PRIMARY: Supervisor, Tax Posts Popular

WAYNESBURG — Supervisor and tax collector are popular positions with people who are running for office this year in Greene County townships.

A survey of nominating petitions filed by candidates seeking nomination to township offices in the May 21 primary election indicates there will be contests for those two posts in most of the 20 townships. Other offices to be filled are those of auditor, assessor and constable.

A roundup of candidates in each of the townships:

ALEPPO — Incumbent Earl Cook will be opposed for the Democratic supervisor nomination by Fred C. Courtwright, Ralph Mason and Charles W. Varner. B.L. Simms is unopposed for the Republican nomination. Incumbent Tax Collector Margaret Riffe and Barbara J. Jones are running for the Republican nomination. Democratic tax collector candidates are Grace Cumberledge Riggle and Annette Pierson.

Democrat Helen Simms is running for assessor; Democrats Wylie F. Cheek and Alexa Inghram are running for constable, and Democrat Leslie R. Dulaney is a candidate for auditor.

CENTER — While incumbent Supervisor Donald E. Main has no opposition for the Republican nomination, there are four candidates for the Democratic nomination. They are Paul R. Cook, James H. Reed, William L. Pettit and George L. Kennedy. Tax Collector Dona L. Main will be opposed for the Republican nomination by Ruthanna M. Waychoff, Barbara S. Morris, Beth Ann Bristor and Joyce E. Watson are candidates for the Democratic tax collector nomination. Democrat Samuel L. King and Republican Ruth M. Chambers are running for auditor, and Democrat Harold L. Cook is a candidate for constable.

CUMBERLAND — Incumbent William (Bud) Schifko will have opposition for the Democratic supervisor nomination from August Angelini, Clyde M. Jeffries, John L. Fox and Homer W. Nicholson. Frank P. Walters is unopposed for the Republican nomination. Incumbent Tax Collector Mildred Winger will have opposition in the Democratic primary from Christine Worch Kalist, Eleann (Susie) Keener, Ruth E. Smith and Betty I. Uveges. There is no Republican candidate. Democrats Donald Chesney and Daniel (Mike) Lucas are running for constable. Democrat Gertrude Busti is unopposed for assessor, as is Democrat Wayne M. Long for auditor.

DUNKARD — Incumbent Supervisor Marvin L. Moody will have opposition in the Democratic primary from Richard J. Barzanti and Michael D. Bliss. Melvin McAllister is running against incumbent Joe Magon for the Democratic nomination for tax collector, while Mary Lou Yost has no opposition for the Republican nomination. Democrat David Bruce Kovalcheck is running for assessor and Democrat Jacalyn V. Malone for auditor.

FRANKLIN — Incumbent Supervisor Robert K. Morris will have opposition in the Democratic primary from Richard C. Cummins, John Harvey Higgins and Paul (Jack) Kelly. There is no Republican candidate. Incumbent Tax Collector Doris Engle will have opposition for the Democratic nomination from Penny Elliott Buckholder, Frances J.

Davis, Margie E. Mason and Bonnie L. Throckmorton, with Rose Bigley being unopposed for the Republican nomination. There is also a contest for constable between Democrats Johnny Bill Hughes, Oliver W. Kelley and George H. Haines. Democrat Bonnie J. Smouse is unopposed for auditor and Democrat Ruth A. Masters for assessor.

FREEMONT — Incumbent Sam Cunningham is one of three candidates running for the Democratic nomination for supervisor. He is opposed by William J. Wise and Terry A. Phillips. Robert Braun has no opposition for the Republican nomination. Diane C. Barnhart, a Democrat, is the only candidate for tax collector. Brent A. Ross, Terry A. Phillips and Ronald C. Montgomery are competing for the Democratic nomination for constable, with Carl A. Cooper being unopposed for the Republican nomination. Democrat Cynthia A. Varner is running for assessor and Democrat Danny K. Miller for auditor.

GILMORE — There are no primary election contests in Gilmore Township. Incumbent J. Robert Rice is a candidate for the Republican nomination for supervisor, while Arthur L. Patterson is running as a Democratic candidate. Democrat John C. Thomas is running for constable, Republican Patricia Six for tax collector, Democrat Deloris Kennedy for auditor and Democrat Opal Saino for assessor.

GRAY — Democrats Charles J. Williamson and Clyde A. Iams are candidates for the township supervisor position now held by Harry Fletcher, who is not running for re-

Leathernecks Easter Baskets

Easter baskets for needy children and the elderly will be delivered this year by the Tri-County Leathernecks Club. The club is asking anyone interested in helping the program to leave baskets at the following businesses: Caputo's Dry Tavern Inn, Russell's Used Cars, Dimensional Hair Styling and Serb's Red Star Inn, all in Carmichaels; the Waynesburg Armory, Lowrence Exxon in Clarksville or the Nemaocolin Market. Donations may be made to the Leathernecks in care of Box 38, Rices Landing. Requests for baskets should include the name, address and age of the child and should be made by March 29. Last year the club gave over 400 children an Easter basket and passed out 100 fruit baskets to the elderly. This year the baskets will be delivered April 5 and 6. Pictured, from left, are Al Howard and Jim Ryan, trustees of the club; Frank Novasky, vice-president; Ivan Moderick, president; and Bob Costa, treasurer.

State Lawmakers May Lift Ceiling On County Levy

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Greene County commissioners are hoping for passage by mid-May of state legislation which would up the current ceiling on county property taxes.

Chairman L.R. Santore announced at the March 14 meeting of the board of commissioners that state Sen. J. Barry Stout is prepared to introduce a bill to raise from 20 mills to 30 mills the maximum levy which a county can impose for general fund purposes. He also said Rep. H. William DeWeese of Waynesburg will support the legislation in the House.

"Senator Stout said we may have to compromise at 25 mills, but even that would help and would avoid the necessity of our changing the assessment ratio for the coming year," Santore said.

Greene County's general fund levy is currently at the 20-mill maximum, on top of which the county has a 1 1/4-mill levy for debt reduction. It leaves the county no leeway for any added tax revenues which may be necessary in 1986.

"If the law isn't changed by May to raise the tax ceiling, I think our only option would be to go ahead and change the assessment ratio," Commissioner John Gardner said. "We have to act by that time to make the change effective for 1986, and I don't think we could risk counting on passage of the bill later in the year."

At the present time taxable property in Greene County is assessed at 30 percent of market value. Increasing the ratio to 40 percent or higher would increase the revenue from each mill of tax to the point where the county could drop its levy below 20 mills and still realize increased revenues.

In action at the meeting, the county awarded a contract to Therma-Tray, Inc., Plainfield, N.J., to furnish Curry Memorial Home with a food tray system.

Diane Piatt, administrator of the county nursing home, recommended the action even though the Therma-Tray bid of $11,823 is $1,042 higher than it would cost to purchase the equipment from another company. She based her recommendation on the quality of the product, plus lower replacement costs from Therma-Tray.

Mrs. Piatt also recommended changes in the make-up of the Curry Home Advisory Committee because of the difficulty of obtaining a quorum at scheduled committee meetings. She said bylaws now require attendance by seven of the 11 members to conduct business and that this has been achieved at only one meeting since February 1983.

"There are a few members who come all the time, but others attend only sporadically or not at all," she said.

The commissioners suggested that the size of the committee be reduced and asked Mrs. Piatt to prepare specific recommendations for changes to solve the problem.

A schedule of increased admission fees for the county swimming pools at Waynesburg and Carmichaels, which was presented last week, was adopted by the board. The action was taken with approval of the recommendations by the Department of Parks and Recreation Advisory Board.

Contests For Mayor, Tax Collector

WAYNESBURG — There will be contests for tax collector and mayor in Waynesburg Borough in the May 21 primary.

The only other contest in Greene County's six boroughs will be in Carmichaels, where there are two candidates for mayor.

Each of the boroughs is to elect a mayor, council members, tax collector, auditor (except Waynesburg) and constable this year.

In Waynesburg, Patrick J. (P.J.) McAndrews and Kyle F. (Kelcy) Eddy, a former member of the police force, are seeking the Democratic nomination for mayor, a post now held by Roy Huffman.

Three of the five council members whose terms expire this year also are running for re-election — Democrats Michael A. Mulholland in Ward 1, Frank VanCleve in Ward 2, and Charles A. Beiter Jr. in Ward 3.

There are no candidates for the second seat in Ward 2, with incumbent Glenn Richards having decided to run for tax collector, or in Ward 3, where Tom Brown did not file for re-election.

While incumbent Pauline Lucas is the only Republican candidate for tax collector, there are five people running for the Democratic tax collector nomination. In addition to Richards, the candidates are M. Robert Sonneborn, Douglas C. Wagener, Betty Roach Amos and Frank VanCleve II.

Democrats running for constable are John Lacich in Ward 1, Richard W. Owens in Ward 2 and James A. Johnson in Ward 3.

