAELS — The issues which motivated the harassing of borough officials and brought about the resignations of two members of the Carmichaels Borough Council and of the mayor remained unclear.

Council members declined to discuss specific issues and most said they did not know of any one problem which may have caused threats to be made against those who resigned Wednesday night.

Mayor Dorothy Helmick, Council President Betty Morris, and Vice President Betty Hudson stated at Nickles is located across Route 21 from the fire scene.

Volunteers from Waynesburg and Jefferson fire companies managed to save a Corvette inside the garage and also drove away a wrecker parked inside the building. Tools and auto repair machines were destroyed in the fire.

Waynesburg Fire Chief Pete Walker said the fire apparently started in an area where paint is stored. Walker said he was told by garage owner Ron Hall there was no heater or furnace in the area.

Apartments on the second floor of the building were not occupied.

Firemen prevented the blaze from reaching the paint shop area in the basement.

Firemen were called back to the scene at 7:15 a.m. when the fire rekindled.

A state police fire marshal was at the scene early Monday afternoon attempting to find the cause of the fire.

Wednesday's meeting they had been receiving threatening phone calls. The phone calls were made anonymously and none are known to have been made against any male members of council.

In addition to the threats, the women charged that they were receiving many abusive comments, to the effect that "women are running

Franklin Twp. Awards Water Line Bid

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Supervisors awarded Monday a bid for construction of a water line extension and also for materials and supplies.

Penowa Construction Co. of Avella was awarded the bid for the water line project on the basis of its $141,287 bid submitted last month. Construction will begin when additional details are reviewed with parties involved.

Golden Eagle Construction Co. was awarded the bid for supplying the township with up to 200,000 gallons of road oil at 64 cents per gallon. Marsolino Construction Co. will supply hot and cold patch materials at $33.25 and $35.25 per ton respectively.

Jacobs Petroleum Co. of Waynesburg was awarded the bid for gasoline and diesel fuel at 88.5 cents and 99 cents, respectively.

The contract for supplying stone was given to Marsolino Cooling Spring Quarry Inc. at $9.43 per ton of 1-B; $8.43 per ton for 2-B; $7.99 per ton for 2-A; $8.33 per ton for 3-A, and $8.33 per ton for No. 4 aggregate.

Bids for salt and cinders were tabled until the next meeting.

the town."

Mrs. Helmick, who took office in January of this year, is the second woman to hold the office of mayor and Mrs. Morris is the first woman to be president of council.

Another member of council, Patricia Frankenberry, submitted a letter of resignation, but did not attend Wednesday's meeting.

Some members suggested that the new borough building may be one cause of the opposition to the present administration. Mrs. Morris has stated for the past year that the building will cause no increase in borough taxes and that it is being built with volunteer labor.

Council members have projected that, by using the $30,000 which remained from fire insurance on the old borough building which burned in 1978, and with good management practices, the borough will remain debt-free when the building is finished. Although a handful of people attended the May council meeting to express opposition to the building, no one has attended since that time to object to it. Construction on the building was started last fall but has been delayed due to weather conditions.

The building plans received Labor and Industry approval on Sept. 13, 1983, as well as approval from the Pennsylvania Arts Commission and recently from the Greene County Planning Commission.

Other issues which have caused some controversy in the borough include stricter enforcement of parking violations and the recent enactment of a $50 game machine tax.

Since no action was taken on the resignations at the meeting Wednesday night by remaining council members, the possibility remains that the women may reconsider their actions.

New Institution To Employ 124 People

HARRISBURG — It is expected 124 people will be employed at the new Waynesburg Correctional Institution according to Rep. William H. DeWeese, D-Waynesburg, after chairing the House Appropriations Committee meeting with the state Department of Corrections.

The fourth-ranking member of the committee, DeWeese asked the Corrections delegation some two dozen questions regarding the transfer of the Waynesburg Youth Development Center from the Department of Welfare to the Department of Corrections.

The lawmaker said he was told by acting Corrections Commissioner Glen E. Jeffes that 75 of the 124 positions will be correctional officers to provide custodial care for the 150 medium- to minimum-security female offenders to be incarcerated there. At least 52 of the correctional officers' positions will be female.

"As much recruitment as possible will take place within the Waynesburg YDC staff and the community," DeWeese said the acting commissioner told him. "A career day to review employment possibilities will be held at the facility sometime within the next two months."

A press conference and public forum in the Waynesburg area is slated for Thursday, March 29, reported DeWeese. Examinations for correctional officers will be scheduled too, he added.

"It is possible that inmates may be transferred to Waynesburg as early as July," DeWeese said. "The staff at Muncy Women's Correctional Institution is currently conducting a survey to determine which and how many female offenders will be transferable. They are looking at their 'best' inmates for transfer to Waynesburg," he added.

The Waynesburg legislator said the correctional facility would generate about $4.6 million in annual financial activity — or $400,000 more than the YDC currently generates.

"In addition to salaries," said DeWeese, "a little over $1 million will be administrative expenditures, about half of which will go into the local community."

DeWeese said the fence for the correctional facility will be constructed within nine months to a year, according to the department. He added that the Corrections people at the appropriations hearing could not guarantee the facility would not become overcrowded because "judges in western Pennsylvania have expressed a good deal of interest in the Waynesburg institution, so that may mean overcrowding is a possibility."

The cost of maintaining a prisoner for one year in Pennsylvania is about $412,000 according to recent estimates.

Stinging Win For Jackets

WAYNESBURG — It's on to Kansas City.

Waynesburg College won its second NAIA District 18 basketball title in four years Wednesday night by defeating Westminster College, 59-52, at College Gym and will now travel to Kansas City for the NAIA national tournament beginning March 14.

Freshman forward Harold Hamlin scored a team-high 18 points to lead Waynesburg (23-5) while teammates Ray Natili and Paul Stanley added 14 each and senior center Roosevelt Kirby 10.

The Yellow Jackets finished the 1983-84 season without a loss at home, and they wrapped up the championship before a capacity crowd.

Westminster (17-11), the last team to defeat Waynesburg, trailed by only one point, 30-29, at halftime and played a slow, intelligent game designed to keep the quicker, faster Jackets from deciding the contest early.

It worked for the first 20 minutes, when senior guard Craig Randall scored 13 of his game-high 23 points.

But Waynesburg, whom Westminster coach Ron Galbreath said "could smell the title," went to work in the second half. Natili scored 19 points and Hamlin nine in the final 20 minutes, when the Jackets began dominating the boards.

Freshman center Rich Kunselman added 13 points for the Titans.

Farmer To Appeal Fine On Animal Abuse Charge

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — Steve Morris of Greensboro R.D.1 Monday was fined $200 and ordered to pay $43 in court costs for mistreating several animals on his farm. However, Morris announced he will appeal Magistrate Emil Bertugli's decision.

Morris had been charged with many summary offenses by the Humane Society and each carried a maximum $300 fine. Bertugli decided to consolidate all the charges into one before giving his decision.

At this point Robert Gosser of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society, who helped prosecute the case, asked for a stipulation that would allow the society to monitor Morris in the future. When it was determined public defender Jeff Bowman would appeal the decision, the stipulation request became moot.

Sandra Thompson of Eighty Four, also representing the Humane Society, testified that she became aware of the situation on Feb. 3 when she received several phone calls that Morris was mistreating animals on his farm. Mrs. Thompson said she went to the Morris farm the next day, but could not find Morris.

Based on what she saw at the farm, she obtained a search warrant the following day and found 29 dead animals on the farm. She also said 151 animals appeared to be in poor condition. On Feb. 7, society personnel removed the carcasses of a goat and chickens for autopsy purposes.

Mrs. Thompson said pigs, horses, ponies, sheep and fowl were given inadequate shelter and were not given enough food and water.

Dr. John C. Hansell, a veterinarian from Washington, testified his autopsy revealed the animals died of starvation. He also said the horses were 300 pounds underweight and the hooves of a pony were like a "rocking chair." Hansell also said the shelters provided were not adequate.

Gosser offered testimony much like that of Hansell and Mrs. Thompson.

Morris, during his defense, said he did not need the services of a veterinarian because he "knew as much as any veterinarian in the county." He denied hurting the animals and claimed a neighbor's dog was responsible for killing some of the chickens while sickness was responsible for the deaths of others. He said the goat died during a difficult birth.

Charles Hartley, a local farmer, testified in Morris' behalf saying Morris was kind to animals and often helped him with sick animals.

Hartley said he had never seen dead animals on the Morris property and often noticed him feeding the stock.

