COMPLETES BASIC

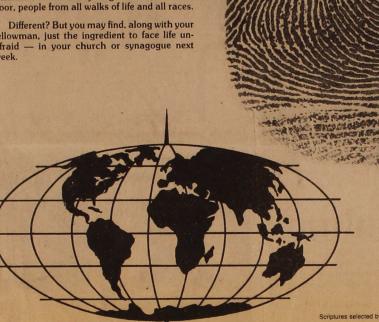

Army Reserve Pvt. William R. Dallison, son of William Dallison of Philadelphia and Marsha McMahon of Mt. Morris, has completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He is a 1983 graduate of Bellaire High School in Ohio. YOU'RE DIFFERENT

There is no one in the world who has a fingerprint exactly like yours. Nor does anyone else have the same texture of hair - identical personality or even the same problems that you

One thing is certain, though. We all have problems. They may differ from person to person, but they all require the same two things the courage to face them and the strength to Where then can we, among millions of different people, find the problem-solving courage and strength to ease our course through life? For centuries people have been going to the Church. It welcomes young and old, rich and poor, people from all walks of life and all races.

Different? But you may find, along with your fellowman, just the ingredient to face life unafraid - in your church or synagogue next

West Greene Open To Suggestions On Crouse School

By Christie Molzon, Staff Writer

ROGERSVILLE — Because the West Greene School District has received a number of inquiries about restoring the Crouse School, a one-room brick schoolhouse still owned by the district, the school board Thursday night agreed to hear any proposals for saving the school.

At its meeting last month, the board agreed — with some reluctance to sell the building which is about 80 years old. Although school groups and civic organizations over the years have restored the building located along Route 21, vandals have always managed to destroy their work.

The possibility of making another attempt to restore the school was raised when elementary school Prin-

By Marcia Biddle, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS - The Borough of Carmichaels again has its mayor and council president and vice presi-

At a special meeting Thursday evening, the remaining four council members voted unanimously not to accept the resignations of Mayor Dorothy Helmick, President Betty Morris and Vice President Betty Hudson which were submitted at the regular council meeting on March 7. The three women, who were present at the meeting, then withdrew their letters of resignation.

"since council will not accept my resignation, I will reconsider my action and will withdraw it," Mrs. Morris said. Mrs. Helmick and Mrs. Hudson did the same.

At the March 7 meeting, the women said they had been receiving anonymous threatening phone calls and abusive criticism. They said the threats were the reason for their resigning, but declined to discuss signing, but declined to discuss whether or not there were specific issues which brought about the threats.

After Thursday's meeting, Mrs. Morris revealed that her car had been vandalized last Friday night and that she had received one additional threat. Mrs. Hudson and Mrs. Helmick said they had not received further harassment.

All expressed the hope that bringing the situation into the open might improve it. They said they believed the threats have come from a small minority of persons and that many people had come to them to express their wishes that they remain in of-

Mrs. Morris said, "Many people have asked me not to guit because we have laid too much groundwork here to let it go by the way. I am willing to

As achievements of council over the past two years, she listed the borough's balanced budget, payment of all back debts amounting to around $10,000 which were inherited from past administrations, payment of current bills on time, with no increase in the 14 mill property tax since 1980, plus the employment of a borough secretary to work increased hours.

She also said: "We know own property which will increase in value and soon will have a new borough building."

Mrs. Morris scheduled a general committee meeting for March 28 to work on plans for continued construction of the new building. Construction was started last fall but has been held up because of weather conditions.

She reported that the engineers are ready to proceed and that a Labor and Industry inspector visited the site last week and said that construction to date met with his approval.

Another council member, Patricia Frankenberry, had resigned earlier in February citing personal reasons. Greg Peccon was elected to take her place on March 7 but was not present to be sworn in at that time.

The only objection raised to the officials remaining on council came from Chris Watson, a former council Councilman John Yurick also re-plied: "If we didn't want her back on we wouldn't have voted that way.

In the only other item of business, council voted to grant a variance to John Galatic for building a garage on his lot to replace one that is being torn down. The variance was said to be necessary because the lot was not wide enough to meet the required six-foot distance from each property line.