In Carmichaels, Edward Zalar and Edward J. White will compete for the Democratic nomination for mayor.

There are just three candidates for the four council seats to be filled, with all three of them being Democratic incumbents. Paul W. Connor filed as a candidate for the two-year term, while Gregory F. Peccon and Betty S. Hudson are running for four-year terms. There is no candidate for the third four-year term as incumbent Robert Boyle did not file for re-election.

Lynn Jones is a Democratic candidate for tax collector. There are no candidates for any of the three auditor positions to be filled or for constable.

In Clarksville, Democrats Frank Fudala Jr. and Joseph Shulsky are candidates for council, with four seats to be filled. Shulsky is also running for constable and will be opposed in the Democratic primary by Charles Riecks. There are no mayor, tax collector or auditor candidates.

In Greensboro, the only candidates filing were Lydia S. Aston, for a four-year term on council, and Dolores Brown for tax collector.

In Jefferson, Leo Wolfe Jr., Lonny R. Walters, Lonnie R. Willison and Hazel M. Bedosky are candidates for council. Martha Gwynn is running for tax collector and Jean M. Stilwell for auditor. All will be running in the Democratic primary. There is no candidate for mayor.

In Rices Landing, council candidates are Arnold O'Daniel, Lina Faddis Smith, Allen Grimm and Robert S. Salko. Marilyn S. Morgan is running for tax collector. All are Democrats. There are no candidates for mayor, auditor or constable.

Heavy Slate In School District Races

WAYNESBURG — There will be contests for school board nominations in all five Greene County school districts in the May 21 primary.

In the Carmichaels Area District, all four incumbents whose terms expire this year are seeking re-election. They are James M. Clovis, Edward W. Chess, Robert Oscar Hathaway and Paul (Jerry) Fortney, all of whom cross-filed as both Democratic and Republican candidates.

Three other candidates seeking nominations are Emil Buchtan and Beverly Jo Kerr, both of whom cross-filed, and Frank Andria, a former board member who will run in only the Democratic primary.

In the Central Greene District, six candidates are running for four nominations, with all of them having cross-filed.

Lila Ayersman, who represents Franklin and Washington townships on the board, is the only incumbent who will have no opposition.

Incumbents Francis Fox Jr. and John C. Graham will be opposed by Leighton T. Smith in their bids for the two Waynesburg Borough seats to be filled this year.

Incumbent Joanne L. Brookover and Arnold D. Hewitt are running for the seat to be filled in Perry, Wayne and Whiteley townships.

In the Jefferson-Morgan District, three of the four incumbents whose terms expire this year are seeking re-election. They are Charles Ferencak, Karen E. Sabo and Peg Murphy Simmons. The fourth incumbent, Dr. E.L. Stanley Falor, is not running.

Other candidates are Albert Starostanko, Gary L. Gallentine, Charles G. Plavi, Walter David Simatic, Donna L. Shaffer, Sandra K. Dulik and William Bruckner.

Starostanko, Gallentine, Simatic and Simmons filed as Democratic candidates only. The other five candidates cross-filed.

In the Southeastern Greene District, seven candidates are running for four positions, including incumbents Adam Novak, Gary P. Moser, Mark D. Brozik and Joseph Spiker. Others in the race are James Rumble, Arthur O. Wilson and Mike (Iggy) Powelko.

In the West Greene District, where the terms of four board members are expiring, only one incumbent, Arden

E. Melzer, is running for re-election. He is one of three candidates running for the two seats to be filled in Center and Morris townships. They are James E. Wendell and Larry L. Golembiewski. All three cross-filed. Ann Bower did not seek re-election.

In Alleppo, Freemont, Gilmore and Springhill townships, Steven G. Hixenbaugh is the only candidate for the seat now held by Roy Barnhart, who did not seek re-election.

In Gray, Jackson and Richhill townships, three candidates are running for the post now held by Ron Lohr, who is not running. They are Herbert (Butch) Carter, Jeffrey W. Hughes and Kathy J. Kiger, all of whom cross-filed.

Habitat For Humanity Group Ready To Begin Providing Better Housing

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Habitat for Humanity has completed its organizational structure and is moving toward the purchase and renovation of its first house in its mission to provide improved housing for people in need.

The organization, with the support of churches and individual donors, would involve volunteers to renovate homes and make them available for purchase by the poor through no-interest mortgages.

At its last meeting on March 9, the Rev. John Dorean, pastor of Jefferson Baptist Church, was elected president of the county organization. Other officers are Charles R. Baily Jr. of Waynesburg, vice president; Gloria Bishop of Waynesburg, treasurer; and Cheri Kuharcik of Jefferson, secretary.

Bill Ross Jr. of Waynesburg is serving as chairman of the site selection and construction committee and Gloria Bishop as chairman of the publicity and fund-raising committee. A chairman remains to be appointed for the family selection committee.

Dorean said that Waynesburg attorney Richard Krill volunteered his services to have Greene County Habitat for Humanity incorporated as a non-profit Pennsylvania corporation, and that representatives will be attending the International Habitat board meeting on April 20-21 to apply for affiliate status.

The international organization, which supplies housing for the poor throughout the United States and many countries throughout the world, is in Americus, Ga.

WAYNESBURG — A new administrative position was created by the Central Greene School Board Tuesday with the appointment of Linda Patterson McCracken of Waynesburg as director of elementary educational services.

Although the position carries a new title, it in effect fills a vacancy that has existed since the appointment nearly two years ago of Nancy I. Davis as district superintendent.

Mrs. Davis had been assistant superintendent before being named to the chief administrative position in July 1983, following the resignation of Dr. Ronald Ferrari.

Mrs. McCracken has been with the district for 19 years as a teacher, reading specialist and Chapter I project director, and is currently principal of the Perry, East Ward and Spraggs elementary schools.

In her new position, which becomes effective July 1, she will be responsible for federal programs, vocational grants, federal and state competitive grants, coordination of pupil personnel and special education services. She also will be involved in curriculum, instruction and in-service programming. Her salary will be established at a later date.

The board approved raises of 50 cents an hour for the nine full-time employees and nine part-time employees on the food service staff in a bargaining agreement reached last week with the Central Greene School Service Personnel Association.

The increase, made possible by a wage reopener clause in the current agreement, will cost approximately $7,000 during the 1985-86 school year.

Also accomplished during negotiations was the inclusion of the district's three full-time and four part-time security persons as members of the bargaining unit, as required by an order from the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board. They will receive the same wage increases as the food service personnel.

In other personnel matters, the board accepted the resignations of Marjorie L. Petcovic, a part-time reading specialist, and Ellen Doney as high school cheerleading adviser, effective immediately. It also accepted the resignation by retirement of Raymond (Bucky) Murdock at the close of the current school year. He has been with the district since 1952 as a math teacher and later as guidance counselor.

The board decided to transfer Carol Dinich from an elementary special education teacher at the Perry School to a special education position at Waynesburg Central High School for the 1985-86 school year.

Mary Ann Spanovich and Don Roddy were appointed head coach and assistant coach, respectively, of the girls' track team at salaries of $1,628 and $1,263.

Chris Saunders of Waynesburg was hired as high school weight training instructor, a part-time position, at $9.50 an hour. He will instruct for two hours a day, three days a week.

Paula Stoneking of Spraggs was employed as afternoon janitor at the high school to fill a vacancy created last month by the resignation of Carol Cain.

The board voted to purchase a one-ton Ford truck with dump platform body and snow plow from Fox Auto Sales, Waynesburg, whose $14,616 bid was the lowest one meeting specifications.

Brian Cole of Waynesburg was awarded a contract to demolish a house at the corner of Elm and Morgan Streets that the district purchased recently to provide additional parking facilities at the middle school. Cole submitted the low bid of $2,128.

Contracts totaling $55,574 for general supplies and art and duplicating supplies were awarded to 11 companies based on bids submitted in February. More than 85 bids for athletic, industrial arts, vocational agriculture and audio-visual supplies and equipment were opened during the meeting and were referred to the administration and committees for study.

Jefferson-Morgan Board Eyes Teacher Furloughs

By Robert Niedbala, Staff Writer

JEFFERSON — The Jefferson-Morgan School Board voted March 18 to inform the Jefferson-Morgan Professional Association of the possibility that it may have to furlough two teachers next year.

So far the board has made no decision concerning layoffs, but had to take the action in case it is forced to make that decision later, said Kenneth Macek, district superintendent. The contract with the association calls for the board to notify the union by April 4 if it intends to lay off a teacher, he explained.

The board will be considering furloughing one regular teacher and one Title I teacher, according to the motion. The Title I program, funded by the federal government, provides students with remedial math and reading instruction.

Business Manager Forrest Cottle said the district is expecting to receive about $92,000 next year for Title I, which is the same the district received this year. But the district will have less to work with because of the increase in teachers' salaries, he said.

Macek added that the district will be looking at enrollment in high school classes to see if any staff reduction can be made there. Cottle said the decision to furlough teachers will have to be decided by June 30, when the board must pass its budget.