Morris told Humane Society officials he had no income, but lived off a small profit received from obtaining poor animals and raising them to be sold.

Morris will have 30 days in which to appeal Bertugli's decision.

DER Warns Waynesburg To Fix Sewer Line

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg Borough has been placed on notice by the Department of Environmental Resources to act as soon as possible to repair two breaks in a sewer line which lies in Jackson Run.

Councilman Paul Salosky reported at a meeting of borough council Monday that one of the breaks is near the housing project on Woodland Avenue while the other is near the VFW post home, near the point where Jackson Run flows into Ten Mile Creek.

He said he will be meeting on Thursday with a representative of Kimball Engineers to make preparations for accepting bids on the work as soon as possible.

Bill Metz, Kimball project inspector for the borough sewer line cleaning and inspection project, said that work is progressing on repair of a break in a 24-inch line which is dumping raw sewage into Ten Mile Creek. He said the DER had increased the borough's grant by $11,000 to cover the cost of repairs.

Metz reported the overall sewer improvement program is currently 33 percent complete, with the new date for completion of the project being June 26. The total grant for the work has been increased to $138,055.

Responding to a complaint about a long-vacant house on East Wayne Street which was condemned last year, council voted to have the house torn down as soon as the borough solicitor reviews the appropriate ordinance and gives the go-ahead.

Attorney Wallace Maxwell, speaking on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Diggs, said the old house is leaning sharply toward the Diggs home, which adjoins it, and is in danger of collapsing. He said the porch fell off the house last week.

Acting on a request from the Greene County Election Board, council authorized the board to use the borough council chambers as the voting place for both precincts of Ward II in the upcoming primary election.

The basement of the post office on South Morris Street is no longer available for use by Precinct II voters and the board wrote that it can find no other suitable place in the precinct. It will therefore have voters of both Precinct I and Precinct II voters use borough facility.

Councilman Frank VanCleve reported that the council administration committee has written to the borough parking authority asking for a meeting to discuss ways to increase revenues from meters on borough parking lots. He said that in 1983 parking lot revenues amounted to just $620 more than the $15,200 annual payment on the mortgages on three of the lots, creating a substantial shortfall on the payment for the fourth lot, which is largely unmet.

Councilman Lonnie Dusenberry was appointed to the borough zoning hearing board. Following the April zoning board meeting, he will replace Council President Charles Berryhill on the zoning board.

Council made note of a $300 contribution from the First Presbyterian Church as a voluntary payment for borough services it receives. In addition to thanking the church for the check, Berryhill suggested that owners of other non-taxable properties be encouraged to make similar gestures.

Horse Show Will Require Cooperation

WAYNESBURG — Representatives of various groups of horse owners who utilize facilities at the county fairgrounds met with the Greene County commissioners Thursday in an effort to work out a long-standing problem involved with staging the annual county horse show in May.

The commissioners have already said that they will no longer require people who rent horse stalls on a year-around basis to vacate those stalls for one week in May to make room for horses brought in for the charity horse show, which has been held for many years by the Greene County Horsemen's Association.

The decision was made on the basis of information that there is a sufficient number of stalls available in various barns and buildings to provide the horsemen's association with the 300 stalls it needs without requiring regular tenants to leave the fairgrounds.

Higgins said there is a total of 411 stalls available at the fair grounds and that currently there are 147 horses stabled there. He pointed out that the 300 stalls needed for the show include local people who take part in it and already have their horses there, and that other stalls are generally vacant at that time of the year because owners of racing horses have their animals at various meets.

Gary Filbey, who represented owners of thoroughbred horses, said he also felt there was room for everyone. "All it requires is a little cooperation," he said.

George Beinhauer, who has 17 standardbred (harness) horses at the fairgrounds, said the issue has never affected the harness horse owners since they have not been required to move. "If I had to move 17 horses, I don't know where I'd find the stables for them," he said.

Kenneth (Jim) Willison, speaking for the 4-H and pleasure horse owners, said their principal objection was that some horses were required to be moved while other were not.

While it was agreed that horses would no longer have to be moved off the fairgrounds, a question remains on how the stalls will be allocated during the horse show, with one of the major issues centering on use of the so-called 4-H barn, a new barn which contains 104 stalls.

"It is not possible to stable horses all over the fairgrounds," Christopher said in speaking of providing quarters for outside participants. "If the show is to continue to be held, everyone is going to have to cooperate."

The commissioners asked that the various groups meet with Higgins to try to work out definite plans. "He is the one who will be in charge to do what it takes so that the horse show can be held," Commission Chairman L.R. Santore said.

In other developments at the meeting, the commissioners were notified that the state Department of Labor and Industry has approved a plan submitted by the Washington County Employment and Training agency for use of Title III funds allocated to Washington and Greene counties under the Job Training Partnership Act.

Greene County has been allocated $163,811 in Title III dislocated workers money and an additional $36,715 in state matching funds as its share of the two-county program designed to assist jobless individuals and their families.

State Lists Deer Kill

HARRISBURG — There were 136,293 deer harvested in Pennsylvania during the past hunting season and 3,381 of them were brought down in Greene County, according to the latest report from the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

The county harvest included 1,483 bucks and 1,898 doe.

Potter County, traditionally the leader deer producer, again maintained its reputation in 1983, leading in both total harvest and bucks, and ranking second in antlerless deer. Potter County hunters reported 2,376 bucks and 2,653 antlerless deer for a total of 5,029.

Other high total harvest counties included Bradford, 4,937; Warren, 4,573; Tioga, 4,010, and Somerset, 3,821.

Before the season, the game commission said it hoped hunters would report at least 67,000 bucks and the antlerless license allocation was designed to harvest 79,000. However, not all antlerless licenses were sold and monsoon rains on both days of the regular season cut sharply into the harvest.

West Greene Parish Pastor Announces His Resignation

WAYNESBURG — The Rev. Robert E. Borland of Waynesburg, long-time pastor of the West Greene Presbyterian Parish, has informed members of the four churches he serves that he will be resigning on March 31.

Official action on the resignation will be taken Tuesday by the Washington Presbytery.

Churches which make up the Lenten Services Will Be Held Each Wednesday

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Area Ministerium will sponsor Lenten Services each Wednesday during Lent at the First Presbyterian Church in Waynesburg.

Services will be held from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. each Wednesday to allow churchgoers to have lunch before or after the service. Lunch can be purchased at the church.

Theme for the services is "The Road Back To God." Speaker for the first service is the Rev. Ralph Brownfield.

A six-week videotape series on the Apostle's Creed will be shown in the Assembly Room of the church at 10:30 a.m. each Wednesday during Lent. Dr. R.C. Sproul is author of the series.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Scott Johnson of Sycamore announce the engagement of their daughter, Amanda Gail, to Pfc. Jeffery Allen Toothman, son of Rose Toothman of Waynesburg and Virgil Toothman of Fairview, W.Va. The bride-elect is a 1982 graduate of Waynesburg Central High School and a 1983 graduate of West Virginia Career College in Morgantown. She is employed at McDonald's restaurant in Waynesburg. Her fiancé, a 1982 graduate of Clay Battelle High School, is serving in the U.S. Army and is stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va., where they plan to reside following their June 2, 1984, wedding.

parish are Harmony Presbyterian in Wind Ridge, Unity Presbyterian in Graysville, Pleasant Hill Presbyterian in Ten Mile and West Union Presbyterian.

Borland said Friday that he plans to enter a school for hospital chaplains within the next few months with the hope of completing his ministerial work as a chaplain.

"The 22 years I have been with the West Greene Parish have been wonderful ones, but this is something a feel called to do," he said.

Borland came to the parish in 1961 as associate pastor to the Rev. Fred Cochran of Waynesburg, who was pastor-director of what was then the Washington Presbytery Cooperative Parish, consisting of eight rural churches. He was named pastor-director in November 1962 when Cochran accepted pastorate of a church in Ellsworth, Ohio.

The number of churches in the parish was reduced over a period of time by realignments and congregational mergers, with the name being changed to the West Greene Parish in 1969.

Borland, a native of Pittsburgh, graduated from Waynesburg College in 1952 and from Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh, in 1955. Prior to coming to the West Greene Parish, he served as pastor of the Sinking Valley and Lower Spruce Creek Presbyterian churches near University Park.

He and his wife have no plans to leave Waynesburg at this time, he said. His wife, Margie, is executive secretary of the Greater Waynesburg Area Chamber of Commerce. They have two daughters and one son.

Boat Fees Change At Ryerson

WIND RIDGE — New boating fees will be in effect this year at Ryerson Station State Park.