Mrs. Morris said she will ask a planning committee to work with the building inspector to amend the building ordinance to cover such situ-

Refuse Collection Firm Files Lawsuit Against Clarksville

CLARKSVILLE — The owner of a Clarksville refuse collection company which formerly had the solid waste franchise in Clarksville Borough is seeking damages from the borough in connection with termination of its contract more than a year

Thomas L. Beglin of T&B Disposal Services, Clarksville R.D.1, claims in a lawsuit filed Wednesday in Greene County Court that borough council acted improperly in a number ways in replacing him with Yelenik's Sanitation Service, Frederick-town R.D.1, on Dec. 20, 1982.

Named as defendants in addition to the borough itself were four members of council at that time, Robert Parker, Albert Kingan, Roberta Ross and Joseph Shulsky, and Mayor Bernard Cirota.

The complaint states that Beglin was first given a permit as the exclusive solid waste collector for the borough on June 12, 1978, and held it until October 1982, when he was notified that the borough was terminating his agreement and opening the charged were taken from three firms on Dec. 13 of that year, and at a special meeting on Dec. 20 council awarded the contract to Yelinek.

The complaint notes that the four councilmen named as defendants voted for Yelinek. Council members Frank Fudala and Lance Sahady voted while three members, Clifford Perkins, Gerald Fowler and Porter Remington, abstained.

The plaintiff contends that council violated the Sunshine Law by requiring bidders to leave the meeting on Dec. 13 while they discussed their bids; that it did not properly advertise the special meeting on Dec. 20; that it had no formal resolution or ordinance approved by the mayor which would empower it to award the franchise, and that it has no written contact with Yelinek.

Beglin is asking the court to void the contract with Yelinek, surcharge the four council members who voted to award the contract, and award him damages based on profit he would have made since Jan. 1, 1983, plus interest.

'We are very grateful to these chairmen who wanted to win our district." - Ray

By Tom Rose, O-R Sports Editor

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - It seemed like a cruel way to end the most successful basketball season in Waynesburg College history.

But at the same time, it was a learning experience in more ways

The Yellow Jackets, with earlier victories over seventh-seeded Denver University and 10th-ranked St. Mary's (Tex.) discovered they indeed belonged among the final eight teams in the NAIA Basketball Tournament

But what they learned Saturday night during a humbling 87-55 loss to second-ranked Fort Hays State (Kan.) at the Kemper Arena, are the requirements to reach the final four.

"I honestly believed we could hang in there with them," Waynesburg head coach Rudy Marisa said shaking his head. "But at the same time you've just seen one of the most powerful teams in this tournament and frankly one of the most powerful teams I've seen in my 15 years of coaching here. My guys have got some talent too, and I thought we could hang with them, but they just were too much.

Fort Hays State, 33-2 overall entering tonight's semifinal game against third-seeded Chicago State, has now moved into the favorite's role with the ouster of top-ranked West Virginia Wesleyan in the quarterfinals.

But the end will finally arrive for Roosevelt Kirby here when the Waynesburg College basketball team transfer Edgar Eason provided the scoring with 24 and 18 points, respectively, and point guard Raymond Lee added the passing, with a school-record 18 assists. Four of the Tigers' starters are returning from last year's team that finished third in the national tournament.

"They're a major college program playing small college basketball," Ray Natili, who finished his brilliant career at Waynesburg with a solid allaround tourney performance, said. "We could have played our best game of the year and still lost by 15, they would have had to play a poor game for us to beat them.

"I'm disappointed we didn't play a little better, but we showed how good ve are by getting the chance to meet them in the quarterfinals. A lot of teams didn't get this far."

Waynesburg, finishing its finest season at 25-6, stayed in contention through the first 10 minutes behind Paul Stanley's shooting. But Fort Hays State, leading 17-14, took com-mand of what had been a fast-paced game by employing its stall offense. The Tigers scored a pair of easy baskets off their four-corner alignment to take a 21-14 lead and never looked back.

From that point Fort Hays State seemingly scored at will, and Waynesburg didn't have the fire-power, or the favorable position on the scoreboard, to match baskets.