In other business, the board opened bids for removal of asbestos from the ceilings in the junior-senior high school. The work is part of a $3 million renovation project for the school.

The bids, which were referred to the architect and solicitor for their recommendations, were lower than expected, said Cottle. He attributed the low bids to the fact that the district advertised for bids early, before the summer construction season began. Work is scheduled to begin June 1.

The asbestos ceiling has already been coated and does not present a safety problem, it was noted.

About 57,000 square feet of ceiling will be removed. Bids were received from Amaral & Neumeyer Inc. of McKees Rocks, $102,986; American Asbestos Control Co. of Zellenople, $166,057; American Environmental Consulting Co. of Pittsburgh, $167,171; Project Development Group Inc. of Pittsburgh, $213,400; and American Industrial Contracting Inc. of Sewickley, $308,100.

In action related to the building project, the board scheduled a special meeting for 7 p.m. Monday, March 25, to review the paperwork the district must submit to the state to receive reimbursement for the project. The documents, called Plan Con Section F, include the final building plans.

The board also voted to amend Plan Con Sections B and D to take into account the state Board of Education's decision concerning rooms that can be added to the reimbursement formula.

The district was not permitted to include a kitchen storage area in the formula but was allowed to add two conference rooms, said Paul Fackler of Foreman and Bashford, project architect and engineer. The state's decision will increase the district's reimbursement by about $6,000, he said.

The board also was informed that its solicitor has sent a letter to the county concerning the late payment of delinquent taxes. Cottle said the county collects the district's share of delinquent taxes and is required to send the money to the district within 30 days. The county, in return, receives 5 percent of what it collects.

Cottle said he recently received only $56,000 from the county, which was money that was due for last July, August and September. "It should have been in our hands by October," he said. The district has yet to receive its share for October through December, he added. The solicitor was instructed to take further legal action if the situation does not improve.

The board accepted the resignation of Robert Antion, a secondary social studies teacher, effective at the end of the school year, and voted to post the position.

The board also voted to renew the contract of John Curtis, boys' basketball coach, and Tim Jones, girls' basketball coach. It was noted that Jones is not a full-time teacher and the position will have to remain posted.

The board received a proposal from Joseph Petros, who wants to lease the Chartiers Building, but decided postpone making a decision until it heard from Greene County Community Action Corp., which is also interested in the building.

The board also received a petition signed by 37 residents in support of Ron Headlee, junior high wrestling coach. Several of the residents in the audience said the petition was prompted by rumors that Headlee was being considered for a position at another school. Headlee is only a part-time employee at Jefferson-Morgan and is employed only as a wrestling coach.

Wallace Appeal Denied By Court

By Jon Stevens, Staff Writer

William Wallace's bid for freedom based on a claim of double jeopardy has been thwarted by the state Superior Court.

The appellate court, in a three-page order dated March 15, affirmed the June 1983 decision of Judge John F. Bell, rejecting Wallace's contention that the actions of former District Attorney Herman J. Bigi during Wallace's first trial in 1980 amounted to intentional bad-faith misrepresentations.

The 28-year-old Wheeling, W.Va., man was sentenced on Feb. 25, 1982, to die in the electric chair for the killing of Carl Luisi, 63, and Tina Spalla, 15, during a robbery at Carl's cleaners in Canonsburg in August 1979.

Wallace was first tried in December 1980, but the trial ended in a hung jury. He was tried again in February 1981 and convicted of first-degree murder in Miss Spalla's death, and second-degree murder in Luisi's death.

Several months later, hearings were held when Wallace produced evidence claiming to show the prosecution misled the court and jury and misrepresented the facts. The court denied those motions and imposed the death sentence.

A year later, the state Supreme Court granted Wallace a new trial because Bigi allowed Olen Clay Gorby, a key commonwealth witness at the trial, to give false testimony (accuracy of his criminal background.) Additionally, the high court preserved Wallace's right to ask the local court to free him prior to another trial under the double jeopardy doctrine, and hearings before Bell on this issue were held in March and April of 1983.

The Superior Court judges who ruled on this appeal — Peter Paul Olszewski, James E. Rowley, and Zoran Popovich — agreed that the U.S. Supreme Court decision, Oregon v. Kennedy, is the standard to be used in Pennsylvania when interpreting double jeopardy.

In that case, the judges noted, "the Court held that only prosecutorial misconduct intended to provoke a mistrial would bar retrial under federal double jeopardy principles. The Court thus repudiated the notion, held by courts in this Commonwealth, that prosecutorial misconduct designed to harass or prejudice the accused would bar prosecution."

It is the latter position that Vreeland attached to the Wallace case.

The primary misconduct alleged against Bigi revolved around Gorby, who testified Wallace admitted to him in a "jailhouse confession" that he committed the Canonsburg murders, and that he had bragged about doing it. The conversations between Wallace and Gorby allegedly occurred while the two men were in the Washington County Jail.

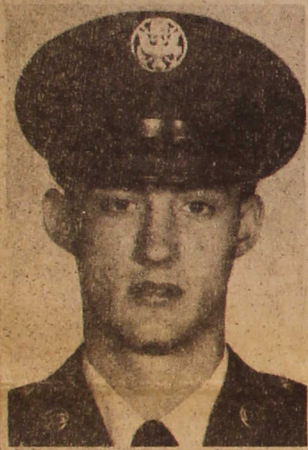

In Bell's 1983 decision, he ruled that although the case was prosecuted in a "casual manner," Bigi's actions were not intentional. The hearings on which Bell's order was predicated were held to determine whether Bigi deliberately intended to deceive the court by not making known the existence of this so-called jailhouse confession.

Vreeland argued that the district attorney's statement to the lower court as to when Bigi first learned about the identity of a "star witness," coupled with Bigi's representations concerning a co-defendant's willingness to testify, were the paramount issues in the double jeopardy argument.

Moreover, the Superior Court order said that while the Supreme Court remanded the Wallace case for a new trial, "the Court did not retain jurisdiction, but rather indicated that he (Wallace) would be afforded an opportunity to again present his double jeopardy contention before the trial court, if he so desired."

Wallace did, "subsequent to the Oregon v. Kennedy decision, and thus we conclude Judge Bell properly applied the rule of (the case) to (this one)."

Vreeland maintains, however, that Wallace's first appeal was filed prior to the Oregon decision.

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Nurses Club and the Waynesburg College Chapter of the Student Nurses Association of Pennsylvania will sponsor a "Spring Walk for Lifeline."

It will be held in Waynesburg at 1 p.m. Sunday, April 21, with April 28 set as the rain date.

All proceeds from the walkathon will be used to purchase Lifeline home units for use in the homes of disabled and elderly citizens in Greene County and surrounding areas.

The walk will begin at the corner of North Washington and Franklin streets, moving to Greene County Memorial Hospital and returning via High Street to the starting point, a distance of 2.3 miles.

Residents are being invited to participate as walkers or sponsors, with sponsor sheets being available from members of both organizations. Chairmen are Mary C. Parkinson for the Nurses Club and Shari Wagner for the SNAP chapter.

57TH ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jeffries of Waynesburg R.D.4 were honored Sunday, March 10, at a surprise dinner in observance of their 57th wedding anniversary. They were married March 12, 1928, in Waynesburg. Mrs. Jeffries is the former Olive Morris, daughter of the late David and Effie Morris, and she retired from Greene County Memorial Hospital in 1975 following a 30-year career. Mr. Jeffries retired from Carnegie Gas Co. in 1964 after 37 years of service. He is the son of the late John and Isabelle Jeffries. They are the parents of four children: Mrs. James (Allene) Kesner of Mt. Morris Star Route; Mrs. John (Mary) McChesney of Brave; Paul of Morristown, Tenn., and the late David (Poonjab) Jeffries. They have 17 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Realist Painter Offers Workshop

CARMICHAELS — Charles Pitcher, one of Pittsburgh's finest realist painters and teachers, will offer a painting workshop in landscape techniques at the Greene Academy of Art from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, March 30.

The dimensions of color, form and balance will be covered through individual attention to each participant. The paintings will be done in the student's choice of oils or acrylics and novice painters as well as experienced painters are welcome to participate.

Pitcher, a native of Cumberland, Md., now resides in Bethel Park where he devotes his time to painting, teaching and lecturing. He received his bachelor's degree from Westminster College and his teaching degree from Edinboro State University.

He is a member of the Pittsburgh Watercolor Society and Associated Artists of Pittsburgh. He has exhibited in over 40 group shows and has had 18 one-man shows. His sensitive landscapes have won many awards.

Cost of the workshop is $20. To register, send check or money order to the Greene County Council on the Arts, P.O. Box 309, Carmichaels, Pa. 15320 or call 966-2731 on Tuesdays or Thursdays.

Deadline for registration is Tuesday, March 26. A list of supplies will be sent upon registration.