Park Superintendent David L. Barrett said the new fees became effective on Jan. 1 following their adoption by the Pennsylvania Environmental Quality Board in Harrisburg. The EQB is a 21-member independent panel of executive agency officials, legislators and citizens charged with reviewing regulations to be administered by the Department of Environmental Resources.

The fee for boat launching permits will be $5 per year, but motorboats registered by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission will continue to be granted free launching privileges at state parks.

The fee for leasing up to seven feet of shoreline for mooring will be $25 for state residents and $35 for non-residents. These mooring fees will rise in 1985 to $35 and $50, respectively, and in 1986 to $45 and $65, respectively.

The fee for leasing up to 11 feet of shoreline for mooring will be $45 for residents and $65 for non-residents this year. These fees will increase to $60 and $90 in 1985, and to $80 and $120 in 1986.

This year's reservations for park pavilions by Pennsylvania residents will range from $30 to $45, depending on the site. Out-of-state residents will pay an additional $5 per pavilion.

Bradley Bell and Mary Jo Dorsey also will represent the auxiliary unit at a National Americanism Conference at Freedom Foundation, Valley Forge, on April 12-14.

Taking part in the book presentation this week were, from left, Ida Zanol, committee chairman from Fredericktown; Beverly Tekavec, librarian at Carmichaels Area High School; Barbara Legal, librarian at Jefferson-Morgan High School, and Ina Vance, president of the Rices Landing Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Two High School Libraries Receive Book On State Women In History

CARMICHAELS — The Rices Landing Branch of the American Association of University Women presented copies of the book, "Our Hidden Heritage, Pennsylvania Women in History," to libraries at Carmichaels Area and Jefferson-Morgan high schools.

The presentation coincided with "Women's History Week," observed March 5-11.

The book contains biographies of many outstanding achievement in various fields of endeavor. It was compiled by members of AAUW branches all over the state.

The Rices Landing Branch contributed the biography of Lois Teal Hartley to the book's section on "Women as Educators." Dr. Hartley was a graduate of Waynesburg College and earned her doctorate at the University of Illinois. She taught at Boston College until her death in 1968. Dr. Hartley published many articles and essays in literary journals and was a leader in the Modern Language Association and was editor of the journal, "Literature East and West."

A native of Rices Landing, her biography was researched by Ina Vance and written by Sarah Appleton Weber.

Operation Outreach Has New Filmstrips

WAYNESBURG — Operation Outreach at 54 Church Street, Waynesburg, has received four new filmstrips with cassettes.

They are gifts from the American Gas Association and Shell Oil Co. The strips deal with driving hazards, safety near gas stoves and energy conservation.

Swimmers Help Cancer Society

WAYNESBURG — Ten swimmers participated in the American Cancer Society's Save-a-Life Swim for Cancer held Friday evening at the Waynesburg High School pool.

Scott Miller, a student at Margaret Bell Miller Middle School, will receive a $30 gift certificate from The Locker Room for having collected $121 for his efforts.

Second place, and a $20 gift certificate, went to Mrs. Joyce Nicksick for having collected $58.75. Third place and a $10 gift certificate were given to Lori Grimes, who collected $58.

Terry Grimes, chairman of the event, said all the money has not been collected but more than $350 has been turned in so far.

The money will go toward the society's programs for research, education and service.

Horse Show Continuation Depends On Cooperation

Tension between groups of horse owners who keep their animals at the Greene County Fairgrounds is nothing new.

Those with harness horses have frequently been in conflict with thoroughbred owners over conditioning of the track for training purposes.

Owners of pleasure horses and 4-H horses have been unhappy with the requirement that they vacate their stalls for one week at the end of May, when the annual horse show is held, and for one week in August, when the county fair is staged. They have felt there are plenty of stalls available to accommodate horses brought in for both events.

The Greene County commissioners have frequently been caught in the middle of the tug of war and have done their best to accommodate the needs of each group. But there has never been a final resolution of the problem.

The new board of commissioners, which recently adopted a revised set of policies to govern administration of the fairgrounds, found itself faced with the same conflicts. It has addressed the issue by appointing the county maintenance superintendent as fairgrounds manager, giving him the authority to do the job that has to be done.

Following his study of the situation, the commissioners have agreed that those who rent stalls throughout the year will no longer be forced to vacate them for the horse show, despite an appeal from the Greene County Horsemen's Association that the action might force it to discontinue the long-running and popular horse show.

The commissioners obviously feel there are plenty of stalls for everyone, and that continuation of the horse show will not be endangered if everyone involved practices a little give and take.

Above all, they want the issue settled once and for all so that they can put the problem behind them once and for all. If the cooperation they want is not forthcoming, it could mean the end of the horse show, and no one seems to want that to happen.

AROUND TOWN

By THE STAFF

John C. Burns, a 1980 graduate of Washington & Jefferson College, was promoted to the rank of captain in ceremonies held recently at Fort Rucker, Ala., where he is serving with the U.S. Army Aviation School.

Burns, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Burns of Waynesburg, served 31 months with the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky. prior to being assigned to Fort Rucker. He is married to the former Pam Collins of Canonsburg.

Residents of Waynesburg turned out well Monday for a community sendoff to the Waynesburg College basketball team as it prepared to leave for the NAIA basketball tournament at Kansas City.

The brief program was held to thank team members for an exciting season, to wish them well in the national tourney, and to pay tribute to Coach Rudy Marisa on his selection as coach of the year in District 18.

Speaking of sports, this is the time of the year when a lot of attention is focused on high school wrestlers as they battle for the right to go to the state tournament.

For the first time in many years, Waynesburg Central didn't have anyone qualify, but Kevin Huff, Alvie Bedilion and Rikk Walters of West Greene and Chris Homistek of Mapletown will provide county residents with rooting interest in the Class AA tourney this weekend.

Members of rural Presbyterian churches in western Greene County which make up the West Greene Parish will suffer a loss with the resignation of their long-time pastor, the Rev. Robert E. Borland of Waynesburg.

The 22-year relationship has been a good one and we join with members of the churches in wishing Bob well in his decision to wind up his ministerial career as a hospital chaplain.

County residents are hoping that March 21 will prove to be a magical day in bringing relief from the late winter colds and snow they have been suffering through. The first day of spring should mean something, after all.

Maintenance, Cafeteria Jobs Created At SE Greene

By Christie R. Molzon, Staff Writer

MAPLETOWN — The Southeastern Greene School Board took care of a number of personnel matters at a special meeting Tuesday night.

The board named Harold Weaver and Mary Ann Haney to two new positions. Weaver will be in charge of maintenance at the junior-senior high school and Mrs. Haney will be the district cafeteria head. The board also changed Les Haney's title from head maintenance to district maintenance supervisor and new job descriptions were drawn up for all three positions.

Superintendent Gerald Marciniak said the changes were made to improve maintenance and cafeteria operations. He noted in the past there had been no supervision of custodial employees on the night shift. Marciniak said Mrs. Haney would be working primarily in the high school cafeteria with limited duties in the other schools and that the cafeterias would have a uniform menu.

The board also added Bart Mohnack and Donald Stevenson as bus drivers. The two men have recently joined the service employees union. Edward Kubick was hired as janitor for the junior-senior high school.

The following were approved to substitute lists and will receive $4.25 an hour:

Janitorial, custodial and maintenance — Melvin Adams, Dale Gopen, John Kavlick, Mark Pekar; cafeterias — Joann Barzanti, Armeta Mason, Freda Menear; cafeteria and janitorial — Ralphaline Howard, Jean Jackson and Nancy Johnson.

Mrs. Haney will be in charge of assigning cafeteria substitutes and Les Haney will assign the janitorial, custodial and maintenance substitutes. The substitutes are to be rotated on an equal basis and any who continually refuse to work the required assignments will be removed from the board approved list.

The board also approved reopening all the coaching positions in the district and it was noted the district's All Sports Banquet for varsity players will be held May 12.

Questioned about proposed mining under the Bobtown Elementary School, solicitor John Stets said it was his understanding that the mining company had not yet complied with regulations to mine under the building. He noted the mine, operated by SJM Diversified, had notified the school district about a year ago if its plans to mine coal under the school. However, Stets said the Department of Environmental Resources later informed the district that the mining company had not complied with regulations and, when it did, the district would be notified.

The discussion led into one about cracks in a number of walls in the high school which the district claims is the result of mine subsidence. Stets said not all the preliminary legal matters have been completed and the process often takes five years. He said the damage is believed to have come from the mining of a vein of coal that Duquesne Light claims was mined by the Hillman Coal and Coke Co., a company which is no longer in existence.