I feel the margin of the game may be a bit misleading because of the fact they slumped and didn't play up to their capabilities," Fort Hays State coach Bill Morse said. "We wanted to spread out that zone because it's tough, they beat a very good Good Year For Kirby

Fort Hays State outscored the Jackets 25-12 over the final 10 minutes of the first half for a 42-26 halftime advantage, and by that time both teams were facing and trying to deal with reality. The Tigers were preparing for a national championship bid, while Waynesburg was beginning to look back on a season of smiles through tear-filled eyes.

"I told the team we were better than Waynesburg and it would be a crime if we didn't go out and put them burg basically relies on five players and had to play two close games to get here. Psychologically, they seemed

The Tigers had a great deal to do with Waynesburg's condition, as they failed to even allow a hint of a comeback. A pair of 10-point runs in the final 10 minutes of play turned the game into a rout with Rollins, who hit 10 of 15 high-percentage shots, and Eason conducting a clinic.

Lee added 11 points for Fort Hays State while Harold Hamlin finished his freshman season at Waynesburg with 12. Fort Hays State outrebounded the Jackets 42-27 and shot 55.9 percent from the field while Waynesburg hit 40 percent.

They took no prisoners, they crushed us," Marisa said. "I believe it's a classic case of us not playing up to par while the other team looked at fooled around for a little while, and got the momentum. Maybe our guys thought they had accomplished enough with upsetting two highly-seeded teams in the tournament and I can picture that happening, my guys came in getting no credit at all.

After 35 minutes of listless, lack-play, Waynesburg finally grabbed a measure of momentum to edge the seventh-seeded University of Denver, 58-56 in overtime.

"Playing out in this (Kemper) arena affected both teams very much," Waynesburg assistant coach Larry Marshall said immediately after the game, which ended at 12:10 EST. "The players wanted it so much but they had to wait around and probably started to think too much."

Both teams were victims of numerous turnovers, poor shooting and tentative play. And the crowd of 5,558 began to grow restless with both, taunting the players and officials to find their groove.

No one did, until Waynesburg rallied to grab its first lead since the early moments of play when Mark Doppelheuer scored from inside with

But for the Yellow Jackets' senior point guard Ray Natili, the hurt he felt after Waynesburg was van-quished by Fort Hays State (Kan.) 78-55 in the NAIA quarterfinals here Saturday night didn't last long.

Reality, grim during the 40 minutes spent on the Kemper Arena floor against powerful Fort Hays State, soon gave a reprieve and finally allowed a smile of satisfaction as Natili realized his career was over.

"By halftime it started to set in that this was going to be it," Natili said Sunday morning, a little more than 12 hours after the Jackets' record-breaking season came to a sudden end. "It's going to hit me more in the fall that this is really the end. Every season has ended with a loss in the playoffs, so this isn't new. But when the fall rolls around and I'm used to getting started again, well, I guess that'll be when it really hits

The Cinderella story here also provided a stage for the Jackets' other seniors, center Roosevelt Kirby and forward Mark Doppelheuer Kirby was the last link to a team in search of a championship, as his ex-perience and unquestioned talents finally jelled with the team at mid-

And of course, two NAIA District 18 championships.
"Our seniors certainly have noth-

But their season is over, one that had sunk to an all-time low on a snowy January night in Davis, W.Va., and a scintillating peak in the middle of the Kansas City stockyards where the Kemper Arena stands. The Jackets, ranked 26th in the 32-team tournament, were the only unseeded team to reach the quarterfinals.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - For the past two days, Waynesburg College freshman Harold Hamlin has taken more than his share of good-natured the Jackets' first round overtime victory over Denver University in the NAIA Basketball Tournament here, It may be a complimentary nickname unwanted reputation for Hamlin.

o when Hamlin received his second chance here Friday in the tour-ney's second round, he made sure he left his nerves in the hotel and brought his considerable talent to the Kemper Arena.

Hamlin, who finished with 19 points, stoned 10th-seeded St. Mary's (Tex.) with an eight-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining in regulation to lift Waynesburg to a stunning 61-59 victory. The Yellow Jackets, fast becoming the crowd's darlings with upsets of seventh-ranked Denver and highly-touted St. Mary's, will now meet Fort Hays State (Kan.) in to-night's (7:45 p.m.) quarterfinals.