Seed Packets Available

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Conservation District will make available seedling packets under the "Planting for Wildlife" program sponsored by the Pennsylvania Game Commission according to District Manager Martin Nivert Jr.

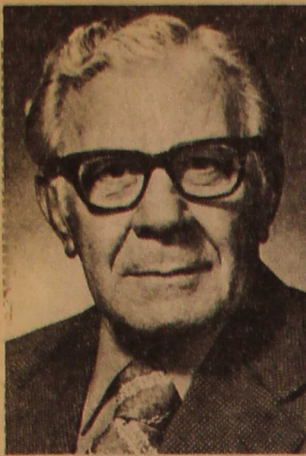

The packets will contain 15 seedlings, three each of flowering dogwood, Asiatic crabapple, Maackii honeysuckle, Scotch pine and white spruce.

Cost per packet is $2.50, plus 6 percent sales tax. The packet includes an information sheet describing each species and proper planting and caring instructions.

These seedlings will be available for pick up at the district office at 60 West High Street between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Saturday, April 20. The packets must be paid for in cash when they are picked up.

This program is not to be confused with the Conservation District's Small Package Tree Program.

JOHN S. GRAZIANO

IU Board Secretary Resigns

CALIFORNIA — John S. Graziano has resigned after 14 years as secretary of the Intermediate Unit I Board. Graziano also served more than 32 years as a school board member.

He served from 1945 to 1965 on the Dunbar Borough School Board, 14 of those years as president and one as treasurer. From 1965 to 1977 he was a member of the Connellsville Area School Board serving as president and vice president.

He served as Intermediate Unit I member secretary from 1971 to 1978 and as non-member secretary from 1978 to 1985.

Graziano was instrumental in the establishment of the North Fayette Area Vocational-Technical School, having served as president of the board for eight years. He was a leader and driving force during the early years of the Intermediate Units in Pennsylvania during the early 1970s. He also served for 11 years as chief negotiator for the IU board in contract negotiations with the professional and non-professional staff.

Graziano is a retired engineer and supervisor of operations for West Penn Power Co. where he worked for 48 years.

He and his wife, Anna, reside in Dunbar. They are the parents of two grown children — John V. Graziano, a funeral director in Jeannette; and Joan, a retired colonel in the U.S. Army Medical Corps who lives in the Washington, D.C., area with her husband, Lt. Gen. (retired) Charles C. Pixley, former surgeon general of the U.S. Army.

At the February meeting of the IU board of directors, Doris B. Cromwell of Uniontown was unanimously elected as non-member secretary.

CUB SCOUT BANQUET

BOBTOWN — Bobtown-Greensboro Cub Scout Pack 1270 held its annual Blue and Gold banquet Sunday in Shannopin Civic Club hall, Bobtown, with the dinner being prepared and served by members of the civic club, the pack sponsors.

Following entertainment by pack members, den leaders presented various awards.

David Bierer, Eric Bixler, Bo Garnek, Rick Menear, Barry Bennett, Jay Wade, Mark Brown, Bill Danko, Jeffery VanMeter and Damon Casseday received uniform inspection awards.

Webelos badges were presented to Joshua Caldwell, Greg Gapen, Curtis Laskosky and Damon Casseday. Brian Menear received his artist Webelos activity badge. Heath Pratt and Jay Wade received dinner cards; Chris Caldwell was recognized for completing three achievements, and Jay Wade and Barry Bennett received their progress toward rank cards.

Waynesburg Native 'Man Of The Year'

WAYNESBURG — Herbert B. Ailes, a native of Waynesburg, has been named "Man of the Year" by the Reinforced Plastics/Composites Institute.

Ailes, president and chief operating officer of Premix Inc. of North Kingsville, Ohio, received the honor at the 40th annual conference of the institute held in Atlanta, Ga. He was presented the Clare E. Bacon Executive Award.

He was recognized for his distinguished service as the Institute's representative on the board of directors of the parent association, the Society of the Plastics Industry, Inc.

In his first term on the 56-member board he was appointed to the 10-man executive committee and used this position of influence to instigate a change in the dues structure which permitted small molders and fabricators to join SPI and participate in the work of the institute.

Ailes earned his bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering at the University of Michigan in 1952 and his master's degree from the University of Delaware in 1955.

He joined Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp. in 1955 and for 15

Vo-Tech Tuition Rate Established

By Christie Molzon, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — The Joint Operating Committee of the Greene County Vocational-Technical School, at its meeting March 14, set the tuition rates for interested adults who would like to attend school there next year.

If the proposal, which must be submitted by April 1, is approved by the Job Training Partnership Act, any adult interested in taking classes in the regular day session of the Vo-Tech School may do so. The tuition costs would be $1,200 a year for 180 half-day sessions or $2.42 an hour.

Upon approval of the program, adults may enter the Vo-Tech School during the 1985-86 school year.

The possibility of reducing the professional staff at the school was raised at the meeting. Ms. Gioski, school executive officer, noted that the committee is required, under its bargaining agreement with the Vo-Tech Teachers Association, to inform them by April 1 that there may be staff furloughs. She cited low enrollment at the school as the reason for the possible cuts.

In line with the increased graduation requirements under Chapter 5, the committee agreed to raise the number of credit hours students may receive at the school from three to four.

Ms. Gioski explained that students receive three credits for the 495 hours they spend in school, but that they can receive one credit for each 120 hours. "They might as well get credit for them, they're spending the hours here," Gioski said.

The committee also agreed to seek approval from the Department of Education to change the Health Assistant class from a two-year course to a three-year course. Gioski noted that it is the only two-year course in the school and thus is difficult to recruit for since many ninth grade students who want to take the course are unable to do so for another year and often choose another program.

"Enrollment has been down," she said of the course, "and it's a very good and necessary program because that's where jobs are, in the health field." Gioski said she had been in contact with representatives of the Department of Education and did not see any problem in changing the course.

The committee approved a personnel policy on part-time non-professional employees. The policy does not call for any basic changes, but spells out the number of days such employees will have for sick days, personal days and paid vacation days.

A retirement age policy was also approved, stating that retirement will be in accordance with the Human Relations Act, (70 years of age), with a yearly review.

Bill Swan, maintenance superintendent, notified the committee he will retire June 28. His position will be advertised.

Approval was given to take part again in the Summer Youth Employment and Training Program and use six youths to work as custodians over the summer. The proposal must be submitted April 1.

Gioski noted that an Adult Mine and Safety Program has received approval from the Mine, Safety, and Health Administration and will start May 1. The program is being funded by a $9,800 federal grant.

Plans were made for a Student Recognition Dinner to be held May 15 in the Carmichaels Fire Hall. The committee decided seniors should attend the banquet for free, undergraduate students at a reduced meal price, with parents to pay the full price.

Approval was given for Gioski, two staff members, the chief school administrator and interested board members to attend the Pennsylvania Vocational Education Conference at Seven Springs, June 16-19. Cost will be approximately $350 per person. A request from LPN Coordinator Marcella Watson to attend a conference at the Beaver County Community College April 9, at a cost of $40, was also approved.

The practices will be held at the Fairall United Methodist Church at 7 p.m. on three consecutive Mondays, March 18 and 25 and April 1.

Area Man Enters Race For District 4 Chief

CARMICHAELS — John DiBiase of Carmichaels R.D.1 has announced his candidacy for United Mine Workers District 4 presidency.

In doing so, he said he is an independent candidate "and personally regards the freedom of 'slate obligation' as beneficial to the membership."

DiBiase has served as president, vice president and mine health safety committeeman of different locals. He was District 4 president from 1973 to 1977 and international regional director of organizing for Districts 2, 4, 5, 6 and 25 from 1980 to 1983.

"I believe this long-time union exposure on local, district and international levels has provided me with the vast knowledge and administrative skills necessary to operate and manage the district responsibly and efficiently," he said.

He noted that during his term as district president, he organized the first district constitutional convention, making District 43 autonomous for the first time in history. Other major accomplishments he cited included the development of COMPAC; establishment of a UMWA credit union, and a funded Black Lung Compensation Department. He also actively participated in negotiations for the 1974 national agreement, which he regards as "the finest agreement UMWA members have ever enjoyed."

DiBiase says he understands the memberships' needs and knows what programs best serve the thousands of members, including those out of work; coal mine construction workers; shaft, slope, underground and surface miners; preparation plant workers, and the disabled and pensioned miners.

"My prime objective is to be fully dedicated and responsive to the office of president, and also to the entire membership of District 4," he said.

DiBiase is presently employed by Duquesne Light Company and is a member of Greensboro Local 6310.

He said he is willing to debate the issues of the election at any time, and extended an invitation to such a debate to both of the candidates running against him.

Dirt Bike Driver Hurt In Collision

WAYNESBURG — The driver of a dirt bike received minor injuries when he collided with a car in the parking lot of the Chicken House Restaurant at 7:55 p.m. Saturday, according to state police.