Before taking the matter to court, Stets said the board would first have to learn how much it would cost to have the damage corrected.

Pothole Hotline Operating Again

WAYNESBURG — The Pothole Hotline Service for motorists to report bothersome potholes is now in operation, according to the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation.

Greene County residents can call the hotline at 800-342-8255 between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and report those annoying potholes.

"Not only is the hotline a service to Pennsylvania citizens, it is also a great assistance to our maintenance personnel," said John E. Claypool, district engineer for the four-county area. "Although our crews know the location of the majority of the potholes, we still want to operate the toll-free hotline and have motorists inform us of those we are not aware of so we can schedule the necessary repairs."

Claypool explained that "weather is the most significant contributor to the severity of the pothole problem. Excess water beneath the pavement weakens the surface tremendously, particularly when the ground starts to thaw in the spring."

It is obvious to most drivers that this year's winter weather has produced an increase in the number and size of potholes. "This has been a very severe winter, which is reflected in the number of potholes already formed," Claypool said. "Our crews have been out patching when weather permits and we will focus our attention to pothole repairs once the weather remains favorable," he said.

The Pothole Hotline service will end on April 13.

St. Patrick's Day Special

WAYNESBURG — St. Patrick's Day means something special to at least 11,453 residents of Greene County according to the Pennsylvania State Data Center located in Middletown.

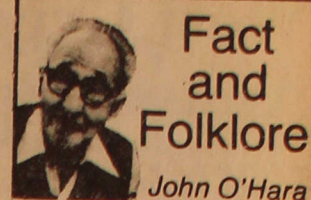

According to the latest statistics, there are 2,054 "totally Irish" families in the county. This means both parents are Irish. Also, there are 9,399 "part Irish" families meaning one parent is Irish.

There are 3.6 million Irish in Ireland but there are almost three times that many in the United States.

Pennsylvania ranks fourth in the nation in the number of Irish residents behind only New York, California and Massachusetts. New York has 1,009,905 citizens of Irish descent; California has 757,964; Massachusetts has 666,567 and Pennsylvania 621,106.

VETERAN EMPLOYEE — Harold D. Simms of New Freeport became a member of the Columbia Gas Transmission Corp.'s Quarter Century Club after completing 25 years of service with the company this month. He is a senior welder in Hurdred, W.Va., in the company's Cumberland Division.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

Among the unsung heroines of Greene County's early rural life, the "hired girls" are among the most deserving of recognition of any particular group who played important roles in the day-to-day existence "down on the farm."

While they have been virtually extinct for many years because of many reasons, in their day they were a vital part of rural family life. Their contributions to the happiness of many families too often went unnoticed despite the major roll they played in the lives of many families.

The need for their services was almost always acute.

In the days of big families when all food had to be prepared from scratch, so to speak, and much of the food had to be "put up" during the summer, it was virtually impossible for a farm wife to handle the many tasks alone.

A hired girl, as they were universally referred to, was as important within the household as the hired men (farm hands) were in the fields to get the crops planted and harvested and livestock cared for.

Most of them came from farms in the same locality and were anxious to have the work as there were few other jobs they could fill.

Practically the only work for women or girls in rural areas at that time was housework, especially if they had not completed elementary school to be qualified as school teachers.

That was in the days long before automobiles were in common use and it was to travel back and forth from town (Waynesburg) if and when store work was available. And there were no factories of any sort that employed women.

Having been reared on farms or in villages themselves, they easily adapted to domestic work in a farm home. Many were quite versatile and responded well to instructions in cooking, keeping house and helping care for younger children and older members of the family.

Many, too, seemed to have the natural green thumb of the born gardener and helped with planting and caring for the flower beds, the vegetable garden or "truck patch" as well as with the milking and feeding the flock of chickens which was then part and parcel of every family farm.

In the close-knit family life of those days when virtually the entire family spent every day in close personal contact, they furnished a needed touch of detachment of being not actually a part of the family to give good objective counsel on intra-family affairs.

On the other hand they were considered a part of the family by the community or locality in which they lived, shared in the respect paid the family by neighbors, participated in what social functions were enjoyed by the family, and generally attended the same church with them.

To the credit of most of the farm wives for whom the one-time army of hired girls worked, it must be recorded that they felt a great responsibility for giving them not only the benefit of their knowledge in how to run a household but also gave the best instruction of all, the good example of their own lives.

Strong and enduring bonds of affection naturally sprang from such a relationship and for many of the hired girls of those days the ties to the families for whom they worked were much like that to their own homes and families.

A new day dawned for their daughters after they had married, however, when the rise of rural high schools enabled them to become teachers, stenographers, secretaries, store clerks, etc.

That, coupled with the mobility of low priced cars to get them back and forth to work, made "working in town" at higher wages within the reach of practically everyone.

The almost immediate lack of girls or women for household work in rural areas was only a temporary hardship for farm wives, however, as rural electrification and refrigeration, convenience foods which could be prepared in minutes, day-to-day purchases of canned goods, and automatic controls for cooking changed the picture entirely. Now, many farm wives are themselves working outside the home.

As it turned out, fate seemed to shuffle things around so that the supply of hired girls ran out at just the time the need for them disappeared.

Guilty Of Assault

WAYNESBURG — A Jefferson man was found guilty of simple assault following a one-day trial Thursday in Greene County Court.

The defendant, Mark Policz, 22, was charged with assaulting Mark Johnston in an altercation which developed at a dance held in the Jefferson fire hall on Nov. 11, 1983.