Fort Hays State, seeded second, defeated Central Wesleyan (S.C.), 76-68 last night to advance.

Hamlin was not the intended hero, as Waynesburg worked for the game-winning shot as the clock wound down. But Paul Stanley, the team's designated shooter, was double-teamed in the corner behind a screen his way clear to spot Hamilin alone.

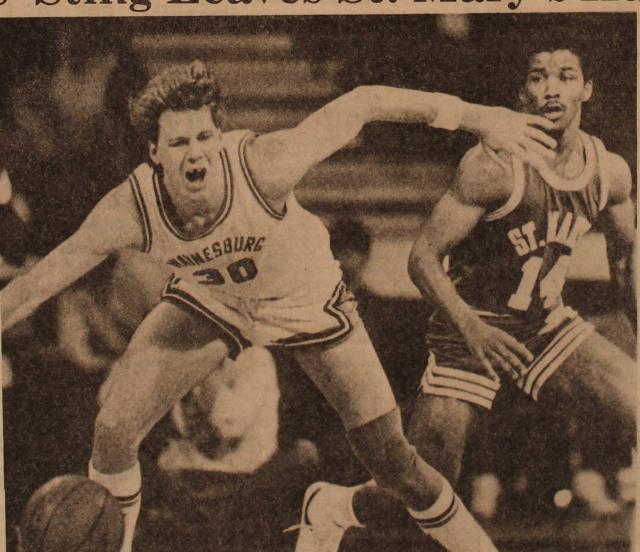

And the 6-6 freshman didn't miss his chance at redemption.

"The play was designed for Paul in the corner but when I was at the top of the key I saw he was in trouble. So I just cut toward the baseline toward him and he split between two men and found me," a smiling Hamlin said. "I was a little behind the backboard so I had to shoot it straight in

"I was just terrible on Wednesday, I just wanted to do the best I could to make up for it.'

For a while it appeared the Jack-ets, who set a school record by recording their 25th win against five losses, would hardly need any last second heroics. Waynesburg challenged St. Mary's (now 25-8) at what it does best and beat the Rattlers in a fast break tempo to grab a 37-26 halftime lead.

The Jackets broke a 22-22 tie with seemed to take control "I just pleaded with them not to panic," Waynesburg coach Rudy Marisa said. "I don't think we lost our composure, we lost our momentum We wanted to be patient at that point because I didn't think they'd be." And Marisa was right. St. Mary's grabbed the lead and momentum and then inexplicably called off its press and held the ball. It gave the Jackets an opportunity to regroup and the game finished in a tension-packed match of wits and ball control.

One that Waynesburg would eventually win.

When we slowed it down I wanted our guys to go for a good shot," said a visibly disappointed St. Mary's coach Buddy Meyer. "We were in a position to control our destiny, but we just did

"Aw, there shouldn't have even been a comeback to be made, it's not been a comeback to be made, it's not like we're playing Fort Hays State. You can make any excuse you want, and throw in all the ifs, ands and buts you want to, we just didn't execute." didn't execute.

added 11. St. Mary's brilliant senior guard Melvin Roseboro led all scorers with 23 points and was the only Rattler in double figures. Michael Speight, who averages 13 points per game and was impressive in the Rattlers' first round nipressive in the Rattiers' first round victory over St. John's (Minn.), had just one field goal and six points. St. Mary's outrebounded Waynes-burg 31-25.

Alberts, Maughan Win Their Way Into Hall

By Joe Tuscano, O-R Sports Staff

They will wrestle over 500 bouts in the PIAA Championships beginning tomorrow in Hershey. By week's end, there will be champions to recognize and losers to console. And before the three-day tournament concludes, there will be a ceremony as important to the sport as any match.

It will be to remember the past and to honor the former wrestlers who have set the groundwork for today's advancement in the sport. Tom Alberts, Arthur Maughan and Joe Shook will be part of that ceremony. The three, along with seven others, will be inducted into the Pennsylvania Wrestling Hall of Fame.