Terry Hare, 18, of 152 Maple Hill Drive, Waynesburg, was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital, treated for a cut on his scalp and released. Police said Hare also will be cited for underage drinking.

Police said Hare was crossing the parking lot when he ran into the left door of a car driven by Robert Bolyard, 33, of Morgantown, W.Va., who was just pulling into the lot.

Light damage was reported to both vehicles.

UMW Parade Honors A Union Forefather

MASONTOWN — The United Mine Workers of America will honor and pay tribute to its proud tradition and heritage on April 1 with the celebration of the annual Miner's Day parade and program in Masontown.

The event marks the 87th anniversary of the eight-hour day and is a tribute to John Mitchell, one of the union's forefathers. Mitchell fought for better working conditions for coal miners. His most significant victory was the establishment of the eight-hour work day.

UMWA International President Richard L. Trumka will speak at the event. Other speakers include James W. Kelly, District 4 president, and Donald Redman, District 5 president. The parade will form at 10:30 a.m.

Classes To Aid Teachers Slated

Four in-service credit classes for teachers and other school personnel have been scheduled by Washington-Greene Prevention for spring. The classes assist teachers in providing drug and alcohol education to their students.

"Teacher-Made Materials in Effective Education" (two credits) begins April 1, and is a workshop in constructing learning centers, bulletin board displays, games, etc. for developing students' self esteem, communication, problem-solving and other skills.

April 2 is the starting date for "Violence, Drugs and Disruptive Behavior" (one credit). "Effective Approach to Substance Abuse Prevention" (two credits) begins April 4. "Drug and Alcohol Information for School Personnel" (one credit) begins May 7 and is a basic study of the various classes of psychoactive drugs and their effects.

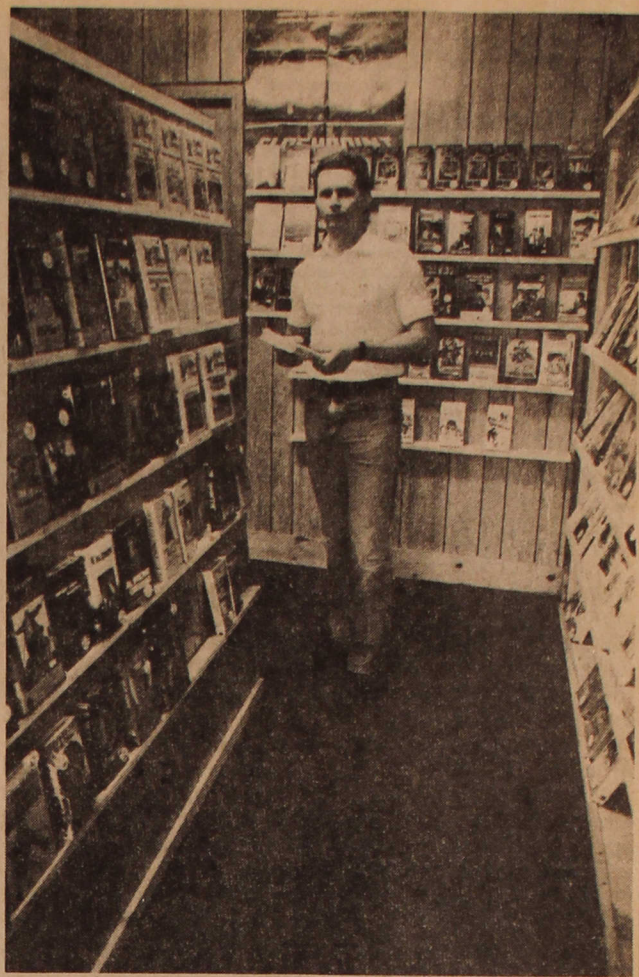

All classes will meet from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the office of Washington-Greene Prevention, 87 East Maiden Street, Washington. Credits will be approved by Intermediate Unit 1 and the Pennsylvania Department of Education. Advance registration and tuition payment is required. For information, call 228-0810.

Mishap Reported

WAYNESBURG — A two-car accident at South Morris Street and Cherry Alley resulted in light damage to one of the vehicles, according to Waynesburg Borough police.

Police said a 1979 Oldsmobile driven by Betty Bebol, 46, of Streetsboro, Ohio, traveling east on Cherry Alley, pulled onto South Morris Street and ran into a 1979 Chevrolet driven by Kevin Durbin, 18, of Graysville R.D.1.

Light damage was reported to Durbin's vehicle.

Man Charged In Car Theft

A WAYNESBURG MAN accused of stealing a station wagon from the parking area of Hank's Bar near Mt. Morris Friday was apprehended Saturday after he wrecked the vehicle in Morgantown, W.Va.

John E. Snyder of Waynesburg R.D.1 was being held in Monongalia County Jail in West Virginia for various traffic violations and was expected to be extradited to Greene County Monday, according to state police.

Police filed a theft of motor vehicle charge against Snyder with Magistrate John Watson Saturday.

Snyder is accused of taking a car between 11 and 11:30 p.m. Friday owned by Kathrine Heller of Maidensville, W.Va.

STATE POLICE REPORTED that someone attempted to break into the Ryerson State Park office in Richhill Township at about 5:30 a.m. Monday, March 18.

Police said the person or persons were apparently scared off. Nothing was taken.

A PERSON TRIED to break into Rogersville Service Station on Route 21 in Center Township at 3:15 a.m. Monday, but was surprised by the owner and fled, said state police.

Police said the person had pried open a window which alerted the owner, James H. Stalling, to the attempted burglary.

THE OFFICE TRAILER of the Wilson Forest Products Co. on Route 21 in Gray Township was broken into between March 15 and 18, according to state police. Nothing was reported stolen.

Long Island Couple To Face Charges Here

MINEOLA, N.Y. — A New York judge has ordered a Long Island couple returned to Greene County to face charges stemming from the abduction of the woman's two children from their father's home near Waynesburg on Jan. 17.

Erma and Donald Stevens of Westbury allegedly took Crystal Conaway, 7, and her brother, David Michael, 6, after the Stevens and an unidentified man forced their way into the home.

According to reports at the time, the children's stepmother, Valerie Conaway was threatened with a gun. Assault charges are also pending against one of the intruders.

Nassau County Detective Gerard Jetter informed the court that Greene County authorities want to prosecute the couple on charges of burglary and conspiracy to commit burglary.

It was reported March 14 the Stevens were arrested earlier in New York on charges of child abuse.

According to Greene County District Attorney Charles Morris, there can be no kidnapping charges filed because Ms. Conaway was not awarded legal custody of the children until the day after they were taken from the house.

County Should Object To Waste Dumping Plan

A plan to use a Greene County disposal site for dumping of sludge generated by a sewage treatment plan in Allegheny County was brought to the attention of the public last week during a visit to Waynesburg by U.S. Senator Arlen Specter.

Martin Niverth, executive director of the county Conservation District, and several residents of Monongahela Township who live near the dump site took advantage of the visit to express their concern about odors and possible harmful effects to the ground water supply.

The application for a permit to use the site has been filed with the Department of Environmental Resources by the Shannopin Mining Co., which established the site for the disposal of fly ash. Under the proposal, 300 tons of dried filtercake would be transported by barge from Pittsburgh six days a week and would then be trucked from the barge landing point to the landfill.

Property owners from the area admitted they had been informed some time ago that the disposal site would be used for the disposal of non-toxic, non-hazardous, heavily limed waste water residue which would be organic and this subject to decomposition, but said they did not realize this meant that it would be a dumping site for solid waste.

And Niverth rightly expressed concern that rainfall would create runoff which would get into streams and ground water supply unless elaborate engineering precautions were taken to prevent it.

Once the issue became public, both county and township officials were quick to say that they don't favor the idea. We hope they will express their concerns to the DER within the review period, because if they don't the DER will assume they have waived their right to comment and express their views.

Greene County should not be a dumping ground for Allegheny County's human waste.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following Fact and Folklore column was first published in March 1969.

One of the things one regrets as one grows older is the passing of things we used to enjoy.

Among them, for me, is the live theater people used to enjoy in Waynesburg.

It was a heritage which Waynesburgers of an earlier era thought "would never end," as the words of the current hit song go.

It was that heritage of the love for the Theater, the legitimate theater of dramatic productions, the finer sort of musical shows, tragedies — the whole gamut of stage productions.

"Back in the old days," as many Waynesburgers now "making 60" (years old) preface so many of their comments, the Theater had a definite place in the lives of most of the townspeople.

Their tastes ranged all the way from the highly emotional propaganda melodramas, such as "Uncle Tom's Cabin," to Shakespearian productions by touring players. All professionals, of course.

Perforce, any person who "went to the show" in those days had to see a live performance as there was neither television nor radio and the movies were still in the flicker stage of their infancy.

Bessed with a fine theater — the "old" Opera House — with a large stage and loft for scenery — all but the largest musical shows could be presented there in truly professional style. Townspeople responded to the opportunity not merely with their patronage but more important still with their appreciation and genuine interest.