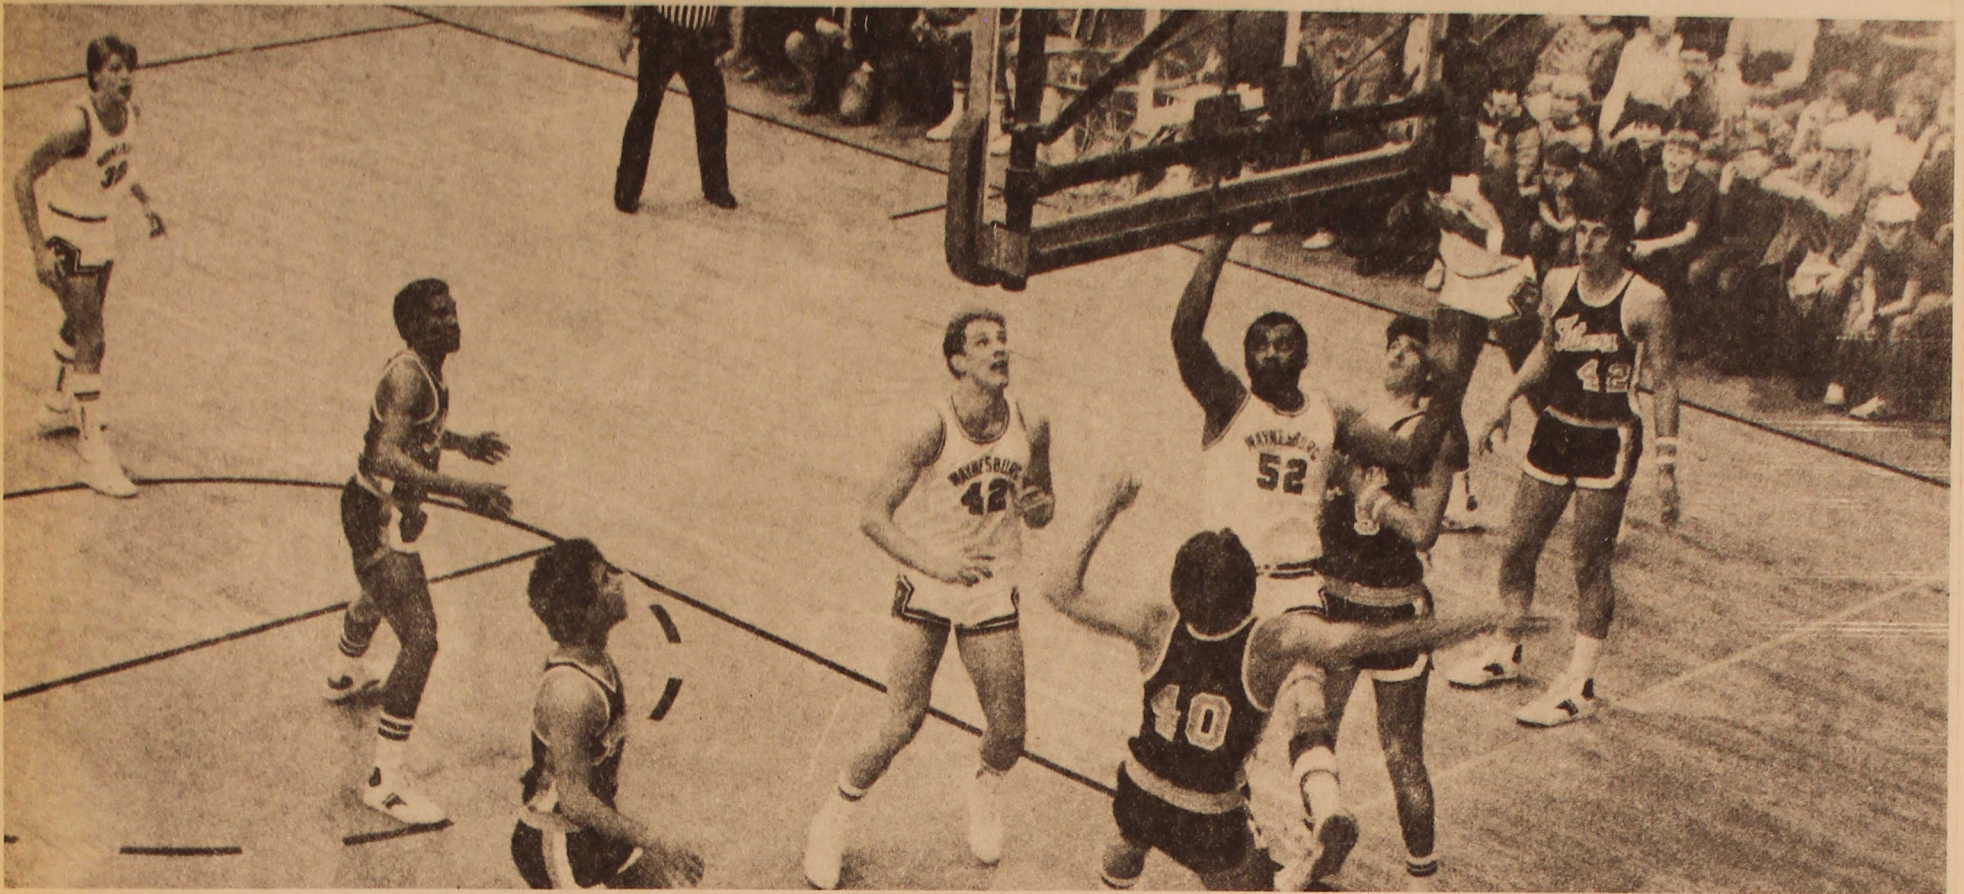

Johnston, in a private prosecution, charged that Policz struck him in the face for no reason, breaking his glasses and cutting him below the eye.

Policz denied the charge, stating that he had been harassed and that Johnston had grabbed his arm, causing him to attempt to pull loose and causing the injury.

Arizona Get-Together

More than 100 residents and former residents of Greene County gathered at Phoenix, Ariz. on the last Sunday of February for the annual picnic which brings together former countians who now reside in southern Arizona permanently as well as those who make their winter homes in the Phoenix area. Greene County Register and Recorder Thomas Headlee, who drove to Arizona for the gathering, took this picture of his father Russell Headlee, Mary and Les Shriver, and Carter Andrew enjoying the 75 degree temperature.

Jackets Can Pack For K.C.

By Tom Rose, O-R Sports Editor

WAYNESBURG — For one memorable evening in March, Wilbur Harrison (wherever he is now) has a legion of fans in this town.

Pointed in the direction by the blaring of Harrison's 1959 hit song "Kansas City," the Waynesburg College basketball team captured the NAIA District 18 championship here Wednesday night with a tension-packed 59-52 victory over Westminster.

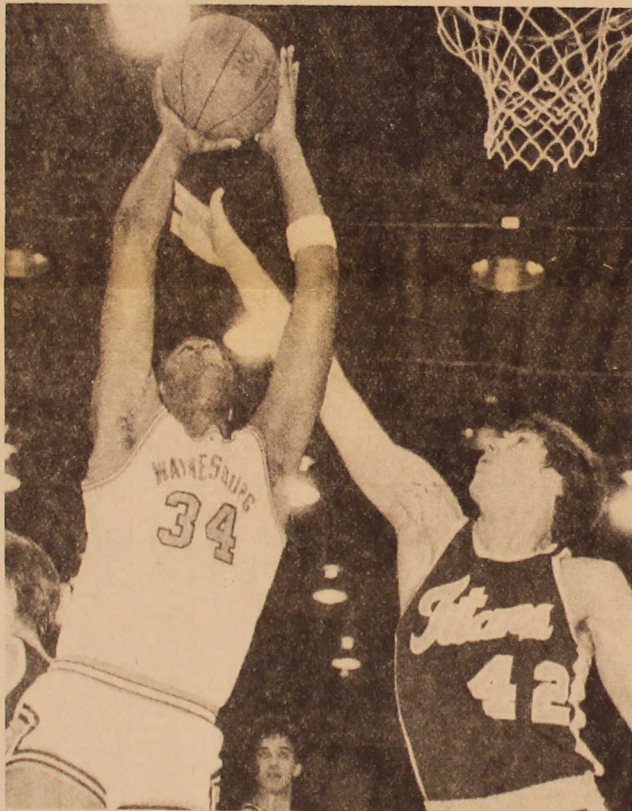

Yes, the 23-5 Jackets are now indeed heading for Harrison's million-dollar-making city and the NAIA National Basketball Championships next Wednesday at the Kemper Arena. Waynesburg will leave Tuesday morning from the Greater Pittsburgh Airport for the trip west, its second in four seasons.

But unlike the first two playoff round explosions against Penn State-Behrend and Point Park, this one was neither easy or explosive.

Just intense. The Titans, finishing the year at 17-11, worked their mistake-proof delay offense to resounding success in the first half. Westminster kept the overflow crowd and the Jackets at bay and forged a 21-16 lead with 7:31 left in the first half. The tempo, as both coaches admitted was critical to maintain before the game, was definitely in favor of the Titans.

"They did it to us up there," Waynesburg head coach Rudy Marisa said of a 71-59 loss, the only one in the past 19 games the Jackets have suffered. "It was their best chance to win, it's what I would have done. I have the strong urge to do it myself and I understand it."

While Marisa may have understood it, he didn't have to like it. And the Jackets dodged a potential fatal bullet in the first half, taking advantage of some Westminster foul trouble to fight off the slowdown game and forge a 30-29 halftime lead.

But the Titans' tactics, and an inhuman performance from their senior guard Craig Randall (13 points on just seven shots from the field and a free throw) forced Waynesburg to set a precedence. The Jackets abandoned their time-tested zone defense for a box-and-one, with senior guard Ray Natili drawing Randall.

The play worked early in the half, Randall was held in check, and when the Jackets surprised Westminster with a full man-to-man defense they turned the momentum of the game in their favor. The change helped lift Waynesburg to a 40-33 lead and allowed the Jackets to jump back into their sliding zone.

The defensive maneuvers held Westminster scoreless for nearly 10 minutes.

"We were committed to getting them out of their zone and playing man-to-man. If we would have scored and maintained a lead the game would have been different," Westminster head coach Ron Galbreath said.

The guy you might have expected to panic for Waynesburg, freshman forward Harold Hamlin, instead became an instant hero (see related story) with 18 points and some clutch free throw shooting. Junior Paul Stanley added 14 points while senior center Roosevelt Kirby, the victim of some double-team tactics under the boards, added 10.

The Jackets literally threw away an eight-point lead (51-43) with three minutes left to play by committing three successive turnovers which led to five unanswered points by Westminster. The margin was maintained when Randall, who finished with 23 points, hit a 22-foot jumper with 21 seconds left. Ironically, that's when Westminster's hero wore an unlikely goat's collar.

He quickly called a time out after hitting the shot, then anguished when he realized the Titans had exhausted their allotment. Natili hit a pair of technical foul shots and Stanley followed with a two-handed slam dunk with two seconds left to send the crowd streaming onto the floor.

And the Jackets winging toward Kansas City.

Hamlin Smooths Out The Wrinkles

By Bob Grove, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — Most of the bleeding had stopped by the time he was ready to shower, and Harold Hamlin was smiling. He'd never cut the net off a basketball rim before, and accidents happen. Right?

Besides, he's only a freshman. "Cut my hand on it, too," he said, holding a white wrist band spotted with blood. Yeah, it was a clumsy move.