Tom Alberts sits back in his chair, his arms folded and his eyes glued straight ahead. He's an intense man, who is admittedly uncomfortable talking about himself. He really doesn't have to since his records ac-

"After all these years, I thought they had forgot about me," said Al-berts, a physical education teacher at Trinity High School. "I thought by the time they got around to me there would be people with so much better records I would never get in.

"I was always around good people and they had a lot of influence on me. My coach in the Navy was responsible for giving me confidence in my ability, even though at the time I went into the service, I had won a lot of

While Alberts has a lot of fond memories of wrestling, there were also some difficult times and bitter disappointments. In 1955, he was mysterious replaced on the Pan American team, he says, after a referee changed his mind on the decision three days after the match.

- Hoping to make the Olympic team in 1966, Alberts' only loss removed him from the tournament.

Alberts entered Pitt in 1951 but left for the Navy after one year. It was there he won two Virginia AAU titles and placed third in the National AAU Tournament. He returned to Pitt in 1955 and won the NCAA title at 167 pounds in 1957. Ironically, he beat Ralph Schneider of Waynesburg College in the finals. He returned to the finals again the following year but was defeated.

"Really, the high was anytime I won a tournament," Alberts said. "Probably my highest point was winning nationals. The lowest point was losing in my senior year because it was my last shot."

Alberts had many ventures after college, working in a dental lab, su-pervising a mobile home park and dabbling in construction before settling into teaching. He credits his wrestling background with much of the success he's had in life.

A Canonsburg High School graduate, Maughan compiled an 85-8 record and finished as a PIAA runnerup in both his sophomore and junior seasons before capturing the 112-pound state title in 1959.

"When I was a kid, the thing to do was be a wrestler," said Maugham in a telephone interview from his home. "It was the biggest sport in the city. And all my success in wrestling was due to my head coach, Andy Puchany.'

Maughan entered Indiana Univer-isty in Bloomington and was a teammate of Shook before transferring to Moorehead State in his sophomore season. A three-time varsity letter winner, Maughan won three national titles - two NAIA championships and an NCAA Division I title.

He captured both an NAIA title, at 123 pounds, and an NCAA crown, at coaching and found great success. He has amassed a 200-56-6 record while coaching 55 All-Americas. His teams have finished in the top 10 of the NCAA Division II the past 12 years. The past two years, NDSU has finished second in the NCAA and Maughan was named NCAA Division II Coach of the Year in 1982. "I take a little different approach to coaching," Maughan said. "I re-cruit good kids, either state cham-pions or good wrestlers. My philosophy is nobody reaches their full potential. Whatever you think your best is, we try to extend it by 50 percent. We don't accept losing, we expect you to win. It just goes back to the way I was brought up."

And it reflects the way his two sons have been brought up. His oldest son, Jack, was a two-time state champion in high school and was named All-America at NDSU while his younger son, Bret, captured his second straight state title in just his sophomore season in high school.

CARMICHAELS - The Carmichaels Area School Board has signalled its intention of adhering strictly to its policy which limits the number of fund-raising activities a school group

At its monthly meeting Thursday, the board authorized a hoagie sale by the high school French Club only if it has not already held the three fundraisers permitted under the policy. The action was taken despite a comment by Principal William Harr that the limitation might make it impossible for club members to raise the money they need for a planned trip to

Board member Erma Jean Thomas said that if exceptions are made for any group it would be impossible to refuse other equally worthy requests. The board directed that in future the number of fund-raisers already held be noted on such re-

While the request by the French Club was granted conditionally, the board did approve hoagie sales by the Junior Standing Committee and National Honor Society, a candy bar sale in the elementary grades, and a donkey basketball game by the Senior Standing Committee.
The board also discussed the need for a policy establishing rules for use of the high school softball field by adult teams during the spring and summer months, including a requirement that the grounds be cleaned up after games, with board member Edward Tekavec stating that in the past debris, including broken bottles, has frequently littered the area.

"In my opinion school grounds are for the kids," he said. "If adults abuse the privilege of using the field, they should be barred from its use."

The board accepted, with regret, a letter from Fred Stuvek announcing his intention to retire at the end of the current school year. Stuvek has been a teacher and coach in the district for