Through the first two decades of the century some of America's finest thespians emerged from the wings once that Venitian street scene was flown high into the lofe, the footlights came on and the bulbs in the arch were dimmed.

To name just a few, the great dramatic artist Joseph Jefferson, the great Eva Tanguay of musical fame, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew of dramatic lore, Margaret Anglin, the great dramatic artist, and Grand Opera star Eraldine Ferrar trod the boards in Waynesburg.

And, in a different vein, the famed Al G. Fields minstrels, the original big band leader Paul Whiteman and the famed Will Rogers delighted local audiences.

Top Broadway shows such as "White Cargo" in the dramatic category, "Tea for Two" in the musical lists, "The Cat and the Canary" in the mystery theater genre, were produced at the Opera House, and all, if you please, with New York casts.

Waynesburg's affluence of those days — when profits from local enterprises stayed here instead of being siphoned off to anonymous chain merchandising enterprises, provided a ready audience for such shows.

The Depression of the early 1930s was the turning point, coupled with the development of talking movies, radio and still later television.

The fate of live theater is now in the hands of Little Theater groups such as the newly formed Greene Room Players in Waynesburg, which presented its initial offering last week in a production of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." It was a fine initial performance which reminds us that somewhere along the way in the last 30 to 40 years we've lost something that enriched our lives.

between the bookends

by marcia mckenna biddle

I read Agatha Christie's "Murder on the Orient Express" when I was in high school and, ever since, I've liked both murder mysteries and trains.

Today, I am taking the train to Philadelphia. After taking a good look at the grand old Pittsburgh station, which is to be restored some day if it doesn't fall down first, I decide to take notes on the stations, or ex-stations, all along the route.

Since I don't have a notebook at hand, I'm writing, ironically enough, on the back of a paper we all received as we boarded. It says, "URGENT NOTICE: The White House plans to shut down Amtrak — America's passenger train company — on October 1. All Amtrak trains, including the one you're riding today, would be discontinued on that date, making the United States the only nation in the industrialized world without rail travel."

I begin to feel like the last passenger on the Queen Mary, and promise myself that I'll write my senators.

The scenery is delightful, if you're easily delighted — by abandoned steel mills, for instance. Well, I have a book and plenty of time, for a change, in which to read it. For unknown reasons, I have brought along "The Mask of Fu Manchu," by Sax Rohmer. It was written in 1932, and contains every cliché you ever saw in a "B" movie on the late show. The air is filled with flying knives, with burglars swinging into open windows on ropes, and with other menacing figures lurking in the shadows.

It was a time, 1932, when the British still presumed it was their right to cart off any ancient treasure they could find, and in this one they've stolen... Uh, oh. Our hero has just received an injection of some hypnotic drug from none other than himself - Dr. Fu Manchu.

But we have arrived at our first station. I say "arrived," since "stopped" would be putting it too strongly. We "hesitated" at Greensburg, is more like it. I make a note to get ready well ahead of my stop. We pause at Greensburg so briefly that I begin to see the need for long-range planning, if I am to have any hope of effecting a graceful exit.

What it looks like is that you would have to be standing at the top of the steps, clutching your suitcase, as the train nears your station. Then, as the train slows, you prepare to make a flying leap toward the platform; otherwise you may find yourself getting off in Latrobe instead of Greensburg. Well, that has probably never happened, I tell myself, while feeling perfectly sure that it could very well happen to me.

As we are hesitating, I'm trying to get a look at the Greensburg station. From my angle, which is level with the roof, the station appears to be a two-story brick Tudor castle. It has interesting carved stone trim, and a tall clock tower. Some of the windows have fancy wrought iron bars, while others have settled for coverings of white plywood. I've heard that somebody wants to turn the station into a shopping mall, which may save the building, at least.

Latrobe's station is on the far side from me, and our pause is even more abbreviated that the last one. All I can see are stone-trimmed, yellow brick semi-towers jutting up from nowhere to interfere with the tracks. It looks like what the critics might be pleased to call an idiosyncratic style — half Eastern Orthodox church, and half weirdo. But it is quickly out of view, and — read it here next week — we're off to beautiful Altoona.

Jazz Ensemble To Perform

WAYNESBURG — An evening for jazz lovers will be presented by the Jazz Ensemble of Waynesburg Central High School on Monday, April

Film Scheduled

A film which speaks to the problems facing teen-agers in today's society will be shown Saturday and Sunday at Enon Baptist Church near West Finley.

The 26-minute film, "American Dream, American Nightmare," will be shown at 7:30 on each of the two evenings.

The film explores the problems of suicide, drug and alcohol abuse, family breakdown, abortion, crime and peer pressure which face young people, and also points out the alternatives which many are opting for.

The showing is sponsored by the Youth Group of the church and is open to all interested persons.

1. The concert will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The tunes of Duke Ellington, Glenn Miller and the "Big Band" sound will be featured. Slides will be shown on the jazz ensemble's recent trip to Washington, D.C., for the presidential inauguration.

During a recent performance on the Jack Bogut Show, the ensemble was honored to have Joe Negri perform with them. Negri will perform again with the ensemble at its concert. Also, the West Virginia University Faculty Jazz Ensemble from Morgantown, W.Va., will present music.

Tickets may be purchased at the door for $2 for adults or $1.50 for students. Senior citizens may attend for free. The Waynesburg Central High School Jazz Ensemble is directed by Bill Parker.

Waynesburg Faces Self-Examination

By Tom Rose Sports Editor

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The last second just had ticked off on the Waynesburg College basketball season. But for the first time in 14 games — and for the first time in three appearances at the NAIA National Tournament, the Yellow Jackets were first round losers.

Considering how far Waynesburg has come since the start of the season, the 66-57 loss to Drury College late Wednesday night, March 13, at the Kemper Arena may not have been so difficult to accept for the Jackets.

They were, after all, supposed to be in a rebuilding stage. They were picked by District 18 coaches in the middle of the pack in a preseason poll. They were supposed to be a two-man team.

The rebuilding was indeed a reality, with the final block put in place when junior point guard Tim McConnell became eligible in January.

By the end of the year, not one of the coaches who had originally placed Waynesburg anywhere from third to sixth would admit to such an offense.

And while Harold Hamlin and Paul Stanley continued to be the Jackets' offensive forces, others emerged to take a bit of the load from the two shooting stars.

But the trip here ended so suddenly it seemed to catch head coach Rudy Marisa and the veteran players who were here for nearly a week last year by surprise. And this year's venture, more than any of the other two, may have finally illustrated that the Waynesburg basketball program has reached a crossroad.

The Jackets' success in Western Pennsylvania can hardly be questioned. For the past five years Waynesburg has amassed the most impressive record among the area's NCAA Division II, Division III and NAIA teams.

But Marisa will have to decide if he wants the program to take one step further. The step that will allow the Jackets to compete seriously in this national tournament. The giant step to the Final Four.

They're not as far from Fort Hays State or Wisconsin-Stevens Point as one may think from a philosophical standpoint. The financial end is another matter, but that's a matter for the college hierarchy to ponder.

Marisa may have also found that success here cannot be achieved without a firm commitment to man-to-man, and varied, defenses. While the Waynesburg sliding zone has been awful good through the years to the Jackets, it proved to be very good for Drury's outstanding guards, Fred Young and Tom Deffenbaugh.

Drury will be eliminated in the second round by Stevens Point because those guards will be facing suffocating man-to-man pressure, and Young and Deffenbaugh will be trying to dodge the hands that are sure to be obscuring their vision.

The Jackets made a move in that direction this year, and were actually keyed in the District 18 playoff wins against Behrend, Westminster and St. Vincent by defensive surges. But they'll need a firmer commitment to pressure — the ability to win a game defensively when the offense is sputtering — if they're going to last longer than a few days.

There's no question Waynesburg has established an outstanding small college program. And because of last year's finish in the final eight, Marisa has earned a great deal of respect among the NAIA basketball committee members.

But there's room for improvement, and Marisa will be the first to admit it. Shortly after the season-ending defeat, he talked of searching for the elusive big, dominating center and will be looking to the junior college ranks for help. And he talked of varied defenses, and the implementation of them into his system.

And both will be needed if Waynesburg is to step into another echelon in the NAIA. Where the Jackets are right now is a respected and enviable position, just ask any of the other District 18 teams who are back home reading about the tournament in their local newspapers.

Whether they take wish another small, or giant step, forward remains to be seen.

Dog Catcher Issues Report

HARRISBURG — State Dog Warden Oliver Kelley of Waynesburg answered 964 dog-related complaints in 1984. During the year he also investigated 32 damage claims, apprehended and transported 403 dogs and inspected the four kennels licensed in Greene County.

Kelley is responsible for enforcing the provisions of the dog law. His duties include enforcing dog licensing and dog control compliance, inspecting kennels and apprehending stray dogs and dogs that have caused damage to livestock, poultry and domestic game birds.