But give the 6-6 graduate of Peabody High School a basketball, and he is mostly smooth. Wednesday night here at College Gym, he gave a silky, 18-point performance that helped Waynesburg College defeat Westminster and win its second NAIA District 18 title in four years.

"I feel good about it. I'm glad. We worked hard all year, and we deserved it," he said. "Now, we've got to go to Kansas City, play as a team and bring back another title. We're not going out there to lose our first-round game. We're looking to win. We want to win it all."

That's the sort of enthusiasm that can take an athlete a long way, and Hamlin plays the game with a lot of enthusiasm. And talent.

"He's a very talented athlete," says Waynesburg coach Rudy Marisa, "and he's in the right place almost all the time. There are occasions when we may see things that we can attribute to being a freshman, but those times are so overshadowed by all the good things he does I just brush them away."

Marisa was brushing early on Wednesday.

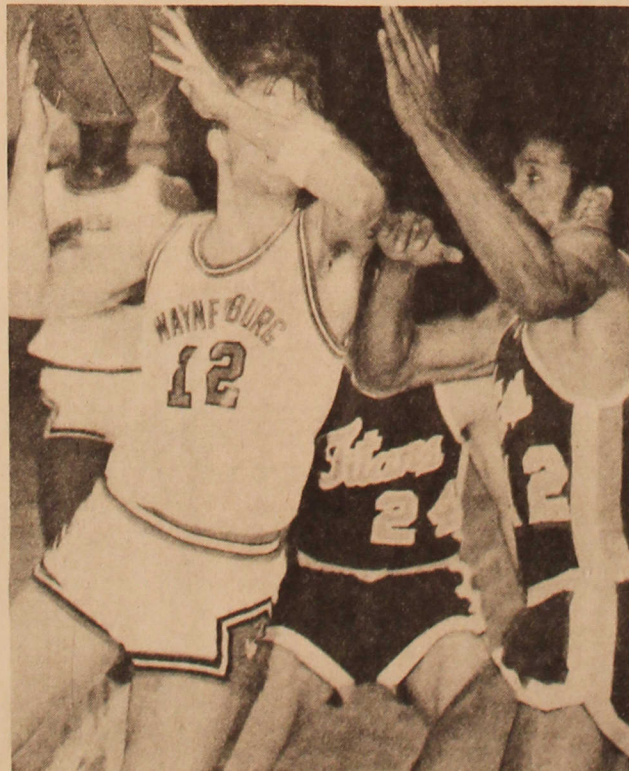

Hamlin's first shot of the game was a slam dunk, which is nice, but he followed by hanging on the rim a bit too long for referee Dutch Shamble's liking. It's a big game, but technicals happen. Right?

Remember, he's only a freshman. "I was a little nervous at the beginning," Hamlin said. "I had to get through that, and once I got through that I was all right. It took me about five minutes of the game. They (Westminster) really helped me by keeping the ball out front the way they did. And my first couple of shots went in — that helped a lot."

Brush No. 2 was an ongoing thing. Hamlin was one-for-four at the free throw line in the first half, five-for-eight in the second.

"But I'm glad I hit them down the stretch," he said. "I'm glad I made Ray Natili (12) of Waynesburg cuts into the Westminster defense to the basket.

Ray Natili Says Good-By In Style

By John Barker, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — The love affair nearly ended here Wednesday night. The one that's been played for four years between Ray Natili and anyone involved with Waynesburg College basketball.

Via a thrilling 59-52 victory over Westminster in the NAIA District 18 championship game, Natili will keep the flame alive for at least one more game.

Natili will lead the Yellow Jackets into the first round of the NAIA national playoffs beginning next Wednesday in Kansas City, Mo.

The point guard scored 14 points and kept the Jackets under control against the patient and determined Titans.

He did nearly the same in 1981 as Waynesburg's freshman point guard in a district championship game win over St. Vincent.

Only this one may be a little sweeter.

Natili's a senior and this could have been his last game.

"I haven't ever been happier," Natili said in the locker room. "This is a special feeling, different than the first time (1981) because this is a great way to end my career."

Natili's happiness was clearly evident immediately after sinking two technical foul shots called on Westminster with 21 seconds remaining in the game. The Titans had called a time out after closing the score to 55-52 but had none left and were assessed the technicals.

Natili, an 86 percent free throw shooter, made both and sealed the win for the Jackets.

"I knew they were out of time outs," Natili said, displaying his game alertness. "I was happy they called it but that was uncharacteristic of them. They are well-coached."

Perhaps even more fitting than his important free throws was his floor leadership. Twice in the last minutes of the game he calmed down teammates after close calls. Freshman Harold Hamlin and senior Roosevelt Kirby were violently upset after foul calls and Natili grabbed both before they lost their composure.

"I've said a million times that he's like a second coach out there on the floor," said Rudy Marisa, the Jackets' head coach. "He has talent, he understands what we are trying to do out there... he's multi-dimensional."

And, of all his dimensions, Natili's

Bartolomucci Steals Spotlight in Double-A

By Denise Bachman, O-R Sports Staff

One championship wasn't enough. As a matter of fact, neither were two. But three suits Marc Bartolomucci just fine.

And en route to his third consecutive WPIAL District 7 Class AA wrestling title Saturday night at Washington & Jefferson College, Bartolomucci also reached another milestone. He notched his 135th career victory, giving him the most career wins of any wrestler in WPIAL history according to head coach Dick Caputo.

The only void that remains for the Beth-Center High School senior, who beat Quigley's Phil Wagner at 119 pounds, 14-10, in the finals, is a PIAA Championship.

"This is a good way to end my senior year in the WPIAL," said Bartolomucci, who takes a perfect 36-0 record to states. "I'm really overwhelmed that I won it. But there's always room for improvement. I really don't want to be satisfied."

Bartolomucci was one of two Bulldogs to capture a WPIAL title, joining teammate Dave Kriebel (98), and one of 14 local wrestlers to advance to the PIAA Championships in Hershey, which begin Thursday. Avella also crowned two champions in Dean Simonelli (145) and heavyweight Eric Smith.

Other local champions included Washington's Rod Fuqua (105), West Greene's Rikk Walters (155), Bentworth's Kevin Myers (167) and Mapletown's Chris Homistek (185).

The top two wrestlers from each weight class advance to Hershey. As a result, West Greene qualified three, while South Fayette and Washington each qualified two.

Runnersup were the Pioneers' Kevin Huff (98) and Alvie Bedilion (145); Washington's Mike D'Alessandro (112); Fort Cherry's Warren Terhorst (126); and South Fayette's Joe Iagnemma (105) and heavyweight Mike Pasterky.

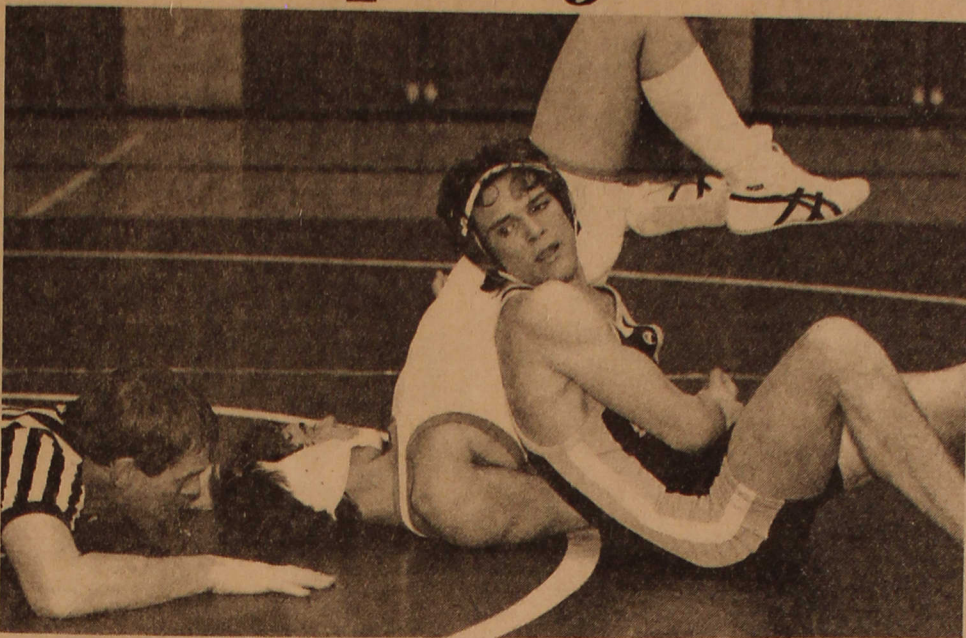

Although Bartolomucci's third title was never really in jeopardy, there were a few tense moments. But for somebody who has rarely been seriously threatened on the mat this year, Bartolomucci handled it well.