County residents can contact Kelley at 852-1285. He is available any day at any time. All calls will be answered as soon as possible, usually on the following day. Kelley will not respond to evening or weekend calls.

Junior Wrestling Tournery Scheduled

WAYNESBURG — The 1985 Pennsylvania Junior Wrestling Area 1 Tournament will be held Friday and Saturday in the Waynesburg Central High School gym.

Qualifiers for this tournament have been held in Parkersburg, W. Va., and Connellsville.

The Greene County qualifier will be held Saturday in Mapletown. Three place winners from each qualifier will compete in the Area 1 tournament and the tournament winner will qualify for the all-area tournament in Altoona March 29 and 30.

unless they report an emergency situation such as a dog bite or an attack by dogs to livestock or poultry.

Because there is no holding pen or Humane Society shelter in the county, Kelley must take dogs to the Washington County Humane Society in Eighty-Four.

Anyone requesting information about the dog law can contact Kelley by phone or write the Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement, 5349 William Flynn Highway, Gibsonia, Pa. 15044.

ACTS Program To Be Explained

CARMICHAELS — An ACTS Awareness Night will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 27, in the ACTS shop located in Carmichaels Methodist Church Fellowship Hall.

The purpose is to inform everyone about the ACTS (arts, crafts, talents and services) program, a non-profit organization.

An open invitation is extended to all church pastors, church women's organizations, volunteers and anyone interested in furthering the project.

The new board of directors and the officers will be introduced and new consignment policies for the crafts will be outlined.

Any new concepts to make the shop self-supporting will be considered.

Dairy Princess Just A Working Farm Girl

By Phyllis K. Ross, farm writer

The Washington and Greene County 1984-85 Dairy Princess doesn't enjoy the luxuries associated with royalty when she is home on her family's farm in Prosperity.

Amy Lindley knows as well as anyone that there is little time to sit and act regal on a dairy farm. There is always one more thing that has to be done. "We have 500 acres but only about 150 are tillable," she said.

Because she has spent most of the past year as a student at the Ohio Valley Hospital School of Nursing she didn't get to help much with the regular milking chores. "I wasn't home much," she said.

But when she was home on the weekends, she would help her father with the cow's regular treatments for the prevention of disease and with the feeding of the calves.

A born and bred farm girl, she is the daughter of John and Marilyn Lindley. The oldest of four, she has two brothers, Kirk, 19, a freshman at the Beaver Campus of the Pennsylvania State University, and Matt 15, a freshman at McGuffey High School, and one sister, Marcy, 11, a sixth-grader at McGuffey Middle School.

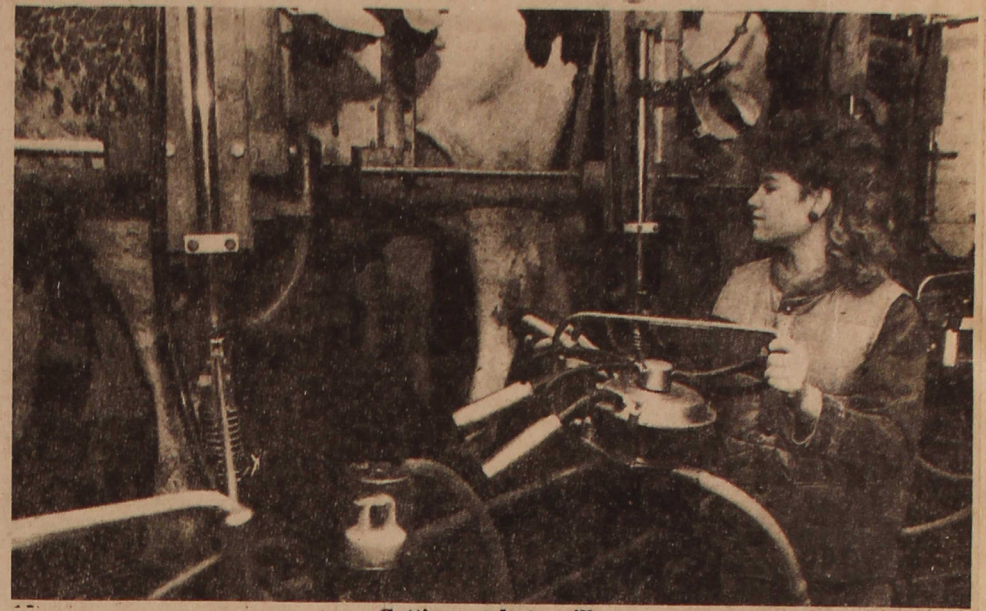

"It's was always my job as I was growing up to help wean and bucket feed the calves."

"We haven't always dairied. My Dad started that in 1980. Before that we had a beef operation. This (dairying) is a lot more work for everyone. It's been a big switch for us, but luckily we have a full-time hired man who does the regular milking. Everyone pitches in to do the field work and all else that goes along with it. No matter how much work, I like the farm, because I like being in the country."

"Until I was elected Dairy Princess, I didn't realize that so many people didn't know anything about milk. When you live on a farm and understand about where milk comes from, you think everybody else does. People who live in the city and don't know anything about it, have no chance to learn," she said.

As Washington-Greene Counties' Dairy Princess, Amy has done a number of promotions, educational and otherwise.

"The promotion I liked the best was the one we did at Frick Park, in Pittsburgh. I talked to a lot of Allegheny County residents and I couldn't believe how much they didn't know. Judy Grice, Tammy Cree and I took a dairy cow to the park with us. We had made charts to show how much grain a cow ate and how much milk it produced. The people had no idea. The kids didn't know what the calf was, they thought it was a goat. We had a big crowd. We also took a pot milker and milked the cow right there. The crowd was excited to see that. Most of them had never seen cows being milked," she said.

"I have also had to do a lot of explaining about the cholesterol scare everyone has about dairy products. I try to tell them it is not a proven theory at all."

She says she tells them about her grandfather, who has always lived on a farm. "He eats bacon, eggs, lots of milk and his puts pure cream on his cereal every morning and he just celebrated his 80th birthday.

"I tell people to concentrate on eating lots of natural foods and to always look for the Real Seal. The best rule is to buy what you know is natural."

As part of her duties, Amy has done several radio spots at WJPA, been in many parades, and spoken to hundreds of elementary school children. "Sometimes I put on my skit for them, 'What's This White Stuff?' We talk about milk and where it comes from and they ask questions. They always try to outdo each other. I'll never forget the little boy who told me he drank 100 glasses of milk a day."

She explained that she enjoys the grocery store promotions she does. "I usually hand out cheese and remind people to buy real products and to read the ingredients."

According to Amy, her family uses a lot of dairy products at home, including real butter.

Authority Approves Proposal For Loan

JEFFERSON — The Lower Ten Mile Joint Sewer Authority, by a 5-2 vote, accepted a proposal from the First National Bank of Camichaels for a $615,000 loan to finance the authority until a Department of Environment Resources grant becomes available.

Four of the five municipalities represented in the authority were present at a meeting of the authority March 14 to hear a proposed memorandum of proceeding necessary for the $6.3 million project to continue.

All five municipalities, Clarksville and Jefferson boroughs and Morgan, Jefferson and East Bethlehem townships, must approve a proportionate share of guarantee for the loan.

According to previously agreed formula, Morgan will guarantee $205,010; Jefferson Township, $205,010; East Bethlehem, $102,460; Jefferson Borough, $51,260 and Clarksville, $51,260.

Attorney C. Robert McCall, representing Jefferson Borough, questioned the cost of legal and bond counsel fees, saying they were too high. Both the authority solicitor, William Hook, and bond counsel, Vic

Lynch, explained the fee schedule and noted the cost could be lower depending on future litigation.

Each municipality must adopt an ordinance approving the loan agreement and the guarantee. Lynch explained that all must accept or the agreement cannot be approved.

Concerning the memorandum of proceeding which sets forth a schedule of events leading up to construction and various regulations, McCall protested the wording of the proposed document and said a lot of discussion must be held by his clients before approval could be given.

McCall especially questioned a section of the document which states in part, "...the guaranty and service agreement shall also provide that the five municipalities individually, but not jointly, will guarantee the payment of any delinquencies that may occur from the failure of customers located within their respective municipalities to pay any of these sewer service charges."

Lynch emphasized that time was a factor and expressed hope all the details could be worked out by April 1.

He was born May 7, 1942, in Pittsburgh, a son of the late Jack McGraw and Dorothy McGraw Peterson, who resides in Brave.

On December 16, 1967, he married Nancy Lee Bottali, who survives.

Mr. McGraw was a veteran of the Vietnam War. On August 31, 1981, he retired from the Navy, following 20 years of service.

He attended the United Methodist Church of Brave and was a member of the Waynesburg VFW.