"I don't know what was wrong," Bartolomucci said. "I'm not pleased at all, but I'd rather wrestle like that this week than next week."

"I really wasn't on the offensive. I feel he was fired up. I know that when I wrestle someone who has done well in the past, I really go out after them. I guess I can use the theory as long as you win."

Caputo, who was named WPIAL Class AA Coach of the Year, never doubted that neither Kriebel, who pinned Huff, nor Bartolomucci would be crowned champions.

"I really thought for a long time that when Dave got down to 98 he'd be the best in the WPIAL," Caputo said. "I knew in the second period when he got the reversal it was just a matter of time before he put Huff on his back."

For Simonelli, Walters and Homistek, it was their second consecutive title. Of those three, Walters owns the only perfect season record at 38-0.

"Rikk made a couple of mistakes that he doesn't ordinarily make and it made it a closer match," said West

Greene head coach Buzz Walters of his son, who downed Carlynton's Mark Sutton, 7-5. "Rikk had a good boy and he did what he had to do when he needed to do it."

Simonelli, Myers and Homistek made it a little easier on themselves. Each recorded falls over Bedilion (5:54), Quigley's Brian Driscoll (3:21) and Avonworth's Ben Kramer (2:50), respectively.

"I feel like I'm hitting my peak. Now I have to work on my attitude," Simonelli said. "I need to be more positive. When you go up to states, it's like wrestling Triple-A wrestlers up there."

Smith will find that out. But for now the Avella sophomore is doing quite well. He knocked off Pasterky, the defending champion, 5-2, for the fourth time this season.

"He's developed enough confidence and he's competent at what he does," Avella head coach Ed Vorhes said of Smith. "There are a lot of sophomores who come along like him. Fortunately we have one of them."

Homistek is hoping he'll fare a bit better this year than he has the last two in Hershey. And after wrestling in freestyle qualifiers over the summer, which took him to Iowa, the land of the rich in wrestling talent, he feels he can.

"It helped me a lot overall. It helped me on my feet and it helped my confidence," Homistek said. "If you stop wrestling in the summer, it's like starting all over again in the winter."

"The first kid I wrestled was from Iowa and he caught me on my back. But he was only beating me 4-3 at the time."

In the tournament over the weekend, Homistek did not fool around with such close scores. He was the only competitor to pin his way to a WPIAL championship.

"This is the best I've been this season," Homistek said. "I'm far from peaking overall, you always have a lot more to learn. I'm trying not to put any pressure on myself, but I'm also trying a lot harder this year."

Class AAA

By Joe Tuscano, O-R Sports Staff

HEIDELBERG — The script couldn't have been better written for Tom Haught. On the mat in the finals of the WPIAL Class AAA Championships, he wrestled for more than the 132-pound title.

He was trying to do his head coach, John Abajace, one better.

He succeeded on both accounts.

Haught captured a 6-2 decision over Mark Barron of Seneca Valley which gave him his first WPIAL Championship and allowed the Trinity High School senior to pass Abajace on the Hillers' career win list.

Haught was one of 11 Section 7 wrestlers to advance into the PIAA Championships at Hershey this week.

Canon-McMillan came away from Chartiers Valley High School Saturday night the big winner, moving seven of 10 wrestlers to the tournament in Hershey. Chartiers-Houston had two and Trinity and Upper St. Clair had one each. The top four wrestlers in each weight class qualified for the state tournament, which begins Thursday.

Haught and the Bucs' Chris Mary (126) won championships while Canon-McMillan's Ron Rothka (98) finished second.

Taking third places were Rich McClain (105), Harvey Nichols (145) and heavyweight Rob Benjamin of Canon-McMillan; Patsy Vulcano (132) of Chartiers-Houston and Upper St. Clair's Mike Dinardo (98).

Fourth-place finishers included C-M's Paul Warchol (112), Tom Dobbin (132) and Ed Hartman (138).

Other District 7 champions included Gregg Johns (98) and heavyweight Ray Huckestein of North Allegheny; Joe Yancosky (105) of Mt. Pleasant; Mark Jenkins (112) of Uniontown; Chris Perri (119) of Mt. Lebanon; Hopewell's Alec Mutkus (138); John Peterman (145) of Penn Hills; Mike Tongel (155) of North Hills; Keystone Oaks' Mike Blair (167) and Ken Hackman (185) of Derry.

Haught's victory gives him 81 on the season, one more than Abajace. He's six short of tying the all-time mark held by Tom Sams (1978 graduate).

"He (Abajace) told me to go out and win it," Haught said. "I couldn't be happier. It feels great. There's probably only one better feeling, winning a state championship."

The win was also satisfying in that most people didn't believe Haught would even be in the tournament. A knee injury midway through the season required surgery and Haught wasn't expected to return in time for the Section 7 Tournament. But he did and Saturday night Haught came full circle.

"A lot of people counted me out," Haught said. "I had a lot to prove. I had to prove I could beat somebody even with a busted knee."

And he did it in Tom Haught style, smothering his opponents in a methodical manner. He took care of Tom Schrantz of Shaler, 10-0, Marc Speal of Greensburg Salem, 11-1, and Dave Snyder of Mt. Lebanon, 9-3, to reach the finals.

"It felt terrific," Abajace said when asked what his reaction was to Haught's passing him by winning a WPIAL title. "I told him everything came down to this."

Haught will take a 19-1-1 record to Hershey as well as renewed confidence in the knee.

"Tom wrestled with adversity," Abajace said. "He's very proud and a head-strong individual. He's proved he's a good wrestler."

Canon-McMillan head coach Dave Cook also had reason to be pleased.

"I'm really proud of these kids," he said. "We would've liked to have had a WPIAL champion but the object is to qualify. If you don't qualify, it doesn't matter."

Rothka nearly gave the Big Macs a title but came up just short, 2-1, against Johns in the finals.

"I felt he had a chance to win the match," Cook said. "They may meet again."

Natili A Steadying Force

knack for being part of a winning team is the one most clearly evident.

When he took the first few clips at the net following the game, it was his last stab at the limelight in Waynesburg.

It was both fitting and special. "I love the people here," Natili said hoarsely. "This has been a great four years and I couldn't have ended it any better. We get so much support from the fans; people always talk to us about the games. It's been great. I wouldn't trade these last four years for anything."

The Immaculate Conception High School graduate, who was a big part of the Comets' success, made a difference in the game, too.

He raced the Jackets on fast breaks when there were openings and slowed the tempo when Waynesburg forged their lead early in the second half. He even played Westminster's high-scoring Craig Randall (23 points) in a box-in-one defense in the second half. Randall was slowed by the tactics and helped Waynesburg, winners 18 times in its last 19 games, change the momentum of the game.

"It was my idea to try and stop Randall," Natili said. "They go to him first in their offense. It helped keep the ball away from him and once them at the end, when it counted."

All the while though, he was doing just about everything else right. In addition to his team-high 18 points, nine of which he scored in the second half, Hamlin grabbed a team-high eight rebounds, five in the first half.

"He played a very, very fine game," said Westminster coach Ron Galbreath. "He shot the ball well, he drove well... he didn't surprise me. Harold is a fine player and I think he and (Titans' 6-6 forward) Rich Kunselman are two of the best freshmen in the district."

With senior forward Mark Doppelheuer in foul trouble early and senior center Roosevelt Kirby hounded at every step by the Titans, a large portion of Waynesburg's inside game went to Hamlin.

"He played a hell of a game," said senior point guard Ray Natili. "He finally started hitting some fouls in the second half. I said, 'Harold, this is for all the marbles. I'm going home if we lose this one.'"

So Hamlin delivered, which is not surprising for someone who likes what they're doing and where they're at.

"When I first came here and saw what Coach Marisa's philosophy was, I knew it was a good decision," he says of his choice of colleges. "He makes you stay on the books, helps you prepare for life. As soon as I came here, I knew it was a good decision."

That decision promises to pay big dividends for both Hamlin and the Yellow Jackets in the future.

Bowling

Fairmont Supply and Piper's Construction each won shutout victories in Monday Night Women's Bowling League action at Arbor Terrace Center Lanes this week.

Vicky Bedilion rolled a 180 single and 506 series for the Piper's team while the losing Mankey Engineering squad was led by Cathy Brooks' 184 single and Connie Vernon's 500 series.

Linda Shuler tossed a 155 single and Sue Musgrave a 413 series to pace Fairmont Supply over Trempp Insurance who forfeited.

The Cokettes took three points from Baily Insurance behind Shirley Kerr's 222 single and 611 series. Betty Seamon tossed a 205 single and 573 series for the losers.

Mariner and Milliken Funeral Home split four points with Hopkins & Sons. Bonnie Kiger topped the Hopkins team with a 191 single and 502 series while Monnaruth Tennant rolled a 177 single and Donna Knisely rolled a 484 series for M&M.

State Money Helps Fight Pollution

HARRISBURG — State Treasurer R. Budd Dwyer has announced two school districts and a sewer authority in Greene County will soon receive more than $12,000 to help in the abatement of pollution.

The money will be used toward the cost of sewage treatment plants. The payments represent 2 percent of the costs involved.

Winners Again

Suddenly it was history — again. For the second time in four years, the Waynesburg College basketball team had clinched the NAIA District 18 championship and was going on to the nationals in Kansas City, Mo. As the final seconds ticked off the clock, the fans started streaming onto the gym floor and the crowd became a blur of happy faces, handshakes, and hugs. But some memorable faces stood out in the tense playoff games which started with a 103-72 win over Behrend on Friday, and a 102-77 victory over Point Park on Monday that led to the final game with Westminster Wednesday night. Some of the faces included senior forward Mark Doppelheuer, shouting encouragement from the bench, Assistant Coach Rich Relich making a point during the Point Park game, and Coach Rudy Marisa giving instructions to the team during a time out. Paul Stanley, junior guard, beams a winning smile near the end of the Point Park game, showing an injury from another sport — football. And, senior point guard Ray Natili starts the victory celebration by cutting the net off the basketball rim while held up by teammates Doppelheuer and senior center Roosevelt Kirby. It was all over. And, it was history.

ISAAC MOREDOCK

Isaac Moredock, 89, Rices Landing, board chairman of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Greene County for more than 58 years, died at 4:30 a.m. Monday, March 12, 1984 in Monongalia General Hospital, Morgantown, W. Va., following a brief illness.

In addition to his more than 50 years of service as a director of First Federal Savings and Loan, he was also a director and president of the former Rices Landing National Bank until it merged with the Gallatin Bank and was prominent in banking and financial circles throughout Pennsylvania.

He was also widely known throughout Greene County for having served 34 years as a rural delivery mail carrier, a post he held until his retirement from the U.S. Postal Service in 1955.

A son of William and Elizabeth Hewitt Mordock, he was born February 23, 1895 in Jefferson Township and had resided all his life in the Rices Landing area. He was an active member of the Hewitt Presbyterian Church at Rices Landing, where he had served as a member of the board of trustees. He was also active in community and professional affairs throughout his life and was an avid hunter and outdoorsman.

He joined the postal service as a rural carrier at the Rices Landing post office on January 7, 1921. He first used a horse-drawn car and like to recall that he did not change to an automobile until he "became convinced they were here to stay."

He transferred to the Carmichaels post office in 1941 and at the time of his retirement in 1955 had a route which covered 55 miles and served 600 patrons — one of the longest routes in Greene County.

As principal officer of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Greene County, he played a key role in a growth of assets from several thousand dollars in 1924 to more than $205 million in 1984. He became a director in 1925 and had served as chairman of the board since that time. He also served as association president from 1938 to 1947 and again in 1960.

His first wife, Maude Price Moredock, died in 1959.

He is survived by his second wife, Josephine King Moredock, and several nieces and nephews.

Two brothers, Robert and Harry Moredock, are deceased. A sister died in infancy.

Frederick C. Noak

Frederick C. Noak, 72, of Waynesburg R.D.2, formerly of Nemaacolin, was dead on arrival at Greene County Memorial Hospital Sunday, March 11, 1984, of an apparent heart attack.

He was born October 30, 1911, at Pittsburgh, a son of the late Martin and Marie Bradley Noak.

He was a retired coal miner with the Buckeye Coal Co. Mr. Noak was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Carmichaels, and UMWA Local 6290, Nemaacolin. He had served in the U.S. Army.

Surviving are his wife Myrtle Ellen Kairat Noak, one son, Fred Noak Jr., of Belle Vernon; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Amanda Basinger

Amanda Louise Basinger, two-year-old daughter of Timothy L. and Debra Milbrad Basinger of Waynesburg R.D.1 (Lippincott), died at 8:50 a.m. Friday, March 9, 1984 in Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, after a long illness.

Miners, L&J Accuse Each Other

WAYNESBURG — An end soon to the nine-month strike at the L&J Equipment Co. strip mine site in Greene County appeared remote following developments in Greene County Court Tuesday during which both the company and the United Mine Workers charged each other with repeated acts of violence.

The latest incident, for which the UMW and striking L&J employees deny any responsibility, was the dynamiting early Saturday morning of a dragline, with damage estimated at $100,000 by L&J President James Filiaggi of Uniontown.

Tuesday's hearing was scheduled last week when L&J charged the union with violation of earlier court orders and additionally asked that two UMW officials and two L&J employees be barred from the picket line at the strip mine site in Monongahela Township, adjacent to the Hatfield Ferry power plant.

The hearing was not held after Judge Glenn Toothman agreed to a request for a two-week postponement provided that both sides live up to a commitment to maintain a peaceful picket site.

Unless there are further acts of violence in the meantime which would justify earlier court action, the hearing has been rescheduled for 10 a.m. Tuesday, March 27.

During the two-week truce period, the UMW agreed to keep off the picket line two striking L&J employees singled out by the company as troublemakers. They are Marshall Morris and Robert Chessler.

The agreement, however, did not include two UMW officials who L&J also wanted banned from the site. They are Joseph Monovich, assistant acting administrator for organizing, and Thomas R. Samek, a rank-and-file organizer.

Both the union and the company agreed to discipline any of their people who violate the peace agreement.

Workers at L&J Equipment have been on strike since July 23 in protest of unfair labor practices, claiming that Filiaggi refused to recognize a 39-33 vote by his employees for union representation by the UMW. While occasional negotiating sessions have been held since that time, no contract agreement has been reached.

In the meantime, Filiaggi has been operating the strip site with employees who did not go out on strike and he is attempting to have the National Labor Relations Board ruling set aside and a new election held.

William M. Radcliffe of Uniontown, Filiaggi's attorney, told the court Tuesday that people on the picket line have blocked the entrance to the mine site off Route 21, have pursued the cars of employees, have stoned them.

Kurt Kobelt, a UMW attorney from Washington, D.C., countered Tuesday by charging that Filiaggi last week attempted to run over two pickets, Don Brotherton and Marshall Morris. He also charged that Filiaggi had challenged Joseph Monovich to a fist fight and that Sam Newman, an L&J employee, had assaulted picket James Maraney.

Following the hearing postponement, Radcliffe and Filiaggi claimed that virtually all L&J employees have returned to work, with "only a handful" remaining on the picket line.

"There is total employment on the strip," Filiaggi said. "We have 30 men working there every day and they are all people who have worked for me for years."

The company president claimed that the strike has become one in which the United Mine Workers is bringing in people to man the picket lines.

The union, on the other hand, claims that there are no more than 15 or 18 L&J employees who are working out of the 84 employees Filiaggi had when the strike was called.

Cheerleaders Will Be There To Root For Basketball Team In Kansas City

WAYNESBURG — Five of the Waynesburg College cheerleaders, following a hectic fund drive, will be joining the championship basketball team in Kansas City tonight for the opening round of the NAIA National Championships.

Members of the Student Senate voted Monday, their first day back to school after spring break, to give $1,000 toward the cheerleaders' expenses. Townspeople chipped in another $150 and Jack McNelly of Central Cab Company in Waynesburg offered a discount fare.

The cheerleaders boarded a bus with nine other fans at 9 p.m. Tuesday night for the 17-hour trip to Kansas City.

LONG CAREER — Andrew J. Gresh, 42, of Waynesburg, a Duquesne Light Co. employee, marks his 35-year employment anniversary this month. He is a miner at the company's Warwick Mine near Greensboro. A native of Greensboro, he is a graduate of Mapletown High School and served in the U.S. Navy from 1951 to 1955. He is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 6303. He and his wife are the parents of two sons.

WINNER — Angela Bates, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bates of Jefferson, was named second alternate for talent in the 3-6 division of the Town and Country Mini-National Pageant held in Warren, Ohio. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Chaney of New Freeport and William Bates Sr. of Jefferson. Her great-grandmother is Ella Schramm of Waynesburg. She attends kindergarten in the Jefferson-Morgan School District and the Pitt Gas Missionary Church.