Surviving, in addition to his mother and his wife, are a son, Daniel Harry McGraw Jr.; two daughters, Dana Lynn and Dorothy Elizabeth, all at home; his step-father, Tom Peterson of Brave; and his paternal grandfather, Chalmer C. Dick of Alexander.

Lawsuit Is Filed

WAYNESBURG — The executor of the estate of a Greene County man who died in Greene County Memorial Hospital on Aug. 29, 1983, has filed a medical malpractice suit against the hospital and two of the physicians on its staff, Dr. Roy A. Springer and Dr. John C. Butterbaugh.

The complaint was filed by Geraldine Ashley of Washington, executor of the estate of her brother, Charles S. Walters of Deep Valley, who was 79 at the time of his death. She is claiming damages "in excess of $10,000."

The complaint states that Walters was admitted to the hospital on Aug. 22 for treatment of a groin hernia and that an enema administered the following day resulted in perforation of the colon.

It claims that the treatment given did not take into consideration the fact that the patient suffered from an infirmity of the heart.

West Waynesburg Man Hospitalized With Gunshot Wound

WAYNESBURG — A West Waynesburg man was admitted to Greene County Memorial Hospital shortly before 10:30 p.m. Thursday, March 14, with a gunshot wound of the abdomen which apparently was self-inflicted.

Thomas Scott was found lying on the seat of a car which was parked along Route 21 in West Waynesburg next to the Levine Iron and Metal Co. yard.

A passerby said he heard the car horn blowing and stopped to investigate. He said the Scott told him he had shot himself and needed help.

State police and the ambulance from the Waynesburg Fire Company were called and took Scott to the hospital. No condition report was available.

The shot apparently was fired from a .22-caliber pistol.

Louis F. Williams Sr.

Louis F. Williams Sr., 69, of 71 High Street, Cameron, West Virginia, died Wednesday, March 13, 1985, in Reynolds Memorial Hospital, Glendale, W.Va.

He was born March 1, 1916, in Cameron, a son of the late Chester and Alice Chambers Williams.

Mr. Williams served as Postmaster in Cameron for 20 years, retiring in December 1984. He had worked for the U.S. Postal Service for 45 years.

He was a veteran of World War II, and a member of the American Legion Post 18 of Cameron, the Masonic Lodge No. 17 A.F.&A.M. of Cameron, and the Eastern Star, Lorraine Chapter 9, in Cameron.

Mr. Williams was treasurer of the Business and Professional Club of Cameron. He was a member of the First Brethren Church in Cameron.

His wife, Betty Murphy Williams, died in May 1984.

Surviving are two daughters, Mary E. Williams of Glendale, Mrs. Stephen (Mildred) Rich of Cameron; two sons, Atty. Louis F. Williams Jr. of Wheeling, W.Va., Paul Edward Williams of Moundsville, W.Va.; one granddaughter, Amanda Rich; one sister, Mrs. Earl (Helen) Sampson of Moundsville; and several nieces and nephews.

Two brothers are deceased.

Roberta L. Jones

Roberta L. Jones, 66, Crucible, died in her home after a long illness at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday, March 13, 1985.

She was born October 11, 1918 at Paisley, a daughter of the late Clarence and Gladys Barnhart McCann. She had resided most of her life in the Carmichaels area and at one time was employed as a cook at the Hartley Inn in Carmichaels.

Mrs. Jones was a member of the Sugar Grove Baptist Church and of the Ladies Aid Society of Crucible.

Surviving are her husband, William E. Jones, whom she married October 16, 1937; a daughter, Mrs. Rose Maskil of Rices Landing; four sons, David and Lee Jones, both of Crucible, Clarence William Jones in Virginia, and George Robert Jones of Carmichaels; 11 grandchildren; a great-granddaughter; three sisters, Myra Maslanka of Nemaacolin, Rose Townsend of Cleveland, Ohio, and Johanna Kelly of Shelbyville, Ind., and four brothers, John McCann of Carmichaels, Raymond McCann of Detroit, Mich., Lee McCann in Kansas, and Melvin McCann in California.

A brother and a grandson died in infancy.

William C. Wood

William C. Wood, 63, of Spraggs R.D.1, died at 5:20 p.m., Thursday, March 14, 1985, in the Monongalia General Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., following a heart attack.

He was born January 23, 1922, in Waynesburg, a son of the late William H. and Goldie Wood.

Mr. Wood had been employed for 40 years by the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., working for 35 years in Waynesburg and five years in Mason-town. He retired in 1981.

He had spent his entire life in the Waynesburg area and was a 1940 graduate of Waynesburg High School.

He served with the Army during World War II and in the Korean Conflict in the Philippines.

He was an active member of the First Christian Church of Waynesburg and held most of the offices in the church. He served as an elder and was a teacher of the Men's Bible Class. He was also a past president of the Greene County Sunday School Association.

Mr. Wood was also a member of the Wayne Township Volunteer Fire Co.

Surviving are his wife, Helen Wood; one daughter, Mrs. William (Cathy) Maine of Core, W.Va.; one grandson, John William Maine; one brother, John H. Wood of Waynesburg; and an aunt, Mrs. Mary K. Hilberry of Waynesburg.

George B. Doman

George B. Doman, 54, of Andover, Ohio, died Friday, March 15, 1985, in the Hamot Medical Center in Erie.

He was born June 9, 1903, in Bobtown, a son of the late Joseph and Margaret Lessner Doman.

He served with the U.S. Air Force during the Korean War.

Mr. Doman lived in Titusville prior to moving to Andover in 1956 as manager of the Isaly store there. He later served as purchasing and personnel agent for Andover Industries and in 1969 purchased the "Newsroom," which he operated until 1973 when he retired due to disability.

He was a member of Our Lady of Victory Church in Andover, where he was active in the Men's Club, Knights of Columbus and American Legion. He had formerly served on the town council.

Surviving are his wife, Mary A. Pelensky Doman, whom he married May 18, 1957; a sister, Mrs. Gale (Margaret) Minor of Greensboro; two brothers, William J. Doman of Fort Pierce and James E. Doman of Shiremanstown, and several nieces and nephews.

Services were held Monday in Andover.

MISSION SPEAKER — William Snodgrass, a representative of the Chinese Overseas Christian Mission, will be one of the speakers at the two-day Mission Conference to be held Saturday and Sunday, March 23 and 24, at the First Presbyterian Church of Waynesburg. Snodgrass will speak following the banquet at 6 p.m. Saturday in the church fellowship hall. The Chinese Overseas Christian Mission is committed to penetrating the bamboo curtain by means of radio and printed scripture. It also ministers among the Chinese communities in Jakarta, Indonesia, and supports work among the Chinese in Australia and the Philippines and the youth in Chinatown in New York City. Snodgrass, his wife Marge and their two children reside in Clarks Mills in western Pennsylvania. Snodgrass has visited China, Hong Kong and the Philippines to gain firsthand knowledge of the work being done in those areas.

Tot Falls Out Of Window

HOLBROOK — A 2-year-old boy who was visiting his grandparents' home near Holbrook was listed in stable condition at Greene County Memorial Hospital of injuries received in a 30-foot fall early Wednesday morning.

Zachery Six, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Six of New Jersey, formerly of the Holbrook area, suffered a head injury, but no fractures, when he fell from a window to the ground.

A hospital spokesman said the child was kept overnight for observation.

Pothole Hotline Number Toll-Free

The state's pothole hotline will resume operating Monday.

Drivers can report potholes on the toll-free line between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. The numbers are 800-542-0359 in Washington County, 800-342-8255 in Greene and Fayette counties and 800-442-6955 in Westmoreland County.

"This has been a very severe winter, which is reflected in the number of potholes already formed," said John E. Claypool, district engineer for the state Department of Transportation. "Excess water beneath the pavement weakens the surface tremendously, particularly when the ground starts to thaw in the spring."

The hotline service will end April 12.

Effort Designed To Help Locate Handicapped

Child Find is an effort by Intermediate Unit I to locate handicapped preschool children in Washington, Greene and Fayette counties who are not in a preschool program.

Child Find is designed to find children age 5 years and younger who are having trouble walking, talking, seeing, hearing or learning. Parents or guardians who think their children have any of those problems are asked to contact the IU office at 222-4146, 938-3241 or 439-2521.

The IU and other agencies have special programs for handicapped children such as individual educational programs, testing, classroom placement, speech therapy, transportation and other support services at no cost.

The state Department of Education pays for the program. The IU I program is under the direction of Ellen Q. Altimus, supervisor of special education.

IU To Conduct Writing Workshop

Intermediate Unit I will conduct a follow-up workshop to the series, "Writing for the '80s — Secondary," that was held last year. It is being made possible through a grant from the Henry C. Frick Educational Commission.

The original series of 10 workshops was paid for by the same source and attended by 56 teachers and administrators from 19 local school districts.

The follow-up is designed to discuss successes and to develop further skills.

The workshop will be held at the Holiday Inn, Meadow Lands, on April 10. Registration information is available by calling 222-4146, 938-3241, or 439-2521.
